14 ¶ Therefore hear the word of the LORD, ye scornful men, who rule this people that is in Jerusalem.

15 Because ye have said, "We have entered into a covenant with death, and with the nether world have we made an agree-

[a] When all the altars of idols are destroyed, and thus the worship of false gods can no more exist among Israel.

[b] Rashi. Others, "For the fortified city is desolate," &c.

[c] From the Euphrates to the Arish.

[d] The Mount of Samaria, which overlooks the fruitful valley beneath.

[e] Others, "in the forepart of summer."

[f] Lit "report," or "what is heard," i. e. from God.

[g] Rashi comments, that the people would not hear, and to every precept the prophet offered them in God's name, they said that they had one from an idol. It ought to be rendered then, "For there is precept against precept," &c. The word of God should bring rest; but as the drunkards of Ephraim derided it, they did suffer through their enemies the evil threatened against them.

[h] Rashi, "they regard every prophet as though he stammered, and could not be understood." But Sachs, "God will speak to them through nations of stammering lips," i. e. who speak the language of the land imperfectly.

ment; the overflowing scourge, when it passeth by, shall not come at us; for we have made lies our refuge, and under falsehood have we sought a hiding-place."

16 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Behold, I have laid in Zion as a foundation a stone, a tried stone, a costly corner-stone, well founded: he that believeth will not make haste.[a]

17 And I will make of justice a measuring line, and of righteousness a plummet: and the hail shall sweep off the refuge of lies, and the hiding-place against the waters shall these flood away.

18 And your covenant with death shall be annulled, and your agreement with the nether world shall not have permanence; the overflowing scourge, when it passeth by—then shall ye be trodden down by it.

19 As often as it passeth by shall it take you; for morning by morning shall it pass by, by day and by night; and the mere understanding of the report shall cause terror.[b]

20 For the bed shall be too short for (a man) to stretch himself out (on it): and the covering too narrow to wrap himself in.

21 For as on mount Perazim[c] will the Lord rise up, as in the valley of Gib'on will he be wroth, that he may do his work, his singular work; and to accomplish his labour, his strange labour.

22 And now be ye no longer scornful, lest your bonds be made strong; for as completed and fully decreed have I heard it from the Lord Eternal of hosts over all the earth.

23 ¶ Give ye ear, and hear my voice; listen, and hear my speech.

24 Doth the ploughman plough all the[d] time to sow? doth he open and harrow his ground (continually)?

25 Is it not so? that, when he hath made level its surface he scattereth fennel, and streweth about cumin, and planteth the wheat in rows, and barley on its assigned (place), and millet on its proper spot?[e]

26 For his God hath instructed him rightly, taught him (so to do).[f]

27 Truly not with a threshing instrument is fennel threshed, and a wagon-wheel is not turned about upon cumin; but fennel is beaten out with a staff, and cumin with a stick.

28 Bread-corn is crushed; but not for ever doth (man) keep threshing it; and though he drive over it the wheel of his wagon and his horses, he will not (thereby) crush it.[g]

29 This also cometh forth from the Lord of hosts; wonderful is he in counsel, and excellent in (his) wise deeds.

CHAPTER XXIX.

1 ¶ Wo to Ariël,[h] to Ariël, the town where David dwelt! add ye year to year; let the festivals come round in order;[i]

2 Yet will I distress Ariël, and there shall be groaning and wailing: and it shall be unto me like Ariël.[k]

3 And I will encamp against thee round about, and will lay siege against thee with hostile posts,[l] and I will raise up intrenchments against thee.

4 And brought down low, shalt thou speak (as though) out of the earth, and out of the dust shall come forth thy speech; and like one of a familiar spirit out of the earth shall be thy voice, and out of the dust shalt thou whisper forth thy speech.

5 And like the small dust shall be the multitude of thy barbarian enemies, and like the passing chaff the multitude of tyrants; and (this) shall be at unawares, suddenly.

6 From the Lord of hosts shall the visita-

[b] i. e. So constant shall be the infliction of the scourge, that the report that it may be apprehended shall terrify all who hear of it. Sachs, "and the report shall teach nothing but terror."

[c] Perazim, Gib'on known for the victory of Joshua where David prevailed over the Philistines. (2 Sam. v. 17–25.)

[d] Jonathan. Sachs, lit. "all the day."

[e] Rashi, "on the boundary (outer edge) of the field." Philippson says, that קצח here given fennel, is black carraway, Nigella sativa; כמון cumin, is the Cuminum cyminum, not the usual Carum carvi. The millet is the Triticum spelta of Linnæus, not "rye," as in the English version.

[f] Joseph Kimchi, "And hath he so tilled it as it is proper, his God will send the rain." Rashi, "Even to the one whom God teacheth (he will not for ever send his prophets) but chastise him with judgment." We have followed Aben Ezra and Redak.

tion come with thunder, and with earthquake, and great noise, with storm and tempest, and the devouring flame of fire.

7 And as a dream of a night-vision shall be the multitude of all the nations that go to war against Ariël, even all that fight against her and raise towers against her, and that distress her.

8 And it shall even be as when a hungry man dreameth, that, behold, he eateth; but he awaketh, and his soul is empty; or as when a thirsty man dreameth, that, behold, he drinketh; but he awaketh, and, behold, he is faint, and his soul yet longeth: so shall it be with the multitude of all the nations, that go to war against mount Zion.

9 ¶ Stay but still and wonder; turn your eyes away, and be blinded: they are drunken, but not with wine; they stagger, but not with strong drink.

10 For the LORD hath poured out over you the spirit of deep sleep, and hath closed your eyes: (over) the prophets, and your chiefs, the seërs, hath he cast a vail.

11 And the vision of every thing is become unto you as the words of a book that is sealed, which men deliver to one that can read,[a] saying, Read this, I pray thee; and he saith, I cannot; for it is sealed:

12 And the book is then delivered to one that cannot read, saying, Read this, I pray thee; and he saith, I cannot read.

13 ¶ And the Lord said, Forasmuch as this people draw near[b] with their mouth, and with their lips do honour me, but have removed their heart far from me, and their fear toward me is but the acquired precept of men:

14 Therefore, behold, I will do yet farther a marvellous work with this people, doing wonder on wonder; so that the wisdom of their wise men shall be lost, and the understanding of their prudent men shall be hidden.

15 ¶ Wo unto those that seek to hide deeply their counsel from the LORD, so that their works may be in the dark, and they say, Who seeth us? and who knoweth us?

16 Oh your perverseness! shall the potter be esteemed as the clay? that the work shall say of its maker, He hath not made me? or shall the thing framed say of its framer, He had no understanding?

17 Lo! but yet a very little while more, and Lebanon shall be turned into a fruitful field, and the fruitful field shall be esteemed as a forest!

18 And on that day shall the deaf hear the words of the book, and out of obscurity, and out of darkness, shall the eyes of the blind see.

19 And the sufferers shall have abundant joy in the LORD, and the needy among men shall be glad in the Holy One of Israel.

20 For the tyrant is no more, and consumed is the scorner, and cut off are all that watch for injustice;

21 That cause mankind to sin by (their) word; and lay a snare for him that reproveth (them) in the gate; and pervert through fraud the cause of the just.[c]

22 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the LORD unto the house of Jacob, he who hath redeemed Abraham, Not now shall Jacob be ashamed, and not now shall his face be made pale.

23 For when he seeth his children, the work of my hands in the midst of him, how they sanctify my name: then will they sanctify the Holy One of Jacob, and the God of Israel will they reverence.

24 They also that were erring in spirit shall acquire understanding, and they that murmured shall obtain instruction.

CHAPTER XXX.

1 ¶ Wo to the rebellious children, saith the LORD, that take counsel, but not from me; and that set themselves a ruler,[d] but not by my spirit, in order that they may add sin to sin:

2 That travel to go down into Egypt, and have not asked my will;[e] to strengthen themselves through the strength of Pharaoh, and to seek shelter in the shadow of Egypt!

3 Therefore shall the strength of Pharaoh become your shame, and the shelter in the shadow of Egypt your disgrace.

4 For his princes[f] were at Zo'an, and his ambassadors had reached Chanes.

[a] Lit. "that knoweth a book."
[b] Jonathan, "because this people hath vaunted."
[c] Rashi, after Jonathan; but Sachs, "Who into desolation mislead the righteous."

[d] Jonathan. Septuagint, "who make a covenant." Redak, "who make resolves without my spirit."
[e] Lit. "my mouth."
[f] Those of the king of Israel.

5 They all are ashamed because of a people that cannot profit them, neither be a help nor give profit; but (bringeth) shame, and also a reproach.

6 ¶ The doom[a] of the beasts of the south: Through the land of trouble and anguish, whence come the lioness and the lion, the viper and flying dragons, they will carry upon the shoulders of young asses their riches, and upon the humps of camels their treasures, to a people that cannot profit.

7 And the Egyptians will help in vain, and to no purpose; therefore have I called this, Boasters they are in sitting still.

8 Now go, write it before them on a table, and note it in a book, that it may be for the latest time to come, for ever, and to eternity;

9 For this is a rebellious people, lying children, children that will not hear the law of the LORD:

10 Who have said to the seërs, Ye shall not see; and to the prophets, Reveal not unto us true things, speak unto us smooth things, reveal deceits;

11 Depart you out of the way, turn aside out of the path, remove from before us the Holy One of Israel.

12 Therefore thus hath said the Holy One of Israel, Because ye despise this word, and trust in oppression and perverseness, and lean thereon for aid:

13 Therefore shall this iniquity be to you as a threatening breach,[b] swelling out in a high-towering wall, the fall[c] of which will come unawares, suddenly.

14 And he will break it, as one breaketh a potter's vessel, dashing it in pieces without sparing[d] it; so that there cannot be found among its fragments a sherd to rake fire from a hearth and to draw water from a pit.

15 ¶ For thus hath said the Lord Eternal, the Holy One of Israel, In repose[e] and rest shall ye be helped; in quietness and in confidence shall be your strength; and ye would not.

16 And ye said, "No; for upon horses will we flee;" therefore shall ye flee: and, "Upon swift beasts will we ride;" therefore shall your pursuers be swift.

17 One thousand (shall flee) at the threatening of one; at the threatening of five shall ye (all) flee: till ye be left as a pole upon a mountain-top, and as an ensign on a hill.

18 And therefore will the LORD wait,[f] to be gracious unto you, and therefore will he exalt himself, to have mercy upon you; for a God of justice is the LORD: happy are all those that wait for him.

19 ¶ For O people of Zion that shall dwell at Jerusalem! thou shalt indeed not weep: he will be surely gracious unto thee at the voice of thy cry; so soon as he heareth it, he answereth thee.

20 And the Lord will give you bread (in)[g] adversity, and water (in) oppression; and thy teachers shall not have to hide themselves in a corner any more, but thy eyes shall see thy teachers:

21 And thy ears shall hear the word behind thee,[h] saying, "This is the way, walk ye in it," when ye turn to the right hand, and when ye turn to the left.

22 And ye will regard as unclean the covering of thy graven idols of silver, and the ornament of thy molten images of gold: thou wilt cast them away as a filthy thing; "Get thee hence," wilt thou say unto them.

23 Then will he give the rain for thy seed, that thou mayest sow in the ground; and bread—the produce of the ground—this shall be fat and nutritious: thy cattle shall feed on that day in extensive pastures.[i]

24 The oxen likewise and the young asses that till the ground shall eat salted[k] provender, which hath been winnowed with the shovel and with the fan.

[a] Rashi connects this verse with the above; thus, "Heavily laden go their beasts to the south, through," &c.

[c] Lit. "breaking."

[d] Lit. "he will not spare."

[e] Rashi. Others, "returning;" but the verse evidently means that God said they should not go to Egypt, but await in quiet and hope his omnipotent aid.

[f] Rashi renders, "he will tarry—he will remove himself," &c., "for he will first exercise justice on sinners."

[g] After Sachs and Philippson. Rashi, however, "bread of adversity, and water of oppression;" i. e. every thing in moderation, in opposition to the luxury then existing, which led to such forgetfulness of God. Jonathan, "the property of the enemy, and the spoil of the oppressor."

[h] The prophets are represented as shepherds walking behind the flock.—This verse is the opposite of the rejection of the word, above, verses 10, 11.

[i] Jonathan, "till they be fat cattle."

[k] Aben Ezra. Salt is a useful article for cattle. Rashi, "mixed with corn." Redak, "purified," "clean," from an Arabic root.

25 And there shall be upon every high mountain, and upon every prominent hill, rivulets, streams of waters on the day of the great slaughter, when towers fall.

26 And the light of the moon shall be as the light of the sun, and the light of the sun shall be sevenfold, as the light of the seven days, on the day that the LORD bindeth up the broken (limbs) of his people, and healeth the bruise of their wound.

27 ¶ Behold, the name of the LORD cometh from afar, burning is his anger, and heavy the smoke;[a] his lips are full of indignation, and his tongue is like a devouring fire;

28 And his breath, like an overflowing stream, shall reach to the midst of the neck, to toss the nations with the van of falsehood: and (to place) a deceiving bridle on the jaws of the people.

29 (Then) shall ye have a song, as in the night when a festival[b] is ushered in, and joy of heart, as when one goeth with the flute to come unto the mountain of the LORD, to the Rock of Israel.

30 And the LORD will cause his majestic voice to be heard, and will show the stretching down of his arm, in the indignation of (his) anger, and in the flame of a devouring fire, in flood, and tempest, and stones of hail.

31 For because of the voice of the LORD shall be terrified Asshur, that smote (you) with the rod.

32 And at every passage of the appointed[c] staff which the LORD will let fall on him, there shall be (music) on tambourine and harp; and in the tumult[d] of battles will he fight with them.

33 For already of old is Topheth[e] made ready; also this is prepared for the king—deep and wide; its pile hath fire and wood in plenty, the breath of the LORD, like a stream of sulphur, will kindle it into a flame.

CHAPTER XXXI.

1 ¶ Wo to those that go down to Egypt for help; and depend for support on horses, and trust on chariots, because they are many; and on horsemen, because they are very strong; but who turn not unto the Holy One of Israel, and seek not the LORD!

2 Yet he also is wise, and bringeth evil, and taketh not back his words; and riseth up against the house of evil-doers, and against the help of those that work injustice.

3 But the Egyptians are men, and not God; and their horses are flesh, and not spirit; and the LORD will stretch out his hand, and there shall stumble the helper, and he that is helped shall fall down, and they all shall perish together.

4 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD unto me, Just as the lion or the young lion growleth over his prey, against whom is called forth the company of shepherds, of whose voice he is not afraid, and is not depressed because of their multitude: thus will the LORD come down, to fight on mount Zion and on its hill.

5 As fluttering birds, so will the LORD of hosts shield Jerusalem; shielding and delivering; sparing[f] and preserving.

6 Turn ye unto him from whom the children of Israel have deeply revolted.

7 For on that day shall every man despise his idols of silver, and his idols of gold, which your own hands have made unto you for a sin.

8 Then shall Asshur fall by the sword of one who is not a man; and the sword of one who is not a son of earth shall devour him; and he shall flee him from the sword, and his young men shall become tributary.

9 And his stronghold shall pass away for fear, and his princes shall be terrified because of the ensign, saith the LORD, who hath a fire in Zion, and a furnace in Jerusalem.

CHAPTER XXXII.

1 ¶ Behold, a king shall reign in righteousness, and princes shall rule in justice.

2 And every one[g] shall be as a hiding-place from the wind, and a covert from the tempest; as rivulets of water in a dry place,

[a] Judges xx. 40. Rashi, "burden."

[b] Lit. "when a feast is sanctified."

[c] The punishment decreed; it means, as often as the blow falls on the Assyrians, the Israelites shall be merry at their deliverance.

[d] תנופה, after Aben Ezra, "the waving of the hand to play." But it means here the swinging of armour and the shaking of swords, or the tumult of the fight.

[e] Topheth, the place outside of Jerusalem where Moloch was served, and where the offal was burnt. The image will thus be readily understood.

[f] Lit. "passing over," i. e. not striking them when others are stricken. Redak thinks that "fluttering birds" refers to Jerusalem; others, "as birds flutter over their young."

[g] Rashi, "The man who is mighty in the fear of God (Hezekiah) shall be to Israel," &c.

as the shadow of a large rock in a languishing land.[a]

3 And the eyes of those that see shall not be blinded again, and the ears of those that hear shall hearken.

4 The heart also of the rash shall be attentive in order to know, and the tongue of the stammerers shall be ready to speak plainly.

5 The worthless person shall be no more called liberal, and the avaricious[b] man shall not be said to be bountiful.

6 For the worthless person ever speaketh villany, and his heart will work injustice, to practise hypocrisy, and to speak error against the LORD, to leave empty the soul of the hungry, and the drink of the thirsty will he take away.

7 The instruments also of the avaricious man are evil: he deviseth wicked resolves to destroy the poor with words of falsehood, even when the needy speaketh what is right.

8 But the liberal deviseth liberal things; and he ever persisteth by liberal things.

9 ¶ Ye careless women rise up, hear my voice; ye daughters that are secure, give ear unto my speech.

10 After days and years shall ye shudder, ye women that are secure; for ended is the vintage, the fruit gathering shall nowise come.

11 Tremble, ye careless women; shudder, ye that are secure, strip off your garments and make yourselves bare, and gird (sackcloth) upon the loins.

12 (They shall strike) on the breast, lamenting, for the pleasant fields, for the fruitful vine.

13 Upon the soil of my people thorns and briers shall come up; yea, upon all the houses of joy of the gladsome town.

14 Because the palace is abandoned, the tumult of the city is forsaken; the hill and watch-tower are become dens for a long time,[c] a joyous haunt for wild asses, a pasture for flocks.

15 Until a spirit be poured upon us from on high, and the wilderness be changed into a fruitful field, and the fruitful field be accounted as a forest.

16 Then shall justice dwell in the wilderness, and righteousness abide in the fruitful field.

17 And the work of righteousness shall be peace; and the effect of righteousness quietness and security for ever.

18 And then shall my people abide in peaceful dwellings, and secure abodes, and in undisturbed resting-places.

19 And it shall spread itself out in the declivity of the forest; and far down in the lowlands shall the city descend.[d]

20 Happy are ye that sow beside all waters, freely sending forth the feet of the ox and the ass.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

1 ¶ Wo to thee that wastest, while thou wast not wasted; and traitor, while men dealt not treacherously with thee! when thou shalt have made an end of wasting, thou shalt be wasted; and when thou shalt have finished to deal treacherously, men shall deal treacherously with thee.

2 ¶ O LORD, be gracious unto us; we have waited for thee: be thou their support[e] every morning, also our salvation in the time of trouble.

3 At the noise of (thy) thunder[f] people fled; when thou liftedst thyself up nations were scattered.

4 And your spoil shall be gathered as the cricket gathereth:[g] as locusts run about, so shall people hasten after it.

5 The LORD is exalted; for he dwelleth on high: he hath filled Zion with justice and righteousness.

6 And the stability of thy times and the strength of thy happiness shall be wisdom and knowledge; the fear of the LORD is his[h] treasure.

[a] i. e. Where the traveller languishes for water.

[b] Sa'adyah. Gesenius, "deceitful" or "cunning." Rashi, "deceiver."

[c] Philippson, after Jonathan. Others, lit. "for ever."

[d] After Sachs and Philippson; after Aben Ezra in part, reudering ברד as ברד; but Jonathan, literally, "hail," thus, "and the hail shall come down and slay the camps of the nations so that perish and be at an end their dwellings." Rashi,—"upon the wicked, who are now built up and full of cities as a forest of trees."

[e] Lit. "arm." Rashi comments on "their," "those who were subjected to the waster," spoken of in verse 1.

[f] Lit. "tumult."

[g] Rashi, "each of which gathered its food in summer." Others, "as the cricket (others, caterpillar) is gathered."

[h] i. e. Of the man who possesses it.

7 ¶ Behold, their valiant ones cry without: the ambassadors of peace weep bitterly.

8 The highways lie waste, ceased hath the wayfaring traveller: he[a] hath broken the covenant, he despiseth cities, he regardeth not man.

9 It mourneth, it languisheth—the land: Lebanon is ashamed, it is withered away; Sharon is become like a wilderness; and bereft of their fruits are Bashan and Carmel.

10 Now will I arise, saith the LORD; now will I raise myself; now will I lift myself up.

11 Ye shall be pregnant with hay, (and) ye shall bring forth stubble: your breath is a fire, which shall devour you.

12 And the people shall be burnt as lime:[b] as cut-off thorns shall they blaze up in fire.

13 ¶ Hear, ye distant ones, what I have done; and acknowledge ye that are near my might.

14 In Zion sinners are in dread; trembling hath seized on hypocrites. "Who[c] among us shall abide with the devouring fire? who among us shall abide with everlasting burnings?"

15 He that walketh in righteousness, and speaketh uprightly; he that despiseth the gain of oppressions, that shaketh his hands against taking hold of bribes, that stoppeth his ears against hearing of blood, and shutteth his eyes against looking on evil;

16 He shall dwell on high; rocky strongholds shall be his refuge: his bread shall be given him; his water shall be sure.

17 The king in his beauty shall thy eyes behold: they shall see a far-off land.

18 Thy heart shall meditate (on past) terror. "Where is who wrote down?[d] where is he that weighed? where is he that counted the towers?"

19 The barbarous people shalt thou not see any more, the people of a speech too obscure to be understood, of a stammering tongue, without meaning.

20 Look on Zion, the town of our solemn assemblies; thy eyes shall see Jerusalem as an undisturbed residence, a tent that shall not be struck for removal; not one of the stakes of which shall ever be moved, and all the cords of which shall never be torn loose.

21 But there will the LORD (show himself) mighty unto us, (in) a place of rivers and streams of ample breadth; wherein no oared galley shall go, and a gallant ship shall not pass thereby.

22 For the LORD is our judge, the LORD is our lawgiver, the LORD is our king; he will save us.

23 Loose hang thy tacklings; they cannot well uphold strongly their mast, they cannot spread the sail. Then are divided booty and spoil in abundance, (even) the lame take the booty.

24 And no inhabitant shall say, I am sick: the people that dwell therein shall be one whose iniquity is forgiven.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

1 ¶ Come near, ye nations, to hear; and ye people, hearken: let the earth hear, and all that filleth it; the world, and all things that spring forth of it.

2 For the indignation of the LORD is (enkindled) over all the nations, and his fury over all their army: he hath devoted them, he hath given them up to the slaughter.

3 And their slain also shall be cast out, and as regardeth their carcasses their stench shall ascend upward, and the mountains shall be melted through their blood.

4 And all the host of heaven shall be dissolved, and the heavens shall be rolled together like a book: and all their host shall wither, as the leaf withereth from the vine, and as withering fruit from the fig-tree.

5 For my sword is sated[e] in heaven: behold, it shall come down upon Edom, and upon the people I have devoted to punishment.[f]

6 The sword of the LORD is full of blood, it is enriched[g] with fat, with the blood of lambs and goats,[h] with the fat of the kidneys

[a] i. e. The enemy.
[b] Lit. "as the burnings of lime."
[c] Rashi, "Who shall stand for us to ward off," &c.
[d] Redak, "who wrote down the taxes, and he also, who weighed the tribute, and counted and wrote down the number of towers;" all are now gone; a thing only of dreadful memory.

[e] i. e. With slaughter. Saebs and others, "drunk," i. e. with blood.

of rams; for the LORD hath a sacrifice in Bozrah, and a great slaughter in the land of Edom.

7 And wild oxen[a] shall sink down with them, and steers with bullocks; and their land shall be sated with blood, and their dust enriched with fat.

8 For it is the day of vengeance unto the LORD, and the year of recompense for the controversy[b] of Zion.

9 And its brooks shall be changed into pitch, and its dust into sulphur, and its land shall become burning pitch.

10 Night and day shall it not be quenched; for ever shall ascend the smoke thereof: from generation to generation shall it lie waste; no one shall for ever and ever pass through it.

11 But pelican and hedgehog shall take possession of it; night-owl also and raven shall dwell in it: and he shall stretch out over it the line of destruction, and the weights[c] of desolation.

12 Their nobles—no one is there they could call (to) the kingdom, and all its princes shall be no more.

13 And thorns shall spring up in its palaces, nettles and brambles in its fortresses: and it shall be a habitation of monsters, and a court for ostriches.

14 And the martens[d] shall meet with the jackals, and one goat shall call to his fellow; only the screech-owl shall rest there, and find for herself a place of repose.

15 There shall nestle the arrow-snake,[e] and lay eggs, and hatch, and gather its young under its shadow:[f] only vultures shall assemble there, every one with her mate.

16 Inquire out of the book of the LORD, and read: not one of these shall be absent, not one shall miss her mate; for my mouth it is that hath ordained it, and its breath[g] it is that hath gathered them.

17 And he hath cast the lot for them, and his hand hath divided it out unto them by the measuring line: for ever shall they possess it, from generation to generation shall they dwell therein.

CHAPTER XXXV.

1 ¶ The wilderness and the dry land shall be glad thereat;[h] and the desert shall rejoice, and blossom as the lily.[i]

2 It shall blossom abundantly, and rejoice, yea, with joy and singing; the glory of the Lebanon shall be given unto it, the elegance of Carmel and Sharon: they indeed shall see the glory of the LORD, and the excellency of our God.

3 ¶ Strengthen ye weak hands, and stumbling knees make ye firm.

4 Say to the timid of heart, Be strong, fear not: behold, your God, (with) vengeance will he come, with God's recompense; it is he who will come and save you.

5 Then shall the eyes of the blind be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped.

6 Then shall the lame leap as a hart, and the tongue of the dumb shall sing; for in the wilderness shall waters break out, and brooks in the desert.

7 And the sandy waste[k] shall be changed into a pool, and the thirsty land into springs of water: in the habitation of monsters, where each one used to lie, shall be a court for reeds and rushes.

8 And there shall be a highway and a way, and The holy way, shall it be called; no unclean one shall pass over it; but it shall be (only) theirs; the wayfaring man, and those unacquainted[l] (therewith), shall not go astray.

9 No lion shall be there, and no ravenous beast shall go up thereon,—shall not be found there; but there shall walk the redeemed:

10 And the ransomed of the LORD shall return, and come to Zion with song, with everlasting joy upon their head; gladness and joy shall they obtain, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

1 ¶ And[a] it came to pass in the fourteenth year of king Hezekiah, that Sennacherib the king of Assyria came up against all the fortified cities of Judah, and seized on them.

2 And the king of Assyria sent Rabshakeh from Lachish to Jerusalem to king Hezekiah with a strong army. And he halted by the aqueduct of the upper pool on the highway of the washer's field.

3 Then came forth unto him Elyakim, the son of Chilkiyahu, who was superintendent over the house, and Shebna the scribe, and Yoäch the son of Assaph, the recorder.

4 And Rabshakeh said unto them,—Say ye now to Hezekiah, Thus hath said the great king, the king of Assyria, What confidence is this wherewith thou hast trusted?

5 I have said,[b] but it was only a word uttered with the lips, (I have) counsel and strength for the war. Now, on whom didst thou trust, that thou rebelledst against me?

6 Behold, thou trustedst on yon cracked reed-staff, on Egypt; which, if a man lean on it, will enter into his hand, and pierce it: so is Pharaoh the king of Egypt to all that trust on him.

7 But if thou shouldst say to me, In the LORD our God have we trusted: is he not the one whose high-places and whose altars Hezekiah hath removed, when he said to Judah and to Jerusalem, Before this altar shall ye prostrate yourselves?

8 And now I pray thee, enter into a contest with my master the king of Assyria, and I will give thee two thousand horses, if thou be able on thy part to set riders upon them.

9 How then wilt thou turn back the face of a single chieftain of the least of my master's servants, while thou hast put thy trust on Egypt for chariots and for horsemen?

10 And now am I come up without the LORD('s will) against this land to destroy it? The LORD hath said unto me, Go up against this land, and destroy it.

11 Then said Elyakim and Shebna and Yoäch unto Rabshakeh, Speak, we pray thee, unto thy servants in the Syrian language; for we understand it: and speak not to us in the Jewish language, before the ears of the people that are on the wall.

12 But Rabshakeh said, Hath my master then sent me to thy master and to thee to speak these words? is it not rather to the men who sit upon the wall, that they may eat their own excrements, and drink their own urine with you?

13 Then stood Rabshakeh up, and called out with a loud voice in the Jewish language, and said, Hear ye the words of the great king, the king of Assyria.

14 Thus hath said the king, Let not Hezekiah deceive you; for he will not be able to deliver you;

15 Neither let Hezekiah induce you to trust in the LORD, saying, The LORD will surely deliver us; this city shall not be given up into the hand of the king of Assyria.

16 Hearken not to Hezekiah; for thus hath said the king of Assyria, Make a treaty of peace with me, and come out to me; and eat ye every one of his vine, and every one of his fig-tree, and drink ye every one the waters of his cistern;

17 Until I come and take you away to a land like your own land, a land of corn and wine, a land of bread and vineyards.

18 So that Hezekiah may not mislead you, saying, The LORD will deliver us. Have the gods of the nations delivered each his land out of the hand of the king of Assyria?

19 Where are the gods of Chamath and Arpad? where are the gods of Sepharvayim? and have they then delivered Samaria out of my hand?

20 Who are they among all the gods of these countries, that have delivered their country out of my hand, that the LORD should deliver Jerusalem out of my hand?

21 But they remained silent, and answered him not a word; for it was the king's command, saying, Ye shall not answer him.

22 Then came Elyakim the son of Chilkiyahu, that was superintendent over the house, and Shebna the scribe, and Yoäch the son of Assaph, the recorder, to Hezekiah with their clothes rent; and they told him the words of Rabshakeh.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

1 ¶ And it came to pass, when king Hezekiah heard it, that he rent his clothes, and covered himself with sackcloth, and went into the house of the LORD.

[a] For explanatory notes to this, and chapters xxxvii. to xxxix., see 2 Kings xviii. to xx.

[b] The words of Hezekiah quoted by Rabshakeh.

2 And he sent Elyakim, who was superintendent over the house, and Shebna the scribe, and the elders of the priests, covered with sackcloth, to Isaiah the son of Amoz, the prophet.

3 And they said unto him, Thus hath said Hezekiah, A day of trouble, and of rebuke, and of derision is this day; for the children are come to the birth, and there is not strength to bring forth.

4 Perhaps the LORD thy God will hear the words of Rabshakeh, whom the king of Assyria his master hath sent to blaspheme the living God, and who hath reproached with the words which the LORD thy God hath heard: wherefore lift up a prayer for the remnant that is still found here.

5 And the servants of king Hezekiah came to Isaiah.

6 And Isaiah said unto them, Thus shall ye say unto your master, Thus hath said the LORD, Be not afraid because of the words which thou hast heard, with which the boys of the king of Assyria have blasphemed me.

7 Behold, I will put an (other) spirit in him, and when he will hear a rumour, he shall return to his own land; and I will cause him to fall by the sword in his own land.

8 And Rabshakeh returned, and found the king of Assyria warring against Libnah; for he had heard that he was departed from Lachish.

9 And he heard it said of Thirhakah the king of Ethiopia, He is come out to fight with thee. And when he had heard it, he sent messengers to Hezekiah, saying,

10 Thus shall ye say to Hezekiah the king of Judah, as followeth, Let not thy God, in whom thou trustest, deceive thee, saying, Jerusalem shall not be given up into the hand of the king of Assyria.

11 Behold, thou thyself hast heard what the kings of Assyria have done to all the lands by destroying them utterly: and thou alone shouldst be delivered?

12 Have the gods of the nations which my fathers destroyed delivered them, as Gozan, and Charan, and Rezeph, and the children of 'Eden, who were in Thelassar?

13 Where is the king of Chamath, and the king of Arpad, and the king of the city of Sepharvayim, of Hena', and 'Ivvah?

14 And Hezekiah took the letter out of the hand of the messengers, and read it: and Hezekiah went up unto the house of the LORD, and spread it out before the LORD.

15 And Hezekiah prayed unto the LORD, saying,

16 O LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, who dwellest between the cherubim, thou art the (true) God, thou alone, for all the kingdoms of the earth; (for) it is thou who hast made the heavens and earth.

17 Bend down, O LORD, thy ear, and hear; open, O LORD, thy eye, and see: and hear all the words of Sennacherib, which he hath sent to blaspheme the living God.

18 Truly, LORD, the kings of Assyria have devastated all the nations,[a] and their land;

19 And they have placed their gods into the fire; for they are no gods, but the work of man's hands, wood and stone; and these have they destroyed.

20 And now, O LORD our God, save us out of his hand, that all the kingdoms of the earth may know that thou art the LORD, thou alone.

21 Then sent Isaiah the son of Amoz unto Hezekiah, saying, Thus hath said the LORD the God of Israel, Whereas thou hast prayed to me concerning Sennacherib the king of Assyria:

22 This is the word that the LORD hath spoken over him: She despiseth thee, she laugheth thee to scorn, the virgin daughter of Zion; behind she shaketh her head, the daughter of Jerusalem.

23 Whom hast thou blasphemed, and (whom) hast thou scorned? and against whom hast thou raised thy voice, and lifted up thy eyes on high? against the Holy One of Israel.

24 Through thy servants hast thou blasphemed the Lord, and hast said, With the multitude of my chariots am I indeed come up to the height of the mountains, to the sides of Lebanon; and I will cut down its tall cedars, the choice of its fir-trees: and I will enter into the height of its summit, the forest of its fruitful soil.

25 I have dug, and drunk water; and I will dry up with the sole of my feet all the streams of besieged places.

[a] Heb. "countries;" but in the parallel passage, 2 Kings xix. 17, we read גוים "nations," as here given.

26 Hadst thou not heard, that in distant ages I had prepared this? in the times of antiquity when I formed it? now have I brought it along, and it came to pass to desolate into ruinous heaps fortified cities.

27 And thus their inhabitants were of short power, they were discouraged and confounded: they were as the herbs of the field, and as the green grass; as the moss on the housetops, and as corn blasted before the ear appeareth.

28 But thy abiding, and thy going out, and thy coming in do I know, and thy raging against me.

29 Because of thy raging against me, and thy tumult, that is come up into my ears, will I put my hook in thy nose, and my bridle between thy lips, and I will cause thee to turn back on the way by which thou camest.

30 And this shall be unto thee the sign, Ye shall eat this year what groweth of itself; and in the second year what springeth after the same; and in the third year sow, and reap, and plant vineyards, and eat their fruit.

31 And the remnant of the house of Judah that is escaped shall yet strike root downward, and bear fruit upward.

32 For out of Jerusalem shall go forth a remnant, and that which escapeth out of Mount Zion: the zeal of the LORD of hosts will do this.

33 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the LORD concerning the king of Assyria, He shall not come into this city, and he shall not shoot an arrow thereon, nor come before it with shields, nor cast up an embankment against it.

34 On the way by which he came, by the same shall he return, and into this city shall he not come, saith the LORD.

35 And I will shield this city to save it for my own sake, and for the sake of David my servant.

36 ¶ Then went out an angel of the LORD, and smote in the camp of the Assyrians one hundred and eighty and five thousand men; and when people arose early in the morning, behold, they were all dead corpses.

37 And Sennacherib the king of Assyria departed, and went and returned, and dwelt at Nineveh.

38 And it came to pass, as he was prostrating himself in the house of Nisroch his god, that Adrammelech and Sharezer his sons smote him with the sword; and they escaped into the land of Ararat. And Essar-chaddon his son became king in his stead.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

1 ¶ In those days Hezekiah fell sick unto death; and there came unto him Isaiah the son of Amoz, the prophet, and said unto him. Thus hath said the LORD, Give thy charge to thy house; for thou shalt die, and not live.

2 Then did Hezekiah turn his face to the wall, and prayed unto the LORD.

3 And he said, O LORD, I beseech thee remember now that I have walked before thee in truth, and with an undivided heart, and have done what is good in thy eyes. And Hezekiah wept aloud.

4 ¶ Then came the word of the LORD to Isaiah, saying,

5 Go, and say to Hezekiah, Thus hath said the LORD, the God of David thy father, I have heard thy prayer, I have seen thy tears: behold, I will add unto thy days fifteen years.

6 And out of the hand of the king of Assyria will I deliver thee and this city; and I will shield this city.

7 And this shall be unto thee the sign from the LORD, that the LORD will do this thing which he hath spoken:

8 Behold, I will cause the shadow of the degrees, which is gone down on the dial of Achaz by the sun, to return backward ten degrees. So the sun returned ten degrees, by the degrees which he was gone down.

9 ¶ The writing of Hezekiah the king of Judah, when he had been sick, and was recovered of his sickness:

10 I had said, In the midst[a] of my days, must I enter the gates of the nether world; I am deprived of the residue of my years.

11 I had said, I shall not see the LORD, the LORD, in the land of the living: I shall not behold man any more among the inhabitants of the regions of death.[b]

12 My dwelling[c] is broken down, and is removed from me as a shepherd's tent: I have cut off, like a weaver, my life; with pining sickness will he snatch me away:[a] from day until night wilt thou make an end of me.

13 I waited (with patience) till morning, (whether)[b] as a lion, so would he break all my bones: from day until night wilt thou make an end of me.

14 Like a swallow or a crane, so did I chirp; I did moan like a dove; my eyes were lifted up on high: O Lord, I am oppressed; grant me ease.

15 What shall I speak? he hath promised it unto me, and he hath also accomplished it; I will make pilgrimages (to God's house) all my years because of the bitterness of my soul.

16 O Lord, by these (things men) will live, and in all these (things) is the life of my spirit: so wilt thou give me health, and cause me to live.

17 Behold, for peace I had great bitterness; but thou hast, in loving my soul, delivered it from the pit of corruption; for thou hast cast behind thy back all my sins.

18 For the nether world will not thank thee, death will not praise thee: they that go down into the pit will not hope for thy truth.

19 The living, the living alone shall thank thee, like me this day: the father to the children shall make known thy truth.

20 The Lord is there to help me; therefore will we play my hymns all the days of our life in the house of the Lord.

21 And Isaiah had said, Let them take a lump of figs, and lay it for a plaster upon the inflammation, and he shall recover.

22 And Hezekiah had said, What is the sign that I shall go up to the house of the Lord?

CHAPTER XXXIX.

1 At that time sent Merodach-baladan, the son of Baladan, the king of Babylon, letters and a present to Hezekiah; for he had heard that he had been sick, and was become strong again.

2 And Hezekiah was rejoiced on their account, and showed them his treasure-house, the silver, and the gold, and the spices, and the precious oil, and the whole of his armour-house, and all that was found in his treasures: there was nothing that Hezekiah showed them not, in his house, and in all his dominion.

3 Then came Isaiah the prophet unto king Hezekiah, and said unto him, What did these men say? and whence did they come unto thee? And Hezekiah said, From a far-off country are they come unto me, from Babylon.

4 And he said, What did they see in thy house? And Hezekiah said, All that is in my house have they seen: there is nothing that I did not show them in my treasures.

5 And Isaiah said to Hezekiah, Hear the word of the Lord of hosts,

6 Behold, days are coming when all that is in thy house, and that which thy fathers have laid up in store until this day, shall be carried to Babylon: nothing shall be left, saith the Lord.

7 And of thy sons that will issue from thee, whom thou wilt beget, shall they take; and they shall be court-servants in the palace of the king of Babylon.

8 Then said Hezekiah to Isaiah, Good is the word of the Lord which thou hast spoken. He said moreover, For there shall be peace and stability in my days.

CHAPTER XL.

1 ¶ Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, saith your God.

2 Speak ye (comfort) to the heart of Jerusalem, and call out unto her, that her[c] time of sorrow is accomplished, that her iniquity is atoned for; for she hath received from the hand of the Lord double for all her sins.

3 ¶ A voice calleth out, In the wilderness make ye clear the way of the Lord, make straight in the desert a highway for our God.

4 Every valley shall be raised, and every mountain and hill shall be made low; and the crooked shall be made a straight path, and the rough places a plain:

[a] Sachs, elegantly but freely, "My life is cut off unto me, as though the weaver were to tear it off from the thread (of the web)." Life is a web, the days the single threads, which are severed by the hand of death.

[b] Rashi, "I made myself strong like a lion, hoping for the morning; yet the more would he break," &c.

[c] Philippson, "its servitude." Heinemann, "her warfare." Sachs, "her time of servitude."

5 And the glory of the LORD shall be revealed; and all flesh shall see it together; for the mouth of the LORD hath spoken it.

6 ¶ A voice saith, Proclaim; and he saith, What shall I proclaim? All flesh is grass, and all its goodliness is as the flower of the field:

7 The grass withereth, the flower fadeth; because the breath of the LORD hath blown upon it; surely the people is grass.

8 The grass withereth, the flower fadeth; but the word of our God will stand firm for ever.

9 ¶ Upon a high mountain get thee up, thou that bringest good tidings to Zion; lift up with strength thy voice, thou who bringest good tidings to Jerusalem; lift it up, be not afraid; say unto the cities of Judah, Behold, (here is) your God!

10 Behold, the Lord Eternal will come with might,[a] and his arm ruleth for him: behold, his reward is with him, and his recompense[b] before him.

11 Like a shepherd will he feed his flock: with his arm will he gather the lambs, and in his bosom will he carry them, will he lead gently those that suckle their young.

12 ¶ Who hath measured in the hollow of his hand[c] the waters, and meted out the heavens with the span, and comprised in a measure[d] the dust of the earth, and weighed in the scale-beam the mountains, and the hills in balances?

13 Who hath meted out[e] the Spirit of the LORD? and (who was) his counsellor that he could have given him information?

14 With whom took he counsel, that he gave him understanding, and taught him the path of justice, and taught him knowledge, and caused him to know the way of understanding?

15 Behold, nations are as a drop out of a bucket, and as the small dust of the balance are they accounted: behold, isles are like the flying dust.[f]

16 And Lebanon is not sufficient for burning, and its beasts do not suffice for burnt-offering.

17 ¶ All the nations are as naught before him; less than nothing, and vanity[g] are they accounted to him.

18 To whom then will ye liken God? or what likeness will ye compare unto him?

19 The graven image—this the artificer hath cast, and the goldsmith hath overspread it with gold, and fabricated (on it) silver chains.

20 He that is skilled in the choice[h] chooseth a wood that will not rot; he seeketh unto himself a skilful workman to prepare a graven image, that shall not be moved.

21 Know ye not? hear ye not? hath it not been told you from the beginning? have ye not paid attention to the foundations of the earth?

22 (It is he) that dwelleth above the circle of the earth, while its inhabitants are as grasshoppers; that stretched out the heavens as a curtain, and spreadeth them out as a tent to dwell in;

23 That bringeth princes to naught; rendering the judges of the earth as vanity.

24 Yea, they were not yet planted; yea, they were not yet sown; yea, their stem had not yet taken root in the earth: when he but breathed upon them, and they withered, and the storm-wind carrieth them away as stubble.

25 To whom then will ye liken me, that I should be equal to? saith the Holy One.

26 Lift up your eyes on high, and see who hath created these? he that bringeth out their host by number; that calleth them all by name; from him, who is great in might, and strong in power, not one escapeth.[i]

27 ¶ Why wilt say thou, O Jacob, and

[e] Rashi, after the Massorah, "Who has meted out the spirit? the LORD."

[f] Jonathan. Redak, "behold, islands he lifteth up like fine dust."

[g] Sachs and others, "nonentities;" properly, "the formless, chaotic state;" but it is impossible to find a simple English word nearer than "vanity."

[h] Rashi, and it is then a continuation of the description of how idols are made. Others, "who is poorer in his gifts;" i. e. who cannot have an idol cast, but one carved of wood.

[i] Lit. "is missed:" it means that, numerous as are the stars, they all are always there to do God's bidding. The prophet contrasts the idols with God; those are the works of human hands, while He is the maker of all.

THE DECISION OF SOLOMON

speak, O Israel, My way is hidden from the LORD, and my cause hath passed from the cognizance of my God?

28 Dost thou not know? hast thou not heard? The God of everlasting is the LORD, is the Creator of the ends of the earth; he will not be faint, and he will not be weary; unsearchable is his understanding.

29 He giveth to the faint strength; and to the powerless he imparteth much might.

30 Though youths should grow faint and be weary, and young men should utterly stumble:

31 Yet they that wait upon the LORD shall acquire new strength, they shall[a] mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run and not be weary, they shall walk, and not become faint.

CHAPTER XLI.

1 ¶ Keep silence[b] before me, O islands; and let nations acquire new strength: let them approach, then let them speak, together let us come near to judgment.

2 Who waked up from the east the man whom righteousness[c] met in his steps? he giveth up nations before him, and maketh him rule over kings; that his sword may render them as the dust, as driven stubble, his bow.

3 He pursueth them, passeth along in safety, by a path which[d] his feet have not gone over before.

4 Who hath wrought and done it? he who called the generations from the beginning; I the LORD, (who am) the first, and with the latest I am the same.

5 The isles saw it, and are afraid; the ends of the earth tremble; they draw near, and come.

6 They help one another; and each one saith to his brother, Be strong!

7 So the smith encouraged[e] the melter, he that smootheth with the hammer him that striketh on the anvil; saying of the solder, It is good; and he fastened it with nails, that it should not be moved.

8 ¶ But thou, Israel, art my servant, Jacob whom I have chosen, the seed of Abraham my friend;

9 Thou, whom I have taken hold of from the ends of the earth, and called thee from the midst of its chiefs,[f] and said unto thee, Thou art my servant, I have chosen thee, and not cast thee away.

10 Fear thou not, for I am with thee; be not dismayed, for I am thy God; I strengthen thee, yea, I help thee, yea, I uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness.[g]

11 Behold, ashamed and confounded shall be all that were incensed against thee; they shall be as naught and perish—the men that strive with thee.

12 Thou wilt seek them, and shalt not find them, the men that contend with thee: they shall be as naught and as nothing, the men that make war against thee.

13 For I the LORD thy God lay hold of thy right hand; (I am he) who saith unto thee, Fear not, I help thee.

14 ¶ Fear not, thou worm Jacob, ye few men of Israel: I myself help thee, saith the LORD, and thy redeemer is the Holy One of Israel.

15 Behold, I have rendered thee a threshing instrument, sharp, new, having many teeth: thou shalt thresh mountains, and beat them small, and shalt render the hills as chaff.

16 Thou shalt scatter them, and the wind shall carry them away, and the storm shall disperse them; but thou shalt rejoice in the LORD, in the Holy One of Israel shalt thou glorify thyself.

17 ¶ The poor and the needy seek water, and there is none; their tongue is dried up with thirst: I the LORD will answer them, I the God of Israel will not forsake them.

18 I will open on naked mountain-peaks rivers, and in the midst of valleys fountains: I will change the wilderness into a pool of water, and the dry land into springs of water.

19 I will place in the wilderness[h] the cedar, the acacia, and the myrtle, and the oil-tree;

[a] Others, "acquire wings."
[b] Rashi, "To hear my words."
[c] Sachs, "victory," so called because the victor has the power to declare himself in the right.
[d] Lit. "a path (on which) with his feet he was used to come."
[e] In the expectation of a battle the heathens make their idols, hoping aid from them, not yet recognising the power of God.
[f] Sachs, "edges;" thus, "called thee from it edges."
[g] Sachs, "victorious right hand."
[h] God will ultimately bring good out of evil.

I will set in the desert the fir-tree,[a] the pine and the box-tree together;

20 In order that they may see, and know and take (it to heart), and comprehend together, that the hand of the LORD hath done this, and the Holy One of Israel hath created it.

21 ¶ Produce your cause,[b] saith the LORD: bring forward your strong reasons, saith the King of Jacob.

22 Let them bring them forward and tell us what shall happen: the former things—what are they?—tell us, that we may take it to heart, and know the result of them; or let us hear the things that are to come.

23 Tell the events that are to happen hereafter, that we may know that ye are gods: yea, do good, or do evil, that we may be astonished, and see it together.

24 Behold, ye are less than nothing, and your work less than a breath: (he that is) an abomination (alone) chooseth you.

25 ¶ I have waked up one from the north, and he cometh; from the rising of the sun one who will call on my name: and he shall (over-)come princes as mortar, and as the potter treadeth down the clay.

26 Who hath told it from the beginning, that we may know it? and aforetimes, that we may say, "It is right?" but indeed there is none that telleth, indeed there is none that letteth us hear, indeed there is none that heareth your words.

27 The first[c] (was I to say) to Zion, Behold, there they are; and to Jerusalem will I give one that bringeth good tidings.

28 And I ever look, and there is no man; and among these there is no counsellor, that, were I to ask them, they could answer a word.

29 Behold, they all are naught; their works are nothing: wind and vanity are their molten images.

CHAPTER XLII.

1 ¶ Behold my servant,[d] whom I will uphold; my elect, in whom my soul delighteth: I have put my spirit upon him, that he may bring forth justice[e] to the nations.

2 He shall not cry, nor call out aloud, nor cause his voice to be heard in the street.

3 A cracked reed will he not break, and a dimly burning wick[f] will he not quench: unto truth shall he bring forth justice.

4 He shall not become fatigued and not be faint, till he have established justice on the earth; and (till) the isles shall wait for his law.

5 ¶ Thus hath said God the LORD, he that created the heavens, and stretched them out; he that spread forth the earth, and the things which come out of it; he that giveth breath unto the people upon it, and spirit to those that walk thereon:

6 I the LORD have called thee in[g] righteousness, and will lay hold on thy hand, and will keep thee, and appoint thee for a covenant[h] of the people, for a light of the nations;

7 To open blind eyes, to bring out from the dungeon the prisoner, and out of the prison-house those that dwell in darkness.

8 I am the Everlasting One, that is my name; and my glory will I not give to any other, nor my praise to graven images.

9 The former[i] things, behold, are come to pass; and new things do I announce; before they spring forth I let you hear of them.

10 ¶ Sing unto the LORD a new song, his praise from the end of the earth; ye that go down to the sea, and all that filleth it; the isles, and their inhabitants.

11 Let resound with song the wilderness and its cities, the villages which Kedar inhabiteth: let the inhabitants of the rocks sing, let them shout forth from the top of the mountains.

[e] משפט not alone means the judgment which the judge gives, but also justice itself, and the laws on which it is founded, the right. God's servant is to make the laws of justice known, and execute them truly, that no one shall suffer injury, even the weakest, typified by a cracked reed and a glimmering wick.

12 Let them give glory unto the LORD, and in the islands declare his praise.

13 The LORD—as a mighty one will he go forth, like a man of war will he arouse his vengeance:[a] he will shout, yea, raise the war-cry; against his enemies will he show his strength.

14 ¶ I have a long time[b] held my peace; I have been still, and refrained myself: (now) like a travailing woman will I cry; I will destroy and devour (all) together.

15 I will lay waste mountains and hills, and all their herbs will I dry up; and I will change the rivers into islands, and pools will I dry up.

16 And I will cause the blind to walk on a way that they have not known; on paths that they have not known will I lead them: I will change darkness before them into light, and crooked places into plains. These are the things which I will do, and not leave them (unfulfilled).

17 They shall be turned back, they shall be greatly ashamed, that trust in graven images, that say to molten idols, Ye are our gods.

18 ¶ Ye deaf, hear; and ye blind, look up, that ye may see.

19 Who is blind, but my servant? or deaf, as my messenger whom I send? who is blind as he that is perfect,[c] and blind as the servant of the LORD?

20 Thou seest many things, but observest not; the ears are open, but he heareth not.

21 The LORD willed (to do this) for the sake of his righteousness; (therefore) he magnifieth the law, and maketh it honourable.

22 But it is a people robbed and spoiled; they are all of them ensnared in holes, and in prison-houses are they hidden: they are become for a prey, and none delivereth; for a spoil, and none saith, Restore.

23 Who among you will give ear to this? will hearken and listen, for the time to come?

24 Who gave up Jacob for a spoil, and Israel to plunderers? was it not the LORD? he it is against whom we have sinned; for they would not walk in his ways, neither did they hearken unto his law.

25 Therefore hath he poured out over him the fury of his anger, and the strength of battle: and it blazed all round about him,[d] yet he regarded it not; and it burnt on him, yet he laid it not to heart.

CHAPTER XLIII.

1 ¶ But now thus hath said the LORD that created thee, O Jacob, and he that formed thee, O Israel, Fear not; for I have redeemed thee, I have called thee by thy name; mine art thou.

2 Whenever thou passest through the waters, I am with thee; and through the rivers, —they shall not overflow thee: whenever thou walkest through the fire, thou shalt not be scorched; neither shall the flame burn on thee.

3 For I am the LORD thy God, the Holy One of Israel, thy Saviour; I have given Egypt for thy ransom, Cush and Seba in place of thee.

4 Since thou art precious in my eyes, art honourable, and I indeed do love thee: therefore will I give men in place of thee, and nations instead of thy soul.

5 Fear not, for I am with thee; from the east will I bring thy seed, and from the west will I gather thee.

6 I will say to the north, Give up; and to the south, Withhold not: bring my sons from afar, and my daughters from the ends of the earth;

7 Every one that is called by my name, and whom I have created for my glory; whom I have formed; yea, whom I have made.

8 Bring forward the blind people that have eyes, and the deaf that have ears.

9 Let all the nations be gathered together, and let the people be assembled: who among them can announce this? and cause us to hear former things? let them bring forth their witnesses, that they may be justified: or[e] let them hear, and say, It is truth.

10 Ye are my witnesses, saith the LORD, and my servant whom I have chosen: in order that ye may know and believe me, and understand, that I am he; before me there was no god formed, and after me there will be none.

[b] Rashi. Philippson, literally, "from the beginning."

[c] Rashi, "who hath been punished for his sins." Philippson, "the purchased," i. e. the servant, further described.

[d] Israel.

[e] Aben Ezra, "so that they (the witnesses) may hear," &c.

11 I, I am the LORD; and beside me there is no saviour.

12 I myself have announced it, and I have saved, and I have let it be heard, and there was no strange (god) among you: and[a] ye are my witnesses, saith the LORD, and I am God.

13 Yea, from the (first) day am I he; and there is none that can deliver out of my hand: if I will work, is there one that can hinder it?

14 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, your Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel, For your sake did I send to Babylon, and in swift vessels[b] brought I them all down, and the Chaldeans, in the ships of their joyful song.

15 I am the LORD, your Holy One, the Creator of Israel, your King.

16 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, who maketh a way in the sea, and a path in the mighty waters;

17 Who bringeth forth chariot and horse, army and power: together shall they lie down, they shall not rise up again; they are extinct, like a wick are they quenched.

18 Remember not the former things, and ancient events regard no more.

19 Behold, I will do a new thing; now shall it spring forth; will ye not acknowledge it? I will even make in the wilderness a way, and in the desert rivers.

20 The beasts of the field shall honour me, the monsters and the ostriches; because I give waters in the wilderness, rivers in the desert, to give drink to my people, my elect;

21 This people which I have formed for myself; my praise shall they relate.

22 But on me hast thou not called, O Jacob; for thou art become weary of me, O Israel.

23 Thou hast not brought unto me the lamb of thy burnt-offerings; and with thy sacrifices hast thou not honoured me: I have not troubled thee with meat-offerings, nor wearied thee with frankincense.

24 Thou hast not bought for me with money sweet cane, and with the fat of thy sacrifices hast thou not satisfied me; but thou hast troubled me with thy sins, thou hast wearied me with thy iniquities.

25 I, it is I that blot out thy transgressions for my own sake, and thy sins I will not remember.

26 Put me in remembrance; let us plead together: relate thou, in order that thou mayest be justified.

27 Thy first father did sin, and they that plead for thee transgressed against me.

28 Therefore do I profane the holy princes, and I give up Jacob to the curse,[c] and Israel to reproaches.

CHAPTER XLIV.

1 ¶ Yet now hear, O Jacob my servant; and Israel, whom I have chosen:

2 Thus hath said the LORD thy Maker, and he that formed thee from the womb, who will help thee, Fear not, O my servant Jacob; and thou Jeshurun, whom I have chosen.

3 For (as) I pour water upon the thirsty (land), and rain-droppings upon the dry ground: (so) will I pour my spirit over thy seed, and my blessing over thy offspring.

4 And they shall spring up (as) among grass, like willows by the water-courses.

5 This one will say, I belong to the LORD; and the other will call himself by the name of Jacob; and the other will inscribe himself with his hand unto the LORD, and surname himself by the name of Israel.

6 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, the king of Israel, and his Redeemer, the LORD of hosts, I am the first, and I am the last; and beside me there is no god.

7 And who, like me, will announce, and will tell it, and set it in order for me, since I appointed the people of ancient times? and the future things, and those which are to happen,—let them foretell unto them.

8 Have no dread, and do not despond; have I not long since informed thee, and have told it? and ye are my witnesses: Is[d] there a

[a] Eng. ver., "therefore ye," &c. "that I am," &c.

[b] Rashi, "For your sake will I send the kings of Media to Babylon, and bring down in ships and boats the Chaldeans into captivity to Media, and the Chaldeans will I bring down in ships in which they used to sing," i. e. in pleasure trips. Aben Ezra, "and broke off all the bars, and cast down the Chaldeans who shouted in ships." Others, ברידים as "fugitives;" thus, "and I will carry them down all as fugitives, and the Chaldeans," &c.

[c] Philippson, "banishment." Redak, "to slaughter."

[d] This is what God announced, and to which Israel is the witness.

god beside me? yea, there is no rock, whom I know[a] not.

9 The makers of graven[b] images are all of them vanity; and their costly idols cannot profit; and they are their own witnesses, that they see not, and know not, in order that they[c] may be ashamed.

10 Who hath formed a god, or cast an image that profiteth nothing?

11 Behold, all his associates[d] shall be ashamed, for the workmen themselves are but men: let them all be gathered together, let them stand up, they shall be terrified, they shall be ashamed together.

12 The[e] iron-smith (maketh) an axe and worketh it in the coals, and with hammers he fashioneth it, and worketh it with his powerful arm; he also, when he is hungry, loseth his strength: when he drinketh no water, he becometh faint.

13 The worker in wood stretcheth out the rule; he marketh it out with chalk;[f] he fitteth it with planes,[g] and he marketh it out with the compass, and maketh it after the figure of a man, after the beauty of a child of earth, that it may dwell in a house.[h]

14 He felleth for himself cedars, and taketh cypress and oak, and he chooseth for himself the strongest among the trees of the forest; he planteth an ash, and the rain causeth it to grow.

15 Then doth it serve a man for burning; and he taketh thereof, and warmeth himself; he also heateth therewith, and baketh bread; he also worketh out a god, and boweth himself; he maketh of it an image, and kneeleth down thereto.

16 The half thereof hath he burnt in fire; with the half thereof will he eat flesh; he will roast food, and be satisfied; he will also warm himself, and say, Aha, I am warm, I have felt the fire:

17 And the residue thereof hath he made into a god, his graven image; he kneeleth down unto it, and boweth himself, and prayeth unto it, and saith, Deliver me; for my god art thou.

18 They know not, they understand not; for their eyes are daubed over, that they cannot see; their hearts, that they cannot understand.

19 And he layeth it not to heart, and hath no knowledge, no understanding, to say, The half thereof have I burnt in fire; and I have also baked upon its coals bread; I (now) will roast flesh, and eat it: and shall I make of its residue an abomination, before a block[i] of wood shall I kneel?

20 He pursueth[k] ashes; a deceived heart hath turned him aside; and he cannot deliver his soul, and will not say, Is there not a lie in my right hand?

21 ¶ Remember these things, O Jacob; and Israel, for thou art my servant: I have formed thee to be my servant, thou (art this); O Israel, thou shalt not be forgotten by me.

22 I have blotted out, as a vapour,[l] thy transgressions, and, as a cloud, thy sins: return unto me; for I have redeemed thee.

23 Sing, O ye heavens; for the LORD hath done it; shout, ye lowest depths of the earth; break forth into singing, ye mountains, O forest, and every tree therein; for the LORD hath redeemed Jacob, and on Israel will he glorify himself.

24 Thus hath said the LORD, thy Redeemer, and he that formed thee from the womb, I am the LORD that hath made all things; that hath stretched forth the heavens by myself alone; that hath spread abroad the earth from my own self;[m]

25 That frustrate the tokens of the liars, and confuseth diviners; that turneth the wise backward, and maketh their knowledge foolish;

[a] i. e. That all are vanity. Philippson, "yea, there is no rock, I know none."

[b] Arnheim, too boldly, "The idol images are all vanity with their costly ornaments."

[c] "Those that serve them."—RASHI.

[d] i. e. Those who assist in making the idol.

[e] Philippson, "This one striketh on the iron with a beatle, and worketh, &c.,—he also is hungry, till he is powerless, he drinketh no water, that he becometh faint;" and says that many heathens fasted when they made their idols.

[f] i. e. Any material to mark off the figure. Rashi, "planes."

[g] Jonathan, "graving-tools."

[h] i. e. Temple.—HEINEMANN.

[i] Rashi, "to rotting wood." Jonathan and Redak, "a branch of a tree."

[k] i. e. He cherisheth (leads upon pasture) vanity.

[m] Jonathan, "by my strength." Philippson, "without another," after the Ketib. But the Keri has in fact the same signification, "all is from God."

26 That fulfilleth the word of his servant, and performeth the counsel of his messengers; that saith of Jerusalem, It shall be inhabited; and of the cities of Judah, They shall be built, and their ruins will I raise up.

27 That saith to the deep, Be dry, and thy rivers will I dry up;

28 That saith of Cyrus,[a] (He is) my shepherd, and all my pleasure shall he perform: even saying of Jerusalem, It shall be built; and the temple's foundation shall be laid.

CHAPTER XLV.

1 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD to his anointed, to Cyrus, whom I have taken hold of by his right hand, to subdue nations before him, even the loins of kings will I ungird, to open before him (city-)doors,[b] and gates that they shall not be shut;

2 I myself will go before thee, and proud eminences will I level: doors of brass will I break in pieces, and bolts of iron will I cut asunder.

3 And I will give unto thee the treasures of darkness, and riches hidden in secret places; in order that thou mayest know that I am the LORD, who call thee by thy name,—the God of Israel;

4 For the sake of my servant Jacob, and Israel my elect; and I have called thee by thy name: I have designated[c] thee, though thou hast not known me.

5 I am the LORD, and there is none else, beside me there is no god; I assisted[d] thee, though thou hast not known me.

6 In order that they may know from the rising of the sun, and from its setting, that there is nothing without me. I am the LORD, and there is no one else;

7 Forming the light, and creating darkness; making peace, and creating evil: I the LORD do all these things.

8 ¶ Drop down, ye heavens, from above, and let the skies distil blessing; let the earth open and let them (all) be fruitful of prosperity, and let righteousness spring up likewise: I the LORD have created it.

9 ¶ Wo unto him that contendeth with the one who formed him—a[e] potsherd among the potsherds of the earth. Shall the clay say to him that fashioneth it, What makest thou? or[f] thy work, He hath no hands?

10 ¶ Wo unto him that saith unto (his) father, What begettest thou? or to the woman, What bringest thou forth?

11 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, the Holy One of Israel, and he who hath formed him, About events to come will you ask me? concerning my sons, and concerning the work of my hands will ye command me?

12 (When) I myself have made the earth, and created man upon it; (when) I, even my hands, have stretched out the heavens, and I have ordained all their host.

13 I myself have waked him up in righteousness, and all his ways will I make straight: he shall build my city, and my exiles shall he dismiss free, not for purchase-money nor for presents, saith the LORD of hosts.

14 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, The labour of Egypt, and the merchandise of Ethiopia, and of the Sabeans, men of high stature, shall pass over unto thee, and thine shall they be: behind thee shall they walk; in chains shall they pass along, and unto thee shall they bow, unto thee shall they pray, (saying) Yea, only among thee is God; and there is no one else beside God.

15 Verily[g] thou art a God that hidest thy self, O God of Israel, the Saviour.

16 They are ashamed, and also confounded, all of them: together shall they go to confusion that are makers of idols.

17 (But) Israel shall be helped by the LORD with an everlasting salvation: ye shall not be ashamed and not be confounded unto all eternity.

18 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD the creator of the heavens; he, the God that formed the earth and made it; he that hath

[a] Properly, Koresh.

[b] Eng. version, "two-leaved gates;" referring to the particular gates of Babylon; but the word דלתים simply applies to all city-doors, as they are composed of two pieces or leaves.

[c] i. e. By the various titles applied to him, others than his proper name.

[d] Lit. "I will gird," i. e. with armour.

[e] Or, "as one potsherd (would contend) with the potsherds of the earth."

[f] i. e. The thing made says that the workman has no hands to work. Redak, "and thy work hath no strength;" "hand," metaphorical for strength, "endurance."

[g] Rashi regards this as the continuation of v. 15.

established it,—not for naught did he create it, to be inhabited did he form it: I am the LORD; and there is no one else.

19 Not on a secret spot have I spoken, in a dark place of the earth;[a] I said not unto the seed of Jacob, Seek ye me for naught; (but) I the LORD speak righteousness, I declare things that are right.

20 Assemble yourselves and come; draw near together, ye escaped fugitives of the nations! They have no knowledge that carry the wood of their graven image, and pray unto a god that cannot save.

21 Tell ye, and bring them near; yea, let them take counsel together: Who hath announced this in ancient times? told it from the beginning? is it[b] not I the LORD? and there is no other god without me, a just god and a saviour; there is none beside me.

22 Turn unto me, so that ye may be helped, all ye ends of the earth; for I am God, and there is no one else.

23 By myself have I sworn, righteousness is gone out of my mouth, a word (which) shall not return, That unto me every knee shall bend, every tongue shall swear.

24 Only in the LORD,[c]—shall men say of me,—there are righteousness and strength. Unto him shall come and be ashamed all that are incensed against him.

25 In the LORD shall be justified, and shall glory themselves all the seed of Israel.

CHAPTER XLVI.

1 Bel is bowed down, Nebo sinketh, their idols are (delivered) unto the beasts, and unto the cattle; those which were once carried by you are now laden up[d] a burden to the weary beasts.

2 They are sunk, they are bowed down together; they could not deliver the burden, but they themselves are gone into captivity.

3 ¶ Hearken unto me, O house of Jacob, and all the remnant of the house of Israel, who are borne[e] (by me) from their birth, who are carried from the womb;

4 And even unto old age[f] I am the same; and even unto the time of hoary hairs will I bear: I have done it, and I will carry (you); even I will bear, and deliver you.

5 ¶ To whom will ye liken and assimilate me, and compare me, that we may be like?

6 (There are those) that lavish gold out of the bag, and weigh silver in the balance; that hire a melter, that he may make of it a god; they (then) bend the knee, yea, they bow themselves down;

7 They carry him, upon the shoulder they bear him, and set up him in his spot, and he remaineth standing, from his place he doth not move: yea, though one should cry unto him, he cannot answer, out of his trouble he cannot help him.

8 ¶ Remember this, and take courage: take it again to heart, O ye transgressors.

9 Remember the former things of olden times; for I am God, and there is no one else; I am God, and there is nothing like me;

10 Declaring from the beginning the end, and from the earliest days the things that have not yet been done, saying, My counsel shall stand firm, and all my pleasure will I do;

11 Calling from the east the eagle, from a far-off country the man of my counsel; yea, I have spoken it, I will also bring it to pass; I have purposed it, I will also execute it.

12 ¶ Hearken unto me, ye stout of heart, that are far from righteousness:

13 I have brought near my righteousness; it shall not be far off, and my salvation shall not tarry: and I will grant unto Zion salvation, unto Israel my glory.

CHAPTER XLVII.

1 Come down, and sit in the dust, O virgin daughter of Babylon; sit on the ground, there is no throne, O daughter of the Chaldeans; for men shall nevermore call thee, Tender and delicate.

2 Take the mill, and grind meal: uncover

[a] Sachs, "in a place of a dark country."

[b] After Jonathan. But the punctuation would require us to render it thus: "Behold, I am the LORD, and there is no other god without me," &c.

[c] After Redak, and is then what God says of himself. Aben Ezra, "Only from the LORD who hath said it me, are the righteousness and strength." Rashi takes it as the speech of Israel: "Only in the LORD have I been promised righteousness," &c. Sachs, "Only with the LORD, so said he to me, (the prophet,) is," &c.

[d] i. e. To be carried away.

[e] Lit. "laden," figurative, as though God had loaded himself with Israel to carry them away in safety.

[f] i. e. Of Israel.

thy locks, lift up the train, uncover the thigh, pass over the rivers.

3 Thy nakedness shall be uncovered, yea, thy shame shall be seen: I will take vengeance, and I will not regard any man.

4 ¶ Our redeemer—the LORD of hosts is his name, the Holy One of Israel.

5 Sit thou silent, and enter into darkness, O daughter of the Chaldeans; for men shall never more call thee, The mistress of kingdoms.

6 I was wroth over my people, I defiled my inheritance, and gave them into thy hand: (yet) thou didst grant them no mercy; upon the aged hast thou laid very heavily thy yoke.

7 And thou saidst, For ever shall I be mistress; until that thou didst not lay these things to thy heart, thou didst not call to mind the result thereof.

8 ¶ And now hear this, luxurious one, that dwellest in security, that sayest in thy heart, I am, and there is nothing else beside me; I shall not sit as a widow, neither shall I know the loss of children:

9 Yet both these things shall come to thee in a moment in one day, the loss of children, and widowhood; in their full measure shall they come upon thee, despite of the multitude of thy sorceries, despite of the very great abundance of thy enchantments.

10 And thou didst trust[a] in thy wickedness: thou saidst, No one seeth me. Thy wisdom and thy knowledge,—these were they that seduced thee; and thou saidst in thy heart, I am, and there is nothing else beside me.

11 And there shall come upon thee an evil, which thou shalt not know how to remove it by prayer;[b] and there shall fall upon thee mischief, which thou shalt not be able to atone for; and there shall come upon thee suddenly desolation, which thou shalt not know.

12 Stand now with thy enchantments, and with the multitude of thy sorceries, wherein thou hast laboured from thy youth; peradventure thou mayest be able to profit, peradventure thou mayest withstand.

13 Thou art wearied with the multitude of thy counsels. Do let now those that divide off the heavens, that look at the stars, that announce (coming) events at new moons, stand up, and save thee from the things that are to come over thee.

14 Behold, they are become as stubble; the fire burneth them; they shall not deliver themselves from the power of the flame: not a coal shall be left to warm at, no blaze to sit before it.

15 Thus are they become unto thee with whom thou hast laboured; those that had commerce with thee from thy youth, wander away every one on his road: there is no one to save thee.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

1 ¶ Hear ye this, O house of Jacob, who are called by the name of Israel, and are come forth out of the spring[c] of Judah, who swear by the name of the LORD, and make mention of the God of Israel,—not in truth, nor in righteousness.

2 For of the holy city they call themselves, and upon the God of Israel they stay themselves,—The LORD of hosts is his name.

3 ¶ The former things have I declared from the beginning; and out of my mouth went they forth, and I announced them: suddenly did I accomplish them, and they came to pass;

4 Because I knew that thou art obstinate, that like an iron sinew is thy neck, and thy brow of copper;

5 And I declared it to thee from the beginning; before yet it came to pass did I let thee hear it: lest thou shouldst say, My idol hath done these things, and my graven image, and my molten image, have ordained them.

6 Thou hast heard it; see it all now; and you—will you not declare it? I caused thee to hear new things, from this time, even hidden things which thou hadst not known.

7 Now are they created, and not from the beginning; and[d] before the day (that I announced them) thou heardest them not; lest thou shouldest say, Behold, I knew them.

8 But neither hadst thou heard it; nor didst thou know; nor had in ancient times thy ear been opened; for I knew that thou wouldst deal very treacherously, and a transgressor wast thou called from thy birth.

9 For the sake of my name will I defer my anger, and because of my praise will I restrain it toward thee, so that I may not cut thee off.

10 Behold. I have refined thee, though not into[a] silver: I have approved thee in the crucible of affliction.

11 For my own sake, for my own sake, will I do it: for how would (my name) be dishonoured? and my glory will I not give unto an other.

12 ¶ Hearken unto me, O Jacob, and Israel, my called one; I am he; I am the first, I also am the last.

13 My hand also hath laid the foundation of the earth, and my right hand hath spanned out the heavens: I call unto them, they stand forward[b] together.

14 Assemble yourselves, all of you, and hear: Who among them hath told these things? He whom the LORD loveth, will do his pleasure on Babylon, and (display) his arm (on) the Chaldeans.

15 I, even I, have spoken it, I have also called him: I have brought him, and he shall be prosperous on his way.

16 Come ye near unto me, hear ye this; never from the beginning have I spoken in secret; from the time that it occurred, was I there. And now[c] the Lord Eternal hath sent me, and his Spirit.[d]

17 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, thy Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel, I am the LORD thy God who teach thee for thy profit, who lead thee by the way thou shouldest go.

18 Oh that thou hadst but listened to my commandments! then would have been as a river thy peace, and thy prosperity as the waves of the sea:

19 And then would have been as the sand thy seed, and the offspring of thy body like the pebbles[e] of the sea-shore; yet shall his name[f] not be cut off nor destroyed from before me.

20 ¶ Go forth out of Babylon, flee away from the Chaldeans, with the voice of singing declare, announce this, carry it forth as far as the end of the earth; say, The LORD hath redeemed his servant Jacob.

21 And they thirsted not when he led them through the deserts; waters out of the rock he let drop down for them: and he cleaved the rock, and the waters gushed out.

22 There is no peace, saith the LORD, unto the wicked.

CHAPTER XLIX.

1 ¶ Hearken, O isles, unto me; and listen, ye people, from afar: The LORD hath called me[g] from my birth; from my mother's womb hath he made mention of my name.

2 And he hath rendered my mouth like a sharp sword; in the shadow of his hand hath he hidden me: and he hath rendered me as a polished arrow; in his quiver hath he concealed me;

3 And said unto me, My servant art thou, O Israel, thou on whom I will be glorified.

4 But I had indeed said, For no purpose have I laboured, for naught and vanity have I spent my strength; yet surely my cause is with the LORD, and the recompense of my work with my God.

5 ¶ And now hath said the LORD that formed me from the womb to be his servant, to bring Jacob again to him, that Israel may be gathered unto him, that I should be honoured in the eyes of the LORD, while my God was my strength.—

6 And he said, It is too light a thing that thou shouldst be my servant to raise up the tribes of Jacob, and to bring back the preserved of Israel! but I will (also) appoint thee for a light to the nations, that my salvation may reach as far as the end of the earth.

[a] Sachs, after Gesenius; and means, that as yet the punishment had not produced a people pure as fine silver. Rashi and Aben Ezra would translate, "but not in the silver crucible," i. e. to remove all the dross, or the wicked.

[b] After Aben Ezra; i. e. they stand ready to do God's bidding as his servants.

[c] The prophet's own words; meaning, all the Lord now announces through him as coming, is as certain as those things which have occurred already—the present message of the humbling of Babylon and the return of the Israelites being certain to come. (Compare with Num. xvi. 30.)

[d] Heinemann, "with his spirit," i. e. laid upon him his holy inspiration.

[e] Jonathan. Rashi, "the issue of the sea," i. e. the fishes.

[f] That of the seed of Jacob.

[g] Some apply this address to Isaiah, but Philippson to the people of Israel.

7 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, the Redeemer of Israel, his Holy One, to him who is despised[a] by men, to him who is abhorred by nations, to the servant of rulers, Kings shall see it and rise up, princes, and they shall prostrate themselves, for the sake of the LORD who is faithful, the Holy One of Israel, who hath made choice of thee.

8 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, In the time of favour have I answered thee, and on the day of salvation have I helped thee; and I will preserve thee, and I will appoint thee as a people of my covenant[b] to raise up the land, to divide out desolate heritages;

9 When I say[c] to the prisoners, Go forth; to those that are in darkness, Show yourselves. On the roads shall they feed, and on all mountain-peaks shall be their pasture.

10 They shall not be hungry nor thirsty, and neither heat[d] nor sun shall smite them; for he that hath mercy on them will lead them, and by springs of water will he guide them.

11 And I will change all my mountains into a road, and my highways shall be lifted up.

12 Behold, these shall come from afar; and, lo, these from the north and from the west; and these from the land of Sinim.

13 Sing, O heavens; and be joyful, O earth; and break forth, O mountains, into song; for the LORD hath comforted his people, and upon his oppressed[e] will he have mercy.

14 ¶ Yet Zion said, The Eternal hath forsaken me, and the Lord hath forgotten me.

15 Can a woman[f] forget her sucking child, not to have mercy on the son of her body? yea, should these even forget, yet would I not forget thee.

16 Behold, upon the palms of my hands have I engraved thee; thy walls are continually before me.

17 Thy children come in haste; thy destroyers and they that laid thee waste shall go away from thee.

18 Lift up thy eyes round about, and see; they all are assembled together, they come to thee: as I live, saith the LORD, thou shalt surely clothe thyself with them all, as with an ornament, and bind them on thee, as a bride.

19 For thy ruins and thy desolate places, and thy wasted land,—yea, now shall it be too narrow for thee by reason of the inhabitants, and thy destroyers shall be far away.

20 Yet again will say before thy ears the children of whom thou wast deprived, The place is too narrow for me; make room for me that I may dwell.

21 And thou wilt say in thy heart, Who hath born me these, seeing I was bereft of my children, and was solitary, an exile, and outcast? and who hath brought up these? Behold, I was left entirely alone; these, where have they been?

22 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Behold, I will lift up to the nations my hand, and to the people will I raise up high my standard; and they shall bring thy sons in (their) arms,[g] and thy daughters shall be carried upon shoulders.

23 And kings shall be thy nursing-fathers, and their princesses thy nursing-mothers; with the face toward the earth shall they bow down to thee, and the dust of thy feet shall they lick up: and thou shalt know that I am the LORD, who will not suffer those who hope in me to be made ashamed.

24 ¶ Shall the prey be taken from the mighty, or shall the captive of the victor escape?

25 For thus hath said the LORD, Also the captive of the mighty shall be taken away, and the prey of the powerful shall escape; and with those who contend against thee will I contend, and thy children will I indeed save.

26 And I will feed thy oppressors with their own flesh; and as with new wine shall they be made drunken with their own blood: and all flesh shall know that I the Eternal am thy Saviour, and thy Redeemer the Mighty One of Jacob.

CHAPTER L.

1 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, Where is your mother's bill of divorcement, wherewith[h]

I have sent her away? or who of my creditors is it to whom I have sold you? behold, for your iniquities were ye sold, and for your transgressions was your mother sent away.

2 Why did I come and no man was there, did I call, with none to answer? hath my hand become too short for redeeming? or is there no power in me to deliver? behold, through my threatening I can dry up the sea, I can change the rivers into a wilderness: their fish stink for want of water, and die for thirst.

3 I can clothe the heavens with blackness, and I can make sackcloth their garment.

4 ¶ The Lord Eternal hath given me a tongue for teaching,[a] that I should know how to strengthen the weary with the word: he wakeneth morning by morning, he wakeneth my ear to listen like those who are well taught.

5 The Lord Eternal hath opened me my ear, and I resisted not: I turned not backward.

6 My back I gave up to the smiters, and my cheeks to those that plucked off the hair: my face I hid not from abuse and spitting.

7 But the Lord Eternal ever helpeth me; therefore was I not confounded; therefore have I rendered my face like a flint, and I knew that I should not be made ashamed.

8 He that justifieth me is near; who will contend with me? let us stand forward together: who hath a dispute[b] with me? let him come near to me.

9 Behold, the Lord Eternal will help me; who is the man that will condemn me? lo, they all shall wear out as a garment: the moth shall eat them up.

10 ¶ Who is among you that feareth the LORD, that harkeneth to the voice of his servant? though he have walked in darkness, and had no light: let him trust in the name of the LORD, and lean for support upon his God.

11 Behold, all ye that kindle fire, that urge[c] on the brands: walk by the blaze of your fire, and by the brands ye have kindled; from my hand hath this been bestowed on you; in pain shall ye lie down.

CHAPTER LI.

1 ¶ Hearken to me, ye that pursue righteousness, that seek the LORD: look unto the rock whence ye were hewn, and to the hole of the pit whence ye were dug up.

2 Look unto Abraham your father, and unto Sarah that bore you; for[d] he was one when I called him, and I blessed him, and I increased him.

3 Yea, the LORD hath[e] comforted Zion; he hath comforted all her ruins; and he hath made her wilderness like Eden, and her desert like the garden of the LORD: gladness and joy shall be found therein, thanksgiving, and the voice of song.

4 ¶ Listen unto me, my people; and O my nation, give ear unto me; for a law shall proceed from me, and my justice will I establish as a light of the people.

5 My righteousness is near; my salvation goeth forth, and my arms shall judge the people: on me the isles shall wait, and for my arm shall they hope.

6 Lift up your eyes to the heavens, and look upon the earth beneath; for the heavens shall vanish away like smoke, and the earth shall wear out like a garment, and they that dwell thereon shall die in like manner; but my salvation shall exist for ever, and my righteousness shall not be delayed.[f]

7 ¶ Hearken unto me, ye that know righteousness, O people in whose heart my law is: ye must not fear the reproach of men, and of their revilings shall ye not be in dread.

8 For like a garment shall the moth eat them up, and like wool shall the worm eat them; but my righteousness shall exist for ever, and my salvation from generation to generation.

9 ¶ Awake, awake, put on strength, O arm of the LORD: awake, as in the ancient days, in the generations of olden times. Art thou not it that struck down Rahab,[g] that pierced the crocodile?

10 Art thou not it that dried up the sea, the waters of the great deep; that rendered

[a] Rashi; but Redak, "a tongue of the practised," i. e. those who have been well trained. Philippson, "disciples;" and so at the end, "to understand like disciples."

[b] Lit. "the master of my cause."

[c] Lit. "gird," i. e. "arm," or "urge," in this connection.

[d] Philippson, "how I called him, the one."

[e] The prophetic past, representing the future as already come.

[f] Jonathan. Redak, "broken."

[g] Allegorical term for "Egypt." The crocodile, as rendered by Philippson, or "dragon," by others, denotes Pharaoh, who is frequently so called by the prophets. The word תנין is difficult to translate with an equivalent in the depths of the sea a road for the redeemed to pass through?

11 And (so) shall the ransomed of the LORD return, and come to Zion with song, with everlasting joy upon their head; gladness and joy shall they obtain, while sorrow and sighing shall have fled away.

12 ¶ I, I am he that comforteth you: who art thou, that thou shouldst be afraid of a mortal that must die, and of a son of man who will wither as the grass?

13 And thou forgettest the LORD, thy Maker, who hath spread out the heavens, and laid the foundations of the earth; and thou dreadest continually, all the day, because of the fury of the oppressor, whenever he aimeth to destroy: and where is (now) the fury of the oppressor?

14 The exile will be speedily set free; and he shall not die in the dungeon, and his bread shall not fail.

15 For I am the LORD thy God, who stirreth[a] up the sea that its waves roar: the LORD of hosts is his name.

16 And I have placed my words in thy mouth, and with the shadow of my hand have I covered thee: to plant[b] the heavens, and to lay the foundations of the earth, and to say to Zion, Thou art my people.

17 ¶ Rouse up, rouse up, arise, O Jerusalem, thou who hast drunk from the hand of the LORD the cup of his fury: the deep[c] cup of confusion hast thou drunk, hast thou drained.

18 There is none to lead her, from all the children whom she hath born; and there is none that taketh her by the hand, from all the children whom she hath brought up.

19 Two things are these which have befallen thee: who will have compassion for thee? desolation and destruction, and famine and the sword—with whom shall I comfort thee?

20 Thy children have fainted, they lie at the entrance of all streets, as a wild bull caught in a net, (they are those) who are full of the fury of the LORD, the threatening of thy God.

21 Therefore hear now this, O thou afflicted, and drunken, but not with wine.

22 ¶ Thus hath said thy Lord, the ETERNAL, and thy God, who will ever plead for his people, Behold, I have taken out of thy hand the cup of confusion, the deep cup of my fury: thou shalt never more drink it again.

23 And I will place it in the hand of those who have tortured thee, that have said to thy soul, Bend thee down, that we may pass over; and thou madest like the earth thy back, and like the street for those that passed over.

CHAPTER LII.

1 ¶ Awake, awake, put on thy strength,[d] O Zion; put on thy beautiful garments, O Jerusalem, thou holy city; for no more shall enter into thee henceforth the uncircumcised and the unclean.

2 Shake thyself free from the dust, arise,[e] sit down, O Jerusalem: loosen thyself from the bands of thy neck, O captive, daughter of Zion.

3 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD, For naught were you sold, and without silver shall ye be redeemed.

4 ¶ For thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Into Egypt went my people down aforetimes, to sojourn there, and Asshur hath oppressed it without cause.

5 And now what have I here, saith the LORD, since my people hath been taken away for naught? its rulers vaunt aloud, saith the LORD, and continually, all the day, is my name blasphemed.

6 Therefore shall my people know my name, therefore—on that day, that I am he that speaketh it: here am I.

7 ¶ How beautiful are upon the mountains the feet of the messenger of good tidings, that publisheth peace, that announceth tidings of other languages. In Gen. i. 21, it evidently means simply "the large marine animals;" in Exod. vii. 10, it is equally clear that it denotes "serpent;" the general term "monster," something large, frightful, and unusual, would best express it; and the context must then determine what sort of a creature is likely the subject of the discourse.

[a] Jonathan, "who assuageth the sea when its waves roar." The difficulty is in the word רגע, to which opposite meanings are attached.

[b] The commentators say that this refers to the preservation of Israel, as important as the creation, and the gathering of the captives.

[c] Jonathan. But Rashi, "the dregs of the cup." קבעת is given by Sachs with "arched cup."

[d] Sachs, "(decoration of) victory."

[e] Sachs, "sit erect;" but the verse simply says that the captives who formerly lay bound in the dust shall spring up from the earth and sit on a seat of ease, like other freemen.

happiness, that publisheth salvation, that saith unto Zion, Thy God reigneth.

8 The voice of thy watchmen,—they raise their voice, together shall they shout; for eye to eye shall they see, when the LORD returneth unto Zion.

9 Break forth (in song), shout together, ye ruins of Jerusalem; for the LORD hath comforted his people, he hath redeemed Jerusalem.

10 The LORD hath made bare his holy arm before the eyes of all the nations; and all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation of our God.

11 ¶ Depart ye, depart ye, go out from there, touch no unclean thing; go ye out from the midst of it; cleanse yourselves, ye bearers of the vessels of the LORD.

12 For not in haste shall ye go out, and not in flight shall ye go; for before you goeth the LORD, and your rereward is the God of Israel.

13 ¶ Behold, my servant[a] shall be prosperous, he shall be exalted and extolled, and be placed very high.

14 Just as many were astonished at thee, so greatly was his countenance marred more than any (other) man's, and his form more than (that of) the sons of men,—

15 Thus will he cause many nations to jump[b] up in (astonishment); at him will kings shut their mouth; for what had not been told unto them shall they see, and what they had never heard shall they understand.

CHAPTER LIII.

1 Who would have believed our[c] report? and the arm of the LORD—over whom hath it been revealed?

3 He[d] was despised and shunned by men; a man of pains, and acquainted with disease; and as one[e] who hid his face from us was he despised, and we esteemed him not.

[a] Rashi, explains "my servant," "Behold, at the end of days will my servant Jacob, the righteous among him, be prosperous." Dr. Philippson heads this section, "the sufferings of Israel conduce to the happiness of the nations;" and after reviewing the preceding prophecies, he says, "But if the prophet contrasts in chap. xlix. 7, in general terms, the despised state of Israel with their future greatness, he takes a deeper view of the subject in the speech now before us, (to the end of liii.,) as he declares the present degradation of Israel to be NECESSARY for the accomplishment of their mission; because the exaltation of this depressed, the glorious uprising of this despised people will prove so clearly, so surprisingly to the other nations the saving power of the sole God, whom the Israelites adore, that they will become converted to this only ONE. The prophet goes, therefore, a step farther, in declaring the sufferings of Israel, in general terms, as borne by Israel merely as the means of happiness for the nations, in order to bring these out of their sinful idolatry to the pure acknowledgment of God. They are become the martyrs of the acknowledgment of the ONE, and by their exaltation the nations will be directed with the strength of conviction to the sole and only God. This view of the prophet is truly sublime; he stands here on the summit of the whole history of the world, since he thus recognises and pursues the universal tendency of all the history of the families of man. The doubts, therefore, which Jewish commentators (Redak and Abarbanel) have raised here, that this procedure would be opposed to the justice of God, which must allow every one to bear the punishment of what he himself has committed, can only be applied to individuals, while the prophet had in view the whole development of mankind. The prophet now expresses this idea in the following manner:—At first he speaks of the future greatness of Israel (lii. 13), which shall be as great as the Israelites are at present depressed (14). At this the nations and kings will be astonished to the utmost (15), and they will call to mind the entire state of degradation under which the Israelites have suffered, when seeing that it is precisely this people which have been redeemed and raised so high by the sole God (liii. 1–3). But they will thence acknowledge that Israel had to bear this hard fate solely for their (the nations') redemption out of their sinful state (4–6), so that Israel, through the patience which they exhibit notwithstanding all their sufferings, since they never departed from the only God, shall be placed on a yet higher eminence (7–9). Therefore will Israel be the more greatly exalted and rendered happy by God, and the will of the Most High will be accomplished through them (10–12)." This view is generally shared by the best commentators, and is perfectly reconcilable to the whole context and the separate expressions employed.

[b] Jonathan, "scatter." Rashi follows the same view. Redak, "he will cause to speak." Heinemann, "will set in motion." Sachs, "astonish." We have followed Philippson, who explains it to mean the sudden effect of unexpected news. This is farther exemplified by the first verse of the next chapter.

[c] Rashi, "So will the nations say one to the other, Had we heard from the mouth of others what we see ourselves, it would have been incredible; and on whom was such a power and majesty of the LORD revealed till now?" But Philippson, "it appears incredible that God should do so much for so small a people."

[d] Rashi, "This is the method of the prophet, to speak of all Israel as one man, as above, 'Fear not, my servant Jacob,' (xliv. 2, and ibid. 21)."

[e] Rashi, "On account of their great shame and lowness they were as those who hide their faces from us with the

4 But only our[a] diseases did he bear himself, and our pains he carried: while we indeed esteemed him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted.

5 Yet he was wounded for[b] our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement for our peace was upon him; and through his bruises was healing granted to us.

6 We all like sheep[c] went astray; every one to his own way did we turn; and the LORD let befall[d] him the guilt of us all.

7 He was oppressed, and he was also taunted,[e] yet he opened not his mouth; like the lamb which is led to the slaughter, and like a ewe before her shearers is dumb; and he opened not his mouth.

8 Through oppression and through judicial punishment was he taken away;[f] but his generation—who could tell, that he was cut away out of the land of life, (that) for the transgressions of my people the plague[g] was laid on him?

9 And he let his grave[h] be made with the wicked, and with the (godless)[i] rich at his death; although he had done no violence, and there was no deceit in his mouth.

10 But the LORD was pleased to crush him with disease: when (now) his soul hath brought the trespass-offering,[k] then shall he see (his) seed, live many days, and the pleasure of the LORD shall prosper in his hand.

11 (Freed)[l] from the trouble of his soul shall he see (the good) and be satisfied: through his knowledge shall my righteous servant bring the many to righteousness, while he will bear their iniquities.

12 Therefore will I divide him (a portion) with the many, and with the strong shall he divide the spoil; because he poured out his soul unto death, and with transgressors was he numbered: while he bore the sin of many, and for the transgressors he let (evil)[m] befall him.

CHAPTER LIV.

1 ¶ Sing, O barren one, thou that hast not born; break forth into song, and rejoice aloud, thou that hast not travailed; for more are the children of the desolate than the children of the married wife, saith the LORD.

2 Enlarge the space of thy tent, and let them stretch forth the curtains of thy habitations,—spare not: lengthen thy cords, and strengthen thy stakes;[n]

3 For to the right and to the left shalt utmost care, that we should not see them, like a leprous man, who hides his face and is afraid to look about." Philippson agrees with this, and refers to the laws of the leper, (Lev. xiii. 15,) who, with torn garments and long hair, wrapt up to his chin, called out, "Unclean, unclean," and had to live secluded without the city. Who knows not of the Ghetto—the Jewish gaberdine—the execration of Mahomedans and Nazarenes?

[a] Rashi, "But now we see that it was not for his lowness that evil befell him; but he was afflicted with pains that all the nations might find atonement through the pains of Israel; while we (the Gentiles) thought him hated of God."

[b] Others, "through means of."

[c] Philippson, "like sheep without a shepherd; but now Israel has brought law and justice."

[d] Rashi, "And the LORD forgave for his prayer the iniquity of us all." So also Jonathan, "And it was the will of God to forgive the guilt of us all for his sake." הפגיע in the sense of prayer; so also in verse 12. Others take it in the sense of meeting, thus, "he let him be met by the guilt of us all."

[e] Rashi. But Sachs, "he was resigned." נענה in the sense of humiliation. (Exod. x. 3).

[f] Rashi and Redak render, "He shall be taken out of the captivity and the painful judgments inflicted on him," &c. לעמו Rashi explains "to the righteous among them;" but the prophets often use the singular and plural together, if the subject be composed of many individuals.

[g] Sachs, "the punishment which (was due) to them," i. e. the Gentile nation, here called "my people."

[h] Rashi, "He delivered himself to be buried in any manner the wicked of the nations might decree." (It must be borne in mind, how much the Israelites valued the rite of burial. Gen. xxiii. 11; xlvii. 30, &c.) "At the option of the wicked he was willing thus to be buried, and not deny the living God; and at the option of the ruler (the rich) he delivered himself up to all sorts of deaths, which were decreed against him, because he would do no wrong—not even to speak the word to adopt the worship of idols."

[i] After Philippson, to make up the contrast between רשעים and עשיר.

[k] Atonement; and means, that when the trials have been duly borne as the means of the world's regeneration, then shall the apparent evil be converted into real good.

[l] Rashi renders the beginning of this verse, "He hath lived, seen pleasure, and was satisfied from the labour of his hands," i. e. not by violence, "and now he judgeth with righteousness," &c.

[m] Others, "he made intercession for," &c. Rashi adds, "through his pains, by which happiness came into the world." This is daily verified by the experience of mankind.

thou spread forth; and thy seed shall drive out nations, and desolate cities shall they repeople.

4 Fear not, for thou shalt not be made ashamed; and be not confounded, for thou shalt not be put to the blush; for the shame of thy youth shalt thou forget, and the reproach of thy widowhood shalt thou not remember any more.

5 For thy husband is thy Maker, the LORD of hosts is his name; and thy Redeemer is the Holy One of Israel, "The God of all the earth," shall he be called.

6 For as a woman forsaken and grieved in spirit did the LORD call thee back, and as a wife of youth, that was rejected, saith thy God.

7 But for a brief moment[b] have I forsaken thee; but with great mercies will I again receive[c] thee.

8 In a little[d] wrath did I hide my face for a moment from thee; but with everlasting kindness will I have mercy on thee, saith thy Redeemer the LORD.

9 ¶ For as the waters of Noäh is this unto me; as I have sworn that the waters of Noäh should no more pass over the earth: so have I sworn that I would not be wroth with thee, nor rebuke thee.

10 For the mountains may depart, and the hills may be removed; but my kindness shall not depart from thee, neither shall the covenant of my peace be removed, saith he that hath mercy on thee, the LORD.

11 ¶ O thou afflicted, tossed by the tempest, and not comforted, behold, I will lay thy stones with fair colours,[e] and lay thy foundations with sapphires.

12 And I will make of rubies thy battlements, and thy gates into carbuncle-stones, and all thy borders into precious stones.

13 And all thy children shall be disciples of the LORD; and great shall be the peace of thy children.

14 In righteousness shalt thou be established: keep far from oppression, for thou shalt not fear; and from terror, for it shall not come near unto thee.

15 Behold, they that assemble together, are nothing without me: whosoever assembleth together against thee shall fall under thy power.[f]

16 Behold, I have created the smith that bloweth the coals in the fire, and that bringeth forth an instrument for his work; and I have also created the waster to destroy.

17 No weapon that is formed against thee shall prosper; and every tongue that will rise against thee in judgment thou shalt condemn. This is the heritage of the servants of the LORD, and their due reward[g] from me, saith the LORD.

CHAPTER LV.

1 ¶ Ho, every one of ye that thirsteth, come ye to the water,[h] and he too that hath no money: come ye, buy, and eat; yea, come, buy without money and without price wine and milk.

2 Wherefore will ye spend money for what is not bread? and your labour for what satisfieth not? hearken then unto me, and eat what is good, and let your soul delight itself in fatness.

3 Incline your ear, and come unto me, hear, and your soul shall live; and I will make with you an everlasting covenant, the promised mercies of David, which are sure.

4 Behold, for a lawgiver[i] unto the people have I appointed him, a prince and commander to the people.

5 Behold, a nation thou knowest not shalt thou call, and a nation that knew thee not shall run unto thee; for the sake of the LORD thy God, and for the Holy One of Israel, for he hath glorified thee.

6 ¶ Seek ye the LORD, while[k] he may be found, call ye on him, while he is near.

7 Let the wicked forsake his way, and the man of unrighteousness his thoughts; and let him return unto the LORD, and he will have mercy upon him, and unto our God, for he will abundantly pardon.[l]

[l] Sachs, "for he is rich in forgiveness."

8 For not my thoughts are your thoughts, and not your ways are my ways, saith the LORD.

9 For as high as the heavens are above the earth, so high[a] are my ways above your ways, and my thoughts above your thoughts.

10 For as the rain and the snow come down from heaven, and return not thither, but water the earth, and render it fruitful, and cause it to bring forth plants; and give seed to the sower and bread to him that eateth:

11 So shall ever be my word which goeth forth from my mouth, it shall not return unto me without effect;[b] but it accomplisheth what I desire, and it prospereth in that whereto I have sent it.

12 For in joy shall ye go out, and in peace shall ye be brought home: the mountains and the hills shall break forth before you into song, and all the trees of the field shall clap their hands.

13 Instead of the thorn shall come up the fir-tree, and instead of the nettle[c] shall come up the myrtle; and it shall be unto the LORD for a name, for a sign of everlasting that shall not be cut off.

CHAPTER LVI.

1 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, Keep ye justice, and do equity; for near is my salvation to come, and my righteousness to be revealed.

2 Happy is the mortal that ever doth this, and the son of man that ever layeth hold on it; that keepeth the sabbath by not violating it, and keepeth his hand from doing any evil.

3 And let not say the son of the stranger, that joineth himself unto the LORD, saying, Surely the LORD will exclude me from his people: nor let the eunuch say, Behold, I am a dry tree.

4 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD concerning the eunuchs that keep my sabbaths, and make choice of what pleaseth me, and take hold of my covenant,

5 I will indeed give unto them in my house and within my walls a place[d] and a name, better than sons and daughters: an everlasting name will I give them, that shall not be cut off.

6 ¶ Also the sons of the stranger, that join themselves unto the LORD, to serve him, and to love the name of the LORD, to be unto him as servants, every one that keepeth the sabbath by not violating it, and those who take hold of my covenant:

7 Even these will I bring to my holy mountain, and make them joyful in my house of prayer; their burnt-offerings and their sacrifices shall be accepted upon my altar; for my house shall be called a house of prayer for all the nations.

8 Thus saith the Lord Eternal who gathereth the outcasts of Israel, I will yet gather (others) to him, beside his own gathered (outcasts).

9 All ye beasts of the field, come to devour, (yea,) all ye beasts in the forest.[e]

10 ¶ His[f] watchmen are all of them blind, they know nothing; they all are dumb dogs, they cannot bark; dreamers,[g] lying down, loving to slumber.

11 But the dogs are of a greedy disposition, they know not how to be satisfied; and those are shepherds that know how to understand: they all turn to their own way, every one after his gain, from all quarters.[h]

12 Come ye,[i] I will fetch wine, and let us swallow abundantly of strong drink; and like this day shall it be to-morrow, excellent and in very great abundance.

[a] Man must not measure his forgiveness by that of the LORD; for our God is infinite in goodness as he is immeasurably greater than man in wisdom; hence we should never despair of mercy though our sins be many.

[d] Jonathan and Aben Ezra. Sachs, "a monument."

[e] Philippson comments, that the prophet calls on the wild beasts to assail the flock, i. e. the house of Israel, since their shepherds, rulers, elders, priests, and false prophets did not watch them. He conceives the wild beasts addressed to be idolatry and vice; and hence he denounces the idolaters in the succeeding speech. Rashi, however, "All ye nations, come near unto me, and devour all the beasts in the forest, the mighty ones of the nations who have refused to become proselytes;" and connects this with the verse above. Aben Ezra deems it a call on the wicked of the Gentiles to slay the wicked of Israel, like the wild beasts that slay each other.

CHAPTER LVII.

1 The righteous perisheth, and no man layeth it to heart: and pious men are taken away, without one considering that before the evil[a] the righteous is taken away.

2 He shall come (to his fathers) in peace: they shall repose in their resting-place, every one that walketh in his uprightness.

3 ¶ But ye draw near hither, sons of the sorceress, the seed of the adulterer and the harlot.

4 Over[b] whom will you make yourselves merry? concerning whom will you open wide your mouth, stretch out your tongue? are ye not children of transgression, a seed of falsehood,

5 That are inflamed[c] after the idols under every green tree; that slaughter the children in the valleys under the clefts of the rocks?

6 Of the smooth stones of the valley is thy portion; they, they are thy lot: even to them hast thou poured out a drink-offering, hast thou offered a meat-offering. Shall I for these things repent me (of the evil)?[d]

7 Upon a high and lofty mountain hast thou placed thy couch: even thither wentest thou up to offer sacrifice.

8 And behind the doors and the door-posts hast thou placed thy (mark of) remembrance; for (departing) from me, thou hast laid open, and art gone up,—hast enlarged thy couch, and made thee a covenant with some of them; thou hast loved their lying with thee, hast selected a fitting place.

9 And thou didst show thyself unto the king with ointment, and thou didst multiply thy perfumes, and thou didst send out thy messengers even into the far-off distance, and didst debase thyself even down to the nether world.

10 Though thou art wearied by the length of thy way, yet saidst thou not, It is useless:[e] thou hadst found enough for thy hand; therefore didst thou feel no care.[f]

11 And of whom hadst thou dread or fear, that thou becamest false, and didst not remember me, nor lay it to thy heart? is it not so? I kept silence, and this from earliest times, and therefore thou fearest me not?

12 I, I ever tell thee (what deeds would be) thy righteousness; but thy works—these indeed will not profit thee.

13 When thou criest, let thy masses of idols deliver thee; but all of them will the wind carry away, a breath will take them off; but he that putteth his trust in me shall possess the land, and shall inherit my holy mountain.

14 And he[g] will say, Cast ye up, cast ye up, clear out the way, lift up every stumbling block out of the way of my people.

15 ¶ For thus hath said the high and lofty One, who inhabiteth eternity, whose name is Holy, In the high and holy place do I dwell, yet also with the contrite and humble of spirit, to revive the spirit of the humble, and to revive the heart of the contrite.

16 For not to eternity will I contend, neither will I be for ever wroth: when the spirit from before me is overwhelmed, and the souls which I have made.

17 Because of the iniquity of his covetousness was I wroth, and I smote him, hiding my face, and was wroth: while he went on frowardly in the way of his own heart.

18 I (now) see his ways, and I will heal him; and I will guide him, and bestow full comforts on him and on his mourners;

19 Creating[h] the fruit of the lips: Peace, peace to him that is afar off, and to him that [a] "Which is to come over the generation."—Rashi.

[b] Rashi, "Since ye have departed from me, on whom will ye depend to enjoy what is good?" But the connection seems to indicate that the prophet asks them why they deride those sent to reprove them, with the coarse gestures of opening the mouth, and lolling out the tongue.

[c] Jonathan, "that worship the errors," i. e. idols. But Rashi, "that excite themselves to incest under the terebinths."

[d] Rashi, Aben Ezra, and others, and means, should God, seeing the gross idolatry, as they even worshipped smooth stones, have cause to refrain from sending over the people the evil denounced by the prophets? Sachs, "Shall I quiet myself?"

[e] Rashi, "I will give up these things, but attend to the law and commandments." Eng. ver., "There is no hope."

[f] Rashi. Aben Ezra, "thou foundest thy hand strong; therefore wast thou not weakened."

[g] "The prophet in the name of God."—Rashi.

[h] Rashi, after Jonathan, "Who create a new speech of lips," and comments, "Against that hitherto affliction came over him, and all exclaimed against him, every one will now call to him, Peace, peace. To the far and to the near—both shall be alike, both he who has grown old in my law and service from his youth, and he who has approached now of late thereto to return from his evil way; and the Lord says, I will heal him from his disease and sins."

is near, saith the LORD; and I will heal him.

20 But the wicked are like the troubled sea; for it can never be at rest, but its waters cast up mire and dirt.

21 There is no peace, saith my God, to the wicked.

CHAPTER LVIII.

1 ¶ Cry with a full throat, spare not, like the cornet lift up thy voice, and declare unto my people their transgression, and to the house of Jacob their sins.

2 Yet me do they ever seek day by day, and to know my ways do they always desire; as a nation that hath done righteousness, and hath not forsaken the ordinance of their God: continually do they ask of me the ordinances of justice—do they desire to draw nigh unto God.

3 "Wherefore have we fasted, and thou seest it not? have we afflicted our soul, and thou regardest it not?" Behold, on the day of your fasting ye follow your business,[a] and all your acquired gains[b] do ye exact.

4 Behold, for contention and strife do ye fast, and to smite with the fist of wickedness: ye fast not so at this day, to cause your voice to be heard on high.[c]

5 Is such then the fast which I can choose? a day that a man afflicteth his soul? to bend his head as a bulrush, and to spread sackcloth and ashes for his couch? wilt thou call this a fast, and a day of acceptability unto the LORD?

6 Is not this (rather) the fast that I will choose? to open the snares of wickedness, to undo the bands of the yoke, and to let the oppressed go free, and that ye should break asunder every yoke?

7 Is it not to distribute[d] thy bread to the hungry, and that thou bring the afflicted[e] poor into thy house? when thou seest the naked, that thou clothe him; and that thou hide not thyself from thy own flesh?

8 Then shall break forth as the morning-dawn thy light, and thy healing shall speedily spring forth; and before thee shall go thy righteousness, the glory of the LORD shall be thy rereward.

9 Then shalt thou call, and the LORD will answer; thou shalt cry, and he will say, Here am I. If thou remove from the midst of thee the yoke, the stretching out of the finger, and speaking wickedly;

10 And if thou pour out to the hungry thy soul, and satisfy the afflicted soul: then shall shine forth in the darkness thy light, and thy obscurity be as the noonday;

11 And the LORD will guide thee continually, and will satisfy thy soul in times of famine, and will strengthen thy bones; and thou shalt be like a well-watered garden, and like a spring of water, the waters of which will never deceive.[f]

12 And they that spring from thee shall build up the ancient ruins; the foundations of many generations shalt thou raise up again: and thou shalt be called, The repairer of the breaches, The restorer of paths to the dwelling-place.[g]

13 If thou restrain thy foot for the sake of the sabbath, not doing thy business on my holy day; and if thou call the sabbath a delight, the holy day of the LORD, honourable; and honour it by not doing thy usual pursuits,[h] by not following thy own business, and speaking (vain) words:

14 Then shalt thou find delight in the LORD; and I will cause thee to tread upon the high places of the earth, and I will cause thee to enjoy the inheritance of Jacob thy father; for the mouth of the LORD hath spoken it.

CHAPTER LIX.

1 ¶ Behold, the LORD'S hand is not too short to save; neither his ear too heavy[i] for hearing;

2 But your iniquities have ever made a separation between you and your God, and your sins have caused him to hide his face from you, so that he would not hear.

3 For your hands are defiled with blood,

[a] Jonathan, מצא חפץ "to find one's desire," i. e. the business which one has most pleasure in.

[b] Rashi would render, "ye exact (the debts) from all your aggrieved debtors."

[c] Jonathan, "ye shall not fast fasts like this," &c.

[f] i. e. Fail, or be not there when the caravans come to it; as is often the case when they pass through the desert.

[g] i. e. Leading to the newly filled dwelling.

[h] Lit. "ways."

and your fingers with iniquity: your lips have spoken falsehood, your tongue uttereth deception.

4 No one admonisheth[a] with righteousness, and no one executeth justice in truth; men trust in naught, and speak lies; they have conceived mischief, and bring forth wickedness.

5 Basilisk's eggs do they hatch, and spider's webs do they weave: he that eateth of their eggs must die, and if one be crushed, a viper will break forth.

6 Their webs cannot serve for garments, and they cannot clothe themselves with their works: their works are works of wickedness, and the deed of violence is in their hands.

7 Their feet run to what is evil, and they make haste to shed innocent blood: their thoughts are thoughts of wickedness; wasting and destruction are on their highways.

8 The way of peace they know not; and there is no justice on their tracks: their paths they have made unto themselves crooked; whosoever walketh therein knoweth not peace.

9 Therefore is justice far from us, nor will happiness overtake us: we ever hope for light, but behold there is darkness; for brightness, but in obscurity must we walk.

10 We grope like the blind on the wall, and as if we had no eyes do we grope: we stumble at noonday as in the twilight; we are in complete darkness like the dead.

11 We growl all of us like bears, and like doves do we moan sorely; we ever hope for justice, but there is none; for aid, but it is far from us.

12 For our transgressions are numerous in thy presence, and our sins testify against us; for of our transgressions are we aware; and our iniquities—we know them;

13 We transgressed and denied the LORD, and departed away from our God; we spoke oppression and revolt, conceived and brought forth in our heart words of falsehood.

14 And justice is forced to turn backward, and righteousness standeth afar off; for truth stumbled in the street, and equity is not able to enter.

15 And thus is the truth missing;[b] and he that departeth from evil is regarded as foolish: and the LORD saw it, and it was displeasing in his eyes that there was no justice.

16 And he saw that there was no man, and wondered that there was no intercessor; therefore his arm brought him aid, and his righteousness,—yea, this sustained him.

17 And he put on righteousness as a coat of mail, and (placed) the helmet of salvation upon his head; and he put on the garments of vengeance as raiment, and wrapped himself with zeal as with a cloak.

18 According to the demerits, so will he repay (all), fury to his adversaries, recompense to his enemies; to the islands will he repay what they have merited.

19 And they shall fear from the west the name of the LORD, and from the rising of the sun his glory; for there shall come distress[c] like the stream which the Spirit of the LORD urgeth[d] forward.

20 But unto Zion shall come the redeemer, and unto those who return[e] from transgression in Jacob, saith the LORD.

21 And as for me, this is my covenant with them, saith the LORD, My spirit that is upon thee, and my words[f] which I have put in thy mouth, shall not depart out of thy mouth, nor out of the mouth of thy children,[g] nor out of the mouth of thy children's children, saith the LORD, from henceforth and unto all eternity.

CHAPTER LX.

1 ¶ Arise, give light, for thy light is come; and the glory of the LORD is shining forth over thee.

2 For behold, the darkness shall cover the earth, and a gross darkness the people; but over thee will shine forth the LORD, and his glory will be seen over thee.

3 And nations shall walk by thy light, and kings by the brightness of thy shining.

[a] Redak. Jonathan, "prayeth;" Philippson, "asseverateth."

[b] Philippson, "Then was truth betrayed, and he that departed from evil was plundered."

[c] Sachs, "when there cometh like a stream the enemy."

[d] נסקה after Redak, from נוס "to fly," hence "urged to speed on." Rashi, "The spirit of the LORD showeth wonders therein;" or "eateth it up as the worms eateth a tree."

[e] i. e. That repent, or become converted.

[f] The law of God.

[g] Lit. "seed."

4 Lift up thy eyes round about and see,
they all are assembled, they come to thee, thy sons are coming from afar, and thy daughters are brought along in arms.

5 Then wilt thou see and be filled with light,[a] and thy heart will dread and be enlarged; because unto thee shall be turned the abundance of the sea, the riches of nations shall come unto thee.

6 The multitude of camels shall cover thee, the dromedaries of Midian and 'Ephah; they all from Sheba shall come: gold and frankincense shall they carry, and the praises of the LORD shall they announce.

7 All the flocks of Kedar shall be assembled unto thee, the rams of Nebayoth shall minister unto thee: they shall come for a favourable acceptance (unto me) upon my altar, and the house of my glory will I glorify.

8 Who are these that fly like a cloud, and like the doves, to their windows?

9 Yea, unto me (the inhabitants of) the isles shall hasten,[b] and the ships of Tharshish at first, to bring thy sons from afar, their silver and their gold with them, unto the name of the LORD thy God, and to the Holy One of Israel; because he hath glorified thee.

10 And the sons of the stranger shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee; for in my wrath did I smite thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

11 And thy gates shall stand open continually, day and night shall they not be closed, to bring unto thee the wealth of nations, and their kings led (captive).

12 For the nation and the kingdom that will not serve thee shall perish; and the nations shall be utterly destroyed.

13 The glory of Lebanon shall come unto thee, the fir, the cypress, and the box together, to adorn the place of my sanctuary, and the (resting) place of my feet will I glorify.

14 And then shall come unto thee bent down the sons of those who afflicted thee, and there shall bow themselves down at the soles of thy feet all thy revilers; and they shall call thee, The city of the LORD, Zion of the Holy One of Israel.

15 Instead that thou wast forsaken and hated, without one to pass through (thee), will I render thee an excellency of everlasting, a joy of all generations.[c]

16 And thou shalt suck the milk of nations, and the breast of kings shalt thou suck; and thou shalt know that I the LORD am thy Saviour, and thy Redeemer, the Mighty One of Jacob.

17 Instead of the copper will I bring gold, and instead of the iron will I bring silver, and instead of wood copper, and instead of the stones iron; and I will set peace as thy authorities, and righteousness as thy taskmasters.

18 There shall not be heard any more violence in thy land, wasting and destruction within thy boundaries; but thou shalt call Salvation, thy walls, and thy gates, Praise.

19 The sun shall not be unto thee any more for a light by day, and for brightness shall the moon not give light unto thee; but the LORD will be unto thee for a light of everlasting, and thy God as thy glory.

20 Thy sun shall not go down any more, and thy moon shall not be withdrawn; for the LORD will be unto thee for a light of everlasting, and ended shall be the days of thy mourning.

21 And thy people—they all will be righteous, for ever shall they possess the land, the sprout of my planting, the work of my hands, that I may glorify myself.

22 The little one shall become a thousand, and the small, a mighty nation: I the LORD will hasten it in its time.

CHAPTER LXI.

1 ¶ The Spirit of the Lord Eternal is upon me; because the LORD hath anointed me to announce good tidings unto the meek: he hath sent me to bind up the broken-hearted, to proclaim to captives Liberty, and to prisoners Release;[d]

2 To proclaim a year of favour of the LORD, and the day of vengeance of our God, to comfort all mourners;[e]

3 To grant unto the mourners of Zion,—

[a] Jonathan. Others, "then shalt thou fear and rejoice;" i. e. the sudden joy will not permit the realization of all that happens.

[b] Others, "wait," or "hope."

[c] Lit. "generation and generation."

[d] Aben Ezra. Joseph Kimchi, "opening the prison." Others, "bonds."

to give unto them ornament in the place of ashes, oil of gladness in the place of mourning, garments of praise in the place of a grieved spirit; that they may be called, Oaks of righteousness, the planting of the LORD, that he may be glorified.

4 And they shall build up the ancient ruins, desolate places of former times shall they raise up, and they shall renew ruined cities, the desolate places of many generations.

5 And strangers shall stand and feed your flocks, and the sons of the alien shall be your ploughmen and your vintners.

6 But ye—ye shall be called, Priests of the LORD; Ministers of our God, shall be said unto you: the wealth of nations shall ye consume, and in their glory shall ye be placed as possessors.[a]

7 In the place[b] of your twofold shame, —and the confusion of which they loudly complained as their portion: therefore in their land shall they possess a twofold (portion); everlasting joy shall be granted unto them.

8 For I the LORD love justice, I hate robbery with burnt-offering:[c] therefore will I give them the recompense of their work in truth, and an everlasting covenant will I make with them.

9 And among the nations shall their seed be known, and their offspring in the midst of the people: all that see them shall acknowledge them, that they are the seed whom the LORD hath blessed.

10 ¶ I will be greatly glad in the LORD, my soul shall be joyful in my God; for he hath clothed me with the garments of salvation, with the mantle of righteousness hath he enveloped me; as a bridegroom decketh himself with elegant attire,[d] and as a bride adorneth herself with her bridal array.

11 For, as the earth bringeth forth her growth, and as a garden causeth what is sown therein to spring forth: thus will the LORD Eternal cause righteousness and praise to spring forth in the presence of all the nations.

CHAPTER LXII.

1 For the sake of Zion will I not be silent, and for the sake of Jerusalem will I not be quiet; until its righteousness[e] go forth as the brightness (of light), and its salvation as a burning torch.

2 And nations shall see thy righteousness, and all kings thy glory; and men shall call thee by a new name, which the mouth of the LORD shall pronounce.

3 And thou shalt be a crown of ornament in the hand of the LORD, and a royal diadem in the hand of thy God.

4 Thou[f] shalt not be termed any more "Forsaken," and thy land shall not be termed any more "Desolate;" for thou shalt be called "My delight in her" [Chephzi-bah], and thy land "Espoused" [Be'ulah]; for the LORD will have delight in thee, and thy land shall be espoused.

5 For as a young man espouseth a virgin, so shall thy sons espouse thee; and as the bridegroom is glad over the bride, so will be glad over thee thy God.

6 Over thy walls, O Jerusalem, have I appointed watchmen, all the day and all the night, continually, shall they not be silent: ye that make mention of the LORD, take ye no rest.

7 And give him no rest, until he have established, and until he have set up Jerusalem as a praise on the earth.

8 Sworn hath the LORD by his right hand, and by the arm of his strength, I will not give thy corn any more as food for thy enemies, and the sons of the stranger shall not drink thy young wine for which thou hast laboured;

9 But they who gather it shall eat it, and praise the LORD; and they who bring it together shall drink it in the courts of my sanctuary.

10 ¶ Pass, pass through the gates, make clear the way of the people, cast up, cast up the highway, remove away the stones, lift up a banner over[g] the nations.

[b] Rashi. But Redak, "Instead of your shame ye shall have twofold (reward), and instead of confusion, they shall rejoice in their portion."

[c] Rashi. Jonathan makes 'Olah synonymous with 'Avlah, wickedness, "robbing with wickedness."

[d] Philippson, "sanctifieth the head ornament;" rendering יכהן as "sanctifying." Rashi would give it, "clotheth himself with the ornamental garments of the high-priest."

[e] Others, "happiness," i. e. the result of righteousness.

[f] Sachs. Lit. "Then shall not be said of thee any more," &c.

[g] Others, "for."

11 Behold, the LORD hath caused to be heard unto the ends of the earth, "Say ye to the daughter of Zion, Behold, thy salvation cometh; behold his reward is with him, and his recompense before him."

12 And they shall call them, The holy people, The redeemed of the LORD; and thou shalt be called, Sought for, [Derusha,] The city never forsaken.

CHAPTER LXIII.

1 ¶ Who is this that cometh from Edom, dyed red in his garments from Bozrah? this —glorious in his apparel, moving along in the greatness of his strength? "I who speak in righteousness, mighty to save."

2 Why is redness on thy apparel, and (why are) thy garments as of one that treadeth the wine-press?

3 "I have trodden the vat alone, and of the nations there was no man with me; and I trod them down in my anger, and I trampled on them in my fury; and their blood was sprinkled on my garments, and all my raiments have I stained.

4 For the day of vengeance was in my heart, and the year of my redeemed was come.

5 And I looked, and there was no one to help, and I was astonished, and there was no one to support; and then my own arm aided me, and my fury—this it was that upheld me.

6 And I stamped down nations in my anger, and I made them drunken with my fury, and brought down to the earth their victorious strength."[a]

7 The kindnesses of the LORD will I mention, the praises of the LORD, in accordance with all that the LORD hath bestowed on us, and the abundant goodness toward the house of Israel, which he hath bestowed on them according to his mercies, and the abundance of his kindnesses.

8 And he said, Surely they are my people, children that will not lie; and he became to them a Saviour.

9 In all their affliction he was afflicted, and the angel of his presence saved them; in his love and in his pity he redeemed them; and he bore them, and he carried them all the days of old.

10 But they rebelled, and grieved his holy Spirit; and he changed himself to become their enemy, and he himself fought against them.

11 Then remembered his people[b] the ancient days of Moses, Where is he that brought them up out of the sea with the shepherd of his flock? where is he that put within him his holy Spirit?

12 That displayed[c] by the right hand of Moses his glorious arm; that divided the water before them, to make unto himself an everlasting name?

13 That led them through the deeps, as a horse through the wilderness, that they should not stumble?

14 As a beast goeth down into the valley, so did the spirit of the LORD bring them to rest; thus didst thou guide thy people, to make unto thyself a glorious name.

15 Look down from heaven, and behold, from the habitation of thy holiness and of thy glory: where are thy zeal and thy mights, the yearning of thy bowels and of thy mercy which are now restrained from me?

16 For thou art our father; for Abraham knoweth nothing of us, and Israel recogniseth us not: thou, O LORD, art our father, our Redeemer from everlasting is thy name.

17 Why hast thou let us go astray, O LORD, from thy ways, suffered our heart to be hardened against thy fear? Return for the sake of thy servants, the tribes of thy heritage.

18 But a brief space were thy holy people in possession, when our adversaries trod down thy sanctuary.

19 We are become as though we are those over whom thou hast never ruled, over whom thy name hath not been called. Oh[d] that thou mightest rend the heavens, come down: at thy presence would mountains (then) melt away.[e]

[a] Rashi. Aben Ezra, "blood." Sachs, "and I let flow to the earth their vital fluid." (See above, v. 3.)

[b] Rashi, who comments, "The prophet complains, and says in the language of entreaty, This day doth his people remember in exile the ancient days, those of Moses." Sa'adyah agrees also with this.

[c] Lit. "led." After Rashi, "God let walk by Moses the arm of his strength at all times that he needed the help of the Holy One."

[d] This part of the verse is verse 1, chap. lxiv. of the English version.

[e] Philippson and Sachs, "tremble." (See Judges v. 5.)

CHAPTER LXIV.

1 ¶ As[a] fire is kindled on brushwood, as water is made to bubble up by fire—to make thy name known to thy adversaries, that at thy presence nations might tremble!

2 (As) when thou didst fearful deeds which we had not looked for, thou camest down, (while) at thy presence mountains melted away;

3 Yea! what from the beginning of the world men had not heard, not perceived by their hearing; no eye (also) had seen a god beside thee, who could do (the like) for the one that waiteth for him.

4 Thou acceptest him that rejoiceth and worketh righteousness, those that remember thee in thy ways: behold, thou wast wroth, for we had sinned on them continually; and can we thus be saved?[b]

5 And we are become like an unclean man all of us, and like a soiled garment, all our righteousnesses; and we wither like a leaf all of us; and our iniquities, like the wind, will bear us away.

6 And there is none that calleth upon thy name, that stirreth himself up to lay hold of thee; for thou hast hidden thy face from us, and hast let us melt away, through the force[c] of our iniquities.

7 But now, O LORD, our father art thou; we are the clay, and thou our fashioner; and the work of thy hand are we all.

8 Be not wroth, O LORD, so very greatly, and do not for ever remember (our) iniquity: behold, look, we beseech thee, thy people are we all.

9 Thy holy cities are become a wilderness, Zion is become a wilderness, Jerusalem a desolate place.

10 Our holy and our beautiful house where our fathers praised thee, is burnt up with fire; and all our costly things are become ruins.

11 Wilt thou for these things refrain thyself, O LORD? wilt thou be silent, and afflict us so very greatly?

CHAPTER LXV.

1 ¶ I allowed myself to be sought by those that asked not; I let myself be found by those that sought me not: I said, Here am I, here am I, unto a nation that called itself not[d] by my name.

2 I spread out my hands all the time unto a rebellious people, that walk in the way which is not good, after their own thoughts;

3 (To) the people that provoke me to anger to my face continually; that sacrifice in gardens[e] and burn incense upon (altars of) brick,

4 That sit about among the graves, and lodge in the vaults,[f] that eat the flesh of the swine, and (have) broth of abominations[g] (in) their vessels;

5 That say, Stand by thyself, come not near to me; for I am holier than thou. These are a smoke in my nose, a fire that burneth all the time.

6 Behold, it is written before me; I will not keep silence, till I have recompensed, yea, recompensed into their bosom,—

7 Your iniquities and the iniquities of your fathers together, saith the LORD, who have burnt incense upon the mountains, and upon the hills have blasphemed me: and I will

[a] In the original this chapter is the continuation of the section commencing at lxiii. 7, and is therefore connected with the last verse; thus, "before thee would mountains melt away; as fire is kindled on brushwood," &c. Rashi takes חמסים in the sense of a substance that is melted. Redak, "as the strong fire that is intended to melt metals blazeth up." Rabbi Jonah apud Kimchi, "dry straw."

[b] Rashi renders this difficult verse so: "Thou didst remove those who were joyful to do righteousness, and invoked thee in their prayer after the attributes of thy mercy; behold, when thou wast angry with us for all the sins which we ever committed, we were saved through their prayer: (5) Wherefore now we are become," &c. Heinemann, "Wert thou to meet the joyful and him that doth right, they would remember thee in thy attributes —we would have been helpled; but as thou wast angry, we did sin through them perpetually." Sachs, "Wert thou to meet one who joyfully doth what is right, who think of thee in thy ways—behold, wert thou even angry because we had sinned—we should be helped through them for ever." Our version is after Philippson, who refers בהם "on them" to "thy ways," meaning "for we had sinned on God's ways," i. e. not heeding his commands.

[d] Rashi, "that desired not to be called by my name;" i. e. Israel.

[g] Philippson, "unclean animals."

measure out their work at first into their bosom.

8 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, As the new wine is found in the cluster of grapes, and one saith, Destroy it not, for a blessing is in it: so will I do for the sake of my servants, that I will not destroy the whole;

9 And I let come forth out of Jacob a seed, and out of Judah an inheritor of my mountains; and my elect shall inherit it, and my servants shall dwell there.

10 And Sharon shall become a fold of flocks, and the valley of 'Achor a resting-place for herds, for my people that have sought me.

11 But ye who forsake the LORD, who forget my holy mountain, that set out a table for the god of Fortune,[a] and that fill for Destiny the drink-offering:—

12 Yea, I will destine you to the sword, and all of you shall kneel down to the slaughter; because when I called, ye did not answer; when I spoke, ye did not hear; but ye did what is evil in my eyes, and that wherein I had no delight did ye choose.

13 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Behold, my servants shall eat, but ye shall be hungry; behold, my servants shall drink, but ye shall be thirsty; behold, my servants shall rejoice, but ye shall be made ashamed;

14 Behold, my servants shall sing for joy of heart, but ye shall cry out from pain of heart, and from a broken spirit shall ye howl;

15 And ye shall leave behind your name for an oath unto my elect ones, when the Lord Eternal will slay thee; but his servants will he call by another name.

16 Whoever there be that blesseth himself on the earth shall bless himself by the true God; and that swareth on the earth shall swear by the true God; because the former troubles are forgotten, and because they are hidden from my eyes.

17 For, behold, I will create new heavens and a new earth; and the former shall not be remembered, nor come into mind;[b]

18 But be ye glad and rejoice unto all eternity in what I create; for, behold, I will create Jerusalem for rejoicing, and her people for gladness.

19 And I will rejoice over Jerusalem, and be glad in my people: and there shall not be heard in her any more the voice of weeping, nor the voice of complaint.[c]

20 There shall no more come[d] thence an infant of few days, nor an old man that shall not have the full length of his days; for as a lad shall one die a hundred years old; and as a sinner shall be accursed he who (dieth) at a hundred years old.

21 And they shall build houses, and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and eat their fruit.

22 They shall not build, and another inhabit; they shall not plant, and another eat; for as the days[e] of a tree are the days of my people, and the work of their hands shall my elect wear out.

23 They shall not toil in vain, nor bring forth unto an early death;[f] for the seed of the blessed of the LORD are they, and their offspring with them.

24 And it shall come to pass, that before yet they call will I answer; and while they are still speaking will I hear.

25 The wolf and the lamb shall feed together, and the lion shall like the bullock eat straw: and the serpent—dust shall be his food. They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain, saith the LORD.

CHAPTER LXVI.

1 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, The heaven is my throne, and the earth is my foot-stool: where is there a house that ye can build unto me? and where is the place of my rest?

2 For all these things hath my hand made, that all these things came into being, saith the LORD; but upon such a one will I look, upon the poor, and him who is of a contrite spirit, and who trembleth at my word.

3 He that slaughtereth the ox,[g] slayeth a man; he that sacrificeth a lamb, breaketh the neck of a dog; he that offereth a meat-offering, (offereth) swine's blood; he that burneth incense, blesseth an idol: yea, they have made choice of their own ways, and in their abominations doth their soul delight.

[c] Lit. "crying."

4 So will I also make choice of their misfortune,[a] and what they dread will I bring upon them; because I called, and none did answer; I spoke, and they did not hear; and they did what is evil in my eyes, and that in which I delighted not did they choose.

5 ¶ Hear the word of the LORD, ye that tremble at his word: Your brethren that hated you, that cast you out for the sake of my name,[b] said, "Let the LORD be glorified;" but he will appear to your joy, and they shall be made ashamed.

6 (There is) a voice of tumult from the city, a voice from the temple, the voice of the LORD who rendereth recompense to his enemies.

7 Before she had travailed she brought forth; before yet her pain was come, she was delivered of a man-child.

8 Who hath heard the like? who hath seen such things? shall a land be made to travail in one day? or shall a nation be born at once? that Zion hath travailed, also brought forth her children?

9 Shall I bring to the birth, and not cause to bring forth? saith the LORD; or shall I who cause to bring forth, now prevent it? saith thy God.

10 ¶ Rejoice ye with Jerusalem, and be delighted over her, all ye that love her; be highly glad with her, all ye that mourn for her.

11 In order that ye may suck, and be satisfied with the breast of her consolations; in order that ye may sip, and find pleasure from the abundance of her glory.

12 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD, Behold, I will extend to her peace like a river, and like a rapid stream the glory of nations, that ye may suck: upon the arm shall ye be borne, and upon knees shall ye be dandled.

13 As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you; and in Jerusalem shall ye be comforted.

14 And ye shall see this, and your heart shall be glad, and your bones shall flourish like the grass; and then will be known the hand of the LORD on his servants, and he will be indignant toward his enemies.

15 For, behold, the LORD will come with fire, and his chariots will be like the storm-wind, to send forth his anger with fury, and his threatening with flames of fire.

16 For by fire will the LORD judge, and by his sword against all flesh: and many shall be the slain of the LORD.

17 They that sanctify themselves, and purify themselves for the gardens,[c] behind one tree[d] in the midst, they who eat the flesh of the swine, and the abomination, and the mouse, together shall they perish, saith the LORD.

18 And I, because of their works and their thoughts, will let it come to pass to gather all the nations and tongues; and they shall come, and shall see my glory.

19 And I will display a sign on them, and I will send from them those that escape unto the nations, Tharshish, Pul, and Lud, that draw the bow, Thubal, and Javan, the isles afar off, that have not heard my fame, and have not seen my glory; and they shall proclaim my glory among the nations.

20 And they shall bring all your brethren out of all nations as an offering[e] unto the LORD, upon horses, and in chariots, and in litters, and upon mules, and upon dromedaries,[f] to my holy mountain Jerusalem, saith the LORD, as the children of Israel bring the offering in a clean vessel into the house of the LORD.

21 And of them[g] also will I take for priests and for Levites, saith the LORD.

earth, which I will make, shall have permanence[a] before me, saith the LORD, so shall exist permanently your seed and your name.

23 And it shall come to pass, that from one new moon to the other new moon, and from one sabbath to the other sabbath, shall all flesh come to prostrate themselves before me, saith the LORD.

24 And they shall go forth, and look upon the carcasses of the men that have transgressed against me; for their worm shall not die, nor shall their fire be quenched; and they shall be an abhorrence unto all flesh.

THE BOOK OF JEREMIAH,

ספר ירמיה.

CHAPTER I.

1 ¶ THE words of Jeremiah[b] the son of Chilkiyahu, one of the priests that were in 'Anathoth in the land of Benjamin;

2 To whom the word of the LORD came in the days of Josiah the son of Amon the king of Judah, in the thirteenth year of his reign,

3 And who continued (prophet) in the days of Jehoyakim the son of Josiah the king of Judah, until the end of the eleventh year of Zedekiah the son of Josiah the king of Judah, until the carrying away into exile of Jerusalem in the fifth month.[c]

4 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

5 Before yet I had formed thee in thy mother's body I knew thee; and before thou wast yet come forth out of the womb I sanctified thee: a prophet unto the nations did I ordain thee.

6 And I said, Ah, Lord Eternal! behold, I know not how to speak; for I am (but) a lad.

7 And the LORD said unto me, Say not, I am (but) a lad; but to whomsoever[d] I may send thee shalt thou go, and whatsoever I may command thee shalt thou speak.

8 Be not afraid because of them; for I am with thee to deliver thee, saith the LORD.

9 And the LORD stretched forth his hand, and touched (me) therewith on my mouth; and the LORD said unto me, Behold, I have put my words in thy mouth.

10 See, I have appointed thee this day over the nations and over the kingdoms, to root out, and to pull down, and to destroy, and to throw down: to build up, and to plant.

11 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying, What seest thou, Jeremiah? And I said, A staff of an almond-tree do I see.

12 And the LORD said unto me, Thou hast well seen; for I am watching[e] over my word to perform it.

13 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me the second time, saying, What seest thou? And I said, A seething pot do I see; and the front[f] thereof is turned from the north.

14 And the LORD said unto me, Out of the

[a] Jonathan.

[b] Properly, Yirmeyahu.

[c] This definition of his prophetic activity applies properly to the first thirty-nine chapters, which carry us to the destruction of Jerusalem; but as there were no kings afterward, there was no means of designating his later activity with reference to them. The end of this verse also specifies the date of the end of Zedekiah's reign, not that of Jeremiah's prophecies.—After PHILIPPSON.

[d] Zunz, "whithersoever."

[e] There is in the Hebrew a play on the word שקד shakked, "almond," identical in its root with shakkód, "to hasten," "to watch intently;" wherefore the almond was a proper type of the speedy fulfilment of the prophecy. The almond-tree is represented as blossoming and producing very early.

[f] Rashi renders, et ses oudes, "and its bubbling is (urged) from the north side." But literally, the part from which the contents are poured out, the front, is turned toward Palestine from the north.

north shall the evil break[a] forth over all the inhabitants of the land, 15 For, lo, I will call unto all the families of the kingdoms of the north, saith the LORD; and they shall come, and they shall set every one his throne at the entrance of the gates of Jerusalem, and upon all its walls round about, and upon (those of) all the cities of Judah.

16 And I will call them to account[b] touching all their wickedness, in that they have forsaken me, and have burnt incense unto other gods, and have bowed down unto the works of their own hands.

17 But do thou gird up thy loins, and arise, and speak unto them all that I may command thee; be not discouraged because of them, lest I humble thee before them.

18 But I, behold, I have made of thee this day a fortified city, and an iron pillar, and brazen walls over the whole land, against the kings of Judah, against its princes, against its priests, and against the people of the land.

19 And (although) they fight against thee, they shall not prevail against thee; for with thee am I, saith the LORD, to deliver thee.

CHAPTER II.

1 ¶ And the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

2 Go and call out before the ears of Jerusalem, saying, Thus hath said the LORD, I remember[c] unto thee, the kindness of thy youth, the love of thy espousals, thy going after me in the wilderness, through a land that is not sown.

3 A holy thing is Israel unto the LORD, the first of his fruits: all that devour him shall incur guilt; evil shall come over them, saith the LORD.

4 ¶ Hear ye the word of the LORD, O house of Jacob, and all ye families of the house of Israel.

5 Thus hath said the LORD, What fault did your fathers find in me, that they went away far from me, and walked after vanity, and became vain?

6 That they said not, Where is the LORD that brought us up out of the land of Egypt, that led us through the wilderness, through a land of deserts and of wildness,[d] through a land of drought, and of the shadow of death, through a land through which no one had passed, and where no man had dwelt?

7 And I brought you into the land of fruitful fields, to eat its fruit and its goodly[e] products; but ye came and ye made unclean my land, and my heritage ye rendered an abomination.

8 The priests said not, Where is the LORD? and they that handle[f] the law knew me not; and the shepherds transgressed against me, and the prophets prophesied in the name of Ba'al, and after things that cannot profit did they walk.

9 Therefore will I contend yet farther with you, saith the LORD, and with your children's children will I contend.

10 For pass over to the isles of the Chittites, and see; and unto Kedar send, and consider well: and see if any thing like this hath happened.

11 Hath a nation exchanged its gods, which are yet no gods? and (still) my people hath exchanged its glory for that which can not profit.

12 Be astonished, O ye heavens, at this, and let your hair stand at an end, be ye greatly terrified,[g] saith the LORD.

13 For two evils have my people committed: me have they forsaken, the source of living waters, to hew out for themselves cisterns, broken cisterns, that cannot hold water.

14 Is Israel a servant? or one born (to servitude) in the house? why hath he been given up to plunder?

15 (That) over him young lions roared, let their voice resound, and changed his land into a waste, that his cities are burnt, left without an inhabitant?

16 Even the children of Noph and Thachpanches have crushed the crown of thy head.

17 Hast thou not procured this unto thyself, through thy forsaking the LORD thy God, while he was leading thee on the (right) way?

18 And now what[h] hast thou to do on the way of Egypt, to drink the waters of Shichor?

[a] Lit. "shall be opened."
[b] Rashi. Philippson, literally, "And I will pronounce my judgments over them."
[c] Philippson, "I remembered," "was," "devoured," "incurred," "came."
[d] Jonathan. Rashi, "pit-falls."
[e] Zunz, "blessing."
[f] Jonathan, "the teachers of," &c. Rashi, "the judges."
[g] Rashi, "be as though you were ruined."
[h] Zunz, "what hast thou obtained from the way," &c.

and what hast thou to do on the way of Asshur, to drink the waters of the river?

19 Thy own wickedness shall chastise thee, and thy backslidings shall correct thee; and thou shalt know and see that evil and bitter was thy forsaking the LORD thy God, while the dread of me was not upon thee, saith the LORD Eternal of hosts.

20 Because from yore did I break thy yoke, did I burst asunder thy bands; and thou saidst, I will not transgress: nevertheless upon every high hill and under every green tree thou makest thy bed,[a] as harlot.

21 Yet I had planted thee as a branch of a noble vine, wholly of the proper seed; but how art thou changed unto me into a degenerate plant of an ignoble vine?

22 For though thou wash thyself with natron,[b] and take for thyself much soap: yet would the stain of thy iniquity remain before me, saith the Lord Eternal.

23 How canst thou say, I am not become unclean, after the Be'alim have I not gone? see thy way in the valley, know what thou hast done: (like) a swift dromedary bound fast[c] to her ways;

24 (Like) a wild ass used to the wilderness, that at her pleasure snuffeth up the wind; her lust—who can turn this away? all they that seek her will not weary themselves; in her month will they find her.

25 "Prevent[d] thy foot from being unshod, and thy throat from being thirsty;" but thou saidst, It is useless;[e] no, for I have loved strangers, and after them will I go.

26 As the thief is ashamed when he is found, so have the house of Israel been made ashamed, they, their kings, their princes, and their priests, and their prophets,

27 Who say to the wood, Thou art my father; and to the stone, Thou hast brought us forth; for they have turned their back unto me, and not their face; but in the time of their misfortune will they say, Arise, and save us.

28 But where are then thy gods that thou hast made for thyself? let them arise, if they can save thee in the time of thy misfortune; for equal to the number of thy cities were thy gods, O Judah.

29 ¶ Wherefore will ye contend with me? all of you have transgressed against me, saith the LORD.

30 To no purpose have I smitten your children; correction they accepted not: your sword hath devoured your prophets, like a destroying lion.

31 O (present) generation, regard ye the word of the LORD. Have I been a wilderness unto Israel? a land of deep darkness? wherefore say my people, We wander about;[f] we cannot come any more unto thee?

32 Can a virgin forget her ornament, or a bride her decorations?[g] yet my people have forgotten me days without number.

33 Why ornamentest thou thy way to seek for love? truly even to the worst hast thou used thyself as thy ways.[h]

34 Also on thy skirts is found the blood of the souls of the innocent needy ones: not while breaking in (thy house) didst thou find them; but for all these things.[i]

35 Yet thou sayest, Yea, I am innocent, surely his anger is already turned away from me. Behold, I will hold judgment with thee, because thou sayest, I have not sinned.

36 Why makest thou thyself so very

[a] Rashi; but Redak, "thou wanderest about."

[b] The natron of Egypt, which is found in several lakes in the south-western part of the Delta of the Nile, and elsewhere; but not the nitre of commerce.

[c] i. e. Constantly pursuing the same path. The prophet reproves Israel for their proneness to idolatry, their disregard of God's word, and their shameless desire to imitate the customs of the Gentiles.

[e] i. e. The prophetic advice is useless.

[f] Jonathan. Rashi, "We are severed (from thee);" Redak, "We have dominion, we will not," &c. Menachem, "We are come down," i. e. from our greatness.

[g] Michlol Yophi, "necklaces and other jewels which are bound or clasped on." Philippson, "girdle."

[h] Rashi. Philippson, "Why allegest thou thy way to be good to acquire love?" (meaning that the Israelites said they had not sinned, and hence deserved divine favour;) "truly, even on bad acts hast thou accustomed thy ways." Zunz, "Truly, even the worst hast thou taught to know thy ways." So also Jonathan and Redak, taking the feminine הרעית as signifying nations.

[i] After Rashi, who explains the last words, "because they had reproved thee." It is only necessary to call to mind the murder of Zechariah and the ill-usage of the prophet himself. The death of a thief slain while breaking into a house was not punishable. (See Exod. xxii. 1.) But Redak connects this with the following, thus, "Yet for all these things—thou hast said," &c.

low[a] to change thy way? also because of Egypt shalt thou be made ashamed, as thou wast put to shame because of Assyria.

37 Also from this one[b] shalt thou go forth, with thy hands (clasped) over thy head; for the LORD hath rejected those on whom thou trustest and thou shalt not prosper with them.

CHAPTER III.

1 One could say,[c] Behold, if a man send away his wife, and she go from him, and become another man's, can he return unto her again? would not that land be greatly polluted? and thou hast played the harlot with many companions, and wilt yet return to me, saith the LORD.

2 Lift up thy eyes unto the mountain-tops, and see where thou hast not been lain with. On public roads hast thou sat for them, as the Arab in the wilderness; and thou hast polluted the land with thy incests and with thy wickedness.

3 And (though) the early showers were withholden, and the latter rain came not: yet hadst thou a forehead of an incestuous wife, thou refusedst to feel shame.

4 Wilt thou not[d] from this time call out unto me, My father, the guide of my youth art thou?

5 Will he bear grudge for ever? will he keep it to eternity? Behold, thou hast spoken (this), and yet hast done the things that are evil as much as thou wast able.

6 ¶ And the LORD said unto me in the days of Josiah the king, Hast thou seen what backsliding Israel hath done? she is gone upon every high mountain and under every green tree, and hath played the harlot there.

7 And I thought that after she had done all these things, she would return unto me. But she returned not. And this saw her treacherous sister Judah.

8 And I saw, that, although because backsliding Israel had committed adultery I had sent her away, and given her bill of divorce unto her, still treacherous Judah her sister feared not, but went and played herself the harlot also.

9 And it came to pass through her giddy incest, that she defiled the land, and committed adultery with stone and with wood.

10 And yet with all this her treacherous sister Judah hath not returned unto me with all her heart, but with falsehood, saith the LORD.

11 ¶ And the LORD said unto me, The backsliding Israel hath justified herself through[e] the treacherous Judah.

12 Go and proclaim these words toward the north, and say, Return, thou backsliding Israel, saith the LORD: I will not cause my anger to fall upon you; for I am full of kindness, saith the LORD, I will not bear grudge for ever.

13 Only acknowledge thy iniquity, that against the LORD thy God thou hast rebelled, and hast scattered thy ways to the strangers under every green tree, and that unto my voice ye have not hearkened, saith the LORD.

14 Return, O backsliding children, saith the LORD; for I am become your husband;[f] and I will take you one of a city, and two of a family, and bring you to Zion:

15 And I will give you shepherds after my own heart, and they shall feed you with knowledge and intelligence.

16 And it shall come to pass, when ye multiply and increase in the land, in those days, saith the LORD, that men shall not say any more, "The ark of the covenant of the LORD;" nor shall it come any more to mind; nor shall they remember it; nor shall they mention it; nor shall any thing be done[g] any more (with it).

17 At that time shall they call Jerusalem, The throne of the LORD; and all the nations shall be gathered unto it, to the name of the LORD, to Jerusalem: and they shall not walk any more after the stubbornness of their evil heart.

[a] Rashi and Jonathan. Redak, who is followed by Zunz, Eng. version, and others, "Why gaddest thou about."—"Egypt and Assyria"—the early kings relied for help on Assyria, the later ones on Egypt, and both were the cause of evil to Israel and Judah.

[b] i. e. Egypt or the nations in general; but Redak, "from this place," i. e. Palestine or Jerusalem.

[c] See Deut. xxiv. 4.

[d] Rashi, who regards this verse as a wish expressed by God that Israel might repent. But Zunz, "Is it not so; from that time thou calledst me, My father," &c.

[e] Others, "more than."

[f] Redak, "though I had rejected you;" as if it were נעלתי "Family" of nations, i. e. a people.

[g] Zunz, literally, "nor shall (any such) be made again;" alluding to the absence of the ark in the second temple.

18 ¶ In those days shall the house of Judah walk with the house of Israel, and they shall come together out of the land of the north unto the land that I have given for an inheritance unto your fathers.

19 But I had thought, How shall I establish[a] thee among the (other) sons (of man), and give thee a desirable land, a heritage of glory of the hosts[b] of nations? and I thought, My father thou wouldst call me, and that from me thou wouldst call turn away.

20 But truly as a wife treacherously departeth from her husband, so have ye dealt treacherously with me, O house of Israel, saith the LORD.

21 A voice is now heard upon the mountain-tops, the supplicatory weeping of the children of Israel; for they have perverted their way, they have forgotten the LORD their God.

22 Return, ye backsliding children, I will heal your backslidings. "Behold, we come unto thee; for thou art the LORD our God.

23 Truly deceptive was (what we hoped for) from the hills, and the multitude on the mountains;[c] truly in the LORD our God is the salvation of Israel.

24 And shame hath devoured the acquisition of our fathers from our youth, their flocks and their herds, their sons and their daughters.

25 We lie down in our shame, and our confusion covereth us; for against the LORD our God have we sinned, we and our fathers, from our youth even until this day; and we have not hearkened to the voice of the LORD our God."

CHAPTER IV.

1 If thou wilt return, O Israel, saith the LORD, unto me must thou return; and if thou wilt put away thy abominations out of my sight, then shalt thou not wander about (any more).

2 And if thou wilt swear, As the LORD liveth, in truth, in justice, and in righteousness: then shall nations bless themselves in him,[d] and in him shall they glorify themselves.

3 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD to the men of Judah and to Jerusalem, Plough up your fallow ground, that ye may not sow among thorns.

4 Circumcise yourselves to the LORD, and remove the obduracy of your heart, O ye men of Judah and inhabitants of Jerusalem: lest my fury come forth like fire, and burn so that none can quench it, because of the evil of your doings.

5 Tell ye in Judah, and publish in Jerusalem, and say, Blow ye the cornet in the land: call out, gather together,[e] and say, Assemble yourselves, and let us go into the fortified cities.

6 Set up the standard toward Zion; save yourselves by flight, stay not; for evil do I bring from the north, and a great destruction.

7 The lion is come up from his thicket, and the destroyer of nations hath commenced his march, he is gone forth from his place, to make thy land desolate; and thy cities shall be laid waste, left without an inhabitant.

8 For this gird yourselves with sackcloths, lament and wail; for the fierce anger of the LORD is not turned away from us.

9 And it shall come to pass on that day, saith the LORD, that the heart of the king and the heart of the princes shall fail; and the priests shall be astonished, and the prophets shall wonder.

10 Then said I, Ah, Lord Eternal! surely thou hast greatly deceived this people and Jerusalem, saying, Ye shall have peace; whereas the sword reacheth unto the soul.

11 At that time shall be announced to this people and to Jerusalem a dry wind from the mountain-peaks in the wilderness, (coming) on the road to the daughter of my people; not to winnow, nor to cleanse (the corn),[f]

12 A strong[g] wind from these places shall come unto me: now also will I myself pronounce judgment against them.

[a] Zunz gives, "How shall I endow thee with children."

[b] Zunz, after Jonathan, "which is an ornament among the ornaments of nations."

[c] Redak. But Philippson, "Deceptive is what (cometh) from the hills, but noise what cometh from the mountains." Hills and mountains denote the places where idols were worshipped.

[d] i. e. Israel, the nation represented as one individual.

[e] Philippson and others, "called out aloud."

[f] After Rashi; meaning, the enemy shall come as the dry desert wind sweeps over the land, too strong for mere winnowing and cleansing the corn.

[g] Rashi, "A wind full of these (punishments) shall come."

13 Behold, like clouds shall he come up, and like a whirlwind shall be his chariots: swifter than eagles are his horses. "Wo unto us! for we are wasted."

14 Wash from wrong doing thy heart, O Jerusalem, in order that thou mayest be saved. How long wilt thou let lodge within thee the thoughts of thy wickedness?

15 For a voice declareth from Dan, and publisheth unhappiness from the mountain of Ephraim.

16 Make ye mention of it to the nations; behold, let it be heard against Jerusalem, that beleaguerers come from a far-off country, and send forth their voice against the cities of Judah.

17 As keepers of a field are they against her round about; because against me hath she been rebellious, saith the LORD.

18 Thy way and thy doings have procured these things unto thee: this is thy wickedness, which is so bitter, which so reacheth unto thy heart.

19 ¶ My bowels, my bowels! I am shaken, at the very chambers of my heart; my heart beateth tumultuously in me; I cannot remain silent; because the sound of the cornet hast thou heard, O my soul, the alarm of war.

20 Ruin upon ruin is called out; for the whole land is wasted: suddenly are my tents wasted, and in a moment, my curtains.

21 How long shall I see the standard, hear the sound of the cornet?

22 ¶ "Because my people is foolish, me have they not known; sottish children are they, and they have not any understanding: wise are they to do evil, but how to do good they do not know."

23 I look at the earth, and, lo, it is without form and void; and toward the heavens, and their light is gone.

24 I look at the mountains, and, lo, they tremble, and all the hills are moved.

25 I look, and, lo, there is no man, and all the birds of the heavens are fled.

26 I look, and, lo, the fruitful country is a wilderness, and all its cities are laid waste at the presence of the LORD, because of the fierceness of his anger.

27 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD, Desolate shall be the whole land; yet a full end will I not make.

28 ¶ For this shall mourn the earth, and black shall be the heavens above; because I have spoken it, I have purposed it, and I will not repent, and I will not turn back from it.

29 ¶ From the noise of horsemen and those that shoot with the bow fleeth the whole city; they go into thickets, and climb up upon the rocks: every city is forsaken, and not a man dwelleth therein.

30 And thou, O wasted one, what wilt thou do? Though thou clothe thyself with scarlet,[a] though thou adorn thyself with ornaments of gold, though thou encircle with paint thy eyes: in vain shalt thou make thyself beautiful; the adulterers will despise thee, thy life will they seek.

31 For a voice as of a woman in travail have I heard, the anguish as of one that bringeth forth her first child, the voice of the daughter of Zion, that groaneth, that spreadeth out her hands, (saying,) "Wo is me now! for my soul succumbeth[b] to the murderers."

CHAPTER V.

1 ¶ Roam about through the streets of Jerusalem, and see now, and notice, and search in its broad places, if ye can find one man, if there be one that executeth justice, that searcheth for truth: and I will pardon it.

2 And though they say, "As the LORD liveth!" surely they only swear to a falsehood.

3 O LORD, are not thy eyes (directed) to the truth? thou didst strike them, but they felt it not; thou didst make an end[c] of them, (yet) they refused to accept correction: they made their faces harder than a rock, they refused to return.

4 Yet I myself thought, Oh these are but poor; they are foolish; for they know not the way of the LORD, the ordinance of their God.

5 I had better go unto the great men, and let me speak with them; for these surely know the way of the LORD, the ordinance of their God; but these altogether have broken the yoke,[d] burst the bands.

6 Therefore slayeth them the lion out of the forest, the wolf of the deserts wasteth them, the leopard lieth in wait against their cities: every one that cometh out thence shall be torn in pieces; because many are their transgressions, very numerous are their backslidings.

7 How shall I for this pardon thee? thy children have forsaken me, and sworn by those that are not gods: when I had fed them to the full, they then committed adultery, and assembled themselves by troops in the harlot's house.

8 As robust horses they rose by times[a] in the morning: every one neighed after the wife of his neighbour.

9 Shall I not for these things inflict punishment? saith the LORD: and shall on a nation such as this my soul[b] not be avenged?

10 ¶ Scale ye her walls,[c] and destroy; but make not a full end: remove her young shoots;[d] for they are not the LORD's.

11 For the house of Israel and the house of Judah have dealt very treacherously against me, saith the LORD.

12 They have denied the LORD, and said, "He existeth not; nor will evil come over us; and the sword and famine shall we not see.

13 And the prophets shall become wind, and the word[e] is not in them:" thus[f] shall it be done unto them.

14 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the LORD the God of hosts, Because ye speak this word, behold, I will make my words in thy mouth to be a fire, and this people wood, and it shall devour them.

15 Lo, I will bring over you a nation from afar, O house of Israel, saith the LORD: it is a mighty nation, it is a most ancient nation, a nation whose language thou wilt not know, and thou wilt not understand what they speak.

16 Their quiver is as an open sepulchre: they are all mighty men.

17 And they shall consume thy harvest, and thy bread; they shall consume thy sons and thy daughters; they shall consume thy flocks and thy herds; they shall consume thy vines and thy fig-trees; they shall depopulate[g] thy fortified cities, those wherein thou trustedst, with the sword.

18 Nevertheless even in those days, saith the LORD, will I not make a full end of you.

19 And it shall come to pass, when ye will say, For what reason hath the LORD our God done all these things unto us? that thou shalt say unto them, In the same manner as ye have forsaken me, and served strange gods in your land, so shall ye serve strangers in a land that is not yours.

20 ¶ Announce this in the house of Jacob, and publish it in Judah, saying,

21 Do now hear this, O sottish people, who have no heart; who have eyes, and see not; who have ears, and hear not;

22 Will ye not fear me? saith the LORD; will ye not tremble at my presence, who have placed the sand as a bound for the sea by an everlasting law,[h] which it can never pass over? and though the waves thereof be upheaved, yet can they not prevail; though they roar, yet can they not pass over it.

23 But this people hath a stubborn and a rebellious heart: they have departed (from the right) and have gone their way.

24 And they have not said in their heart, Let us now fear the LORD our God, that giveth rain, the early and the latter rain, in its season: the appointed weeks[i] of the harvest doth he ever preserve for us.

25 Your iniquities have turned away these things, and your sins have withholden what is good from you.

26 For there are found among my people wicked men: they lie in wait, as he that layeth[k] snares; they set a trap, they catch men.

27 As a coop is full of birds, so are their houses full of deceit: therefore are they become great, and grown rich.

28 They are grown fat,[l] they are stout; yea, they surpass even the deeds of the wicked: they pronounce no (just) sentence, the sentence of the fatherless, that they might[a] prosper; and the cause of the needy do they not judge.

29 Shall I not for these things inflict punishment? saith the LORD: or shall on a nation such as this my soul not be avenged?

30 ¶ An astonishing and horrible thing is committed in the land;

31 The prophets prophesy falsely, and the priests bear rule by their means; and my people love to have it so; but what will ye do in the end thereof?

CHAPTER VI.

1 Assemble, O ye children of Benjamin, to flee out of the midst of Jerusalem, and in Tekoä blow the cornet, and on Beth-hakkerem set up a fire signal; for evil is seen (coming) out of the north, and great havoc.

2 The comely and the delicate, the daughter of Zion do I destroy.

3 Unto her shall come shepherds with their flocks; they shall pitch their tents against her round about; they shall feed off every one his own place.

4 Prepare ye war against her! "Arise, and let us go up at noon. Wo unto us! for the day waneth, for the shadows of the evening are stretched out.

5 Arise, and let us go up by night, and let us destroy her palaces."

6 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD of hosts, Cut ye down trees, and cast up a mound against Jerusalem: this is the city whose time of punishment is come; she is full of oppression in her midst.

7 As a well sendeth forth its waters, so doth she cause her wickedness to spring forth: violence and robbery are heard in her; in my presence there are continually disease and wounds.[b]

8 Be thou instructed,[c] O Jerusalem, that my soul tear itself not away from thee; that I render thee not desolate, a land which is not inhabited.

9 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, They shall thoroughly glean like a vine the remnant of Israel: carry back thy hand as a grape-gatherer frequently to the baskets.[d]

10 To whom shall I speak, and give warning, that they may hear? behold, their ear is uncircumcised, and they cannot be attentive: behold, the word of the LORD is become unto them a reproach; they have no delight in it.

11 And I am full of the fury of the LORD; I am weary with sustaining it: (I must) pour it out over the child in the street, and over the assembly of young men together; for even the husband with the wife shall be seized, the aged with him that is full of days.

12 And their houses shall be transferred unto others, fields and wives together; for I will stretch out my hand over the inhabitants of the land, saith the LORD.

13 For from their least even unto their greatest, every one is given to covetousness; and from the prophet even unto the priest every one practiseth falsehood.

14 And they heal the breach of the daughter of my people very lightly,[e] saying, Peace, peace: when there is no peace.

15 They should have been ashamed, because they had committed an abomination; but they neither felt the least shame, nor did they know how to blush: therefore shall they fall among those that fall; at the time that I punish their sin shall they stumble, saith the LORD.

16 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, Place yourselves on the ways, and see, and ask after the ancient paths, where is the way which is good, that ye may walk thereon, and find rest for your soul. But they said, We will not walk (thereon).

17 Then did I set watchmen[f] over you, (saying,) Listen to the sound of the cornet. But they said, We will not listen.

[a] Rashi. Others, "yet are they (the wicked) prosperous."

[b] Philippson, "wounds and blows," which the wicked inflict on the innocent.

[c] Zunz, "Improve thyself."

[d] i. e. The vintner moves his hand backward and forward till he has filled his baskets; so shall be done to Israel, destroying multitudes on multitudes.

[e] "It is easy for the false prophets to utter with their mouth and say, Ye shall have peace, and to heal by their speaking the breach which is coming over them."—RASHI. This false security, however, was the reverse of a cure, as it hastened the downfall which might otherwise have been averted.

[f] Watchmen denote the prophets who are to warn the people of coming danger, just as sentinels are placed by an army to guard against surprise. The danger to Israel is sin, its consequence—destruction.

18 Therefore hear, ye nations, and know,
O assembly, what (guilt)[a] is among them.
19 Hear, O earth! behold, I will bring evil upon this people, the fruit of their thoughts; because unto my words have they not been attentive, and as regardeth my law,—that have they despised.
20 To what purpose serveth me the frankincense which cometh from Sheba, and the sweet cane from a far-off country? your burnt-offerings are not acceptable, and your sacrifices are not agreeable unto me.
21 Therefore thus hath said the LORD, Behold, I will place before this people stumbling-blocks, and thereon shall stumble the fathers and the sons together, the neighbour and his friend, and they shall perish.
22 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, Behold, a people is coming from the north country, and a great nation shall wake up from the farthest ends of the earth.
23 Bow and spear shall they firmly grasp; cruel are they, and will have no mercy; their voice roareth like the sea; and upon horses do they ride; set in array as one man for the war, against thee, O daughter of Zion.
24 We have heard the fame of him—our hands grow feeble: anguish hath taken hold of us, pain, as of a woman in giving birth.
25 Go not forth into the field, on the road must ye not walk; for (there is) the sword of the enemy, terror on every side.
26 O daughter of my people, gird thyself with sackcloth, and roll thyself in the ashes:
a mourning as for an only son prepare unto thee, a most bitter lamentation; for suddenly will the destroyer come over us.
27 I have set thee for a tower[b] and a fortress among my people, that thou mayest know and probe their way.
28 They all are grievous revolters, going about as talebearers, copper and iron: they all are corrupt.
29 The bellows are burnt,[c] by the fire the lead[d] is consumed: in vain the melter refineth; for the wicked are not separated away.
30 Refuse silver men call them; because the LORD hath rejected them.

CHAPTER VII.

1 ¶ The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying,
2 Place thyself in the gate of the house of the LORD, and proclaim there this word, and say, Hear the word of the LORD, all ye of Judah, that enter in by these gates to bow down before the LORD.
3 Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Amend your ways and your deeds, and I will permit you to dwell in this place.
4 (But) do not rely on the words of falsehood, saying, The temple of the LORD, The temple of the LORD, The temple of the LORD,
(as) they (say).[e]
5 For if ye thoroughly amend your ways and your deeds; if ye thoroughly execute justice between a man and his neighbour;
6 If ye oppress not the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow, and shed not innocent blood in this place, and walk not after other gods to your own hurt:
7 Then will I permit you to dwell in this place, in the land that I have given to your fathers, from eternity to eternity.
8 Behold, ye rely on the words of falsehood, that cannot profit.
9 How? will ye steal, murder, and commit adultery, and swear falsely, and burn incense unto Ba'al, and walk after other gods of which ye have had no knowledge;
10 And (then) come and stand before my presence in this house, which is called[f] by my name, and say, "We are delivered;" in order to do all these abominations?
11 Is then this house, which is called by

[a] Jonathan. Obernick, "what shall be done on them."
[b] So Rashi; but the moderns conceive בוחן to be "an assayer;" כבצר not a "fortress," but "metallic ore,"—say here, "gold," or "silver." Hence Zunz, "I have appointed thee an assayer among my people—the ore—that thou mayest know and probe their way," &c. The prophet is to decide on their worthiness by seeing whether they follow his advice or not. Hence they are condemned, in v. 27, for being rebellious against God and false to man, as ignoble metals—copper and iron.
[c] נחר rendered here "burnt," is found in Job xxxix. 20, where it means "the snorting" of the horse; hence, Philippson, "the bellows puff."
[d] "The lead" here spoken of was mixed with the silver, as mercury is now, to separate it in a pure state; hence the metaphor will be readily understood: the labour of purification will be in vain, as the dross (the wicked) will not be thereby separated from the pure metal (the good).
[e] Redak, after whom Zunz; but Obernick takes הכה for הנה "is here," "the temple is here."
[f] Heb. "whereupon my name is called."

my name, become a den of robbers in your eyes? (But) I also, behold, I have seen it, saith the LORD.

12 For go ye now unto my place which was in Shiloh, where I caused my name to dwell at the first,[a] and see what I did unto it because of the wickedness of my people Israel.

13 And now, whereas ye have done all these acts, saith the LORD, and I spoke unto you, causing (the prophets) to rise up early and speaking, while ye would not hear; and I called you, but ye would not answer:

14 Therefore will I do unto this house, which is called by my name, whereon ye rely, and unto the place which I have given to you and to your fathers, as I have done to Shiloh.

15 And I will cast you out of my presence, as I have cast out all your brethren, all the seed of Ephraim.

16 ¶ But thou—pray not thou in behalf of this people, nor lift up in their behalf entreaty[b] or prayer, nor make intercession[c] to me; for I will not hear thee.

17 Dost thou not see what they are doing in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem?

18 The children gather wood, and the fathers kindle the fire, and the women knead dough, to make cakes for the queen of heaven, and they pour out drink-offerings unto other gods, in order to provoke me to anger.

19 Do they provoke me to anger? saith the LORD, (and) not themselves, to the shame of their own faces?

20 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Behold my anger and my fury shall be poured out upon this place, over man, and over beast, and over the trees of the field, and over the fruit of the ground; and it shall burn, and it shall not be quenched.

21 Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Add your burnt-offerings unto your peace-sacrifices, and eat the flesh thereof.

22 For I spoke not with your fathers, and I commanded them not on the day of my bringing them out of the land of Egypt,[d] concerning burnt-offering or sacrifice;

23 But this thing did I command them, saying, Hearken to my voice, and I will be unto you for a God, and ye shall be unto me for a people; and walk ye altogether[e] on the way which I may command you, in order that it may be well unto you.

24 Yet they hearkened not, and inclined not their ear; but they walked in the counsels, in the stubbornness of their evil heart; and they went backward, and not forward:

25 Since the day that your fathers came forth out of the land of Egypt until this day; and I sent unto you all my servants the prophets, sending them daily in the morning early;

26 Yet they hearkened not unto me, and inclined not their ear; but they hardened their neck; they did worse than their fathers.

27 And if thou speak unto them all these words, and they will not hearken to thee; and if thou call unto them, and they will not answer thee:

28 Then shalt thou say unto them, This is the nation that hearken not to the voice of the LORD their God, and accept not correction; lost is the truth, and is obliterated from their mouth.

29 ¶ Cut off thy flowing hair, and cast it away, and take up on mountain-tops a lamentation; for rejected hath the LORD and forsaken the generation of his wrath.

30 For the children of Judah have done what is evil in my eyes, saith the LORD: they have set up their abominations in the house which is called by my name, to pollute it.

31 And they have built the high-places of Thophet, which is in the valley of Ben-hinnom, to burn their sons and their daughters in the fire; which I had not commanded, and which never came into my mind.[f]

32 ¶ Therefore, behold days are coming, saith the LORD, that it shall not be called any more Thophet, or The valley of Ben-hinnom, but The valley of slaughter: and they shall bury in Thophet, for want of room.

[a] Before the temple of Jerusalem was built. Rashi refers the prophet's allusion to the events in the time of 'Eli.

[b] Philippson. Redak, "cry."

[c] Zunz, "urge me not;" i.e. "ask not urgently."

[d] "The first condition was only, 'If you will hearken to my voice and keep my covenant, then shall you be to me a peculiar treasure.' (Exod. xix. 5.)"—RASHI.

[e] Lit. "on all the way."

[f] Lit. "heart."

33 And the carcasses of this people shall become food unto the fowls of the heavens, and unto the beasts of the earth, with none to chase them away.

34 And I will cause to cease from the cities of Judah, and from the streets of Jerusalem, the voice of gladness, and the voice of joy, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride; for a desert shall the land become.

CHAPTER VIII.

1 At that time, saith the LORD, shall they bring out the bones of the kings of Judah, and the bones of his princes, and the bones of the priests, and the bones of the prophets, and the bones of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, out of their graves.

2 And they shall spread them out before the sun, and the moon, and all the host of heaven, which they have loved, and which they have served, and after which they have walked, and which they have sought, and to which they have prostrated themselves: they shall not be gathered up, and they shall not be buried; dung upon the face of the ground shall they become.

3 And death shall be preferable to life, for all the residue of those that are left of this evil family, who are left in all the places whither I shall have driven them, saith the LORD of hosts.

4 And thou shalt say unto them, Thus hath said the LORD, Shall they fall, and not arise? will he turn away,[a] and not return?

5 Why then remaineth this people, Jerusalem, rebellious by a perpetual backsliding? they hold fast on deceit, they refuse to return.

6 I listened and heard, but they would not speak aright; no man repented him of his wickedness, saying, What have I done? every one turned again to his course, as the impetuous horse in the battle.

7 Yea, the stork[b] in the heavens knoweth her appointed times; and the turtle, and the swallow, and the crane observe the time of their coming home; but my people know not the ordinance of the LORD.

8 How can ye say, We are wise, and the law of the LORD is with us? Truly, behold in vain wrought[c] the pen, in vain the writers.

9 The wise men are ashamed, they are discouraged and caught: lo, the word of the LORD have they rejected; and what wisdom have they (now)?

10 Therefore will I give their wives unto others, their fields to conquerors;[d] for from the least even unto the greatest, every one is seeking his own gain: from the prophet even unto the priest every one practiseth falsehood.

11 And they heal the breach of the daughter of my people very lightly, saying, Peace, peace: when there is no peace.

12 They should have been ashamed, because they had committed abomination; but they neither felt the least shame, nor did they know how to blush: therefore shall they fall among those that fall; at the time of their punishment shall they stumble, saith the LORD.

13 ¶ I will surely make an end of them, saith the LORD: (there shall be left) no grapes on the vine, and no figs on the fig-tree, and the leaf shall wither; and the things that I have given them shall pass away from them.[e]

14 "Why do we sit still? assemble yourselves, and let us enter into the fortified cities, and let us be silent there; for the LORD our God hath put us to silence, and given us poison-water to drink; because we have sinned against the LORD.

15 We hoped for peace, but no happiness is here; for a time of cure, and behold here is terror."

16 From Dan was heard the snorting of his horses; at the sound of the neighing of his war-steeds trembleth the whole land: and they are come, and devour the land, and all that filleth it; the city, and those that dwell therein.

17 For, behold, I will send out against you serpents, basilisks, for which there is no charm, and they shall bite you, saith the LORD.

[a] Rashi, "will he (God) not turn from the evil decree if he (the people) return?"

[b] The migratory birds always return at certain seasons.

[c] Redak; but Philippson, "Vainly laboured the vain style of the writers." Rashi, "It is for falsehood to make the false pen of the writers (of your prophets) who deceive you."

[d] Lit. "heirs;" here, "those that are heirs by force."

[e] Redak. Jonathan, "because I gave them laws from Sinai which they transgressed."

18 ¶ When[a] I would cheer myself up against sorrow, my heart within me is pained.

19 Behold (I hear) the voice of the complaint of the daughter of my people (coming) out of a far-off land: "Is the LORD not in Zion? is her king no more in her?" "Why have they provoked me to anger with their graven images, and with the vanities of the stranger?"

20 "The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and we are not yet helped."

21 Because of the breach of the daughter of my people am I broken: I am grieved; astonishment hath taken fast hold on me.

22 Is there no (more) balm in Gil'ad? or is no physician there? why then is there not placed a plaster (on the wound of) the daughter of my people?[b]

23[c] ¶ Oh that one would make my head water, and my eyes a fountain of tears, that I might weep day and night for the slain of the daughters of my people!

CHAPTER IX.

1 Oh that one would place me in the wilderness in a lodging-place of wayfaring men, that I might leave my people, and go from them! for all of them are adulterers, a band of traitors.

2 And they bend their tongues, their bow of falsehood, and not for the truth are they valiant in the land; for from evil to evil do they proceed, and me they know not, saith the LORD.

3 ¶ Take ye heed every one of his neighbour, and on any brother place ye no reliance; for every brother will surely supplant, and every neighbour will go about as a talebearer.

4 And they will deceive every one his neighbour, and the truth will they not speak: they have taught their tongue to speak falsehood, they weary themselves to commit iniquity.

5 Thy habitation is in the midst of deceit: through deceit they refuse to know me, saith the LORD.

6 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the LORD of hosts, Behold, I will melt them, and probe them; for how (else) shall I do because of the daughter of my people?

7 A murderous[d] arrow is their tongue; (every one) speaketh deceit: with his mouth speaketh he peaceably to his neighbour, but in his heart[e] he layeth wait[f] for him.

8 Shall I not for these things inflict punishment on them? saith the LORD: or shall not on a nation such as this my soul be avenged?

9 ¶ For[g] the mountains will I take up a weeping and wailing, and for the habitations[h] of the wilderness a lamentation; because they are burnt up, so that no man can pass through them; and they hear not the voice of the cattle: both the fowls of the heavens and the beasts are fled; they are gone away.

10 And I will change Jerusalem into heaps of ruins, a dwelling for monsters; and the cities of Judah will I make desolate, without an inhabitant.

11 ¶ Who is the wise man, that may understand this? and who is he to whom the mouth of the LORD hath spoken, that he may declare it: for what is the land destroyed, burnt up like the wilderness, without one that passeth through?

12 ¶ And the LORD said, Because they forsook my law which I had set before them, and hearkened not to my voice, and walked not therein;

13 But have walked after the stubbornness of their own heart, and after the Be'alim, which their fathers had taught them.

14 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Behold, I will feed them—this people, with wormwood, and give them poison-water to drink.

15 And I will scatter them among the nations, whom neither they nor their fathers have known: and I will send out after them the sword, till I have consumed them.

16 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, Consider it well, and call for the mourning

[a] The words of the prophet, who deplores the sorrow of his people: he finds no relief, no cheerfulness, because the first evils are past, as more are coming. So Rashi. But others, "Though he should say, the punishment was deserved, still their complaint pains his heart."

women,[a] that they may come; and send for the women skilled in lament,[b] that they may come;

17 And let them make haste, and take up for us a lamentation, that our eyes may run down with tears, and our eyelids drop down water.

18 For a voice of wailing is heard out of Zion, How are we wasted! we are greatly ashamed; because we have forsaken the land, because they have cast down[c] our dwellings.

19 For hear, O ye women, the word of the LORD, and let your ear perceive the word of his mouth, and teach your daughters wailing, and every one her neighbour lamentation.

20 For death is come up through our windows, is entered into our palaces; to cut off the children from the street, the young men from the open places.

21 Speak, Thus saith the LORD, Yea, the carcasses of men shall lie as dung upon the open field, and as the sheaves (left) after the harvestman, with none to gather them.

22 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, Let not the wise glorify himself in his wisdom, neither let the mighty man glorify himself in his might, let not the rich glorify himself in his riches;

23 But let him that glorifieth himself glory in this, that he understandeth and knoweth me, that I am the LORD who exercise kindness, justice, and righteousness, on the earth; for[d] in these things I delight, saith the LORD.

24 ¶ Behold, days are coming, saith the LORD, that I will send punishment on all the circumcised who are (yet) uncircumcised;[e]

25 On Egypt, and on Judah, and on Edom, and on the children of 'Ammon, and on Moäb, and all who have the locks of their hair cut off round[f] that dwell in the wilderness; for all these nations are uncircumcised, and all the house of Israel are uncircumcised in the heart.

CHAPTER X.

1 ¶ Hear ye the word which the LORD hath spoken concerning you, O house of Israel:

2 Thus hath said the LORD, Do not habituate yourselves on the way of the nations, and at the signs of the heavens be ye not dismayed; although the nations should be dismayed at them.

3 For the statutes of these people concern what is vanity; for it is but a tree which a man hath cut out of a forest, the work of the hands of the workman, with the axe.

4 With silver and with gold do they ornament it; with nails and with hammers do they fasten it, that it move not from its place.

5 As a wrought-out palm-like[g] column are they, and cannot speak; they must needs be borne, because they cannot step along. Be not afraid of them; for they cannot do any harm, so also to do any good is not in them.

6 ¶ Forasmuch as there is none like unto thee, O LORD: thou (alone) art great, and great is thy name in might.

7 Who would not fear thee, O King of the nations? for to thee doth it appertain; because among all the wise men of the nations, and in all their kingdoms, (they say) there is none like unto thee.

8 But at once[h] shall they be shown to be brutish and foolish: it is a doctrine of vanities, it concerneth but wood.

9 The beaten out silver is brought from Tharshish, and gold from Uphaz, the work of the workman, and of the hands of the goldsmith:[i] blue and purple is their clothing; the work of skilful men are they all.

10 But the LORD God is the TRUTH, he is the living God, and the everlasting king: at his wrath the earth shall quake, and nations cannot endure his indignation.

[g] Philippson. Rashi, "till they be as high as a palm." In the East the columns frequently represent palm-trees.

[h] Rashi, "through one thing," "they shall be corrected for their wooden idol." Philippson renders ובאחת "in their union."

[i] Lit. "melter," because he works by melting his metals

11 ¶ Thus[a] shall ye say unto them, The gods that have not made the heavens and the earth, shall perish away from the earth, and from under these heavens.

12 ¶ He[b] made the earth by his power, he established the world by his wisdom, and by his understanding he stretched out the heavens.

13 At[c] the sound when he giveth a multitude of waters in the heavens, and causeth clouds to ascend from the ends of the earth; when he maketh lightnings with rain, and bringeth forth the wind out of his treasures:

14 Then standeth every man as brutish without knowledge; ashamed is every goldsmith because of the graven image; for falsehood is his molten work, and there is no breath therein.

15 They are vanity, the work of deception; in the time of their punishment shall they vanish.

16 Not like these is the portion of Jacob; for he is the former of all things; and Israel is the tribe of his inheritance: The LORD of hosts is his name.

17 ¶ Gather up thy wares from the ground, O inhabitress of the beleagured city.

18 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD, Behold, I will cast forth as with a sling the inhabitants of the land at this time, and I will enclose them, in order that they[d] may find them.

19 ¶ Wo is me for my breach! my wound is painful; but I thought, This is but pain, and I shall be able to bear it.

20 (But now) my tent is laid waste, and all my cords are torn asunder; my children are gone away from me, and they are not (here); there is no one to stretch forth my tent any more, and to set up my curtains.

21 For the shepherds were brutish, and the LORD had they not sought; therefore have they not prospered, and all their flocks are scattered.

22 Behold, the noise of the report is come, and a great commotion out of the north country, to render the cities of Judah desolate, a dwelling for monsters.

23 I know, O LORD, that the way of man is not in his own power: it is not in man that passeth away to direct his own steps.

24 Correct me, O LORD, but with justice; not in thy anger, lest thou bring me to nothing.

25 Pour out thy fury over the nations that know thee not, and over the families that have not called on thy name; for they have eaten up Jacob, and devoured him, and consumed him, and have made his dwelling desolate.

CHAPTER XI.

1 ¶ The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying,

2 Hear ye the words of this covenant, and speak unto the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem;

3 And say thou unto them, Thus hath said the LORD God of Israel, Cursed be the man that hearkeneth not to the words of this covenant,

4 Which I commanded your fathers on the day that I brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, out of the iron furnace,[e] saying, Hearken to my voice, and do the same, in accordance with all which I may command you; and so shall ye be to me for a people, and I will be to you for a God;

5 In order that I may fulfil the oath which I have sworn unto your fathers, to give unto them a land flowing with milk and honey, as it is this day. And I answered, and said, So be it,[f] O LORD.

6 ¶ Then said the LORD unto me, Proclaim all these words in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem, saying, Hear ye the words of this covenant, and do them.

7 For I earnestly warned your fathers on the day that I brought them up out of the land of Egypt even until this day, sending out early and warning, saying, Hearken to my voice;

8 Yet they hearkened not, and inclined not their ear, but walked every one in the stubbornness[g] of their evil heart: therefore did I bring over them all the words of this cove-

[a] This verse (x. 11) is in the Chaldean language, and is, according to Jonathan, a part of a letter sent by Jeremiah to the exiles of Babylon, giving them the words they should use to reply to the heathens, when asked to worship their idols.

[b] In continuation of verse 10.

[c] Philippson, after Rashi; making verse 14 the sequel of 13. הכין is given by Zunz with "rushing noise."

[d] i. e. The enemies; but Rashi, "I will distress them that they may find (the reward of their deeds)."

[e] כור rendered "crucible" in Isaiah xlviii. 10.

[f] Heb. amen.

[g] Eng. ver. "imagination."

nant, which I commanded them to do; but which they did not.

9 ¶ And the LORD said unto me, A conspiracy hath been found among the men of Judah, and among the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

10 They are returned[a] again to the iniquities of their earlier forefathers, who had refused to hearken to my words; and they themselves are (also) gone after other gods to serve them: the house of Israel and the house of Judah have broken my covenant which I made with their fathers.

11 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the LORD, Behold, I will bring an evil upon them, from which they shall not be able to rid themselves;[b] and they will cry unto me, but I will not hearken unto them.

12 Then let the cities of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem go, and cry unto the gods unto whom they offer incense; but they shall not save them in the least in the time of their distress.

13 For equal to the number of thy cities were thy gods, O Judah; and equal to the number of the streets of Jerusalem have ye set up altars to the disgraceful idol, altars, to burn incense unto Ba'al.

14 ¶ But thou—thou must not pray in behalf of this people, neither lift up in their behalf entreaty or prayer; for I will not hear at the time that they call unto me, because of their distress.

15 ¶ What hath my beloved to do in my house, while she executeth the evil counsel of so many (sinners)? Yea, the holy flesh passeth away from thee; for even with thy wickedness, thou rejoicest still.[c]

16 An ever-green olive-tree, beautiful in fruit and form, did the LORD call thy name: with the noise of a great tumult hath he kindled fire around it, and they break off its branches.

17 And the LORD of hosts, that planted thee, hath decreed evil against thee; on account of the wickedness of the house of Israel and of the house of Judah, which they have done against themselves, to provoke me to anger in offering incense unto Ba'al.

18 ¶ And the LORD hath given me knowledge of it, and I know it: then didst thou let me see their doings.

19 But I was like a sheep[d] or an ox that is brought to the slaughter; and I knew not that they had devised devices against me, "Let[e] us destroy the tree with its fruit, and let us cut him off from the land of the living, that his name may not be remembered any more."

20 ¶ But, O LORD of hosts, that judgest righteously, that triest the reins and the heart, let me see thy vengeance on them; for unto thee have I intrusted[f] my cause.

21 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the LORD concerning the men of 'Anathoth, that seek thy life, saying, "Thou shalt not prophesy in the name of the LORD, that thou mayest not die by our hand:"

22 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the LORD of hosts, Behold, I will inflict punishment on them: the young men shall die by the sword; their sons and their daughters shall die by the famine;

23 And no remnant shall remain of them; for I will bring evil upon the men of 'Anathoth, in the year of their punishment.

CHAPTER XII.

1 (Too) righteous art thou, O LORD, that I could plead with thee; yet must I speak of (the principles of) justice with thee: Wherefore is the way of the wicked happy? do all those prosper that deal treacherously?

[a] A great reformation had taken place in the reign of Josiah; but, under the reign of his son and successors, they turned back again to idolatry, and became worse than ever.

[b] Heb. "go forth out of."

[c] This very difficult verse has been given after Rashi; who takes the beloved to be "Israel," who are also spoken of as she and thou, (in the feminine,) a change of person not unusual with the prophets. Philippson understands by the beloved the "prophet," who was ordered not to pray for the people, and is told he has no business in God's house after the people have so defiled it. Rashi takes "the holy flesh" to mean circumcision, which it is alleged they had neglected. Redak applies it to the sacrifices, and it then means, "the sacrifices pass away uselessly," because while sinning the Israelites rejoiced. Others take בשר to mean "man," hence בשר קדש "the holy men" who had ceased to exist. Philippson so translates: "What hath my beloved in my house, where so many perform scandalous deeds? The holy flesh passeth by before thee; for at thy wickedness, there thou rejoicest still."

[d] Zunz, "harmless lamb." Jonathan, "a chosen lamb." Our version, "sheep or ox," is after Rashi and Redak.

[e] These are the words of the resolve against Jeremiah.

[f] Lit. "laid open."

2 Thou hast planted them; they have also taken root; they grow; they also bring forth fruit: thou art near in their mouth, and far from their mind.[a]

3 But thou, O LORD, knowest me; thou seest me, and probest my heart toward thee: set them apart like sheep for the slaughter, and destine them for the day of slaying.

4 ¶ How long shall the land mourn, and the herb of all the field wither? Because of the wickedness of those that dwell therein are wholly removed the beasts and the birds; because they said, He will not see our last end.

5 If thou hast run with the footmen, and they have wearied thee, how then canst thou contend with the horses? and if in the land of peace, (wherein) thou trustedst, (they wearied thee,)[b] how then wilt thou do in the swelling of the Jordan?

6 For even thy brethren, and the house of thy father,—even they have dealt treacherously with thee; yea, even they have called forth a crowd of men[c] after thee: believe them not, though they speak kindly unto thee.

7 ¶ I have forsaken my house, I have abandoned my heritage; I have given up the most dearly beloved of my soul into the hand of her enemies.

8 My heritage is become unto me as a lion in the forest; it sent forth its voice against me: therefore do I hate it.

9 Is my heritage become unto me as a bird of prey stained with blood?[d] so that the birds of prey are all around it? Come ye, assemble all the beasts of the field, bring them hither to devour.

10 Many shepherds have destroyed my vineyard, they have trodden under foot my field, they have rendered my pleasant field a desolate wilderness.

11 They have made it a desert, and being desolate it mourneth before me: the whole land is made desolate, because no man laid it to heart.

12 Over all the mountain-peaks in the wilderness did the destroyers come; for the sword of the LORD devoureth from the one end of the land even to the other end of the land: there is no peace to any flesh.

13 ¶ They have sown wheat, but they reap thorns; they have put themselves to pain, (but) have no profit: be therefore ashamed of your products, because of the fierce anger of the LORD.

14 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD against all my bad neighbours, that touch[e] the inheritance which I have caused my people Israel to inherit, Behold, I will pluck them out of their land, and the house of Judah will I pluck out from the midst of them.

15 And it shall come to pass, that, after I have plucked them out, I will again[f] have mercy on them, and will restore them, every man to his heritage, and every man to his land.

16 And it shall come to pass, if they will truly learn the ways of my people, to swear by my name, As the LORD liveth; as they had taught my people to swear by Ba'al: that they shall then be built up in the midst of my people.

17 But if they will not hearken, then will I pluck out that nation, plucking out and exterminating (them), saith the LORD.

CHAPTER XIII.

1 ¶ Thus said the LORD unto me, Go and buy thee a linen girdle, and put it around thy loins, and lay it not in water.

2 So I bought the girdle, according to the word of the LORD, and put it around my loins.

3 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me the second time, saying,

4 Take the girdle that thou hast bought, which is around thy loins; and arise, go to the Euphrates, and hide it there in a cleft of the rock.

5 So I went, and hid it by the Euphrates, as the LORD had commanded me.

6 ¶ And it came to pass at the end of many days, that the LORD said unto me, Arise, go to the Euphrates, and take from there the girdle, which I commanded thee to hide there.

[a] Zunz. Lit. "reins."

[b] After Rashi; but others, "and in a land of peace thou seekest security, what then wilt thou do against the pride of the Jordan?" which last phrase Rashi, after Jonathan, explains to be the wild animals, lions and tigers, that are found there, figurative for the chiefs of Judah.

[c] Rashi. Others, "with a full voice," i. e. loudly.

[d] Others take צבוע not as Rashi, stained or painted with blood, but as signifying the hyæna, "the striped" or "painted beast."

[e] i. e. "Lay violent hands on," &c.

[f] Lit. "I will return and have mercy."

7 And I went to the Euphrates, and dug, and took the girdle from the place where I had hidden it: and, behold, the girdle was spoiled, it was useful for nothing.

8 ¶ Then came the word of the LORD unto me, saying,

9 Thus hath said the LORD, After this manner will I destroy the pride of Judah, and the pride of Jerusalem, which is great.

10 And this bad people, who refuse to hearken to my words, who walk in the stubbornness of their heart, and have followed other gods, to serve them, and to bow down to them, shall even be as this girdle which is useful for nothing.

11 For as the girdle cleaveth to the loins of a man, so had I caused to cleave unto me all the house of Israel and all the house of Judah, saith the LORD,—to become unto me a people, and (to be) for a name, and for praise, and for honour; but they would not hear.

12 Therefore shalt thou say unto them this word, Thus hath said the LORD the God of Israel, Every bottle shall be filled with wine: and when they will say unto thee, Do we not know full well that every bottle shall be filled with wine?

13 ¶ Then shalt thou say unto them, Thus hath said the LORD, Behold, I will fill all the inhabitants of this land, even the kings that sit after David upon his throne, and the priests, and the prophets, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, with drunkenness.

14 And I will dash them one against the other, even the fathers and the sons together, saith the LORD: I will not pity, nor spare, nor have mercy, so as not to destroy them.

15 Hear ye, and bend your ear: be not proud; for the LORD hath spoken.

16 Give unto the LORD your God glory, before he cause darkness, and before your feet strike upon the mountains of twilight, and (where), while ye look for light, he turn it into the shadow of death, and change it into gross darkness.

17 But if ye will not hear it, my soul shall weep in secret places because of (your) pride; and my eye shall weep sorely, and run down with tears, because the flock of the LORD is driven away captive.

18 ¶ Say unto the king and to the queen-mother,[a] Sit down very lowly; for sunk down are your head-attires, the crown of your ornament.

19 The cities of the south are shut up, and there is no one to open them: Judah is carried away into exile altogether, it is carried into exile completely.[b]

20 ¶ Lift up your eyes, and see those that are coming from the north: where is the flock that was given thee, thy splendid flock?

21 What wilt thou say when he will punish thee? since thou hast accustomed[c] them to be over thee captains, and chiefs? shall not pangs seize upon thee, as on a woman in travail?

22 And if thou wilt say in thy heart, Wherefore come these things upon me? For the greatness of thy iniquity are thy skirts laid open, thy heels are made bare violently.

23 Can the Ethiopian change his skin, or the leopard his spots? (then) may ye also do good, that are accustomed to do evil.

24 Therefore will I scatter them as the stubble that passeth away before the wind of the wilderness.

25 This is thy lot, the portion of thy measures from me, saith the LORD; because thou hast forgotten me, and trusted in falsehood.

26 Therefore do I also strip up thy skirts over thy face, that thy shame may be seen.

27 Thy adulteries and thy loud shoutings,[d] the lewdness of thy incest, thy abominations on the hills in the fields have I seen. Wo unto thee, O Jerusalem! thou wilt not be made clean after ever so long a time.

CHAPTER XIV.

1 ¶ The word of the LORD that came to Jeremiah concerning the drought.

[a] Rashi, who refers it to Jehoyachin. Philippson translates it in the same way, but supposes that Josiah and his mother are meant. Others, "queen."

[b] Rashi, "without resistance," "peaceably." Jonathan, "in recompense of its sins." The difficulty is in the word שלוכים, which can be rendered as an adverb, "completely," or as derived from שלום shalom, "peace," or שלום shillum, "recompense."

[c] The prophet refers to the frequent calls for foreign aid, by which the enemies had been taught to regard themselves as protectors and chiefs of Judah; wherefore the Israelites had no cause to complain of the ultimate fatal result of their wicked policy.

[d] Lit. "neighings" (of horses,) i. e. the vacant shout of sinful persons in their pretended forgetfulness of duty.

2 Judah mourneth, and her gates languish; they lie grieved on the ground; and the distressed cry of Jerusalem ascendeth upward.

3 And their nobles have sent out their subordinates for water: they come to the pits, they find no water; they return with their vessels empty; they are ashamed and confounded, and cover[a] their head.

4 Because of the ground which is cracked open,[b] since there hath been no rain in the land, are the ploughmen ashamed, they cover their head.

5 Yea, the hind also bringeth forth her young in the field, and forsaketh (them), because there is no grass.

6 And the wild asses stand on the mountain-tops, they snuff up the wind like serpents: their eyes fail, because there are no herbs.

7 If our iniquities testify against us, O LORD, do thou act for the sake of thy name; for our backslidings are many; against thee have we sinned.

8 O thou hope of Israel, his saviour in time of trouble, why shouldst thou be as a stranger in the land, and as a wayfarer that turneth aside to lodge for a night?

9 Why shouldst thou be as a man that is surprised,[c] as a mighty man that cannot save? yet thou art in the midst of us, O LORD, and we are called by thy name: abandon us not.

10 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD unto this people, Thus have they loved to wander about, their feet have they not restrained: therefore the LORD doth not receive them in favour; now will he remember their iniquity, and will punish their sins.

11 ¶ Then said the LORD unto me, Pray not in behalf of this people for their good.

12 When they fast, I will not hear their entreaty; and when they offer burnt-offering and meat-offering, I will not receive them in favour; but by the sword, and by the famine, and by the pestilence, will I make an end of them.

13 Then said I, Ah, Lord Eternal! behold, the prophets say unto them, Ye shall not see the sword, neither shall ye have famine; but a permanent peace will I give you in this place.

14 ¶ Then said the LORD unto me, Falsehood do the prophets prophesy in my name: I have not sent them, neither have I commanded them, neither have I spoken unto them: a vision of falsehood, and divination, and idolatrous folly,[d] and the deceit of their heart do they prophesy unto you.

15 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the LORD concerning the prophets that prophesy in my name, when I have not sent them, while they say, Sword and famine shall not come in this land: By the sword and by the famine shall these prophets come to their end.

16 And the people to whom they prophesy shall lie cast down in the streets of Jerusalem by means of the famine and the sword; and they shall have none to bury them, them, their wives, and their sons, and their daughters; for I will pour out their wickedness over them.

17 But thou shalt say unto them this word, My eyes shall run down with tears night and day, and they shall not cease; for with a great breach is the virgin-daughter of my people broken, with a very painful blow.

18 If I go forth into the field, behold, there are the slain with the sword! and if I enter into the city, behold, there are those that are sick with famine! for both the prophet and the priest travel round[e] into a land that they know not.

19 ¶ Hast thou entirely rejected Judah? or hath thy soul loathing on Zion? why hast thou smitten us, so that there is no healing for us? we hoped for peace, and there is no good; and for the time of healing, and behold, there is terror!

20 We know, O LORD, our wickedness, the iniquity of our fathers; for we have sinned against thee.

21 Do not cast us off, for the sake of thy name, do not disgrace the throne of thy glory: remember, break not thy covenant with us.

22 Are there any among the vanities of the nations those that bestow rain? or can the heavens give forth showers? Behold,

[a] As a sign of grief.

[b] Redak, "burst open from the drought." Eng. ver. "chapt." The prophet speaks of the desolation caused by the want of rain, which caused the earth to crack from drought.

[c] Rashi, "wearied."

[d] Redak, "vanity."

[e] i. e. Go into exile; but Rashi, "to seek for assistance."

thou art this,[a] O LORD our God, and we will hope in thee; for thou hast done all these things.

CHAPTER XV.

1 ¶ And the LORD said unto me, If Moses and Samuel were to stand before me, my favour[b] would (still) not be toward this people: send them away out of my sight, that they may go forth.

2 And it shall come to pass, if they should say unto thee, Whither shall we go forth? that thou shalt say unto them, Thus hath said the LORD, Such as are destined to death, to death; and such as are destined to the sword, to the sword; and such as are destined to famine, to famine; and such as are destined to captivity, to captivity.

3 And I will appoint over them four species,[c] saith the LORD: The sword to slay, and the dogs to drag away, and the fowls of the heaven, and the beasts of the earth, to devour and to destroy.

4 And I will cause them to become a horror[d] unto all the kingdoms of the earth, on account of Menasseh the son of Hezekiah the king of Judah, because of what he did in Jerusalem.

5 For who will have pity upon thee, O Jerusalem? or who will condole[e] with thee? or who will go aside to ask after thy welfare?

6 Thou hast indeed forsaken me, saith the LORD, thou art gone backward; therefore do I stretch out my hand against thee, and destroy thee: I am weary with repenting.[f]

7 And I winnow them with a fan in the gates of the land: I make childless, I annihilate my people, (since) from their ways they have not turned away.

8 Their widows are more numerous before me than the sand of the seas: I bring unto them, over the mothers of the young men, a waster at noonday; I cause to fall upon her suddenly the enemy[g] with (his) terrors.

9 She that had born seven children fadeth away; she breatheth out her soul, her sun is set while it is yet day; she is made ashamed and put to the blush:—and their residue will I give up to the sword before their enemies, saith the LORD.

10 ¶ Wo is me, my mother, that thou hast born me, a man of contention and a man of strife to the whole land! I have not lent, nor have men lent to me: (yet) every one of them curseth me.

11 The LORD said, Truly I will release thee for (thy) good; truly I will cause the enemy to meet[h] thee in the time of distress and in the time of affliction.

12 Can iron break in pieces[i] the northern iron and copper?

13 Thy[k] wealth and thy treasures will I give up as spoil without price, and this for all thy sins, even in all thy borders.

14 And I will cause them[l] to pass over with thy enemies into a land which thou knowest not; for a fire is kindled in my anger, over you shall it burn.

15 ¶ Thou well knowest it, O LORD! remember me, and think of me, and avenge me on my persecutors; not according to thy long-suffering act thou for me: know, that for thy sake I have borne shame.

16 When thy words were made manifest to me, then I greedily received them;[m] and thy word became unto me the gladness and joy of my heart; for thy name is called upon me, O LORD God of hosts.

17 I sat not in the assembly of the mirthful, and was rejoiced; because of thy inspiration I sat solitary; for thou hadst filled me with indignation.

18 Why is my pain perpetual, and my wound incurable? it refuseth to be healed:

[a] Redak, "Art thou not he that givest rain?—therefore will we," &c. [b] Rashi. Lit. "soul."

[c] Heb. "families," i. e. four means of punishment.

[d] Philippson, "And I give them up to ill usage," &c

[e] Rashi, "lament for." Zunz, "show sympathy."

[f] Philippson, "of forgiving." Zunz, "of having mercy."

[g] Rashi and Joseph Kimchi. Rabbi Jonah, "tumult." Jonathan renders בַּחוּר "company." Others, "upon the assemblage of young men;" but Rashi renders it "mother-city," i. e. Jerusalem.

[h] Rashi, "entreat," and explains it in two ways; first, hat the Israelites (who are represented as the personal enemies of the prophet) shall ask him to pray for them in their distress, or that Nebuzaraddan should request him to do as he pleased. (See Jer. xl. 4.)

[i] Can ordinary iron, though hard and strong in itself, break that which is of a much stronger kind, and well tempered? But Philippson, "Can men break in pieces iron, iron of the north, and brass?" Eng. ver. has for "brass," "steel."

[k] i. e. Spoken to Israel.

[l] Redak, "I will cause thee to pass over to thy enemies."

[m] Lit. "Thy words were found, and I ate them."

it is[a] truly become unto me as a deceptive spring, as waters that are not reliable.

19 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the LORD, If thou return, and I bring thee back again, then shalt thou stand before me; and if thou bring forth the precious from the vile, thou shalt be as my mouth: these shall return unto thee; but thou shalt not return unto them.[b]

20 And I will make thee unto this people as a fortified brazen wall; and they will fight against thee, but they shall not prevail against thee; for I am with thee to save thee and to deliver thee, saith the LORD.

21 And I will deliver thee out of the hand of the wicked, and I will redeem thee out of the grasp of the tyrants.

CHAPTER XVI.

1 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Thou shalt not take thyself a wife, neither shalt thou have sons or daughters in this place.

3 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD concerning the sons and concerning the daughters that are born in this place, and concerning their mothers that bear them, and concerning their fathers that beget them in this land:

4 A death through diseases of famine[c] shall they die; they shall not be lamented for; nor shall they be buried; for dung upon the face of the earth shall they be: and by the sword and by famine shall they come to their end; and their carcasses shall be for food unto the fowls of heaven, and unto the beasts of the earth.

5 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD, Enter not into the house of mourning, neither go to lament nor to condole with them; for I have taken away my peace from this people, saith the LORD, yea, kindness and mercy.

6 And both the great and the small shall die in this land,—they shall not be buried, and men shall not lament for them, nor cut themselves, nor make themselves bald for them;[d]

7 Nor shall they break bread for them at their mourning, to comfort them for the dead; nor shall they give them to drink the cup of consolation for their father and for their mother.

8 And into the house of feasting shalt thou not enter, to sit with them, to eat and to drink.

9 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Behold, I will cause to cease out of this place before your eyes, and in your days, the voice of gladness, and the voice of joy, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride.

10 And it shall come to pass, when thou shalt tell this people all these words, and they should say unto thee, Wherefore hath the LORD spoken against us all this great evil? and what is our iniquity? and what is our sin that we have committed against the LORD our God?

11 That thou shalt say unto them, Because your fathers forsook me, saith the LORD, and walked after other gods, and served them, and bowed down unto them, and me they forsook, and my law they kept not;

12 And ye act worse than your fathers; for, behold, ye walk every one after the stubbornness of his evil heart, so as not to hearken unto me;

13 Therefore will I hurl you out of this land into the land of which ye had no knowledge, neither ye nor your fathers; and ye will serve there other[e] gods by day and by night; so that I will not grant you any favour.[f]

14 ¶ Therefore, behold, days are coming, saith the LORD,[g] when it shall not be said any more, As the LORD liveth, who hath brought up the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt;

15 But, As the LORD liveth, who hath brought up the children of Israel from the land of the north, and from all the countries whither he had driven them: and I will cause them to return unto their land which I have given unto their fathers.

[a] Rashi and others refer הָהִיה to God, and render, "thou art become." We have followed Zunz, who makes "the wound" the nominative of the verb in the third person feminine singular.

[b] Jonathan, "If thou wilt cause the wicked to return to be righteous, thou wilt fulfil the will of my word; they shall come to thy prophecy, but thou shalt not turn to go astray after them."

[c] Jonathan. Others, simply "diseases."

[d] See Deut. xiv. 1.

[e] Jonathan, "And ye shall serve there the nations who worship errors;" and so is this expression to be explained wherever it occurs in the Bible.

[f] Zunz, "respite," or "intermission from toil."

[g] Notwithstanding the terrible iniquity of Israel, and its frightful consequences, God will not break his covenant with them, but redeem and restore them again to his favour.

16 ¶ Behold, I will send for many fishermen, saith the LORD, and they shall fish them; and after that will I send for many hunters, and they shall hunt them from every mountain, and from every hill, and out of the clefts of the rocks.

17 For my eyes are directed upon all their ways, they are not hidden from my face, nor is their iniquity concealed from my eyes.

18 And (thus) will I pay them at the first their twofold iniquity and their sin; because they have defiled my land, filling my heritage with the carcasses of their detestable and abominable idols.

19 ¶ O LORD, my strength, and my fortress, and my refuge on the day of trouble, unto thee shall nations come from the ends of the earth, and say, Nothing but falsehood had our fathers inherited, vanity, wherein there is no profit.

20 How? can a man make unto himself gods, which are yet no gods?[a]

21 Therefore, behold, I will cause them to know, at this time will I cause them to know, my hand and my might: and they shall know that my name is The ETERNAL.

CHAPTER XVII.

1 ¶ The sin of Judah is written down with a pen of iron, with the point of a diamond: it is engraved upon the table of their heart, and on the horns of your altars.

2 Like[b] their remembrance of their children, so are (to them) their altars and their groves by (every) green tree upon the high hills.

3 O my mountain[c] in the field, thy substance, all thy treasures will I give up for spoil, thy high-places (reared) with sin, throughout all thy borders.

4 And thou[d] shalt be cast out, yea through thy own guilt, from thy heritage which I have given thee; and I will cause thee to serve thy enemies in a land which thou knowest not; for a fire have ye kindled in my anger, for ever shall it burn.

5 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, Cursed is the man that trusteth in man, and placeth on flesh his dependence,[e] while from the LORD his heart departeth.

6 And he shall be like a lonely tree in the desert, which feeleth not when the good cometh; but abideth in the parched places in the wilderness, in a salty land which cannot be inhabited.

7 ¶ Blessed is the man that trusteth in the LORD, and the LORD will be his trust.

8 And he shall be like a tree that is planted by the waters, and by a stream spreadeth out its roots, which feeleth not when heat cometh, but its leaf remaineth green; and in a year of drought it is undisturbed by care, and ceaseth not from yielding fruit.

9 Deceitful is the heart above all things, and sick: who can know it?

10 I the LORD search the heart, probe the reins: yea, to give unto every man according to his ways, according to the fruit of his deeds.

11 ¶ As a cuckoo[f] that sitteth on eggs which he hath not laid, so is he that getteth riches, and not by right: in the midst of his days shall he leave them, and at his end shall be called wicked.

12 A throne[g] of glory, exalted from the beginning, is the place of our sanctuary!

13 Hope of Israel, O LORD, all that forsake thee shall be made ashamed, and the backsliders among me shall be written down on the earth;[h] because they have forsaken the fountain of living waters, the LORD.

14 ¶ Heal me, O LORD, and I shall be healed: save me, and I shall be saved; for my praise art thou.

15 Behold, they say unto me, Where is the word of the LORD? let it come now.

16 As for me, I have not hastened to be a shepherd[i] to follow thee; and the woful day

[a] Zunz, "and are themselves no gods." Philippson, "these are no gods."

[b] Rashi; but Jonathan in connection with verse 1, "because their children remember their altars," &c.

[d] Rashi, "And thou wilt let rest thy land against thy will, and of thee will I take vengeance because of the land," &c. (See Lev. xxv. 2, xxvi. 3, 4, &c.)

[e] Lit. "maketh flesh his arm."

[f] Others, "partridge."

[g] Rashi regards this as an address to God, thus, "O throne," &c.

[h] Rashi expounds, "for the grave." Philippson, "in the sand;" i. e. given up to oblivion.

have I not longed for; thou knowest it: what came out of my lips was known before thee.

17 Be not a terror unto me: thou art my protection on the day of evil.

18 Let those be made ashamed that persecute me, but let not me be made ashamed; let them be dismayed, but let me not be dismayed: bring upon them the day of evil, and strike[a] them with a double breach.

19 ¶ Thus said the LORD unto me, Go and stand in the gate of the children of the people, whereby the kings of Judah usually enter, and by which they usually go out, and in all the gates of Jerusalem;

20 And say unto them, Hear ye the word of the LORD, ye kings of Judah, and all Judah, and all inhabitants of Jerusalem, that enter in by these gates:

21 Thus hath said the LORD, Take heed for your souls, and bear no burden on the sabbath-day, nor bring it in through the gates of Jerusalem;

22 Nor shall you carry forth a burden out of your houses on the sabbath-day, and no manner of work shall ye do, but hallow ye the sabbath-day, as I have commanded your fathers;

23 But they hearkened not, and inclined not their ear; and they made their neck stiff, so as not to hearken, and not to receive instruction.

24 And it shall come to pass, if ye will diligently hearken unto me, saith the LORD, so as to bring in no burden through the gates of this city on the sabbath-day, and to hallow the sabbath-day, so as to do no work thereon:

25 Then shall there enter through the gates of this city kings and princes sitting upon the throne of David, riding in chariots and on horses, they, and their princes, the men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem; and this city shall be inhabited for ever.

26 And there shall come from the cities of Judah, and from the environs of Jerusalem, and from the land of Benjamin, and from the lowlands, and from the mountain, and from the south, those that bring burnt-offerings, and sacrifices, and meat-offerings, and frankincense, and those that bring thanksgiving-offerings, unto the house of the LORD.

27 But if ye will not hearken unto me to hallow the sabbath-day, and not to bear a burden, and to enter in at the gates of Jerusalem on the sabbath-day: then will I kindle a fire in its gates, and it shall devour the palaces of Jerusalem, and it shall not be quenched.

CHAPTER XVIII.

1 ¶ The word which came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying,

2 Arise, and go down to the potter's house, and there will I let thee hear my words.

3 Then went I down to the potter's house, and, behold, he was doing work on the wheels.[b]

4 And the vessel that he was making became spoiled as (happeneth) with the clay in the hand of the potter; and he made again thereof another vessel, as it seemed good in the eyes of the potter to make it.

5 ¶ Then came the word of the LORD to me, saying,

6 Shall I not be able to do unto you as this potter, O house of Israel? saith the LORD. Behold, as the clay is in the potter's hand, so are ye in my hand, O house of Israel.

7 ¶ At one instant I speak concerning a nation, and concerning a kingdom, to root out, and to pull down, and to destroy it;

8 But should that nation, against whom I have spoken, return from their wrong-doing: then will I bethink me of the evil that I had thought to do unto them.

9 ¶ And at one instant I speak concerning a nation, and concerning a kingdom, to build and to plant it;

10 But should it do what is evil in my eyes, so as not to hearken to my voice: then nishment, because, as a good shepherd, I followed thee to ask mercy for them;"—to the end of the verse he gives, "was before thee to turn away thy wrath from them." Jonathan, "I did not delay with thy word to prophesy to them to bring them to thy fear." Zunz gives, כריקה אחרין "because I am devoted to thee."

[b] Rashi, "form" or "seat" used by the potters in the East, which is described by Rabbi Jonah and others as consisting of a pair of circular stones placed upon one another like mill-stones; of which the lower was immovable, while the upper turned on a spindle, or axis, and had its rotatory motion communicated to it by the foot of the potter sitting at his work, as we may learn from Ecclesiasticus xxxviii. 29, 30. On the top of this upper stone, which was flat, the clay was placed, which the potter, having given the stone the due velocity, shaped with his hands.

will I bethink me of the good, wherewith I had thought to benefit the same.

11 And now do say to the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, as followeth, Thus hath said the LORD, Behold, I form against you evil, and devise against you a device: do but return now every one from his evil way, and amend your ways and your deeds.

12 And they said, It is useless; for after our own thoughts will we walk, and we will every one do after the stubbornness of his evil heart.

13 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the LORD, Only ask among the nations, Who hath heard the like things? a very horrible act hath the virgin of Israel committed.

14 Doth the snow of Lebanon ever quit the rock of the field? or do the far-coming, cold, flowing waters ever fail?[a]

15 That my people have forgotten me, that they have burnt incense to false gods, and are made to stumble on their ways, the ancient beaten tracks, to walk in paths, on a road which is not levelled?

16 To make their land desolate, a perpetual derision:[b] every one that passeth thereby shall be astonished, and shake[c] his head.

17 Like an east wind will I scatter them before the enemy; with the back, and not the face, will I regard them[d] on the day of their calamity.

18 ¶ And they said, Come, and let us contrive devices against Jeremiah; for the law will not be lost from the priest, nor counsel from the wise, nor the word from the prophet. Come, and let us smite him with the tongue,[e] and let us not listen to any of his words.

19 Listen to me, O LORD, and hearken to the voice of those that contend with me.

20 Shall evil be recompensed instead of good, that they have dug a pit for my life? Remember my standing before thee to speak good concerning them, to cause thy wrath to turn away from them.

21 ¶ Therefore give up their children to the famine, and let their life ebb[f] out by means of the sword; and let their wives be bereaved of their children, and widows; and let their men be slain by death; their young men smitten by the sword in the battle.

22 Let a cry be heard from their houses, when thou bringest a troop over them suddenly; for they have dug a pit to catch me, and laid concealed snares for my feet.

23 Yet thou, LORD, knowest well all their counsel against me to (procure my) death: forgive not their iniquity, and let their sin not be blotted out from before thee; but let them be brought to stumbling before thee; in the time of thy anger deal thus with them.

CHAPTER XIX.

1 ¶ Thus said the LORD, Go and buy a bottle from a maker of earthenware, and (take) some of the elders of the people, and of the elders of the priests;

2 And go forth unto the valley of the son of Hinnom, which is by the entry of the gate Charsith,[g] and proclaim there the words that I will speak unto thee.

3 And say, Hear ye the word of the LORD, O kings of Judah, and inhabitants of Jerusalem, Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Behold, I will bring evil over this place, so that the ears of every one that heareth it shall tingle.

4 For the reason that they have forsaken me, and have defiled[h] this place, and have burnt incense in it unto other gods, which

[a] Philippson, nearly after Jonathan, with but few verbal changes; "the rock in the field," a proverbial expression for the rocks of Lebanon. Rashi and Redak, "Will a thirsty man leave the water that runneth from a rock in the fields, which cometh from the pure snow of Lebanon? or will he leave the living, cold, flowing water which hath been untasted hitherto by all men?" Zunz, "purified, cool water," after Menachem. According to our version, it is an appeal to inanimate nature, which never disobeys God; as Isa. i. 3, speaks of animals.

[b] Lit. "hissing;" i. e. in derision.

[c] Lit. "shake with."

[d] Rashi explains, "When they turn the back and not the face before the enemy will I see but not help them."

[e] Redak explains, "What do we lose by slaying him? for there are other priests, wise men, and prophets, who know the law, counsel, and prophesy." "With the tongue" is explained by Jonathan to mean, "to give false testimony against him."

[f] Redak and Rashi both render הגרם as "caused them to flow;" i. e. as regards the blood. Zunz, "hurl them into the power of the sword." Philippson, "surrender them."

[g] Jonathan translates thus, "dung-gate;" and Rashi adds, "where they used to cast the broken earthen vessels." Others, "sun-gate."

[h] Jonathan; lit. "estranged;" and Rashi, "they have made it a stranger before me."

they had not known, either they or their fathers, or the kings of Judah, and have filled this place with the blood of innocents;

5 And they have built the high-places of Ba'al, to burn their sons with fire as burnt-offerings unto Ba'al, which I had not commanded, nor spoken, and which had not come into my mind:

6 ¶ Therefore, behold, days are coming, saith the LORD, that this place shall no more be called The Thopheth, nor The valley of the son of Hinnom, but, The valley of slaughter.

7 And I will make void the counsel of Judah and Jerusalem in this place; and I will cause them to fall by the sword before their enemies, and by the hand of those that seek their life: and I will give their carcasses as food unto the fowls of the heaven, and unto the beasts of the earth.

8 And I will render this city desolate, and an (object of) derision: every one that passeth thereby shall be astonished and hiss because of all its plagues.

9 And I will cause them to eat the flesh of their sons and the flesh of their daughters, and they shall eat every one the flesh of his associate, in the siege and straitness, wherewith their enemies, and those that seek their life, shall distress them.

10 Then shalt thou break the bottle before the eyes of the men that are going with thee.

11 And thou shalt say unto them, Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, In this manner will I break this people and this city, as one breaketh a potter's vessel, that cannot be restored again; and in Thopheth shall they bury, for want of room to bury.

12 Thus will I do unto this place, saith the LORD, and to its inhabitants, and to make this city as Thopheth:[a]

13 And the houses of Jerusalem, and the houses of the kings of Judah, which are unclean, shall become as the place of the Thopheth, with[b] all the houses upon the roofs of which they have burnt incense to all the host of heaven, and have poured out drink-offerings to other gods.

14 ¶ Then came Jeremiah from the Thopheth, whither the LORD had sent him to prophesy; and he placed himself in the court of the house of the LORD; and said to all the people,

15 Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Behold, I will bring upon this city and upon all its towns all the evil that I have spoken against it; because they have hardened their neck, so as not to hear my words.

CHAPTER XX.

1 But when Pashchur the son of Immer the priest, who was chief superintendent in the house of the LORD, heard Jeremiah prophesying these words:

2 Then smote Pashchur Jeremiah the prophet, and put him in the stocks[c] that were in the upper gate of Benjamin, which was in the house of the LORD.

3 And it came to pass on the morrow, that Pashchur brought forth Jeremiah out of the stocks. And Jeremiah said unto him, Not Pashchur [Fulness of freedom] hath the LORD called thy name, but Magor-missabib [Terror all around].

4 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD, Behold, I will make thee a terror to thyself, and to all thy friends; and they shall fall by the sword of their enemies, and thy eyes shall see it; and all Judah will I give into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall lead them into exile to Babylon, and shall smite them with the sword.

5 And I will give up all the wealth[d] of this city, and all its acquisitions, and all its precious things; and all the treasures of the kings of Judah will I give into the hand of their enemies, who shall plunder them, and take them, and carry them away to Babylon.

6 And thou, Pashchur, and all the inhabitants of thy house, shall go into captivity; and to Babylon shalt thou come, and there thou shalt die, and there shalt thou be buried, thou, and all thy friends, to whom thou hast prophesied with falsehood.

7 ¶ Thou[e] didst persuade me, O LORD, and I

[a] Rashi, "Full of slain ones, as the Thopheth is where they slay the children unto Molech."

[b] Redak, "because," or "this is with respect to," &c.

[c] הכּוּהפּכת, from הפך, haphach, "to overturn, subvert, distort," generally denotes an overthrow, (Deut. xxix. 22,) and seems to signify here a sort of stocks, by which the limbs were distorted into uneasy postures. So Jonathan, כיפתא. But Rashi and others understand it as merely signifying a place of confinement, or house of correction.

[d] Rashi; lit. "strength," which results often from wealth.

[e] The prophet's address to God.

was persuaded; thou laidst thy (hand) strongly on me, and didst prevail: I am laughed at all the time, every one mocketh me.

8 For as often as I speak must I cry out, violence and wasting must I proclaim; because the word of the LORD is become unto me a disgrace, and a derision, all the time.

9 And I thought, I will not make mention of him, and I will not speak any more in his name. But it[a] became in my heart as a burning fire enclosed within my bones, and I was weary with enduring, and I could not overcome it.

10 For I heard the defaming of many, angry assemblies on every side, "Tell, and we will tell[b] of him." All the men who ought to seek my welfare, watch for my fall; saying, "Peradventure he may be enticed, and we shall prevail against him, and we will then take our revenge on him."

11 But the LORD is with me as a mighty powerful one; therefore my persecutors will stumble, and they will not prevail: they will be greatly ashamed, for they will not prosper; (it is) an everlasting confusion which will never be forgotten.

12 But, O LORD of hosts, that probest the righteous, seest the reins and the heart, let me see thy vengeance on them; for unto thee have I laid open my cause.

13 ¶ Sing unto the LORD, praise ye the LORD; for he hath delivered the soul of the needy from the hand of evil-doers.

14 ¶ Cursed be the day whereon I was born: the day on which my mother bore me shall not be blessed.

15 Cursed be the man who brought tidings to my father, saying, A man-child is born unto thee. How very glad did he make him!

16 And may that same man become like the cities which the LORD overthrew, and bethought himself not; and may he hear a cry of anguish in the morning, and a tumultuous noise at noontide;

17 Because I was not slain (as I escaped) from the womb; or that my mother might have become unto me my grave, and her womb have been affected with a perpetual pregnancy.

18 Wherefore was this that I came forth out of the womb to see trouble and sorrow, that my days should pass away in shame?

CHAPTER XXI.

1 ¶ The word which came unto Jeremiah from the LORD, when king Zedekiah sent unto him Pashchur the son of Malkiyah, and Zephanyah the son of Ma'asseyah the priest, saying,

2 Inquire, I pray thee, in our behalf of the LORD; for Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon maketh war against us: peradventure the LORD will deal with us according to all his wondrous deeds, so that he may withdraw from us.

3 ¶ Then said Jeremiah unto them, Thus shall ye say to Zedekiah:

4 Thus hath said the LORD the God of Israel, Behold, I will turn back the weapons of war that are in your hands, wherewith ye fight against the king of Babylon, and against the Chaldeans, who besiege you without the walls, and I will assemble them[c] into the midst of this city.

5 And I myself will fight against you with an outstretched hand and with a strong arm, and in anger, and in fury, and in great wrath.

6 And I will smite the inhabitants of this city, both man and beast: of a great pestilence shall they die.

7 And afterward, saith the LORD, will I give up Zedekiah the king of Judah, and his servants, and the people, and those that are left in this city from the pestilence, from the sword, and from the famine, into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar[d] the king of Babylon, and into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of those that seek their life: and he shall smite them with the edge of the sword; he will not spare them, nor have pity, nor have mercy.

8 And unto this people shalt thou say, Thus hath said the LORD, Behold, I set before you the way of life, and the way of death.

9 He that remaineth in this city shall die

[a] Rashi, "the prophecy."

[b] "We will testify falsely against him."—RASHI.

[c] i. e. The weapons of war, as they shall be useless outside of the walls, against the enemies. Others refer "them" to the Chaldeans, indicating that they shall take the city.

by the sword, or by the famine, or by the pestilence; but he that goeth out, and runneth away[a] to the Chaldeans that besiege you, shall remain alive, and his life shall be unto him as a booty.[b]

10 For I have set my face against this city for evil, and not for good, saith the LORD: into the hand of the king of Babylon shall it be given up, and he will burn it with fire.

11 And to the house of the king of Judah (say), Hear ye the word of the LORD:

12 O house of David, thus hath said the LORD, Exercise[c] justice on (every) morning, and deliver him that is robbed out of the hand of the oppressor; lest my fury go forth like fire, and burn so that none can quench it, because of the evil of your doings.

13 Behold, I am against thee, O inhabitress of the valley, (about) the rock of the plain, saith the LORD; who say, Who shall descend down against us? or who shall enter into our habitations?

14 But I will inflict punishment on you according to the fruit of your doings, saith the LORD: and I will kindle a fire in its forest, and it shall devour all its environs.

CHAPTER XXII.

1 ¶ Thus said the LORD, Go down to the house of the king of Judah, and speak there this word;

2 And thou shalt say, Hear the word of the LORD, O king of Judah, that sittest upon the throne of David, thou, and thy servants, and thy people that enter in by these gates:

3 Thus hath said the LORD, Execute ye justice and righteousness, and deliver him that is robbed out of the hand of the oppressor; and the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow shall ye not oppress,[d] and do them no violence, and shed no innocent blood in this place.

4 For if ye indeed will do this thing, then shall enter in through the gates of this house kings sitting after David upon his throne, riding in chariots and on horses, he, and his servants, and his people.

5 But if ye will not hear these words, then do I swear by myself, saith the LORD, that this house shall become a ruin.

6 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD concerning the house of the king of Judah, A Gil'ad (though) thou[e] art unto me, a summit of the Lebanon: yet I will surely change thee into a wilderness, cities which are not inhabited.

7 And I will make ready against thee destroyers, every one with his weapons: and they shall cut down the choice of thy cedars, and cast them into the fire.

8 And (when) many nations (then) pass by this city, they will say every man to his neighbour, Wherefore hath the LORD done the like unto this great city?

9 Then shall they say, Because they had forsaken the covenant of the LORD their God, and bowed down unto other gods, and served them.

10 ¶ Weep not for the dead, and do not bemoan him: weep sorely for him that goeth away; for he shall never return any more, and see the land of his birth.

11 For thus hath said the LORD respecting Shallum[f] the son of Josiah the king of Judah, who reigneth in the place of Josiah his father, who is gone forth out of this place, He shall never return thither any more;

12 But in the place whither they have led him into exile, there shall he die; but this land shall he not see any more.

13 ¶ Wo unto him that buildeth his house by unrighteousness, and his chambers by injustice; that maketh his neighbour work without wages, and giveth him not the reward for his labour;

14 That saith, I will build me a roomy[g] house, and ample[h] chambers, and cutteth himself out windows, and ceileth it with cedar, and painteth it with colours.[i]

[a] Lit. "falleth."

[b] Rashi, "As a man seizeth on some booty and goeth his way, so shall he have his life as a booty from death from among those who are slain."

[c] Lit. "judge."

[d] Rashi explains תנו, rendered in Lev. xxv. 17, with "overreach," as meaning, "vexing with words," as ibid. xix. 34.

[e] Philippson, "Thou who art unto me a Gil'ad, a summit of Lebanon—that I should have to make thee," &c.

[f] Shallum here mentioned is supposed by some to be Jehoächaz, who was carried after a reign of three months to Egypt, where he died; by others, Jechonyah, who was carried to Babylon after an equally short reign; and by others again, Zedekiah.

[g] Rashi, simply, "large;" lit. "of measures."

[h] Redak, "airy," but the sense is the same.

[i] Eng. ver. "vermilion;" but the actual meaning is very doubtful. Rashi gives, Sinople.

15 Shalt thou reign, because thou strivest to excel with cedar buildings? behold, thy father ate and drank, but he executed justice and righteousness: then was it well with him!

16 He judged the cause of the poor and needy; then was it well: is not this the proper knowledge of me? saith the LORD.

17 But thy eyes and thy heart are directed on nothing but upon thy own gain, and upon innocent blood to shed it, and upon oppression, and upon extortion, to practise them.

18 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the LORD concerning Jehoyakim the son of Josiah the king of Judah, They shall not lament for him, with, "Wo, my brother!" and, "Wo, sister!" they shall not lament for him, with "Wo, lord!" and, "Wo to his glory!"

19 With the burial of an ass shall he be buried, dragged about and cast forth beyond the gates of Jerusalem.

20 ¶ Ascend the Lebanon, and cry aloud; and let thy voice resound in Bashan; and cry aloud from 'Abarim;[a] for crushed are all thy lovers.

21 I spoke unto thee in thy prosperity; but thou saidst, I will not hear. This hath been thy manner[b] from thy very youth, that thou didst not hearken to my voice.

22 The wind shall scatter abroad all thy shepherds, and thy lovers shall go into captivity: surely then shalt thou be ashamed and confounded because of all thy wickedness.

23 O inhabitress of Lebanon, that makest thy nest in the cedars, how full[c] of grace wilt thou be when pangs come upon thee, the pain as of a woman in travail!

24 As I live, saith the LORD, though Conyahu the son of Jehoyakim the king of Judah were a signet upon my right hand, yet for a surety would I thence pluck thee;

25 And I will give thee into the hand of those that seek thy life, and into the hand of those of whom thou art afraid, and into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon, and into the hand of the Chaldeïns.

26 And I will hurl thee out, and thy mother that hath born thee, into another country, where ye were not born; and there shall ye die.

27 But to the land whitherward they direct their soul to return, thither shall they not return.

28 ¶ Is this man Conyahu a despised broken image? or a vessel without value?[d] wherefore are they hurled out, he and his seed, and are cast forth into a land which they know not?

29 O land, land, land! hear the word of the LORD.

30 Thus hath said the LORD, Write ye down this man as childless,[e] as a man that shall not prosper in his days; for no man of his seed shall succeed to sit upon the throne of David, and to rule any more in Judah.

CHAPTER XXIII.

1 ¶ Wo unto the shepherds that destroy and scatter the flocks of my pasture! saith the LORD.

2 Therefore thus hath said the LORD the God of Israel concerning the shepherds that feed my people, Ye have scattered my flocks, and driven them away, and have not taken care of them: now, behold, I will visit upon you the evil of your doings, saith the LORD.

3 And I will indeed gather the remnant of my flock together out of all the countries whither I have driven them; and I will bring them back again to their folds: and they shall be fruitful and multiply.

4 And I will raise up over them shepherds who shall feed them: and they shall fear no more, nor be dismayed, and none of them shall be missing, saith the LORD.

5 ¶ Behold, days are coming, saith the LORD, when I will raise up unto David a righteous sprout, and he shall reign as king, and prosper, and he shall execute justice and righteousness on the earth.

6 In his days shall Judah be helped, and Israel shall dwell in safety: and this is his

[b] Lit. "way."

[c] Ironical, meaning that when the time of affliction comes, the enemy will not regard the former glory; hence Philippson, "How pitiable!"

[d] Lit. "in which there is no pleasure."

name whereby he shall be called, THE LORD IS OUR[a] RIGHTEOUSNESS.

7 ¶ Therefore, behold, days are coming, saith the LORD, when they shall no more say, As the LORD liveth, who hath brought up the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt;

8 But, As the LORD liveth, who hath brought up and who hath led forth the seed of the house of Israel out of the north country, and out of all countries whither I had driven them: and they shall dwell in their own land.

9 ¶ To[b] the prophets—Broken is my heart within me; all my bones shake; I am like a drunken man, and like a person whom wine hath overcome, because of the LORD, and because[c] of his holy words.

10 For of adulterers is the land full; for because of false[a] swearing mourneth the land, dried up are the pastures in the wilderness; because their course was for evil, and their strength was for injustice.

11 For both prophet and priest are hypocrites: yea, in my own house have I found their wickedness, saith the LORD.

12 Therefore shall their way be unto them as slippery ways in the darkness; they shall be pushed forward, and fall thereon; for I will bring upon them evil, the year of their punishment, saith the LORD.

13 ¶ And on the prophets of Samaria have I seen absurdity: they prophesied by Ba'al, and misled my people Israel.

14 ¶ But on the prophets of Jerusalem have I seen a horrible thing; they commit adultery, and walk in falsehood; and they strengthen the hands of evil-doers, so that not one of these doth return from his wickedness: they are become unto me all of them as Sodom, and its inhabitants as Gomorrah.

15 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the LORD of hosts concerning the prophets, Behold, I will feed them with wormwood, and make them drink poison-water; for from the prophets of Jerusalem is hypocrisy gone forth over all the land.

16 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, Hearken not unto the words of the prophets that prophesy unto you, they bring you unto vanity: a vision of their own heart do they ever speak, not out of the mouth of the LORD.

17 They say indeed unto those that incense[c] me, The LORD hath spoken, Peace shall ye have: and unto every one that walketh in the stubbornness of his own heart, they said, There shall come no evil upon you.

18 For who hath stood in the secret counsel of the LORD, that he could perceive and hear his word? who hath listened to his word and heard it?

19 ¶ Behold, the storm-wind of the LORD is gone forth in fury, yea,[f] a whirling storm: upon the head of the wicked shall it fall grievously.

20 The anger of the LORD will not return, until he have executed, and until he have fulfilled the purposes of his heart: in the end of days shall ye understand this fully.

21 I had not sent these prophets, yet they ran: I had not spoken to them, yet they prophesied.

22 But if they had stood in my secret counsel, they should have announced my words to my people, and have caused them to turn back from their evil way, and from the wrongfulness of their doings.

23 ¶ Am I a God for those[g] near at hand, saith the LORD, and not a God for those who are afar off?

24 If a man should hide himself in secret places should I not then see him? saith the LORD. Do I not fill the heavens and the earth? saith the LORD.

25 I have heard what the prophets have said, that prophesy falsely in my name, saying, I have dreamt, I have dreamt.

26 How long shall[b] it be in the heart of the prophets that prophesy falsehood? yea,

[a] Rashi, "The LORD will justify us in the days of this one." See also the name of Jacob's altar, (Gen. xxxiii. 20;) and that of Moses, (Exod. xvii. 15,) &c.

[b] According to all the modern translators, לנבאים "To the prophets," forms a sort of address to the succeeding discourse; but Rashi and others, "Because of the (words of the) prophets my heart is broken," &c.

[c] Redak, "because the LORD is profaned," &c. by these prophets.

[d] Rashi. But others, "the curse."

[f] Rashi, "an abiding storm;" one that passeth but slowly away.

[g] Rashi.

[b] Rashi explains, "How long will they prophesy falsehood? do these false prophets have in their heart to accomplish their thoughts, as they think to," &c.

the prophets of the deceit of their own heart,—

27 (How long) do they think to cause my people to forget my name by their dreams which they relate every man to his neighbour, as their fathers forgot my name for the sake of Ba'al?

28 The prophet that hath had a dream, let him relate his dream; and he that hath received my word, let him speak my word of truth.[a] What hath the straw to do with the corn?[b] saith the LORD.

29 Is not thus my word, like the fire? saith the LORD, and like a hammer that shivereth the rock?

30 Therefore, behold, I am against the prophets, saith the LORD, that steal my words every one from his neighbour.

31 Behold, I am against the prophets, saith the LORD, that use their own word,[c] and say, (The LORD) saith.

32 Behold, I am against those that prophesy with false dreams, saith the LORD, and do relate them, and mislead my people by their falsehoods, and by their vain boasting:[d] while I have not sent them, nor commanded them; and they cannot bring the least profit to this people, saith the LORD.

33 And if this people, or the prophet, or a priest, should ask thee, saying, What is the message[e] of the LORD? then shalt thou say unto them, Because[f] of this "What is the message?" will I even cast you off, saith the LORD.

34 And as for the prophet, and the priest, and the people, that will say, "A message of the LORD," I will even inflict punishment on that man and on his house.

35 Thus shall ye say every one to his neighbour, and every one to his brother, What hath the LORD answered? and, What hath the LORD spoken?

36 But "A message of the LORD" shall ye not mention any more; for the message cometh indeed to the man of his (prophetic) word;[g] but ye pervert the words of the living God, of the LORD of hosts our God.

37 Thus shalt thou say to the prophet, What hath the LORD answered thee? and, What hath the LORD spoken?

38 But if ye will say, "A message of the LORD," then thus saith the LORD, Because ye say this word, "A message of the LORD," and I have sent unto you, saying, Ye shall not say, "A message of the LORD:"

39 Therefore, behold, I am here, and I will tear you completely away, and I will cast you off, and the city that I have given to you and to your fathers, out of my presence;

40 And I will lay upon you an everlasting disgrace, and a perpetual shame, which shall not be forgotten.

CHAPTER XXIV.

1 ¶ The LORD caused me to see, and, behold, there were two baskets of figs placed before the temple of the LORD, after Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon had carried away into exile Yechonyahu the son of Yehoyakim the king of Judah, and the princes of Judah, with the carpenters and the locksmiths, from Jerusalem, and had brought them to Babylon.

2 The one basket (had) very good figs, like the figs that are first ripe: and the other basket (had) very bad figs, which could not be eaten, from being so bad.

3 ¶ Then said the LORD unto me, What seest thou, Jeremiah? And I said, Figs: the good figs, are very good; and the bad ones, are very bad, which cannot be eaten, from being so bad.

4 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

5 Thus hath said the LORD, the God of Israel, Like these good figs, so will I acknowledge the exiles of Judah, whom I have sent away from this place into the land of the Chaldeans, for good.

6 And I will set my eye upon them for [a] Jeremiah here draws a strong distinction between a dream of a true vision, and a base invention of deceivers; they who speak, themselves must know what is true.

[b] What has falsehood in common with truth?

[c] Lit. "take their tongue." Rashi, "that teach their tongue to say their falsehoods."

[d] Rashi, "Etourdissant," "stunning," "astounding talk." Redak, "trifling."

[e] Rendered in Isaiah generally with "doom," which it properly means here also.

[f] After Philippson. Zunz, "then tell them what the message is, I will," &c.

[g] The true prophet. We have followed Rashi. But Philippson, "for every man shall bear such a word, because ye," &c.; but the sense of the whole passage is to warn people against assuming the prophetic office.

good, and I will cause them to return again to this land; and I will build them up, and not pull them down; and I will plant them, and not pluck them up.

7 And I will give them a heart to know me, that I am the LORD: and they shall be unto me for a people, and I will be unto them for God; for they will return unto me with all their heart.

8 ¶ And like the bad figs, which cannot be eaten, from being so bad, surely thus hath said the LORD, So will I render Zedekiah the king of Judah, and his princes, and the residue of Jerusalem, that remain in this land, and those that dwell in the land of Egypt;

9 And I will make them a horror because[a] of (their) mishaps unto all the kingdoms of the earth, a disgrace and a proverb, a byword and a curse, in all the places whither I will drive them.

10 And I will send out against them the sword, the famine, and the pestilence, till they be destroyed from off the land that I had given unto them and to their fathers.

CHAPTER XXV.

1 ¶ The word that came to Jeremiah concerning all the people of Judah, in the fourth year of Jehoyakim the son of Josiah the king of Judah, which is the first year of Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon;

2 Which Jeremiah the prophet spoke concerning all the people of Judah, and to all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, saying,

3 From the thirteenth year of Josiah the son of Amon the king of Judah, even until this day, that is now three and twenty years, the word of the LORD hath come unto me, and I have spoken unto you, rising early and speaking; but ye have not hearkened.

4 And the LORD hath sent unto you all his servants the prophets, making (them) rise early and sending (them); but ye have not hearkened, and have not inclined your ear to hear.

5 They said, O do turn away every one from his evil way, and from the wrongfulness of your doings; and ye shall remain in the land that the LORD hath given unto you and to your fathers, for from eternity to eternity;

6 And go not after other gods to serve them, and to bow down to them, and provoke me not to anger with the works of your hands; and I will not injure you.

7 Yet have ye not hearkened unto me, saith the LORD: in order that ye might provoke me to anger with the works of your own hands to your own injury.

8 Therefore thus hath said the LORD of hosts, Because ye have not hearkened to my words:

9 Behold, I will send and take all the families of the north, saith the LORD, and to Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon, my servant, and I will bring them over this land, and over its inhabitants, and over all these nations round about, and I will utterly destroy them, and make them an astonishment, and a derision, and perpetual ruins.

10 And I will banish from them the voice of gladness, and the voice of joy, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride, the sound of the mill,[b] and the light of the lamp.

11 And this whole land shall become a ruin and an (object of) astonishment; and these nations shall serve the king of Babylon seventy years.

12 And it shall come to pass, when seventy years are completed, that I will visit on the king of Babylon, and on that nation, saith the LORD, their iniquity, and on the land of the Chaldeans, and will change it into perpetual desolations.

13 And I will bring over that land all my words which I have spoken concerning it, all that is written in this book, which Jeremiah hath prophesied concerning all the nations.

14 For when many nations and great kings shall have made them also serve: I will then recompense them according to their deeds, and according to the work of their own hands.

15 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD the God of Israel unto me, Take the cup of the wine of this fury out of my hand, and cause all the nations to whom I send thee to drink it.

[a] Rashi. Zunz, "a horror, a misfortune."

[b] Travellers remark, that in the East, everywhere in the morning may be heard the noise of the mills, which often awakens people; for they generally grind every day just as much as may be necessary for the day's consumption. Where, then, the noise of the mill is not heard in the morning, nor the light of the candle seen in the evening, there must be an utter desolation.

16 And they shall drink, and reel about, and be mad, because of the sword that I will send among them.

17 And I took the cup out of the hand of the LORD, and caused to drink all the nations, unto whom the LORD had sent me:

18 Jerusalem, and the cities of Judah, and its kings, and its princes, to make them a ruin, an astonishment, a derision, and a curse; as it is this day;

19 Pharaoh the king of Egypt, and his servants, and his princes, and all his people;

20 And all the confederated nations, and all the kings of the land of 'Uz, and all the kings of the land of the Philistines, and Ashkelon, and Gazzah, and 'Ekron, and the remnant of Ashdod;

21 Edom, and Moäb, and the children of 'Ammon;

22 And all the kings of Tyre, and all the kings of Zidon, and the kings of the isle[a] which is beyond the sea;

23 Dedan, and Thema, and Buz, and all those that have their hair cut round;

24 And all the kings of Arabia, and all the kings of the confederated nations that dwell in the wilderness;

25 And all the kings of Zimri, and all the kings of 'Elam, and all the kings of Media;

26 And all the kings of the north, that are far and that are near, one with another,[b] and all the kingdoms of the world, which are upon the face of the earth; and the king of Sheshach[c] shall drink after them.

27 And thou shalt say unto them, Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Drink ye, and become drunken, and vomit, and fall, and rise no more, because of the sword, which I am sending among you.

28 And it shall be, if they refuse to take the cup out of thy hand to drink, that thou shalt say unto them, Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, Ye must certainly drink;

29 For lo, on the city which is called by my name, I begin to inflict evil, and ye will remain utterly unpunished? Ye shall not remain unpunished; for a sword am I calling up over all the inhabitants of the earth, saith the LORD of hosts.

30 But thou, do thou prophesy concerning them all these words, and say unto them, The LORD will cry aloud from on high, and from his holy habitation will he send forth his voice; he will cry out very loudly over his habitation; the vintner's call, as they that tread out the grapes, will he lift up against all the inhabitants of the earth.

31 A tumultuous noise cometh even to the ends of the earth; for the LORD hath a controversy with the nations, he holdeth judgment over all flesh: the wicked,—these he giveth up to the sword, saith the LORD.

32 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, Behold, evil goeth forth from nation to nation, and a great storm-wind waketh up from the farthest ends of the earth.

33 And the slain of the LORD shall be on that day from one end of the earth even unto the other end of the earth: they shall not be lamented, nor gathered up, nor buried; they shall be as dung upon the surface of the ground.

34 Wail, ye shepherds, and cry; and roll yourselves about (in the dust), ye leaders of the flocks; for full are your days for you to be slaughtered, and I will scatter[d] you; and ye shall fall like a costly vessel.

35 And lost shall be the place of refuge for the shepherds, and the escape for the leaders of the flocks to escape.

36 There is the voice of the cry of anguish of the shepherds, and the wailing of the leaders of the flocks; for the LORD hath devastated their pasture.

37 And in silent desolation lie the pasture-lands of peace, because of the fierceness of the anger of the LORD.

38 He hath forsaken his covert, like the young lion;[e] for their land is become desolate, because of the fierceness of the wasting (sword), and because of the fierceness of his anger.

[a] Philippson, "the coastland which is beyond the sea." Zunz, "of the isle which is by the sea."

[b] Zunz, "who are near or far from one another."

[c] Babylon.

[d] The word ותפוצותיכם is of difficult construction: we have followed Zunz, who supplies, "I will bring along"—"your scatterings." Rashi supplies, "shall approach to come;" thus, "and your scatterings shall approach to come." "Like a costly vessel," is so explained by Rashi: "If you will say, We are honourable—there is many a precious crystal vessel which falleth and is broken."

[e] Redak supplies, "who findeth no prey in his den."

CHAPTER XXVI.

1 ¶ In the beginning of the reign of Jehoyakim the son of Josiah the king of Judah came this word from the LORD, saying,

2 Thus hath said the LORD, Place thyself in the court of the house of the LORD, and speak against all of the cities of Judah, who come to prostrate themselves in the house of the LORD, all the words that I have commanded thee to speak unto them: omit not a word (thereof);

3 Perhaps it be that they will hearken, and return every man from his evil way, that I may bethink me of the evil, which I purpose to do unto them, because of the wrongfulness of their doings.

4 And thou shalt say unto them, Thus hath said the LORD, If ye will not hearken unto me, to walk in my law, which I have set before you,

5 To hearken unto the words of my servants the prophets, whom I send unto you, yea, making them rise up early, and sending them, while ye have not hearkened:

6 Then will I render this house like Shiloh, and this city will I render a curse unto all the nations of the earth.

7 ¶ And the priests and the prophets and all the people heard Jeremiah speaking these words in the house of the LORD.

8 And it came to pass, when Jeremiah had finished speaking all that the LORD had commanded (him) to speak unto all the people, that the priests and the prophets and all the people seized on him, saying, Thou shalt surely die.

9 Why hast thou prophesied in the name of the LORD, saying, Like Shiloh shall this house be, and this city shall be ruined, (left) without an inhabitant? And all the people assembled themselves against Jeremiah in the house of the LORD.

10 But when the princes of Judah heard these things, they came up from the king's house unto the house of the LORD, and sat down at the entrance of the new gate of the LORD's house.

11 Then said the priests and the prophets unto the princes and unto all the people, as followeth, This man deserveth the punishment of death; for he hath prophesied against this city, as ye have heard with your own ears.

12 Then said Jeremiah unto all the princes and unto all the people, as followeth, The LORD hath sent me to prophesy against this house and against this city all the words that ye have heard.

13 But now amend your ways and your doings, and hearken to the voice of the LORD your God: and the LORD will bethink him of the evil that he hath spoken against you.

14 As for me, behold, I am in your hand: do with me as seemeth good and just in your eyes.

15 But know ye for certain, that if ye put me to death, ye will surely place (the guilt of) innocent blood upon yourselves, and upon this city, and upon its inhabitants; for in truth hath the LORD sent me unto you to speak in your ears all these words.

16 Then said the princes and all the people unto the priests and to the prophets, This man is not deserving the punishment of death; for in the name of the LORD our God hath he spoken unto us.

17 And then rose up certain men of the elders of the land, and said to all the assembly of the people, as followeth,

18 Michah the Morashthite prophesied in the days of Hezekiah the king of Judah, and said to all the people of Judah, as followeth, Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, Zion shall be ploughed up like a field, and Jerusalem shall become heaps of ruins, and the mountain of the house, woody high-places.[a]

19 Did Hezekiah the king of Judah and all Judah attempt to put him to death? behold, he did fear the LORD, and besought the LORD, and the LORD bethought him of the evil which he had spoken against them. And shall we bring a great wickedness on our souls?

20 And there was also a man that prophesied in the name of the LORD, Uriyah the son of Shema'yahu of Kiryath-ye'arim, who prophesied against this city and against this land in accordance with all the words of Jeremiah;

21 And when king Jehoyakim, with all his mighty men, and all the princes, heard his words, the king sought to put him to death; but when Uriyahu heard it, he was afraid, and fled, and arrived in Egypt;

22 But king Jehoyakim sent some men into

[a] Lit. "high-places of a forest."

Egypt, namely, Elnathan the son of 'Achbor, and some men with him into Egypt:

23 And they fetched Uriyahu out of Egypt, and brought him unto king Jehoyakim, who slew him with the sword, and cast his dead body upon the graves of the common people.

24 But the hand of Achikam the son of Shaphan was with Jeremiah, so as not to give him up into the hand of the people to put him to death.

CHAPTER XXVII.

1 ¶ In the beginning of the reign of Jehoyakim the son of Josiah the king of Judah came this word unto Jeremiah from the LORD, saying,

2 Thus said the LORD to me, Make for thyself bands and yoke-bars, and put them around thy neck,

3 And send such to the king of Edom, and to the king of Moäb, and to the king of the children of 'Ammon, and to the king of Tyre, and to the king of Zidon, by means of the messengers who come to Jerusalem unto Zedekiah the king of Judah;

4 And thou shalt charge them unto their masters, saying, Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Thus shall ye say unto your masters,

5 It is I who have made the earth, the men, and the beasts that are upon the face of the earth, by my great power and by my outstretched arm, and I have given it unto the one who seemeth proper in my eyes.

6 And now it is I who have given all these countries into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, my servant; and also the beasts of the field have I given him to serve him.

7 And all nations shall serve him, and his son, and his son's son, until the time of his land is also come in its turn: when many nations and great kings shall make it[a] serve.

8 And it shall come to pass, that the nation and the kingdom which will not serve him, Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, and that will not put its neck in the yoke of the king of Babylon,—even that nation will I punish with the sword, and with the famine, and with the pestilence, saith the LORD, until I have made an end of them by his hand.

9 But do ye not hearken to your prophets, and to your diviners, and to your dreamers, and to your enchanters, and to your sorcerers, who speak unto you, saying, Ye shall not serve the king of Babylon;

10 For falsehood do they prophesy unto you, in order to remove you far from your land; and that I might drive you out, and that ye might perish.

11 But the nation that will bring its neck into the yoke of the king of Babylon, and serve him,—that one will I then let remain quietly in its own land, saith the LORD: and it shall till it, and dwell therein.

12 And unto Zedekiah the king of Judah did I speak in accordance with all these words, saying, Bring your neck into the yoke of the king of Babylon, and serve him and his people, that ye may live.

13 Why will ye die, thou and thy people, by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence, as the LORD hath spoken concerning the nation that will not serve the king of Babylon?

14 And do ye not hearken unto the words of the prophets that say unto you, as followeth, Ye shall not serve the king of Babylon; for a falsehood do they prophesy unto you.

15 For I have not sent them, saith the LORD, yet they prophesy in my name falsely: in order that I might drive you out, and that ye might perish, ye, and the prophets that prophesy unto you.

16 And unto the priests and unto all this people did I speak, saying, Thus hath said the LORD, Do not hearken to the words of your prophets that prophesy unto you, saying, Behold, the vessels[b] of the house of the LORD shall be brought again from Babylon now speedily; for a falsehood do they prophesy unto you.

17 Hearken not unto them; serve the king of Babylon, that ye may live: wherefore should this city become a ruin?

18 And if they be prophets, and if the word of the LORD be with them, let them now make intercession with the LORD of hosts, that the vessels which are left in the house of the LORD, and in the house of the king of Judah, and at Jerusalem, may not be carried[a] to Babylon.

19 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD of hosts of the pillars,[b] and concerning the sea, and concerning the bases, and concerning the residue of the vessels that are left in this city,

20 Which Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon did not take away, when he carried away into exile Jechonyah the son of Jehoyakim the king of Judah from Jerusalem to Babylon, with all the nobles of Judah and Jerusalem;

21 ¶ (Yea) for thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, concerning the vessels that are left in the house of the LORD, and in the house of the king of Judah and in Jerusalem.

22 Unto Babylon shall they be carried, and there shall they remain until the day that I think of them, saith the LORD, when I will bring them up, and restore them to this place.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

1 ¶ And it came to pass in the same year, in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah the king of Judah, in the fourth year,[c] in the fifth month, that there said unto me Chananyah the son of 'Azzur the prophet, who was from Gib-'on, in the house of the LORD, before the eyes of the priests, and of all the people, as followeth,

2 Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, saying, I have broken the yoke of the king of Babylon;

3 Within yet two years' time will I cause to be brought back unto this place all the vessels of the house of the LORD, which Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon hath taken away from this place, and which he hath carried to Babylon:

4 And Jechonyah the son of Jehoyakim the king of Judah, and all the exiles of Judah that are gone to Babylon, will I cause to return to this place, saith the LORD; for I will break the yoke of the king of Babylon.

5 Then said Jeremiah the prophet unto Chananyah the prophet before the eyes of the priests, and before the eyes of all the people that stood in the house of the LORD,

6 Yea, then said Jeremiah the prophet, Amen, may the LORD do so: may the LORD fulfil thy words which thou hast prophesied, to cause the vessels of the LORD's house, and all that have been carried into exile, to be brought back from Babylon unto this place.

7 Nevertheless hear thou now this word which I speak before thy ears, and before the ears of all the people:

8 The prophets that have been before me and before thee from olden times prophesied both concerning many countries, and against great kingdoms, respecting war, and respecting evil, and respecting pestilence.

9 The prophet who prophesieth of peace, when the word of the prophet doth come to pass, then shall the prophet be known, (as the one) whom the LORD hath sent in truth.

10 Then took Chananyah the prophet the yoke-bar from off the neck of Jeremiah the prophet, and broke it.

11 And Chananyah said before the eyes of all the people, as followeth, Thus hath said the LORD, Even so will I break the yoke of Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon within two years' time from the neck of all the nations. And Jeremiah the prophet went his way.

12 ¶ Then came the word of the LORD unto Jeremiah, after Chananyah the prophet had broken the yoke-bar from off the neck of Jeremiah the prophet, saying, 13 Go and say unto Chananyah as followeth, Thus hath said the LORD, Yoke-bars of wood hast thou broken; but thou shalt make in their stead yoke-bars of iron.

14 For thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, A yoke of iron have I placed upon the neck of all these nations, that they may serve Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon; and they shall work for him: and also the beasts of the field have I given him.

15 Then said Jeremiah the prophet unto Chananyah the prophet, Hear now, Chananyah, The LORD did not send thee; but thou hast caused this people to trust on a falsehood.

16 Therefore thus hath said the LORD, Be-

[a] Heb. "come."

[b] See 1 Kings vii. 15, &c.; 2 Kings xxv. 13, &c.

[c] This is explained that Zedekiah commenced his reign in the fourth year after the release year, and that the temple was destroyed at the first year after the release; i. e. the eleventh of Zedekiah.

hold, I will send thee away from off the face of the earth: this year shalt thou die, because thou hast spoken rebellion against the LORD.

17 So Chananyah the prophet died in that same year, in the seventh month.

CHAPTER XXIX.

1 ¶ And these are the words of the letter that Jeremiah the prophet sent from Jerusalem unto the residue of the elders of the exiles, and to the priests, and to the prophets, and to all the people whom Nebuchadnezzar had carried away into exile from Jerusalem to Babylon;

2 (After king Jechonyah and the queen-mother, and the court-officers, the princes of Judah and Jerusalem, and the carpenters, and the locksmiths, were departed from Jerusalem;)

3 By the hand of El'assah the son of Shaphan, and Gemaryah the son of Chilkiyah, (whom Zedekiah the king of Judah sent unto Babylon to Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon,) saying,

4 Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, unto all the exiles, whom I have caused to be carried into exile from Jerusalem unto Babylon,

5 Build ye houses, and dwell therein; and plant gardens, and eat their fruit;

6 Take ye wives, and beget sons and daughters; and take wives for your sons, and give your daughters to husbands, that they may bear sons and daughters: that ye may multiply there, and not be diminished.

7 And seek the welfare[a] of the city whither I have banished you, and pray in its behalf unto the LORD; for in its welfare shall ye fare well.

8 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Let not your prophets, that are in the midst of you, and your diviners, deceive you, and do not hearken to your dreams which ye cause[b] to be dreamt;

9 For with falsehood do they prophesy unto you in my name: I have not sent them, saith the LORD.

10 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD, Because only after the accomplishment of seventy years for Babylon, will I visit you, and fulfil respecting you my good word, in causing you to return to this place.

11 For I alone know the thoughts that I entertain respecting you, saith the LORD, thoughts of peace, and not of evil, to give you a (happy) future and hope.

12 And you will call upon me, and ye will go[c] and will pray unto me, and I will hearken unto you.

13 And ye will seek me, and shall find me, for ye will search for me with all your heart.

14 And I will be found of you, saith the LORD; and I will bring back your captivity, and I will gather you from all the nations, and from all the places whither I have driven you, saith the LORD; and I will cause you to return unto the place whence I have banished you.

15 Because ye have said, The LORD hath raised us up prophets in Babylon.

16 ¶ But thus hath said the LORD concerning the king that sitteth upon the throne of David, and concerning all the people that dwell in this city, your brethren that are not gone forth with you into exile;

17 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, Behold, I will send out against them the sword, the famine, and the pestilence; and I will render them like the detestable figs, that cannot be eaten, from being so bad.

18 And I will pursue after them with the sword, with the famine, and with the pestilence, and will make them a horror unto all the kingdoms of the earth, a curse, and an astonishment, and a derision, and a disgrace, among all the nations whither I have driven them;

19 For the reason that they have not hearkened to my words, saith the LORD, since I sent unto them my servants the prophets, causing them to rise up early and sending them; but ye would not hear, saith the LORD.

20 But ye—hear ye the word of the LORD, all ye exiles whom I have sent away from Jerusalem to Babylon.

21 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, concerning Achab the son of Kolayah, and of Zedekiah the son of Ma'asseyah, who prophesy unto you in my name falsehood, Behold, I will give them up into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon: and he shall smite them before your eyes.

22 And a curse shall be derived from them for all the exiles of Judah who are in Babylon, saying, "May the LORD make thee like Zedekiah and like Achab, whom the king of Babylon roasted in the fire;"

23 Because they have done scandalous deeds in Israel, and have committed adultery with the wives of their neighbours, and have spoken in my name falsehood, which I had not commanded them; whereas I am the one that know, and am the witness, saith the LORD.

24 ¶ And to Shema'yahu the Nechelamite shalt thou say, as followeth,

25 Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, saying, Because thou hast sent in thy name letters unto all the people that are at Jerusalem, and to Zephanyah the son of Ma'asseyah the priest, and to all the priests, saying,

26 The LORD hath appointed thee priest in the place of Jehoyada' the priest, that ye should be superintendents in the house of the LORD, for every man that is mad, and that prophesieth, that thou shouldst put him in the stocks, and in prison:[a]

27 And now, why hast thou not rebuked Jeremiah of 'Anathoth, who prophesieth to you?

28 For the reason that he hath sent unto us to Babylon, saying, It will last a long time: build ye houses, and dwell therein; and plant gardens, and eat the fruit thereof.

29 And Zephanyah the priest read the letter before the ears of Jeremiah the prophet.

30 ¶ Then came the word of the LORD unto Jeremiah, saying,

31 Send to all the exiles, saying, Thus hath said the LORD concerning Shema'yah the Nechlamite, Whereas Shema'yah hath prophesied unto you, while I have not sent him, and he hath caused you to rely on a falsehood:

32 Therefore thus hath said the LORD, Behold, I will inflict punishment on Shema'yah the Nechlamite, and on his seed; he shall not have a man to dwell in the midst of this people; and he shall not behold the good that I am doing for my people, saith the LORD; because he hath spoken revolt against the LORD.

CHAPTER XXX.

1 ¶ The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying,

2 Thus hath said the LORD the God of Israel, saying, Write thee all the words that I have spoken unto thee in a book.

3 For, behold, days are coming, saith the LORD, when I will bring back again the captivity of my people Israel and Judah, saith the LORD; and I will cause them to return to the land that I have given to their fathers, and they shall possess it.

4 ¶ And these are the words that the LORD spoke concerning Israel and concerning Judah;

5 For thus hath said the LORD, A voice of terror have we heard, dread, and no peace.

6 Ask ye now, and see whether a male doth give birth to a child? wherefore do I see every man with his hands on his loins, as a woman in giving birth? and why are all faces turned pale?[b]

7 Alas! for that day is great, there is none like it; and a time of distress it is unto Jacob; yet out of it shall he be saved.

8 And it shall come to pass on that day, saith the LORD of hosts, that I will break his yoke from off thy neck, and thy bands will I burst asunder; and strangers shall not make him serve any more;

9 But they shall serve the LORD their God, and David their king, whom I will raise up unto them.

10 And thou—do not fear, O my servant Jacob, saith the LORD; and be not dismayed, O Israel; for, behold, I will save thee from afar, and thy seed from the land of their captivity: and Jacob shall return, and shall be at rest, and be secure, with none to terrify him.

11 For with thee am I, saith the LORD, to save thee: though I make a full end of all the nations whither I have scattered thee, yet of thee will I not make a full end; but I will correct thee in moderation,[c] and will not leave thee altogether unpunished.[d]

[a] Redak, "hand-cuffs."
[b] Lit. "changed into paleness."
[c] Rashi. Others, "according to right," "as is proper."
[d] Rashi, "but I will not destroy thee totally;" meaning the punishment shall be a correction, but not a destruction of Israel.

12 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD, Incurable is thy bruise, and painful, thy wound.

13 There is no one to plead thy cause, to bind up (thy wound): useful[a] remedies there are none for thee.

14 All thy lovers have forgotten thee; thee they seek not; for with the blow of an enemy have I smitten thee, with cruel chastisement, for the multitude of thy iniquity, because thy sins were so numerous.

15 Why wilt thou cry out because of thy breach? for thy pain which is incurable? because of the multitude of thy iniquity, because thy sins were so numerous, have I done these things unto thee.

16 Nevertheless all they that devour thee shall be devoured; and all thy adversaries, all of them, shall go into captivity; and they that plunder thee shall be (given up) to plunder, and all that prey upon thee will I give up for a prey.

17 For I will place a healing plaster on thy bruise,[b] and of thy wounds will I cure thee, saith the LORD; because they called thee "an Outcast," "This is Zion, whom no one seeketh after."

18 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, Behold, I will bring back again the captivity of the tents of Jacob, and on his dwelling-places will I have mercy; and the city shall be rebuilt upon her own heap of ruins, and the palace shall be inhabited after its (ancient) manner.

19 And there shall proceed out of them thanksgiving, and the voice of those that make merry: and I will multiply them, and they shall not be diminished; I will also make them numerous,[c] and they shall not be made few in number.

20 And their children shall be as aforetimes, and their congregation shall be firmly established before me, and I will punish all that oppress them.

21 And their leader shall be of themselves, and their ruler shall proceed from the midst of them; and I will cause him to draw near, and he shall approach unto me; for who is this that will venture of his own heart to approach unto me? saith the LORD.

22 And ye shall be unto me for a people, and I will be unto you for a God.

23 ¶ Behold, the storm-wind of the LORD goeth forth with fury, an abiding[d] storm-wind: upon the head of the wicked shall it fall.

24 The fierceness of the anger of the LORD will not turn back, until he have done, and until he have fulfilled the purposes of his heart: in the latter days shall ye understand this.

CHAPTER XXXI.

1 ¶ At the same time, saith the LORD, will I be the God for all the families of Israel, and they shall be unto me for a people.

2 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, The people of those that are escaped of the sword found grace in the wilderness,—even Israel, when it went to find rest.

3 "From afar is the LORD appeared unto me," (saying.) Yea, with an everlasting love have I loved thee; therefore have I guided[e] thee with loving-kindness.

4 Yet again will I build thee up, and thou shalt be built, O virgin of Israel: yet again shalt thou adorn thy timbrels, and go forth in the dances of those that make merry.

5 Yet again shalt thou plant vineyards upon the mountains of Samaria: the planters shall plant, and shall redeem the fruit.[f]

6 For there cometh a day, that the watchers call out upon the mountain of Ephraim, Arise ye, and let us go up to Zion unto the LORD our God.

7 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD, Sing for Jacob with joy, and shout at the head of the nations: publish ye, praise ye, and say, The LORD hath helped[g] thy people, the remnant of Israel.

8 Behold, I will bring them from the north country, and I will gather them from the farthest ends of the earth, among them the blind and the lame, the pregnant woman and she that travaileth with child together: a great assembly shall they return hither.

9 With weeping shall they come, and with supplications will I bring them in: I will lead them by brooks of water in a straight way, whereon they shall not stumble; for I am become a father to Israel, and Ephraim is my first-born.

10 ¶ Hear the word of the LORD, O ye nations, and tell it in the isles afar off, and say, He that scattereth Israel will gather him, and keep him, as a shepherd his flock.

11 For the LORD hath ransomed Jacob, and redeemed him out of the hand of one stronger than he.

12 And they shall come and sing on the height of Zion, and shall come together as a stream to the goodness[a] of the LORD, for wheat, and for wine, and for oil, and for the young of the flocks and of the herds, and their soul shall be as a well-watered garden; and they shall not farther experience grief any more.

13 Then shall the virgin rejoice in the dance, and youth and old men together: and I will change their mourning into gladness, and I will comfort them, and make them rejoice from their sorrow.

14 And I will satiate the soul of the priests with fatness, and my people shall be satisfied with my goodness, saith the LORD.

15 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, A voice is heard in Ramah,[b] groaning, weeping, and bitter lamentation; Rachel is weeping for her children: she refuseth to be comforted for her children, because they are not (here).

16 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, Refrain thy voice from weeping, and thy eyes from tears; for there is a reward for thy work,[c] saith the LORD, and they shall return from the land of the enemy.

17 And there is hope for (thee in) thy future, saith the LORD, and thy children shall return to their own borders.

18 I have indeed heard Ephraim bemoaning himself, "Thou hast chastised me, and I was chastised, as an untamed calf; cause me to return, and I will return; for thou art the LORD my God.

19 Surely after my returning, I repent; and after I am made conscious (by punishment), I smite upon my thigh: I am ashamed, yea, I am confounded, because I bear the disgrace of my youth."

20 Is not Ephraim a dear son unto me? or a child that I dandle? for whenever I speak of him, I do earnestly remember him again: therefore are my inward parts[d] moved for him; I will surely have mercy upon him, saith the LORD.

21 ¶ Set thyself up waymarks, place thyself pillars;[e] direct thy heart toward the highway, the way which thou didst go: return, O virgin of Israel, return to these thy cities.

22 How long wilt thou roam about, O thou backsliding daughter? for the LORD hath created a new thing on the earth, The woman[f] will go about (seeking for) the husband.

23 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Yet again shall they say this word in the land of Judah and in the cities thereof, when I will bring back again their captivity,—May the LORD bless thee, O habitation of righteousness, O holy mountain.

24 And there shall dwell therein Judah, and in all his cities together, husbandmen, and they that move about with the flocks.

25 For I have satiated the weary soul, and every grieving soul have I gratified.[g]

26 For this did I awake, and looked about; and my sleep was sweet unto me.[h]

[f] Rashi, "How long wilt thou hide thyself from me, because thou art ashamed to return to me because of thy course? behold, a new thing is created on the earth, that the female goeth about after the man to ask him to marry her." Israel is represented as the rebellious wife, God as the husband; and when the time for the accomplishment of the Lord's promises comes, the faithless spouse will seek her readily forgiving, but, as it were, now absent husband. (See also Hosea ii. 9, 18; iii. 5.) Rashi explains the verse also in this manner.

LORD, when I will sow the house of Israel and the house of Judah with the seed of man, and with the seed of cattle.

28 And it shall come to pass, that just as I have watched over them, to pluck up, and to pull down, and to overthrow, and to destroy, and to do harm: so will I watch over them, to build up, and to plant, saith the LORD.

29 In those days shall they not say any more, The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge;

30 But every one shall die for his own iniquity: every man that eateth the sour grapes—his teeth shall be set on edge.

31 Behold, days are coming, saith the LORD, when I will make with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah, a new covenant;

32 Not like the covenant that I made with their fathers on the day that I took hold of them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; which my covenant they have broken, although I was become their husband,[a] saith the LORD;

33 But this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel, after those days, saith the LORD, I place my law in their inward parts, and upon their heart will I write it; and I will be unto them for a God, and they shall be unto me for a people.

34 And they shall not teach any more every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying, Know the LORD; for they all shall know me, from the least of them even unto their greatest, saith the LORD; for I will forgive their iniquity, and their sin will I not remember any more.

35 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, who bestoweth the sun for a light by day, the ordinances of the moon and of the stars for a light by night, who stirreth up the sea that its waves roar—The LORD of hosts is his name:

36 If these ordinances ever depart from before me, saith the LORD, then also shall the seed of Israel cease from being a nation before me during all time.

37 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, If the heavens can be measured above, and the foundations of the earth searched out beneath: then also will I reject all the seed of Israel, for all that they have done, saith the LORD.

38 ¶ Behold, days are coming, saith the LORD, when the city shall be built up to the LORD from the tower of Chananel unto the corner-gate.

39 And the measuring-line shall yet again go forth opposite it over the hill Gareb, and shall take a turn to Go'ath.

40 And the whole valley of the dead bodies, and of the ashes,[b] and all fields as far as the brook Kidron, unto the corner of the horse-gate toward the east, shall be holy unto the LORD: it shall not be plucked up, nor overthrown any more to eternity.

CHAPTER XXXII.

1 ¶ The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD in the tenth year of Zedekiah the king of Judah, which is the eighteenth year of Nebuchadrezzar.

2 And at that time the king of Babylon's army was besieging Jerusalem; and Jeremiah the prophet was shut up in the court of the prison, which was in the house of the king of Judah;

3 Because Zedekiah the king of Judah had shut him up, saying, Wherefore art thou prophesying, saying, Thus hath said the LORD, Behold, I will give up this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall capture it.

4 And Zedekiah the king of Judah shall not escape out of the hand of the Chaldeans, because he shall surely be given up into the hand of the king of Babylon, and his mouth shall speak to his mouth, and his eyes shall behold his eyes;

5 And to Babylon shall he lead Zedekiah, and there shall he remain until I think of[c] him, saith the LORD: though ye fight with the Chaldeans, ye shall not prosper.

had left so long in captivity. Rashi and others, however, as we have given, "and my sleep was sweet unto me;" and Redak comments, as applied to the prophet, "I had seen in the dream of prophecy this consolation, and therefore was my sleep sweet unto me."

[b] Rashi, "This prophecy applies to the coming future in the last redemption, for it was not fulfilled during the second temple." This proves, therefore, that we must expect another redemption, besides the return from Babylon, to accomplish the prophecies.

[c] Rashi, "the visitation of every man is death;" i. e. Zedekiah shall remain in Babylon till he die.

KING SOLOMON.

6 ¶ And Jeremiah said, The word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

7 Behold, Chanamel the son of Shallum thy uncle is coming unto thee, saying, Buy for thyself my field that is in 'Anathoth; for unto thee belongeth the right of redemption to buy it.

8 And there came to me Chanamel my uncle's son according to the word of the LORD into the court of the prison, and he said unto me, Buy, I pray thee, my field, that is in 'Anathoth, which is in the land of Benjamin; for to thee belongeth the right of inheritance, and to thee belongeth the redemption, buy it for thyself: then did I know, that it was the word of the LORD.

9 And I bought the field from Chanamel my uncle's son, that is in 'Anathoth; and I weighed out unto him the money, seven shekels, and ten pieces of silver.

10 And I wrote it in a deed,[a] and sealed it, and had it certified by witnesses, and weighed the money in balances.

11 And I took the deed of the purchase, both that which was sealed, according to the law[b] and custom, and that which was open;

12 And I gave the deed of the purchase unto Baruch the son of Neriyah, the son of Machseyah, before the eyes of Chanamel my kinsman, and before the eyes of the witnesses that had signed the deed of the purchase, before the eyes of all the Jews that were sitting in the court of the prison.

13 And I charged Baruch before their eyes, saying,

14 Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Take these deeds, this deed of the purchase, both the sealed, and this open deed, and place them in an earthen vessel, in order that they may last many days.[c]

15 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Yet again shall there be bought houses and fields and vineyards in this land.

16 ¶ And I prayed to the LORD after[d] I had delivered the deed of the purchase unto Baruch the son of Neriyah, saying,

17 Ah Lord Eternal! behold, it is thou that hast made the heavens and the earth by thy great power and by thy outstretched arm; nothing is too wonderful for thee;

18 Thou exercisest kindness unto the thousandth (generation), and recompensest the iniquity of the fathers unto the bosom of their children after them; (thou art) the Great, the Mighty God, the LORD of hosts is his name;

19 Great in counsel, and mighty in execution; (thou) whose eyes are open over all the ways of the sons of man, to give unto every one according to his ways, and according to the fruit of his doings;

20 Who hast displayed signs and wonders in the land of Egypt, up to this day, and in Israel, and among other men; and thou hast made thyself a name, as it is at this day;

21 And thou didst bring forth thy people Israel out of the land of Egypt with signs, and with wonders, and with a strong hand, and with an outstretched arm, and with great terror;

22 And thou gavest them this land, which thou hadst sworn to their fathers to give unto them, a land flowing with milk and honey;

23 And they came in, and took possession of it; but they hearkened not to thy voice, and in thy law they did not walk; all that thou hadst commanded them to do they did not do: and thou hast therefore caused all this evil to befall them.

24 Behold the mounds[e] reach unto the city to capture it; and the city is given up into the hand of the Chaldeäns, who fight against it, because of the sword, and of the famine, and of the pestilence: and what thou hast spoken is come to pass; and, behold, thou seest it.

25 And yet thou hast said unto me, O Lord Eternal, Buy for thyself the field for money, and have it certified by witnesses:

[a] Lit. "letter," or "book;" here the evidences of sale, "a deed."

[b] Zunz, "with the instruction and the conditions," (i. e. of the sale,) which it is alleged was not published, while the "open," the transfer deed, was for the public inspection.

[c] Zunz, "years."

[d] Although the prophet strictly followed the injunction of the inspiration to make a regular purchase of the land, to write a deed, take witnesses, and to use even the formality of making a duplicate; still he himself felt overcome by human weakness: hence the beautiful prayer in the text.

[e] The works of the besiegers on which the engines of attack were placed.

while the city is given up into the hand of the Chaldeans.

26 ¶ Then came the word of the LORD unto Jeremiah, saying,

27 Behold, I am the LORD, the God of all flesh: shall any thing be too wonderful for me?

28 Therefore thus hath said the LORD, Behold, I will give up this city into the hand of the Chaldeans, and into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon, and he shall capture it:

29 And the Chaldeans, that fight against this city, shall come and set this city on fire, and burn it, with the houses upon the roofs of which they have offered incense unto Ba'al, and have poured out drink-offerings unto other gods, in order to provoke me to anger;

30 For the children of Israel and the children of Judah have been doing only what is evil in my eyes from their youth; for the children of Israel have been only provoking me to anger with the work of their hands, saith the LORD.

31 For to excite my anger and my fury hath been unto me this city from the day that they built it, even until this day; so that I will remove it from before my presence;

32 Because of all the wickedness of the children of Israel and of the children of Judah, which they have done to provoke me to anger, they, their kings, their princes, their priests, and their prophets, and the men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem;

33 And they turned unto me the back, and not the face: though (my prophets) taught them, rising up early and teaching; yet they hearkened not to receive instruction.

34 But they placed their abominations in the house, which is called by my name, to defile it.

35 And they built the high-places of Ba'al, which are in the valley of the son of Hinnom, to cause their sons and their daughters to pass through (the fire) unto Molech; which I had not commanded them, and which had not come into my mind, to practise this abomination, in order to mislead Judah to sin.

36 ¶ But now, therefore, thus hath said the LORD, the God of Israel, concerning this city, whereof ye say, It is given up into the hand of the king of Babylon through the sword, and through the famine, and through the pestilence:

37 Behold, I will gather them out of all the countries, whither I have driven them in my anger, and in my fury, and in great wrath; and I will bring them back again unto this place, and I will cause them to dwell in safety;

38 And they shall be unto me for a people, and I will be unto them for a God;

39 And I will give them one heart, and one manner, to fear me at all times, that it may be well with them, and with their children after them;

40 And I will make with them an everlasting covenant, that I will not turn away from them, to do them good on my part; and my fear will I place in their heart, so that they may not depart from me.

41 And I will be glad over them to do them good; and I will plant them in this land in truth, with all my heart and with all my soul.

42 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD, Just as I have brought upon this people all this great evil, so will I bring upon them all the good that I speak concerning them.

43 And the field shall yet be bought in this land, whereof ye say, It is desolate without man or beast, it is given up into the hand of the Chaldeans.

44 Men shall buy fields for money, and write it in deeds, and seal it, and certify it by witnesses, in the land of Benjamin, and in the environs of Jerusalem, and in the cities of Judah, and in the cities of the mountain, and in the cities of the lowlands, and in the cities of the south; for I will cause their captivity to return, saith the LORD.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

1 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto Jeremiah the second time, while he was yet shut up in the court of the prison, saying,

2 Thus hath said the LORD who doth this, the LORD that formeth it, to establish it: the ETERNAL is his name;

3 Call unto me, and I will answer thee, and I will tell thee great and unheard[a] of things, which thou knowest not.

4 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD, the God

[a] Rashi, "Preserved in my heart to do them;" or as rendered by Philippson, "unheard;" i. e. not yet revealed by God to mortals. Redak, "mighty things."

of Israel, concerning the houses of this city, and concerning the houses of the kings of Judah, which are thrown down by means of the mounds, and by means of the sword;

5 As they[a] come to fight with the Chaldeans, but only to fill those with the corpses of the men whom I slay in my anger and in my fury, and for all whose wickedness I have hidden my face from this city:

6 Behold, I will bring it healing and cure, and I will cure them, and I will display unto them the abundance[b] of peace and truth.

7 And I will cause to return the captivity of Judah and the captivity of Israel, and I will build them up, as at the first.

8 And I will cleanse them from all their guiltiness, whereby they have sinned against me; and I will pardon all their iniquities, whereby they have sinned toward me, and whereby they have transgressed against me.

9 And it shall be to me for a name of gladness, a praise and an honour with all the nations of the earth, who will hear all the good that I am doing unto them: and they shall dread and tremble because of all the good and because of all the happiness[c] that I prepare unto it.

10 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, Yet again shall there be heard in this place, of which ye say, "It is ruined, without man and without beast," [(even) in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem, that are desolate, without man, and without inhabitant, and without beast,]

11 The voice of gladness, and the voice of joy, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride, the voice of those that say, "Give thanks unto the LORD of hosts; for the LORD is good; because to eternity endureth his kindness:" of those that bring thanksgiving-offering unto the house of the LORD. For I will cause to return the captivity of the land, as at the first, saith the LORD.

12 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, Yet again shall there be in this place, which is ruined, without man and even without beast, and in all its cities, an habitation of shepherds who cause their flocks to lie down.

13 In the cities of the mountain, in the cities of the lowlands, and in the cities of the south, and in the land of Benjamin, and in the environs of Jerusalem, and in the cities of Judah, shall the flocks[d] yet pass again under the hands of him that counteth them, saith the LORD.

14 ¶ Behold, days are coming, saith the LORD, when I will fulfil that good word which I have spoken concerning the house of Israel and respecting the house of Judah.

15 In those days, and at that time, will I cause to grow up unto David the sprout of righteousness: and he shall execute justice and righteousness in the land.

16 In those days shall Judah be helped, and Jerusalem shall dwell in safety: and this is what she shall be called, THE LORD IS OUR RIGHTEOUSNESS.

17 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD, There shall never be wanting[e] unto David a man to sit upon the throne of the house of Israel;

18 And unto the priests the Levites there shall not be wanting a man before me, to offer[f] burnt-offerings, and to burn meat-offerings, and to prepare sacrifices at all times.

19 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto Jeremiah, saying,

20 Thus hath said the LORD, If ye can break my covenant with the day, and my covenant with the night, and so, that there be not day and night in their season:

21 Then also shall my covenant be broken[g] with David my servant, that he should not

[a] After Philippson, who refers the word בּאִים "those who come," to the Israelites; meaning, the struggle should be in vain. Redak considers the preceding verse to indicate that the houses were thrown down by the citizens to make ramparts against the besiegers, (Jonathan, "to strengthen the walls against those who slay with the sword;") to which this verse then follows, "because they come to fight," &c. Others refer בּאִים to the instruments of siege and destruction; thus, "which come with the Chaldeans to fight, only to fill," &c.

[e] Rashi, "not an everlasting cutting off; but if he should cease for a time, he will at length return."

[f] Rashi, "there shall not be cut off descendants fit to sacrifice," i. e. "burnt-offerings," &c.

[g] It is evident that, as the prophet at the same time predicted the destruction of both kingdom and priesthood, he foretold the continuity only of descendants of David and Aaron, so that there shall at no time be wanting those who shall lineally be fit to act as their successors. (See also Isaiah lxvi. 21, and Hosea iii. 4, 5, which fully confirm this construction.) To this day there are many have a son to reign upon his throne; and (that) with the Levites the priests, my ministers.

22 As the host of heaven cannot be numbered, and the sand of the sea not be measured: so will I multiply the seed of David my servant, and the Levites that minister unto me.

23 ¶ And the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah, saying,

24 Hast thou not observed what this[a] people have spoken, saying, The two families[b] which the LORD hath made choice of, even these hath he rejected: and they[c] (thus) have despised my people, that they should be no more a nation before them.

25 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, If my covenant be not with day and night, if I have not appointed the ordinances of heaven and earth:

26 Then also will I reject the seed of Jacob, and David my servant, so as not to take any of his seed to be rulers over the seed of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; for I will cause their captivity to return, and have mercy on them.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

1 ¶ The word which came unto Jeremiah from the LORD, when Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, and all his army, and all the kingdoms of the country ruled by his power, and all the people, fought against Jerusalem, and against all its cities, saying,

2 Thus hath said the LORD, the God of Israel, Go and speak to Zedekiah the king of Judah, and say to him, Thus hath said the LORD, Behold, I will give up this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, that he may burn it with fire:

3 And thou thyself shalt not escape out of his hand; but thou shalt surely be caught, and be delivered into his hand; and thy eyes shall see the eyes of the king of Babylon, and his mouth shall speak with thy mouth, and to Babylon shalt thou go.

4 Yet hear the word of the LORD, O Zedekiah king of Judah, Thus hath said the LORD respecting thee, Thou shalt not die by the sword:

5 In peace shalt thou die; and as burnings were made[d] for thy fathers, the former kings who were before thee, so shall they make burnings for thee; and "Ah lord" shall they lament for thee; for I have spoken the word, saith the LORD.

6 ¶ And Jeremiah the prophet spoke unto Zedekiah the king of Judah all these words in Jerusalem,

7 When the army of the king of Babylon were fighting against Jerusalem, and against all the cities of Judah that were left, against Lachish, and against 'Azekah; for these had been left of the cities of Judah as fortified cities.

8 ¶ The word which came unto Jeremiah from the LORD, after king Zedekiah had made a covenant with all the people who were at Jerusalem, to proclaim among themselves freedom;

9 That every man should dismiss his man-servant, and every man his maid-servant, being a Hebrew man or a Hebrew woman, free; so that no man among them should exact labour of a Jew, his brother.

10 And all the princes had hearkened, with all the people, who had entered into the covenant, that every one should dismiss his man-servant, and every one his maid-servant, free, that no one should exact labour of them any more: and they had obeyed, and dismissed them.

11 But they had turned afterward, and they had brought back the men-servants and the maid-servants whom they had dismissed as free, and had subjected them to become men-servants and maid-servants.

12 ¶ And the word of the LORD (then) came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying,

13 Thus hath said the LORD, the God of Israel,—I myself made a covenant with your fathers on the day that I brought them forth who claim descent from David, and everywhere we meet with those whom common consent hallows as the sons of Aaron and Levi.

[a] The Chaldeans and the enemies of Israel.

[b] David and Aaron.

[c] Rashi comments here, "and with these words they cause my people to reject (me), not to be a nation unto me, and they teach them to say the LORD will not turn from his anger again, and that repentance would not avail them." How truly has this been fulfilled, even to this day! the rejection of Israel being the constant theme to make us swerve from our God.

[d] Rashi, "Thus was their custom to burn for the kings their beds and the things they had had in use." But from 2 Chron. xvi. 14 it appears that they burnt spices and aromatic herbs.

out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondmen, saying,

14 At the end of seven years shall ye dismiss every man his brother the Hebrew, who may have been sold unto thee; and when he hath served thee six years, then shalt thou dismiss him free from thee; but your fathers hearkened not unto me, and inclined not their ear.

15 And ye had turned this day, and done what is right in my eyes, to proclaim freedom every man to his neighbour; and ye had made a covenant before me in the house over which my name is called;

16 But ye have turned again, and profaned my name, and ye have brought back every man his man-servant, and every man his woman-servant, whom ye had dismissed as free at their pleasure, and have subjected them to be unto you for men-servants and for women-servants.

17 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the LORD, Ye indeed have not hearkened unto me, to proclaim freedom, every one to his brother, and every one to his neighbour: behold, I proclaim a freedom over you, saith the LORD, to the sword, to the pestilence, and to the famine; and I will make you a horror unto all the kingdoms of the earth.

18 And I will give up the men that have transgressed my covenant, who have not fulfilled the words of the covenant which they had made before me, at the calf[a] which they cut in twain, and between the parts whereof they passed,

19 The princes of Judah, and the princes of Jerusalem, the court-servants, and the priests, and all the people of the land, who have passed between the parts of the calf;

20 (Yea) I will give them up into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of those that seek their life; and their dead bodies shall become food unto the fowls of the heavens, and to the beasts of the earth.

21 And Zedekiah the king of Judah and his princes will I give up into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of those that seek their life, and into the hand of the army of the king of Babylon, that are (now) gone away from you.

22 Behold, I will command, speaketh the LORD, and I will bring them back to this city; and they shall fight against it, and capture it, and burn it with fire: and the cities of Judah will I make a desert without an inhabitant.

CHAPTER XXXV.

1 ¶ The word which came unto Jeremiah from the LORD in the days of Jehoyakim the son of Josiah the king of Judah, saying,

2 Go unto the house of the Rechabites,[b] and speak with them, and bring them into the house of the LORD, into one of the chambers, and offer them wine to drink.

3 Then I took Yaäzanyah the son of Jeremiah, the son of Chabazzinyah, and his brethren, and all his sons, and the whole house of the Rechabites;

4 And I brought them into the house of the LORD, into the chamber of the sons of Chanan, the son of Yigdalyahu, the man of God,[c] which was alongside of the chamber of the princes, which was above the chamber of Ma'aseyahu the son of Shallum, the keeper of the door:[d]

5 And I set before the sons of the house of the Rechabites goblets full of wine, and cups; and I said unto them, Drink wine.

6 But they said, We will not drink wine; for Jonadab the son of Rechab our father hath laid a charge on us, saying, Ye shall not drink wine, neither ye, nor your sons for ever;

7 Nor shall ye build any house, nor sow seed, nor plant a vineyard, nor have (any such); but in tents shall ye dwell all your days, in order that ye may live many days on the face of the land where ye may sojourn.

[a] Manner of making a covenant. (See Gen. xv. 10–17.)

[b] The Rechabites were a family of the Kenites, (1 Chron. ii. 55,) and were most probably the descendants of Jethro, the father-in-law of Moses. (Compare Num. x. 29–32, with Judg. i. 16., iv. 11.) Though they dwelt among the Israelites from the first, they were never incorporated with them, nor had any inheritance assigned them, but were merely regarded as friends and allies. At the time of Jeremiah, as we see in verse 1, they had sought refuge in Jerusalem against Nebuchadnezzar. Benjamin of Tudela, in his travels, asserts, that he found this tribe yet existing in the district of Theima, in Arabia; and Niebuhr, that he found the Beni-kheiber on the mountain east of Medina. Jonadab here mentioned is supposed to be the one spoken of in the history of Jehu. (2 Kings x. 15, 23.)

[c] Jonathan, "the prophet of the LORD."

[d] Heb. "threshold." Rashi, "treasurer."

8 And we have hearkened unto the voice of Jehonadab the son of Rechab our father in all that he hath charged us, not to drink any wine all our days, we, our wives, our sons, and our daughters;

9 And not to build houses for our dwelling: and we never had any vineyard, or field, or seed;

10 But we have dwelt in tents, and have obeyed, and done in accordance with all that Jonadab our father hath commanded us.

12 But it came to pass, when Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon came up into the land, that we said, Come, and let us go into Jerusalem because of the army of the Chaldeans, and because of the army of the Syrians; and so we dwell at Jerusalem.

12 ¶ Then came the word of the LORD unto Jeremiah, saying,

13 Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Go and say to the men of Judah and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, Will ye not receive instruction to hearken to my words? saith the LORD.

14 Fulfilled are the words of Jehonadab the son of Rechab, that he hath commanded his sons not to drink wine: and they have not drunk any even unto this day; because they have obeyed the commandment of their father; but I, I have spoken unto you, early in the day and speaking; but ye have not hearkened unto me.

15 And I have sent unto you all my servants the prophets, making them rise up early and sending them, saying, Do but return every man from his evil way, and amend your deeds, and go not after other gods to serve them: and so shall ye remain in the land which I have given to you and to your fathers; but ye have not inclined your ear, and have not hearkened unto me.

16 Because the sons of Jehonadab the son of Rechab have fulfilled the commandment of their father, which he hath commanded them; but as this people have not hearkened unto me:

17 Therefore thus hath said the LORD, the God of hosts, the God of Israel, Behold, I will bring upon Judah and upon all the inhabitants of Jerusalem all the evil that I have spoken concerning them; because I spoke unto them, but they would not hear; and I called unto them, but they would not answer.

18 And unto the house of the Rechabites said Jeremiah, Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Whereas ye have hearkened to the charge of Jonadab your father, and have kept all his commandments, and have done in accordance with all that he hath commanded you:

19 Therefore thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, There shall not be wanting unto Jehonadab the son of Rechab a man to stand before me at all times.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

1 ¶ And it came to pass in the fourth year of Jehoyakim the son of Josiah the king of Judah, that this word came unto Jeremiah from the LORD, saying,

2 Take thee a roll-book, and write therein all the words that I have spoken unto thee against Israel, and against Judah, and against all the nations, from the day that I spoke unto thee, from the days of Josiah, even until this day.

3 Peradventure it be that the house of Judah will hear all the evil which I purpose to do unto them: in order that they may return every man from his evil way; that I may forgive their iniquity and their sin.

4 ¶ Then did Jeremiah call Baruch the son of Neriyah: and Baruch wrote from the mouth of Jeremiah all the words of the LORD, which he had spoken unto him, upon a roll-book.

5 And Jeremiah commanded Baruch, saying, I am shut up;[a] I am not able to enter into the house of the LORD:

6 Therefore go thou, and read in the roll, which thou hast written from my mouth, the words of the LORD before the ears of the people in the house of the LORD on the fast-day; and also before the ears of all Judah that come out of their cities shalt thou read them.

7 Perhaps it may be that they will humbly present[b] their supplication before the LORD, and will return every one from his evil way; for great are the anger and the fury that the LORD hath decreed against this people.

8 And Baruch the son of Neriyah did in accordance with all that Jeremiah the prophet had commanded him, to read in the book the words of the LORD in the house of the LORD.

9 ¶ And it came to pass in the fifth year of Jehoyakim the son of Josiah the king of Judah, in the ninth month, that they proclaimed a fast before the LORD for all the people in Jerusalem, and for all the people that came from the cities of Judah unto Jerusalem.

10 And Baruch read in the book the words of Jeremiah in the house of the LORD, in the chamber of Gemaryahu the son of Shaphan the scribe, in the upper court, at the entrance of the new gate of the LORD'S house, before the ears of all the people.

11 And when Michayhu the son of Gemaryahu, the son of Shaphan, had heard all the words of the LORD out of the book:

12 He went down into the king's house, into the scribe's chamber; and, lo, all the princes were sitting there, even Elishama' the scribe, and Delayahu the son of Shema'yahu, and Elnathan the son of 'Achbor, and Gemaryahu the son of Shaphan, and Zedekiah the son of Chananyahu, and all the princes.

13 And Michayhu told unto them all the words which he had heard, when Baruch read in the book before the ears of the people.

14 Thereupon sent all the princes Jehudi the son of Nethanyahu, the son of Shelemyahu, the son of Cushi, unto Baruch, saying, The roll wherein thou hast read before the ears of the people,—this take in thy hand, and come. So Baruch the son of Neriyahu took the roll in his hand, and came unto them.

15 And they said unto him, Sit down, we pray thee, and read it before our ears. So Baruch read it before their ears.

16 Now it came to pass, when they heard all the words, they looked terrified at each other, and they said unto Baruch, We will surely tell the king of all these words.

17 And they asked Baruch, saying, Do tell us, How didst thou write down all these words from his mouth?

18 Then said Baruch unto them, With his mouth did he utter clearly all these words unto me, and I wrote them in the book with ink.[a]

19 ¶ Then said the princes unto Baruch, Go, hide thyself, thou with Jeremiah; and let no man know where ye are.

20 And they went in to the king into the court, but the roll they had put in safe keeping in the chamber of Elishama' the scribe; and they told before the ears of the king all the words.

21 But the king sent Jehudi to fetch the roll; and he took it out of the chamber of Elishama' the scribe. And Jehudi read it before the ears of the king, and before the ears of all the princes who stood around the king.

22 Now the king was sitting in the winter-house in the ninth month:[b] and a pan of coals was burning before him.

23 And it came to pass, when Jehudi had read three or four pages, that he cut it with the writer's knife, and cast it into the fire that was in the coal-pan, until all the roll was consumed in the fire that was in the coal-pan.

24 Yet they were not terrified, nor did they rend their garments, either the king, or any of his servants that had heard all these words.

25 And although Elnathan and Delayahu and Gemaryahu had also made intercession with the king that he might not burn the roll, he would not listen to them.

26 And the king commanded Yerachmeël the son of the king,[c] and Serayahu the son of 'Azriël, and Shelemyahu the son of 'Abdeël, to seize on Baruch the scribe and Jeremiah the prophet; but the LORD hid them.

27 ¶ Then came the word of the LORD to Jeremiah, after the king had burnt the roll, and the words which Baruch had written down from the mouth of Jeremiah, saying,

[a] No doubt but that the princes, touched for the moment by the denunciation which they had heard, desired to report the words to the king, in the hope of producing an amendment; but they wished first to be convinced that Baruch had not misrepresented the prophet, who, though not loved, was yet fully believed by the better informed of the people. This doubt was removed by the simplicity of the answer, which is in substance that the amanuensis only wrote down the words as they fell distinctly from the inspired lips of the seër.

[b] The month of Kislev, as now called, coincident with December, or November and December.

[c] Others take Hammelech as a proper name, as Jehoyakim had at that time no grown son.

28 Take thee again another roll, and write on it all the former words that have been on the first roll, which Jehoyakim the king of Judah hath burnt.

29 And concerning Jehoyakim the king of Judah shalt thou say, Thus hath said the LORD, Thou hast indeed burnt this roll, saying, Why hast thou written therein, saying, The king of Babylon shall certainly come and destroy this land, and shall cause to cease therefrom man and beast?

30 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the LORD concerning Jehoyakim the king of Judah, He shall have no one to sit upon the throne of David; and his dead body shall be cast out to the heat in the day, and to the cold in the night.

31 And I will visit on him and on his seed and on his servants their iniquity; and I will bring over them, and over the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and against the men of Judah, all the evil that I have spoken against them, while they did not hearken.

32 ¶ And Jeremiah took another roll, and gave it to Baruch the son of Neriyahu the scribe; who wrote thereon from the mouth of Jeremiah all the words of the book which Jehoyakim the king of Judah had burnt in the fire: and there were yet added unto them many words like them.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

1 ¶ And Zedekiah the son of Josiah reigned as king in the place of Conyahu the son of Jehoyakim, whom Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon made king in the land of Judah.

2 But neither he, nor his servants, nor the people of the land, did hearken unto the words of the LORD, which he had spoken by means of Jeremiah the prophet.

3 And king Zedekiah sent Jehuchal the son of Shelemyah and Zephanyahu the son of Ma'asseyah the priest unto Jeremiah the prophet, saying, Pray now in our behalf unto the LORD our God.

4 Now Jeremiah came and went out among the people; and they put him not into the prison-house.

5 But the army of Pharaoh was come forth out of Egypt: and when the Chaldeans that besieged Jerusalem heard the report of them, they withdrew from Jerusalem.

6 ¶ Then came the word of the LORD unto Jeremiah the prophet, saying,

7 Thus hath said the LORD, the God of Israel, Thus shall ye say to the king of Judah, that hath sent you unto me to inquire of me, Behold, Pharaoh's army, which is come forth to help you, returneth into its own land to Egypt.

8 But the Chaldeans will come again, and fight against this city, and capture it, and burn it with fire.

9 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, Deceive not yourselves, saying, The Chaldeans will certainly go away from us; for they will not go away.

10 For if even ye had smitten the whole army of the Chaldeans that fight against you, and there remained among them (only such) men as are pierced through: yet should they rise up, every man in his tent, and burn this city with fire.

11 And it came to pass, when the army of the Chaldeans had withdrawn from Jerusalem because of the army of Pharaoh, 12 ¶ That Jeremiah went forth out of Jerusalem to go into the land of Benjamin, to make his escape[a] thence in the midst of the people.

13 But as he was in the gate of Benjamin, there was there a captain of the guardsmen, whose name was Yiriyah, the son of Shelemyah, the son of Chananyah; and he seized hold of Jeremiah the prophet, saying, Thou runnest away to the Chaldeans.

14 But Jeremiah said, It is false; I am not running away to the Chaldeans. But he listened not to him; and Yiriyah seized hold of Jeremiah, and brought him to the princes.

15 Thereupon were the princes wroth with Jeremiah, and struck him, and put him in prison in the house of Jonathan the scribe; for that had they made into a prison-house.

16 When Jeremiah had been placed in the dungeon, within the traders' shops,[b] where Jeremiah remained many days:

17 King Zedekiah sent, and had him taken

[a] Redak; but Jonathan and Rashi, "to divide his property;" but the sense is, probably, that he feared ill-usage, and desired to escape it by a timely flight.

[b] Jonathan considers that in the front of the prison there were traders' shops where goods were sold. Others regard חניית as synonymous with "the keep" of a castle, or out, and the king asked him in his house in secret, and said, "Is there any word from the LORD?" And Jeremiah said, "There is:" and he said, Into the hand of the king of Babylon shalt thou be given up.

18 And Jeremiah said unto king Zedekiah, What have I sinned against thee, and against thy servants, and against this people, that ye have put me into the prison-house?

19 And where are now your prophets who have prophesied unto you, saying, The king of Babylon will not come against you, and against this land?

20 Yet now, do but hear, I pray thee, O my lord the king: let me offer my humble supplication, I pray thee, before thee, that thou wilt not make me return to the house of Jonathan the scribe, lest I die there.

21 Then commanded king Zedekiah that they should put Jeremiah in ward in the court of the prison, and that they should give him a loaf of bread for every day out of the bakers' street, until all the bread was spent out of the city. Thus Jeremiah remained in the court of the prison.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

1 And Shephatyah the son of Matthan, and Gedalyahu the son of Pashchur, and Juchal the son of Shelemyahu, and Pashchur the son of Malkiyah, heard the words that Jeremiah was speaking unto all the people, saying,

2 Thus hath said the LORD, He that remaineth in this city shall die by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence; but he that goeth forth to the Chaldeans shall live; and he shall have his life as a booty, and shall live.

3 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, This city shall surely be given up into the hand of the army of the king of Babylon, and he shall capture it.

4 Thereupon said the princes unto the king, We beseech thee, let this man be put to death; for the cause that he weakeneth the hands of the men of war that are yet left in this city, and the hands of all the people, by speaking such words unto them; for this man seeketh not the welfare of this people, but their hurt.

5 Then said king Zedekiah, Behold, he is in your hand; for the king is not able to do any thing against you.

6 Then did they take Jeremiah, and cast him into the pit of Malkiyahu the son of the king,[a] that was in the court of the prison: and they let Jeremiah down with cords; but in the pit there was no water, but mire; so that Jeremiah sunk into the mire.

7 Now when 'Ebed-melech the Cushi,[b] a eunuch who was in the king's house, heard that they had placed Jeremiah into the pit; while the king was sitting in the gate of Benjamin:

8 'Ebed-melech went forth out of the king's house, and spoke to the king, saying,

9 My lord, O king, these men have done wrong in all that they have done to Jeremiah the prophet, whom they have cast into the pit; and he would have had to die (as it is) in the place where he was for hunger; for there is no more bread in the city.

10 The king then commanded 'Ebed-melech the Cushi, saying, Take with thee from here thirty men, and bring up Jeremiah the prophet out of the pit, before he die.

11 So 'Ebed-melech took the men with him, and went into the house of the king under the treasury, and took thence cast-off clothes and old rags, and let them down into the pit to Jeremiah by cords.

12 And 'Ebed-melech the Cushi said unto Jeremiah, Put, I pray, these cast-off clothes and old rags under thy arm-pits beneath the cords. And Jeremiah did so.

13 So they drew up Jeremiah with cords, and brought him up out of the pit: and Jeremiah remained in the court of the prison.

14 Then sent king Zedekiah, and took Jeremiah the prophet unto him into the third entry that was in the house of the LORD; and the king said unto Jeremiah, I will ask thee something: conceal nothing from me.

15 Then said Jeremiah unto Zedekiah, If I should tell it unto thee, behold, thou wilt surely put me to death; and if I should another term for prison, but only used so as occasion required, since there were probably no regular prison-buildings in Palestine.

give thee counsel, thou wilt not hearken unto me.

16 So king Zedekiah swore unto Jeremiah secretly, saying, As the LORD liveth, who hath made for us this soul, I will not put thee to death, nor will I give thee up into the hand of these men that seek thy life.

17 ¶ Then said Jeremiah unto Zedekiah, Thus hath said the LORD, the God of hosts, the God of Israel, If thou wilt indeed go forth unto the princes of the king of Babylon, then shall thy soul live, and this city shall not be burnt with fire; and thou shalt live, thou with thy household;

18 But if thou wilt not go forth to the princes of the king of Babylon, then shall this city be given up into the hand of the Chaldeans, and they shall burn it with fire, and thou thyself shalt not escape out of their hand.

19 ¶ Then said king Zedekiah unto Jeremiah, I am in dread of the Jews that have run away to the Chaldeans, lest these deliver me into their hand, and they might ill-use[a] me.

20 ¶ But Jeremiah said, They will not give (thee) up. Obey, I beseech thee, the voice of the LORD, in that which I speak unto thee; so it shall be well unto thee, and thy soul shall live.

21 But if thou refuse to go forth, this is the word that the LORD hath shown me:

22 And behold, all the women that are left in the house of the king of Judah shall be led forth to the princes of the king of Babylon; and these women shall say, "They have enticed, and have overpersuaded thee —thy men that should have sought thy welfare;[b] thy feet are (now) sunk in the mire, and they have withdrawn themselves backward."

23 And all thy wives and thy children shall they bring out to the Chaldeans; and thou thyself shalt not escape out of their hand; for by the hand of the king of Babylon shalt thou be caught; and this city wilt thou cause[c] to be burnt with fire.

24 ¶ Then said Zedekiah unto Jeremiah, Let no man know of these words, that thou mayest not die.

25 And if the princes should hear that I have spoken with thee, and they come unto thee, and say unto thee, Tell us, we pray thee, what thou hast spoken unto the king, conceal it not from us, and we will not put thee to death; also what the king hath spoken unto thee:

26 Then shalt thou say unto them, I presented my humble supplication before the king, that he would not send me back to the house of Jonathan, to die there.

27 ¶ And all the princes came unto Jeremiah, and asked him: and he told them in accordance with all these words that the king had commanded. And they turned away silent from him; for the matter had not been made public.[d]

28 And Jeremiah remained in the court of the prison until the day that Jerusalem was taken.

¶ And[e] it came to pass when Jerusalem was captured,

CHAPTER XXXIX.

1 In the ninth year of Zedekiah the king of Judah, in the tenth month, that Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon came with all his army against Jerusalem, and they besieged it.

2 (And) in the eleventh year of Zedekiah, in the fourth month, on the ninth day of the month, was the city broken in.

3 ¶ And then came all the princes of the king of Babylon, and sat down in the middle gate; (namely,) Neregal-sharezer, Samgar-nebu, Sarsechim, the chief of the eunuchs, Neregal-sharezer, the chief of the magi, with all the residue of the princes of the king of Babylon.

4 And it came to pass when Zedekiah the king of Judah saw them, and all the men of war, that they fled, and went forth out of the city by night, by the way of the king's garden, by the gate between the two walls: and he went out by the way of the plain.

[e] According to the Massorah, which makes here a section, chapter xxxix. should commence with the word "And."

5 But the army of the Chaldeans pursued after them, and they overtook Zedekiah in the plains of Jericho; and they took him, and brought him up to Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon to Riblah in the land of Chamath: and he called him to account.[a]

6 And the king of Babylon slaughtered the sons of Zedekiah in Riblah before his eyes; also all the nobles of Judah did the king of Babylon slaughter.

7 And the eyes of Zedekiah did he blind; and he bound him with brazen fetters, to carry him to Babylon.

8 And the house of the king, and the houses of the people did the Chaldeans burn with fire, and the walls of Jerusalem did they pull down.

9 And the rest of the people that remained in the city, and those who had run away that had run away to him, with the rest of the people that remained, did Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard carry off into exile to to Babylon.

10 But of the poorest of the people, who had nothing, did Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard leave some in the land of Judah, and gave them vineyards and arable fields at the same time.

11 And Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon gave charge concerning Jeremiah through means of Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard, saying, 12 Take him, and direct thy eyes to him, and do him not the least harm; but as he may speak unto thee, even so do thou with him.

13 Then sent Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard, and Nebushazban, the chief of the eunuchs, and Nereg-al-sharezer, the chief of the magi, and all the chiefs of the king of Babylon,—

14 Even they sent, and took Jeremiah out of the court of the prison, and they committed him unto Gedalyahu the son of Achikam the son of Shaphan, to carry him home: and he remained in the midst of the people.

15 ¶ But unto Jeremiah was come the word of the LORD while he was shut up in the court of the prison, saying,

16 Go and say to 'Ebed-melech the Cushi as followeth, Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Behold, I will bring my words (to fulfilment) against this city for evil, and not for good; and they shall be accomplished before thee on that day.

17 But I will deliver thee on that day, saith the LORD; and thou shalt not be given up into the hand of the men of whom thou hast dread.

18 For I will surely let thee escape, and thou shalt not fall by the sword; but thy life shall be unto thee as a booty; because thou hast put thy trust in me, saith the LORD.

CHAPTER XL.

1 ¶ The word that came unto Jeremiah from the LORD, after Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard had dismissed him from Ramah, when he had taken him as he was bound in chains in the midst of all the exiles of Jerusalem and Judah, who were carried away into exile unto Babylon.

2 Then took the captain of the guard Jeremiah, and said unto him, The LORD thy God had spoken this evil over this place;

3 Now the LORD hath brought it (to fulfilment), and hath done according as he had spoken; because ye had sinned against the LORD, and had not hearkened to his voice; and therefore is this thing come upon you.

4 And now, behold, I have freed thee this day from the chains which were upon thy hand. If it seem good in thy eyes to come with me to Babylon, come, and I will direct my eye unto thee; but if it seem ill in thy eyes to come with me to Babylon, forbear: behold, all the land is before thee; whither it seemeth good and proper in thy eyes to go, thither go.

5 And as he did not yet turn about, (he said,) Go then back to Gedalyah the son of Achikam the son of Shaphan, whom the king of Babylon hath appointed governor over the cities of Judah, and dwell with him in the midst of the people; or wheresoever it seemeth proper in thy eyes to go, go. And the captain of the guard gave him an allowance and a present, and then dismissed him.

6 So did Jeremiah come unto Gedalyah the son of Achikam to Mizpah; and he dwelt with him in the midst of the people that had been left in the land.

[a] Rashi; lit. "he spoke with him judgments;" meaning, he demanded an account for the breach of his oath of fidelity.

7 ¶ Now when all the captains of the armies who were in the field, they and their men, heard that the king of Babylon had appointed Gedalyahu the son of Achikam governor over the land, and that he had intrusted unto him men, and women, and children, and those of the poorest of the land, of those that had not been carried away into exile to Babylon:

8 Then came they to Gedalyah to Mizpah, even Ishmael the son of Nethanyahu, and Jochanan and Jonathan the sons of Kareäch, and Serayah the son of Tanchumeth, and the sons of 'Ephai the Netophathite, and Yezanyahu the son of a Ma'achathite, they and their men.

9 And Gedalyahu the son of Achikam the son of Shaphan swore unto them and unto their men, saying, Have no fear to serve the Chaldeans: remain in the land, and serve the king of Babylon, and it will be well with you.

10 As for me, behold, I will dwell at Mizpah, to stand before[a] the Chaldeans, who will come unto us; but ye, gather ye together wine, and summer-fruits, and oil, and put them in your vessels, and dwell in your cities of which ye have taken possession.

11 And so likewise all the Jews that were in Moäb, and among the children of 'Ammon, and in Edom, and that were in all the countries, heard that the king of Babylon had left a remnant unto Judah, and that he had appointed over them Gedalyahu the son of Achikam the son of Shaphan;

12 And then did all the Jews return out of all places whither they had been driven, and came to the land of Judah, to Gedalyahu, unto Mizpah, and gathered together wine and summer-fruits in very great abundance.

13 And Jochanan the son of Kareäch, and all the captains of the armies that were in the field, came to Gedalyahu to Mizpah, 14 And they said unto him, Dost thou at all know that Ba'alis the king of the children of 'Ammon hath sent Ishmael the son of Nethanyah to deprive thee of life? But Gedalyahu the son of Achikam believed them not.

15 And Jochanan the son of Kareäch said to Gedalyahu secretly in Mizpah, as followeth, Let me go, I pray thee, and I will slay Ishmael the son of Nethanyah, and no man shall know of it: wherefore should he deprive thee of life, whereby all the Jews who are gathered unto thee would be scattered, and the remnant of Judah be lost?

16 But Gedalyahu the son of Achikam said unto Jochanan the son of Kareäch, Thou shalt not do this thing; for thou speakest a falsehood concerning Ishmael.

CHAPTER XLI.

1 ¶ Now it came to pass in the seventh month, that Ishmael the son of Nethanyah the son of Elishama', of the royal seed, and the chiefs of the king, even ten men with him, came unto Gedalyahu the son of Achikam to Mizpah; and they ate there bread together in Mizpah.

2 Then arose Ishmael the son of Nethanyah, and the ten men that were with him, and smote Gedalyahu the son of Achikam the son of Shaphan with the sword, and put to death him, whom the king of Babylon had appointed governor over the land.[b]

3 And all the Jews that were with him, even with Gedalyahu, at Mizpah, and the Chaldeans that were found there, even the men of war, did Ishmael slay.

4 And it came to pass on the second day after he had put Gedalyahu to death, while no man knew of it,

5 That there came certain men from Shechem, from Shiloh, and from Samaria, eighty men (in all), having their beards shaven, and their clothes rent, and having cut themselves, with meat-offerings and frankincense in their hand, to bring the same to the house of the LORD.[c]

6 And Ishmael the son of Nethanyah went forth from Mizpah to meet them, going along and weeping: and it came to pass as he met them, that he said unto them, Come to Gedalyahu the son of Achikam.

[a] i. e. To represent the people with the Chaldeans; and so does Philippson translate it.

[b] As the death of Gedalyah was the cause of the entire expulsion of the Jews from Palestine, the anniversary of this sad event is kept as a fast-day throughout Israel.

[c] It may be observed, that the signs of mourning by means of incisions in the flesh were prohibited. The sacrifices which these men brought, Rashi conceives, were devoted before they had heard that the temple was destroyed, which news only reached them on their journey; but Philippson, with more probability, supposes that an altar had been erected on the ruins of the temple, as later in Ezra's time, (see Ezra iii. 2, 3,) since the people always clung to the ceremonial observances of their religion.

7 And it happened, as they entered into the midst of the city, that Ishmael the son of Nethanyah slaughtered them, (and cast them) into the midst of the cistern, he, and the men that were with him.

8 But ten men were found among them that said unto Ishmael, Slay us not; for we have some things hidden in the field, (such as) wheat, and barley, and oil, and honey. So he forbore, and slew them not in the midst of their brethren.

9 And the cistern wherein Ishmael cast all the corpses of the men, whom he had slain in company[a] with Gedalyahu, is the same which king Assa had made on account of Ba'sha the king of Israel: this did Ishmael the son of Nethanyah fill with slain persons.

10 Then did Ishmael carry away captive all the residue of the people that were in Mizpah, the king's daughters, and all the people that were remaining in Mizpah, whom Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard had intrusted to Gedalyahu the son of Achikam: and Ishmael the son of Nethanyah carried them away captive, and went off to pass over to the children of 'Ammon.

11 But when Jochanan the son of Kareäch, and all the captains of the armies that were with him, heard of all the evil that Ishmael the son of Nethanyah had done:

12 Then did they take all the men, and went to fight with Ishmael the son of Nethanyah, and found him by the great water(-pool) that is near Gib'on.

13 And it came to pass, when all the people who were with Ishmael saw Jochanan the son of Kareäch, and all the captains of the armies that were with him, that they were rejoiced.

14 And all the people that Ishmael had carried away captive from Mizpah turned about and returned, and went unto Jochanan the son of Kareäch.

15 But Ishmael the son of Nethanyah escaped with eight men from the presence of Jochanan, and he went to the children of 'Ammon.

16 Then took Jochanan the son of Kareäch, and all the captains of the armies that were with him, all the remnant of the people whom he had recovered from Ishmael the son of Nethanyah, from Mizpah, after he had slain Gedalyah the son of Achikam, the adult males, the men of war, and the women, and the children, and the eunuchs, whom he had brought back from Gib'on;

17 And they went, and remained in Geruth-Kimham,[b] which is by Beth-lechem, to go to enter into Egypt, 18 Because of the Chaldeans; for they were afraid of them; because Ishmael the son of Nethanyah had slain Gedalyahu the son of Achikam, whom the king of Babylon had appointed governor over the land.

CHAPTER XLII.

1 ¶ Then came near all the captains of the armies, and Jochanan the son of Kareäch, and Yezanyah the son of Hosha'yah, and all the people from the least even unto the greatest,

2 And said unto Jeremiah the prophet, Let, we beseech thee, our humble supplication be accepted before thee, and pray in our behalf unto the LORD thy God, in behalf of all this remnant; (for we are left but a few of many, as thy own eyes do see us:)

3 That the LORD thy God may tell us the way whereon we should walk, and the thing that we should do.

4 Then said Jeremiah the prophet unto them, I have heard you: behold, I will pray unto the LORD your God according to your words; and it shall come to pass, that whatsoever thing the LORD will answer you, I will tell unto you; I will withhold not a word from you.

5 But they said to Jeremiah, May the LORD be a true and faithful witness against us, if we do not act entirely according to all the word with which the LORD thy God may send thee to us:

6 Whether it be good, or whether it be evil, we will hearken to the voice of the LORD our God, to whom we send thee; in order that it may be well with us, when we hearken to the voice of the LORD our God.

7 ¶ And it came to pass at the end of ten days, that the word of the LORD came unto Jeremiah.

[a] בִּיד is given by Rashi, "through fault." Zuuz, however, "in the train," or, as given here, "in company." But literally, "by the hand."

8 Then called he Jochanan the son of Kareäch, and all the captains of the armies who were with him, and all the people from the least even to the greatest,

9 And he said unto them, Thus hath said the LORD, the God of Israel, unto whom ye sent me to present your humble supplication before him:

10 If ye will indeed remain in this land, then will I build you up, and I will not pull you down, and I will plant you, and not pluck you up; for I have bethought me of the evil that I have done unto you.

11 Be ye not afraid because of the king of Babylon, of whom ye are afraid: have no fear of him, saith the LORD; for I am with you to save you, and to deliver you out of his hand.

12 And I will give unto you mercy, that he may have mercy upon you, and let you return to your own land.

13 But if ye say, We will not remain in this land, so as not to hearken to the voice of the LORD your God,

14 Saying, No; but into the land of Egypt will we go, that we may not see war, nor hear the sound of the cornet, and that we may not have hunger for bread; and there will we dwell;

15 And now therefore hear the word of the LORD, ye remnant of Judah, Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, If ye will indeed set your faces to enter into Egypt, and go thither to sojourn there:

16 Then shall the sword, of which ye are afraid, there overtake you in the land of Egypt; and the famine, whereof ye are in dread, shall there cleave close unto you in Egypt; and there shall ye die.

17 So shall be all the men that have set their faces to go into Egypt to sojourn there, —they shall die by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence; and they shall have none that remaineth or escapeth from the evil that I am bringing over them.

18 For thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel. As my anger and my fury were poured forth over the inhabitants of Jerusalem: so shall my fury be poured forth over you, when ye enter into Egypt; and ye shall become an oath, and an astonishment, and a curse, and a disgrace; and ye shall never see this place again.

19 The LORD hath spoken concerning you, O ye remnant of Judah, "Ye shall not go into Egypt:" ye must know for certain that I have warned you this day.

20 For ye have dissembled in regard to what your intentions[a] are; for ye sent me unto the LORD your God, saying, Pray in our behalf unto the LORD our God: and in accordance with all that the LORD our God may say, so tell unto us, and we will do it.

21 And I have told it to you this day; but ye have not hearkened to the voice of the LORD your God, and this in all with which he hath sent me unto you.

22 But now know for certain that ye shall die by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence, in the place whither ye desire to go to sojourn there.

CHAPTER XLIII.

1 ¶ And it came to pass, when Jeremiah had made an end of speaking unto the whole people all the words of the LORD their God, with which the LORD their God had sent him to them, (namely,) all these words,

2 ¶ That then spoke 'Azaryah the son of Hosha'yah, and Jochanan the son of Kareäch, and all the presumptuous[b] men, saying unto Jeremiah, Thou speakest falsely: the LORD our God hath not sent thee to say, Ye shall not go into Egypt to sojourn there;

3 But Baruch the son of Neriyah setteth thee on against us, in order to deliver us into the hand of the Chaldeans, that they may put us to death, or carry us away as exiles to Babylon.

4 So Jochanan the son of Kareäch, and all the captains of the armies, and all the people, hearkened not to the voice of the LORD, to remain in the land of Judah.

5 But Jochanan the son of Kareäch, and all the captains of the armies, took all the remnant of Judah, that were retured from all the nations, whither they had been driven, to sojourn in the land of Judah;

[a] Redak; but Philippson, after Rosenmuller and others, "You have committed a deception to the injury of your souls, when you sent," &c.

[b] i. e. Those who knowingly disobeyed; their pretended deference to the divine command did but heighten their guilt, as it proved their wilful disobedience.

6 The men, and the women, and the children, and the king's daughters, and every person that Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard had left with Gedalyahu the son of Achikam the son of Shaphan; and Jeremiah the prophet, and Baruch the son of Neriyah;

7 And they entered into the land of Egypt; for they hearkened not to the voice of the LORD; and they came as far as Thachpanches.

8 ¶ Then came the word of the LORD unto Jeremiah in Thachpanches, saying,

9 Take great stones in thy hand, and hide them in the mortar[a] in the brick-kiln which is at the entrance of Pharaoh's house in Thachpanches, before the eyes of the Jewish men;

10 And thou shalt say unto them, Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Behold, I will send for and take Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon, my servant, and I will set his throne above these stones that I have hidden; and he shall spread his royal pavilion[b] over them.

11 And he shall come and smite the land of Egypt: such as are destined for death shall be given to death; and such as are destined for captivity, to captivity; and such as are destined for the sword, to the sword.

12 And I will kindle a fire in the houses of the gods of Egypt, and he shall burn them, and carry them away captive: and he shall wrap around[c] him the land of Egypt, as a shepherd wrappeth his garment around him; and he shall go forth from there in peace.

13 And he shall break the statues of Beth-shemesh,[d] which is in the land of Egypt; and the houses of the gods of the Egyptians shall he burn with fire.

CHAPTER XLIV.

1 ¶ The word that came to Jeremiah for all the Jews who dwell in the land of Egypt, who dwell at Migdol, and at Thachpanches, and at Noph, and in the country of Pathros, saying,

2 Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, You yourselves have seen all the evil that I have brought over Jerusalem, and over all the cities of Judah; and, behold, they are ruins this day, and no man is dwelling in them;

3 Because of their wickedness which they had committed to provoke me to anger, by going to burn incense, to serve other gods, whom they did not know, either they, you, or your fathers.

4 And I sent unto you all my servants the prophets, making them rise early and sending them, saying, Oh, do not commit this abominable thing which I hate.

5 But they hearkened not, and inclined not their ear to turn away from their wickedness, so as not to burn incense unto other gods.

6 Whereupon my fury and my anger were poured forth, and were enkindled in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem: and they are become ruins, a desert, as at this day.

7 ¶ And now thus hath said the LORD, the God of hosts, the God of Israel, Wherefore do ye commit so great an evil against your souls, so as to cut off unto you man and woman, child and suckling, out of the midst of Judah, so as not to leave you any remainder,

8 By provoking me unto wrath with the works of your hands, in burning incense unto other gods in the land of Egypt, whither ye are come to sojourn there, in order to cut yourselves off, and in order that ye might become a curse and a disgrace among all the nations of the earth?

9 Have ye forgotten the wickedness of your fathers, and the wickedness of the kings of Judah, and the wickedness of their wives, and your own wickedness, and the wickedness of your wives, which they had committed in the land of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem?

10 They are not humbled even up to this day, and they are not afraid, and they walk

[a] Rashi, "hide them, wrapping them up with clay;" but Redak, simply, "mortar."

[b] Philippson, "carpet," which he prefers to "pavilion."

[c] Meaning, he shall take away all the spoil of Egypt. Rashi, "he shall wrap around him all the booty of Egypt and go out, as the shepherd rolleth and wrappeth up his garment and easteth it from his shoulders when he leadeth forth his flock before him." Philippson, "as the shepherd wraps his cloak around him to remain uninjured by the assaults of the storm."

not in my law, nor in my statutes, that I have set before you and before your fathers.

11 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Behold, I will set my face against you for evil, and to cut off all Judah.

12 And I will take the remnant of Judah, that have set their faces to go into the land of Egypt to sojourn there, and they shall all come to their end, and in the land of Egypt shall they fall: by the sword (and) by the famine shall they come to their end; from the least even unto the greatest, by the sword and by the famine shall they die; and they shall become an oath, an astonishment, and a curse, and a disgrace.

13 And I will inflict punishment on those that dwell in the land of Egypt, as I have inflicted punishment on Jerusalem, through the sword, through the famine, and through the pestilence:

14 So that there shall be no one that escapeth or remaineth of the remnant of Judah, who are gone into the land of Egypt to sojourn there, that they should return into the land of Judah, to which they direct (the desire of) their soul to return thither to dwell there; for they shall not return, but such as shall escape.[a]

15 ¶ Then did all the men who knew that their wives were burning incense unto other gods, and all the women that stood by, a great multitude, and all the people that dwelt in the land of Egypt, in Pathros, answer Jeremiah, saying,

16 Respecting the word that thou hast spoken unto us in the name of the LORD, we will not hearken unto thee.

17 For to a surety we will do all the word that is gone forth out of our own mouth, to burn incense unto the queen of heaven, and to pour out drink-offerings unto her, as we have done, we, and our fathers, our kings, and our princes, in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem: when we had plenty of food, and fared well, and saw no evil.

18 But since the time we have left off to burn incense to the queen of heaven, and to pour out drink-offerings unto her, have we had a lack of every thing; and we have come to our end through the sword and through the famine.

19 And when we burnt incense to the queen of heaven, and poured out drink-offerings unto her,—was this without (the consent of[b]) our husbands, that we did make cakes for her to make her image, and pour out drink-offerings unto her?

20 ¶ Then said Jeremiah unto all the people, to the men, and to the women, and to all the people who had answered him (with that) word, saying,

21 Behold, it was the incense that ye burnt in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem, ye, and your fathers, your kings, and your princes, and the people of the land, which the LORD remembered, and which came into his mind;

22 So that the LORD could no longer endure it, because of the evil of your doings, because of the abominations which ye had committed: therefore is your land become a ruin, and an (object of) astonishment, and a curse, without an inhabitant, as at this day.

23 Because that ye had burnt incense, and because ye had sinned against the LORD, and had not hearkened to the voice of the LORD, and had not walked in his law, in his statutes, and in his testimonies: therefore did this evil befall you, as it is this day.

24 ¶ And Jeremiah said (farther) to all the people, and to all the women, Hear the word of the LORD, all Judah that are in the land of Egypt,

25 Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, saying, Ye and your wives have both spoken with your mouth, and fulfilled with your hands, saying, We will surely perform our vows that we have vowed, to burn

[a] The denunciation of the prophet is thus qualified by this clause; as an entire body they should never return: only a few that should escape the general destruction were to see again the land of Israel. Philippson draws attention to the contrast between the exiles in Babylon, who, from the moment of their entrance there, returned to the law, and the fugitives to Egypt, who lapsed into idolatry.

[b] This verse is rendered after Rashi. It appears that the women took the lead in resisting the admonition to abstain from idolatry, and they ascribed worldly success to the practices they detail. להקטיר עצב "an image," to make images of the moon in dough, which custom also is said to have obtained among the Greeks. incense to the queen of heaven, and to pour out drink-offerings unto her: ye will fully accomplish your vows, and fully perform your vows.

26 Therefore hear ye the word of the LORD, all Judah that dwell in the land of Egypt, Behold, I have sworn by my great name, saith the LORD, that my name shall no more be called by the mouth of any man of Judah, saying, "As the Lord Eternal liveth," in all the land of Egypt.

27 Behold, I will watch over them for evil, and not for good: and all the men of Judah that are in the land of Egypt shall come to their end through the sword and through the famine, until they be destroyed.

28 Yet some that escape the sword shall return out of the land of Egypt into the land of Judah, but few in number; and all the remnant of Judah, that are come into the land of Egypt to sojourn there, shall know whose words shall stand firm, mine, or theirs.

29 And this shall be unto you the sign, saith the LORD, that I will inflict punishment on you in this place, in order that ye may know that my words shall surely stand firm against you for evil:

30 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, Behold, I will give Pharaoh-chophra[a] the king of Egypt into the hand of his enemies, and into the hand of those that seek his life, as I gave Zedekiah the king of Judah into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon, his enemy, and who had sought his life.

CHAPTER XLV.

1 ¶ The word which Jeremiah the prophet spoke unto Baruch the son of Neriyah, when he wrote these words in a book out of the mouth of Jeremiah, in the fourth year of Jehoyakim the son of Josiah the king of Judah, saying,

2 Thus hath said the LORD, the God of Israel, concerning thee, O Baruch:

3 Thou didst say, Wo is me now! for the LORD hath added grief to my pain; I am wearied in my sighing, and rest have I not found;

4 Thus shalt thou say unto him, Thus hath the LORD said, Behold, what I have built will I pull down, and what I have planted I will pluck up; and so it is with this whole land.

5 And wouldst thou indeed seek great things for thyself? seek them not; for, behold, I will bring evil upon all flesh, saith the LORD; but I will give thy life unto thee as a booty in all the places whither thou mayest go.

CHAPTER XLVI.

1 ¶ The word of the LORD which came to Jeremiah the prophet against the nations:

2 Concerning Egypt, against the army of Pharaoh-necho the king of Egypt, which was (posted) by the river Euphrates in Karkemish, which Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon smote in the fourth year of Jehoyakim the son of Josiah the king of Judah.

3 Make ye ready shield and buckler, and draw near to the battle.

4 Harness the horses, and mount, ye horsemen, and stand forth with helmets: sharpen[a] the spears, and put on the coats of mail.

5 Wherefore have I seen them dismayed, moving backward? while their mighty ones are beaten down, and seek safety in flight, and look not back? There is terror round about, saith the LORD.

6 The swift cannot flee away, nor can the mighty man escape: toward the north by the shore of the river Euphrates do they stumble and fall.

7 Who is this that cometh up like a stream, whose waters are upheaved like the rivers?

8 Egypt cometh up like a stream, and like the rivers are the waters upheaved; and he saith, I will go up, I will cover the land; I will destroy the city and those that dwell therein.

9 Come up, ye horses; and rush along wildly, ye chariots; and let the mighty men come forth: Cush[b] and Put, that grasp the shield, and the Ludim, that grasp and bend the bow.

10 And this same day is for the Lord, the Eternal of hosts, a day of vengeance, to be avenged on his adversaries; that the sword may devour, and may be satiated and made drunken with their blood; for there is a sacrifice for the Lord the Eternal of hosts in the north country by the river Euphrates.

11 Go up into Gil'ad, and fetch balm, O virgin, daughter of Egypt: in vain usest thou many remedies; there is no recovery for thee.

12 Nations have heard of thy shame, and thy cry of anguish hath filled the earth; for the mighty man over the mighty have they stumbled, together are both of them fallen.

13 ¶ The word which the LORD spoke to Jeremiah the prophet, concerning the coming of Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon, to smite the land of Egypt.

14 Announce ye in Egypt, and publish in Migdol, and publish in Noph and in Thachpanches: say ye, Stand fast, and prepare thyself; for the sword devoureth round about thee.

15 Why are thy valiant men swept away? not one hath stood, because the LORD did drive him off.

16 He caused many to stumble; yea, one also fell over the other; and they said, Arise, and let us return to our own people, and to the land of our birth, from before the wasting sword.

17 They called out there, Pharaoh is king[a] of Egypt, it was but vaunting, he hath let the time appointed pass by.

18 As I live, saith the King, the LORD of hosts is his name, Surely as Thabor is among the mountains, and as Carmel is by the sea, so shall he[b] come.

19 Appurtenances of exile make for thyself, O thou inhabitress, daughter of Egypt; for Noph shall be made a waste and be left desolate without an inhabitant.

20 ¶ O fairest heifer, Egypt! the butcher from the north cometh, he cometh.

21 Also her hired troops[c] in the midst of her are like fatted calves; for they also are turned round, are fled away together, they do not stand; because the day of their calamity is come upon them, the time of their punishment.

22 Her cry shall come like (the hissing of) a serpent; for with an army shall they march, and with axes do they come against her, like hewers of wood.

23 They cut down her forest, saith the LORD, though it cannot be searched out; because they are more than the grasshoppers, and there is no number to them.

24 Ashamed hath been made the daughter of Egypt: she hath been given up into the hand of the people of the north.

25 The LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, hath said, Behold, I will send visitation on Ahmon of No, and on Pharaoh, and on Egypt, and on her gods, and on her kings; even on Pharaoh, and on those that trust on him;

26 And I will give them up into the hand of those that seek their life, and into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon, and into the hand of his servants: and afterward shall she be inhabited, as in the days of old, saith the LORD.

27 ¶ But thou,—fear thou not, O my servant Jacob, and be not dismayed, O Israel; for, behold, I will save thee from afar off, and thy seed from the land of their captivity: and Jacob shall return, and he shall be at rest and at ease, with none to make him afraid.

28 Thou,—fear thou not, O Jacob my servant, saith the LORD; for I am with thee: and although I make a full end of all the nations whither I have driven thee, yet of thee will I not make a full end; and I will correct thee in measure; yet wholly will I not leave thee unpunished.[d]

CHAPTER XLVII.

1 The word of the LORD that came to Jeremiah the prophet against the Philistines, before the time that Pharaoh smote Gazzah.

2 Thus hath said the LORD, Behold, waters are coming up out of the north, and they shall become an overflowing stream, and shall overflow the land, and what filleth it; the city, and those that dwell therein: and the men shall cry aloud, and every inhabitant of the land shall wail.

[a] After Rashi and Arnheim; the last explains, "Nebuchadnezzar's threat to invade Egypt was mere vaunting, and Pharaoh remains king." Philippson, "They called out there," (at the battle,) "O Pharaoh king of Egypt, (there is) destruction He let pass by the favourable time;" meaning that the time for attacking Nebuchadnezzar chosen by Pharaoh was unfavourable to success.

[b] The king of Babylon, meaning, his present tardiness shall be followed by his actual arrival, when all that is threatened shall be done. But Jonathan and Rashi, "shall this thing come on Egypt."

[c] Redak; but Rashi, "chiefs."

[d] Jonathan and Rashi, "I will not wholly destroy thee." (See also xxx. 11.)

the hoofs of his stud-horses,[a] because of the rushing sound of his chariots, the rumbling of his wheels, fathers do not turn round to their children from their feebleness of hands;

4 Because of the day that cometh to devastate all the Philistines, to cut off from Tyre and Zidon every helper that remaineth; for the LORD devastateth the Philistines, the remnant of the isle of Caphthor.

5 Baldness is come upon Gazzah; ruined is Ashkelon with the remnant of their valley: how long yet wilt thou cut[b] thyself?

6 Wo! thou sword of the LORD, how long yet wilt thou not be quiet? withdraw thyself into thy scabbard, take thee rest, and be still.

7 Yet how canst thou be quiet? When the LORD hath given it a charge, against Ashkelon, and against the sea-coast—thither hath he destined it.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

1 Against Moäb, Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Wo unto Nebo! for it is wasted; made ashamed, captured is Kiryathayim; made ashamed is Misgab and dismayed.

2 There is no more praise of Moäb: in Cheshbon have they devised evil against it, "Come, and let us cut it off from being a nation." Also thou Madmen shalt be ruined; after thee shall pursue the sword.

3 There is a voice of crying from Choronayim, destruction and a great breach.

4 Broken down is Moäb: her little ones send forth[d] a cry of distress.

5 For the ascent of Luchith is ascended with weeping and tears; for on the descent of Choronayim the enemies have heard the cry of destruction.

6 Flee, save your life, and be ye like the solitary tree[e] in the wilderness.

7 For, because thou hast trusted in thy works and in thy treasures, thou also shalt be conquered: and Kemosh shall go forth into exile, (with) his priests and his princes together.

8 And the waster shall come over every city, and no city shall escape: and lost shall be the valley, and destroyed shall be the plain, as the LORD hath said.

9 Give wings[f] unto Moäb, that she may flee and get away; since her cities shall become desolate, without any to dwell therein.

10 Cursed be he that doth the work of the LORD negligently,[g] and cursed be he that withholdeth his sword from blood.

11 Moäb was ever at ease from his youth, and he was resting on his lees,[h] and was not emptied from vessel to vessel, and had not gone into exile: therefore had his taste remained in him, and his scent was not changed.

12 ¶ Therefore, behold, days are coming, saith the LORD, when I will send unto him tappers, that shall tap him, and they shall empty his vessels, and dash in pieces their bottles.

13 And Moäb shall be ashamed of Kemosh, as the house of Israel were made ashamed because of Beth-el their confidence.

14 How can ye say, We are mighty and men of bravery for the war?

15 Moäb is wasted, and into his cities hath (the enemy) ascended, and his chosen young men are gone down to the slaughter, saith the King, the LORD of hosts is his name.

16 Near is the calamity of Moäb to come, and his misfortune hasteneth fast.

17 All ye that are about him bemoan him; and all ye that know his name: say, How is the strong staff broken, the beautiful stick!

18 Come down from thy glory, and sit in thirst,[i] thou inhabitress, daughter of Dibon; for the waster of Moäb cometh up against thee, he destroyeth thy strong-holds.

[a] Eng. ver. and Redak, "strong horses." (See viii. 16.)

[b] In allusion to the heathen mode of displaying tokens of outward grief. (Deut. xiv. 1.)

[c] According to Rashi, the name of a place; literally, "a strong height."

[d] Lit "caused to be heard."

[e] Redak. (See xvii. 6.) But Jonathan and Rashi have, "like the tower of 'Aro'er in the wilderness, where there are no houses, but only tents around."

[f] Rashi, who says, "whatever stands out from man and cattle is called עֵיר, (literally, 'bud;') thus, 'lock of hair,' 'wing,'" &c. Hence, perhaps, נֵץ is the "sparrow-hawk."

[g] "Deceitfully," as the lazy man deceives in the amount of work expected from him. Rashi explains "the work of the LORD" the destruction of Moäb, for this is here given as a divine mission.

[h] Like wine which is left undisturbed in the cask to settle; the prophet carries out the simile in the next verse. עֲרִיסִים are those who draw off the wine from one vessel into the other,—"tappers."

[i] "There was a large pool near this place." PHILIPPSON.

19 Stand by the way, and look out, O inhabitress of 'Aro'er: ask him that fleeth, and her that escapeth, say, What hath been done?

20 Moäb hath been made ashamed; for it is broken down; wail, and cry aloud: tell ye it by the Arnon, that Moäb is wasted,

21 And punishment is come over the land of the plain, over Cholon, and over Yahzah, and over Mepha'ath,

22 And over Dibon, and over Nebo, and over Beth-diblathayim,

23 And over Kiryathayim, and over Beth-gamul, and over Beth-me'on,

24 And over Keriyoth, and over Bozrah, and over all the cities of the land of Moäb, that are far and that are near.

25 Hewn away is the horn of Moäb, and his arm is broken, saith the LORD.

26 Make him drunken; for he magnified[a] himself against the LORD: and Moäb shall wallow in his vomit, and he also shall become (an object) of derision.

27 For was not Israel a derision unto thee? or was he found among thieves? that whenever thou spokest of him, thou hadst to shake (thy head)?

28 Leave the cities, and dwell on rocks, O ye that dwell in Moäb; and be ye like the dove that maketh her nest in the sides of the mouth of rocky clefts.

29 We have heard the pride of Moäb, who is so exceedingly proud, his haughtiness, and his pride, and his arrogance, and the overbearingness of his heart.

30 I well know, saith the LORD, his wrath, and how causeless it is: his liars have done what is not right.

31 Therefore will I wail for Moäb, and for all Moäb will I cry out; for the men of Kir-cheres shall people moan.

32 With the weeping of Ya'zer will I weep for thee, O vine of Sibmah; thy tendrils (once) passed over the sea, they reached as far as to the sea of Ya'zer: over thy summer-fruits and over thy vintage the waster is fallen.

33 And banished are joy and gladness from Carmel, and from the land of Moäb; and I have caused the wine to cease from the wine-presses: none shall tread the press with the vintner's call; battle cry—nor vintner's call.

34 From the loud cry of Cheshbon as far as El'aleh, even unto Yahaz, have they sent forth their voice, from Zo'ar even unto Choronayim, to the third 'Eglath; for the waters also of Nimrim shall become desolate.

35 Moreover will I cause to cease unto Moäb, saith the LORD, him that offereth on the high-places, and him that burneth incense to his gods.

36 Therefore shall my heart groan for Moäb like flutes, and my heart shall groan like flutes for the men of Kir-cheres; for the cause[b] that the remnant of the riches he had gotten are lost.

37 For every head is bald, and every beard is shorn: upon all the hands are cuttings, and upon the loins is sackcloth.

38 Upon all the roofs of Moäb, and in her streets, there is everywhere lamentation; for I have broken Moäb like a vessel which hath no value, saith the LORD.

39 Oh, how is it broken down! wail! how hath Moäb turned the back with shame! and Moäb shall be a derision and a dismay to all those around him.

40 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD, Behold, as the eagle shall he fly, and he shall spread out his wings over Moäb.

41 Captured are the fortresses, and the strong-holds are conquered: and the heart of the mighty men of Moäb shall be on that day as the heart of a woman in her pangs.

42 And Moäb shall be destroyed from being a people; because it hath magnified himself against the LORD.

43 Terror, and the pit, and the snare, shall be upon thee, O inhabitant of Moäb, saith the LORD.

44 He that fleeth from the terror shall fall into the pit; and he that getteth up out of the pit shall be caught in the snare; for I will bring upon it, even upon Moäb, the year of their visitation, saith the LORD.

45 Under the shadow of Cheshbon stand still, deprived of strength, those that flee; but a fire cometh forth out of Cheshbon, and a flame from the midst of Sichon, and it devoureth the corner of Moäb, and the crown of the head of the children of vaunting.

[a] Jonathan, "for he hath made himself great over the people of the LORD."

[b] Redak; but Rashi, "because he hath done proud things, therefore are they lost."

46 Wo unto thee, O Moäb! lost is the people of Kemosh; for thy sons are taken captives, and thy daughters into captivity.

47 Yet will I bring back again the captivity of Moäb in the end of days, saith the LORD. Thus far is the punishment of Moäb.

CHAPTER XLIX.

1 ¶ Against the children of 'Ammon, Thus hath said the LORD, Hath Israel no sons? or hath he no heir? why then doth Malcom possess Gad, and why do his people dwell in his cities?

2 Therefore, behold, days are coming, saith the LORD, when I will cause an alarm of war to be heard in Rabbah of the children of 'Ammon; and it shall become a desolate heap, and its villages shall be burnt with fire: then shall Israel drive out those that drove them out, saith the LORD.

3 Wail, O Cheshbon, for 'Ai is wasted; cry aloud, ye daughters of Rabbah, gird yourselves with sackcloth; lament, and roam about among the sheepfolds; for Malcom shall go into exile, (with) his priest and his princes together.

4 Wherefore gloriest thou in the valleys? thy valley floweth (with[a] blood), O backsliding daughter, that trusted in her treasures, saying, Who can come unto me?

5 Behold, I will bring terror upon thee, saith the Lord the Eternal of hosts, from all those that are around thee: and ye shall be driven out every man in his own way; and none shall gather up the fugitive.

6 And afterward will I bring back again the captivity of the children of 'Ammon, saith the LORD.

7 ¶ Concerning Edom, thus hath said the LORD of hosts, Is there no more wisdom in Theman? is counsel vanished from the prudent? is their wisdom become corrupt?

8 They flee, turn round, seek their abode in deep places,—the inhabitants of Dedan; for the calamity of Esau do I bring upon him, the time when I visit him with punishment.

9 If grape-gatherers had come to thee, would they not have left some gleanings? if thieves by night, they would destroy only till they had satisfied themselves;

10 But I have made Esau bare, I have uncovered his secret haunts, so that he will not be able to hide himself: his seed is wasted, and his brethren, and his neighbours, and he is no more.

11 Leave thy fatherless[b] children, I will have to preserve them alive: and thy widows must trust in me.

12 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD, Behold, they whose right it was not to drink the cup have been compelled to drink it, and art thou he that shall altogether go unpunished? thou shalt not go unpunished, but thou shalt surely drink it.

13 For by myself have I sworn, saith the LORD, that Bozrah shall become an astonishment, a disgrace, a ruin, and a curse; and all its cities shall become perpetual ruins.

14 A report have I heard from the LORD, and an ambassador is sent among the nations, (saying,) Gather yourselves together, and come against her, and rise up to the battle.

15 For, lo, I render thee small among the nations, despised among men.

16 Thy hastiness hath deceived thee, the presumption of thy heart, O thou that dwellest in the clefts[c] of the rock, that holdest the height of the hill: though thou shouldst make thy nest as high as the eagle, thence would I bring thee down, saith the LORD.

17 And Edom shall become (an object of) astonishment: every one that passeth by it shall be astonished, and shall hiss at all its wounds.

18 Like the overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah and their neighbours, saith the LORD, so shall no man dwell there, nor shall a son of man sojourn therein.

19 Behold, like a lion will he come up from the overflow of the Jordan against the strong habitation; for I will hasten him, (and) make him suddenly prevail against her; and him who is chosen will I array against her; for who is like me? and who will challenge[d]

[a] Redak: so also, in a measure, Jonathan, "thy strength is broken." Rashi, "the rains overflow thy valley."

[b] Rashi refers this verse to Israel; but it can nevertheless be applied to Edom, and mean that the destruction shall be so great that the captives and widows should have no support but God, all human aid having been cut off.

[c] Jonathan. Others, "top of the rock."

[d] Rashi, "summon me to war." Redak, "who will fix for me time and period for battle." Zunz, "summon."

me to battle? and who is that shepherd that can stand before me?

20 Therefore hear the counsel of the LORD, that he hath resolved against Edom; and his purposes, that he hath devised against the inhabitants of Teman: Surely the least[a] of the flocks shall drag them away; surely he will devastate over them their habitation.

21 At the noise of their fall the earth quaketh: (there is) an outcry,—at the Red Sea their voice is heard.

22 Behold, like the eagle shall he[b] come up and fly along, and spread out his wings over Bozrah: and the heart of the mighty men of Edom shall be on that day as the heart of a woman in her pangs.

23 ¶ Concerning Damascus. Chamath and Arpad are made ashamed; for evil tidings have they heard, they are fainthearted: on the sea there is care, it is not able to be quiet.

24 Damascus is become feeble, she turneth about to flee, and trembling hath taken hold on her: pangs and throes have seized her, as a woman in travail.

25 "How is the city of praise not forsaken,[c] the town of my joy!"

26 Therefore shall her young men fall in her streets, and all the men of war shall perish on that day, saith the LORD of hosts.

27 And I will kindle a fire on the wall of Damascus, and it shall consume the palaces of Ben-hadad.

28 ¶ Concerning Kedar, and concerning the kingdoms of Chazor, which Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon smote, thus hath said the LORD, Arise ye, go up to Kedar, and devastate the men of the east.

29 Their tents and their flocks shall they take away; their curtains, and all their vessels, and their camels shall they take to themselves: and they shall call out over them, Terror is on every side.

30 Flee, fly away far off, seek your abode in deep places, O ye inhabitants of Chazor, saith the LORD; for Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon hath taken counsel against you, and hath conceived a device against you.

31 Arise, get you up unto the nation that is at ease,[d] that dwelleth in security, saith the LORD, which hath neither gates nor bars, which dwelleth alone.

32 And their camels shall become a booty, and the multitude of their cattle a spoil: and I will scatter unto all winds those that have the hair cut round; and from all sides will I bring their calamity, saith the LORD.

33 And Chazor shall become a dwelling for monsters, a desolation for ever: there shall no man dwell there, nor shall a son of man sojourn therein.

34 ¶ The word of the LORD that came to Jeremiah the prophet concerning 'Elam, in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah the king of Judah, saying, 35 Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, Behold, I will break the bow of 'Elam, the chief of their strength.

36 And I will bring over 'Elam the four winds from the four quarters of the heavens, and I will scatter them toward all these winds: and there shall not be any nation whither shall not come the outcasts of 'Elam.

37 For I will cause 'Elam to be dismayed before their enemies, and before those that seek their life: and I will bring over them evil, the fierceness of my anger, saith the LORD; and I will send out after them the sword, till I have made an end of them.

38 And I will set up my throne in 'Elam, and I will destroy thence king and princes, saith the LORD.

39 But it shall come to pass in the latter days, that I will bring back again the captivity of 'Elam, saith the LORD.

CHAPTER L.

1 ¶ The word that the LORD spoke concerning Babylon, concerning the land of the Chaldeans, by means of Jeremiah the prophet.

2 Announce ye among the nations, and publish, and lift up a standard; publish, conceal not; say, Babylon is captured, Bel is put to shame, Merodach is broken in pieces; put to shame are her idols; broken in pieces are her images.

3 For there is come up against her a nation out of the north, which will change her land into a desert, so that there shall not

[a] Zunz, "the boys attending the flocks;" but more properly, "the meanest of the flocks," common people.
[b] The enemy.
[c] Rashi, "how was the city not fortified."
[d] Eng. ver. "wealthy nation, that dwelleth without care."

be any one dwelling therein: both man and beast are fled away, they are departed.

4 In those days, and at that time, saith the LORD, shall the children of Israel come, they and the children of Judah together, going and weeping shall they go, and the LORD their God shall they seek.

5 After Zion shall they ask, with their faces on the way thitherward, (saying,) Come: and they will join themselves to the LORD in a perpetual covenant that shall not be forgotten.

6 ¶ Lost sheep were my people; their shepherds had caused them to go astray, they had let them roam wildly on the mountains: from mountain to hill did they go, they forgot their resting-place.

7 All that found them devoured them; and their adversaries said, We offend not, because they have sinned against the LORD, the habitation of righteousness, and the hope of their fathers, the LORD.

8 Fly away out of the midst of Babylon, and go forth out of the land of the Chaldeans, and be ye as the he-goats before the flocks.[a]

9 For, lo, I will awaken and cause to come up against Babylon an assemblage of great nations from the north country; and they shall set themselves in battle-array against her; from there shall she be captured: their arrows are as those of a skilful[b] mighty one, none of which ever returneth in vain.

10 And Chaldea shall be given up to spoil: all that spoil her shall be satisfied, saith the LORD.

11 Though ye rejoice, though ye be glad, O ye plunderers of my heritage, though ye be grown[c] fat as the heifer at grass, and neigh as stud-horses:

12 Your mother is made greatly ashamed; she that bore you is put to the blush; behold, the end of nations shall be wilderness, dry land, and desert.

13 Because of the wrath of the LORD shall it not be inhabited, and it shall be wholly desolate: every one that passeth by Babylon shall be astonished, and hiss over all her wounds.

14 Put yourselves in battle-array against Babylon round about, all ye that bend the bow, shoot at her,[d] spare not the arrows; for against the LORD hath she sinned.

15 Shout against her round about; she hath stretched out[e] her hand: fallen are her foundations, thrown down are her walls; for it is the vengeance of the LORD; take vengeance upon her; as she hath done, so do unto her.

16 Cut off the sower from Babylon, and him that handleth the sickle in the time of harvest; because of the wasting sword shall they turn about every one to his people, and every one to his own land shall they flee.

17 ¶ A scattered lamb is Israel; the lions have driven him away: first the king of Assyria devoured him; and this last one broke his bones, (even) Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon.

18 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Behold, I will inflict punishment on the king of Babylon and on his land, as I have punished the king of Assyria.

19 And I will bring Israel back again to his habitation, and he shall feed on Carmel and Bashan: and upon the mountain of Ephraim and Gil'ad shall his soul be satisfied.

20 In those days, and at that time, saith the LORD, shall the iniquity of Israel be sought for, and it shall not be there; and the sins of Judah, and they shall not be found; for I will pardon those whom I will leave remaining.

21 ¶ Against the land of twofold rebellion—even against it go thou up, and against the inhabitants of the country of punishment:[f] lay in ruins and utterly destroy their offspring,[g] saith the LORD, and do in accordance with all that I have commanded thee.

22 A sound of battle (is heard) in the land, and of great destruction.

[a] Rashi, "The he-goats usually walk before the goats."

[b] Some texts have Maskkil, "who maketh childless," but the most read Maskil, "wise," "successful," "skilful," i. e. in the use of warlike weapons.

[c] Philippson, "bellow like a grazing heifer." Rashi, "like a heifer that thresheth."

[d] Rashi, "Cast stones at her," because the word here is ירו, from ירה, "to cast," not ירו, from ירה, "to shoot;" but the shooting is after all the casting forth of the projectile by other means than the naked hand.

[e] As token of submission, being conquered.

[f] Redak; but Jonathan takes פקוד as a proper name, Pekod, a district of Chaldea.

[g] Zunz; lit. "those after them."

23 How is cut asunder and broken the hammer[a] of all the earth! how is Babylon become an astonishment among the nations!

24 I have laid a snare for thee, and thou art also captured, O Babylon, while thou wast not aware: thou art found, and also caught, because thou hadst entered into a contest against the LORD.

25 The LORD hath opened his treasury, and hath brought forth the weapons of his indignation; for it is a work for the Lord, the Eternal of hosts, in the land of the Chaldeans.

26 Come against her from the end of the earth,[b] open her garners; tread her down as sheaves of corn, and destroy her utterly: let there not be left of her a remnant even.

27 Destroy all her bullocks; let them go down to the slaughter: wo unto them! for their day is come, the time of their visitation.

28 There is the voice of those that flee and escape out of the land of Babylon, to tell in Zion the vengeance of the LORD our God, the vengeance for his temple.

29 Call together the archers against Babylon; all ye that bend the bow, encamp against her round about; let there be no escape for her: recompense her according to her work; in accordance with all that she hath done, do unto her; for against the LORD hath she acted presumptuously, against the Holy One of Israel.

30 Therefore shall her young men fall in her streets, and all her men of war shall perish on that day, saith the LORD.

31 ¶ Behold, I am against thee, O presumptuous[c] one! saith the Lord, the Eternal of hosts; for thy day is come, the time that I will visit thee (with punishment).

32 And the presumptuous shall stumble and fall, with none to raise him up: and I will kindle a fire in his cities, and it shall devour all his environs.

33 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, The children of Israel and the children of Judah are oppressed together: and all that took them captive hold them fast; they refuse to dismiss them.

34 Their Redeemer is strong; The LORD of hosts is his name: he will surely contend in their cause, in order that he may give rest to the land, and make the inhabitants of Babylon tremble.[d]

35 The sword is upon the Chaldeans, saith the LORD, and against the inhabitants of Babylon, and against her princes, and against her wise men.

36 The sword is against the lying soothsayers, and they shall be made foolish: the sword is against her mighty men, and they shall be dismayed.

37 The sword is against their horses, and against their chariots, and against all the confederates[e] that are in the midst of her, and they shall become as women: the sword is against her treasures, and they shall be plundered.

38 The drought is against her waters, and they shall be dried up; for it is the land of graven images, and with their horrid idols do they play the madman.

39 Therefore shall martens dwell (there) with jackals, and the ostriches shall dwell therein: and it shall be not inhabited any more for ever; and it shall not be dwelt in from generation to generation.

40 Like the overthrow by God of Sodom and Gomorrah and their neighbours, saith the LORD, so shall no man dwell there, nor shall any son of man sojourn therein.

41 Behold, a people cometh from the north, and a great nation, and many kings shall be awakened from the farthest ends of the earth.

42 Bow and lance do they firmly grasp; they are cruel, and show not any mercy; their voice roareth like the sea, and upon horses do they ride, placed in array, like one man, for the battle, against thee, O daughter of Babylon.

43 The king of Babylon hath heard the report of them, and his hands are grown feeble: anguish hath taken fast hold of him, pangs as of a woman in travail.

44 Behold, like a lion shall he come up from the overflow of the Jordan unto the

[a] Symbolic for "destroyer," as the hammer destroys all by its force.

[b] Philippson. Rashi, "from the outmost end of the city;" and comments, "that she may not know, and be suddenly taken."

[c] Lit. "presumption."

strong habitation; for I will hasten them (and) make them suddenly prevail over her, and him who is chosen will I array against her; for who like me? and who will challenge me to battle? and who is that shepherd that can stand before me?

45 Therefore hear ye the counsel of the LORD, that he hath resolved against Babylon; and his purposes, that he hath devised against the land of the Chaldeans: Surely the least of the flock shall drag them away; surely he will devastate over them their habitation.

46 At the noise of the conquest of Babylon the earth quaketh, and the outcry is heard among the nations.

CHAPTER LI.

1 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, Behold, I will awaken against Babylon, and against those that dwell in the midst[a] of my opponents, a destroying wind;

2 And I will send out unto Babylon fanners, and they shall fan her, and shall empty out her land; for they shall be against her round about on the day of trouble.

3 Let the archer come against any one that bendeth his bow, and against him that lifteth himself up in his armour: and spare ye not her young men; destroy ye utterly all her host.

4 And the slain shall fall in the land of the Chaldeans, and they that are pierced through, in her streets.

5 For not widowed are Israel and Judah of their God, of the LORD of hosts; for the land of those[b] was filled with guiltiness against the Holy One of Israel.

6 Flee ye out of the midst of Babylon, and save ye every man his life: perish not for her iniquity; for this is a time of vengeance unto the LORD; a recompense is he paying out unto her.

7 A golden cup hath Babylon been in the hand of the LORD, that made drunken all the earth: of her wine have nations drunk; therefore are the nations rendered mad.

8 Suddenly is Babylon fallen and broken: wail ye for her; fetch balm for her wound, perhaps she may be healed.

9 "We would have healed Babylon, but she was not healed: forsake her, and let us go every one unto his own country; for her punishment reacheth unto the heavens, and it is lifted up even to the skies."

10 The LORD hath brought forth our righteousness: come, and let us relate in Zion the work of the LORD our God.

11 Make bright the arrows; fill the quivers:[c] the LORD hath awakened the spirit of the kings of Media; for against Babylon is his intention, to destroy it; because it is the vengeance of the LORD, the vengeance for his temple.

12 Against the walls of Babylon lift up the standard, strengthen the watch, set up the watchmen, make ready the ambushes; for the LORD hath both intended and done what he had spoken against the inhabitants of Babylon.

13 O thou that dwellest upon many waters, great in treasures, thy end is come, the full measure of thy selfish robbery.

14 Sworn hath the LORD of hosts by himself,[d] Surely I will fill thee with men, as with locusts: and they shall lift up the battle-cry against thee.

15 ¶ He made the earth by his power, he established the world by his wisdom, and by his understanding he stretched out the heavens.

16 At the sound when he giveth a multitude of waters in the heavens, and causeth clouds to ascend from the ends of the earth; when he maketh lightnings with rain, and bringeth forth the wind out of his treasures:

17 Then standeth every man as brutish without knowledge; ashamed is every goldsmith because of the graven image; for falsehood is his molten work, and there is no breath therein.

18 They are vanity, the work of deception: in the time of their punishment shall they vanish.

19 Not like these is the portion of Jacob; for He is the former of all things, and Israel is the tribe of his inheritance: The LORD of hosts is his name.

20 ¶ Thou art a hammer[e] unto me, weapons of war; and I strike down with thee nations, and I destroy with thee kingdoms;

[c] Others, "sharpen the arrows, seize on the shields."

21 And I strike down with thee the horse and his rider; and I strike down with thee the chariot and its rider;

22 And I strike down with thee man and woman; and I strike down with thee the aged and the lad; and I strike down with thee the young man and the virgin;

23 And I strike down with thee the shepherd and his flock; and I strike down with thee the husbandman and his yoke of oxen; and I strike down with thee governers and rulers.

24 But (now) will I repay unto Babylon and to all the inhabitants of Chaldea all their evil that they have done in Zion before your eyes, saith the LORD.

25 ¶ Behold, I am against thee, O destroying mountain, saith the LORD, which destroyest all the earth; and I will stretch out my hand over thee, and I will roll thee down from the rocks, and will render thee a burnt mountain.

26 And they shall not take from thee a stone for a corner, nor a stone for foundations; but everlasting ruins shalt thou be, saith the LORD.

27 Lift ye up a standard in the land, blow ye the cornet among the nations, make ready against her nations, call together against her the kingdoms of Ararat, Minni, and Ashkenaz; appoint against her a commander; cause the horses to come up like the hairy locusts.

28 Make ready against her the nations with the kings of Media, its governors, and all its rulers, and all the land of their dominion.

29 And the earth quaketh and trembleth; for every one of the purposes of the LORD is fulfilled against Babylon, to change the land of Babylon into a desolate country without an inhabitant.

30 The mighty men of Babylon have ceased to fight, they sit still in (their) strongholds; their might is vanished; they are become as women: they have burnt her dwelling-places; her bars are broken.

31 One runner shall run to meet another runner, and one messenger to meet another messenger, to tell unto the king of Babylon that his city is captured at all ends, 32 And that the passages have been seized, and that they have burnt the reeds[a] with fire, and that the men of war are affrighted.

33 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, The daughter of Babylon is like a threshing-floor, at the time[b] they thresh therein; but yet a little while more, when the time of harvest shall come for her.

34 "Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon devoured me, he crushed me, he set me down as an empty vessel, he swallowed me up like a huge serpent, he filled his belly with my delicacies: he drove me out.

35 The violence done to me and to my flesh be upon Babylon," will the inhabitress of Zion say; and "My blood be upon the inhabitants of Chaldea," will Jerusalem say.

36 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the LORD, Behold, I will contend in thy cause, and execute vengeance for thee; and I will dry up her sea, and cause her springs to fail.

37 And Babylon shall become ruinous heaps, a dwelling-place for monsters, an astonishment, and a derision, without an inhabitant.

38 Together like lions shall they roar: they shall yell like the lions' whelps.

39 When they are heated will I prepare their drinking-feasts, and I will make them drunken, in order that they may be joyful, and (then) sleep a perpetual sleep, and not awake again, saith the LORD.

40 I will bring them down like lambs to the slaughter, like wethers with he-goats.

41 How is Sheshach captured! and how is conquered the praise of the whole earth! how is Babylon become an astonishment among the nations!

42 The sea is come up over Babylon: with the multitude of its waves is she covered.

43 Her cities are become desolate places, a dry land, and a wilderness, a land wherein not any man shall dwell, and through which no son of man shall pass along.

44 And I will inflict punishment on Bel in Babylon, and I will bring forth what he hath swallowed up out of his mouth; and nations shall not assemble together like a stream unto him any more: yea, the wall of Babylon also is fallen.

45 Go ye out of the midst of her, my people, and save ye every man his life from the fierceness of the anger of the LORD.

46 And so that your heart may not faint,[a] and ye fear at the report that is heard in the land: when the report cometh in one year, and after that in another year cometh another report, and when violence (be done) in the land, (by) ruler against ruler.

47 Therefore, behold, days are coming, when I will inflict punishment on the graven images of Babylon, and her whole land shall be put to shame, and all her slain shall fall in the midst of her.

48 And then shall the heaven and the earth, and all that is therein, sing because of Babylon; for from the north shall come unto her the destroyers, saith the LORD.

49 Also Babylon is destined[b] to fall, O ye slain ones of Israel, also at Babylon fall the slain of all the land.

50 (But) ye that have escaped the sword, go away, stand not still: remember afar off the LORD, and let Jerusalem rise up in your heart.

51 "We had been made ashamed, because we had heard reproach: confusion had covered our faces; because strangers were come into the sanctuaries of the LORD'S house."

52 ¶ Therefore, behold, days are coming, saith the LORD, when I will inflict punishment on her graven images: and through all her land shall groan the deadly wounded.

53 Though Babylon should mount up to heaven, and though she should fortify the height of her strength: yet from me should destroyers come unto her, saith the LORD.

54 A sound of a painful cry cometh from Babylon, and of a great breach from the land of the Chaldeans;

55 Because the LORD wasteth Babylon, and destroyeth out of her the loud noise; but[c] their waves roar like great waters, the noise of their voice is sent forth;[d]

56 Because the destroyer is come over her, over Babylon, and her mighty men are caught, every one of their bows is broken; for the God of recompenses, the LORD, will surely requite.

57 And I will make drunken her princes, and her wise men, her governors, and her rulers, and her mighty men: and they shall sleep a perpetual sleep, and not awake again, saith the King, The LORD of hosts is his name.

58 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, Every one of the broad walls of Babylon shall be utterly overthrown, and her high gates shall be burnt with fire: so that nations shall have[e] laboured in vain, and the people for the fire, and so shall they have wearied themselves.

61 And Jeremiah said to Serayah, As thou comest to Babylon, see to it, that thou read all these words;

62 And thou shalt say, O LORD, thou thyself hast spoken concerning this place, to cut it off, so that there shall not be in it an inhabitant, either man or beast; but that it shall become a desolate place for ever.

63 And it shall be, when thou hast finished reading this book, that thou shalt bind a stone to it, and throw it into the midst of the Euphrates; evil that I will bring upon her: and her people[a] shall be wearied. Thus far are the words of Jeremiah.

CHAPTER LII.

1 ¶ One and twenty years was Zedekiah old when he became king, and eleven years did he reign in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Chamutal the daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah.

2 And he did what is evil in the eyes of the LORD, in accordance with all that Jehoyakim had done.

3 For through the anger of the LORD it came to pass against Jerusalem and Judah, till he had cast them out from his presence, that Zedekiah rebelled against the king of Babylon.

4 ¶ And it came to pass in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, on the tenth day of the month, that Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon came, he and all his army, against Jerusalem, and they encamped against it, and built against it works of attack round about.

5 So the city was placed in a state of siege until the eleventh year of king Zedekiah.

6 And in the fourth month, on the ninth day of the month, when the famine was severe in the city, so that there was no bread for the people of the land:

7 The city was broken in, and all the men of war fled, and went forth out of the city by night by the way of the gate between the two walls, which was near the king's garden; (while the Chaldeäns were round about the city;) and they went by the way of the plain.

8 But the army of the Chaldeans pursued after the king, and they overtook Zedekiah in the plains of Jericho: and all his army was scattered from him.

9 And they caught the king, and they brought him up unto the king of Babylon to Riblah in the land of Chamath: and he called him to account.

10 And the king of Babylon slaughtered the sons of Zedekiah before his eyes: and also all the princes of Judah did he slaughter in Riblah.

11 And the eyes of Zedekiah did he blind; and the king of Babylon bound him with brazen fetters, and carried him to Babylon, and put him in the ward-house till the day of his death.

12 ¶ And in the fifth month, on the tenth day of the month, which was the nineteenth year of king Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon, came Nebuzaradan, the captain of the guard, (who) served[b] the king of Babylon, unto Jerusalem.

13 And he burnt the house of the LORD, and the king's house: and all the houses of Jerusalem, and all the houses of the great[c] men, did he burn with fire:

14 And all the walls of Jerusalem round about did all the army of the Chaldeans, that were with the captain of the guard, pull down.

15 And certain of the poorest of the people, and the residue of the people that had been left in the city, and the deserters, that had run away to the king of Babylon, and the rest of the multitude, did Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard carry away into exile.

16 But certain of the poorest of the land did Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard leave for vine-dressers and for husbandmen.

17 Also the pillars of copper that were in the house of the LORD, and the bases, and the copper sea that was in the house of the LORD, did the Chaldeans break, and they carried off all their copper to Babylon.

18 And the pots, and the shovels, and the knives, and the bowls, and the spoons, and all the vessels of copper wherewith they used to perform the service, did they take away.

19 And the basins, and the censers, and the bowls, and the pots, and the candlesticks, and the spoons, and the purifying-tubes:[d] of what was of gold the gold,[e] and of what was of silver the silver, did the captain of the guard take away.

20 The two pillars, the one sea, and the twelve copper oxen that served instead[a] of the bases, which king Solomon had made for the house of the LORD: the copper of all these vessels could not be weighed.[b]

21 And as regardeth the pillars, eighteen cubits was the height of each one pillar; and a thread of twelve cubits would compass it; and its thickness was four fingers: it was hollow.

22 And a capital was upon it of copper; and the height of the one capital was five[c] cubits, with network and pomegranates upon the capital round about, all of copper. And the like was the case with the second pillar and the pomegranates.

23 And the pomegranates were ninety[d] and six on every side: all the pomegranates upon the network were one hundred round about.

24 And the captain of the guard took Serayah the chief priest, and Zephanyah the priest second in rank,[e] and the three door-keepers;

25 And out of the city he took a certain court-officer, who had the supervision of the men of war; and seven men of those that had free access to the king's presence,[f] who were found in the city; and the scribe of the chief of the army, who ordered to the army the people of the land; and sixty men of the people of the land, that were found in the midst of the city;

26 And Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard took them, and led them away unto the king of Babylon to Riblah.

27 And the king of Babylon smote them, and put them to death in Riblah in the land of Chamath. Thus Judah was carried away into exile out of his own country.

28 This is the people whom Nebuchadrezzar carried away into exile: in the seventh year, three thousand and twenty and three Jews;

29 In the eighteenth year of Nebuchadrezzar from Jerusalem, eight hundred thirty and two persons;

30 In the three and twentieth year of Nebuchadrezzar, did Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard carry away into exile of the Jews seven hundred forty and five persons; all the persons were four thousand and six hundred.

31 ¶ And it came to pass in the seven and thirtieth year of the exile of Jehoyachin the king of Judah, in the twelfth month, on the five and twentieth day of the month, that Evil-merodach the king of Babylon in the (first) year of his reign lifted up the head of Jehoyachin the king of Judah, and brought him forth out of the prison-house;

32 And he spoke kindly with him, and set his throne above the throne of the kings that were with him in Babylon,

33 And he changed his prison-garments: and he ate bread before him continually all the days of his life.

34 And his allowance was a continual allowance given him by the king, the necessary ration for the day on its day, until the day of his death, all the days of his life.

CHAPTER I.

1 ¶ And it came to pass in the thirtieth[b] year, in the fourth month, on the fifth day of the month, as I was in the midst of the exiles by the river Kebar, that the heavens were opened, and I saw divine[c] visions.

2 On the fifth day of the month, which was the fifth year of the exile of king Jehoyachin,

3 Came the word of the LORD expressly unto Ezekiel the son of Buzi, the priest, in the land of the Chaldeans by the river Kebar; and there came upon him there the inspiration[d] of the LORD.

4 And I saw, and behold, a storm-wind came out of the north, a great cloud, and a flaming[e] fire, and a brightness was on it round about; and out of the midst of it was like the glitter of amber,[f] out of the midst of the fire.

5 And out of the midst thereof (I saw) the likeness of four living creatures. And this was their appearance: They had the likeness of a man.

6 And every one had four faces, and every one of them had four wings.

7 And their feet were straight feet; and the sole of their feet was like the sole of a calf's[g] foot: and they sparkled like the glitter of burnished copper.

8 And hands of man (were visible) from beneath their wings on their four sides: and their faces and their wings (were alike) on all these four.

9 Their wings were joined one to the other: they turned not about in their going; they went every one in the direction of one of their faces.[h]

10 And the likeness of their faces was the face of a man; and the face of a lion, on the right side for all four of them; and the face of an ox on the left side for all four of them; and the face of an eagle for all four of them.

11 Thus were their faces: and their wings were spread out[i] upward; every one had two joined one to another, and two covered their bodies.

12 And they went every one in the direction of one of his faces: whither the spirit[k] was directed to go, they went; they turned not about in their going.

13 As for the likeness of the living creatures, their appearance was like coals of fire, burning as with the appearance of torches; this (fire) it was which passed along between the living creatures: and a brightness was about the fire, and out of the fire went forth lightning.

14 And the living creatures ran backward and forward like the appearance of a flash of lightning.

15 And I looked on the living creatures, and, behold, there was one wheel[l] upon the earth close by the living creatures, by their four front faces.[m]

16 The appearance of the wheels and their work was like the colour of a chrysolite; and all four had one likeness: and their appearance and their work was as though it were a wheel in the middle of a wheel.[a]

17 Toward their four sides they went in their going: they turned not round in their going.

18 As for their circumferences, they were so high that they excited fear: and their felloes were full of eyes round about on all these four.

19 And when the living creatures went, the wheels went near to them: and when the living creatures lifted themselves up from the earth, the wheels lifted themselves up.

20 Whithersoever the spirit was to go, they went; (for) thither was (their) spirit to go: and the wheels lifted themselves up at the same[b] time with them; for the spirit of the living creatures was in the wheels.

21 When those went, these went; and when those stood, these stood; and when those lifted themselves up from the earth, the wheels lifted themselves up at the same time with them; for the spirit of the living creatures was in the wheels.

22 And the likeness of a vault[c] was over the head of the living creatures, (shining) like the glitter of the purest crystal,[d] stretched forth over their heads above.

23 And under the vault their wings were straight, the one toward the other: every one had two, which covered them, and every one had two, which covered them,—(namely,) their bodies.

24 And I heard the sound of their wings, like the sound of great waters, as the voice[e] of the Almighty, when they went, the sound of (their) speech, as the noise of an army: when they stood still, they let down their wings.[f]

25 And there was a voice from the vault that was over their head: when they stood still, they let down their wings.

26 And above the vault that was over their head was like the appearance of a sapphire-stone, the likeness of a throne: and upon the likeness of the throne was a likeness as the appearance of a man above upon it.

27 And I saw as if it were the glitter of amber, as the appearance of fire within it round about, from the appearance of his loins upward; and from the appearance of his loins downward, I saw as it were the appearance of fire, and it had brightness round about.

28 Like the appearance of the bow that is in the cloud on the day of rain, so was the appearance of the brightness round about: this was the appearance of the likeness of the glory of the LORD. And when I saw it, I fell upon my face, and I heard the voice of one that spoke.

CHAPTER II.

1 ¶ And he said unto me, Son of man, stand up upon thy feet, and I will speak with thee.

2 And a spirit entered into me as he spoke unto me, and it placed me upon my feet, and I heard him that spoke unto me.

3 ¶ And he said unto me, Son of man, I send thee to the children of Israel, to rebellious tribes[g] that have rebelled against me: they and their fathers have transgressed against me, even until this very day.

4 And the children are impudent of face, and obdurate of heart: I send thee unto them; and thou shalt say unto them, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal.

5 And they, whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear, (for they are a rebellious family,) shall yet know that a prophet hath been among them.

6 And thou, son of man,—thou shalt not be afraid of them, and of their words thou shalt have no fear, though they be briers and thorns with thee, and thou dost dwell among scorpions:[h] of their words be not afraid, and at their presence be not dismayed; for they are a rebellious family.

7 And thou shalt speak my words unto them, whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear; for they are rebellious.

8 ¶ But thou, son of man, hear what I am speaking unto thee, Be not thou rebellious like this rebellious family: open thy mouth, and eat what I give unto thee.

9 And then I looked, and behold, a hand was stretched out toward me; and, lo, a roll-book was therein;

10 And he spread it out before me; and it was written within and without:[a] and there were written therein lamentations, and dirges, and wo.

CHAPTER III.

1 ¶ And he said unto me, Son of man, eat what thou findest: eat this roll, and go, speak unto the house of Israel.

2 So I opened my mouth, and he caused me to eat this roll.

3 And he said unto me, Son of man, feed thy belly, and fill thy bowels with this roll that I am giving unto thee. And I ate it; and it was in my mouth like honey in sweetness.

4 ¶ And he said unto me, Son of man, go, get thee unto the house of Israel, and speak with my words unto them.

5 For not to a people of an obscure speech and of a difficult tongue art thou sent, but to the house of Israel;

6 Not to many people of an obscure speech and of a difficult tongue, whose words thou canst not understand. Surely, had I sent thee to them, they would truly have hearkened unto thee.

7 But the house of Israel will not hearken unto thee; for they will not hearken unto me; for all the house of Israel have a bold forehead, and a hard heart.

8 Behold, I have made thy face strong against their face, and thy forehead strong against their forehead.

9 As an adamant harder than flint have I made thy forehead: thou shalt not fear them, nor shalt thou be dismayed at their presence, though they be a rebellious family.

10 ¶ And he said unto me, Son of man, all my words that I will speak unto thee receive in thy heart, and hear (them) with thy ears.

11 And go, get thee to those in exile, unto the children of thy people, and speak unto them, and say unto them, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal: whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear.

12 Then a spirit took me up, and I heard behind me a voice of a great rushing,[b] (saying,) Blessed be the glory of the LORD from his place.[c]

13 (I heard) also the sound of the wings of the living creatures that touched one another, and the sound of the wheels at the same time with them, and the sound of a great rushing.

14 So a spirit lifted me up, and took me away, and I walked in bitterness, in the heat of my spirit, and the inspiration of the LORD was strong upon me.

15 Then came I to the exiles at Tel-abib, who dwelt by the river Kebar, and I remained where they dwelt, and I remained there in a state of confusion among them seven days.

16 ¶ And it came to pass at the end of seven days,

¶ That the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

17 Son of man, I have made thee a watchman unto the house of Israel: and thou shalt hear the word out of my mouth, and give them warning from me.

18 When I say unto the wicked, Thou shalt surely die; and thou dost not give him warning, and speakest not to warn the wicked from his wicked way, to save his life: the same wicked man shall die through his iniquity; but his blood will I require at thy hand.

19 But thou,—if thou hast warned the wicked, and he turn not from his wickedness, nor from his wicked way: he shall indeed die in his iniquity; but thou hast surely delivered thy soul.

20 ¶ Again, When a righteous man do turn from his righteousness, and do what is wrong: then will I lay a stumbling-block before him, (so that) he shall die; yet if thou hast not given him warning, he shall die in his sin, and his acts of righteousness which he hath done shall not be remembered; but his blood will I require from thy hand.

21 But if thou hast truly warned him,— the righteous, that the righteous should not sin, and he doth not sin: he shall surely live, because he attended to the warning, and thou hast surely delivered thy own soul.

22 ¶ And the inspiration of the LORD came there over me; and he said unto me, Arise, go forth into the valley, and there will I speak with thee.

23 And I arose, and went forth into the valley; and, behold, there was the glory of the LORD standing, like that glory which I had seen by the river Kebar: and I fell down on my face.

24 Then entered a spirit into me, and placed me upright on my feet, and spoke with me, and said unto me, Go, shut thyself up[a] within thy house.

25 But thou, O son of man, behold, they put ropes[b] upon thee, and bind thee with them, that thou canst not go out among them:

26 And I will let thy tongue cleave to the roof of thy mouth, that thou shalt be dumb, and shalt not become to them a man who reproveth; for they are a rebellious family.[c]

27 But when I speak with thee, I will open thy mouth, and thou shalt say unto them, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, He that heareth, let him hear; and he that forbeareth, let him forbear; for they are a rebellious family.

CHAPTER IV.

1 ¶ But thou, O son of man, take thyself a tile, and lay it before thee, and engrave upon it a city, (namely,) Jerusalem:

2 And place around it a siege, and build works of attack[d] against it, and cast up a mound against it; and arrange around it encampments, and place against it battering rams[e] round about.

3 Moreover take thou unto thyself an iron pan, and set it up as a wall of iron between thee[f] and the city: and direct thy face against it, that it may be placed in a state of siege, and lay siege against it. This shall be a sign for the house of Israel.

4 ¶ And as for thyself, lie upon thy left side, and lay the iniquity of the house of Israel upon it: (after) the number of the days that thou shalt lie upon it shalt thou bear their iniquity.

5 But as for myself, I lay upon thee the years of their iniquity, after the number of the days, three hundred and ninety days: so shalt thou bear the iniquity of the house of Israel.

6 And when thou hast made an end of them, thou shalt lie on thy right side, the second time, and thou shalt bear the iniquity of the house of Judah forty days: a day each for a year, a day for a year do I lay it on thee.

7 And toward the siege of Jerusalem shalt thou direct thy face with thy arm uncovered, and thou shalt prophesy against it.

8 And, behold, I will lay ropes upon thee, that thou mayest not turn thyself from one side to the other, till thou hast made an end of the days of thy siege.

9 But thou take unto thee wheat, and barley, and beans, and lentiles, and millet, and spelt, and put them in one vessel, and make thyself bread thereof, (after) the number of the days that thou shalt lie upon thy side, three hundred and ninety days, shalt thou eat it.

10 And thy food which thou shalt eat shall be by weight, twenty shekels for every day: from one time to the other[g] time shalt thou eat it.

11 And water shalt thou drink by measure, the sixth part of a hin: from one time to the other time shalt thou drink (it).

12 And in form of a barley-cake shalt thou

[d] Rashi takes דיק to be an instrument to throw stones into the besieged city; Redak, as "wooden towers," which were pushed gradually against the walls for attack; hence we have given it simply to express both opinions.

[e] Rashi explains כרים to be "chiefs of the divisions," each of whom watches his part of the besieged place.

[f] Rashi comments, "like the city wall which separates between the city and the hostile army." But Redak makes it emblematic of the sins of Israel, which separated them from their God.

[g] Rashi, "from day to day shalt thou eat this—drink this," emblematic of a rigorous siege, where food and drink are closely calculated before being given out.

eat it, and this shalt thou bake with balls of human excrement before their eyes.

13 ¶ And the LORD said, Even thus shall the children of Israel eat their bread unclean among the nations whither I will drive them.

14 Then said I, Ah Lord Eternal! behold, my soul hath not been defiled; and that which dieth of itself, or is torn in pieces, have I never eaten from my youth up even until now; and never is flesh of abomination come into my mouth.

15 ¶ Then said he unto me, Lo, I have given thee cow's dung instead of human excrement; and thou shalt prepare thy bread thereupon.

16 ¶ And he said unto me, Son of man, behold, I will break the staff of bread in Jerusalem; and they shall eat bread by weight, and with anxious care; and they shall drink water by measure, and in confusion;

17 In order that they may want bread and water, and be confounded one with the other, and pine away for their iniquity.

CHAPTER V.

1 ¶ And thou, son of man, take unto thyself a sharp sword, a barber's razor shalt thou take for it[a] unto thyself, and cause it to pass over thy head and over thy beard: then take unto thee balances for weighing, and divide the hair.

2 One third part shalt thou burn with fire in the midst of the city, when the days of the siege are completed; and thou shalt take another third part, and smite (it) round about it with the sword; and the other third part shalt thou scatter to the wind: and I will draw out a sword after the same.

3 And take thence a few in number, and tie them up in the corners of thy garment.

4 And from these again shalt thou take some, and cast them into the midst of the fire, and burn them in the fire: therefrom shall a fire go forth unto all the house of Israel.

5 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, This is Jerusalem, which I had set it in the midst of the nations and countries that are round about her.

6 But she rebelled[b] against my ordinances more wickedly than the nations, and against my statutes, more than the countries that are round about her; for my ordinances they have despised, and as for my statutes, they have not walked in them.

7 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Because ye have given[c] yourselves up to evil more than the nations that are round about you, have not walked in my statutes, and have not executed my ordinances, and not even acted according to the ordinances of the nations that are round about you:

8 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the LORD Eternal, Behold, I, also I am against thee, and I will execute judgments in the midst of thee before the eyes of the nations.

9 And I will do in thee that which I have never done, and the like of which I will never do any more, because of all thy abominations.

10 ¶ Therefore fathers shall devour their children in the midst of thee, and children shall devour their fathers: and I will execute judgments on thee, and I will scatter all thy remnant unto all the winds.

11 Therefore, as I live, saith the Lord Eternal, Surely, because thou hast made unclean my sanctuary with all thy detestable things, and with all thy abominations: therefore will I also diminish[d] (thee); and my eye shall not show pity, and I also will not spare.

12 A third part of thee shall die through the pestilence, and come through famine to their end in the midst of thee; and another third part shall fall by the sword round about thee; and the other third part will I scatter unto all the winds, and a sword will I draw out after them.

13 Thus shall my anger be accomplished, and I will cause my fury to rest upon them, and I will satisfy myself:[e] and they shall know[f] that I the LORD have spoken it in my zeal, when I have let out all my fury on them.

14 Yea, I will render thee a ruin, and a disgrace among the nations that are round about thee, before the eyes of every one that passeth by.

15 And she shall be a disgrace and a taunt, a warning and an astonishment unto the nations that are round about thee,[a] when I execute judgments on thee in anger and in fury and in furious chastisements,—I the LORD have spoken it,—

16 When I send out among them the dreadful arrows of famine, which (ever) were the cause of destruction, which I will send out to destroy you; and I will increase the famine upon you, and will break unto you the staff of bread:

17 So will I let loose over[b] you famine and wild beasts, and they shall make thee childless; and pestilence and blood shall pass through thee; and the sword will I bring over thee. I the LORD have spoken it.

CHAPTER VI.

1 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, set thy face against the mountains of Israel, and prophesy against them,

3 And thou shalt say, O mountains of Israel, hear ye the word of the Lord Eternal! Thus hath said the Lord Eternal to the mountains, and to the hills, to the brooks,[c] and to the valleys, Behold, I, even I, will bring over you the sword, and I will destroy your high-places.

4 And your altars shall be made desolate, and your sun-images shall be broken: and I will cause your slain ones to fall before your idols.

5 And I will lay the carcasses of the children of Israel before their idols; and I will scatter your bones round about your altars.

6 In all your dwelling-places the cities shall be laid in ruins, and the high-places shall be made desolate; in order that your altars may be laid in ruins and made desolate,[d] and your idols may be broken and annihilated, and your sun-images may be cut down, and your works may be blotted out.

7 And the slain shall fall in the midst of you: and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

8 Yet will I leave (some); that ye shall have some that escape the sword among the nations, when ye shall be scattered in the (various) countries.

9 And those of you that escape shall remember me among the nations among whom they shall have been carried captive, when I shall have broken[e] their licentious heart, which had departed from me, even with their eyes, which were gone astray after their idols: and they shall loathe[f] themselves on account of the evil deeds which they have committed with all their abominations.

10 And they shall know that I am the LORD: not for naught have I spoken that I would do unto them this evil.

11 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Strike thy hands together,[g] and stamp with thy foot, and say, Alas for all the dreadful abominations of the house of Israel! who will have to fall by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence.

12 He that is afar off shall die of the pestilence; and he that is near shall fall by the sword; and he that remaineth and is besieged[h] shall die by the famine: thus will I let out all my fury on them.

13 And ye shall know that I am the LORD, when their slain ones shall lie in the midst of their idols round about their altars, on every high hill, upon all the tops of the mountains, and under every green tree, and under every thick-branched oak,—places where they presented sweet savour to all their idols.

14 And I will stretch out my hand over them, and I will render the land desolate and waste, more than the wilderness toward

CHAPTER VII.

1 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 And thou, son of man, thus hath said the Lord Eternal concerning the land of Israel, There is an end! the end is coming over the four corners of the land.

3 Now cometh the end over thee, and I will let loose my anger against thee, and will judge thee according to thy ways, and I will lay upon thee all thy abominations.

4 And my eye shall not show pity upon thee, and I will not spare thee; for thy own ways will I lay upon thee, and thy abominations shall come in the midst of thee: and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

5 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, An evil, a peculiar evil, behold, is coming.

6 An end is coming, there is coming the end: it waketh up against thee; behold, (the evil) cometh.[b]

7 The evil decree[c] is come against thee, O thou inhabitant of the land: the time is come, near is the day of tumult, and not the joyful call[d] on the mountains.

8 Now will I in a short time pour out my fury over thee, and I will let out all my anger against thee, and I will judge thee according to thy ways, and I will lay upon thee all thy abominations.

9 And my eye shall not show pity, and I will not spare: according to thy ways will I lay (evil) on thee; and thy abominations shall come in the midst of thee: and ye shall know that I am the LORD that smiteth.

10 Behold the day, behold, it is coming; the evil decree[e] is gone forth; the staff hath blossomed, presumption hath budded;

11 The violence[f] is grown up into the staff of wickedness: nothing is left of them, and nothing of their multitude, and nothing of theirs;[g] and there shall be no lamenting for them.

12 The time is coming, the day occurreth; let the buyer not rejoice, and let the seller not mourn; for wrath is against all her multitude.

13 For the seller shall not return to that which is sold, although their soul were yet alive; for the vision is against all her multitude; no one[h] shall return; but the soul of every one is fastened to his iniquity, they do not strengthen themselves (to repent).[i]

14 They have blown the cornet, every one maketh himself ready; but no one goeth to the battle; for my wrath is against all her multitude.

15 The sword is without, and the pestilence and the famine are within: he that is in the field shall die by the sword; and he that is in the city, him shall famine and pestilence devour.

16 But they that escape of them shall escape, and they shall be on the mountains like the doves of the valleys, all of which are moaning, every one in his iniquity.

17 All hands become feeble, and all knees go into[k] water.

18 And people gird themselves with sackcloth, and shuddering covereth them: and upon all faces there is shame, and upon all their heads there is baldness.

19 Their silver shall they cast into the streets, and their gold shall be as though it were unclean: their silver and their gold shall not be able to deliver them on the day of the wrath of the LORD; they shall not satisfy their souls, and not fill their bowels; because it was the stumbling-block for[l] their iniquity.

[b] This is similar to the second verse; but there is a paronomasia, or play upon the words here, deserving of notice. קֵץ בָּא בָּא הַקֵּץ הִקִּיץ אֵלַיִךְ, "the end cometh, come is the end: it waketh for thee." קֵץ is "an end," הִקִּיץ is "he waketh."

[c] Redak, "the evil decree is come against thee like the morning." Rashi, "the light of the morning-dawn and glory is already set." Jonathan, "the kingdom," i. e. the Chaldeans.

[d] Some, "echo."

[f] The violence of the enemy is grown into a staff of punishment; but Rashi, "the violence of your hand is risen up against you as a staff of wickedness to destroy you."

[g] Zunz, "nothing of their wealth, and nothing of their tumult." Rashi, "nor of their children, nor their multitude."

[i] Rashi. Philippson, "no one can stand firmly in the guilt of his soul."

[k] i. e. Are unable to stand, as water.

[l] i. e. Their wealth led them to sin.

20 And as for the beauty[a] of his ornament, which he had instituted for (their) pride: even therein did they make the images of their abominations, their detestable things; therefore have I rendered it unclean for them.

21 And I will give it up into the hands of the strangers for a prey, and to the wicked of the earth for a spoil: and they shall pollute it.

22 And I will turn away my face from them, and they shall pollute my place where I dwelt in secret; and therein shall barbarians enter and pollute it.

23 Make chains; for the land is full of blood-guiltiness, and the city is full of violence.

24 Therefore will I bring the worst of nations, and they shall take possession of their houses: I will also cause the pride of the mighty to cease; and their holy places shall be polluted.

25 Destruction cometh: and they will seek peace, but there shall be none.

26 Mishap shall come upon mishap, and report shall be spread upon report: and then will they seek a vision from the prophet; but the law shall be lost from the priest, and counsel from the ancients.

27 The king shall mourn, and the prince shall be clothed with distress, and the hands of the people of the land shall be powerless:[b] after their way will I do unto them, and according to their own manners will I judge them; and they shall know that I am the LORD.

CHAPTER VIII.

1 ¶ And it came to pass in the sixth year, in the sixth month, on the fifth day of the month, that I was sitting in my house, and the elders of Judah were sitting before me; and there fell upon me there the inspiration of the Lord Eternal.

2 And I saw, and, behold, there was a likeness similar to the appearance of fire; from the appearance of his loins downward, it was fire; and from his loins upward, it was similar to the appearance of a bright light, like the glitter of amber.

3 And he stretched forth the form of a hand, and took me by the locks of my head; and a spirit bore me between the earth and the heaven, and brought me in the visions[c] of God to Jerusalem, to the door of the inner gate[d] that looketh toward the north, where was the seat of the image of jealousy, which provoketh to wrath.[e]

4 And, behold, there was the glory of the God of Israel, like the appearance which I had seen in the valley.

5 And he said unto me, Son of man, do but lift up thy eyes in the direction toward the north. So I lifted up my eyes in the direction toward the north, and behold northward at the gate of[f] the altar (there was) this image of jealousy at the entrance.

6 Then said he unto me, Son of man, seest thou what they are doing? great abominations are they that the house of Israel commit here, to make me go far away from my sanctuary; but thou shalt yet see still other great abominations.

7 And he brought me to the door of the court: and I looked, and behold there was a hole in the wall.[g]

8 Then said he unto me, Son of man, do break (an opening)[h] in the wall: and I broke (an opening) in the wall, and, behold, there was a door.

9 And he said unto me, Go in, and see the wicked abominations which they are doing here.

10 So I went in and saw; and behold there was every form of creeping things, and cattle, abominations, and all the idols of the house of Israel, engraven[i] upon the wall all round about.

11 And seventy men of the elders of the house of Israel, and Yaăzanyahu the son of [a] Rashi; referring this to God's temple, which he had made the pride of Israel, and which should now be cast off as unclean, because they had placed their abominations in it. Philippson, "their costly ornaments they applied for pride; made thereof," &c.

[c] Rashi, "he showed me as though he were carrying me and bringing me to Jerusalem."

[f] i. e. The gate which faced the altar, in the inner court.

[i] Similar to the temples of the Egyptians, on the walls of which all the things here described are engraved.

Shaphan standing in the midst of them, were standing before them, and every man had his censer in his hand; and a thick curling cloud of incense was ascending upward.

12 Then said he unto me, Son of man, hast thou seen what the elders of the house of Israel are doing in the dark, every man in his image-chambers?[a] for they say, The LORD seeth us not: the LORD hath forsaken the earth.

13 And he said unto me, Thou shalt yet again see still other great abominations that they are doing.

14 And he brought me to the entrance of the gate of the LORD'S house which was on the north side: and, behold, there sat the women weeping for Thammuz.[b]

15 Then said he unto me, Hast thou seen this, O son of man? Thou shalt yet again see still other greater abominations than these.

16 And he brought me into the inner court of the LORD'S house, and, behold, at the door of the temple of the LORD, between the porch and the altar, were about five and twenty men, with their backs toward the temple of the LORD, and their faces toward the east; and they were prostrating themselves eastward to the sun.

17 Then said he unto me, Hast thou seen this, O son of man? Is it too light a thing for the house of Judah to commit the abominations which they commit here? for they have filled the land with violence, and they constantly repeat to provoke me to anger; and, lo, they stretch forth the branch to their nose.[c]

18 Therefore I also will deal in fury; my eye shall not look with pity, and I will not spare: and though they call before my ears with a loud voice, will I still not hear them.

CHAPTER IX.

1 And he called before my ears with a loud voice, saying, Let those come near that have charge to punish[d] the city, and every man with his destroying weapon in his hand.

2 And, behold, six men came from the direction of the upper gate, which is turned toward the north, and every man with his weapon of destruction in his hand; and one man in the midst of them was clothed in linen, with a writer's materials[e] by his side: and they went in, and placed themselves beside the copper altar.

3 And the glory of the God of Israel ascended up from the cherub, whereupon it had been, to the threshold of the house. And he called to the man clothed in linen, who had the writer's materials by his side.

4 ¶ And the LORD said unto him, Pass through the midst of the city, through the midst of Jerusalem, and inscribe a mark upon the foreheads of the men who sigh and who complain because of all the abominations which are done in the midst of it.

5 And to the others he said before my ears, Pass ye through the city after him, and smite: let your eye not look with pity, and do not spare;

6 The aged, youth, and virgin, and little children, and women shall ye slay and destroy; but come not near any man upon whom the mark is; and at my sanctuary shall ye begin. Then they began with the ancient men who were before the house.

7 And he said unto them, Make unclean the house, and fill the courts with the slain: go forth. And they went forth, and they smote in the city.

8 And it came to pass, while they were smiting them, and I alone was left, that I fell upon my face, and cried out, and said, Ah Lord Eternal! wilt thou destroy all the residue of Israel when thou pourest out thy fury over Jerusalem?

9 Then said he unto me, The iniquity of the house of Israel and of Judah is exceedingly great, and the land is full of blood-guiltiness, and the city full of injustice;[f] for they have said, The LORD hath forsaken the land, and the LORD seeth not.

10 And as for me also, my eye shall not look with pity, and I will not spare; but I will bring their course upon their own head.

11 And, behold, the man clothed in linen, who had the writing materials by his side, brought back word, saying, I have done according to all that thou hast commanded me.

CHAPTER X.

1 Then I saw, and, behold, on the vault that was above the head of the cherubim, there appeared over them something like a sapphire stone, something similar in appearance to the likeness of a throne.

2 And he said unto the man clothed in linen, and said, Go in between the wheels, under the cherub, and fill thy hands with coals of fire from between the cherubim, and throw (them) over the city. And he went in before my eyes.

3 Now the cherubim were standing on the right side of the house, when the man went in: and the cloud filled the inner court.

4 Then the glory of the LORD rose upward from the cherub, toward the threshold of the house: and the house was filled with the cloud, and the court was full of the brightness of the LORD'S glory.

5 And the sound of the wings of the cherubim was heard as far as the outer court, like the voice of the Almighty God when he speaketh.

6 And it came to pass, when he commanded the man clothed in linen, saying, Take fire from between the wheels, from between the cherubim, that he went in, and stood beside the wheel.

7 And the one cherub stretched forth his hand from between the cherubim unto the fire that was between the cherubim, and lifted it up, and placed it into the hands of the one clothed in linen; who took it, and went out.

8 And there became visible on the cherubim the form of a man's hand beneath their wings.

9 And I saw, and, behold, there were four wheels by the cherubim, one wheel by the one cherub, and another wheel by the other cherub: and the appearance of the wheels was like the glitter of a chrysolite stone.

10 And as for their appearances, the whole four had one likeness, as if a wheel were in the midst of another wheel.

11 In their going, they went toward their four sides, they turned not round in their going; but to the place whither the head was turned they followed it, they turned not round in their going.

12 And their[a] whole body, and their back, and their hands, and their wings, as also the wheels, were full of eyes round about, (even) the wheels that belonged to all four of them.

13 As for the wheels, they were called Galgal[b] before my ears.

14 And every one had four faces: the one face was the face of a cherub, and the second face was the face of a man, and the third the face of a lion, and the fourth the face of an eagle.

15 And the cherubim lifted themselves up. This is the living creature that I saw by the river Kebar.

16 And when the cherubim went forward, the wheels went close by them; and when the cherubim lifted up their wings to mount up from the earth, the wheels also did not turn away from beside them.

17 When those halted, these halted; and when those lifted themselves up, these lifted themselves up with them; for the spirit of the living creature was in them.

18 And the glory of the LORD went forth from off the threshold of the house, and halted over the cherubim.

19 And the cherubim lifted up their wings, and mounted up from the earth before my eyes as they went forth, and the wheels at the same time with them, and halted at the entrance of the east gate of the house of the LORD: and the glory of the God of Israel was over them above.

20 This is the living creature that I saw under the God of Israel by the river Kebar; and I understood that they were cherubim.

21 Every one had four faces apiece, and

[a] Rashi and Redak think this describes the Ophannim; others, the Cherubim also, who are thus represented as full of eyes.

[b] Galgal is synonymous with Ophan, meaning, "wheel;" but the first term, from גלל "to roll," denotes more especially the speed and rapidity of their motion.

every one had four wings; and the likeness of the hands of a man was under their wings.

22 And the likeness of their faces was the same as the faces which I had seen by the river Kebar, their appearances and themselves: they went every one in the direction of his face.

CHAPTER XI.

1 And a spirit bore me up, and brought me unto the east gate of the house of the LORD, which looketh eastward: and behold, there were at the entrance of the gate five and twenty men; and I saw in the midst of them Yaäzanyah the son of 'Azzur, and Pelatyahu the son of Benayahu, princes of the people.

2 ¶ Then said he unto me, Son of man, these are the men that devise wickedness, and give evil counsel in this city;

3 Who say, (The evil)[a] is not near; so let us build houses: this (city) is the pot, and we are the flesh.

4 ¶ Therefore prophesy against them, prophesy, O son of man.

5 And the Spirit of the LORD fell upon me, and said unto me, Speak, Thus hath said the LORD, Thus have ye said, O house of Israel; and whatever cometh into your mind, do I know full well.

6 Ye have multiplied those slain by you in this city, and ye have filled its streets with the slain.

7 Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Those slain by you whom ye have struck down[b] in the midst of it,—they are the flesh, and this place is the pot; but you are to be removed[c] out of the midst of it.

8 The sword have ye feared: and the sword will I bring over you, saith the Lord Eternal.

9 And I will remove you out of the midst of it, and I will give you up into the hand of strangers, and will execute punishments among you.

10 By the sword shall ye fall; on the boundary of Israel will I judge you: and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

11 This place shall not be unto you as a pot, so that you should be as flesh in the midst of it; but on the boundary[d] of Israel will I judge you.

12 And ye shall know that I am the LORD; because[e] in my statutes have ye not walked, and my ordinances have ye not executed; but ye have done after the ordinances of the nations that are round about you.

13 And it came to pass, as I was prophesying, that Pelatyahu the son of Benayah died. Then fell I down upon my face, and cried with a loud voice, and said, Ah Lord Eternal! wilt thou make a full end of the remnant of Israel?

14 ¶ Then came the word of the LORD unto me, saying,

15 Son of man, thy brethren, even thy brethren, the men of thy kindred, and the whole house of Israel altogether,[f] are they unto whom the inhabitants of Jerusalem have said, Remain you far from the LORD: unto us is this land given for a possession.

16 ¶ Therefore say, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Although I have removed them far away among the nations, and although I have scattered them among the countries: yet will I be to them as a minor[g] sanctuary in the countries whither they are come.

17 ¶ Therefore say, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, I will both gather you from the people, and assemble you out of the countries whither ye have been scattered, and I will give you the land of Israel.

18 And they shall come thither, and they shall remove all its detestable things, and all its abominations out of it.

"It is the pot," is so commented on by Rashi: "As the flesh is not removed from the pot till it is completely boiled, so shall we not go forth from it till we die."

[b] Lit. "placed."

[c] Lit. "to bring forth."

[f] Those who had been carried to Babylon. They were regarded as inferior by those who had been left under Zedekiah; and they claimed to be especial favourites of God, because they yet held Palestine: hence the denunciation; since neither they nor their king adhered to the law which God had imparted to them.

[g] Jonathan, who renders, "synagogues," or "places of assembly." Philippson, after some moderns, "a sanctuary for a little while."

19 And I will give them one single heart, and a new spirit will I put within you; and I will remove the heart of stone out of their body,[a] and I will give unto them a heart of flesh:

20 In order that they may walk in my statutes, and keep my ordinances, and do them; and they shall be unto me for a people, and I will indeed be unto them for a God.

21 But as for those whose heart walketh after the heart of their detestable things and their abominations, their way do I bring upon their own head, saith the Lord Eternal.

22 Then did the cherubim lift up their wings, and the wheels at the same time with them; and the glory of the God of Israel was over them above.

23 And the glory of the LORD ascended from the midst of the city, and halted upon the mount which is on the east side of the city.

24 But a spirit bore me up, and brought me into Chaldea, to those in exile, in the appearance through the spirit of God: and then ascended away from me the appearance which I had seen.

25 Then did I speak unto those in exile all the things that the LORD had shown me.

CHAPTER XII.

1 ¶ The word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, in the midst of a rebellious family art thou dwelling, who have eyes to see, and see not; who have ears to hear, and hear not; for they are a rebellious family.

3 ¶ But thou, O son of man, prepare for thyself vessels for going into exile, and wander away by day before their eyes; and thou shalt wander away from thy place to another place before their eyes: perhaps they may become aware that they are a rebellious family.

4 Then shalt thou carry forth thy vessels, like vessels of exile, by day before their eyes: and thou shalt go forth at evening before their eyes, as they do that go forth into exile.

5 Before their eyes break a hole through the wall, and carry (them) through it.

6 Before their (eyes) shalt thou bear them upon thy shoulders, in the dark shalt thou carry them forth: thy face shalt thou cover, that thou mayest not see the ground; for as a token have I set thee unto the house of Israel.

7 And I did so as I had been commanded; my vessels I carried forth by day, like vessels of exile, and in the evening I broke a hole for myself through the wall with my hand: in the dark I brought them forth, and I bore them upon my shoulder before their eyes.

8 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me in the morning, saying,

9 Son of man, have not the house of Israel, the rebellious family, said unto thee, What doest thou?

10 Say thou unto them, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, For the prince in Jerusalem is the doom, and for all the house of Israel, (and those) that are in the midst of them.

11 Say, I am your token; just as I have done, so shall it be done unto them: into exile, into captivity, shall they wander.

12 And the prince that is among them shall bear upon his shoulder in the dark, and shall go forth; through the wall shall they break a hole to carry (things) through it: his face shall he cover up, that he may not see the ground with his eyes.

13 And I will spread out my net over him, and he shall be caught in my snare: and I will bring him to Babylon into the land of the Chaldeans; yet shall he not see it,[b] and there shall he die.

14 And all that are round about him, those who assist him, and all the wings of his armies will I disperse toward every wind; and the sword will I draw out after them.

15 And they shall know that I am the LORD, when I scatter them among the nations, and disperse them in the countries.

16 But I will leave of them men few in number from the sword, from the famine, and from the pestilence: in order that they may relate all their abominations among the nations whither they shall have come; and they shall know that I am the LORD.

[a] Lit. "flesh."

[b] Jeremiah prophesied that Zedekiah should see the king of Babylon; and Ezekiel, that he should not see that country; and so it happened. Zedekiah was taken to Riblah, where he was blinded by Nebuchadnezzar, and then carried to Babylon, which he never left again.

17 ¶ And the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

18 Son of man, thy bread shalt thou eat with quaking, and thy water shalt thou drink with trembling and with anxious care.

19 And thou shalt say unto the people of the land, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal concerning the inhabitants of Jerusalem, (and) concerning the land of Israel, Their bread shall they eat with anxious care, and their water shall they drink with confusion, for the cause that her land will be desolate, deprived of its plenteousness because of the violence of all those that dwell therein.

20 And the cities that are inhabited shall be laid in ruins, and the land shall be made desolate: and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

21 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

22 Son of man, what sort of proverb is that which ye have in the land of Israel, saying, The days are lasting long,[a] and lost is every vision?

23 Therefore say unto them, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, I will cause this proverb to cease, and they shall no more use it as a proverb in Israel; but speak unto them, The days are coming nigh, and the word of every vision.

24 For there shall be no more any false vision[b] and a deceptive divination within the house of Israel.

25 For I am the LORD,—I do speak, and whatever word I do speak shall be done; it shall not be delayed any more; for in your days, O rebellious family, will I speak the word, and I will execute it, saith the Lord Eternal.

26 ¶ And the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

27 Son of man, behold, the house of Israel say, The vision that he foreseeth is for distant days, and for times that are far off doth he prophesy.

28 Therefore say unto them, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, There shall not be delayed any more one of all my words; but whatever word I do speak shall be done, saith the Lord Eternal.

CHAPTER XIII.

1 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, prophesy against the prophets of Israel that prophesy, and say thou unto those that prophesy out of their own heart, Hear ye the word of the LORD:

3 Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Wo unto the scandalous prophets, that follow their own spirit, without having seen any thing!

4 Like foxes among the ruins have been thy prophets, O Israel!

5 Ye did not go up into the breaches, nor did ye make a fence[c] around the house of Israel to stand in the battle on the day of the LORD.

6 They saw falsehood and lying divination, they who say, "The LORD saith," when the LORD had not sent them; and yet they made others hope for the fulfilment of the word.

7 Had ye not seen a false vision, and had ye not said a lying divination? and ye say, "The LORD saith," when I have not spoken.

8 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Whereas ye have spoken falsehood, and have seen lies: therefore, behold, I am against you, saith the Lord Eternal.

9 And my hand shall be against the prophets that see falsehood, and that divine lies; in the secret council of my people shall they not be, and in the register of the house of Israel shall they not be written, and into the land of Israel shall they not come: and ye shall know that I am the Lord Eternal.

10 Because, even because they have seduced my people, saying, "Peace," when there was no peace: and (my people)[d] build a pro-

[a] Rashi, "The days (the time) will be long without the coming of the punishment, and in the mean while will the evil vision which the prophets prophesy unto us be forgotten and lost sight of." Zunz, "all prophecy remains unfulfilled."

[b] Rashi, "The false prophets shall no more be able to promise you falsely peace, for speedily will I bring to pass the words of the true prophets." Philippson, "double-meaning prediction;" and thinks it to mean, that the assertions of the true prophets should no longer be a matter of doubt.

[c] When the enemy has breached the wall the valiant step forward to repel the invaders, and others build in haste a wall or fence to repair the damage; but the false prophets seek their own safety, regardless of the sorrow of others.

[d] Rashi; meaning, the people sin, build, as it were, a wall to protect themselves of bad materials, and these prophets tecting wall, and, lo, they plaster it with unadhesive mortar.

11 Say unto those who plaster it with unadhesive mortar, that it shall fall: there cometh an overflowing rain-shower; and ye, O great hailstones, shall fall; and a storm-wind shall rend it.

12 And, lo, the wall is fallen down; will it not now be said unto you, Where is the plastering wherewith ye have plastered?

13 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal, I will even rend it with storm-winds in my fury; and an overflowing rain-shower shall come in my anger, with great hailstones in my fury to destroy it.

14 And I will pull down the wall that ye have plastered with unadhesive mortar, and I will cast it down to the ground, so that the foundation thereof shall be laid open; and it shall fall, and ye shall be destroyed in the midst of it: and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

15 Thus will I let out all my wrath upon the wall, and upon those that have plastered it with unadhesive mortar; and I will say unto you, Gone is the wall, and gone are they that plastered it;

16 (Namely,) the prophets of Israel who prophesy concerning Jerusalem, and who see for her a vision of peace, when there is no peace, saith the Lord Eternal.

17 ¶ But, thou son of man, set thy face against the daughters of thy people, who prophesy out of their own heart: and prophesy against them,

18 And say, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Wo to the women that sew bolsters together[a] for the armpits of all, and make cushions for the head of every stature, to hunt souls! Will ye hunt the souls of my people, that ye may keep your own soul alive?

19 And ye profane me among my people for handfuls[b] of barley and for bits of bread, to slay the souls that should not die, and to keep alive the souls that should not live, by your lying to my people that listen to lies!

20 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Behold, I am against your bolsters, whereon ye hunt the souls that they may flutter (in your net),[c] and I will tear them away from your arms; and I will let the souls go free, even the souls that ye hunt that they may flutter (in your net.)

21 And I will tear away your cushions, and deliver my people out of your hand, and they shall be no more in your hand to be hunted: and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

22 Because ye grieve the heart of the righteous with falsehood, when I have not given him pain; and strengthen the hands of the wicked, so that he should not return from his wicked way, through which he might live.[d]

23 Therefore shall ye see no more falsehood, and tell no more divinations; and I will deliver my people out of your hand: and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

CHAPTER XIV.

1 Then came there unto me certain men of the elders of Israel, and sat down before me.

2 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

3 Son of man, these men have set up their idols in their heart,[e] and the stumbling-block of their iniquity have they placed before their faces: shall I in any wise let myself be inquired of by them?

4 ¶ Therefore speak with them, and say unto them, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Whatever man it be of the house of Israel that setteth up his idols in his heart, and layeth the stumbling-block of his iniquity before his face, and cometh to the prophet: I the LORD will answer him, although[f] he cometh with the multitude of his idols; confirm them by predicting happiness, as though they covered the wall of the others with a plastering which will fall off almost as soon as applied.

[a] Referring to the Eastern custom of furnishing the rooms luxuriously with bolsters, cushions, and divans. Redak takes כסתות to mean, not "cushions," but "vails." The last part of the verse Rashi renders, "to support yourselves by this means." So also Zunz.

[b] For a trifling reward.

[c] After Rashi and Philippson. Rashi comments, "that they may fly through your means to hell." which is beautifully given by Philippson, as here imitated, by "fluttering in the net" of those female deceivers whose arts and aim are to lead souls to destruction. This account of Ezekiel proves that the false prophetesses were not sparing of immoral acts to confirm their power over their dupes.

[d] Zunz. Others, "by promising him life."

[e] Rashi, "they have resolved in their heart to serve their idols."

[f] Rashi. Zunz, "for he cometh." Philippson, "I the LORD will answer him in this wise, according to the multitude," &c.

5 In order that I may grasp[a] the house of Israel by their heart, those who are separated from me through all their idols.

6 ¶ Therefore say unto the house of Israel, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Return, and cause (your heart) to turn away from your idols: and from all your abominations turn away your faces.

7 For whatever man it be of the house of Israel, or of the stranger that sojourneth in Israel, that separateth himself from me, and setteth up his idols in his heart, and layeth the stumbling-block of his iniquity before his face, and then cometh to the prophet to inquire through him of me: I the LORD will answer him through my word;[b]

8 And I will set my face against that man, and will make him an astonishment for a sign and for proverbs, and I will cut him off from the midst of my people; and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

9 ¶ And when the prophet suffereth himself to be deceived, and he speaketh a word: I the LORD have suffered that prophet to be[c] deceived; and I will stretch out my hand against him, and will destroy him from the midst of my people Israel.

10 And they shall bear their guilt: as the guilt of the inquirer is, so shall the guilt of the prophet be;

11 In order that the house of Israel may go no more astray by not following me, and not pollute themselves any more with all their transgressions; but that they may become unto me a people, and I may be unto them a God, saith the Lord Eternal.

12 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

13 Son of man, if a land should sin against me by trespassing grievously, and I stretch out my hand against it, and break unto it the staff of bread, and send out famine against it, and cut off from it man and beast;

14 And if there be these three men, Noäh, Daniël, and Job,[a] in the midst of it: these through their righteousness should save but their own soul; saith the Lord Eternal.

15 If I cause wild beasts to pass through the land, and they depopulate it, and it becometh desolate, without any one to pass through because of the beasts:

16 These three men (if they were) in it, as I live, saith the Lord Eternal, should not save either sons or daughters; they only should be saved, but the land should be made desolate.

17 Or, if I should bring a sword over that land, and say, The sword shall pass through the land, and I cut off from it man and beast;

18 And if these three men should be in it: as I live, saith the Lord Eternal, they should not save either sons or daughters, but they alone should be saved.

19 Or, if I should send out the pestilence against that land, and pour out my fury over it in blood, to cut off from it man and beast;

20 And if Noäh, Daniël, and Job, should be in the midst of it: as I live, saith the Lord Eternal, they should not save either son or daughter; they through their righteousness should save their own soul.

21 ¶ For thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Although I send my four dreadful means of punishment over Jerusalem, the sword, and the famine, and the wild beasts, and the pestilence, to cut off from it man and beast:

22 Still, behold, there are left therein some that escape who shall be carried forth, both sons and daughters; behold, they are coming forth unto you,[c] and ye will see their way and their doings; and then will ye be comforted concerning the evil that I have brought upon Jerusalem, yea, concerning all that I have brought upon it;

23 And they will comfort you, when ye see their way and their doings; and ye shall know that I have not done without cause[f] all that I have executed in it, saith the Lord Eternal.

[a] Jonathan, "In order to bring the house of Israel to come with repentance in their heart, which hath departed from my service."

[b] Jonathan, Redak, "for my sake." Philippson, "In a manner befitting myself."

[c] i. e. When the prophet, like Bil'am, has evil intentions, and speaks contrary to the divine inspiration, which, though a sin, is not prevented by divine interposition, more than other transgressions. "Whoever will do wrong has the liberty to do so," is a saying of the wise; though it be at the peril of the sinner.

[a] Correctly, Iyyob.

[c] Meaning, that the exiles of Jerusalem should join those already in Babylon.

[f] i. e. It was not caprice, but justice, which destroyed Jerusalem.

CHAPTER XV.

1 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, What shall become of the wood of the vine more than of any other wood, of the branch[a] which was standing among the trees of the forest?

3 Can wood be taken therefrom to employ it for any work? or will men take from it a pin to hang thereon any vessel?

4 Behold, if it be given up to the fire to be consumed,—(and) the fire have consumed both its ends, and the middle of it be scorched: will it be fit for any work?

5 Behold, when it was yet entire, it could not be employed for any work: how much more (must this be) when the fire hath consumed it, and it is scorched,—and shall it yet be employed for any work?

6 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal, As the wood of the vine among the trees of the forest, which I have given up to the fire to be consumed: so do I give up the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

7 And I will set my face against them: from the fire[b] have they gone forth, yet the fire shall devour them; and ye shall know that I am the LORD, when I set my face against them.

8 And I will render the land a desert; because they have committed a trespass, saith the Lord Eternal.

CHAPTER XVI.

1 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, make known unto Jerusalem her abominations,

3 And thou shalt say, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal unto Jerusalem, Thy origin and thy birth are out of the land of Canaan: thy father was an Emorite,[c] and thy mother a Hittite.

4 And as for thy birth, on the day thou wast born thy navel was not cut, nor wast thou washed in water to be cleansed;[d] and thou wast not rubbed with salt, nor wrapt in swaddling clothes.

5 No eye looked with pity on thee, to do any of these things unto thee, to have compassion upon thee; but thou wast cast out on the open field, with a loathing[e] of thy body, on the day that thou wast born.

6 But I passed then by thee, and I saw thee stained[f] with thy own blood, and I said unto thee, In[g] thy blood, live; yea, I said unto thee, In thy blood, live.

7 Myriads, like the vegetation of the field, did I make of thee, and thou didst increase and become great, and thou attainedst the highest attractions: with thy breasts developed, and thy hair full grown; but thou wast still naked and bare.

8 But I passed then by thee, and saw thee, and, behold, thy time was the time of love; and I spread the skirt of my garment over thee, and covered thy nakedness: yea, I swore unto thee, and entered into a covenant with thee, saith the Lord Eternal, and thou becamest mine.

9 Then did I bathe thee with water, yea, I thoroughly washed away thy blood from thee; and I anointed thee with oil.

10 I clothed thee also with broidered work, and made thee shoes of badger's[h] skin, and I placed on thy head a turban of fine linen, and I covered thee with silk.

11 And I decked thee with ornaments, and I placed bracelets upon thy hands, and a chain around thy neck.

12 And I placed a ring on thy nose, and earrings in thy ears, and a crown of splendour on thy head.

13 Thus wast thou ornamented with gold and silver; and thy garments were of fine linen, and silk, and broidered work; fine flour, and honey, and oil didst thou eat: and

[a] Rashi, "Not the vine of vineyards which bears fruit do I speak of to thee, but of the branches of the wild vine which groweth in the forest."

[b] Jonathan, "They have transgressed the words of the law which were given out of the fire, and the nations who are strong as fire shall destroy them." But the plain sense is, "though they have escaped many dangers, they shall succumb at last."

[c] i. e. The city of Jerusalem was of ancient origin before Abraham came to Palestine.

[d] Rashi, applanement, "making level," "smooth."

[e] Zunz, "on thy body." Philippson, "full of contempt of thy life;" i. e. indifferent whether such treatment would injure the new-born child or not.

[f] Others, "twitching," "struggling."

[g] Rashi, "In this thy state of filthiness shalt thou not die." Hence we might render, "Notwithstanding thy blood shalt thou live."

[h] Zunz and other moderns leave תחש thachash untranslated.

thou wast exceedingly beautiful, and thou didst succeed to acquire dominion.

14 And thy fame went forth among the nations because of thy beauty; for it was perfect through my glorious ornament, which I had put upon thee, saith the Lord Eternal.

15 But thou didst trust in thy beauty, and play the harlot because of thy fame, and lavish thy lewd caresses on every one that passed by—on him they were bestowed.

16 And thou didst take from thy garments, and deck[a] thee high-places with divers colours, and play the harlot thereupon: never should the like come to pass, and never should it be so.

17 And thou didst take thy elegant ornaments of my gold and of my silver, which I had given thee, and make for thyself male images, and play the harlot with them;

18 And thou didst take thy broidered garments, and cover them: and my oil and my incense didst thou place before them.

19 And my bread which I had given thee, fine flour, and oil, and honey, which I had let thee eat, even this didst thou set before them for a sweet savour: yes, so was it, saith the Lord Eternal.

20 And thou didst take thy sons and thy daughters, whom thou hadst born unto me, and didst slaughter these unto them to be devoured; (but) were thy acts of lewdness not yet enough?

21 That thou didst slay my children, and give them up to cause them to pass through the fire for them?

22 And in all thy abominations and thy acts of lewdness thou didst not remember the days of thy youth, when thou wast naked and bare, when thou wast stained with thy blood.

23 And it came to pass after all thy wickedness,—(wo, wo unto thee! saith the Lord Eternal;)—

24 That thou didst build unto thyself eminences, and make thyself elevations in every street.

25 On the corner of every road didst thou build thy elevations, and make thy beauty abominable, and spread out thy feet to every one that passed by, and multiply thy acts of lewdness.

26 And thou didst play the harlot with the Egyptians, thy neighbours, with large limbs,[b] and multiply thy acts of lewdness, to provoke me to anger.

27 And, behold, I stretched out my hand over thee, and diminished thy stated portion; and I gave thee up unto the will of those that hate thee, the daughters of the Philistines, who were made to blush for thy incestuous course.

28 Then didst thou play the harlot with the sons of Asshur, because thou wast unsatiable: yea, thou didst play the harlot with them, and wast even then not satisfied.

29 And thou didst multiply thy lewdness with the traders'[c] land as far as Chaldea; and even with this wast thou not satisfied.

30 How very corrupt is thy heart, saith the Lord Eternal, seeing thou didst all these things, deeds of an abandoned lewd woman;

31 Seeing that thou didst build thy eminences at the corner of every road, and make thy elevations in every street; and wast not like a harlot, as thou scornedst the wages.

32 O thou adulterous wife! who, while bound to her husband, receiveth strangers!

33 Unto all harlots they give presents; but thou hast given thy presents to all thy lovers, and hast bribed them, that they might come unto thee from every side in thy acts of lewdness.

34 And the reverse was the case with thee from (other) women in thy acts of lewdness, that men did not follow thee to seek thy lewd caresses; and because thou gavest the wages, and no wages were given thee: so was it the reverse with thee.

35 Therefore, O harlot, hear the word of the LORD!

36 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Whereas thy wealth was squandered,[d] and thy nakedness was uncovered through thy lewd acts with thy lovers, and with all thy abominable idols,[e] and for the blood of thy children, whom thou didst give unto them:

37 Therefore, behold, I will gather all thy

[a] Lit. "make thyself high-places of divers colours."

[b] Lit. "great with respect to flesh."

[c] Rashi, taking כנען not for Canaanite, but "traders;" as the Phœnicians, the Canaanites by the seaside, were the merchants of antiquity, their proper name was at length applied to all who made merchandise their pursuit. Others, literally, "with the land of Canaan as far as Chaldea."

[d] After Philippson.

lovers, whom thou hast given[a] pleasure, and all whom thou hast loved, together with all whom thou hast hated,—yea, I will gather them all round about thee, and will uncover thy nakedness unto them, that they may see all thy nakedness.

38 And I will judge thee, as adulteresses and women that shed blood are judged; and I will bring[b] upon thee the blood of fury and jealousy.

39 And I will also give thee up into their hand, and they shall pull down thy eminences, and shall break down thy elevations; and they shall strip thee of thy clothes, and they shall take thy elegant ornaments, and leave thee naked and bare.

40 And they shall bring up against thee an assembly, and they shall stone thee with stones, and thrust thee through with their swords;

41 And they shall burn thy houses with fire, and execute punishments on thee before the eyes of many women: and I will cause thee to cease from being a harlot, and also the wages (of sin) shalt thou not give any more.

42 And then will I assuage my fury on thee, and my jealousy shall depart from thee, and I will be quiet, and will be no more angry.[c]

43 Because that thou didst not remember the days of thy youth, but didst irritate me with all these things: behold, therefore I also will bring thy course upon thy head, saith the Lord Eternal, and thou shalt no more commit incest[d] with all thy (other) abominations.

44 Behold, every one that speaketh[e] in proverbs shall use this proverb against thee, saying, As the mother is, so is her daughter.

45 Thou art thy mother's daughter, loathing her husband and her children; and thou art the sister of thy sisters, who have loathed their husbands and their children: your mother was a Hittite, and your father an Emorite.

46 And thy elder sister is Samaria, she with her daughters,[f] that dwelleth at thy left hand: and thy younger sister, that dwelleth at thy right hand, is Sodom with her daughters.

47 Yet not even in their ways didst thou walk, nor act according to their abominations: as though this were quite too little, and thou wast more corrupt than they in all thy ways.

48 As I live, saith the Lord Eternal, Sodom thy sister, she with her daughters, hath not done as thou hast done, thou with thy daughters.

49 Behold, this was the iniquity of thy sister Sodom: Pride, abundance of food, and prosperous security were hers and her daughters'; but the hand of the poor and needy did she not strengthen.

50 And they became haughty, and committed abominations before me: therefore did I remove them when I saw their course.

51 And Samaria hath not committed even the half of thy sins; but thou didst multiply thy abominations more than they; and thou hast justified thy sisters through all thy abominations which thou hast done.

52 Bear then thou also thy own confusion, which thou didst adjudge[g] unto each of thy sisters; through thy sins, which thou hast committed more abominably than they, are they made more righteous than thou: therefore thou also—be ashamed, and bear thy confusion, since thou hast justified thy sisters.

53 And I will bring back again their captivity, the captivity[h] of Sodom and her daughters, and the captivity of Samaria and her daughters, and the captivity of thy captives in the midst of them:

54 In order that thou mayest bear thy confusion, and mayest be confounded because of all that thou hast done, when thou art a comfort unto them.

55 And thy sisters, Sodom and her daughters, shall return to their former state, and Samaria and her daughters shall return to it means nothing else than the eagerness to adopt the idols of Egypt, Phœnicia, Assyria, Babylon, &c., neglecting thereby the blessed law, giving, as it were, wages for sin, committing adultery while married to God, without the least beneficial return for all this sacrifice.

[a] Rashi, "with whom thou hast mingled."

[b] Jonathan, "and I will give thee up to be slain in fury and wrath." So also Rashi, adding only "jealousy."

[c] When all the punishment has been inflicted.

[d] Rashi and Jonathan take וכזכה for וכזכה "resolve;" "and because thou didst not resolve to lay thy heart to all thy abominations to return from them."

[e] משל is rendered in Num. xxi. 27 with "poet," or one who relates facts in a proverbial and poetical manner.

[f] "Daughters" means villages or dependent cities.

[g] "Before Jerusalem became so corrupt itself, it used to say, that Sodom and Samaria had been justly punished."—Rashi.

[h] i. e. A general restoration.

their former state, and thou and thy daughters shall return to your former state.

56 And was[a] not thy sister Sodom a report in thy mouth in the days of thy pride, 57 Before yet thy wickedness was discovered, as at the time of the reproach of the daughters of Syria, and all those round about her, the daughters of the Philistines, who taunted thee on all sides?

58 Thy incest and thy abominations,—thou thyself hadst to bear them, saith the Lord.

59 ¶ For thus hath said the Lord Eternal, I will even deal with thee as thou hast done, thou who hast despised the oath by breaking the covenant.

60 Nevertheless will I indeed remember my covenant with thee in the days of thy youth, and I will establish unto thee an everlasting covenant.

61 And thou shalt then remember thy ways, and be confounded, when thou receivest thy sisters, both those that are older than thou and younger than thou: and I will give them unto thee for daughters, though not because thou wast faithful to the covenant.

62 And I will establish my covenant with thee; and thou shalt know that I am the LORD:

63 In order that thou mayest remember, and feel ashamed, and never open thy mouth any more because of thy confusion, when I forgive thee for all that thou hast done, saith the Lord Eternal.

CHAPTER XVII.

1 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, put forth a riddle, and propound a parable unto the house of Israel;

3 And say, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, The great eagle with large wings, long winged, full of feathers, who is rich in many colours, came unto the Lebanon, and took the highest branch of the cedar:

4 The topmost of its young twigs did he crop off, and carry it into the traders' land; and he set it in a city of merchants.

5 And he took some of the seed of the land, and planted it in a fruitful field: he placed it by great waters, he transplanted it among the willow-trees.

6 And it grew, and became a trailing vine of low stature, the tendrils of which should turn toward him,[b] and the roots of which should be under him: so it became a vine, and brought forth branches, and sent out shoots.[c]

7 There was also another great eagle with large wings and many feathers: and, behold, this vine did bend its roots famishing toward him, and shot forth its tendrils toward him, that he might water it, from the beds where it was planted;

8 (Although) it was planted in a good field by great waters, that it might produce boughs, and that it might bear fruit, that it might become an elegant vine.

9 Say now, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Shall it prosper? Behold the other will pull up its roots, and its fruit will he cut away, that it may dry up; every one of its growing leaves shall dry up; and not with great power and numerous people (will he have to come) to tear it away from its roots.[d]

10 Yea, behold, although it is planted, shall it prosper? Lo, as soon as the east wind toucheth it, shall it be utterly dried up: in the beds where it groweth shall it dry up.

11 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

12 Do now say to the rebellious family, Know ye not what these things mean? Say, Behold, the king of Babylon came to Jerusalem, and took away its king and its princes, and he brought them unto himself to Babylon;

13 And he took one of the royal seed, and made a covenant with him, and bound him with an oath;[e] but the mighty of the land did he take away;

14 That the kingdom should be debased, so as not to lift itself up; that it should keep his covenant that it might continue to exist.

15 But he rebelled against him by sending his messengers into Egypt, that they might give him horses and numerous people. Shall he prosper? shall he escape that doth such [a] After Rashi; but Redak, "And Sodom thy sister was not heard out of thy mouth," &c.

[b] Rashi, "to the eagle—the king of Babylon."

[c] Zunz, "foliage."

[d] Jonathan; but Rashi, "and the other (i. e. the second eagle, the king of Egypt) will not come with a strong arm and numerous people against those who will pull off and remove it from its roots." Redak follows the same construction.

[e] Heb. "brought him into an oath."

things? yea, he hath broken the covenant, and shall he escape?

16 As I live, saith the Lord Eternal, surely in the residence of the king that hath made him king, whose oath he hath despised, and whose covenant he hath broken, even near him in the midst of Babylon shall he die.

17 And not with a mighty army and a large assembly shall Pharaoh labour for him in the war, when (the other) casteth up mounds, and buildeth works of attack, to cut off many souls.

18 Yea, he that hath despised the oath by breaking the covenant, when, lo, he had given his hand, and hath done all these things, shall not escape.

19 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal, As I live, surely my oath that he hath despised, and my covenant that he hath broken,—even this will I bring upon his own head.

20 And I will spread my net over him, and he shall be caught in my snare, and I will bring him to Babylon, and will hold judgment with him there for his trespass which he hath committed against me.

21 And all his fugitives with all the wings of his army shall fall by the sword, and those that remain shall be dispersed toward all winds: and ye shall know that I the LORD have spoken it.

22 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, But I myself[a] will take (a part) of the highest branch of the high cedar, and will preserve[b] it; from the topmost of its young twigs will I crop off a tender one, and I myself will plant it firmly upon a high and eminent mountain:

23 On the mountain of the height of Israel will I plant it firmly; and it shall produce boughs, and bear fruit, and become an elegant cedar; and there shall dwell under it all fowls, every thing that hath wing; in the shadow of its light branches shall they dwell.

24 And all the trees of the field shall know that I the LORD have made low the high tree, have made high the lowly tree, that I have dried up the green tree, and have caused to flourish the dry tree: I the LORD have spoken and have done it.

CHAPTER XVIII.

1 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 What mean ye, that ye use this proverb in[c] the country of Israel, saying, The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the teeth of the children are set on edge?

3 As I live, saith the Lord Eternal, ye shall not have any more to use this proverb in Israel.

4 Behold, all the souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son—mine are they: the soul which sinneth that alone shall die.

5 But if a man be righteous, and execute justice and righteousness;

6 Upon the mountains[d] he eateth not, and his eyes he lifteth not up to the idols of the house of Israel, and the wife of his neighbour he defileth not, and unto a woman in her separation he cometh not near;

7 And he overreacheth no man, he restoreth his pledge for a debt, a robbery he doth not commit, his bread he giveth to the hungry, and the naked he covereth with a garment;

8 Upon interest he giveth not forth, and increase he doth not take, from wrong he withdraweth his hand, true judgment he executeth between man and man;

9 In my statutes he walketh steadfastly, and my ordinances he keepeth to deal truly: he is righteous, he shall surely live, saith the Lord Eternal.

10 If he (now) beget a dissolute son, that sheddeth blood, and doth to (his) brother any one of these things;

11 And he is one that doth not any of these (duties); but eateth even upon the mountains, and defileth the wife of his neighbour;

12 The poor and needy he overreacheth, he is guilty of robberies, the pledge he restoreth not, and to the idols he lifteth up his eyes, abominations he committeth;

[a] i. e. In contrast with the act of the king of Babylon; he took the king and slew his sons and blinded him; but God at the time of redemption will take a remote descendant of the great cedar, the house of David, and fulfil through him all he has promised. Hence, "I myself," &c.

[b] Rashi, after Jonathan. Lit. "will give it"—a place.

[c] Others, "concerning."

[d] i. e. Eats not of offerings brought to the idols worshipped on hills and mountains; whereas sacrifices to God could only be offered and eaten near the temple.

13 Upon interest he giveth forth, and increase he taketh: and he should live? he shall not live; all these abominations hath he done, he shall surely die; his blood shall be upon him.

14 And behold, if he beget a son, who seeth all the sins of his father which he hath done, and he considereth,[a] and doth not the like of them;

15 Upon the mountains he eateth not, and his eyes he lifteth not up to the idols of the house of Israel, the wife of his neighbour he defileth not;

16 And he overreacheth no man, a pledge he withholdeth not, and of a robbery he is never guilty, his bread he giveth to the hungry, and the naked he covereth with a garment;

17 From the poor he withdraweth his hand, interest and increase he taketh not; my ordinances he executeth, in my statutes he walketh:—he shall not die for the iniquity of his father, he shall surely live.

18 His father, because he unjustly withheld (wages), was guilty of robbery on his brother, and did that which is not good in the midst of his people,—and lo, he died through his iniquity.

19 Yet say ye, Why doth not the son bear part of the iniquity of the father? when the son hath executed justice and righteousness, all my statutes hath he kept, and hath done them: he shall surely live.

20 The soul that sinneth, she alone shall die; the son shall not help to bear the iniquity of the father, and the father shall not help to bear the iniquity of the son: the righteousness of the righteous shall be upon him, and the wickedness of the wicked shall be upon him.

21 ¶ And the wicked, when he turneth away from all his sins that he hath committed, and keepeth all my statutes, and executeth justice and righteousness, shall surely live, he shall not die.

22 All his transgressions which he hath committed shall not be remembered unto him: through his righteousness which he hath done shall he live.

23 Have I then the least pleasure in the death of the wicked? saith the Lord Eternal: and not in his turning away from his ways, that he may live?

24 ¶ But when the righteous turneth away from his righteousness, and committeth wrong, and doth according to all the abominations that the wicked man doeth, shall he live? all his righteousness that he hath done shall not be remembered: through his trespass which he hath committed, and through his sin that he hath done,—through them shall he die.

25 Yet ye say, The way of the Lord is not equitable: hear now, O house of Israel, Is not my way equitable? is it not your ways which are not equitable?

26 When a righteous man turneth away from his righteousness, and doth wrong, and dieth therefor: through his wrong which he hath done must he die.

27 ¶ Again, when the wicked turneth away from his wickedness which he hath committed, and executeth justice and righteousness: he shall indeed preserve his soul alive.

28 Because he hath considered, and turned away from all his transgressions which he had committed: he shall surely live, he shall not die.

29 Yet say the house of Israel, The way of the Lord is not equitable: are not my ways equitable, O house of Israel? is it not your ways which are not equitable?

30 Therefore will I judge you, every one according to his ways, O house of Israel, saith the Lord Eternal: return ye, and cause others[b] to return from all your transgressions, that iniquity may not become your stumbling-block.

31 Cast away from yourselves all your transgressions, whereby ye have transgressed; and make[c] yourselves a new heart and a new spirit; for why will ye die, O house of Israel?

32 For I have no pleasure in the death of him that deserveth to die, saith the Lord Eternal: therefore convert yourselves, and live.

CHAPTER XIX.

1 ¶ And thou,—do thou lift up a lamentation for the princes of Israel,[d]

[a] Rashi, "though he see them, he nevertheless doth not," &c.

[b] Zunz, "return and convert yourselves."

[c] Zunz, "procure for yourselves."

[d] In this lament the prophet mourns for the downfall of the royal family. Some refer "the two young lions" to Jehoächaz and Jehoyachin, who were led away after a short reign. Others, Jehoächaz and Jehoyakim.

2 And say, What a noble lioness was thy mother! among lions did she lie down, in the midst of young lions did she raise her whelps!

3 And she brought up one of her whelps: he became a young lion,[a] and he learned to tear in pieces the prey; (even) men he devoured.

4 And when nations heard of him, he was caught in their pit, and they brought him with nose-rings unto the land of Egypt.

5 Now when she saw that she had long waited, (that) her hope was lost, she took another one of her whelps, and made him a young lion.

6 And he went up and down in the midst of lions, he became a young lion; and he learned to tear in pieces the prey; even men he devoured.

7 And he broke down[b] their palaces, and their cities laid he in ruins: and then was terrified the land, with all that filled it, because of the noise of his roaring.

8 Then set themselves the nations against him on every side from the provinces; and they spread over him their net: in their pit was he caught.

9 And they put him in a cage[c] with nose-rings (in his nose), and they brought him to the king of Babylon: they brought him into strong-holds, in order that his voice should no more be heard on the mountains of Israel.

10 ¶ Thy mother was like a vine, if I compare thee to aught,[d] planted by the waters: fruitful and full of boughs was she by reason of many waters.

11 And she had strong branches (fit) for the sceptres of rulers, and her stature grew up high between the thick-branched (trees), and she was seen through her height by means of the multitude of her tendrils.

12 But she was plucked up in fury, to the ground was she cast down, and the east wind dried up her fruit: and torn off and dried up were her strong branches, a fire consumed them.

13 And now is she planted in the wilderness, in a dry and thirsty land.

14 And fire is gone out of a branch of her boughs, and hath devoured her fruit, so that there is no more on her a strong branch for a sceptre to rule. This is a lamentation, and it is become a lamentation.

CHAPTER XX.

1 ¶ And it came to pass in the seventh year, in the fifth month, on the tenth day of the month, that certain men of the elders of Israel came to inquire of the LORD, and they sat down before me.

2 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

3 Son of man, speak unto the elders of Israel, and say unto them, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Is it to inquire of me that ye are coming? as I live, I will not let myself be inquired of by you, saith the Lord Eternal.

4 Wilt thou take them to task, wilt thou take them to task, son of man? then cause them to know the abominations of their fathers;

5 And say unto them, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, On the day when I made choice of Israel, I lifted up my hand unto the seed of the house of Jacob, and I made myself known unto them in the land of Egypt: and I lifted up my hand unto them, saying, I am the LORD your God.

6 On the same day I lifted up my hand unto them, to bring them forth from the land of Egypt into a land that I had selected[e] for them, flowing with milk and honey, which is an ornament[f] among all the countries.

7 And I said unto them, Cast ye away every one the abominations of his eyes, and on the idols of Egypt shall ye not defile yourselves: I am the LORD your God.

8 But they rebelled against me, and they would not hearken unto me; they did not cast away every one the abominations of their eyes, and the idols of Egypt did they not forsake: and I thought then to pour out my fury over them, to let out all my anger against them in the midst of the land of Egypt.

[a] i. e. King of Judah.

[b] Rashi, taking אלכנותיו from ארכנותיו. Others, in the literal sense, "he violated their widows." Zunz, "he searched through their palaces." Philippson, "he broke into," &c.

[c] Zunz. Jonathan, "chains."

[d] Rashi.

[e] Lit. "spied out."

[f] i. e. It excels in beauty and fruitfulness.

9 But I acted for the sake of my name, so as not to profane it before the eyes of the nations, in the midst of whom they were; because I had made myself known unto them before their eyes, to bring them forth out of the land of Egypt.

10 I therefore caused them to go forth out of the land of Egypt, and brought them into the wilderness.

11 And I gave them my statutes, and my ordinances made I known to them, which a man is to do, that he may live through them.

12 And also my sabbaths gave I unto them, to be as a sign between me and between them, that they might know that I am the LORD who sanctify them.

13 But the house of Israel rebelled against me in the wilderness; in my statutes they walked not, and my ordinances they despised, which a man is to do, that he may live through them; and my sabbaths they greatly profaned: and I then thought to pour out my fury over them in the wilderness, to make an end of them.

14 But I acted for the sake of my name, so as not to profane it before the eyes of the nations, before whose eyes I had brought them forth.

15 Yet did I also lift up my hand unto them in the wilderness, that I would not bring them into the land which I had given (them), flowing with milk and honey, which is an ornament among all the countries.

16 Because my ordinances they had despised, and in my statutes they had not walked, and my sabbaths they had profaned; for after their idols did their heart go.

17 Nevertheless my eye looked pityingly on them, so as not to destroy them, and I did not make an end of them in the wilderness.

18 And I said unto their children in the wilderness, In the statutes of your fathers shall ye not walk, and their ordinances shall ye not keep, and on their idols shall ye not defile yourselves.

19 I am the LORD your God: in my statutes must ye walk, and my ordinances must ye keep, and do them;

20 And my sabbaths must ye sanctify; and they shall be as a sign between me and between you, that ye may know that I am the LORD your God.

21 Nevertheless the children rebelled against me; in my statutes did they not walk, and my ordinances they kept not to do them, which a man is to do, that he may live through them; my sabbaths they profaned: and I then thought to pour out my fury over them, to let out all my anger against them in the wilderness.

22 But I withdrew my hand, and acted for the sake of my name, so as not to profane it before the eyes of the nations, before whose eyes I had brought them forth.

23 I also lifted up my hand unto them in the wilderness, that I would scatter them among the nations, and disperse them through the countries;

24 Because my ordinances they had not executed, and my statutes they had despised, and my sabbaths they had profaned, and after the idols of their fathers their eyes were directed.

25 And I also let them follow[a] statutes that were not good, and ordinances whereby they could not live;

26 And I let them be defiled though their gifts, in that they caused to pass (through the fire) all that openeth the womb, in order that I might destroy them, to the end that they might know that I am the LORD.

27 Therefore, speak unto the house of Israel, O son of man, and say unto them, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Yet in this too did your fathers blaspheme me, by their committing a trespass against me:

28 When I had brought them into the land, for which I had lifted up my hand to give it to them, they saw every high hill, and all the thick-branched trees, and they offered

[a] Rashi, after Jonathan; meaning, as they had wilfully rebelled, God permitted them to follow their evil inclinations, till the measure of their sin was completed, and their destruction followed, as told in our history. Zunz and Philippson take it in the light, that to the sinners the law is a means of punishment, as its transgression brings painful consequences; wherefore the translation of Dr. P. is as follows:—"And I also gave them laws which were injurious (to them), and ordinances through which they did not live; and I made them unclean through their gifts, when they set apart all that opened the womb," &c.: taking בהעביר "as setting aside," not "as causing to pass (through the fire)," as given by Rashi. But both constructions, though apparently so different, have at last the same bearing, since to the pious the law of God brings happiness and life, not evil and death.

there their sacrifices, and presented there their provoking offerings, and they brought there their sweet savour, and poured out there their drink-offerings.

29 Then said I unto them, What is this high-place whereunto ye go? And its name was called "The height"[a] until this day.

30 ¶ Therefore say unto the house of Israel, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Ha! do you pollute yourselves after the manner of your fathers; and after their abominations do ye go astray?

31 And when ye offer up your gifts, when ye make your sons pass through the fire, ye pollute yourselves with all your idols, even until this day: and I should allow myself to be inquired of by you, O house of Israel? As I live, saith the Lord Eternal, I will not let myself be inquired of by you.

32 And that which cometh up into your mind shall not at all come to pass, (namely,) that ye say, We will be like the nations, like the families of the (other) countries, to serve wood and stone.

33 As I live, saith the Lord Eternal, surely, with a mighty hand, and with an outstretched arm, and with fury poured out, will I rule over you:

34 And I will bring you out from the people, and I will gather you out of the countries wherein ye are scattered, with a mighty hand, and with an outstretched arm, and with (my) fury poured out.

35 And I will bring you into the wilderness of the people, and I will hold judgment over you there, face to face.

36 As I held judgment over your fathers in the wilderness of the land of Egypt, so will I hold judgment over you, saith the Lord Eternal.

37 And I will cause you to pass under the rod, and I will bring you into the bond[b] of the covenant;

38 And I will separate from you those that have rebelled, and those that have transgressed against me: out of the country where they sojourn will I cause them to go forth, but into the land of Israel shall not one (of them) enter; and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

39 As for you, O house of Israel, thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Go ye, serve ye every one his idols, and hereafter (also), if ye will not hearken unto me; but my holy name do not profane any more with your gifts, and with your idols.[c]

40 For on my holy mountain, on the mountain of the height of Israel, saith the Lord Eternal, there shall serve me all the house of Israel, altogether, in the land: there will I accept them in favour, and there will I require your heave-offerings, and the first-fruits of your oblations, with all your holy things.

41 ¶ With your sweet savour will I accept you in favour, when I bring you out from the people, and gather you out of the countries wherein ye have been scattered: and I will be sanctified through you before the eyes of the nations.

42 And ye shall know that I am the LORD, when I bring you into the land of Israel, into the country for which I have lifted up my hand to give it to your fathers.

43 And ye shall remember there your ways, and all your doings, whereby ye have been defiled; and ye shall loathe yourselves, because of all your evil deeds that ye have committed.

44 And ye shall know that I am the LORD, when I deal with you for the sake of my name, not in accordance with your wicked ways, and in accordance with your corrupt doings, O ye house of Israel, saith the Lord Eternal.

CHAPTER XXI.[d]

1 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, set thy face in the direction toward the south,[e] and preach[f] toward the south, and prophesy against the forest[g] of the field in the south.

[a] Rashi, "An expression of disgrace; it is nothing but a high-place," i. e. no regular altar. Philippson, "Wo to the high-place where ye stand together."

[b] Rashi, "the covenant which I have delivered to you." Lit. "the delivery of the covenant."

[c] Meaning, if they will serve idols let them not come hypocritically to inquire after God's word, and set aside offerings and serve their abominations.

[d] The English version commences chap. xxi. at verse 6.

[e] Toward Judea, which lies to the south of Mesopotamia, where the prophet then dwelt.

[f] Lit. "let drop," i. e. the prophecy or speech.

[g] "Toward my sanctuary, which shall be hereafter like a forest and a field for foxes to walk therein."—RASHI. Others, "Jerusalem." Philippson, "Palestine," because its mountains are in many places covered with forests.

3 And say to the forest of the south, Hear the word of the LORD, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Behold, I will kindle a fire in thee, and it shall devour in thee every green tree, and every dry tree: the glowing flame shall not be quenched, and there shall be burnt therein all faces[a] from the south to the north.

4 And all flesh shall see that I the LORD have kindled it: it shall not be quenched.

5 Then said I, Ah Lord Eternal! they say of me, Behold, he speaketh but in parables!

6 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

7 Son of man, direct thy face toward Jerusalem, and preach toward the holy places, and prophesy against the land of Israel,

8 And say to the land of Israel, Thus hath said the LORD, Behold, I will be against thee, and will draw forth my sword out of its sheath: and I will cut off from thee the righteous and the wicked.

9 But because I shall have cut off from thee the righteous and the wicked: therefore shall my sword go forth out of its sheath against all flesh from the south to the north;

10 That all flesh may know that I the LORD have drawn forth my sword out of its sheath; it shall not return any more.

11 ¶ But thou, son of man, do thou sigh: as though with broken loins,[b] and with bitterness (of grief) shalt thou sigh before their eyes.

12 And it shall be, when they say unto thee, Wherefore sighest thou? that thou shalt say, For the report, because it cometh, when every heart shall melt, and all hands shall be made feeble, and every spirit shall become faint, and all knees shall be changed into water: behold, it cometh, and shall be brought to pass, saith the Lord Eternal.

13 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

14 Son of man, prophesy, and say, Thus hath said the LORD, Say, The sword, the sword is sharpened, and also polished;

15 In order to make a thorough slaughter is it sharpened; in order that it may glitter is it polished: how[c] can we now rejoice, (when) the rod which reacheth my son excelleth in hardness[d] every tree?

16 And he hath given it to be polished, to make it fit to grasp it in the hand: it is the sword which is sharpened, and it is polished, to place it into the hand of the slayer.

17 Cry aloud and wail, O son of man; for it cometh against my people, it cometh against all the princes of Israel; brought together[e] for the sword are they with my people: therefore strike (thy hand) upon thy thigh.

18 For a purification taketh place: and what if the irresistible rod will also come? (my son) would not be able to exist,[f] saith the Lord Eternal.

19 ¶ But thou, son of man, prophesy, and strike thy hands together, and let "The sword" be repeated the third[g] time, the sword of the slain: it is the sword of the great that are slain, which lieth in wait for them everywhere.[h]

20 In order to make timid the heart, and to multiply the stumbling-blocks, do I bring the howling[i] of the sword against all their gates:

[a] Philippson, after Schnurrer, "the whole surface."

[b] When a person is deeply grieved it is difficult for him to keep erect, as though his loins were broken.

[c] After Rabbi Jonah, who renders אי "or," as אין "how."

[d] Rashi. Lit. "despiseth," i. e. disregards the blow of any wood or tree, it being harder than all. The sense is —"How can we rejoice at the view of the coming sword, when the punishment which is to befall Israel shall be irresistible, overcoming all obstacles which can be brought to oppose it?" Redak, "We cannot rejoice at the coming sword, which we hope will come against our enemies; for it is gone forth to cut down the staff of my son, and disregardeth every tree to fell the same." Philippson takes the whole of this apostrophe, as also verse 18, as a parenthesis, or soliloquy of the prophet, in view of the coming evil.

[e] Rashi, "the assembly of nations come to the sword." Zunz, "assembled together for the sword;" and in this sense have we translated. Philippson, after Rabbi Jonah, "struck down with," &c.

[f] After Rashi, who applies לא יהיה "he shall not be" or "remain in existence" to "my son," spoken of in verse 15. Philippson, however, "For a purification (must take place), and what, if even the irresistible rod were not to be?" meaning, the people must be tried and purified, if even the present threatened punishment should not be sent. The verse is exceedingly difficult in its construction.

[g] It is already twice spoken of in verse 9, and now the third time.

[h] Rashi, "which pursueth you whithersoever you go forth, even in the most secret chambers.

[i] Others, "slaughter;" but Rashi makes it the effect of the slaughter, the complaining of the wounded and survivors.

ah! it is made bright, it is made thin-edged for the slaughter.

21 Gather up thy strength,[a] go to the right hand, direct thyself, go to the left, whithersoever thy edge is turned.

22 And I also,—I will strike my hands together, and I will cause my fury to be assuaged: I the LORD have spoken it.

23 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

24 But thou, O son of man, appoint thee two ways, that the sword of the king of Babylon may come; out of one land shall both of them come forth: and select a place; at the head of the way to a city do thou select it.

25 A way shalt thou appoint, that the sword may come against Rabbah of the children of 'Ammon, and (the other) against Judah (dwelling) in Jerusalem the fortified.

26 For the king of Babylon hath halted at the parting of the way, at the commencement of the two ways, to use divination: he shaketh the[b] arrows, he consulteth with images, he looketh at the liver.

27 At his right hand was the divination for Jerusalem, to erect battering-rams, to open the mouth with the (cry for) murder, to lift up the voice with shouting, to place battering-rams against the gates, to cast up a mound, and to build works of attack.

28 And it will appear unto them as a false divination in their eyes, to those that had sworn[c] oaths; but he will bring to remembrance their iniquity, that they may be caught.

29 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Because ye have brought your iniquity to remembrance, as your transgressions are discovered, so that your sins do appear in all your doings: because ye are thus brought to remembrance, ye shall be caught by (his) hand.

30 ¶ And thou, death-deserving wicked one, prince of Israel, whose day is come, at the time of the iniquity of the[d] end.—

31 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Remove the mitre, and take off the crown: this shall not be always so; exalt him that is low, and make him low that is high.

32 Overthrown, overthrown, overthrown will I render it:[e] also this shall not belong (to any one), until he come whose right it is, and I will give it him.

33 ¶ And thou, son of man, prophesy, and say, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal concerning the children of 'Ammon, and concerning their reproach: even say thou, The sword, the sword is drawn; for the slaughter is it polished, to destroy, that it may continue to glitter;

34 While they foresee unto thee falsehood, while they divine unto thee lies, to lay thee by the necks of the slain wicked, whose day is come, at the time of the iniquity of the end.

35 Put back (the sword) into its sheath! in the place where thou wast created, in the land of thy origin, will I judge thee.

36 And I will pour out over thee my indignation, with the fire of my wrath will I blow against thee, and I will give thee up into the hand of brutish men, skilful in destroying.

37 To the fire shalt thou be given to be devoured; thy blood shall be in the midst of the land: thou shalt not be remembered (any more); for I the LORD have spoken it.

CHAPTER XXII.

1 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 And thou, son of man, wilt thou take to task, wilt thou take to task the city of blood? and wilt thou make her know all her abominations?

3 Then say thou, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, O city that sheddeth blood in her midst, that her time (of sorrow) may come, and that hath made idols for herself to become unclean:

4 Through thy blood which thou hast shed, art thou become guilty; and through thy idols which thou hast made art thou become unclean; and thou hast caused thy days (of destruction) to draw near, and thou art come even unto thy years; therefore do I make thee a disgrace unto the nations, and a mocking to all the countries.

5 Those who are near, and those who are far from thee, shall mock thee, O thou unclean in name, and great in confusion!

6 Behold, the princes of Israel were each (ready) with his arm within thee, in order to shed blood.

7 Father and mother they esteemed lightly within thee, toward the stranger they acted with extortion in the midst of thee, the fatherless and the widow they oppressed within thee.

8 My holy things thou didst despise, and my sabbaths thou didst profane.

9 Tale-bearers (also) were within thee, in order to shed blood; and upon the mountains did they eat within thee; incest did they commit in the midst of thee.

10 Their father's nakedness they uncovered within thee; her that was unclean in her separation did they violate within thee.

11 And one with his neighbour's wife did commit abomination; and another did defile his daughter-in-law with incest; and another did violate his sister, the daughter of his father, within thee.

12 Bribes they took within thee, in order to shed blood; interest and increase didst thou take, and thou didst acquire gain off thy neighbours by extortion: and me thou didst forget, saith the Lord Eternal.

13 And behold, I have struck my hands together at thy wrongful gain which thou hast acquired, and at thy blood-guilt which hath been in the midst of thee.

14 Will thy courage[a] endure, or will thy hands remain strong, on the days that I will deal with thee? I the LORD have spoken, and will do it.

15 And I will scatter thee among the nations, and disperse thee in the countries, and I will entirely remove thy uncleanness out of thee.

16 And thou shalt be degraded through thyself before the eyes of nations, and thou shalt know that I am the LORD.

17 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

18 Son of man, the house of Israel are become to me dross: they all are copper, and tin, and iron, and lead, in the midst of the furnace; the dross of silver are they become.

19 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Because ye are all become dross, therefore, behold, I will gather you into the midst of Jerusalem.

20 As silver, and copper, and iron, and lead, and tin are gathered into the midst of the furnace, to blow the fire upon it, to melt it: so will I gather you in my anger and in my fury, and I will lay you down there, and melt you.

21 Yea, I will assemble you in a heap, and blow upon you with the fire of my wrath, and ye shall be melted in the midst of it.

22 As silver is melted in the midst of the furnace, so shall ye be melted in the midst of it: and ye shall know that I am the LORD who have poured out my fury over you.

23 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

24 Son of man, say unto her, Thou art a land that is not cleansed; (and) which is not rained upon on the day of indignation.

25 The banded troop of her prophets in the midst of her is like a roaring lion that teareth in pieces the prey: souls do they devour; wealth and precious things do they take away; the number of her widows do they increase in the midst of her.

26 Her priests violate my law, and profane my holy things: between the holy and profane do they make no distinction, and the difference between the unclean and the clean do they not make known, and from (the violation of) my sabbaths do they turn away their eyes, so that I am profaned among them.

27 Her princes in her midst are like wolves that tear in pieces the prey, to shed blood, to destroy souls, in order to obtain selfish gain.

28 And her prophets plastered for them with unadhesive mortar, foreseeing falsehood, and divining unto them lies, saying, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal; when the LORD had not spoken.

29 The people of the land are guilty of extortion, and practise robbery, and the poor and the needy they defraud: and they extort from the stranger with injustice.

30 And I seek now among them for a man, that could erect a fence, and stand in the breach before me in behalf of the land, so that I should not destroy it; but I find none.

[a] Lit. "Will thy heart stand."

31 And I therefore pour out over them my indignation; with the fire of my wrath do[a] I make an end of them: their own way do I bring upon their head, saith the Lord Eternal.

CHAPTER XXIII.

1 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, there were two women,
the daughters of one mother;

3 And they played the harlot in Egypt;
in their youth they played the harlot: there were their breasts pressed, and there they suffered their virgin bosoms to be touched.

4 And their names were Aholah the elder, and Aholibah her sister; but they became mine, and they bore sons and daughters: and their names are, Samaria is Aholah, and Jerusalem, Aholibah.

5 And Aholah played the harlot while she was mine; and she longed for her lovers, for the Assyrians that were near[b] (her),

6 Clothed (as they were) in blue, governors, and rulers, attractive youths all of them, horsemen riding upon horses.

7 Thus she played the harlot with them, all of them the chosen ones of the sons of Asshur: and with all for whom she longed,
—with all their idols did she defile herself.

8 But also her lewdness from Egypt forsook she not; for they had lain with her in her youth, and they had touched her virgin bosom, and had lavished their lewd caresses on her.

9 Therefore did I give her up into the hand of her lovers, into the hand of the sons of Asshur, after whom she longed.

10 These were they that laid open her nakedness; her sons and her daughters did they take away, and her they slew with the sword: and she became infamous among women, when they inflicted the decreed punishments on her.

11 And when her sister Aholibah saw this, she became more corrupt in her longing than she, and in her lewd acts more than her sister's lewdness.

12 For the sons of Asshur did she long,
the governors and rulers that were near, clothed as they were most gorgeously, horsemen riding upon horses, attractive youths all of them.

13 Then saw I that she was defiled, that they followed both one way.

14 But she added still more to her acts of lewdness; for when she saw men engraved upon the wall, the images of the Chaldeans portrayed with colour,

15 Bound with girdles on their loins, with hanging down coloured turbans on their heads, in appearance like commanders, all of them, in the likeness of the sons of Babylon of the Chaldeans, the land of their birth:

16 Then did she long for them as soon as she saw them with her eyes, and she sent messengers unto them to Chaldeä.

17 And the sons of Babylon came to her unto the couch of love, and they defiled her with their lewd caresses; and (yet) when she had been defiled with them, she tore her soul away from them.

18 And when she had laid open her lewd-ness, and had uncovered her nakedness: then my soul tore itself away from her, as my soul had torn itself away from her sister.

19 Yet she multiplied her deeds of lewd-ness, in calling to remembrance the days of her youth, when she had played the harlot in the land of Egypt.

20 And she longed for their paramours, whose flesh is as the flesh of asses, and whose lustfulness is like the lustfulness of horses.

21 And thou calledst to mind the incest of thy youth, when thy bosom was touched by the Egyptians for the sake of thy youthful breasts.

22 ¶ Therefore, O Aholibah, thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Behold, I will wake up thy lovers against thee, from whom thy soul hath torn itself away, and I will bring them against thee from every side;

23 The sons of Babylon, and all the Chal-deäns, Pekod,[c] and Shoä, and Koä, and all the sons of Asshur with them, attractive youths,

[a] In the original the whole of this passage, beginning with verse 25, is in the past tense, though the destruction spoken of was just to commence; but to the prophet, as noticed already before, the past and the future are alike, the one actually known and the other sure to happen; wherefore the whole is given here in the present tense. The prophet, it will be seen, first speaks of the prophets, then the priests, next the princes, again of the deceivers by divination, and at last the common people, thus indicating the general corruption of manners, which is farther exhibited in the next chapter.

[b] Rashi. Zunz, "warriors."

[c] Rashi, "superintendents, priests, and rulers."

governors and rulers all of them, commanders and chiefs,[a] riding upon horses all of them.

24 And they shall come over thee with weapons,[b] chariots, and wheels, and with an assembly of people, buckler and shield and helmet shall they set up against thee round about: and I will give up before them the right to judge, and they shall judge thee according to their ordinances.

25 And I will set my zealousness against thee, and they shall deal with thee in fury; thy nose and thy ears shall they cut off; and what is left of thee shall fall by the sword: thy sons and thy daughters shall they take away; and what is left of thee shall be devoured by the fire.

26 And they shall strip thee of thy clothes, and take away thy ornamental attire.

27 Thus will I make thy incest to cease from thee, and thy lewdness brought from the land of Egypt: and thou shalt not lift up thy eyes unto them, and Egypt shalt thou not remember any more.

28 ¶ For thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Behold, I will give thee up into the hand of those whom thou hatest, into the hand of those from whom thy soul hath torn itself away;

29 And they shall deal with thee in hate, and shall take away all (things acquired by) thy labour, and they shall leave thee naked and bare: and thus shall be uncovered the nakedness of thy lewdness, and thy incest and thy lewd deeds.

30 I will do these things unto thee, because thou hast gone with vile lust after the nations, because thou hast defiled thyself with their idols.

31 On the way of thy sister hast thou walked; therefore will I place her cup[c] into thy hand.

32 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, The cup of thy sister shalt thou drink, the deep and wide one: thou shalt become to be laughed to scorn and to be held in derision, more than thou canst bear.[d]

33 With drunkenness and sorrow shalt thou be filled, (out of)[e] the cup of astonishment and confusion, the cup of thy sister Samaria.

34 Thou shalt even drink it and drain it out, and thou shalt break in pieces its fragments, and tear thy own breasts; for I have spoken it, saith the Lord Eternal.

35 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Because thou hast forgotten me, and cast me behind thy back: therefore bear thou also thy incest and thy acts of lewdness.

36 ¶ The Lord said moreover unto me, Son of man, wilt thou call Aholah and Aholibah to account? then tell them of their abominations;

37 That they have committed adultery, and there is blood on their hands, and with their idols have they committed adultery, and also their sons whom they had born unto me have they caused to pass for them through (the fire), to devour them.

38 Moreover this have they done unto me: they have defiled my sanctuary on the same day, and my sabbaths have they profaned.

39 And when they had slain their children to their idols, then came they into my sanctuary on the same day to profane it: and, lo, thus have they done in the midst of my house.

40 And farthermore yet, because they sent for men who were to come from afar, unto whom messengers were sent; and, lo, they came, for whom[f] thou didst bathe thyself, paint thy eyes, and deck thyself with ornaments;

41 And thou didst sit upon a stately bed, with a table spread before it, and my incense and my oil didst thou set upon it.

42 And the shout of a peaceful joyous multitude was (heard) within her; and with the men of the masses of the common people were brought Sabeäns[g] from the wilderness; and

[a] Lit. "those called," i. e. to public assemblies as popular representatives.

[b] Rashi, "with numerous hosts to hedge them in, as with a thorn-hedge."

[c] i. e. The same punishment shall befall both.

[d] Rashi. Others refer the end of the verse to the cup, and render it, "it containeth much." Zunz, "so as to hold much."

[e] Zunz and Philippson connect this with "shalt thou drink"—the cup of astonishment; regarding the commencement of the verse as a mere parenthesis, describing the effect of the drinking.

[f] Jonathan, "and they came to the place thou hadst assigned for them, while thou hadst," &c.

[g] Jonathan, simply, "those who surrounded them." Others, "drunkards;" thus, "and with the men of the masses of the common people came drunkards, brought from the wilderness," which description fits exactly to the orgies of the idolaters, where licentiousness was mingled in their mysteries and solemn festivities.

these women placed bracelets on their hands, and crowns of glory upon their heads.

43 Then thought I of her that was worn out in adulteries, Will they now (still) commit lewdness with her, when she (is thus)?[a]

44 But men went in unto her, as they go in unto a faithless wife: thus went they in unto Aholah and unto Aholibah, the incestuous women.

45 Righteous men, however—these shall judge them as adulteresses are judged, and as women that shed blood are judged; because adulteresses are they, and blood is on their hands.

46 For thus hath said the Lord Eternal, I will bring up against them an assemblage of men, and I will give them up to ill-usage and plunder.

47 And the assemblage shall stone them with stones, and cut them down with their swords: their sons and their daughters shall they slay, and their houses shall they burn with fire.

48 Thus will I cause incest to cease out of the land, that all women may be warned by example, and not do after your incestuous course.

49 And they shall lay your incest upon you, and the sins of your idols shall ye bear: and ye shall know that I am the Lord Eternal.

CHAPTER XXIV.

1 ¶ And the word of the Lord came unto me in the ninth year, in the tenth month, on the tenth day of the month, saying,

2 Son of man, write thee down the name of this day, of this same day: the king of Babylon hath advanced against Jerusalem on this same day.

3 And speak concerning the rebellious family a parable, and say unto them, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Set on the pot, set it on, and also pour water into it;

4 Gather the proper pieces into it, every good piece, the thigh, and the shoulder; fill it up with the choice bones.

5 Take the choice of the flock, and make also a fire for the bones under it: cause it to seethe well, that even the bones therein may be fully boiled through.

6 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Wo to the city of blood-guiltiness, to the pot the scum[b] of which is yet in it, and the scum of which is not gone out of it! one of its pieces[c] after the other take out from it: no lot is cast for it.

7 For her blood was in the midst of her; on the naked rock did she place it: she poured it not upon the ground, to cover it over with dust.

8 To cause my fury to arise to take vengeance, do I place her blood upon the naked rock, so that it shall not be covered up.

9 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Wo to the city of blood-guiltiness! I also will myself build up a large burning pile, 10 Heaping on the wood, kindling the fire, thoroughly boiling the flesh, and stirring the mixture, that the bones may be scorched.

11 Then will I set it empty upon its coals, in order that it may become hot, and its copper be made to glow, and its uncleanness may be molten in it, that its scum may be consumed.

12 With fraud hath she wearied (the poor); therefore shall not go forth from her the greatness of her scum: through fire shall her scum (be removed).[d]

13 In thy uncleanness is (thy) incest; because I endeavoured to cleanse thee, and thou wouldst not be clean, thou shalt not be cleansed from thy uncleanness any more, until I have assuaged my fury on thee.

14 I the Lord have spoken it; it cometh to pass, and I will do it; I will not recall my decree, and I will not have pity, nor will I repent: according to thy ways, and according to thy doings, shall men judge thee, saith the Lord Eternal.

15 ¶ And the word of the Lord came to me, saying,

16 Son of man, behold, I will take away from thee the desire of thy eyes by a sudden

[a] Philippson. Rashi, "now will her lewdness cease; but she remaineth at her practices."

[b] Rashi. Jonathan, "filth." Septuagint, "rust." The word, however, is of uncertain derivation.

[c] i. e. Let one after the other portion of the people of Jerusalem (the pieces in the pot) be all carried away, without casting lot, as none shall be left.

[d] This verse is given after Rashi. Others, "In vain is the labour; the multitude of its rust (or scum) will not depart from it," &c.

death; but thou shalt neither mourn nor weep, nor shalt thou shed a tear.[a]

17 Sigh in silence,[b] make no mourning for the deceased, thy bonnet bind around thy head, and thy shoes put on thy feet, and cover not thyself to thy upper lip, and eat not the bread of (other)[c] men.

18 And when I had spoken unto the people in the morning, my wife died at evening: and I did in the morning as I had been commanded.

19 And the people said unto me, Wilt thou not tell us what these things mean for us, that thou doest so?

20 And I said unto them, The word of the LORD came unto me, saying, 21 Speak unto the house of Israel, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Behold, I will profane my sanctuary, the pride of your strength, the desire of your eyes, and the darling[d] of your soul: and your sons and your daughters whom ye have left behind shall fall by the sword.

22 And ye shall do as I have done: ye shall not cover yourselves to your upper lip, and the bread of other men shall ye not eat.

23 And your bonnets shall be around your heads, and your shoes shall be on your feet: ye shall not mourn nor shall ye weep; but ye shall pine away in your iniquities, and groan, looking one at the other.

24 Thus shall Ezekiel be unto you for a token; in accordance with all that he hath done shall ye do: when this cometh, then shall ye know that I am the Lord Eternal.

25 ¶ Also, thou son of man, behold, on the day when I take from them their stronghold, the joy of their glory, the desire of their eyes, and the coveted object of their soul, their sons and their daughters,—

26 On that day there shall come one that hath escaped unto thee, and announce it to thy ears.

27 On that day shall thy mouth be opened through him that hath escaped, and thou shalt speak, and thou shalt not be silenced any more:[e] and thou shalt be a token unto them, and they shall know that I am the LORD.

CHAPTER XXV.

1 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, set thy face against the sons of 'Ammon, and prophesy against them;

3 And say unto the sons of 'Ammon, Hear ye the word of the Lord Eternal, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Because thou hast said, Aha, concerning my sanctuary, when it was profaned; and concerning the land of Israel, when it was made desolate; and concerning the house of Judah, when they went into exile:

4 Therefore, behold, I will give thee up to the children of the east for a possession, and they shall set up their towers[f] in thee, and place in thee their dwellings; they shall indeed eat thy fruit, and they shall surely drink thy milk.

5 And I will change Rabbah into a pasture for camels, and (the land of) the sons of 'Ammon into a resting-place for flocks: and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

6 ¶ For thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Whereas thou didst clap thy hands, and stamp with thy feet, and rejoice with all thy derision in the soul over the land of Israel:

7 Therefore, behold, will I stretch out my hand over thee, and will give thee up for a spoil to the nations; and I will cut thee off from the people, and I will cause thee to perish out of the countries; I will destroy thee, and thou shalt know that I am the LORD.

8 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Because Moäb and Se'ir do say, Behold, the house of Judah is like all the nations:

9 Therefore, behold, I will open the side of Moäb from the cities, from his cities on his frontiers, the glory of the country, Beth-ha-yeshimoth, Ba'al-me'on, and Kiryathayim,

10 Unto the children of the east (coming)

[a] Lit. "nor shall thy tear come."

[b] Rashi, "leave off sighing."

[c] Alluding to the custom that the mourner prepares not his own food, but has it sent to him from other houses; this verse also gives us indications how mourning was kept in the time of Ezekiel.

[d] Lit. "the sparing," or that which one would reserve at every price—here the temple, which was so reverenced notwithstanding the people's sinning.

against the sons of 'Ammon, and I will give them in possession; in order that the sons of 'Ammon may not be remembered among the nations.

11 And on Moäb will I execute judgments: and they shall know that I am the LORD.

12 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Because the Edomites have acted revengefully against the house of Judah, and have greatly offended, and have taken vengeance[a] on them:

13 Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal, I will also stretch out my hand against Edom, and cut off from it man and beast; and I will make it a ruined land from Theman; and they of Dedan shall fall by the sword.

14 And I will display my vengeance on Edom by the hand of my people Israel; and they shall do in Edom according to my anger and according to my fury: and they shall feel my vengeance, saith the Lord Eternal.

15 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Because the Philistines have acted in revenge, and have taken vengeance with derision in their soul, to destroy out of ancient enmity:

16 Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Behold, I will stretch out my hand against the Philistines, and I will cut off the Kerethim, and destroy the remnant of the (dwellers) of the sea-coast.

17 And I will execute on them great vengeances with furious chastisements; and they shall know that I am the LORD, when I display my vengeance on them.

CHAPTER XXVI.

1 ¶ And it came to pass in the eleventh year, on the first day of the month,[b] that the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, because Tyre hath said concerning Jerusalem, Aha, she is broken that was the gates of the people; she[c] is turned unto me; I shall be made full, now she is laid in ruins:

3 Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Behold, I am against thee, O Tyre, and will bring up against thee many nations, as the sea causeth its waves to come up.

4 And they shall destroy the walls of Tyre, and pull down her towers: I will also flood away her earth from her, and I will change her into a naked rock.

5 A place for the spreading out of nets shall she be in the midst of the sea; for I have spoken it, saith the Lord Eternal: and she shall become a spoil to the nations.

6 And her daughters that are in the field shall be slain with the sword: and they shall know that I am the LORD.

7 ¶ For thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Behold, I will bring against Tyre Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon, from the north, the king of kings, with horses, and with chariots, and with horsemen, and an assemblage, and a numerous people.

8 Thy daughters in the field will he slay with the sword: and he shall place around thee works of attack, and cast up against thee a mound, and erect against thee a target-fence.[d]

9 And his catapults shall he set against thy walls, and thy towers shall he break down with his axes.

10 By reason of the abundance of his horses shall the dust they raise cover thee: by reason of the noise of horsemen, and wheels, and chariots, shall thy walls quake, when he entereth into thy gates, as men[e] enter into a city that is broken in.

11 With the hoofs of his horses shall he tread down all thy streets: thy people will he slay with the sword, and the statues[f] of thy strength shall come down to the ground.

12 And they shall plunder thy riches, and make a spoil of thy merchandise; and they shall break down thy walls, and thy pleasure-houses shall they pull down: and thy stones and thy timber and thy earth shall they throw into the midst of the water.[g]

13 And I will cause the sound of thy songs to cease: and the tones of thy harps shall not be heard any more.

14 And I will change thee into a naked rock; a place to spread out nets upon shalt thou be; thou shalt not be rebuilt any more; for I the LORD have spoken it, saith the Lord Eternal.

15 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal to Tyre, Truly at the noise of thy fall, when the deadly wounded whine, when the slaughter taketh place in the midst of thee, shall the islands quake.

16 Then shall all the princes of the sea come down from their thrones, and lay aside their robes, and their broidered garments shall they put off: with trembling shall they clothe themselves; upon the ground shall they sit, and shall tremble at every moment,[a] and be astonished concerning thee.

17 And they shall lift up over thee a lamentation, and say to thee, How art thou lost, that wast inhabited (safely) by reason of the seas:[b] O renowned city, which was strong on the sea, she and her inhabitants, who caused their terror to be on all that dwelt around her![c]

18 Now shall the isles tremble on the day of thy fall; yea, the isles that are in the sea shall be troubled at thy end.[d]

19 ¶ For thus hath said the Lord Eternal, When I render thee a ruined city, like the cities that are not inhabited; when I bring up over thee the deep, and when the great waters cover thee:

20 Then will I bring thee down with those that descend into the pit, unto the people of olden time, and I will cause thee to dwell in the land of the nether world, among ruins of ancient days, with those that go down to the pit, in order that thou mayest not be inhabited; but I will bestow glory in the land of life.

21 As though thou hadst not been[e] will I render thee, and thou shalt be no more: and thou shalt be sought for, but thou shalt never be found any more to eternity, saith the Lord Eternal.

CHAPTER XXVII.

1 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 But thou, O son of man, take up a lamentation for Tyre;

3 And say unto Tyre, O thou that art situated at the entrances of the sea, the merchant of the people unto many isles, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, O Tyre, thou hast indeed said, I am perfect in beauty.

4 In the heart of the seas were thy boundaries,[f] thy builders had perfected thy beauty.

5 Of the fir-trees from Senir had they built thee all thy wood-work: cedars from Lebanon had they taken to make masts for thee.

6 Of the oaks of Bashan had they made thy oars; thy rudder[g] had they made inlaid with ivory of boxwood, brought out of the isles of the Kittim.

7 Fine linen with broidered work from Egypt was thy flag[h] to be unto thee a sign: of blue and purple from the isles of Elishah was thy cover.[i]

8 The inhabitants of Zidon and Arvad were thy oarsmen: thy wise men, O Tyre, that were in thee, these were thy pilots.

9 The elders of Gebal and her wise men were in thee thy caulkers:[k] all the ships of the sea with their mariners were in thee to carry on thy commerce.

10 They of Persia[l] and of Lud and of Put were in thy army, thy men of war: the shield and the helmet did they hang up in thee; these gave thee thy elegance.

11 The men of Arvad with thy army were upon thy walls round about, and the Gammadim were in thy towers: their quivers[m] they hung upon thy walls round about; these made perfect thy beauty.

12 Tharshish was thy merchant through the abundance of all kind of wealth: with silver, iron, tin, and lead, they supplied thy markets.

[k] Lit. "the strengtheners of thy leak."

[m] Others, "shields."

13 Javan, Thubal, and Meshech, these were thy merchants: with the persons of men and vessels of copper they carried on thy commerce.

14 They of the family of Thogarmah furnished thy supplies in horses and horsemen and mules.

15 The men of Dedan were thy merchants; many isles fetched the merchandise from thy place: chamois horns, ivory, and ebony[a] did they bring as presents for thee.

16 Syria was thy trader by reason of the multitude of thy productions: with emeralds, purple, and broidered work, and fine linen, and coral, and rubies they made deposits in thy treasuries.[b]

17 Judah, and the land of Israel, these were thy merchants: in wheat of Minnith, and balsam,[c] and honey, and oil, and balm they carried on thy commerce.

18 Damascus was thy trader in the multitude of thy productions, for the multitude of all wealth, with the wine of Chelbon, and white wool.

19 Dan also and Javan brought silken goods into thy warehouses: hardened iron, cassia, and calamus came among thy commerce.

20 Dedan was thy merchant in precious clothes for riding on.

21 Arabia, and all the princes of Kedar, these were the traders of thy place in lambs, and wethers, and he-goats: in these were they thy traders.

22 The merchants of Sheba and Ra'mah, —these were thy merchants: in the best of all spices, and with all precious stones, and gold, they furnished thy supplies.

23 Charan, and Canneh, and 'Eden, the merchants of Sheba, Asshur, (and) Kilmad, were thy merchants.

24 These were thy merchants in ornamental wares, in cloaks of blue, and broidered work, and in chests of damask cloth, bound with cords, and packed in cedar, in thy market-place.

25 The ships of Tharshish were thy caravans in thy commerce: and thou wast made full, and becamest very rich in the heart of the seas.

26 Into great waters brought thee those that were thy rowers: the east wind hath broken thee in the heart of the seas.[d]

27 Thy wealth, and thy warehouses, thy commerce, thy mariners, and thy pilots, thy caulkers, and the conductors of thy commerce, and all thy men of war that were in thee, and in all thy assemblage which was in the midst of thee, fell into the heart of the seas on the day of thy downfall.

28 At the sound of the painful cry of thy pilots quake (thy) rural districts.

29 And all that handle the oar, the mariners, and all the pilots of the sea, come down from their ships, they stand upon the land;

30 And cause their voice to be heard concerning thee, and cry bitterly, and cast up dust upon their heads, they wallow in the ashes;

31 And they make themselves utterly bald for thee, and gird themselves with sackcloth, and they weep for thee with bitterness of heart in a bitter complaint.

32 And they take in their wailing a lamentation for thee, and lament over thee, saying, Who is like Tyre, who is so utterly destroyed in the midst of the sea?

33 When thy supplies went forth out of the seas, thou didst satisfy many people: with the multitude of thy wealth and of thy commerce thou didst enrich the kings of the earth.

34 (Now) at the time thou art broken by the seas in the depths of the waters, thy commerce and all thy assemblage fell in the midst of thee.

35 All the inhabitants of the isles are astonished at thee, and the hair of their kings stand at an end, grieved are their countenances.

36 The traders among the people shall hiss concerning thee: thou wast rendered as though thou hadst not been, and thou shalt not be any more for ever.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

1 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, say unto the prince of Tyre,

[a] Rashi, "peacocks."

[b] Jonathan. Others, "they traded in thy markets," or "fairs."

[c] Rashi. Jonathan, "sweet cakes."

[d] The prophet describes Tyre as though she suffered shipwreck after being afloat on the water.

Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Whereas thy heart was lifted up, and thou saidst, A god am I, on the seat of the gods do I dwell, in the heart of the seas; yet thou art but a man, and not God, while thou esteemest[a] thy mind equal to the mind of God;

3 Behold, thou wast[b] wiser than Daniël; no secret was obscure to thee;

4 With thy wisdom and with thy understanding hadst thou gotten thee riches, and hadst gotten gold and silver into thy treasuries;

5 By the abundance of thy wisdom in thy traffic hadst thou increased thy riches; and thy heart was lifted up because of thy riches:

6 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Because thou hast esteemed thy mind equal to the mind of God,

7 Therefore, behold, will I bring over thee strangers, the fiercest of nations; and they shall draw their swords against the beauty[c] of thy wisdom, and they shall profane thy elegance.

8 Down to the grave will they cast thee, and thou shalt die the deaths of the slain in the heart of the seas.

9 Wilt thou then say, I am God, before him that slayeth thee? when thou art but a man, and no God, in the hand of him that fatally woundeth thee.

10 The deaths of the uncircumcised shalt thou die by the hand of strangers; for I have spoken it, saith the Lord Eternal.

11 ¶ And the word of the Lord came unto me, saying,

12 Son of man, take up a lamentation concerning the king of Tyre, and say unto him, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Thou wast complete in outline,[d] full of wisdom, and perfect in beauty.

13 In 'Eden the garden of God didst thou abide; every precious stone was thy covering, the sardius, the topaz, and the diamond, the chrysolite, the onyx, and the jasper, the sapphire, the emerald, and the carbuncle, and gold; thy tabrets and thy flutes of artificial workmanship were prepared in thee on the day that thou wast created.[e]

14 Thou wast a cherub with outspread covering (wings); and I had set thee upon the holy mountain of God (as) thou wast;[f] in the midst of the stones of fire didst thou wander.[g]

15 Perfect wast thou in thy ways from the day that thou wast created, till wickedness was found in thee.

16 By the abundance of thy commerce thou wast filled to thy centre with violence, and thou didst sin: therefore I degraded thee out of the mountain of God; and I destroyed thee, O covering cherub, from the midst of the stones of fire.

17 Thy heart was lifted up through thy beauty, thou didst corrupt thy wisdom by reason of thy elegance: (therefore) I cast thee down to the ground, before kings did I set thee that they might gaze on thee.

18 Through the abundance of thy iniquities, through the wickedness of thy commerce didst thou profane thy sanctuaries: therefore brought I forth fire from the midst of thee, this devoured thee, and I changed thee to ashes upon the earth before the eyes of all those that saw thee.

19 All that know thee among the people are astonished concerning thee: thou art as though thou hadst not been, and thou shalt not be any more for ever.

20 ¶ And the word of the Lord came to me, saying,

21 Son of man, set thy face against Zidon, and prophesy against it,

22 And thou shalt say, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Behold, I am against thee, O Zidon, and I will be honoured in the midst of thee: and they shall know that I am the Lord, when I execute judgments on her, and will be sanctified on her.

23 And I will send out against her pestilence, and blood(-shedding) into her streets; and the deadly wounded shall be felled[h] in

[a] Lit. "settest thy heart as the heart of God."

[b] All this is ironical; the king of Tyre had thought himself wiser than all, even Daniël.

[c] i. e. The works of art and elegance produced by Tyre's wisdom.

[d] Rashi, "Thou art full of wisdom to seal and engrave any picture and form."

[e] The prophet represents the king of Tyre as received at his birth with the sound of music.

[f] Alluding to Hiram aiding Solomon in the building of the temple. Philippson renders היית as היית "I set thee to be on the mountain of God." So also Rashi. The Tyrians also were at first friends of Israel.

[g] Philippson explains this, "covered with a blaze of precious stones."

[h] Jonathan. Rashi, "they shall expect that there shall be men slain by the sword," or "adjudge themselves to be slain," &c.

the midst of her by the sword (that is) against her from every side: and they shall know that I am the LORD.

24 And there shall be no more unto the house of Israel a pricking brier, nor painful thorn from all that are round about them, that despoil[a] them: and they shall know that I am the Lord Eternal.

25 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, When I gather the house of Israel from the people among whom they are scattered, and[b] shall be sanctified on them before the eyes of the nations: then shall they dwell in their land that I have given to my servant Jacob.

26 And they shall dwell thereupon in safety, and they shall build houses, and plant vineyards; yea, they shall dwell in safety; when I execute judgments on all those that despoiled them from round about them: and they shall know that I am the LORD their God.

CHAPTER XXIX.

1 ¶ In the tenth year, in the tenth month, on the twelfth day of the month, came the word of the LORD unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, set thy face against Pharaoh the king of Egypt, and prophesy against him, and against all Egypt.

3 Speak and say, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Behold, I will be against thee, O Pharaoh king of Egypt, the great crocodile that lieth in the midst of his streams, who hath said, Mine is my stream, and I have made it for myself.

4 But I will put hooks in thy jaws, and I will fasten the fish of thy streams on thy scales; and I will bring thee up out of the midst of thy streams, with all the fish of thy streams which shall stick fast on thy scales.

5 And I will cast thee out into the wilderness, thee with all the fish of thy streams; upon the open field shalt thou fall; thou shalt not be brought in, nor gathered up: to the beasts of the field and to the fowls of the heaven have I given thee for food.

6 And all the inhabitants of Egypt shall know that I am the LORD; because they have been a reed-staff[c] to the house of Israel.

7 When they took hold of thee with the hand, thou wast cracked, and didst rend for them all the shoulder: and when they leaned upon thee, thou wast broken, and madest all their loins to be at a stand.[d]

8 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Behold, I will bring a sword upon thee, and I will cut off out of thee man and beast.

9 And the land of Egypt shall be changed into a waste and ruin, and they shall know that I am the LORD; because he hath said, The stream is mine, and I have made it.

10 Therefore, behold, I will be against thee, and against thy streams, and I will render the land of Egypt a mass of ruins, a waste, and a wilderness, from Migdol to Seveneh[e] even up to the border of Ethiopia.

11 There shall not pass through it the foot of man, and the foot of beast shall not pass through it, and it shall not be inhabited forty years.

12 And I will render the land of Egypt a desolate land in the midst of desolated countries, and her cities among the cities that are ruined shall be desolate forty years: and I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations, and will disperse them through the countries.

13 ¶ For thus hath said the Lord Eternal, (only) at the end of forty years will I gather the Egyptians from the people whither they shall have been scattered;

14 And I will bring back the captivity of Egypt, and will cause them to return into the land of Pathros, into the land of their own origin: and they shall be there an unimportant kingdom.

15 Among the kingdoms it shall be the lowest;[f] neither shall it raise itself any more

[a] Rashi. Zunz, "that assail them." Others, "that despise them."

[b] Zunz, "then will I be, &c.—and they shall dwell."

[c] See also Isaiah xxxvi. 6. This means, as little support as a common fragile reed would be if a man were to lean on it, as he would do on a stout oaken or other firm staff.

[d] i. e. Those who thought they could rest their feeble limbs upon this prop had, notwithstanding their weakness, to strengthen themselves, to stand erect. Others read for והעמדה "thou causedst to stand," והכיערה "thou causedst to be out of joint."

[e] i. e. From Migdol, the northern, to Seveneh, the southern boundary, called by the Greeks, Syené, now Assouan.

[f] The population of ancient Egypt has entirely disappeared, and those that rule there now are aliens to the soil. The Copts themselves are scarcely the unmixed descendants of the former inhabitants.

above the nations: and I will diminish them, that they shall no more rule over the nations.

16 And it shall be no more unto the house of Israel for a dependence, bringing (their) iniquity to remembrance, when they turned[a] after them: and they shall know that I am the Lord Eternal.

17 ¶ And it came to pass in the seven and twentieth year, in the first month, on the first of the month, that the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

18 Son of man, Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon hath caused his army to perform a great service[b] against Tyre; every head hath been made bald, and every shoulder hath been rubbed sore: yet no reward hath come to him or to his army from Tyre, for the service that he hath performed against it.

19 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Behold, I will give unto Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon the land of Egypt; and he shall carry away its multitude, and take its spoil, and plunder its prey; and this shall be the reward for his army.

20 As his recompense for that which he hath served against it, have I given him the land of Egypt, for that which they had done against[c] me, saith the Lord Eternal.

21 On that day[d] will I cause to grow a horn for the house of Israel, and unto thee will I open the mouth[e] in the midst of them: and they shall know that I am the LORD.

CHAPTER XXX.

1 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, prophesy and say, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Wail ye, Wo unto the day!

3 For nigh is the day, yea nigh is the day of the LORD; a cloudy day; the time of the nations' (misfortune) shall it be.

4 And the sword shall come into Egypt, and there shall be trembling in Ethiopia, when the slain fall in Egypt, and when they take away its multitude, and its foundations shall be broken down.

5 Ethiopia, and Put, and Lud, and all the confederates, and Cub, and all the men of the leagued land, shall fall with them by the sword.

6 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, Yea, there shall fall those that uphold Egypt; and there shall come down the pride of her strength: from Migdol to Seveneh shall they fall in her by the sword, saith the Lord Eternal.

7 And they shall be made desolate in the midst of the desolate countries, and its cities shall be counted in the midst of the cities that have been laid in ruins.

8 And they shall know that I am the LORD, when I set fire[f] to Egypt, and when all her helpers shall be broken.

9 On that day shall messengers go forth from my presence in ships to terrify the secure Ethiopians, and there shall be trembling among them, as on the day of Egypt; for, lo, it cometh.

10 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, I will also cause the multitude of Egypt to cease through the hand of Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon.

11 He and his people with him, the fiercest of nations, shall be brought to destroy the land; and they shall draw their swords against Egypt, and they shall fill the land with the slain.

12 And I will render the streams dry, and sell the land into the hand of evil men; and I will make the land desolate, and all that filleth it, by the hand of strangers: I the LORD have spoken it.

13 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, I will also destroy the idols, and I will cause false gods to cease out of Noph; and a prince out of the land of Egypt shall there not be any more: and I will lay fear on the land of Egypt.

14 And I will make Pathros desolate, and

[a] i. e. Seeking succour from Egypt, as was often done in the later period of the kingdom of Judah. (Compare with Exod. xiv. 13; Deut. xvii. 16.)

[b] He besieged it thirteen years after conquering Jerusalem, without taking it.

[c] Jonathan; i. e. the sin the Egyptians had committed. Others, "because they (Nebuchadnezzar and his army) have laboured for me;" i. e. in besieging Tyre.

[d] Philippson supposes this to mean an indefinite future consolation of Israel. We may add, as sure as the humbling of Egypt took place, which was soon verified, so sure shall be the restoration of Israel.

[e] Lit. "give the opening of the mouth;" meaning, the prophet shall be able to refer to the accomplishment as the verification of his mission.

[f] Fire signifies destruction through invading enemies.

set fire to Zo'an; and I will execute judgments in No.

15 And I will pour my fury over Sin, the stronghold of Egypt; and I will cut off the multitude of No.

16 And I will set fire to Egypt: Sin shall have great pain, and No shall be broken in, and (over) Noph shall the besiegers (prevail) by broad day.[a]

17 The young men of Aven and of Pi-beseth shall fall by the sword: and they themselves shall go into captivity.

18 And at Thechaphneches the day shall be darkened, when I break there the yoke-bars of Egypt, and the pride of her strength ceaseth therein: as for her, a cloud shall cover her, and her daughters shall go into captivity.

19 Thus will I execute judgments on Egypt: and they shall know that I am the LORD.

20 ¶ And it came to pass in the eleventh year, in the first month, on the seventh day of the month, that the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

21 Son of man, the arm of Pharaoh the king of Egypt have I broken; and, lo, it shall not be bound up to apply remedies, to put on a bandage to bind it up, to make it strong that it may grasp the sword.

22 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Behold, I will be against Pharoah the king of Egypt, and will break his arms, both the strong, and that which was already broken; and I will cause the sword to fall out of his hand.

23 And I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations, and I will disperse them through the countries.

24 And I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon, and I will put my sword in his hand; but I will break the arms of Pharaoh, and he shall groan, with the groanings of a deadly wounded man before him.

25 Yea I will make strong[c] the arms of the king of Babylon, but the arms of Pharaoh shall fall down: and they shall know that I am the LORD, when I place my sword[d] into the hand of the king of Babylon, that he may stretch it out over the land of Egypt.

26 And I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations, and disperse them among the countries: and they shall know that I am the LORD.

CHAPTER XXXI.

1 ¶ And it came to pass in the eleventh year, in the third month, on the first day of the month, that the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, say unto Pharaoh the king of Egypt, and to his multitude, Unto whom art thou like in thy arrogance?

3 Behold, Asshur was a cedar in Lebanon beautiful in its boughs, and a shadowing thicket, and high in stature; and among the thick-boughed trees was its highest branch.

4 The waters made it great, the deep made it high, with its rivers[e] it was flowing round the place where it was planted, and its ditches it sent forth unto all the trees of the field.

5 Therefore became its stature higher than all the trees of the field, and its boughs were multiplied, and its branches became long because of the multitude of waters, when it stretched itself forth.

6 In its boughs made all the fowls of heaven their nest, and under its branches did all the beasts of the field bring forth their young, and under its shade dwelt all great nations.

7 And it was beautiful in its greatness, in the length of its light branches; for its root was by many waters.

8 The cedars could not obscure it in the garden of God; the firs were not like its boughs, and the chestnut-trees were not like its branches: not any tree in the garden of God was like unto it in its beauty.

9 Beautiful had I made it by the multitude of its light branches: so that all the trees of 'Eden that were in the garden of God, envied it.

[a] i. e. They shall not come by stratagem, but by open and daring assault. Rashi, "daily;" thus, the besiegers shall come against it day after day.

[b] Meaning, the remaining inhabitants other than the young men who have fallen in battle.

[c] Rashi renders this, "I will uphold."

[d] Meaning, because Egypt is to be punished for wrong done against God's people, Nebuchadnezzar wields in his wars the sword of God, not his own; as indeed the Scriptures always represent the events they record as God's acts.

[e] i. e. The deep, with the rivers it produced, flowed around this cedar, and the ditches thence derived for irrigation extended the superabundance of the water to all other trees near it.

10 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Because thou wast so high in stature, and it had placed its highest branch between the thick-boughed trees, and its heart was lifted up through its height:

11 Therefore do I give it up into the hand of the mighty one of the nations; he shall surely deal with it at his pleasure; for its wickedness do I drive it out.

12 And strangers, the fiercest of nations, cut it down, and cast it to the ground: on the mountains and in all the valleys fall its light branches, and its boughs are (lying) broken in all the ravines of the land; and all the people of the earth are gone away from its shade, and have cast it to the ground.

13 Upon its fallen fragments dwell all the fowls of the heaven, and on its branches are all the beasts of the field:

14 In order that none of all the trees by the waters shall exalt themselves for their height, nor place their highest branch among the thick-boughed trees, and that all those that are nourished[a] by water shall not place themselves erect, because of their height; for they are all given up unto death, to the land of the nether world, in the midst of the children of men, with those that go down to the pit.

15 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, On the day when it went down to the grave I caused a mourning; I covered the deep for its sake, and I restrained its rivers, and the great waters were withheld; and I caused Lebanon to be clothed in black attire for its sake, and all the trees of the field were famished because of it.

16 Through the noise of its downfall I caused nations to quake, when I cast it down into the tomb with the (others) that descend into the pit: and in the land of the nether world comforted themselves[b] all the trees of 'Eden, the choice and best of Lebanon, all that were nourished by water.

17 They also went down with it into the tomb unto those that were slain with the sword, and its helpers that had dwelt under its shade in the midst of the nations.

18 To whom art thou then like in glory and in greatness among the trees of 'Eden? And thou too shalt be brought down with the trees of 'Eden unto the land of the nether world: in the midst of the uncircumcised shalt thou lie with those slain by the sword; yes, he, Pharaoh, and all his multitude, saith the Lord Eternal.

CHAPTER XXXII.

1 ¶ And it came to pass in the twelfth year, in the twelfth month, on the first day of the month, that the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, take up a lamentation for Pharaoh the king of Egypt, and say unto him, Thou didst deem thyself like a young lion among the nations: while thou art as a crocodile in the seas; and thou issuedst forth with thy rivers, and madest turbid the waters with thy feet, and didst stir up their rivers.

3 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, I will therefore spread out my net over thee through the assemblage of many people, and they shall draw thee up in my net.

4 Then will I cast thee upon the land, upon the open field will I hurl thee, and will cause all the fowls of the heaven to dwell upon thee, and I will satisfy off thee the beasts of all the earth.

5 And I will lay thy flesh upon the mountains, and fill the valleys with thy carcass.[c]

6 I will also saturate the land wherein thou swimmest with thy blood, even to the mountains; and the ravines shall be full of thee.

7 And I will cover up the heavens, when thou art quenched, and make their stars obscure: the sun will I cover up with a cloud, and the moon shall not let shine her light.

8 All the light-dispensing lights of the heavens—these will I make obscure because of thee, and I will lay darkness upon thy land, saith the Lord Eternal.

9 And I will aggrieve the heart of many people, when I bring those who are broken[d] off from thee among the nations, into countries which thou hast not known.

[a] Lit. "all the water-drinkers;" a metaphoric expression for trees which die without water.

[b] Those which had already fallen now rejoice at the downfall of the cedar (Assyria) which had so terribly ruled over them. (Compare with Isaiah xiii. and xiv., concerning Babylon.)

[c] Rashi, "those that are fallen from thee." Others, cited by him, "thy worms;" i. e. those that feed on the dead carcass.

[d] Jonathan; meaning, the scattered remnants. Others, "when I bring the report of thy breach (downfall) among the nations."

10 Yea, I will make many people amazed at thee, and on their kings the hair shall stand on end because of thee, when I brandish my sword before their faces: and they shall tremble at every moment,[a] every man for his own life, on the day of thy downfall.

11 ¶ For thus hath said the Lord Eternal. The sword of the king of Babylon shall come over thee.

12 By the swords of the mighty will I cause thy multitude to fall, the fiercest of nations are all of them: and they shall destroy the pride of Egypt, and all her multitude shall be annihilated.

13 And I will cause to vanish all her beasts from beside the great waters; and the foot of man shall not make them turbid any more, nor shall the hoofs of beasts make them turbid.

14 Then will I make clear their waters, and cause their rivers to flow like oil, saith the Lord Eternal;

15 When I render the land of Egypt desolate and wasted, the country bereft of what now filleth it, when I smite all those that dwell therein: and they shall know that I am the LORD.

16 This is the lamentation wherewith they shall lament for her; the daughters of the nations shall lament for her: for Egypt, and for all her multitude, shall they lament with it, saith the Lord Eternal.

17 ¶ And it came to pass in the twelfth year, on the fifteenth day of the month, that the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

18 Son of man, moan for the multitude of Egypt, and say that it shall go down, yea, she, and the daughters of powerful nations, unto the land of the nether world, with those that go down to the pit.

19 Whom dost thou surpass in loveliness? go down (then), and be thou laid with the (other) uncircumcised.

20 In the midst of those that are slain by the sword shall they fall: to the sword is she given up; drag her away and all her multitudes.

21 Then will speak of him the strongest among the mighty out of the midst of the nether world with those that once helped him, They[b] are gone down, there lie the uncircumcised,—slain by the sword.

22 There is Asshur and all his assemblage; round about him are his graves; all of them the slain that are fallen by the sword;

23 Whose graves are placed in the lowest depth of the pit, and his assemblage is round about his grave; all of them are slain, fallen by the sword, who once spread terror[c] in the land of the living.

24 There is 'Elam and all her multitude round about her grave, all of them the slain, that are fallen by the sword, who are gone down uncircumcised into the land of the nether world, who once spread their terror in the land of the living; and they have borne their confusion with those that go down to the pit.

25 In the midst of the slain have they set a couch for her with all her multitude; all round about are her graves; all of them are uncircumcised, slain by the sword; because their terror was once spread in the land of the living; and they have borne their confusion with those that go down to the pit: in the midst of the slain was she placed.

26 There is Meshech, Thubal, and all her multitude; all round about her are her graves: all of them are the uncircumcised, slain by the sword; because they once spread their terror in the land of the living.

27 And those who are fallen of the uncircumcised shall not lie with the mighty, who are gone down to the nether world with their weapons of war, while men laid their swords under their heads, and the (instruments[d] of) their iniquities were upon their bones; for the terror of the mighty was in the land of the living.

28 But thou shalt be broken in the midst

[a] Others, "for their own dreaded misfortune."

[b] These are the words the other inhabitants of the lower world will speak concerning Pharaoh and his followers. "Uncircumcised," a term of reproach, as much "as the wicked," or "imperfect," "degraded."

[c] Or "dismay;" but Rashi, "who caused a breach in the land of Israel."

[d] Zunz, who supplies "instruments" as parallel with "swords;" but Rashi, "there was nothing wanting of their iniquities, because they had not been slain; and what was their iniquity? for their terror," &c. The Scythians, like other barbarous nations, buried the armour of their deceased chiefs in their graves, and even their wife, cook, minister, and favourite horse.

of the uncircumcised, and shalt lie with those that are slain by the sword.

29 There are Edom, her kings, and all her princes, who are laid despite their prowess by those that are slain by the sword: they shall lie with the uncircumcised, and with those that go down to the pit.

30 There are the chieftains of the north, all of them, and all the Zidonians, who are gone down with the slain: despite the terror they excited through their prowess are they made ashamed; and they lie uncircumcised with those that are slain by the sword, and bear their confusion with those that go down to the pit.

31 These shall Pharaoh see, and he shall be comforted over all his multitude: slain by the sword are Pharaoh and all his army, saith the Lord Eternal.

32 For I spread my terror in the land of the living; and he shall be laid in the midst of the uncircumcised with those that are slain by the sword,—yea, Pharaoh and all his multitude, saith the Lord Eternal.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

1 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, speak to the children of thy people, and say unto them, If there be a land over which I bring the sword, and the people of the land take a man from among themselves, and appoint him unto themselves for a watchman;

3 And if he see the sword coming over the land, and blow the cornet, and warn the people;

4 And whosoever heareth the sound of the cornet, and taketh no warning; and the sword cometh, and taketh him away: his blood shall be upon his own head.

5 The sound of the cornet hath he heard, and he hath taken no warning; his blood shall be upon him. But had he taken warning he would have delivered his soul.

6 But if the watchman see the sword coming, and blow not the cornet, so that the people be not warned, and the sword cometh, and taketh away from among them some person: this one is taken away for his iniquity; but his blood will I require from the watchman's hand.

7 ¶ But as for thee, O son of man, I have appointed thee a watchman unto the house of Israel: so that when thou hearest a word from my mouth, thou shalt warn them from me.

8 When I say unto the wicked, O wicked one, thou shalt surely die; and thou dost not speak to warn the wicked from his way: that wicked one shall die for his iniquity; but his blood will I require from thy hand.

9 Nevertheless, if thou hast indeed warned the wicked of his way to turn away from it, and he do not turn from his way: he shall certainly die for his iniquity; but thou hast delivered thy soul.

10 ¶ But thou, O son of man, speak unto the house of Israel, Thus do ye speak, saying, Truly our transgressions and our sins are upon us, and through them do we pine away: how then shall we live?

11 Say unto them, As I live, saith the Lord Eternal, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked; but in the return of the wicked from his way that he may live: return ye, return ye from your evil ways; for why will ye die, O house of Israel?

12 ¶ But thou, son of man, say unto the children of thy people, The righteousness of the righteous shall not deliver him on the day of his transgression; and as for the wickedness of the wicked, he shall not stumble through it on the day that he returneth from his wickedness; nor shall the righteous be able to live through the other on the day that he sinneth.

13 When I say of the righteous, that he shall surely live, and he trusteth to his own righteousness, and committeth what is wrong: all his righteous deeds shall not be remembered, and for his wrong that he hath committed,—through this shall he die.

14 Again, when I say unto the wicked, Thou shalt surely die; and he turneth from his sin, and executeth justice and righteousness;

15 If the wicked restore the pledge, make restitution for what he hath robbed, walk in the statutes of life, so as not to do any wrong: he shall surely live, he shall not die.

16 All his sins that he hath committed shall not be remembered unto him: justice and righteousness hath he executed, he shall surely live.

17 Yet say the children of thy people,

The way of the Lord is not equitable: while, as to them, their way is not equitable.

18 When the righteous turneth away from his righteousness, and doth what is wrong, he shall even die therefor.

19 And when the wicked returneth from his wickedness, and executeth justice and righteousness, he shall surely live therefor.

20 Yet ye say, The way of the Lord is not equitable. Every one after his own ways will I judge you, O house of Israel.

21 ¶ And it came to pass in the twelfth year, in the tenth month, on the fifth day of the month after our exile, that there came unto me one that had escaped out of Jerusalem, saying, The city hath been smitten.

22 Now the inspiration of the LORD was come upon me in the evening, before the coming of the one who had escaped; and he had opened my mouth, before he was come to me in the morning; and my mouth was opened and I was not kept dumb any more.[a]

23 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

24 Son of man, they that dwell in these ruins in the land of Israel say as followeth, But one man was Abraham, and he obtained the land as an inheritance; and as we are many, the land must (surely) be given to us for an inheritance.

25 ¶ Therefore say unto them, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, By the blood do ye eat, and your eyes do you lift up toward your idols, and blood do ye shed: and ye expect to possess the land?

26 Ye depend upon your sword, ye commit abomination, and ye defile every one his neighbour's wife: and ye expect to possess the land?

27 Thus shalt thou say unto them, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, As I live, surely those that are in the ruined[b] places shall fall by the sword, and him that is in the open field will I give to the beasts that they may devour him, and those that are in the strongholds and in the caves shall die through the pestilence.

28 And I will render the land desolate and wasted, and the pride of her strength shall cease; and the mountains of Israel shall be desolate, with none to pass through them.

29 And they shall experience that I am the LORD, when I render the land desolate and wasted, because of all their abominations which they have committed.

30 ¶ And thou, son of man, (there are) the children of thy people, who are talking about thee by the walls and in the entrances of the houses, and speak one to another, every one to his brother, saying, Do come, and hear what the word is which cometh forth from the LORD.

31 And then they come unto thee as the people come,[c] and they sit before thee (as)[d] my people, and they hear thy words, but do not execute them; for as merry songs they carry them in their mouth, while their heart goeth after their unlawful gains.

32 And, lo, thou art unto them as a merry song of one[e] that hath a pleasant voice, and can play well: and (thus) they hear thy words, but execute them not.

33 But when it cometh to pass, (lo, it will come,) then shall they know that a prophet hath been among them.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

1 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, prophesy concerning the shepherds of Israel; prophesy, and say unto them, unto the shepherds, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Wo to the shepherds of Israel who do feed themselves! should not the shepherds feed the flocks?

3 The fat ye eat, and with the wool ye clothe yourselves, those that are well fed ye slaughter; but the flock ye feed not.

4 The diseased have ye not strengthened, and the sick have ye not healed, and that which had a limb broken have ye not bound up, and the strayed have ye not brought back again, and what was lost have ye not sought for; but with force have ye ruled them and with rigour.

5 And they were scattered for want of a

[a] (See above, iii. 26, 27.) Now was the occasion come for the prophet to speak freely, as the accomplishment had verified his previous predictions.

[b] Rashi, "the fortified cities, which shall ultimately be ruined."

[c] i. e. As Jonathan explains, "as disciples come to hear."

[d] Rashi; meaning, they pretend outwardly to care for what the prophet tells them in God's name.

shepherd; and they became food unto all the beasts of the field, and they were scattered.

6 My sheep have to wander about on all the mountains, and upon every high hill: yea, over all the face of the land are my flock scattered, and there is none that inquireth and none that seeketh (after them).

7 Therefore, ye shepherds, hear the word of the LORD,

8 As I live, saith the Lord Eternal, surely because my flock became a prey, and my flock became food unto every beast of the field, because there was no shepherd, and my shepherds did not inquire for my flock, but the shepherds fed themselves, and my flock they fed not:

9 Therefore, O ye shepherds, hear the word of the LORD,

10 Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Behold, I will be against the shepherds, and I will require my flock from their hand, and I will stop them from feeding the flock; neither shall the shepherds feed themselves any more: and I will deliver my flock out of their mouth, that they may not serve them for food.

11 ¶ For thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Behold, I am here, and I will both inquire for my flocks, and search for them.

12 As a shepherd searcheth for his flock on the day that he is among his flocks that are scattered: so will I search for my flocks; and I will deliver them out of all places whither they have been scattered on the day of clouds and (tempestuous) darkness.

13 And I will bring them out from the people, and gather them from the countries, and I will bring them to their own land; and I will feed them upon the mountains of Israel, in the ravines, and in all the inhabited places of the country.

14 On a good pasture will I feed them, and upon the high mountains of Israel shall be their fold: there shall they lie in a good fold, and in a fat pasture shall they feed on the mountains of Israel.

15 I myself will feed my flock, and I myself will cause them to lie down, saith the Lord Eternal.

16 That which was lost will I seek for, and that which was gone astray will I bring back again, and that which had a limb broken will I bind up, and the sick will I strengthen; but the fat and the strong[a] will I destroy; I will feed them in justice.[b]

17 And as for you, O my flock, thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Behold, I will judge between lamb[c] and lamb, between the wethers and the he-goats.

18 Is it too little for you that ye can feed on the good pasture, that ye must tread down the residue of your pastures with your feet? and that ye can drink clear waters, that ye must render muddy with your feet what is left?

19 And as for my flock, what ye have trodden with your feet must they eat; and what ye have made muddy with your feet must they drink.

20 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal unto them, Behold, I am here, and I will judge between the fat lamb and the lean lamb.

21 Because ye thrust with side and with shoulder, and push with your horns all the diseased, till ye have scattered them abroad:

22 Therefore will I save my flock, and they shall no more be a prey; and I will judge between lamb and lamb.

23 And I will appoint over them one shepherd, and he shall feed them, namely, my servant David: he it is that shall feed them, and he it is that shall be unto them for a shepherd.

24 And I the LORD—I will be unto them for a God, and my servant David shall be a prince in their midst: I the LORD have spoken it.

25 And I will make with them a covenant of peace, and I will cause the wild beasts to cease out of the land: and they shall dwell in the wilderness in safety, and sleep in the forests.

26 And I will make them and the environs of my hill a blessing; and I will cause the rain to come down in its season; rains[d] of blessing shall they be.

27 And the tree of the field shall yield its fruit, and the earth shall yield her products, and they shall be on their land in safety: and they shall know that I am the LORD,

[a] Meaning, the proud and presumptuous, who injure the feeble, as the fat of the flock but against the weak.

[b] Zunz, "as it is proper."

[c] Rashi, "between the powerful and the weak."

[d] Meaning, "whatever rains there shall be, shall be rains of blessings."

when I break the bands of their yoke, and deliver them out of the hand of those that had made them labour for them.

28 And they shall be no more a prey to the nations, and the beasts of the land shall not devour them; but they shall dwell in safety, with none to make them afraid.

29 And I will raise up for them a plantation for a (perpetual) renown, and they shall be no more taken away by hunger in the land, neither bear the shameful reproach of the nations any more.

30 Thus shall they experience that I the LORD their God am with them, and that they, the house of Israel, are my people, saith the Lord Eternal.

31 And ye my flock, the flock of my pasture, are men,[a] (and) I am your God, saith the Lord Eternal.

CHAPTER XXXV.

1 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, set thy face against the mountain of Se'ir, and prophesy against it,

3 And say unto it, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Behold, I will be against thee, O mountain of Se'ir, and I will stretch out my hand over thee, and I will render thee desolate and wasted.

4 Thy cities will I lay in ruins, and thou thyself shalt be desolate, and thou shalt know that I am the LORD.

5 Because thou hast had an undying hatred, and didst surrender the children of Israel to the power of the sword, at the time of their calamity, at the time of the[b] iniquity of the end:

6 Therefore, as I live, saith the Lord Eternal, I will surely let thy blood flow,[c] and blood shall pursue thee; since thou didst not hate blood-shedding,[d] so shall blood pursue thee.

7 Thus will I change the mountain of Se'ir into a desolate land and a waste, and I will cut off from it him that travelleth forward and backward.

8 And I will fill his mountains with his slain: as regardeth thy hills, and thy valleys, and all thy ravines, in them shall fall those that are slain by the sword.

9 Into perpetual desolations will I change thee, and thy cities shall not be restored: and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

10 Because thou hast said, These two nations and these two countries shall indeed be mine, and we will take possession thereof; whereas the LORD was there:

11 Therefore, as I live, saith the Lord GOD, I will even do according to thy anger, and according to thy envy which thou didst use out of thy hatred against them; and I will make myself known among them, when I judge thee.

12 And thou shalt know that I am the LORD: I have heard all thy blasphemies which thou hast spoken against the mountains of Israel, saying, They are laid desolate, they are given unto us to consume them.

13 And ye boasted[e] greatly against me with your mouth, and have multiplied against me your words: I have indeed heard them.

14 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, When the whole earth rejoiceth, I will make thee desolate.[f]

15 As thou didst rejoice over the inheritance of the house of Israel, because it was made desolate: so will I do unto thee; desolate shalt thou be, O mountain of Se'ir, and all Idumea—altogether; and they shall know that I am the LORD.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

1 ¶ But thou, son of man, prophesy unto the mountains of Israel, and say, O mountains of Israel, hear ye the word of the LORD.

2 Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Because the enemy hath said regarding you, Aha, even the ancient high-places are become ours as a possession:

3 Therefore prophesy and say, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Because, even because men have made you desolate, and sought to swallow you up on every side, that ye might become a possession unto the residue of the

[a] Rashi, "you are men, not like cattle, in my eyes." Philippson, "Ye men of Israel are the flocks of my pasture." Zunz, "the sheep of my pasture (among) men are ye."

[b] See above, xxi. 30.

[c] Lit. "Into blood will I make thee."

[d] This is variously rendered by Rashi; one opinion being, "surely thou hast hated thy relations (thy own blood) and therefore," &c.

[e] Lit. "made great."

[f] Zunz, "When the whole land, now desolate, rejoiceth, then will I deal with thee."

nations, and ye are taken up as a talk for tongues, and an evil report of the people:

4 Therefore, O mountains of Israel, hear ye the word of the Lord Eternal, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal to the mountains, and to the hills, to the ravines, and to the valleys, to the desolate ruins, and to the cities that are forsaken, which are become a prey and derision to the residue of the nations that are round about:

5 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Surely in the fire of my jealousy have I spoken against the residue of the nations, and against all Idumea, that have appropriated my land unto themselves as a possession with the joy of all their heart, with derision in their soul, in order to drive it out that it may be for a prey.

6 Therefore prophesy concerning the land of Israel, and say unto the mountains, and to the hills, to the ravines, and to the valleys, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Behold, in my zealousness and in my fury have I spoken, because ye have borne the reproach of the nations:

7 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal, I have indeed lifted[a] up my hand, that the nations who are round about you—these shall bear their shame.

8 But ye, O mountains of Israel, ye shall send forth your boughs, and your fruit shall ye bear for my people Israel; for they are near at hand to come.

9 For, behold, I will be for you, and I will turn unto you, and ye shall be tilled and ye shall be sown;

10 And I will multiply upon you men, all the house of Israel—altogether; and the cities shall be inhabited again, and the ruins shall be rebuilt;

11 And I will multiply upon you man and beast, and they shall increase and be fruitful; and I will cause you to be inhabited after your old estates, and will do more good unto you than at your beginnings: and ye shall know that I am the Lord.

12 Yea, I will cause to walk upon you men, even my people Israel, and they shall possess thee, and thou shalt be unto them as an inheritance, and thou shalt not any more henceforth cast them out.[b]

13 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Because they say unto you, Thou land devourest up men, and hast been one that hath ever cast out thy nations:[c]

14 Therefore shalt thou not devour up men any more, and thy nations shalt thou not cast out any more, saith the Lord Eternal.

15 And I will not let be heard against thee any more the reproach of the nations, and the disgrace of the people shalt thou not bear any more, and thy nations shalt thou not cast out any more, saith the Lord Eternal.

16 ¶ And the word of the Lord came unto me, saying,

17 Son of man, the house of Israel, when they dwelt in their own land, defiled it through their way and through their doings: like the uncleanness of a woman in her separation was their way before me.

18 And I poured out my fury over them because of the blood that they had shed in the land, and because through their idols they had polluted it;

19 And I scattered them among the nations, and they were dispersed through the countries: according to their way and according to their doings did I judge them.

20 And when they were come unto the nations, whither they were gone, they profaned my holy name; because they said of them,[d] These are the people of the Lord, and out of his land are they gone forth.

21 But I had pity for my holy name, which the house of Israel had profaned among the nations, whither they were gone.

22 ¶ Therefore say unto the house of Israel, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Not for your sake do I this, O house of Israel, but for the sake of my holy name, which ye have

[a] Meaning, "I have sworn."

[b] Rashi, and after him, Zunz; but Philippson takes the word לשכלם in its original, but here figurative sense, "make them no more childless."

[c] i. e. First the Canaanites, next the Emorites and other tribes, and then the Israelites, none of whom could remain permanently in Palestine.

[d] Rashi, "they have lowered my glory; and what is the profanation? when the enemies said of them, These are the people of the Lord, and they are gone forth out of his land, while he had not the power to deliver his people and his land." But when the redemption takes place, it will be acknowledged that for their sins against God were they punished by Him.

profaned among the nations, whither ye are gone.

23 And I will sanctify my great name, which was profaned among the nations, which ye have profaned in the midst of them: and the nations shall know that I am the LORD, saith the Lord Eternal, when I will be sanctified through you before your eyes.

24 And I will take you from among the nations, and I will gather you out of all the countries, and I will bring you unto your own land.

25 And I will sprinkle upon you clean water,[a] and ye shall be clean: from all your impurities, and from all your idols, will I cleanse you.

26 And I will give you a new heart,[b] and a new spirit will I put within you; and I will remove the heart of stone out of your body,[c] and I will give you a heart of flesh.

27 And my spirit I will put within you, and I will cause that you shall walk in my statutes, and that my ordinances ye shall keep, and do them.

28 And ye shall dwell in the land which I gave to your fathers; and ye shall be unto me for a people, and I truly will be unto you as a God.

29 And I will save you from all kinds of your impurities; and I will call unto the corn, and increase it, and I will not lay famine upon you.

30 And I will multiply the fruit of the trees, and the products of the field: in order that ye may receive no more reproach[d] on account of famine among the nations.

31 Then shall ye remember your ways that they were evil, and your doings that were not good; and ye shall loathe yourselves on account of your iniquities and on account of your abominations.

32 Not for your sake do I this, saith the Lord Eternal, be it known unto you: be ashamed and confounded because of your ways, O house of Israel.

33 Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, On the day of my cleansing you from all your iniquities, when I cause the cities to be inhabited, and when the ruins are built up,

34 And when the desolate land is tilled, instead that it was a waste before the eyes of every passer by:

35 Then shall they say, This land, that was desolate, is become like the garden of 'Eden; and the cities that were ruined, and desolate, and broken down, are become fortified, and inhabited.

36 And the nations that are left round about you shall know that I the LORD have built up the broken-down (places), have planted the desolate (land): I the LORD have spoken this, and have done it.

37 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Also in this will I yet suffer myself to be entreated[e] of by the house of Israel, to do it for them, I will increase them with men like flocks (in multitude).

38 As the flocks of the holy things, as the flocks of Jerusalem on her appointed feasts, so shall the ruined cities be full of flocks of men: and they shall know that I am the LORD.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

1 ¶ There came over me the inspiration of the LORD, and he carried me out in the spirit of the LORD, and set me down in the midst of the valley which was full of bones;

2 And he caused me to pass by them all round about; and, behold, there were very many of them on the surface of the valley; and, lo, they were very dry.

3 And he said unto me, Son of man, can[f] these bones live? And I said, O Lord Eternal, thou alone knowest this.

4 And he said unto me, Prophesy over these bones, and say unto them, O ye dry bones, hear ye the word of the LORD.

5 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal unto these bones, Behold, I will bring a spirit[g] into you, and ye shall live;

6 And I will lay sinews upon you, and bring up flesh upon you, and draw over you a skin, and put a spirit in you, and ye shall

[a] Rashi, "I will forgive you, and remove your impurities with the sprinkling of the waters of purification which remove the defilement of the dead."

[b] Rashi, "an inclination made new for doing good." Jonathan, "a heart that feareth and a spirit that feareth," —and so "the heart of stone,"—"a wicked heart which is hard as stone;" "a heart of flesh,"—"a heart fearing me to do my will."

[c] Lit. "flesh."

[d] Lit. "reproach of famine." [e] Rashi, lit. "inquired."

[f] Rashi, "Doth it appear in thy eyes that they will be able to live?" [g] Eng. ver. "breath."

live: and ye shall experience that I am the LORD.

7 And so I prophesied as I had been commanded: and there was a sound, as I prophesied, and behold there was a rustling noise, and the bones came together, bone to its bone.[a]

8 And I looked, and behold, there were sinews upon them, and the flesh came up, and the skin was drawn over them above; but no spirit was in them.

9 Then said he unto me, Prophesy unto the spirit; prophesy, son of man, and say to the spirit, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, From the four winds come, O spirit, and breathe into these slain ones, that they may live.

10 And I prophesied as he had commanded me, and there came into them the spirit, and they lived, and stood up upon their feet, an exceedingly great army.

11 Then said he unto me, Son of man, these bones are the whole house of Israel: behold, they say, Dried are our bones, and lost is our hope; we are quite cut off.

12 Therefore prophesy and say unto them, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Behold, I will open your graves, and I will cause you to come up out of your graves, O my people, and I will bring you into the land of Israel.

13 And ye shall know that I am the LORD, when I open your graves, and when I cause you to come up out of your graves, O my people.

14 And I will put my spirit in you, and ye shall live, and I will place you in your own land: and ye shall acknowledge that I the LORD have spoken it, and done it, saith the LORD.

15 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

16 But thou, son of man, take unto thyself one stick[b] of wood, and write upon it, "For Judah, and for the children of Israel his companions;" then take another stick, and write upon it, "For Joseph,—the stick of Ephraim,—and for all the house of Israel his companions:"

17 And join them one to the other unto thee as one stick; and they shall[c] become one in thy hand.

18 And if the children of thy people should say unto thee, saying, Wilt thou not tell us what thou meanest by these?

19 (Then) speak unto them, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Behold, I will take the stick of Joseph,—which is in the hand of Ephraim,—and the tribes of Israel his companions, and will lay them upon him, even the stick of Judah, and make them into one stick, and they shall be one in my hand.

20 And the sticks whereon thou shalt have written shall be in thy hand before their eyes.

21 And speak unto them, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Behold, I will take the children of Israel from among the nations, whither they are gone, and I will gather them from every side, and bring them unto their own land;

22 And I will make them into one nation in the land, on the mountains of Israel; and one king shall be to them all for king; and they shall not be any more two nations, nor shall they at any time be divided into two kingdoms any more:

23 Neither shall they defile themselves any more with their idols, and with their detestable things, and with all their transgressions; but I will save them out of all their dwelling-places, wherein they have sinned, and I will cleanse them, and they shall be unto me for a people, and I will be to them for a God.

24 And my servant David shall be king over them; and one shepherd shall be for them all: and in my ordinances shall they walk, and my statutes shall they observe, and do them.

25 And they shall dwell in the land that I have given unto my servant, unto Jacob, wherein your fathers have dwelt; and they shall dwell therein, they, and their children, and their children's children for ever: and David my servant shall be prince unto them for ever.

26 And I will make with them a covenant of peace, an everlasting covenant shall it be with them: and I will preserve them, and I will multiply them, and I will set my sanctuary in the midst of them for evermore.

27 My dwelling also shall be with them,

[a] i. e. The bones arranged themselves in the proper order, as when they were in the body.

[b] Jonathan, "table" or "board."

[c] Jonathan. Redak, "as though they were one."

and I will be unto them for a God; and they shall be unto me as a people.

28 And the nations shall know that I am the LORD who sanctify Israel, when my sanctuary will be in the midst of them for evermore.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

1 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, direct thy face against Gog of the land of Magog, the prince of Rosh, Meshech and Thubal, and prophesy against him,

3 And say, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal. Behold, I will be against thee, O Gog, the prince of Rosh, Meshech and Thubal;

4 And I will derange thee, and put hooks into thy jaws, and I will bring thee forth, and all thy army, horses and horsemen, all of them clothed in elegant attire, a great assemblage with bucklers and shields, all of them grasping swords.

5 Persia, Cush, and Put (shall be) with them; all of them with shield and helmet;

6 Gomer and all of its armies; the house of Thogarmah out of the farthest north, and all its armies; many people shall be with thee.

7 Be thou ready, and prepare thyself, thou, and all thy assemblages that are assembled about thee, and be thou a guard[a] unto them.

8 After many days shalt thou be ordered forward;[b] in the end of years shalt thou come into the land that is recovering[c] from the sword, and is gathered together out of many people, against the mountains of Israel, which have been ruined for a very long time: (to a people) that are brought forth out of the nations, and that now dwell in safety, all of them.

9 Thou wilt ascend and come like a tempest,[d] like a cloud to cover the earth wilt thou be, thou, and all thy armies, and the many people with thee.

10 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, It will also come to pass, at the same time, that things will come into thy mind, and thou wilt entertain an evil device;

11 And thou wilt say, I will go up over the land of open towns; I will come against those that are careless, that dwell in safety, all of whom dwell without walls, and have neither bars nor gates,

12 To snatch up the spoil, and to take away the prey; to turn thy hand against the ruined places now inhabited, and against the people that are gathered out of the nations, that have gotten[e] cattle and goods, that dwell in the highest[f] part of the land.

13 Sheba, and Dedan, and the traders of Tharshish, with all her young lions,[g] will say unto thee, Art thou come to plunder the spoil? hast thou gathered thy company to carry off the prey? to bear away silver and gold, to take away cattle and goods, to plunder a great spoil?

14 Therefore, prophesy, son of man, and say unto Gog, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Behold, on the day when my people of Israel dwelleth in safety, shalt thou know (my power).[h]

15 And thou wilt come from thy place out of the farthest ends of the north, thou, and many people with thee, all of them riding upon horses, a great assemblage, and a mighty army;

16 And thou wilt come up against my people of Israel, like a cloud to cover the land;[i] in the latter days will this be, and I will bring thee over my land, in order that the nations may know me, when I am sanctified on thee, before their eyes, O Gog.

17 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Art thou (not) he of whom I have spoken in ancient days through means of my servants the prophets[a] of Israel, who prophesied in those days (many) years, that I would bring thee against them?

18 And it shall come to pass at the same time, on the day of Gog's coming over the land of Israel, saith the Lord Eternal, that my fury shall be kindled in my nose.[b]

19 And in my zealousness, in the fire of my wrath, have I spoken, Surely on that day there shall be a great earthquake in the country of Israel;

20 And there shall quake at my presence the fishes of the sea, and the fowls of the heaven, and the beasts of the field, and every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth, and all the men that are upon the face of the earth, and the mountains shall be thrown down, and the cliffs[c] shall fall, and every wall shall fall to the ground.

21 And I will call against him throughout all my mountains for the sword, saith the Lord Eternal: every man's sword shall be against his brother.

22 And I will hold judgment over him with pestilence and with blood (-shedding); and an overflowing rain, and great hailstones, fire, and sulphur will I let rain over him and his armies, and over the many people that are with him.

23 Thus will I magnify myself, and sanctify myself, and make myself known before the eyes of many nations: and they shall know that I am the LORD.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

1 ¶ But thou, O son of man, prophesy against Gog, and say, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Behold, I will be against thee, O Gog, the prince of Rosh, Meshech and Thubal;

2 And I will derange thee, and lead thee astray,[d] and will cause thee to come up from the farthest ends of the north; and I will bring thee upon the mountains of Israel;

3 And I will strike thy bow out of thy left hand, and thy arrows will I cause to fall out of thy right hand.

4 Upon the mountains of Israel shalt thou fall, thou, and all thy armies, and the people that are with thee: unto the ravenous birds, to every thing that hath wings, and to the beasts of the field, do I give thee for food.

5 Upon the open field shalt thou fall; for I have spoken it, saith the Lord Eternal.

6 And I will send a fire against Magog, and against those that dwell in the isles in safety: and they shall know that I am the LORD.

7 And my holy name will I make known in the midst of my people Israel; and I will not permit my holy name to be profaned[e] any more: and the nations shall know that I am the LORD, Holy in Israel.[f]

8 Behold, it cometh, and it taketh place, saith the Lord Eternal: this is the day whereof I have spoken.

9 And the inhabitants of the cities of Israel shall go forth, and shall burn and make fire for heating of the weapons, and shields and bucklers, of bows and of arrows, and of hand-staves,[g] and of spears; and they shall feed with them the fire for seven years;[h]

10 And they shall take no wood out of the field, nor cut down any out of the forests; for with weapons shall they feed the fire: and they shall spoil those that spoiled them, and plunder those that plundered them, saith the Lord Eternal.

11 ¶ And it shall come to pass on that day, that I will give unto Gog a place there for a grave in Israel, the valley where people pass over to the east of the sea;[i] and it shall [b] Figurative for excessive anger, when the nostrils are distended, and a smoke, as it were, arises out of them.

[c] Rashi, after one opinion which he cites, preferring, however, Jonathan's view, "towers, round which mounds of earth are heaped up and formed in terraces or steps;" taking מדרגות in the sense of "steps" or "degrees."

[d] Jonathan, after whom Rashi, Zunz, and others.

[e] Rashi, "the debasement of Israel is a profanation of God's name, as nations say, They are the LORD's people, and he cannot deliver them." (See above, xxxvi. 20.)

[g] Zunz, "clubs;" but Philippson, "the staff which the princes or leaders carry;" the marshal's baton.

[h] When the immense number and destruction of the invaders are considered, and also the little fuel comparatively which is necessary in warm climates, we may easily conceive of this being literally fulfilled. Mariana, in his History of Spain, (lib. xi. chap. 24,) says, that after the Spaniards had given that signal overthrow to the Saracens, in the year 1212, they found such a vast quantity of lances, javelins, and such-like, as served them for four years for fuel.

stop the passengers (from passing): and they shall bury there Gog and all his multitude, and they shall call it The valley of the multitude of Gog.[a] 12 And the house of Israel shall be burying them, in order to cleanse[b] the land, during seven months.

13 Yea, all the people of the land shall bury them; and it shall be to them as a renown on the day that I glorify myself, saith the Lord Eternal.

14 And men constantly devoted to this[c] shall they set apart to pass through the land, to bury with those that pass through those that remain upon the face of the earth, to cleanse it: at the end of seven months shall they make a search.

15 And those that thus travel will pass through the land; and when any one seeth a human bone, then will he set up a sign by it, till the buriers have buried it in the valley of the multitude of Gog.

16 And also the name of the city shall be Hamonah. Thus shall they cleanse the land.

17 ¶ And thou, O son of man, thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Say unto the birds, to every thing that hath wings, and to every beast of the field, Assemble yourselves, and come; gather yourselves from every side to my sacrifice that I do slaughter for you, as a great sacrifice upon the mountains of Israel, that ye may eat flesh, and drink blood.

18 The flesh of the mighty shall ye eat, and the blood of the princes of the earth shall ye drink,—wethers,[d] lambs, and he-goats, bullocks, fatlings of Bashan are they all of them.

19 And ye shall eat fat till ye be sated, and ye shall drink blood till ye be drunken, from my sacrifice which I have slaughtered for you.

20 And ye shall be sated at my table on horses and chariot-teams, on mighty men, and on all men of war, saith the Lord Eternal.

21 And I will display my glory among the nations: and all the nations shall see my punishment that I execute, and my hand that I lay on them.

22 And the house of Israel shall acknowledge that I am the LORD their God from that day and forward.

23 And the nations shall know that for their iniquity did the house of Israel go into exile; because they had trespassed against me, and I had hidden my face from them; and I gave them up therefore into the hand of their oppressors, and they all fell by the sword.

24 According to their uncleanness, and according to their transgressions did I deal with them, and hid my face from them.

25 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Now will I bring back again the captivity of Jacob, and I will have mercy upon the whole house of Israel, and will be zealous for my holy name;

26 And they shall feel their disgrace, and all their trespass whereby they had trespassed against me, when they dwelt in their land in safety, with none to make them afraid:

27 When I bring them back again from the people, and gather them out of the land of their enemies, and sanctify myself on them before the eyes of the many nations.

28 And they shall know that I am the LORD their God; because I had exiled them among the nations, but gather them now unto their own land, and leave none of them any more there.

29 And I will not hide my face any more from them; for I will have poured out my spirit over the house of Israel, saith the Lord Eternal.

CHAPTER XL.

1 ¶ In the five and twentieth year of our exile, in the beginning of the year, on the tenth day of the month, in the fourteenth year after the city had been smitten, on the selfsame day came the inspiration of the LORD upon me, and brought me thither.[e]

2 In the visions of God brought he me unto the land of Israel, and set me down

[a] In Hebrew, "Gay hamone Gog.

[b] See Num. xix. 16.

[c] Rashi. Philippson comments that it means, the people are to appoint two classes of men who are to pass through the land at the end of the first seven months, the one to mark the place where any one had fallen, and the other to remove the remains to the valley at first described.

upon a very high mount, on which there was built something like a city on the south.

3 And when he had brought me thither, behold, there was a man, whose appearance was like the appearance of copper, with a line of flax in his hand, and a measuring-rod: and he was standing in the gate.

4 And the man spoke unto me, Son of man, behold with thy eyes, and hear with thy ears, and direct thy heart unto all that I am about to show thee; for in order to show it unto thee art thou brought hither: tell all that thou seest to the house of Israel.

5 And behold there was a wall on the outside of the house all round about, and in the man's hand was a measuring-rod of six cubits long by the cubit which was a hand's breadth longer than usual; and he measured the breadth[a] of the building, one rod, and the height, one rod.

6 Then came he unto the gate which looked in the direction toward the east, and went up its steps, and measured the threshold of the gate, one rod in breadth, and the other threshold one rod in breadth.

7 And every cell was one rod long, and one rod broad; and between the cells were five cubits: and the threshold of the gate near by the porch of the gate within was one rod.

8 He measured also the porch of the gate within, one rod.

9 Then measured he the porch of the gate, eight cubits, and its door-posts,[b] two cubits: and the porch of the gate was inward.

10 And the cells of the gate in the eastern direction were three on this side, and three on that side, one measure was for all the three; and there was one measure for the door-posts on this side and on that side.

11 And he measured the breadth of the entrance of the gate, ten cubits, (and) the length of the gate, thirteen cubits.

12 And there was a space before the cells of one cubit on this side, and one cubit space was there on that side: and every cell was of six cubits on this side, and of six cubits on that side.

13 And he measured the gate from the roof of (one) cell to the roof of (another), in breadth five and twenty cubits, one door being against (the other) door.[c]

14 And he made door-posts of sixty cubits, and around the door-posts the court and the gate all round about.[d]

15 And the height[e] of the gate of the entrance as also the height of the porch of the inner gate was fifty cubits.

16 And there were narrow windows in the cells, and by their door-posts within the gate all round about, and likewise in the porches:[f] and windows were all round about inward; and on each door post were palm-shaped (capitals).[g]

17 Then brought he me into the outward court, and, lo, there were chambers, and a pavement made for the court all round about: thirty chambers were upon the pavement.

18 And the pavement by the side of the gates was all along the whole length of the gates: this was the lower pavement.

19 Then measured he the breadth from the front of the lower gate unto the front of the inner court, without, one hundred cubits, eastward and northward.[h]

20 And the gate of the outer court that looked in a northern direction, he measured after its length, and its breadth.

21 And its cells were three on this side and three on that side; and its door-posts and its porches were after the measure of the first gate: fifty cubits was its length,[i] and its breadth five and twenty cubits.

22 And its windows, and its porches,[k] and their palm-shaped capitals, were after the measure of the gate that looked in an eastern direction: and by seven steps did they go up unto it, and to its porches which[a] were before them.

23 And the gates of the inner court were opposite the gates on the north, and on the east: and he measured from gate to gate one hundred cubits.

24 After that he led me forth to the south side, and behold there was a gate on the south side: and he measured its door-posts and its porches after these measures.

25 And there were windows in it and in its porches all round about, like the other windows: it was fifty cubits in length, and in breadth five and twenty cubits.

26 And by seven steps was the ascent to it, and to its porches which were before them; and it had palm-shaped capitals, one on this side, and another on that side, upon its door-posts.

27 And there was a gate in the inner court on the south side: and he measured from gate to gate on the south side one hundred cubits.

28 And he brought me to the inner court by the south gate; and he measured the south gate after these measures;

29 And its cells, and its door-posts, and its porches were after these measures; and there were windows in it and in its porches all round about: it was fifty cubits in length, and in breadth five and twenty cubits.

30 And arched passages[b] were all round about, five and twenty cubits long, and five cubits broad.

31 And its porches were toward the outer court; and palm-shaped capitals were upon its door-posts: and its ascent was by eight steps.

32 And he brought me into the inner court on the east side; and he measured the gate after these measures;

33 And its cells and its door-posts, and its porches, were according to these measures; and there were windows in it and in its porches all round about: its length was fifty cubits, and its breadth five and twenty cubits.

34 And its porches were toward the outward court; and palm-shaped capitals were upon its door-posts, on this side, and on that side: and by eight steps was the ascent to it.

35 And he brought me to the north gate, and he measured it after these measures;

36 Its cells, its door-posts, and its porches; and the windows in it were all round about: its length was fifty cubits, and its breadth five and twenty cubits.

37 And its door-posts were toward the outer court; and palm-shaped capitals were upon its door-posts, on this side, and on that side: and by eight steps was the ascent to it.

38 And there was a chamber with its door by the door-posts of the gates,[c] where they washed off the burnt-offerings.

39 And in the porch of the gate were two tables on this side, and two tables on that side, to slaughter thereon the burnt-offerings and the sin-offerings and the trespass-offerings.

40 And at the side without (the porch), as one went up to the entrance of the north gate, were two tables; and on the other side[d] of the porch of the gate were two tables;

41 Four tables being on this side, and four tables on that side, by the side of the gate,—eight tables, whereupon they slaughtered (the sacrifices).

42 And there were four tables of hewn stone for the burnt-offerings, of a cubit and a half long, and a cubit and a half broad, and one cubit high: whereupon they laid the instruments wherewith they slaughtered the burnt-offerings and the sacrifices.

43 And hooks, a hand long, were fastened within[e] all round about: and on the tables was placed the flesh of the offerings.

44 And without the inner gate were the chambers of the singers in the inner court, which was at the side of the north gate; and their front[f] was toward the south side: one

[a] Rashi, who comments, "and the porch of the gates before the steps, before entering in the main porch, was ascended by steps."

[b] Rashi.

[c] Philippson, "of the gate," i. e. the northern one, near which the burnt-offering had to be killed.

[d] Lit. "which belonged to the porch."

[e] Jonathan; and means, that iron hooks, a hand long, were fixed in the chamber where the sacrifices were slaughtered, to hang them up by. But שפתים is explained by some to mean gutters, perhaps to draw off the blood. Others, "lasts;" and Philippson translates, "and lasts, a hand broad, were fastened toward the inside, all around, as also on the table, for the flesh of the offerings." Redak takes it to mean a sort of frame-work on which the pots, in which the offerings were boiled, were placed.

[f] Philippson, after the Septuagint, "And without the inner gate were two rows of chambers in the inner court; was at the side of the east gate having the front toward the north side.

45 And he spoke unto me, This chamber, the front of which is toward the south, is for the priests who have the charge of the house.

46 And the chamber, the front of which is toward the north, is for the priests who have the charge of the altar: these are the sons of Zadok, who come near, from among the sons of Levi, to the LORD to minister unto him.

47 So he measured the court, in length one hundred cubits, and in breadth one hundred cubits, foursquare: and the altar (stood) before the house.

48 And he brought me to the porch of the house, and measured each door-post of the porch, five cubits on this side, and five cubits on that side: and the breadth of the gate was three cubits on this side, and three cubits on that side.

49 The length of the porch was twenty cubits, and the breadth eleven cubits, together with[a] the steps whereby they went up to it: and there were pillars by the door-posts, one on this side, and another on that side.

CHAPTER XLI.

1 And he brought me to the temple: and he measured the door-posts, six cubits broad on the one side, and six cubits broad on the other side, (as also)[b] the breadth of the tabernacle.

2 And the breadth of the door was ten cubits; and the sides of the door were five cubits on the one side, and five cubits on the other side: and he measured its length, forty cubits, and the breadth, twenty cubits.

3 Then went he inward, and measured the posts of the door, two cubits; and the door was six cubits high;[c] and the breadth of the door, was seven cubits.

4 And he measured its length, twenty cubits; and the breadth, twenty cubits, fronting on the temple: and he said unto me, This is the most holy place.

5 After this he measured the wall of the house, six cubits; and the breadth of every side-chamber was four cubits, all round about the house on every side.

6 And the side-chambers were one over another, three and thirty times;[d] and they entered into the wall which was on the house for the side-chambers all round about, that they might be fastened on, but they were not fastened on the wall of the house.

7 And as one wound upward it became continually wider for the side-chambers; for the row of chambers about the house went more and more upward round about the house; therefore was the breadth of the house greater upward: and so they ascended from the lowest chambers to the highest through the middle ones.

8 And I saw the height of the house all round about: the foundations of the side-chambers were a full rod of six cubits under ground.[e]

9 The thickness of the wall, which was for the side-chambers without, was five cubits, as also the space which was left open by the row of the side-chambers that were on the house.[f]

10 And between the chambers there was a width of twenty cubits round about the house on every side.

11 And the doors of the side-chambers were on the open space, one door was in a northern direction, and another door on the south: and the breadth of the place that was left open was five cubits all round about.

12 Now the building that was before the main wing[g] on the west side was seventy cubits broad; and the wall of the building was the one at the side of the north gate, with its front toward the south, and the other at the south gate, with its front to the north." The variations are marked in italics.

[a] Philippson, after the Septuagint, supplies ten; thus, "and by ten steps they ascended to it."

[b] Zunz, meaning, after measuring the space between the side-posts, he measured the whole front. Rashi, "the breadth of the porch, which was as the length of the temple;" taking האהל "the tent" for האולם "the porch." The phrase is very obscure.

[c] Rashi.

[d] Others, "three rows of thirty each," or ninety.

[e] Rashi. Zunz, "to the wrist;" meaning, a cubit of an arm's length to the wrist.

[f] Rashi, "the chambers did not occupy the whole space of the north and south side, but at the east and west corners there was an open space for the doors of the chambers which communicated afterward one with the other, not having any doors opening outside."

[g] גזרה is here given after Zunz, and is, according to Rashi, synonymous with the temple or main building itself. Others, "upper rooms." Philippson, "off-cut," from גזר, five cubits thick round about, and its length, ninety cubits.

13 So he measured the house, in length one hundred cubits; and the main wing, and the building, with its walls, in length one hundred cubits;

14 Also the breadth in the front of the house, and of the main wing on the east, was one hundred cubits.

15 And he measured the length of the building on the front side of the main wing which was behind it, and its corner-pillars on the one side and on the other side, one hundred cubits; and this included the inner temple, and the porches of the court;

16 The thresholds, and the narrow windows, and the corner-pillars were round about on their three sides: opposite the threshold there was a wainscoting of wood all round about, and so from the ground up to the windows; and the windows were covered.[a]

17 On the part above the door, and as far as the inner house, and the outer (house), was (a wainscoting), and on all the wall round about within and without, by (the same) measure;

18 And it was ornamented with cherubim and palm-trees, a palm-tree being between two cherubim; and every cherub had two faces;

19 So that a human face was toward the palm-tree on the one side, and a young lion's face toward the palm-tree on the other side: it was so made on all the house round about.

20 From the ground to the part above the door were the cherubim and the palm-trees made, and so on the wall of the temple.

21 The temple had four-cornered door-posts, and the front of the holy of holies had the (same) appearance as the appearance (of the other).

22 The altar was of wood,[b] three cubits high, and its length was two cubits; and its corners, and its top-piece, and its walls, were of wood: and he spoke unto me, This is the table that is before the LORD.

23 And the temple and the holy of holies had two doors.

24 And the doors had two leaves (apiece), two turning leaves, two (leaves) for the one door, and two leaves for the other.

25 And there were made on them, on the doors of the temple, cherubim and palm-trees, as they were made upon the walls; and (a covering[c] of) thick wooden planks was upon the front of the porch without.

26 And there were narrow windows and palm-trees on the one side and on the other side, on the sides of the porch, and on the side-chambers of the house, and the (covering of) thick planks.

CHAPTER XLII.

1 And he led me forth into the outer court, on the way to the north side; and he brought me into the (row of) chambers that was opposite the main wing, and which was opposite the building toward the north;

2 On the front side the length (of which) was a hundred cubits, (up to) the north door, while the breadth was fifty cubits.

3 Opposite the twenty cubits which were for the inner court, and opposite the pavement which was for the outer court, was corner-pillar before corner-pillar in the three stories.

4 And before the chambers was a walk of ten cubits in breadth toward the inner house, a way of one cubit (in width); and their doors were toward the north.

5 Now the upper chambers were shorter (for the corner-pillar took away part of the space from them) than the lowest and than the middle chambers of the building.

6 For they were in three stories, but had not pillars like the pillars of the courts: therefore was something taken off the lowest and the middle ones (as one ascended) from the ground.

7 And the wall that was without alongside the chambers, toward the outer court in

"to cut," and supposes it to be a vacant space, and also that seventy should be thirty, as the whole temple-house was one hundred cubits square, leaving therefore only the last measure for this building back of the holy of holies.

[a] Redak, "were covered from above." Philippson, "were so covered by the wainscoting that they could not be seen from below."

[b] Some suppose this to be the altar of incense; but Rashi thinks it was a table, and takes "the corners" to mean the feet, &c.

[c] Zunz. Rashi, however, takes this to be heavy props of wood passing from the porch to the temple wall, to prevent this from bulging outward. Philippson, "a wooden staircase was on the porch without."

front of the chambers, was in its length fifty cubits.

8 For the length of the chambers that were in the outer court was fifty cubits; and lo, (the whole space) in front of the temple was one hundred cubits.

9 And beneath these chambers was the entrance from the east side, as one goeth into them from the outer court.

10 On the breadth of the wall of the court in an eastern direction, before the main wing, and before the building, were chambers.

11 And the way before them was of like appearance as that for the chambers which were on the north side, of the same length and the same breadth: and all their means of egress, and their arrangement, and their doors were of the like manner.

12 And so also were the doors of the chambers that were on the south side, a door being on the head of the way, of the way directly[a] before the wall on the east side, as one entereth into them.

13 And he said unto me, The north chambers and the south chambers which are in front of the main wing,—these are the holy chambers, where the priests that approach unto the LORD shall eat the most holy things: there shall they lay the most holy things, namely, the meat-offering, and the sin-offering, and the trespass-offering; for the place is holy.

14 When the priests enter therein, then shall they not go out of the sanctuary into the outer court; but there shall they lay down their garments wherein they may have ministered; for they are holy: and they shall put on other garments, and shall then approach[b] to (the court) which is for the people.

15 Now when he had finished the measurings of the inner house, he led me forth by the way of the gate which looked in an eastern direction, and measured it all round about.

16 He measured the east side with the measuring-rod, five hundred rods, with the measuring-rod round about.

17 He measured the north side, five hundred rods, with the measuring-rod round about.

18 The south side he measured, five hundred rods, with the measuring-rod.

19 He turned about to the west side, and measured five hundred rods with the measuring-rod.

20 On the four sides did he measure it by the wall that was all round about, five hundred rods in length, and in breadth five hundred, to make a separation between the holy place and the profane.

CHAPTER XLIII.

1 Then did he lead me to the gate, even the gate that was turned in an eastern direction.

2 And, behold, the glory of the God of Israel came from the way of the east; and his voice was like a noise of many waters; and the earth gave light from his glory.

3 And it was like the appearance of the vision which I had seen, yea, like the vision that I had seen when I came to destroy the city;[c] and the visions were like the vision that I had seen by the river Kebar: and I fell upon my face.

4 And the glory of the LORD came into the house by the way of the gate which was turned in an eastern direction.

5 Then did the Spirit take me up, and bring me into the inner court: and, behold, the glory of the LORD filled the house.

6 And I heard him speaking unto me out of the house; and a man was standing alongside of me.

7 And he said unto me, Son of man, (this) is the place of my throne, and the place of the soles of my feet, where I will dwell in the midst of the children of Israel for ever: and the house of Israel shall not defile any more my holy name, neither they, nor their kings, by their lewdness, nor by the carcasses[d] of their kings on their high-places.

8 Inasmuch as they placed their threshold by my threshold, and their door-posts close by my door-posts, and the wall being only between me and them, and they defiled my holy name by their abominations which they committed; so that I made an end of them in my anger.

[b] Jonathan, "and shall then mingle with the people." Rashi, "shall touch the people's garments."

[c] i. e. When he prophesied concerning the destruction. (See above, ix 4, &c.)

[d] Some explain this that the kings had themselves buried near the temple. Zunz, "the carcasses (of the sacrifices) of their kings." Philippson, "the idol-abominations of their kings;" taking פגרי as expressive of the "inanimate," "soulless idols;" and it is well known that even near the temple they worshipped falsehood.

9 Now will they have to put away their lewdness, and the carcasses of their kings, far from me, and I will dwell in the midst of them for ever.

10 ¶ Thou, son of man, tell the house of Israel of the house, that they may be confounded because of their iniquities: and let them measure the outlines.

11 And if they be confounded because of all that they have done: then let them know the form of the house, and its arrangements, and its means of egress, and its entrances, and all its forms, and all its statutes, and all its forms, and all its laws, and write them down before their eyes; that they may observe the whole of its form, and all its statutes, and carry them out.

12 This is the law for the house, Upon the top of the mount shall its whole limit all round about be most holy: behold, this is the law for the house.

13 And these are the measures of the altar in cubits, The cubit is a cubit and a hand-breadth;[a] and the bottom shall[b] be a cubit high, and a cubit broad, and its border on its edge round about shall be a span: and this shall be the outside[c] of the altar.

14 And from the bottom upon the ground up to the lower projection shall be two cubits, and the breadth one cubit; and from the lesser projection up to the greater projection shall be four cubits, and the breadth one cubit.

15 And the upper portion of the altar shall be four cubits; and from the upper surface[d] of the altar and upward shall be the four horns.

16 And the upper surface of the altar shall be twelve cubits long, by twelve broad, square on its four sides.

17 And the projection shall be fourteen cubits in length, by fourteen in breadth on its four sides; and the border round about it shall be half a cubit; and its bottom shall be a cubit round about; and its steps shall look toward the east.

18 And he said unto me, Son of man, thus hath said the Lord Eternal, These are the statutes of the altar on the day when it shall be finished, to offer thereon burnt-offerings, and to sprinkle thereon blood.

19 And thou shalt give to the priests the Levites that are of the seed of Zadok, who approach unto me, saith the Lord Eternal, to minister unto me, a young bullock for a sin-offering.

20 And thou shalt take of his blood, and put it on its four horns, and on the four corners of the projection, and upon the border round about; and thou shalt cleanse it and make an atonement for it.

21 And thou shalt take the bullock of the sin-offering, and some one shall burn him at an appointed place of the house, without the sanctuary.

22 And on the second day shalt thou offer a he-goat without blemish for a sin-offering: and they shall cleanse the altar, as they did cleanse it with the bullock.

23 When thou hast made an end of cleansing it, shalt thou offer a young bullock without blemish, and a ram out of the flock without blemish.

24 And thou shalt bring them near before the LORD, and the priests shall throw salt upon them, and they shall offer them up as a burnt-offering unto the LORD.

25 Seven days shalt thou prepare a goat for a sin-offering every day; and a young bullock, and a ram out of the flock, without blemish shall they prepare.

26 Seven days shall they atone for the altar and purify it; and they shall consecrate the same.[e]

27 And when these days are expired, it shall be, that on the eighth day, and thenceforward, the priests shall prepare upon the altar your burnt-offerings, and your peace-offerings: and I will accept you in favour, saith the Lord Eternal.

[a] i. e. Each cubit here mentioned is a hand longer than the usual measure.

[b] Zunz, "was;" and so in all this passage, using the past where here the past is found.

[c] Lit. "back," i. e. that which stands out the farthest.

[d] "The place of offering."—ARNHEIM. It properly means, "lion of God." The upper division, the whole consisting of four, the bottom two projections and top, is to be four cubits in height, and be a square of twelve by twelve.

[e] Redak, "the priest shall consecrate himself."

CHAPTER XLIV.

1 ¶ And he brought me back by the way of the outer gate of the sanctuary which looked toward the east: and it was locked.

2 Then said the LORD unto me, This gate shall remain locked, it shall not be opened, and no man shall enter in by it; because the LORD, the God of Israel, hath entered[a] in by it, therefore shall it remain locked.

3 As for the prince, being the prince, he shall sit in it to eat bread before the LORD: by the way of the porch of that gate shall he enter, and by the way of the same shall he go out.

4 Then brought he me by the way of the north gate before the house; and I looked, and, behold, the glory of the LORD filled the house of the LORD: and I fell upon my face.

5 And the LORD said unto me, Son of man, direct thy mind, and see with thy eyes, and hear with thy ears all that I am speaking with thee concerning all the ordinances of the house of the LORD, and of all its laws; and direct thy mind to the entrance of the house, with every place of egress of the sanctuary.

6 And thou shalt say to the rebellious, to the house of Israel, Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Ye have done enough with all your abominations, O house of Israel!

7 In your having brought the sons of the stranger, uncircumcised in heart, and uncircumcised in flesh, to be in my sanctuary, to pollute it, even my house, while you were offering my food, the fat and the blood: so that they broke my covenant because of all your abominations.

8 And (because) ye have not kept the charge of my holy things; but ye have set (those unworthy ones) as keepers of my charge in my sanctuary at your own pleasure.[b]

9 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, No son of the stranger, uncircumcised in heart, or uncircumcised in flesh, shall enter into my sanctuary, of all the sons of the stranger that are in the midst of the children of Israel.

10 But as respecteth the Levites that were gone away far from me, when Israel went astray, who went astray away from me, after their idols, they shall surely bear their iniquity;

11 And they shall be in my sanctuary servants, appointed to watch at the gates of the house, and to be servants for the house: these are they that shall slay the burnt-offerings and the sacrifices for the people, and they shall stand before them to do the service for them.

12 Because that they used to serve them before their idols, and have been unto the house of Israel as a stumbling-block of iniquity; therefore have I lifted up my hand against them, saith the Lord Eternal, and they shall bear their iniquity;

13 And they shall not come near unto me, to officiate as priests unto me, nor to come near to any of my holy things, to the most holy things; but they shall bear their shame, yea, for their abominations which they have committed.

14 And I will appoint them to be keepers of the charge of the house, for all the service thereof, and for all that shall be done therein.[c]

15 ¶ But the priests the Levites, the sons of Zadok, that kept the charge of my sanctuary when the children of Israel went astray from me,—these are they that shall come near unto me to minister unto me, and they shall stand before me to offer unto me the fat and the blood, saith the Lord Eternal:

16 These are they that shall enter into my sanctuary, and these shall come near to my table, to minister unto me; and they shall keep my charge.

17 And it shall come to pass, that, when they enter in at the gates of the inner court, they shall clothe themselves with linen garments; and there shall no wool come upon them, when they minister in the gates of the inner court, and within the house.

18 Linen bonnets shall be upon their heads, and linen breeches shall be upon their loins: they shall not gird[d] themselves with any thing that causeth sweat.

19 And when they go forth into the outer court, into the outer court to the people: then

[a] Zunz, "entereth."

[b] Rashi, taking לכם literally "for you," as לרצתכם "according to your thought, will, option, or pleasure."

[c] The prophet indicates in the passage from verse 9 to 14 that the priests who had joined in the idolatry of the people, and "had become the sons of the stranger," through their misdeeds should be degraded from the priesthood, and do only Levitical, but not priestly service.

[d] Rashi, "the law hath forbidden the priests woollen garments, because that causeth the body to sweat."

shall they put off their garments wherein they have ministered, and they shall lay them down in the holy chambers; and they shall put on other garments, and they shall not mingle[a] among the people with their garments.

20 And their heads shall they not shave close, nor suffer their hair to grow long: they shall only crop (the hair of) their heads.

21 And wine shall none of the priests drink, when they enter into the inner court.

22 And a widow, or one that is divorced from her husband shall they not take to themselves as wives; but only virgins of the seed of the house of Israel; but whatever widow it may be, the (common) priests[b] may take.

23 And my people shall they teach the difference between the holy and profane, and that between the unclean and the clean shall they make known unto them.

24 And in a controversy shall they stand up to judge, according to my ordinances shall they decide it: and my laws and my statutes at all my festivals shall they observe, and my sabbaths shall they sanctify.

25 And to a dead person shall they not come to defile themselves; but on father, or on mother, or on son, or on daughter, on brother, or on sister that hath had no husband, may they defile themselves.

26 And after he is become[c] clean,—they shall reckon unto him seven days,—

27 Then shall he on the day that he cometh into the sanctuary, into the inner court, to minister in the sanctuary, offer his sin-offering, saith the Lord Eternal.

28 And it shall be unto them as an inheritance, I am their inheritance: and any possession shall you not give them in Israel, I am their possession.

29 The meat-offering, and the sin-offering, and the trespass-offering—these shall they eat; and every devoted thing in Israel shall belong to them.

30 And the first of all kinds of first-fruits of all, and every kind of heave-offering of every thing of all your heave-offerings, shall belong to the priests; and the first of your dough shall you give to the priest, to cause a blessing to rest on thy house.

31 Any thing that hath died of itself, or that is torn, whether it be fowl or beast, shall the priests not eat.

CHAPTER XLV.

1 ¶ And when ye divide the land by lot for an inheritance, shall ye offer an oblation unto the LORD, as a holy portion of the land, five and twenty thousand rods in length, and in breadth ten thousand. This shall be holy in all its extent round about.

2 Of this there shall be for the sanctuary five hundred (rods) by five hundred, square round about; and fifty cubits as an open space for it round about.

3 And of this measure shalt thou measure, in length five and twenty thousand, and in breadth ten thousand (rods): and in it shall be the sanctuary (and) the holy of holies.

4 The holy portion of the land shall it be, for the priests the ministers of the sanctuary shall it be, who come near to minister unto the LORD; and it shall be unto them a place for houses, and a holy place for the sanctuary.

5 And five and twenty thousand (rods) in length, and ten thousand in breadth, shall also belong unto the Levites, the servants of the house, for themselves, as a possession, with twenty chambers.[d]

6 And as the possession of the city shall ye assign five thousand rods broad, and five and twenty thousand long, alongside the holy oblation: unto the whole house of Israel shall it belong.

7 And the prince shall have that on the one side and on the other side of the holy oblation, and of the possession of the city, in front of the holy oblation, and in front of the possession of the city, on the west side westward, and on the east side eastward; and in length alongside one of the portions, both on the west border and on the east border.

8 As landed property shall it be his pos-

[a] Jonathan. Rashi comments, "Because profane garments are not pure in comparison with the holy garments." Lit. "and they shall not sanctify the people."

[b] Zunz, "And the widow who is a widow of a priest may they take."

[c] After Zunz, who regards this a parenthesis; but Rashi translates after the Talmud, "And after his separation from the dead shall they reckon for him seven days." (See Num. xix. 11.) "And on the day that he first entereth into the sanctuary," &c.

[d] Rashi, "twenty chambers shall belong to the Levites by the sanctuary to watch the house and for lodging, and the remainder of the district shall they employ for their requirements." Zunz.

session in Israel: and my princes shall no more wrong my people; but the land shall they give to the house of Israel according to their tribes.

9 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, Ye have done enough wrong, O princes of Israel: remove violence and robbery, and execute justice and righteousness; take away your exactions[a] from my people, saith the Lord Eternal.

10 Just balances, and a just ephah, and a just bath shall ye have.

11 The ephah and the bath shall contain the same quantity, that the bath may contain the tenth part of a chomer, and the ephah the tenth part of a chomer: after the chomer shall the measure of contents be.

12 And the shekel shall be twenty gerahs: (in pieces of) twenty shekels, five and twenty shekels, fifteen shekels, shall be your maneh.[b]

13 ¶ This is the heave-offering that ye shall offer: The sixth part of an ephah of a chomer of wheat; and ye shall give the sixth part of an ephah of a chomer of barley;

14 And the fixed portion of oil shall be after the bath of oil, the tenth part of a bath out of the cor, ten baths reckoned to the chomer; for ten baths are a chomer;

15 And one lamb out of the flock, out of two hundred, out of the fat pastures[c] of Israel, for meat-offerings, and for burnt-offerings, and for peace-offerings, to make an atonement for them, saith the Lord Eternal.

16 ¶ All the people of the land shall be held bound for this heave-offering for the prince in Israel.

17 And upon the prince shall be the duty to furnish the burnt-offerings, the meat-offerings, and the drink-offerings, on the feasts, and on the new-moon days, and on the sabbaths, on all the festive seasons of the house of Israel: he himself shall prepare the sin-offering, and the meat-offering, and the burnt-offering, and the peace-offerings, to make an atonement in behalf of the house of Israel.

18 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, In the first month, on the first of the month, shalt thou take a young bullock without blemish, and make an expiation for the sanctuary.

19 And the priest shall take some of the blood of the sin-offering, and put it upon the door-post of the house, and upon the four corners of the projection of the altar, and upon the door-post of the gate of the inner court.

20 And so shalt thou do on the seventh day[d] of the month for every one that erreth, and for him that hath sinned unawares:[e] so shall ye atone for the house.

21 In the first month, on the fourteenth[f] day of the month, shall ye have the passover: a feast of seven days; unleavened bread shall be eaten.

22 And the prince shall prepare on that day in behalf of himself and in behalf of all the people of the land a bullock for a sin-offering.

23 And on the seven days of the feast shall he prepare a burnt-offering to the Lord, seven bullocks and seven rams without blemish on every day of the seven days; and for a sin-offering a he-goat on every day.

24 And as a meat-offering an ephah for a bullock, and an ephah for a ram shall he prepare, and a hin of oil for each ephah.

25 In the seventh month, on the fifteenth day of the month, on the feast, shall he prepare the like during the seven days, both the sin-offering, as also the burnt-offering, and the meat-offering, and the oil.

CHAPTER XLVI.

1 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, The gate of the inner court that looketh toward the east shall remain locked the six working days; but on the sabbath day shall it be opened, and on the new-moon day shall it be opened.

2 And the prince shall enter by the way

[a] Lit. "expulsions," i. e. the unjust dispossession of the people from their landed property.

[b] The maneh was thus fixed at sixty shekels divided into fourths, five twelfths, and thirds of a maneh.

[c] Jonathan and Redak, "the fatted." Rashi, "what is permitted to Israel."

[d] Rashi takes the festival here mentioned as being merely that of the consecration, to endure seven days; but others suppose that the prophet here institutes a new annual celebration of the first and the seventh days of the first month, which are now only ordinary days.

[e] Philippson, "through enticement." Zunz, "seduction."

[f] This either means that on this day the Passover sacrifice shall be slain, or that at its termination the festival is to begin at evening.

of the porch of the gate, from without, and shall stand by the door-post of the gate, and the priests shall prepare his burnt-offering and his peace-offerings, and he shall bow himself down at the threshold of the gate, and he shall then go forth; but the gate shall not be locked until the evening.

3 And the people of the land shall bow themselves down at the door of this same gate on the sabbaths and on the new-moons before the LORD.

4 And the burnt-offering which the prince is to offer unto the LORD, shall be on the sabbath-day six sheep without blemish, and a ram without blemish;

5 And as a meat-offering an ephah for the ram, and for the sheep a meat-offering as his hand[a] may be able to give, and a hin of oil for every ephah.

6 And on the day of the new moon, a young bullock without blemish, and six sheep and a ram; without blemish shall they be.

7 And an ephah for the bullock, and an ephah for the ram, shall he prepare as a meat-offering, and for the sheep according as his means may reach, and a hin of oil for every ephah.

8 And when the prince doth enter, he shall go in by the way of the porch of the gate, and by the same way shall he go forth.

9 But when the people of the land come before the LORD on the appointed feasts, he that entereth in by the way of the north gate to bow himself down shall go out by the way of the south gate; and he that entereth by the way of the south gate shall go out by the way of the north gate: he shall not return by the way of the gate whereby he came in; but by that opposite[b] to him shall he go out.

10 And as for the prince—in the midst of them, when they go in, shall he go in; and when they go out, shall they go out (together).

11 And on the feasts and on the appointed festivals shall the meat-offering be an ephah for each bullock, and an ephah for each ram, and for the sheep as his hand may be able to give, and a hin of oil for every ephah.

12 And when the prince doth prepare as a voluntary gift a burnt-offering, or a peace-offering, as a voluntary gift unto the LORD: then shall be opened for him the gate that looketh toward the east, and he shall prepare his burnt-offering and his peace-offering, as he usually doth on the sabbath-day; and he shall go out, and the gate shall be locked after his going out.

13 And a sheep of the first year without blemish shalt thou prepare as a burnt-offering every day unto the LORD: morning by morning shalt thou prepare it.

14 And as a meat-offering shalt thou prepare with it, morning by morning, the sixth part of an ephah, and the third of a hin of oil, to mingle[c] with the fine flour—a meat-offering unto the LORD, as ordinances for ever continually.

15 Thus shall they prepare the sheep, and the meat-offering, and the oil, morning by morning, as a continual burnt-offering.

16 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, If the prince make a gift unto any one of his sons, it is his inheritance, it shall belong to his sons: it shall be their possession as their inheritance.

17 But if he make a gift of his inheritance to one of his servants: then shall it remain his to the year of freedom, when it shall return to the prince; but his inheritance shall only remain for his sons.[d]

18 But the prince shall not take any thing from the inheritance of the people, to wrong[e] them out of their possession: out of his own possession can he give an inheritance to his sons; in order that not one of my people be deprived[f] of his possession.

19 ¶ And then he brought me through the entry, which was at the side of the gate, into the holy chambers for the priests, which looked toward the north: and, behold, there was a place by the back wall on the west side.

20 And he said unto me, This is the place

[a] Lit. "a meat-offering the gift of his hand."
[b] Philippson, "straight forward shall he go out."
[c] Others, "to moisten;" but we have followed one opinion quoted by Rashi.
[d] Zunz, "but his property (given to) his sons shall remain theirs."
[e] Philippson, "to drive them off."
[f] Lit. "scattered."

where the priests shall boil the trespass-offering and the sin-offering, where (also) they shall bake the meat-offering; so as not to carry the same out into the outer court, to mingle with the people.

21 Then did he lead me forth into the outer court, and caused me to pass along the four corners of the court; and, behold, in every corner of the court there was a court.[a]

22 In the four corners of the court there were uncovered[b] courts of forty cubits in length and thirty in breadth: there was one measure for all these four in the corners.

23 And there was a shelf of masonry round about in them, round about all these four, and it was furnished with hearths for boiling under the shelves round about.

24 Then said he unto me, These are the places of those that boil, where the servants of the house shall boil the sacrifice of the people.

CHAPTER XLVII.

1 And he brought me back again unto the door of the house: and, behold, water was issuing out from under the threshold of the house eastward; for the front of the house stood toward the east; and the water came down from under (the threshold), from the right side of the house, to the south of the altar.

2 Then did he bring me out by the way of the gate northward, and led me about the way without unto the outer gate by the way that looked eastward: and, behold, the water was running on the right side.

3 When the man went forth eastward, having the measuring-line in his hand, he measured a thousand cubits, and he led me through the water, the water reaching to the ankles.

4 Again he measured a thousand (cubits), and led me through the water, the water reaching to the knees. Again he measured a thousand (cubits), and led me through, the water reaching to the loins.

5 And he measured again a thousand (cubits), it being a stream that I could not wade through; for the water was increased, being water fit to swim in, a stream that could not be waded through.

6 And he said unto me, Son of man, hast thou seen this? Then did he lead me, and caused me to return to the bank of the stream.

7 Now when I returned, behold, there were at the banks of the stream very many trees, on the one side and on the other.

8 Then said he unto me, These waters issue out toward the eastern district, and go down into the plain, and fall into the sea, (the waters) being[c] carried forth into the sea, so that the waters shall be healed.

9 And it shall come to pass, that every thing that liveth, which moveth, whithersoever the double-stream[d] shall come, shall live: and the fish shall be (therein) in great abundance; for when this water shall have come thither, (the waters of the sea) shall be healed, and every thing shall live whither the stream cometh.

10 And it shall come to pass, that the fishers shall stand by it; from 'En-gedi even unto 'En-'eglayim, there shall be places for the spreading out of nets: after their various kinds shall the fish thereof be, like the fish of the great sea, exceedingly many.

11 But its swamps and its lagoons shall not be healed, for (the production of) salt are they destined.

12 And by the stream upon its banks, on this side and on that side, shall grow up all kinds of trees for food, the leaves of which shall not fade, and the fruit of which shall not come to an end, every month shall they bring forth new ripe fruit; because its water is that which issueth out of the sanctuary;

[a] Heb. "a court in a corner of a court; and a court in a corner of a court."

[b] After Mishnah Middoth, ii. § 5; these small courts in the corners of the outer main court were spaced off with walls, and had no roofs; a row of hearths went all around them, on which the sacrifices of a less degree of sanctity were boiled.

[c] Philippson; but Zunz, "into the sea of the destroyed (those taken out of life); i. e. the men of Sodom and vicinity. Rashi, "into the ocean which is separated from the habitable land."

[d] Zunz, after Rashi, who supposes that the stream will divide itself into many branches, one falling in the lake of Tiberias, one in the Dead Sea, and another in the Mediterranean. Philippson, simply, "the strong stream." The healing of the water spoken of refers to the Dead Sea, where no animal can now live, as even fish carried down by the Jordan immediately perish.

and their fruit shall serve for food, and their leaves for remedies.

13 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord Eternal, This shall be the boundary, whereby ye shall divide out the land unto the twelve tribes of Israel: Joseph shall have two portions.

14 And ye shall inherit it, every one like the other, (the land) concerning which I lifted up my hand to give it unto your fathers: and this land shall fall unto you for an inheritance.

15 And this shall be the boundary of the land: On the north side, from the great sea, the road to Chethlon, as far as to Zedad;

16 Chamath, Berothah, Sibrayim, which is between the boundary of Damascus and the boundary of Chamath; Chazar-hattichon, which is by the boundary of Chavran.[a]

17 And the boundary shall be from the sea to Chazar-'enon, the boundary of Damascus, and the northern part[b] on the north, and the boundary of Chamath. And this is the north side.

18 And the east side shall ye measure between Chavran and Damascus (on the one side), and between Gil'ad and the land of Israel (on the other side) by the Jordan, from the (north) boundary unto the east sea. And this is the east side.

19 And the south side, on the south, from Thamar even to the waters of contention at Kadesh, toward the brook (flowing) into the Great Sea. And this is the south side on the south.

20 And the west side shall be the great sea from the (southern) boundary, as far as straight up to Chamath. This is the west side.

21 And ye shall divide this land among yourselves according to the tribes of Israel.

22 And it shall come to pass, that ye shall divide it by lot for an inheritance among yourselves, and to the strangers that sojourn in the midst of you, who shall have begotten children in the midst of you; and they shall be unto you as the native born among the children of Israel: with you shall they obtain an inheritance in the midst of the tribes of Israel.

23 And it shall come to pass, that in whatever tribe the stranger sojourneth, there shall ye give him his inheritance, saith the Lord Eternal.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

1 ¶ Now these are the names of the tribes: At the edge, on the north side, along the road on the way to Chethlon, as far as Chamath, Chazar-'enan, the boundary of Damascus northward, alongside of Chamath, there shall be from the east side to the west for Dan one portion.

2 And by the boundary of Dan, from the east side unto the west side, for Asher one portion.

3 And by the boundary of Asher, from the east side even unto the west side, for Naphtali one portion.

4 And by the boundary of Naphtali, from the east side unto the west side, for Menasseh one portion.

5 And by the boundary of Menasseh, from the east side unto the west side, for Ephraim one portion.

6 And by the boundary of Ephraim, from the east side even unto the west side, for Reüben one portion.

7 And by the boundary of Reüben, from the east side unto the west side, for Judah one portion.

8 And by the boundary of Judah, from the east side unto the west side, shall be the oblation which ye shall set aside of five and twenty thousand rods in breadth, and in length as one of the other parts, from the east side unto the west side: and the sanctuary shall be in the midst of it.

9 The oblation that ye shall set aside unto the Lord shall be in length five and twenty thousand (rods), and in breadth ten thousand.

10 And to these shall belong the holy oblation,—namely to the priests, toward the north, five and twenty thousand rods (in length), and on the west ten thousand in breadth, and on the east ten thousand in breadth, and on the south five and twenty thousand in length: and the sanctuary of the Lord shall be in the midst of it.

[a] i. e. Hauran, a district in the north-east of Palestine, afterward Auranitis.

[b] Zunz renders צפון "Zaphon," as though it were the name of a place; but it may also, as rendered here, simply denote the well-defined north boundary-line spoken of by Moses.

11 Unto the priests, that are sanctified,[a] of the sons of Zadok, who have kept my charge, who went not astray when the children of Israel went astray, as the Levites went astray.

12 To them shall thus belong the portion set aside of the oblation of the land as a most holy thing by the boundary of the Levites.

13 And the Levites shall have alongside the boundary of the priests five and twenty thousand rods in length, and in breadth ten thousand; the whole in length five and twenty thousand, and in breadth ten thousand.

14 But they shall not sell aught thereof, or exchange, or alienate this first portion of the land; for it is holy unto the LORD.

15 And the five thousand rods, that are left in the breadth, with a length[b] of five and twenty thousand, shall be an unconsecrated land for the city, for dwelling, and for an open space: and the city shall be in the midst thereof.[c]

16 And these shall be its measures: The north side four thousand and five hundred (rods), and the south side four thousand and five hundred, and on the east side four thousand and five hundred, and the west side four thousand and five hundred.

17 And the open space of the city shall be toward the north two hundred and fifty (rods), and toward the south two hundred and fifty, and toward the east two hundred and fifty, and toward the west two hundred and fifty.

18 And the produce of the residue in length alongside the holy oblation ten thousand rods eastward, and ten thousand westward, that which is alongside the holy oblation, shall be for food unto the labourers[d] of the city.

19 And the labourers of the city, men taken out of all the tribes of Israel, shall till[e] it.

20 All the oblation, five and twenty thousand (rods) by five and twenty thousand square, shall ye set apart as the holy oblation, with the possession[f] of the city.

21 And the residue shall belong to the prince, on the one side and on the other of the holy oblation, and of the possession of the city, alongside of the five and twenty thousand of the oblation toward the eastern boundary, and westward alongside the five and twenty thousand toward the western boundary, alongside the portions (of the tribes); for the prince (shall it be): and so shall be the holy oblation; and the sanctuary of the house shall be in the midst thereof.

22 And both the possession of the Levites, and the possession of the city, shall be in the midst of that which belongeth to the prince: between the boundary of Judah and the boundary of Benjamin, shall be for the prince.

23 As for the rest of the tribes, from the east side unto the west side, shall be for Benjamin one portion.

24 And by the boundary of Benjamin, from the east side unto the west side, for Simeon one portion.

25 And by the boundary of Simeon, from the east side unto the west side, for Issachar one portion.

26 And by the boundary of Issachar, from the east side unto the west side, for Zebulun one portion.

27 And by the boundary of Zebulun, from the east side unto the west side, for Gad one portion.

[a] Jonathan; but Rashi supplies before המקדש the word חלק "the sanctified portion shall belong to the priests of the sons of Zadok."

[b] Rashi. Lit. "in front."

[c] The holy oblation of 25,000 square rods, or nearly fifty square miles, was divided into three parts from north to south; a portion on the north of 10,000 rods in width, and 25,000 in length, for the priests, in the midst of which was the sanctuary or temple, surrounded by a wall 500 rods square; next to this another portion of the same dimensions for the Levites, (v. 13, 14.); and on the south another portion of the same length, but only 5000 rods in breadth, for the city, (v. 15). The city was situated in the midst of this portion, being 4500 rods, or about nine miles square, having an open space of 250 rods, or about half a mile, on each side, (v. 17,) leaving 10,000 rods, or nearly 10 miles on the east side, and the same on the west side, for the profit of those who serve the city out of all the tribes, (v. 18, 19.) On the east and west sides of this square of 25,000 rods, is the portion of the prince; each of which, estimating the breadth of the land at 150 miles, would form a square of 50 miles.

[d] Who these labourers or servants are is not very apparent. Rashi thinks they are a sort of Gib'onites, hewers of wood and drawers of water; Redak, those who are in Jerusalem, as representatives of all the tribes; but Philippson, soldiers, watchmen, and others connected with the public functions of government.

[e] Zunz, "And as labourers in the city shall people taken out of all the tribes of Israel perform service."

[f] Rashi, "circumference."

28 And by the boundary of Gad, on the southern side toward the south, shall be the boundary from Thamar unto the waters of contention of Kadesh, unto the brook by the Great Sea.

29 This is the land which ye shall divide by lot for an inheritance to the tribes of Israel, and these are their allotted divisions, saith the Lord Eternal.

30 ¶ And these are the outlines[a] of the city: On the north side, four hundred and four thousand rods, by the measure.

31 And of the gates of the city, being after the names of the tribes of Israel, shall be three gates on the north: the gate of Reüben one, the gate of Judah one, the gate of Levi one.

32 And on the east side, five hundred and four thousand rods, with three gates: namely, the gate of Joseph one, the gate of Benjamin one, the gate of Dan one.

33 And the south side, five hundred and four thousand rods, by the measure, with three gates: the gate of Simeon one, the gate of Issachar one, the gate of Zebulun one.

34 The west side, five hundred and four thousand rods, with their three gates: the gate of Gad one, the gate of Asher one, the gate of Naphtali one.

35 All around it shall be eighteen thousand rods: and the name of the city shall be from that day "The LORD is there."[b]

[a] Rashi, "gates," or the means of egress; literally, "the goings out."

[b] An appellation signifying the constant presence of God's glory in the renewed sanctuary in the never to be destroyed city; so do Isaiah (lx. 14) and Jeremiah (xxxiii. 16) apply new names to Jerusalem.

THE

TWELVE MINOR PROPHETS,

תרי עשר.

THE PROPHECY OF HOSEA,

נבואת הושׁע.

CHAPTER I.

1 ¶ The word of the Lord that came unto Hosea[a] the son of Beëri, in the days of 'Uzziyah, Jotham, Achaz, (and) Hezekiah, the kings of Judah, and in the days of Jerobo'am the son of Joäsh the king of Israel.

2 The beginning of the word of the Lord by Hosea was, that the Lord said to Hosea, Go, take unto thee a wife of prostitution[b] and children of prostitution; for the (inhabitants of the) land go far astray, departing from the Lord.

3 So he went and took Gomer the daughter of Diblayim, and she conceived and bore him a son.

4 And the Lord said unto him, Call his name Yizre'el;[c] for but yet a little while, when I will visit the blood of Yizre'el[d] upon the house of Jehu, and I will cause to cease the kingdom of the house of Israel.

5 And it shall come to pass on that day, that I will break the bow of Israel in the valley of Yizre'el.

6 And she conceived again, and bore a daughter: and he said unto him, Call her name Lo-ruchamah [Not finding mercy]; for I will not farther have any more mercy upon the house of Israel; but I will give them their full recompense.[e]

7 But upon the house of Judah will I have mercy, and I will save them through the Lord their God, and I will not save them by the bow, or by the sword, or by battle, by horses, or by horsemen.

8 Now when she had weaned Lo-ruchamah, she conceived, and bore a son.

9 Then said he, Call his name Lo-'ammi [Not my people]; for ye are not my people, and I will indeed not be unto you (a God).

CHAPTER II.[f]

1 ¶ Yet shall the number of the children of Israel (once) be like the sand of the sea, which cannot be measured nor numbered; and it shall come to pass, that instead that people say of them, Ye are not my people

[a] Correctly, Hoshea.

[b] Jonathan explains this allegorically, "prophesy against the inhabitants of the city which worshippeth idols who yet add to their sin." Aben Ezra and Rambam regard the whole as a vision. Others, however, take it literally. "The children of prostitution," however, only indicates those born of a woman of bad reputation, although at the time they saw the light she was a lawful wife, and they were born in wedlock. But whether a vision or actual occurrence, the prophet was to prefigurate thereby first the rejection, and then the reësponsal of Israel to God.

[c] After the city of the name where some of the kings of Israel resided and committed their crimes. Jonathan renders the name, "driving out," taking it literally, "God will scatter."

[d] Jonathan, "the blood of the house of Achab, whom Jehu slew at Yizre'el, because they had served Ba'al, where he afterward went and worshipped the calves in Beth-el, wherefore I regard it as innocent blood against the house of Jehu."

[e] Rashi. Jonathan, "but if they repent, I will forgive them." Aben Ezra, "I will carry them away." Redak, "I will bring unto them the enemy."

[f] In the English version, chapter ii. commences at verse 3.

[Lo-'ammi], shall they call them, The sons of the living God.

2 Then shall the children of Judah and the children of Israel be gathered together, and they will appoint for themselves one head, and they shall go up out of the land; for great shall be the day of Yizre'el.[a]

3 Call ye your brothers, 'Ammi [my people]; and your sisters, Ruchamah [That hath obtained mercy].

4 Contend with your mother, contend; for she is not my wife, and I am not her husband; but let her put away her prostitution from her face, and her adulteries from between her breasts:

5 Lest I strip her naked, and set her, as on the day that she was born, and make her as a wilderness, and render her like a dry land, and let her die with thirst.

6 And upon her children will I not have mercy; for they are children of prostitution;

7 For their mother hath played the harlot; she that conceived them hath done shamefully; for she said, I will go after my lovers, that give me my bread and my water, my wool and my flax, my oil and my drink.

8 Therefore, behold, I will hedge up thy way with thorns, and I will close it up with a fence, that she shall not find her paths.

9 And she will make pursuit after her lovers, but she shall not overtake them; and she will seek them, but shall not find them: then will she say, I will go and return to my first husband; for it was better with me then than now.

10 But she indeed did not acknowledge, that it was I that had given her the corn, and the wine, and the oil, and multiplied for her silver and gold, which they devoted for Ba'al.

11 Therefore will I turn back,[b] and take away my corn in its time, and my wine in its season, and I will snatch away my wool and my flax, (given) to cover her nakedness.

12 And now will I lay open her disgrace before the eyes of her lovers, and no man shall deliver her out of my hand.

13 And I will cause to cease all her mirth, her festival, her new-moon, and her sabbath, and all her appointed feasts.

14 And I will make desolate her vine and her fig-tree, whereof she hath said, These are my reward which my lovers have given me: and I will change them into a forest, and the beasts of the field shall devour them.

15 And I will visit upon her the days of the Be'alim, to which she used to burn incense, when she decked herself with her earrings and her jewels, and went after her lovers, and me she forgot, saith the LORD.

16 Therefore, behold, will I allure her, and lead her forth into the wilderness, and I will speak comfortingly unto her heart.

17 And I will give her (again) her vineyards from there, and the valley of 'Achor [sorrow][c] as an entrance for hope: and she shall sing there, as in the days of her youth, and as on the day of her coming up out of the land of Egypt.

18 ¶ And it shall happen at that day, saith the LORD, that thou shalt call me Ishi[d] [my husband], and shalt not call me any more Ba'ali [my lord].

19 For I will remove the names of the Be'alim out of her mouth, and they shall no more be mentioned by their name.

20 And I will make for them a covenant on that day with the beasts of the field, and with the fowls of the heaven, and with the creeping things of the ground: and bow, and sword, and war I will break away out of the land, and I will cause them to lie down in safety.

21 And I will betroth thee unto me for ever: yea, I will betroth thee unto me in righteousness, and in justice, and in loving-kindness, and in mercy.

22 And I will betroth thee unto me in faithfulness; and thou shalt know the LORD.

23 ¶ And it shall come to pass on that day, that I will answer prayer, saith the LORD, I will answer the heavens, and they shall answer[e] the earth;

[a] Johlson, "when God soweth."

[b] Johlson, "will I resume my corn," &c.

[c] Rashi, "the depth of the exile, where they are now grieved, will I give her as a door for hope, the beginning of hope; because out of the midst of these troubles will she take to heart to return unto me."

[d] אִישִׁי ish. "husband," בַּעְלִי ba'al, "master," also alluding to the names of the various idols of the West Asiatics, which shall never be worshipped any more.

[e] i. e. As though the heavens were to ask of God that they might give rain, in answer to the petition of the earth, &c. Rashi here explains Yizre'el "the children of the exile, who were scattered but are now returned."

24 And the earth shall answer the corn, and the wine, and the oil; and they shall answer Yizre'el.

25 And I will sow her for me in the land; and I will have mercy upon "Her that had not obtained mercy" [Lo-ruchamah]; and I will say to those who were "Not my people" [Lo-'ammi], Thou art my people: and they shall say, Thou art my God.

CHAPTER III.

1 ¶ Then said the LORD unto me, Go once more, love a woman beloved of her husband, yet committing adultery; like the love of the LORD toward the children of Israel, who turn themselves after other gods, and love flagons of wine.[a]

2 So I bought me such a one for fifteen pieces of silver, and for a chomer of barley, and half a chomer[b] of barley.

3 And I said unto her, Many days shalt thou abide (true) for me: thou shalt not play the harlot, and thou shalt not belong to any man, and so will I also be toward thee.[c]

4 For many days shall the children of Israel abide without a king, and without a prince, and without a sacrifice, and without a standing image, and without an ephod and teraphim.[d]

5 After that will the children of Israel return, and seek for the LORD their God and David their king; and fearing will they hasten to the LORD and to his goodness in the latter days.

CHAPTER IV.

1 ¶ Hear the word of the LORD, ye children of Israel; for the LORD hath a controversy with the inhabitants of the land; because there is no truth, nor kindness, nor knowledge of God in the land.

2 There is false swearing, and lying, and murdering, and stealing, and committing adultery: they break the bounds, and blood toucheth on blood.[e]

3 Therefore shall the land mourn, and every one that dwelleth therein shall languish, with the beasts of the field, and with the fowls of the heaven: yea, also the fishes of the sea shall perish.

4 Yet let no man strive, let no man reprove another: and thy people are contentious equally with the priest.[f]

5 Therefore shalt thou stumble in the daytime, and the prophet also shall stumble with[g] thee in the night; and I will destroy thy mother.[h]

6 My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge; because thou hast rejected knowledge, so will I also reject thee, that thou shalt not be a priest to me; and as thou hast forgotten the law of thy God, so will I myself also forget thy children.

7 The more they increased, the more did they sin against me: therefore will I change their glory into shame.

8 The sin-offering of my people do they eat, and for their iniquity doth the soul of each one of them long.[i]

9 Therefore shall the same befall both people and priest: and I will punish every one of them for his ways, and recompense every one for his doings.

10 And they will eat, and shall not be satisfied; they will commit lewdness, and they shall not increase; because the LORD have they forsaken (not) keeping (his law).

11 Lewdness and wine and new wine take away the heart.[k]

[a] Philippson, after the Septuagint, "cakes of raisins," which are said to have been frequently used at idolatrous ceremonies.

[b] Heb. "lethech."

[c] After Aben Ezra and Redak, taking אַף as belonging also to the last part of the sentence; but Jonathan, "And I also will in future have mercy upon you."

[d] The prophet describes here exactly our present state, as it has also been for many centuries—neither altar of God nor idolatry, no consulting by the true priests nor by idols: while we still adhere to the LORD notwithstanding our sins.

[e] i. e. The blood of one murdered person touches that of another. Others, however, "they heap one blood-guiltiness on the other."

[f] Philippson, "both thy people and the priests are opponents (of God)." Zunz, "for both thy people and the priest are deserving blame." Rashi, and after him Johlson, "thy people contend with the priests." Jonathan, "with their teacher." Redak, "and now thy people can reprove the priest, who is as bad as they are." Others, "like Korah, who contended about the priesthood."

[g] Jonathan, "the prophets that are with thee."

[h] i. e. The entire people, as they shall be scattered.

[i] i. e. They care nothing how much wrong be done, so that they only get sacrifices brought to the temple as their perquisites.

[k] Meaning, idolatry and drunkenness, with the indulgence of the passions, deprive Israel of their reason; true wisdom being only found in obedience to God.

EZEKIEL BY THE RIVER KEBAR

12 My people ask counsel of their stick of wood, and their staff shall tell them (the future); for the spirit of lewdness hath caused them to err, and they are gone astray unfaithful to their God.

13 Upon the tops of the mountains do they sacrifice, and upon the hills burn they incense, under oaks and poplars and terebinths, because their shadow is good: therefore will your daughters play the harlot, and your daughters-in-law will commit adultery.

14 I cannot inflict punishment on your daughters when they play the harlot, nor on your daughters-in-law when they commit adultery; for they themselves associate with lewd women, and with harlots do they sacrifice: and so doth the people that doth not understand stumble.[a]

15 Yet though thou play the harlot, O Israel, let not Judah offend: and come not ye unto Gilgal,[b] nor go ye up to Beth-aven, nor swear, As the LORD liveth.

16 For like an untamable cow is Israel disobedient: now would the LORD have fed them as a sheep in a wide pasture.[c]

17 Ephraim is bound to idols: let him alone.

18 Their drinking bout will come to an end: while they are so often guilty of lewdness, their rulers love, prepare themselves but shame.

19 The wind seizeth fast on them with its wings, and they shall be ashamed because of their sacrifices.

CHAPTER V.

1 ¶ Hear this, O ye priests; and listen well, O ye house of Israel; and give ye ear, O house of the king; for the punishment threateneth[d] you; because ye have been a snare on Mizpah, and a net spread out upon Thabor.

2 And for murdering they who had rebelled (against God) concealed themselves[e] in deep places; but I will inflict correction on them all.

3 I well know Ephraim, and Israel is not hidden from me; for now, O Ephraim, hast thou played the harlot, (and) Israel is defiled.

4 Their doings will not permit them to return unto their God; for the spirit of lewdness is in their bosom, and the LORD they have not known.

5 Therefore shall the pride of Israel be humbled before his face: and Israel and Ephraim shall stumble in their iniquity; Judah also shall stumble with them.

6 With their flocks[f] and with their herds will they go to seek the LORD; but they shall not find him: he hath withdrawn himself from them.

7 Against the LORD have they dealt treacherously; for strange children have they begotten: now shall one month devour them together with their possessions.

8 ¶ Blow ye the cornet in Gib'ah, the trumpet in Ramah: blow the alarm at Beth-aven, (The enemy is) after thee, O Benjamin.

9 Ephraim shall be made desolate on the day of chastisement: among the tribes of Israel had I made known that which is true.

10 The princes of Judah were like those that remove the landmark: my wrath, therefore, will I pour out upon them like water.

11 Oppressed is Ephraim, broken through punishment; because he willingly walked after the commandment (of false prophets).[g]

12 But like the moth became I unto Ephraim, and like rottenness to the house of Judah.[h]

13 Then saw Ephraim his sickness, and Judah his wound, and Ephraim went to Asshur, and (the other) sent to the king that should contend [Jareb]; but he will never be able to heal you, nor remove from you your wound.

14 For I am as a lion unto Ephraim, and

[a] Redak. Rashi, "shall falter and meet its punishment." Septuagint and Aben Ezra, "lose its reason."

[b] i. e. The people of Judah are warned not to go to the places where the golden calves are worshipped. Beth-aven, "the house of wickedness," instead of Beth-el, "the house of God." And even to swear by the LORD with the idolaters is prohibited, because they swore falsely. (Jer. v. 2.)

[c] After Redak, meaning, had they been obedient, God would have shown them much goodness. Rashi, however, "Now will the LORD feed them sparingly, like a sheep that hath to pick up its food in a large pasture where little groweth."

[d] Rashi. Jonathan, "for yours it was to know the law, but," &c.

[e] Aben Ezra supplies, "their nets," instead of "themselves."

[f] Rashi explains, "with their sacrifices."

[g] Rashi.

[h] "The worm that eateth the tree and grindeth it up." —RASHI.

as a young lion to the house of Judah: I, even I myself will tear in pieces and go away; I will bear away, and none shall deliver.

15 I will go (from here, and) return to my place, till they acknowledge their guilt, and seek my presence: in their affliction will they seek[a] for me.

CHAPTER VI.

1 "Come, and let us return unto the LORD; for he hath torn, and he will heal us: he hath smitten, and he will bind up our wounds.

2 He will revive us after two days: on the third day he will raise us up, and we shall live in his presence.

3 And let us feel it, that we may strive to know the LORD; bright as the morning-dawn is his rising; and he will come as the rain unto us, as the latter rain that maketh fruitful the earth."

4 What shall I do unto thee, O Ephraim? what shall I do unto thee, O Judah? for your piety is as a morning cloud, and as the early dew that passeth away.

5 Therefore did I hew (them) down by means of the prophets; I slew them by the words of my mouth: and thy punishments[b] go forth like the light.

6 For piety I desired, and not sacrifice; and the knowledge of God, more than burnt-offerings.

7 But they, like an ordinary man, have transgressed the covenant: there[c] have they dealt treacherously against me.

8 Gil'ad is become a city of workers of wickedness, is full of traces[d] of blood.

9 And as troops that lie in wait for a man, so is the band of priests, they murder on the way in unison;[e] for they commit scandalous deeds.

10 On the house of Israel have I seen a horrible thing: there is lewdness in Ephraim, Israel is become defiled.

11 Also for thee, O Judah, will a harvest be prepared,[f] when I bring back the captivity of my people.

CHAPTER VII.

1 ¶ Should I desire to heal Israel, then would the iniquity of Ephraim and the wickedness of Samaria be laid open; for they commit falsehood; and the thief entereth (secretly), and the troop of robbers is spread abroad without.

2 And they never think in their own heart that I remember all their wickedness: though now their own doings are all round about them; before my face are they present.

3 With their wickedness they make the king glad, and with their lies the princes.

4 They are all adulterers, as an oven well heated by the baker: (when) he that stirreth (the fire) resteth awhile from kneading the dough, until it be leavened.

5 On the day of our king's (entering on his rule) the princes are made sick with the fumes of wine: (the king)[g] joineth his hand with scorners.

6 For they make ready their heart for their tricky deeds, like the oven, the baker whereof sleepeth all the night, while in the morning it gloweth as a flaming fire.[h]

7 They are all hot as an oven, and they devour their judges; all their kings are fallen: there is none among them that calleth unto me.

8 Ephraim mixeth himself indeed among the nations: Ephraim is a cake not turned.[i]

9 Strangers devour his strength, and he knoweth it not: yea, gray hairs are sprinkled about on his (head), yet he knoweth not.

10 And humbled was the pride of Israel

[a] Jonathan, "will they desire my fear."

[b] Jonathan, "my decree (i. e. over thee) goeth forth like the light." Rashi, however, "how could I favour you against the punishment?"

[c] i. e. In their good land given them by God.

[d] As though it were marked with the heels besmeared with the fresh blood through which they walked. Rashi, freely, "full of those who lie in wait to murder."

[e] Others, "on the road to Shechem (a city of refuge) do they commit murder."

[f] Philippson. Rashi, "will a time of punishment be prepared, because I desired to bring them back by admonishing them from their backsliding"

[g] Rashi, "he withdraweth his hand from the good to join the scorners." Philippson makes "wine" the nominative to the verb, and translates, "which through its power draweth forth the scorners;" i. e. when drunk with wine they will give utterance to their hitherto secret scornfulness.

[h] The fuel is placed in the oven, and when the time comes, it is ready for baking, though the baker have slept in the mean while; so is it with the people, during the night they reflect in secret on the crimes they are to commit during the day, and then they are ready to follow their evil inclinations.

[i] Redak, "burnt on one, and not done on the other side." Jonathan, "eaten up before it was turned."

before his own face; but they did not return to the LORD their God, and sought him not, notwithstanding all this.

11 And Ephraim is become like a silly dove without understanding: Egypt did they call hither, to Assyria did they go.

12 As they go, so will I spread out my net over them; as the fowls of the heaven will I bring them down: I will chastise them, as it hath been announced to their congregation.

13 Wo unto them! for they have fled from me; destruction shall come unto them, because they have transgressed against me: though I desired to redeem them, they yet spoke lies against me.

14 And they cried not unto me with their heart, when they howled upon their beds: for corn and new wine they assemble[a] themselves, and they rebel against me.

15 And I desired to instruct and to strengthen their arms; yet would they devise evil against me.

16 They never return upward;[b] they are like a deceitful bow; by the sword shall their princes fall because of the rage of their tongue: this shall be their derision in the land of Egypt.

CHAPTER VIII.

1 Set the cornet to thy mouth. (Let[c] the enemy come) like the eagle against the house of the LORD; because they have transgressed my covenant, and against my law have they trespassed.

2 To me will they then cry, My God, we, Israel, know thee.

3 (But) Israel did reject the good:[d] so let the enemy pursue him.

4 They set up kings, but not by my advice; they chose princes, and I knew it not: of their silver and their gold have they made themselves idols, so that they[e] will be cut off.

5 Thy calf, O Samaria, hath caused thy rejection;[f] my anger is kindled against them: how long will it be that they cannot cleanse themselves?

6 For from Israel did also that (idol) spring;[g] an artisan made it, and no God is it: so then shall it become broken in splinters—that calf of Samaria.

7 For the wind do they sow, and the whirlwind shall they reap: (their seed) bringeth no standing corn; the plant yieldeth no meal; but should it yield it, strangers would swallow it up.

8 Swallowed up is Israel: now are they among the nations as a vessel without any value.

9 For they are needs gone up to Assyria, they who like a wild ass should dwell alone:[h] Ephraim spendeth lovers' gifts.

10 But even though they should spend gifts among the nations, now will I gather them: and they shall be humbled[i] a little through the burden of the king of princes.

11 Because Ephraim hath multiplied altars to sin, the altars have been unto him the means of sinning.

12 I ever wrote down for him the great things of my law; but as a strange thing are they accounted.

13 My sacrificial offerings they slay as common flesh that they may eat it;[k] the LORD accepteth them not in favour: now will he remember their iniquity, and visit their sins; they shall indeed return to Egypt.

14 For Israel forgot his Maker, and built palaces; and Judah multiplied fortified cities; but I will send a fire among his cities, and it shall devour their fine edifices.

[a] Philippson, "they rave about corn and new wine."

[b] Rashi, "they returned to Egypt without any benefit." Redak, "to the Most High."

[c] Rashi; but Redak, "Let the cornet be blown, because the enemy cometh."

[d] i. e. God who is good; so Aben Ezra. Others, "Israel cast off his happiness."

[e] Redak; but Rashi, "that their wealth may be wasted."

[f] Rashi.

[g] i. e. The calves of Jerobo'am were Israel's handiwork, made by an artisan, consequently not able to help themselves nor their worshippers.

[h] Philippson; meaning, Israel was destined to dwell alone and not mingle with the nations; and now they sent to Assyria for aid. But Rashi, "they are made like the wild ass that goeth alone, snuffing the wind, roaming from place to place."

[i] Rashi, from חלל, "to profane," hence, "to lower;" but Aben Ezra, "they shall commence (to complain) because of the burden of king and princes."

[k] Rashi, "the sacrifices of my burnt-offerings which they burn before me on the fire which is on my altar, what do I require this for? let them slay them for themselves as flesh, that they may eat them; for I have no pleasure in them." The translation here adopted means, that they bring indeed sacrifices, but not from a pure motive, only to have a merry-making and to eat the flesh.

CHAPTER IX.

1 ¶ Rejoice not, O Israel, for gladness, as other people; for thou art gone astray, unfaithful to thy God: thou hast loved the wages of sin upon every corn-filled threshing-floor.

2 The threshing-floor and the wine-press shall not feed them, and the new wine shall deceive them.[a]

3 They shall not dwell in the land of the LORD; but Ephraim shall return to Egypt, and in Assyria will they eat unclean things.

4 They shall not pour out wine to the LORD, and (their offerings) shall not be pleasing unto him; their sacrifices shall be unto them as the bread of mourners; all that eat thereof shall be polluted; for this their food can only be for themselves,[b] it shall not come into the house of the LORD.

5 What will ye do on the day of the appointed festival, and on the day of the feast of the LORD?

6 For, lo, they are gone forth because of the desolation; Egypt will gather them up, Moph will bury them: the pleasant chambers for their silver,—these shall nettles take possession of; thorns shall (grow) in their tents.

7 Come are the days of the visitation, come are the days of thy recompense; this shall Israel experience: a fool was the prophet, mad the inspired man, because of the greatness of thy iniquity, and the great hatefulness.

8 The watchman of Ephraim with my God,[c] the prophet, was a snare of the fowler on all his ways, a hateful thing in the house of his god.

9 They are deeply corrupt, as in the days of Gib'ah: he will remember their iniquity, he will visit their sins.

10 ¶ Like grapes in the wilderness had I found Israel; as the first ripe fruit on the fig-tree in the first of the season had I seen your fathers; but they too went to Ba'al-pe'or, and devoted themselves unto that shameful idol, and became[d] abominations as those they loved.

11 As for Ephraim, their glory shall fly away like a bird: there is no more birth, and no pregnancy, and no conception.

12 But though they were to bring up their children, yet would I bereave them, that there should be no man: yea, wo also to themselves, when I depart from them!

13 Ephraim, as I have seen him like Tyre, planted in a pleasant meadow,—yet this Ephraim shall lead forth to the murderer his children.

14 Give them, O LORD, what thou wilt give! give them a miscarrying womb and dried-up breasts.

15 All their wickedness is in Gilgal; for there I (learnt to) hate them; for the wickedness of their doings will I drive them out of my house: I will love them no farther; all their princes are rebels.

16 Smitten is Ephraim, their root is dried up, they shall bear no fruit; yea, though they should bring forth, yet would I slay the beloved fruit of their body.

17 My God will reject them, because they did not hearken unto him: and they shall be wanderers among the nations.

CHAPTER X.

1 ¶ An emptied vine is Israel; how should[e] he bring forth fruit for himself? the more numerous was his fruit the more he increased the altars; the more prosperous was his land, the more they made goodly statues.

2 Their heart is divided; now shall they bear their guilt: this will break down their altars, will devastate their statues.

3 For now will they say, We have[f] no king; because we fear not the LORD: and the king—what can he do for us?

4 They have spoken (vain) words, swearing falsely in making a covenant: therefore springeth up the punishment as poison in the furrows of the field.

[a] i. e. Not yield what is expected.

[b] Zunz, "for their bread should be for their hunger."

[c] Zunz; but Rashi, "Ephraim set themselves up their own prophets, who draw them to their idols, and for the true prophets they lay a snare." Johlson, "Ephraim looketh after oracle, near my God: the prophet is to him a fowler's snare on all his ways, an offence in the house of his god."

[d] Rashi, "when they loved the daughters of Moäb."

[e] Redak. Others, "his fruit is deception like himself." Philippson, after the Septuagint, "A rank vine is Israel; it beareth fruit," &c. Rashi, "Israel is like the vine that droppeth all its good fruit."

[f] Philippson, "We will have no king;" but Rashi, "We have no king; for him whom we have appointed over us to fight our battles, &c., availeth us nothing."

5 For the calves of Beth-aven are terrified the inhabitants of Samaria: yea, the people thereof mourn over them, and also its false priests that (before) rejoiced over them, for its glory, because it is departed from it.

6 Also this[a] shall be carried unto Assyria for a present to the contentious[b] king:
Ephraim shall receive shame, and Israel shall be ashamed because of his own counsel.

7 As for Samaria, her king shall vanish like the foam upon the surface of the water.

8 And destroyed shall be the high-places of Aven, (the cause of) the sin of Israel;
the thorn and the thistle shall grow upon their altars: and they shall say to the mountains, Cover us; and to the hills, Fall upon us.

9 ¶ More[c] than in the days of Gib'ah hast thou sinned, O Israel! there they stood; and the battle in Gib'ah against the children of wickedness did not overtake them.

10 (But now) after my desire will I chastise them: and the people shall be gathered against them, when they harness them (for labour) in their two furrows.

11 And Ephraim is as a well-taught[d] heifer that loveth to tread out the corn; and I passed over[e] her fair neck: now will I make Ephraim draw the wagon, Judah shall plough, and Jacob shall harrow the field for the enemy.

12 Sow then for yourselves after righteousness, that you may reap (the fruit) of kindness; cultivate your fallow field; for it is time to seek the LORD, till he come and rain righteousness down for you.

13 (But) ye have ploughed wickedness, iniquity have ye reaped, ye have eaten the fruit of lies; because thou didst trust in thy own way, in the multitude of thy mighty men:

14 Therefore shall a tumult arise among thy people, and all thy fortresses shall be wasted, as Shalman devastated Beth-arbel on the day of battle, (when) the mother was dashed in pieces upon her children.

15 The like of this doth Beth-el procure unto you because of your great wickedness:
in the early morning shall utterly pass away
the king of Israel.

CHAPTER XI.

1 When Israel was yet young, then I loved him, and out of Egypt did I call my son.

2 The (prophets) called them; but the more they went from them: unto the Be'alim would they sacrifice, and to the graven images would they burn incense.

3 Yet I myself appointed a leader for Ephraim, who took them up in his arms; but they would not acknowledge that I healed them.

4 With human[f] cords I ever drew them forward, with leading-strings of love: and I was to them as those that lift[g] off the yoke from their jaws, and I held out unto them food.

5 He should not return unto the land of Egypt: yet (now) is the Assyrian his king;
because they refused to repent.

6 And the sword shall fall on his cities, and shall make an end of his boughs,[h] and consume them, because of their (evil) counsels.

7 For my people are only bent on backsliding[i] from me; and though upward[k] they call them, they altogether will not elevate themselves.

[a] The golden calf.

[b] Rashi, "this is Sennacherib." Others, "king Jareb."

[c] Aben Ezra; but Rashi, "From the time of Gib'ah," &c.—"the same course they always pursued, therefore they succeeded not in their battle at Gib'ah," &c. Zunz, "then they stood forward against the wicked whom the war in Gib'ah could not overtake."

[d] Rashi, "Broken in by blows of the goad;" meaning, that notwithstanding much punishment the people still love to indulge their pleasure, like a cow that is willing to thresh out the corn that she may eat her fill at the same time.

[e] Redak, "to put on a light yoke." Others, "now I come with force over her fair neck."

[f] Rashi, "I was always drawing them with soft cords (leading-strings) as those by which a man draweth his son."

[g] Aben Ezra, "like those men who make high the yoke of the heifer to lift it off from her jaws time after time." Rashi adds, "so was I with them in all troubles to make them lighter for them."

[h] Zunz, "bolts," i. e. of the cities. Jonathan, "his mighty ones;" but Aben Ezra, "the boughs," i. e. the young people.

[i] Rashi, "My people hesitate about returning to me."

[k] Rashi, (as above, vii. 16,) "and to the good thing to which the prophets call them they altogether will not elevate themselves, and will not do it:" and so Philippson; but Redak, "though to the Most High they call them back, there is no one that will extol him;" i. e. they refuse to follow the prophets to acknowledge God's power.

8 How shall I give thee up, Ephraim? how shall I surrender thee, Israel? how shall I make thee as Admah? how shall I change thee as Zeboyim? turned is my heart within me, all my compassion is enkindled together.

9 I will not execute the fierceness of my anger, I will not again[a] destroy Ephraim; for God am I, and not man, the Holy One in the midst of thee, and I will not come with an enemy's hatred.

10 They shall follow after the LORD, when he will roar like a lion; for he will roar, and the children shall hasten together from the west;

11 They shall hasten together as birds out of Egypt, and as doves out of the land of Assyria: and I will cause them to dwell in their houses, saith the LORD.

CHAPTER XII.[b]

1 ¶ With lies hath Ephraim encompassed me about, and with deceit, the house of Israel; but Judah yet ruleth[c] with God, and is faithful to the Holy One.

2 Ephraim feedeth on wind, and pursueth the east wind; the whole day he increaseth deceit and corruption; and a covenant do they make with Assyria, and oil is carried into Egypt.

3 But with Judah also hath the LORD (to hold) a controversy; and to punish Jacob according to his ways, according to his doings will he recompense him.

4 In the womb he took his brother by the heel, and in his strength he strove with an angel.

5 Yea, he strove with an angel, and prevailed; he wept, and made supplication unto him: in Beth-el[d] he should find him, and there he will speak with us.

6 And the LORD God of hosts, the Eternal ONE is his memorial.[e]

7 Therefore do thou return to thy God; keep goodness and justice, and wait on thy God continually.

8 But like a merchant, who hath the balances of deceit in his hand, loving to overreach,

9 Did Ephraim say, I am certainly become rich, I have acquired substance unto myself; it is all through my labours; they will find no iniquity in me, that could be sin.

10 And I am the LORD thy God from the land of Egypt: I will yet make thee dwell in tents, as in the days of antiquity.[f]

11 And I have spoken through the prophets, and I myself have multiplied visions, and by the means of the prophets have I spoken in similitudes.

12 If in Gil'ad there was misfortune, (it is because) there was naught but idolatry;[g] in Gilgal they sacrificed bullocks (to idols): their altars also are as stone-heaps on the furrows of the fields.

13 And Jacob fled into the fields of Syria, and Israel served for a wife, and for a wife he kept (the flocks).

14 And by a prophet did the LORD bring Israel out of Egypt, and by a prophet was he guarded.

15 (Yet) Ephraim provoked (him) to anger most bitterly: therefore will his Lord cast his blood-guiltiness upon him, and his reproach will he recompense unto him.

CHAPTER XIII.

1 ¶ When once Ephraim spoke, (all) trembled, so high was he exalted in Israel; but he offended through Ba'al, and he died.

2 And now they yet continue to sin, and have made themselves molten images of their silver, idols according to their own imagining, every one of them the work of the artisan: they say to[h] them, They that sacrifice men may kiss the calves.

3 Therefore shall they be as the morning

[a] Zunz; but Rashi, "I will not withdraw from my word to," &c.

[b] In the English version, chap. xii. commences at ver. 2.

[c] Others, "Judah also rangeth about near God (i. e. worshippeth God and idols) and near the faithful Holy One."

[d] No doubt alluding to the blessing Jacob obtained from the angel, (Gen. xxxii. 27,) which was afterward confirmed by God himself in the revelation at Beth-el. (Ibid. xxxv. 9.)

[e] Rashi comments here that this means, as though God himself said, "as I was always, so am I now, and if you would walk with me in uprightness as Jacob your father, I would act toward you as I did to him."

[f] Jonathan. Rashi comments, that God would restore those who study the law as in Jacob's days, who was said to dwell in tents. Redak, "God would cause us to dwell in tents as in the wilderness, when we are redeemed from the nations to show us his power." Philippson, "as in the days of the feast" (of tabernacles) in joy and gladness.

[g] Rashi; but Zunz, "If vanity and false gods were in Gil'ad, then they sacrificed steers in Gilgal."

[h] Rashi; i. e. to those who come to sacrifice cloud, and as the dew that early passeth away, as the chaff that is driven by the whirlwind out of the threshing-floor, and as smoke out of a window.

4 Yet I am the LORD thy God from the land of Egypt: and no god but me shalt thou know, and there is no saviour beside me.

5 I myself did provide for thee in the wilderness, in the land of great drought.

6 When they came to their pasture, they became sated; they were sated, and their heart was lifted up: therefore have they forgotten me.

7 And now will I be unto them as a lion: as a leopard will I lie in wait by the way.

8 I will meet them as a bear bereaved of her whelps, and I will rend their closed-up[a] heart; and I will devour them there like a lioness, the beasts of the field shall rend them.

9 Thou hast destroyed thyself, O Israel; for against me, against thy helper[b] (didst thou rebel.)

10 Where then is now thy king, that he may save thee in all thy cities? and thy judges, since thou saidst, Give me a king, and princes?

11 I give thee a king in my anger, and take him away in my wrath.

12 ¶ Bound up is the iniquity of Ephraim, treasured up is his sin.

13 The pains of a travailing woman shall come upon him; he is an unwise son; for he will not remain steadfast at the time of the breaking forth of the child.

14 From the power of the grave would I ransom them, from death would I redeem them; (but now) where are thy plagues, O death, where is thy pestilence, O grave? compassion shall be hidden from my eyes.

15 Though he grow luxuriantly in green meadows, the east wind shall come, the wind of the LORD, rising up from the wilderness, and his spring shall become dry, and his fountain shall be dried up: the same shall plunder the treasure of all precious vessels.

CHAPTER XIV.[c]

1 Samaria shall meet her punishment; for she hath rebelled against her God: by the sword shall they fall; their infants shall be dashed in pieces, and their pregnant women shall be ripped up.

2 ¶ Return, O Israel, even unto the LORD thy God; for thou hast stumbled through thy iniquity.

3 Take with you words, and return to the LORD: say unto him, "Pardon all (our) iniquity, and accept (our return[d] to) good; and let us repay the steers (of sacrifice) with (the prayer of) our lips.

4 Asshur shall not help us; upon horses will we not ride: and we will no more say, Ye are our gods, to the work of our hands; for in thee alone the fatherless obtaineth mercy."

5 I will heal their backsliding, I will love them freely; for my anger is turned away from them.

6 I will be as the dew unto Israel: he shall bloom as the lily; and he shall strike his roots as (the forests of) Lebanon.

7 His suckers shall spread out, and his beauty shall be as that of the olive-tree, and his smell as that of the Lebanon.

8 They shall return that sat under his shade; they shall revive as corn, and bloom as the vine: the scent[e] of which shall be as that of the wine of Lebanon.

9 Ephraim[f] (shall say), What have I to do any more with idols? I have answered, and will observe him; I will be (to him) like a green fir-tree; through me is thy fruit found.

10 Who is wise, that he may understand these things? intelligent, that he may know them? for righteous are the ways of the LORD; and the just shall walk in them; but the transgressors will stumble through them.

[a] Rashi. Eng. ver. "the caul (periœardium) of their heart." Michlol Yophi, "the fat around their heart."

[b] Rashi. Johlson, "for in me alone hadst thou help."

[c] In the English version, chap. xiv. commences at ver. 2.

[d] Johlson, who also renders the first portion, "Pardoner of the iniquity of all." Rashi gives two versions, "Teach us the good way," and "Accept the few good deeds which we have done."

[e] Others, "famous as the wine of Lebanon."

[f] Johlson, "What need hath Ephraim near me of idols?"

THE PROPHECY OF JOEL,

נבואת יואל.

CHAPTER I.

1 ¶ The word of the Lord that came to Joël the son of Pethuël.

2 Hear this, ye old men, and give ear, all ye inhabitants of the land. Did ever such a thing as this come to pass in your days, or ever in the days of your fathers?

3 Tell ye of it to your children, and let your children tell it to their children, and their children to another generation.

4 What the caterpillar[a] left hath the locust eaten; and what the locust left hath the cankerworm eaten; and that which the cankerworm left hath the cricket eaten.

5 Wake up, ye drunkards, and weep; and wail, all ye drinkers of wine, because of the sweet new wine, that it is taken away[b] from your mouth.

6 For a nation[c] is come up over my land, strong, and without number; its teeth are the teeth of a lion, and it hath the cutting-teeth of the lioness.

7 It hath laid my vine waste, and barked[d] my fig-tree: it hath peeled it clean bare, and cast it down; made white are its light branches.

8 Lament like a virgin girded with sackcloth for the betrothed of her youth.

9 Cut off are the meat-offering and the drink-offering from the house of the Lord: now mourn the priests, the ministers of the Lord.

10 Wasted is the field, the land mourneth; for wasted is the corn: dried up is the new wine, withered is the oil.

11 Be ashamed, O ye husbandmen; wail, O ye vinedressers, for the wheat and for the barley; because lost is the harvest of the field.

12 The vine is made ashamed, and the fig-tree is withered; the pomegranate-tree, the palm-tree also, and the apple-tree, even all the trees of the field, are dried up; because joy hath ceased[e] from the children of men.

13 ¶ Gird yourselves (with sackcloth),[f] and lament, ye priests; wail, ye ministers of the altar: come, remain all night in sackcloth, ye ministers of my God; for there are withholden from the house of your God the meat-offering and the drink-offering.

14 Sanctify ye a fast, proclaim a solemn assembly, gather the elders, all the inhabitants of the land, into the house of the Lord your God, and cry aloud unto the Lord.

15 Alas for the day! for the day of the Lord is at hand, and like destruction from the Almighty will it come.

16 Is not before our eyes the food cut off, from the house of our God joy and gladness?

17 The grains of seed[g] are rotten under their clods, laid desolate are the garners, pulled down are the barns;[h] for the corn is dried[i] up.

18 How do the beasts groan! how do the herds of cattle roam about; because there is no pasture for them: yea, the flocks of sheep are made to perish.[k]

[a] Rashi and other commentators regard all the names here given as indicative of various species of locusts. We have followed Johlson, except with ילק, which he rendered "beetle." Philippson regards the words as indicating the locust in its various states of formation: thus, גזם the perfect insect, "locust;" ארבה "the young brood;" ילק "the grub;" and חסיל "the new-winged insect;" in all of which states this plague of the East is very destructive. But the exact meaning of all the words except the second is difficult to determine.

[b] Lit. "cut off," i. e. as though the cup had been cut away from the lips after being presented to them.

[c] The locust coming in multitudes is so called.

[d] Rashi and Jonathan, "made it grievous to the soul."

[e] Jonathan. Lit. "dried up."

[f] Aben Ezra.

[g] Jonathan, "the casks rot under their bungholes." The translation in the text is after Aben Ezra. Philippson, "the grains are dried up," &c.

[h] Philippson, "underground corn-chambers."

[i] Jonathan; others, (as also in v. 10,) "made ashamed."

[k] Lit. "brought into guilt," or its consequence, suffering and punishment; since every evil which befalls a land is caused by the guilt of its inhabitants.

19 To thee O LORD, will I cry; for the fire hath devoured the pastures of the wilderness, and the flame hath singed all the trees of the field.

20 Also the beasts of the field cry unto thee panting; for the brooks of waters are dried up, and a fire hath devoured the pastures of the wilderness.

CHAPTER II.

1 ¶ Blow ye the cornet in Zion, and sound an alarm on my holy mount; let all the inhabitants of the land tremble; for the day of the LORD cometh, for it is nigh;

2 It is a day of darkness and of gloom, a day of clouds and of tempestuous obscurity, like the morning-dawn spread out upon the mountains: a people numerous and strong, the like of which hath never been and after it there will be none any more, even to the years of all coming generations.[a]

3 Before it devoureth a fire; and behind it singeth a flame: like the garden of 'Eden was the land before it (came), and after it is a desolate wilderness; yea, and nothing escapeth from it.

4 Like the appearance of horses is its appearance; and like horsemen, so do they run.

5 Like the noise of chariots on the tops of mountains do they leap; they are like the noise of a flame of fire consuming the stubble, as a strong people arrayed for a battle.

6 At its presence the people are much pained: all the faces are covered with blackness.[b]

7 Like mighty men do they run; like men of war they climb up a wall; and they march every one on his own ways, and they turn not aside on their paths.

8 And they do not press one another; every one on his beaten track do they go forward: and they pass through between warlike weapons, and change not their purpose.[c]

9 Into the city they hasten[d] forward; on the wall they run; into the houses they climb up; through the windows they make their entrance like a thief.

10 Before them trembleth the earth; the heavens quake: the sun and the moon are obscured, and the stars withdraw their brightness.

11 And the LORD uttereth his voice before his army; for very numerous is his camp; for strong is he that executeth his word; for great is the day of the LORD and very terrible; and who is able to endure it?

12 But even now also, saith the LORD, return ye fully to me with all your heart, and with fasting, and with weeping, and with mourning:

13 And rend your heart, and not your garments, and return unto the LORD your God; for gracious and merciful is he, long-suffering, and of great kindness, and he bethinketh himself of the evil.

14 He that is conscious[e] (of guilt), let him return and repent: when (the plague) may leave behind it a blessing; even a meat-offering and a drink-offering unto the LORD your God.

15 ¶ Blow the cornet in Zion, sanctify a fast, proclaim a solemn assembly;

16 Gather the people, sanctify the congregation, assemble the elders, gather the children, and those that suck the breasts; let the bridegroom go forth out of his chamber, and the bride out of her closet.

17 Between the porch and the altar let the priests weep, the ministers of the LORD, and let them say, Spare, O LORD, thy people, and give not up thy heritage to reproach, for nations to make a by-word of them: wherefore should they say among the people, Where is their God?

18 And the LORD was zealous for his land, and he had pity for his people.

19 And the LORD answered and said unto his people, "Behold, I will send you the corn, and the young wine, and the oil, and ye shall be satisfied therewith; and I will not give

[a] Heb. "generation and generation."

[b] Lit. "gather blackness;" so Rashi and others, taking פארור as meaning "pot;" but Aben Ezra and Menachem render it "brightness," "glory," from פאר; hence, Philippson, "all faces lose their redness." Zunz, "become shrunk up." Jobison combines both, "every face draweth itself into dark folds," or "wrinkles."

[c] Chiefly after Rashi, who takes יפלו not as "they fall," but as "encamp,"—"the locusts are lying in camp opposite the weapons of those who would hinder them." יבצעו from בצע "gain," i. e. they cannot be bribed to change their mind. Philippson, "and are not misled."

[d] Rashi, "they make a noise."

[e] This verse is given after Rashi. Others, "Who knoweth? but he may again bethink himself, and leave a blessing after him," &c.

you up any more to be a reproach among the nations:

20 And the host of the north[a] will I remove far away from you, and I will drive it off into a land barren and desolate, with its advance toward the eastern sea, and its rereward toward the western sea; and its stench shall ascend, and its ill savour shall come up, because it hath done great things."

21 Fear not, O land; be glad and rejoice; for the LORD hath done great things.

22 Be not afraid, ye beasts of the field; for the pastures of the wilderness have become green; for the tree beareth its fruit, the fig-tree and the vine yield their strength.[b]

23 And ye children of Zion, be glad, and rejoice in the LORD your God; for he hath given you the first rain in beneficence, and he hath caused to come down for you the rain, the first rain, and the latter rain in the first (month).[c]

24 And the threshing-floors are full of corn, and the vats overflow with young wine and oil.

25 And I will repay to you the years (in) which the locust hath eaten (all), with the cankerworm, and the cricket, and the caterpillar, my great army, which I had sent against you.

26 And ye shall eat in plenty, and be satisfied, and praise the name of the LORD your God, who hath dealt wondrously with you: and my people shall not be made ashamed unto eternity.

27 And ye shall know that I am in the midst of Israel, and that I am the LORD your God, and none else; and my people shall not be made ashamed unto eternity.

CHAPTER III.[d]

1 ¶ And it shall come to pass after this,[e] that I will pour out my spirit over all flesh: and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy; your old men shall dream dreams: your young men shall see visions:

2 And also over the men-servants and over the maid-servants in those days will I pour out my spirit.

3 And I will display wonderful tokens in the heavens and on the earth, blood, and fire, and pillars of smoke.

4 The sun shall be changed into darkness, and the moon into blood, before the coming of the day of the LORD, the great and the terrible.

5 And it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall call on the name of the LORD shall escape; for on mount Zion and in Jerusalem there shall be deliverance, as the LORD hath said, and among the remnant whom the LORD calleth.

CHAPTER IV.

1 For, behold, in those days, and in that time, when I will cause to return the captivity of Judah and Jerusalem,

2 Then will I assemble all the nations, and I will bring them down into the valley of Jehoshaphat,[f] and I will hold judgment with them there because of my people and my heritage Israel, whom they have scattered among the nations, and for my land (which) they have divided out.

3 And for my people did they cast lots; and gave a boy for a harlot, and sold a girl for wine, and drank it.

4 And also ye, what have ye to do with me, O Tyre, and Zidon, and all ye districts of Philistia? is this the recompense which ye repay me? or do ye only commence to render me evil?[g]—swiftly and speedily will I bring back your recompense upon your own head;

[a] i. e. The troop of locusts, which had probably come from the north, in the time of Joël. The Arabian desert, the Dead Sea, and the Mediterranean are the points mentioned where the locusts were to perish.

[b] Philippson, "their wealth;" but it is the same as "strength," i. e. fruit.

[c] Others, "in one month." The prophet speaks of the unexpected return of plenty; as at first every thing had been dried up for want of rain, which now came down copiously to compensate for its past absence. In Palestine the first rain usually falls in November, and the latter rain in April.

[d] In the English version, this chapter is a part of chap. ii.

[e] The time is indefinite; the prophet sees the event near, (Num. xxiv. 17,) though in reality it is centuries before it occurs.

[f] Rashi, allegorically, "I will descend with them into the depths of justice;" יהושפט "the LORD's judgment;" the actual valley of this name is quite too small.

[g] After Redak, who takes the word גמל as the first step in an act toward another, be it good or bad, here bad; שלם גמול "to recompense," to do something out of a feeling of reciprocity, good or bad; but השב גמול means to return the evil back upon the evil-doer. God takes the part of Israel, and he reproves the nations mentioned for their unprovoked assault on the Israelites. The rest explains itself.

5 Because my silver and my gold have ye taken, and the handsomest of my precious things have ye carried into your temples;

6 And the children of Judah and the children of Jerusalem have ye sold unto the sons of the Jevanim,[a] in order to remove them far from their borders.

7 Behold, I will awaken them out of the place whither ye have sold them, and I will bring back your recompense upon your own head;

8 And I will deliver[b] your sons and your daughters into the hand of the children of Judah, and they shall sell them to the Sabeäns, to a nation far off; for the LORD hath spoken it.

9 ¶ Proclaim ye this among the nations, Prepare war, wake up the mighty men; let them draw near; let them come up—all the men of war.

10 Beat your plough-shares into swords, and your pruning-knives into spears: let the weak say, I am a hero.

11 Assemble hastily together, and come, all ye nations from every side, and gather yourselves together: there doth the LORD strike down thy mighty ones.

12 Let the nations awake, and come up to the valley of Jehoshaphat; for there will I sit to judge all the nations from every side.

13 Put forth the sickle; for the harvest is ripe: come, tread down (the grapes); for the press is full; the vats overflow; for great is their wickedness.

14 Multitudes, multitudes are in the valley of decision;[c] for near is the day of the LORD in the valley of decision.

15 Sun and moon are obscured, and stars withdraw their brightness.

16 And the LORD will cry aloud out of Zion, and from Jerusalem will he send forth his voice; and the heavens and the earth shall quake; but the LORD will be a refuge for his people, and a stronghold for the children of Israel.

17 So shall ye know that I am the LORD your God, dwelling on Zion, my holy mount: and Jerusalem shall be holy, and strangers shall not pass through her any more.

18 ¶ And it shall come to pass on that day, that the mountains shall drop down sweet new wine, and the hills shall flow with milk, and all the ravines of Judah shall flow with water, and a spring shall come forth out of the house of the LORD, and shall water the valley of Shittim.[d]

19 Egypt shall become a desolate land, and Edom shall become a desolate wilderness; because of the violence against the children of Judah, in whose land they have shed innocent blood.

20 But Judah shall be inhabited for ever, and Jerusalem from generation to generation.

21 And I will avenge[e] their blood that I have not yet avenged; for the LORD dwelleth in Zion.

[a] This is translated "Grecians" in the English version.

[b] After Redak.

[c] Johlson, "crushing," the word חרוץ meaning both "decision," "judgment," "verdict," and also "a threshing-machine;" hence, in this connection, "the crushing," the punishment consequent on the decision of the Great Judge

[d] As Ezekiel also (xlvii. 1, &c.) speaks of a river that is to issue out of the temple and flow into the Dead Sea, Philippson supposes that Shittim is meant to signify Siddim, or the plain near Sodom. (Gen. xiv. 8.)

[e] Zunz. Lit. "to render guiltless," i. e. through punishment, or avenge. Rashi, "and though I might acquit them of their other sins, and of the evil deeds they have done against me, of the blood of the children of Judah will I not absolve them."

THE PROPHECY OF AMOS,

נבואה עמוס.

CHAPTER I.

1 ¶ The words of 'Amos, who was among the herdmen of Tekoä', which he foresaw concerning Israel in the days of 'Uzziyah the king of Judah, and in the days of Jerobo'am the son of Joäsh the king of Israel, two years before the earthquake.

2 And he said, The Lord will cry aloud out of Zion, and from Jerusalem will he send forth his voice; and then shall mourn the pastures of the shepherds, and then shall dry up the top of Carmel.

3 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord, For three transgressions[a] of Damascus, and for four, will I not turn away their punishment; because they have threshed (the inhabitants of) Gil'ad with threshing instruments of iron;

4 And I will send a fire into the house of Chazael, which shall devour the palaces of Ben-hadad.

5 And I will break the bars of Damascus, and cut off the inhabitants from the valley of Aven, and him that holdeth the sceptre from the house of 'Eden: and the people of Syria shall be exiled unto Kir,[b] saith the Lord.

6 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord, For three transgressions of Gazzah, and for four, will I not turn away their punishment; because they carried away exiles in full numbers, to deliver them up to Edom;

7 And I will send a fire against the wall of Gazzah, which shall devour her palaces;

8 And I will cut off the inhabitants from Ashdod, and him that holdeth the sceptre from Ashkelon, and I will turn my hand against 'Ekron: and the remnant of the Philistines shall perish, saith the Lord Eternal.

9 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord, For three transgressions of Tyre, and for four, will I not turn away their punishment; because they delivered up the exiles in full numbers to Edom, and remembered not the brotherly covenant;

10 And I will send a fire against the walls of Tyre, which shall devour her palaces.

11 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord, For three transgressions of Edom, and for four, will I not turn away their punishment; because he pursued with the sword his brother, and disregarded his mercy,[c] and his anger tore in pieces continually, and he kept his wrath for ever;

12 And I will send out a fire against Teman, which shall devour the palaces of Bozrah.

13 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord, For three transgressions of the children of 'Ammon, and for four, will I not turn away their punishment; because they have ripped up the pregnant women[d] of Gil'ad, in order to enlarge their own territory;

14 And I will kindle a fire within the walls of Rabbah, which shall devour her palaces, with shouting on the day of battle, with a storm on the day of the tempest;

15 And their king[e] shall go into exile, he and his princes together, saith the Lord.

CHAPTER II.

1 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord, For three transgressions of Moäb, and for four, will I not turn away their punishment; because he burnt the bones of the king of Edom into lime;

2 And I will send a fire against Moäb, which shall devour the palaces of Keriyoth:

[a] Rashi, "three transgressions have I forgiven them, but for the fourth will I not withhold the retribution." So also Aben Ezra, after Sa'adyah.

[b] See 2 Kings xvi. 9; Tiglath Pilesser actually carried the Syrians thither.

[c] Jonathan, "violated his mercy." Philippson takes the word mercy to mean "love for relatives," and next to stand for relatives; hence he translates, "and destroyed his kinsmen."

[d] Some take הרות as a feminine form for הרים "mountains," and render, "they broke through the mountains of Gil'ad."

[e] Perhaps, Malcom, the idol of the 'Ammonites; as in Jeremiah xlix 3.

and Moäb shall die in the tumult, in the shouting, amidst the sound of the cornet;

3 And I will cut off the judges from her midst, and all her princes will I slay, with him, saith the LORD.

4 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, For three transgressions of Judah, and for four, will I not turn away their punishment; because they have despised the law of the LORD, and did not keep his statutes, and their lying idols caused them to err, after which their fathers had walked;

5 And I will send out a fire against Judah, which shall devour the palaces of Jerusalem.

6 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, For three transgressions of Israel, and for four, will I not turn away their punishment; because they sold for silver the righteous,[a] and the needy for a pair of shoes;

7 That are eager after the dust of the earth on the head of the poor,[b] and turn aside the way of the meek:[c] and a man and his father will go in unto the same young woman, in order to profane my holy name.

8 And upon pledged garments[d] they stretch themselves out by every altar, and the wine of the condemned[e] do they drink in the house of their gods.

9 Yet have I destroyed the Emorite from before them, whose height was like the height of cedars, and who was strong as the oaks; but I destroyed his fruit from above, and his roots from beneath.

10 And it was I who have brought you up from the land of Egypt, and led you forty years through the wilderness, to take possession of the land of the Emorite.

11 And I have raised up of your sons for prophets, and of your young men for nazarites: is it not even thus, O ye children of Israel? saith the LORD.

12 But ye have given the nazarites wine to drink; and concerning the prophets have ye commanded, saying, Ye shall not prophesy.

13 Behold, I press down (the ground)[f] under you, as the wagon presseth (it) down that is full of sheaves.

14 And refuge shall vanish from the swift, and the strong shall not make use of his force, neither shall the mighty man escape with his life.

15 And he that handleth the bow shall not be able to stand; and he that is swift of foot shall not escape: neither shall he that rideth the horse escape with his life.

16 And he that is most courageous hearted among the mighty shall flee away naked[g] on that day, saith the LORD.

CHAPTER III.

1 ¶ Hear this word which the LORD hath spoken concerning you, O children of Israel, concerning the whole family which I have brought up from the land of Egypt, saying,

2 Only you have I loved out of all the families of the earth: therefore will I visit upon you all your iniquities.

3 Will two walk together, except they had agreed (to do so)?[h]

4 Will a lion roar in the forest, when he hath no prey? will a young lion send forth his voice out of his den, unless he have caught something?

5 Can a bird fall in a snare upon the earth, when there is no gin for him? is ever a snare taken up from the ground, when it hath caught nothing at all?

6 Shall a cornet be blown in a city, and the people not become afraid? shall there be evil in a city, and the LORD have not done it?

7 For the Lord Eternal will do nothing, unless he have revealed his secret unto his servants the prophets.

8 The lion hath roared, who will not fear?

[a] This means one who is right in the cause.

[b] Philippson explains this to mean, the judges are eager that the poor might be so oppressed as to cast dust on his head, as a sign of sorrow.

[c] Rashi, "they cause the feeble to turn aside from the right path, out of fear for them."

[d] Against the precept in Deut. xxiv. 12, 13 that the pledge of the poor should not be kept over night.

[e] "They punish them with the payment of fines, and purchase wine therewith"—RASHI; when no judge has, according to law, the right to take any thing for his own use. Lit. "of those punished."

[f] Philippson. Johlson, after Rabbi 'Azariyah de Rossi, "Behold, I will make the ground creak under you as the wagon creaketh which is full of sheaves."

[g] Jonathan, "his weapons cast away."

[h] Rashi, "unless they had fixed a time to go together to a certain place."

the Lord Eternal hath spoken, who will not prophesy?[a]

9 Publish at the palaces in Ashdod, and at the palaces in the land of Egypt, and say, Assemble yourselves upon the mountains of Samaria, and behold the great confusions in her midst, and the oppressions (that are) within her.

10 For they know not how to act rightly, saith the LORD, who treasure up violence and robbery in their palaces.

11 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the Lord Eternal, The adversary (is there) and surroundeth the land; and he shall bring down from thee thy strength, and thy palaces shall be plundered.

12 Thus hath said the LORD, As the shepherd snatcheth[b] out of the mouth of the lion (at most) two leg-bones, or a tip of the ear: so shall be delivered the children of Israel that sit in Samaria on the corner of a bed, and on Damascus couches.

13 Hear ye, and give warning in the house of Jacob, saith the Lord Eternal, the God of hosts.

14 For on the day when I visit the transgressions of Israel upon him, will I also inflict punishment on the altars of Beth-el: and then shall be hewn off the horns of the altar, and they shall fall to the ground.

15 And I will smite the winter-house together with the summer-house: and the houses of ivory shall disappear, and the great houses shall be no more, saith the LORD.

CHAPTER IV.

1 ¶ Hear this word, O ye cows[c] of Bashan, that are on the mount of Samaria, who oppress the poor, who crush the needy, who say to their lords, Bring, and let us drink.

2 Sworn hath the Lord Eternal by his holiness, that, lo, days are coming over you, when men will carry you away with hooks, and your posterity with fishhooks.[d]

3 And through breaches in the wall shall ye go out, every one through that before her: and ye shall cast off your proud greatness,[e] saith the LORD.

4 Go then to Beth-el, and transgress; to Gilgal, (and) multiply transgression; and bring in the morning your sacrifices, after three days your tithes:

5 And burn of leaven[f] a sacrifice of thanksgiving, and proclaim and publish freewill-offerings; for so do you love (to do), O ye children of Israel, saith the Lord Eternal.

6 But, I also had indeed given you cleanness[g] of teeth in all your cities, and want of bread in all your places: and yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the LORD.

7 And I also had indeed withholden from you the rain, when it was yet three months to the harvest; and I caused it to rain upon one city, and upon another city I caused it not to rain; one piece of land was rained upon, and another piece whereupon it rained not became dried up;

8 And two or three cities wandered unto one city, to drink water; but they were not satisfied: and yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the LORD.

9 I had smitten you with blasting and mildew; the multitude of your gardens and your vineyards and your fig-trees and your olive-trees did the caterpillar devour: and yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the LORD.

10 I had sent out against you the pestilence after the manner of Egypt; I slew your young men with the sword, together with your captive horses; and I had caused the stench of your camps to ascend even into your nostrils: and yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the LORD.

11 I had produced an overthrow among you, like the overthrow by God of Sodom

[a] i. e. The prophet cannot avoid delivering his message when God has spoken, as little as man can help fearing when he hears the lion's roar. (See Jer. xx. 7, &c.)

[b] The one intrusted with the charge of cattle had to make restitution if it was torn, unless he could bring of it a part, (see Exod. xxii. 13;) hence the effort of the shepherd to save some token. But so also shall the Israelites escape destruction, only few in number, although now living in luxury.

[c] i. e. The wives of the chiefs. As 'Amos was a herdman, he naturally took his images from his employment.

[d] Rashi and Jonathan, "on shields, and your children in fishing boats."

[e] Rashi; but the word ההרכינה is variously explained; but the version chosen here seems the simplest, although it is not found elsewhere in the Bible.

[f] Rashi takes both these verses to contain an invitation of the false priests to the people to violate the laws of God, to eat the meat which is left on the morning instead of burning it; to sacrifice leaven on the altar, saying such a one is an acceptable gift when it is not.

[g] From want of food, occasioned by severe famine.

and Gomorrah, and ye became like a firebrand snatched out of the burning: and yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the LORD.

12 ¶ Therefore thus will I do unto thee, O Israel: because then I will do this unto thee, prepare[a] to meet thy God, O Israel.

13 For, lo, he that formeth the mountains, and createth the wind, and declareth unto man what is his thought, that maketh the morning-dawn (and) darkness, and treadeth upon the high places of the earth,—The LORD, the God of hosts, is his name.

CHAPTER V.

1 ¶ Hear ye this word which I take up against you, as a lamentation, O house of Israel.

2 She is fallen, she will not rise again—the virgin of Israel: she is thrown down upon her land; there is none to raise her up.

3 ¶ For thus hath said the Lord Eternal, The city that goeth forth with a thousand shall retain but a hundred, and she that goeth forth with a hundred shall retain but ten, (left) to the house of Israel.

4 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD unto the house of Israel, Seek ye for me, and ye shall live;

5 But seek not for Beth-el, and into Gilgal enter not, and to Beër-sheba' do not pass over; for Gilgal shall surely go into exile, and Beth-el shall become naught.

6 Seek for the LORD, and ye shall live: so that he come not suddenly like fire over the house of Joseph, and it devour, and there be none to quench it in Beth-el;

7 Ye who change justice into wormwood, and cast down righteousness to the earth!

8 (But) he maketh the seven stars and Orion, and changeth into morning the shadow of death, and maketh the day dark into night; he it is that calleth for the waters of the sea, and poureth them out over the face of the earth: The LORD is his name;

9 That causeth wasting[b] to prevail against the strong, so that wasting shall come against the fortress.

10 They hate him that rebuketh in the gate, and him that speaketh uprightly they abhor.

11 Therefore forasmuch as you tread down upon the poor, and ye take from him onerous contributions of corn: if ye have built houses of hewn stone, ye shall not dwell in them; if ye have planted pleasant vineyards, ye shall not drink their wine.

12 For I know your manifold transgressions and your numerous sins: ye are those that are the adversaries of the just, that take a ransom, and that wrest (the cause of) the needy in the gate.[c]

13 ¶ Therefore will the intelligent keep silence in that time; for it is an evil time.

14 Seek for the good, and not the evil, in order that ye may live: and so will the LORD, the God of hosts, be with you, as ye have said.

15 Hate the evil, and love the good, and establish justice firmly in the gate: perhaps the LORD the God of hosts will be gracious unto the remnant of Joseph.

16 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the Eternal, the God of hosts, the Lord, On all public places there is lamentation, and in all the streets they cry, Wo! wo! and they call the husbandman to mourning, and to lamentation those skilled in wailing.

17 And in all vineyards there is lamentation; for I will pass through thy midst, saith the LORD.

18 ¶ Wo unto you that long for the day of the LORD! for what do you wish the day of the LORD? it is (one of) darkness, and not of light.

19 As if a man were to flee from a lion, and a bear should meet him; and he enter into the house, and lean his hand against the wall, and a serpent should bite him.

20 Behold the day of the LORD is (one of) darkness, and not of light; yea, it is obscure, and hath no brightness.

21 I hate, I despise your feast-days, and I will not smell (the sacrifices) on your festive assemblies.

22 For though ye should offer me burnt-

[a] Rashi and Redak, "to repent;" but Aben Ezra regards this a challenge: "Come, contend with God if you can;" wherefore the next verse contains a description of the Almighty's power; though it will be equally suitable to prove that to rely upon him will be the best means of escaping the punishment; since he who is so powerful can protect his servants even in general distress.

[b] Rashi, "he maketh the plundered stronger than the mighty."

[c] The usual place where the judges met.

offerings and your meat-offerings, I will not accept them in favour: and the peace-offerings of your fatted cattle will I not look at.

23 Remove thou from around me the noise of thy songs: and the playing of thy psalteries I will not hear.

24 But let justice roll along like water, and righteousness like a mighty stream.

25 Have[a] ye offered unto me sacrifices and meat-offerings in the wilderness (during) forty years, O house of Israel?

26 Bear[b] then the canopy of your chief idol, and the figure of your images, the star of your god, which ye have made for yourselves.

27 And I will cause you to go into exile far beyond Damascus, saith the LORD, The God of hosts is his name.

CHAPTER VI.

1 ¶ Wo to those that are free from care in Zion, and that are in safety on the mount of Samaria, who are named[c] the chief of the nations, to whom the house of Israel come!

2 Pass ye over unto Calneh, and see; and go from there to Chamath-rabbah;[d] then go down to Gath of the Philistines: whether they be better than these kingdoms? or whether their territory be greater than your territory?

3 (Ye) that deem far away the evil day, and cause the seat of violence to come near;

4 That lie upon beds of ivory, and are stretched out upon their couches, and eat lambs out of the flock, and calves out of the midst of the stall;

5 That chant[e] to the sound of the psaltery, and like David's do they imagine[f] their instrument of music to be;

6 That drink out of wine-bowls, and anoint themselves with the costliest of ointments; but who feel no pain for the wound of Joseph.

7 Therefore now shall they go into exile at the head of exiles, and the noisy banquet[g] of those that were stretched out shall pass away.

8 ¶ The Lord Eternal hath sworn by his own existence, saith the LORD the God of hosts, I abhor the pride of Jacob, and his palaces do I hate: therefore will I surrender up (to the enemy) the city with all that filleth it.

9 And it shall come to pass, that if there remain ten men in one house, they shall die.

10 And should a man's uncle or relative carry him forth, to bring out the bones out of the house, and say unto him that is in the recesses of the house, Is there yet any one with thee? he will say, There is no one left. Then will he say, Be silent; for we may not make mention of the name of the LORD.[h]

11 ¶ For, behold, the LORD commandeth, and he will smite the great house with breaches, and the little house with clefts.

12 Do horses ever run upon the rock? or will one plough there with oxen? that ye have turned justice into poison, and the fruit of righteousness into wormwood;

13 Ye who rejoice for a thing of naught, who say, Have we not through our own strength procured ourselves horns?[i]

14 For, behold, I will raise up against you a nation, O house of Israel, saith the LORD the God of hosts, and they shall oppress you from the entrance of Chamath unto the brook of the wilderness.

[a] Rashi comments, that God had not demanded free-will sacrifices. But Philippson takes the question as one to be answered affirmatively; God commanded and the people obeyed in this respect: still they every now and then worshipped idols. Hence he translates the next verse, "Still you carried," &c. Might it not be given, "Are these the sacrifices—which you have," &c.

[b] Rashi, "Ye shall therefore have to bear your idols which your enemies will place on your shoulders." We have followed generally Zunz in the rendering of this verse. Rashi, however, takes Sikkuth and Kiyun and Cochab as the names of the idols.

[c] Johlson renders נקבי "those who have a name," or "the nobles."

[d] English version, "Chamath the great."

[e] Rashi. Zunz, "that jingle with the psaltery."

[f] Rashi, with the comment, "They fancy their playing, which is for their own pleasure, to be equal to David's, which was for God's sake." Jonathan and others, "Like David, they invent for themselves instruments of music."

[g] Rashi, "drinking-feasts." Others, "song," or "shout." In the text both ideas are combined.

[h] Jonathan, "Cast them forth; for this hath happened to them because they have not mentioned the name of the LORD." Philippson, "it is not now the time to entreat the name of the LORD;" i. e. the evil is too great to expect relief by prayer. מכרך is explained by Redak to mean "a mother's brother." Rashi comments, "His relative and friend who saveth his bones out of the fire, by which the enemies had destroyed the house, will say to his associate who hath entered the house to search, Is there yet one alive out of those who had hidden themselves?" &c.

[i] Horns are a symbol of strength, (Deut. xxxiii. 17.)

CHAPTER VII.

1 ¶ Thus did the Lord Eternal show unto me: and, behold, he was forming locusts[a] in the beginning of the sprouting up of the latter growth; and, lo, it was the latter growth after the king's mowings (was over).

2 And it came to pass, when they had made an end of eating up the herbs of the earth, that I said, O Lord Eternal, forgive, I beseech thee: how should Jacob be able to endure, since he is so small?

3 The LORD bethought himself of this: It shall not be, said the LORD.

4 ¶ Thus did the Lord Eternal show unto me: and, behold, the Lord Eternal called forth the punishment[b] by fire, and it devoured the great deep, and consumed the ploughed field.

5 Then said I, O Lord Eternal, forbear, I beseech thee: how should Jacob be able to endure, since he is so small?

6 The LORD bethought himself of this: Also this shall not be, said the Lord Eternal.

7 ¶ Thus he showed unto me: and, behold, the LORD was standing upon a wall (made) by a plumbline, and in his hand was a plumbline.

8 And the LORD said unto me, What dost thou see, 'Amos? And I said, A plumbline. Then said the Lord, Behold, I will set a plumbline in the midst of my people Israel; I will not farther indulge them any more.[c]

9 And the high places of Isaac shall be made desolate, and the sanctuaries of Israel shall be laid in ruins: and I will rise up against the house of Jerobo'am with the sword.

10 ¶ Then sent Amazyah, the priest of Beth-el, to Jerobo'am the king of Israel, saying, 'Amos hath conspired against thee in the midst of the house of Israel: the land is not able to bear all his words.

11 For thus hath 'Amos said, By the sword shall Jerobo'am die, and Israel shall surely be led away into exile out of their own land.

12 ¶ And Amazyah said unto 'Amos, Seër, go, flee thee away into the land of Judah, and eat there (thy) bread, and there prophesy;

13 But at Beth-el prophesy not farther any more; for it is the king's sanctuary, and it is a royal residence.

14 Then answered 'Amos, and said to Amazyah, I am[d] no prophet, nor am I a prophet's son; but I am a herdman, and a gatherer[e] of wild figs;

15 But the LORD hath taken me away from behind the flocks, and the LORD said unto me, Go, prophesy unto my people Israel.

16 And now hear thou the word of the LORD, Thou sayest, Prophecy not against Israel, and preach not against the house of Isaac.

17 Therefore thus hath said the LORD, Thy wife will play the harlot in the city, and thy sons and thy daughters shall fall by the sword, and thy land shall be divided out by the line; and thou shalt die in an unclean land; and Israel shall surely be led forth into exile out of their land.

CHAPTER VIII.

1 ¶ Thus did the Lord Eternal show unto me: and, behold, there was a basket of summer fruit.[f]

2 And he said, What dost thou see, 'Amos? And I said, A basket of summer fruit. Then said the LORD unto me, The end is come for my people Israel: I will not farther indulge them any more.

3 And the songs of the temple shall become a wailing on that day, saith the Lord Eternal: many shall be the dead bodies; in every place shall men throw them down, (saying,) Be silent.[g]

[a] Probably in their caterpillar state, in which they are most destructive.

[b] Johlson. Rashi, "he called (his council, i. e. his angels or messengers) to contend with you by the punishment of burning fire."

[c] Meaning, as the builder erects his wall straight by the plummet, so shall Israel be dealt with after the strict line of justice, with no longer indulgence for their crimes. עבור "passing by," i. e. sin; hence, "indulging," or "pardoning."

[d] i. e. Not a prophet by profession, in reply to Amazyah's advice to go to Judah and there live by his prophesying, as the false soothsayers did who were supported by the royal bounty. (1 Kings xviii. 19.)

[e] בולס is variously rendered "gathering," "cultivating," "mixing," i. e. with other provisions for the cattle, or "pinching," "scraping," to make the fruit come to maturity. Others use "sycamore" for "wild figs." Rashi and others conceive 'Amos's reply to mean that he was a rich herdman; Philippson, that he was very poor, and lived of the simplest food.

[f] Rashi, "late figs, which are not good." Philippson, "ripe figs." Zunz, "dried fruit."

[g] Jonathan, (as above, vi. 10,) "in every place they

4 ¶ Hear this, O ye that are greedy to swallow the needy, and to ruin the poor of the land,

5 Saying, When will the new moon be gone, that we may sell provision? and the sabbath, that we may open the corn-warehouses, making the ephah small, and increasing the shekel, and cheating[a] with deceitful balances?

6 That we may buy the poor for silver, and the needy for a pair of shoes; and even sell the refuse of the corn?

7 Sworn hath the LORD by the excellency of Jacob. Surely I will not forget to eternity all their works.

8 Shall because of this the land not tremble, and mourn every one that dwelleth therein? and shall it not rise up like a stream wholly, and roll onward and sink again like the stream of Egypt?[b]

9 ¶ And it shall come to pass on that day, saith the Lord Eternal, that I will cause the sun to set at noon, and I will bring darkness over the earth on a bright day;

10 And I will change your feasts into mourning, and all your songs into lamentations; and I will bring upon all loins sackcloth, and upon every head baldness; and I will cause (the land)[c] to mourn as one doth for an only son, and its end to be as a day of bitter (complaint).

11 ¶ Behold, days are coming, saith the Lord Eternal, when I will send a famine in the land, not a famine for bread, nor a thirst for water, but to hear the words of the LORD:

12 And they will wander about from sea to sea, and from the north even to the east, they will roam about to seek the word of the LORD; but they shall not find it.[d]

13 On that day shall the fair virgins and the young men faint for thirst;

14 Those that swear by the guilt of Samaria, and say, As thy god liveth, O Dan; and, As liveth the worshipped[e] idol of Beër-sheba',—yea, they shall fall, and never rise up again.

CHAPTER IX.

1 ¶ I saw the Lord standing upon the altar; and he said, Smite the capital,[f] that the sills may quake; and break them in pieces over the head of all of them; and their posterity will I slay with the sword: there shall not flee away from them one that fleeth, and there shall not escape from them one that is saved.

2 Though they were to creep down into the nether world, thence would my hand fetch them; and though they were to climb up to the heavens, thence would I bring them down;

3 And though they were to hide themselves on the top of Carmel, thence would I search and take them out; and though they were to conceal themselves from before my eyes in the bottom of the sea, thence would I command the serpent, that he should bite them;

4 And though they were to go into captivity before their enemies, thence would I command the sword, that it should slay them: and I will set my eye upon them for evil, and not for good.

5 And the Lord Eternal of hosts it is that toucheth the earth, and she melteth away, and all that dwell thereon shall mourn; and she riseth up like a stream wholly; and she sinketh like the stream of Egypt;

6 That buildeth in the heavens his steps, and hath founded his vault[g] over the earth; that calleth for the waters of the sea, and poureth them out over the face of the earth: The LORD is his name.

7 ¶ Are ye not like the children of the will say, Cast out, remove them from here." But Aben Ezra and Redak, as in the text; i. e. they throw down the dead without burial, saying to each other, "Be silent."

[a] Jonathan.

[b] Descriptive of an earthquake, where the surface of the earth rises and falls, and frequently landslides take place, as though a river were rolling along, swelling and again receding from an accumulation of the water of the melted snow and copious rains. The prophet names the Nile, because it is preëminently subject to periodical swelling.

[c] Aben Ezra and Redak. Lit. "I will render it as a mourning for," &c.

[d] Meaning, in their distress they will seek for prophets, but they shall have ceased to be. Is not this Israel's present state? since for so many centuries there has been no spirit of prophecy dispensed.

[e] Lit. "way," "custom," hence that to whom customarily homage is paid, or the idol of Beër-sheba'.

[f] Rashi, "the buttons on the top of the roof." Redak, "the lintel," so called from being ornamented with buttons and flowers.

[g] Rashi, "the assemblage of the righteous is the cause of the foundation of the earth for the vault of heaven; because for their sake all endureth."

Ethiopians' unto me, O children of Israel? saith the LORD: have I not brought up Israel out of the land of Egypt? and the Philistines from Caphtor, and the Syrians from Kir?

8 Behold, the eyes of the LORD Eternal are upon the sinful kingdom, and I will destroy it from off the face of the earth; save only that I will not utterly destroy the house of Jacob, saith the LORD.

9 For, lo, I will give the command, and I will shake about among all the nations the house of Israel, as one shaketh things in a sieve, while not the least piece falleth down upon the earth.

10 By the sword shall die all the sinners of my people, who say, The evil will not come near (us), nor hasten along for our sake.

11 On that day will I raise up the tabernacle of David which is fallen; and I will close up its breaches; and its ruins will I raise up, and I will rebuild it as in days of old:

12 In order that they may take possession of the remnant of Edom, and of all the nations, which are called by my name, saith the LORD that doth this.

13 ¶ Behold, days are coming, saith the LORD, when the ploughman shall come close up to the harvester, and the treader of the grapes to the one that scattereth[b] the seed: and the mountains shall drop with sweet new wine, and all the hills shall melt away.[c]

14 And I will bring back the captivity of my people Israel, and they shall build the wasted cities, and dwell therein; and they shall plant vineyards, and drink their wine; and they shall lay out gardens, and eat their fruit.

15 And I will plant them upon their own soil, and they shall not be pulled up any more out of their land which I have given unto them, saith the LORD thy God.

THE PROPHECY OF OBADIAH,

נבואת עבדיה.

1 ¶ THE vision of 'Obadiah: Thus hath said the Lord Eternal concerning Edom, A rumour have we heard from the LORD, and an ambassador is sent among the nations. Arise ye, and let us rise up against her to war.

2 Behold, I make thee small among the nations: thou shalt be greatly despised.

3 The presumption of thy heart hath beguiled thee, thou that dwellest in the clefts of the rock, whose habitation is high; that saith in his heart, Who shall bring me down to the ground?

4 Though thou wert to rise as high as the eagle, and though thou set thy nest among the stars, thence will I bring thee down, saith the LORD.

5 How? are thieves come to thee? or night-prowling robbers? how destroyed[d] art thou! would they not have stolen till they had enough? if grape-gatherers had come to thee, would they not have left some gleanings?

6 How are (the treasures) of Esau searched out! how are his hidden things laid open!

7 Up to the border have accompanied thee all the men of thy confederacy; beguiled, overcome thee have the men that were at peace with thee: (they that eat) thy bread

[a] i. e. God is just to all, whether Israel or others.

[b] Lit. "draweth forth."

[c] Meaning, overflowing with the abundance of all the products of the earth.

[d] Redak, "cut off." Zunz, according to the sense, "emptied out." Jonathan, "how didst thou sleep till they had stolen enough?" taking נרכיתה equal to נרדמת, or as being silent through drowsiness have struck thee secretly a wound.[a] There is no understanding in him.[b]

8 Shall I not on that same day, saith the LORD, even destroy the wise men out of Edom, and understanding out of the mount of Esau?

9 And thy mighty men, O Theman, shall be dismayed, in order that every one from the mount of Esau may be cut off by slaughter.

10 Because of thy violence against thy brother Jacob shall shame cover thee, and thou shalt be cut off for ever.

11 On the day that thou stoodest on the other side, on the day that strangers carried away captive his army, and foreigners entered into his gates, and cast lots over Jerusalem, also thou wast as any one of them.

12 But thou shouldst not have[c] looked on (pleased) at the day of thy brother, on the day that he was delivered up to strangers; neither shouldst thou have rejoiced over the children of Judah on the day of their destruction; nor shouldst thou have spoken proudly on the day of distress.

13 Thou shouldst not have entered into the gate of my people on the day of their calamity; yea, thou too shouldst not have looked (pleased) on their affliction on the day of their calamity; nor have laid hands on their army on the day of their calamity;

14 Neither shouldst thou have stood in the crossway, to cut off those of his that did escape; neither shouldst thou have delivered up those of his that did remain on the day of distress.

15 For near is the day of the LORD over all the nations: as thou hast done, shall it be done unto thee; thy deeds[d] shall return upon thy own head.

16 For as ye[e] have drunk upon my holy mount, so shall all the nations drink continually; yea, they shall drink, and they shall reel[f] about, and they shall be as though they had not been.

17 But upon mount Zion shall be deliverance, and it shall be holy: and the house of Jacob shall again possess their inheritances.

18 And the house of Jacob shall be a fire, and the house of Joseph a flame, and the house of Esau become stubble, and they shall set them on fire, and devour them; and there shall not be any one remaining of the house of Esau; for the LORD hath spoken it.

19 And they of the south shall possess the mount of Esau; and they of the lowlands, the Philistines; and they shall possess the fields of Ephraim, and the fields of Samaria: and Benjamin (shall possess) Gil'ad.

20 And the exiles of this host of the children of Israel that[g] are (with) the Canaanites, as far as Zarephath, and the exiles of Jerusalem, who are in Sepharad, shall possess the cities of the south.

21 And deliverers shall go up on mount Zion to judge the mount of Esau: and the kingdom shall be the LORD's.

THE PROPHECY OF JONAH,

נבואת יונה.

CHAPTER I.

1 ¶ The word of the Lord also came unto Jonah the son of Amitthai, saying,

2 Arise, go unto Nineveh, the great city, and proclaim against her; for their wickedness is come up before me.

3 But Jonah rose up to flee unto Tharshish from the presence of the Lord; and he went down to Joppa, and found a ship going to Tharshish, and paid the fare thereof, and went down into it, to go with them unto Tharshish, from the presence of the Lord.

4 But the Lord excited a great wind upon the sea, and there was a mighty tempest on the sea; and it was thought[a] that the ship would be broken in pieces.

5 And the mariners were afraid, and called every man unto his god; and they cast forth the articles which were in the ship into the sea, to be lightened of them. But Jonah was gone down into the hold of the ship, and lay down, and was fast asleep.

6 So the ship-master came near unto him, and said unto him, Why dost thou sleep?[b] arise, call upon thy God: perhaps it be that God will think of us, that we may not be lost.

7 And they said one to the other, Come, and let us cast lots; that we may know for whose cause this evil hath happened unto us. And they cast lots, and the lot fell upon Jonah.

8 Then said they unto him, Tell us, we pray thee, thou for whose cause this evil hath happened unto us, What is thy business? and whence comest thou? what is thy country? and of what people art thou?

9 And he said unto them, I am a Hebrew; and I fear the Lord, the God of heaven, who hath made the sea and the dry land.

10 Then were the men exceedingly afraid and they said unto him, What is this thou hast done? for the men knew that he was flying from the presence of the Lord; because he had told them.

11 And they said unto him, What shall we do unto thee, that the sea may become calm[c] around us? for the sea grew more and more tempestuous.

12 And he said unto them, Take me up, and cast me forth into the sea: so shall the sea be calm around you; for I know well that because of me is this great tempest upon you.

13 Nevertheless the men rowed hard to bring (the ship) back to the land; but they could not; for the sea grew more and more tempestuous around them.

14 And they called unto the Lord, and said, We beseech thee, O Lord, let us not be lost, we pray thee, for the life of this man, and lay not upon us (the guilt of) innocent blood; for thou art the Lord, as it pleaseth thee so dost thou do.

15 And they took up Jonah, and cast him forth into the sea: and the sea ceased from its raging.

16 And the men feared the Lord very greatly; and they offered a sacrifice unto the Lord, and made vows.

CHAPTER II.[d]

1 And the Lord made ready a large fish to swallow up Jonah: and Jonah was in the belly[e] of the fish three days and three nights.

2 Then prayed Jonah unto the Lord his God out of the belly of the fish,

3 And he said, I called from the midst of my distress unto the Lord, and he hath answered me: out of the depth[f] of the grave have I cried, and thou hast heard my voice.

[a] Lit. "the ship thought to be broken."

[b] Rashi. Eng. ver. "What meanest thou, O sleeper?" Heb. "silent from us."

[c] In the English version, chap. ii. commences at ver. 2.

[e] Heb. "bowels."

[f] Rashi, "the belly of the fish, which is like the grave unto me." Philippson, "the bosom of the nether world." Zunz, "of hell."

4 For thou hast cast me into the deep, in the heart of the seas; and the stream compasseth me about: all thy billows and thy waves have passed over me.

5 And I thought indeed, I am driven out from before thy eyes: yet I again shall look toward thy holy temple.

6 The waters surrounded me, to the peril[a] of my life; the deep compassed me about: sea-weeds were bound about my head.

7 To the bottoms of the mountains did I go down; the earth (closed) her bars about me for ever: when thou broughtest up my life from the pit,[b] O LORD my God!

8 When my soul fainted within me I remembered the LORD: and my prayer came unto thee, unto thy holy temple.

9 They that guard false vanities forsake (the source of) their kindness.[c]

10 But I will sacrifice unto thee with the voice of thanksgiving; that which I have vowed will I pay; (for) help is with the LORD.

11 And the LORD commanded[d] the fish, and it vomited out Jonah upon the dry land.

CHAPTER III.

1 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto Jonah the second time, saying,

2 Arise, go unto Nineveh, the great city, and proclaim unto it the proclamation which I shall speak unto thee.

3 And Jonah arose, and went unto Nineveh, according to the word of the LORD. Now Nineveh was a great city before God,[e] a three days' journey.

4 And Jonah began to go through[f] the city one day's journey, and he called out, and said, Yet forty days more, and Nineveh shall be overthrown.

5 And the men of Nineveh believed in God; and they proclaimed a fast, and put on sackcloth, from the greatest of them to the least of them.

6 For when the matter was come unto the king of Nineveh, he arose from his throne, and put off his mantle from him, and covered himself with sackcloth, and sat down on ashes.

7 And he caused to be proclaimed and he published[g] through Nineveh, By the decree of the king and his chief men, it is said, Neither man nor beast, neither herds nor flocks, shall taste any thing; they shall not feed, nor drink water;

8 But let man and beast be covered with sackcloth, and let (men) call unto God with might; and let them turn every one from his evil way, and from the violence which is in their hands.

9 Who knoweth,[h] but God may turn and bethink himself, and turn away from the fierceness of his anger, that we perish not?

10 And God saw their works, that they had turned from their evil way: and God bethought himself of the evil, which he had spoken that he would do unto them, and he did it not.

CHAPTER IV.

1 But it displeased Jonah exceedingly; and he was wroth.

2 And he prayed unto the LORD, and said, I pray thee, O LORD, was not this my word, while I was yet in my own country? Therefore made I haste[i] to fly unto Tharshish; for I knew that thou art a gracious God, and merciful, long-suffering, and abundant in kindness, and repentant of the evil.

3 And now, O LORD, take, I pray thee, my soul from me; because it is better for me to die, than to live.

4 And the LORD said, Art thou very wroth?[k]

5 Now Jonah was gone out of the city, and dwelt on the east side of the city; and he had made himself there a booth, and sat under it in the shade, till he should see what would become of the city.

6 And the LORD God made ready a gourd, and it grew up over Jonah, to be a shade over his head, to relieve him from his affliction. And Jonah rejoiced because of the gourd exceedingly.

7 But God made ready a worm when the morning dawned on the morrow, and it smote the gourd that it withered.

8 And it came to pass, when the sun arose, that God made ready a hot east wind; and the sun beat upon the head of Jonah, that he became faint; and he wished for himself to die, and said, It is better for me to die than to live.

9 And God said unto Jonah, Art thou very wroth for the gourd? And he said, I am very wroth, even unto death.

10 And the LORD said, Thou wouldst have spared the gourd, for which thou hadst not laboured, neither hadst thou made it grow; which came up in one night, and perished in one night:

11 And shall I not spare Nineveh, that great city, wherein are more than twelve times ten thousand persons, who know not how to discern between their right hand and their left hand, and also much cattle?

THE PROPHECY OF MICAH,

נבואת מיכה.

CHAPTER 1.

1 ¶ THE word of the LORD that came to Micah[a] the Morashthite in the days of Jotham, Achaz, (and) Hezekiah, the kings of Judah, which he foresaw concerning Samaria and Jerusalem.

2 Hear, ye people, altogether; listen, O earth, with all that filleth it: and let the Lord Eternal be witness against you, the Lord from his holy temple.

3 For, behold, the LORD cometh forth out of his residence;[b] and he will come down, and will step along[c] upon the high places of the earth.

4 And the mountains shall melt beneath him, and the valleys shall cleave in twain, like wax (melteth) before the fire, like water poured out on a declivity.

5 For the transgression of Jacob is all this, and for the sins of the house of Israel. Who[d] caused the transgression of Jacob? is it not Samaria? and who caused the high-places of Judah? is it not Jerusalem?

6 Therefore will I change Samaria into stone-heaps on the field, into vineyard plantations: and I will hurl down into the valley her stones, and her foundations will I lay open.

7 And all her graven images shall be beaten to pieces, and all her wages of sin shall be burnt with the fire, and all her idols will I make desolate; for from harlot's wages she gathered them, and for harlot's wages shall they be used again.

8 For this will I lament and wail; I will go confused[e] and naked: I will make a lament like the crocodiles, and mourning like the ostriches.

9 For her wounds[f] are incurable; for (the evil) is come even unto Judah; (the enemy) hath reached as far as the gate of my people, even up to Jerusalem.

10 Tell it not at Gath, weep ye not loudly (there): in Beth-le'aphrah roll thyself in the dust.

11 Pass ye away, ye inhabitants of Shaphir, having your shame laid bare: the inhabitress of Zaänan cometh not forth (any more); the mourning of Beth-haëzel taketh from you its halting place.[g]

[a] Properly, Michah. Morashthite, a man of Moreshah.

[b] Lit. "place." [c] Lit. "tread."

[d] Redak. Jonathan, "Where is the transgression of Jacob, is it not at Samaria?" &c.

[e] Rashi and Aben Ezra. Others, "stripped," or "bare." Zunz, "wild."

[f] Rashi, "she is sick of her wounds."

[g] After Philippson; meaning, Beth-haëzel being captured will prevent its becoming a place for making a stand against the enemy. Rashi takes בית האצל as meaning "bringing fields close together," i. e. by robbing; and translates, "the mourning which ye caused those ye plundered by depriving them of their inheritance to join it to 12 For the inhabitress of Maroth is grieved[a] for the (lost) good; because evil came down from the LORD unto the gate of Jerusalem.

13 Bind the chariot to the swift horses, O inhabitress of Lachish: the beginning of sin was she to the daughter of Zion; for in thee were found the transgressions of Israel.

14 Therefore shalt thou have to give presents to Moresheth-gath: the houses of Achzib shall become a deception to the kings of Israel.

15 Yet will I bring an (enemy as) heir[b] unto thee, O inhabitant of Mareshah: as far as 'Adullam shall withdraw[c] the glory of Israel.

16 Make thyself bald, and cut off thy hair for the children of thy delight; enlarge thy baldness like the eagle; because they are gone into exile from thee.

CHAPTER II.

1 ¶ Wo to those that devise wickedness, and resolve on evil upon their couches! by the first light of the morning they execute it, if[d] they have it in the power of their hand.

2 And they covet fields, and rob them; and houses, and take them away: so they defraud the master and his house, and the man and his heritage.

3 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the LORD, Behold, I will devise against this family an evil, from which ye shall not remove your necks; nor shall ye go erect; for it is an evil time.

4 On that day shall one take up a parable against you, and lament with a mournful lamentation, and say, "We are utterly wasted: the portion of my people hath he exchanged; how hath he removed it from me! instead of restoring (them to us)[e] he divideth our fields."

5 Therefore shalt thou have none that shall draw[f] the (measuring) cord in (his) lot in the congregation of the LORD.

6 "Preach not;" (but) they shall preach:[g] they shall not preach (indeed) to these, that reproach may not overtake them.

7 Shall it be said[h] (in) the house of Jacob, Is the spirit of the LORD straightened? are these his doings? Do not my words do good to him that walketh uprightly?

8 But long since is my people risen up as an enemy: from the garment do ye pull off the ornament;[i] of those that pass by securely (ye make) men returned from war.[j]

9 The wives of my people do you drive out of their delightful houses; from their children do ye take away my ornament for ever.

10 Arise ye, and depart; for this is not your resting-place; because it is polluted, it shall destroy (you), even with a grievous destruction.

11 If a man that goeth after wind and lieth with falsehood (should say), "I will preach unto thee of wine and of strong drink:" he would be a preacher for this people.

12 I will (once) surely assemble, O Jacob, all of thee; I will surely gather up the remnant of Israel; I will place them together as flocks in the fold,[k] as droves in the midst of their pen: they shall be crowded[l] with men.

yours, will cause your buildings erected thereon to have no permanence;" i. e. they shall fall, not stand. Zunz, "the mourning procession of Beth-haëzel taketh (already) its stand by you." It is a difficult verse.

[a] Aben Ezra; but Rashi, "she hoped for good."

[b] Johlson, "conqueror;" and makes him the nominative to the end of the verse.

[c] Rashi; i. e. the enemy shall drive the Israelites before him up to 'Adullam, before they shall be able to halt. Philippson, "up to 'Adullam cometh he (the enemy) against the pride of Israel."

[d] Others, "because."

[e] Aben Ezra; i. e. the enemy divides the land, which the Israelites hoped should return to them. So Rashi also, "The portion of my people is transferred to the enemy; how will he turn unto me again to restore to us our fields, which now that enemy divideth." Philippson, "depriving us of them they divide the fields." Johlson, "to the enemy are our fields apportioned."

[f] Lit. "cast," i. e. on the ground; or draw it out to measure with it.

[g] Philippson; but Rashi, "you prophets, who always preach."

[h] Rashi. Zunz, "thou, called, House of Jacob, is the LORD quick to become wroth?" &c.

[i] Rashi; i. e. the ornaments which are fast on the garments they pull off by force, thus defacing them; and make those who walk along securely look as though they had returned in tatters from a battle.

them; they break in and pass through the gate, and go[a] out by it: and their king passeth on before them, and the LORD at their head.

CHAPTER III.

1 ¶ And I said, Hear, I pray you, O ye heads of Jacob, and ye princes of the house of Israel! Is it not for you to know what is justice?

2 (But they are those) who hate the good, and love the evil; who tear their skin from off them, and their flesh from off their bones;

3 Who also eat the flesh of my people, and flay their skin from off them; and who crush their bones, and chop them in pieces, as that to be put in a pot, and as flesh within a caldron.

4 Then will they cry unto the LORD, but he will not hear them; and he will hide his face from them at that time, as they have committed their evil deeds.

5 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD concerning the prophets that mislead my people, who, when they have something to bite with their teeth, cry, Peace; but who prepare war against him who putteth nothing in their mouth:

6 Therefore shall the night be unto you, without a vision; and it shall be dark unto you, without divining; and the sun shall go down around the prophets, and the day shall be obscured around them.[b]

7 Thus shall the seërs be made ashamed, and the diviners be put to the blush: yea, they shall all wrap themselves up to the upper lip;[c] for there is no answer of God.

8 But truly I am indeed full of strength by the spirit of the LORD, and (of power) of judging, and of might, to tell unto Jacob his transgression, and to Israel his sin.

9 ¶ Hear this, I pray you, ye heads of the house of Jacob, and ye princes of the house of Israel, that abhor justice, and make crooked all that is straight.

10 They build up Zion with blood-guiltiness, and Jerusalem with wrong.

11 Her heads judge for bribes, and her priests teach for reward, and her prophets divine for money: and yet will they lean upon the LORD, and say, Is not the LORD among us? evil cannot come over us.

12 Therefore for your sake shall Zion be ploughed up as a field, and Jerusalem shall become ruinous heaps, and the mount of the house, forest-covered high-places.[d]

CHAPTER IV.

1 ¶ And it shall come to pass in the last days, that the mountain of the LORD'S house shall be firmly established on the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and unto it shall people flow.

2 And many nations shall come, and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of the LORD, and to the house of the God of Jacob; that he may teach us of his ways, and we may walk in his paths; for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the LORD out of Jerusalem.

3 And he shall judge between many people, and decide for strong nations even afar off; and they shall beat their swords into plough-shares, and their spears into pruning-knives: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, and they shall not learn any more war.

4 But they shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig-tree, with none to make them afraid; for the mouth of the LORD of hosts hath spoken it.

5 (But) though[e] all the people should walk every one in the name of his god, yet will we walk in the name of the LORD our God for ever and ever.

6 ¶ On that day, saith the LORD, will I assemble her that halteth, and her that is driven out will I gather, and her to whom I have done evil;

7 And I will make of her that halted a remnant, and of her that was cast off far away a strong nation: and the LORD will

[a] Zunz, "through which the others went out." The prophet briefly describes the return of the dispersed of Israel at the restoration, when all difficulties shall vanish; the prince leads, but God prepares the way.

[b] The preceding verse says how the prophets would prophesy for wages peace, or declare war if not paid; and now they are told that they shall be deprived of the means of deceiving, as the night shall be too dark to look at the stars and the sun be obscured in the day.

reign over them on mount Zion, from this time and unto eternity.

8 ¶ And thou, O tower[a] of flocks, the strong-hold of the daughter of Zion, unto thee shall go,[b] and shall come, the former dominion, the kingdom belonging to the daughter of Jerusalem.

9 Now why dost thou cry aloud? is there no king in thee? is thy counsellor lost? that pangs have seized on thee as on a woman in travail?

10 Be in pain, and labour to bring forth,[c] O daughter of Zion, like a woman in travail; for now shalt thou go forth out of the town, and thou shalt dwell in the field, and thou shalt go as far as Babylon; there shalt thou be delivered; there will the LORD redeem thee from the grasp of thy enemies.

11 And now many nations are gathered against thee, that say, Let her be defiled, and let our eye look with pleasure on Zion.

12 But they know not the thoughts of the LORD, and they understand not his counsel: that he will (once) gather them as the sheaves into the threshing-floor.

13 Arise and thresh, O daughter of Zion; for I will render thy horn iron, and thy hoofs will I render copper, and thou shalt beat in pieces many people: and I will devote unto the LORD their ill-gotten gain, and their substance unto the Lord of the whole earth.

14[d] Now gather thyself in troops, O daughter of troops;[e] they lay siege against us: with the rod they smite upon the cheek the judge of Israel.

CHAPTER V.

1 ¶ But thou, Beth-lechem Ephratah, the least (though) thou be among the thousands of Judah, (yet) out of thee shall he come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel, whose origin is from olden times, from most ancient days.

2 Therefore will he give them up, until the time that she[f] who travaileth hath brought forth: then shall the remnant of his brethren return with the children of Israel.

3 And he shall stand forward and feed (Israel) through the strength of the LORD, through the excellency of the name of the LORD his God: and they shall abide (safely); for now shall he be great even unto the ends of the earth.

4 And in this (manner) shall there be peace: If Asshur should come into our land; and if he should tread in our palaces, then will we raise up against him seven shepherds, and eight anointed[g] men.

5 And they shall lay waste the land of Asshur with the sword, and the land of Nimrod in the gates of its (cities): thus will he deliver us from Asshur, if he should come into our land, and if he should tread within our borders.

6 ¶ And the remnant of Jacob shall be in the midst of many people like dew from the LORD, like showers upon the herbs, that wait not for man, nor hope for the sons of man.

7 And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the nations, in the midst of many people, like a lion among the beasts of the forest, like a young lion among flocks of sheep: who, if he break in,[h] both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, while none can deliver.

8 High shall thy hand be lifted up above thy adversaries, and all thy enemies shall be cut off.

9 ¶ And it shall come to pass on that day, saith the LORD, that I will cut off thy horses out of the midst of thee, and I will destroy thy chariots;

10 And I will cut off the cities of thy land, and I will throw down all thy strongholds;

11 And I will cut off the arts of witchcraft out of thy hand; and soothsayers shalt thou have no more;

12 And I will cut off thy graven images, and thy statues out of the midst of thee; and thou shalt no more prostrate thyself to the work of thy hands;

13 And I will pluck up thy groves out of the midst of thee; and I will destroy thy enemies.[a]

14 And I will in anger and in fury execute vengeance upon the nations, upon those that have not hearkened.

CHAPTER VI.

1 ¶ Do but hear now what the LORD saith, Arise, contend thou before[b] the mountains, and let the hills hear thy voice.

2 Hear ye, O mountains, the controversy of the LORD, and ye strong foundations of the earth! for the LORD hath a controversy with his people, and with Israel will he plead.

3 O my people, what have I done unto thee? and wherewith have I wearied thee? testify against me.

4 Although[c] I had brought thee up out of the land of Egypt, and redeemed thee out of the house of bond-men; and I sent before thee Moses, Aaron, and Miriam.

5 O my people, do but remember what Balak thy king of Moäb resolved, and what Bil'am the son of Be'or answered him, from Shittim[d] unto Gilgal, in order that ye may know the gracious benefits of the LORD.

6 Wherewith shall I come before the LORD, bow myself before the God on high? shall I come before him with burnt-offerings, with calves of a year old?

7 Will the LORD be pleased with thousands of rams, or with myriads of streams of oil? shall I give my first-born for my transgression, the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul?

8 He hath told thee, O man, what is good; and what the LORD doth require of thee: (nothing) but to do justice, and to love kindness, and to walk humbly with thy God.

9 ¶ The voice of the LORD calleth unto the city,—and (the man of) wisdom shall see thy name:—hear ye the rod (of punishment), and who hath ordained it.

10 Are there yet in the house of the wicked man the treasures of wickedness, and the scant accursed measure?[e]

11 Can I be pure with wicked balances, and with a bag (full) of deceptive weights?

12 For her rich men are full of violence, and her inhabitants have spoken falsehood, and their tongue is deceit (itself) in their mouth.

13 Therefore have I also smitten thee with sore wounds, making (thee) desolate because of thy sins.

14 Thou wilt indeed eat, but not be satisfied; and what thou hast eaten shall bend thee down;[f] and thou wilt overtake (the enemy),[g] but thou shalt not deliver; and that which thou deliverest will I give up to the sword.

15 Thou wilt indeed sow, but thou shalt not reap; thou wilt indeed tread out olives, but thou shalt not anoint thyself with oil; and the juice of the grapes, but thou shalt not drink wine.

16 For there are observed the statutes of 'Omri, and all the works of the house of Achab, and ye walk in their counsels: in order that I should give thee up unto desolation, and thy inhabitants to derision; and ye shall bear the reproach of my[h] people.

CHAPTER VII.

1 ¶ Wo is me! for I am as in the gathering[i] of the summer-fruits, as in the grape-gleanings of the vintage: there is no cluster to eat, no first-ripe fruit for which my soul longeth.

2 The pious hath disappeared out of the [d] Rashi, "In Shittim you sinned, yet I withheld not the good nor my help from you, but brought you to Gilgal to inherit the land."

[e] Heb. Ephah, as a general term for measures. This is here represented as "scant" not up to the legal standard, hence, "accursed," or calling down the wrath of God.

[f] Rashi, בקרבך "what is in thy bowels," i. e. the food after it is eaten,—this shall be undigested, and cause a cramp and contraction. Zunz, "unappeasable hunger shall remain within thee."

[g] Rashi.

[h] Sept. "of the people."

[i] Rashi, "The prophet complains over himself that he was appointed prophet at a time when there were no righteous in the generation."

land; and the upright among men there is none, all of them lie in wait for blood; they hunt every man his brother with a net.

3 For the evil of your hands you expect good? while the prince demandeth (bribes), and the judge acteth for pay; and the great man is only speaking the wilful pleasure of his soul: and so do they make a network (of wrong).[a]

4 The best of them is like a brier; the most upright is (sharper) than a thorn-hedge: the day of thy watchmen,[b] thy punishment, is come; now shall be perplexity among them.

5 Trust ye not in a friend, put ye not confidence in a confidant:[c] from her that lieth in thy bosom guard the doors of thy mouth.

6 For the son disgraceth the father, the daughter riseth up against her mother, the daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law; a man's enemies are the men of his own house.

7 But I,—I will look unto the LORD; I will wait for the God of my salvation: my God will hear me.

8 Rejoice not, O my enemy,[d] over me: though I am fallen, I rise again; though I should sit in darkness, the LORD will be a light unto me.

9 ¶ The indignation of the LORD will I bear, because I have sinned against him; until that he plead my cause, and execute justice for me: (when) he will bring me forth to the light, and I shall behold his righteousness.

10 Then she that is my enemy will see it, and shame shall cover her, who said unto me, Where is the LORD thy God? My eyes shall complacently see her (suffer): now shall she be trodden down as the mire of the streets.

11 The day[e] that thy fences are to be built—that same day, the ordained, is yet far removed.[f]

12 It is a day when men shall come to thee from Assyria, and the cities of Mazor,[g] and from Mazor even to the river, and from sea to sea, and (from) mountain to mountain.

13 While[h] the land (of the nations) shall be made desolate because of its inhabitants, for the fruit of their doings.

14 ¶ Feed thy people with thy rod, the flock of thy heritage, which dwell in solitude in the wood, in the midst of Carmel: let them feed in Bashan and Gil'ad, as in the days of old.

15 As in the days of thy coming out of the land of Egypt will I let them see marvellous things.

16 Nations shall see and be ashamed of all their might: they shall lay their hand upon their mouth, their ears shall be deafened.

17 They shall lick the dust like the serpent; like those that crawl on the earth, shall they come forth trembling out of their close places: unto the LORD our God shall they hasten in dread, and shall be afraid of thee.

18 Who is a god like unto thee, pardoning iniquity, and forgiving[i] transgression to the residue of his heritage? he retaineth not his anger for ever, because he delighteth in kindness.

19 He will again have mercy on us, he will suppress our iniquities: yea, thou wilt cast all their sins into the depths of the sea.

20 Thou wilt show faithfulness unto Jacob, and kindness unto Abraham, which thou hast sworn unto our fathers in the days of old.

[a] This verse is rendered after Rashi; but Redak, "to confirm the evil in their hands, the judge," &c. Philippson, "In order to pronounce the evil of the hands good, the judge," &c.—"and the great expresseth the longing of his soul," i. e. for gifts.

[b] Rashi, "the day on which thou didst hope for happiness;" the watchmen are the prophets; the day they predicted was the time of punishment.

[c] Others, "chief," or "guide."

[d] Properly, "female enemy," which cannot be given with an English word.

[e] Rashi refers this verse to the enemy, and renders, "The day thou hopest for, to build thy fences—that day will remove afar its fixed time and will be delayed and never come."

[f] After Philippson, who refers the prophecy to Israel, the restoration of whom it is thus said will be after a long while, though certain.

[g] Redak, "Egypt." Others, "fortified cities."

[h] Rashi and Aben Ezra; but Philippson, "Notwithstanding the land (of Israel) was made desolate."

[i] Lit "passing by," i. e. not punishing.

THE PROPHECY OF NAHUM,

נבואה נחום.

CHAPTER I.

1 ¶ The doom of Nineveh. The book of the vision of Nahum[a] the Elkoshite.

2 A God watchful and avenging is the Lord; an avenger is the Lord, and full of fury; the Lord taketh vengeance on his adversaries, and keepeth in mind the deeds of his enemies.

3 The Lord is long-suffering, and great in power, but he will by no means clear the guilty: the Lord—in the whirlwind and in the storm is his way, and the clouds are the dust of his feet.

4 He rebuketh the sea, and maketh it dry, and all the rivers he drieth up: Bashan then withereth, with Carmel, and the flowers of Lebanon wither.

5 Mountains quake before him, and the hills melt away; and the earth is lifted up[b] at his presence, yea, the world, and all that dwell therein.

6 Before his indignation who can stand? and who can subsist[c] before the fierceness of his anger? his fury is poured out like fire, and the rocks are broken down by him.

7 The Lord is good, a strong-hold on the day of distress; and he knoweth[d] those that trust in him.

8 But with an overflowing flood will he utterly destroy the place of (Nineveh), and his enemies will he pursue with darkness.

9 What will you devise against the Lord? he is bringing about an utter destruction, the distress shall not rise up twice.

10 For they, like thorns interwoven, and as men made drunken in their drinking bout, shall be entirely consumed as dry stubble.

11 There is gone forth[e] out of thee he that devised evil against the Lord, the counsellor of infamous things.

12 ¶ Thus hath said the Lord, Though they be complete, and ever so many, nevertheless shall they be cut down,[f] and it shall be over (with them): and if even I have afflicted thee, I will afflict thee no more.

13 For now will I break his yoke from off thee, and thy bonds will I tear asunder.

14 But[g] against thee hath the Lord decreed, that no heir[h] of thy name shall be any more: out of the house of thy gods will I cut off the graven and the molten image; I will prepare thy grave (there);[i] for thou art made vile.

CHAPTER II.[k]

1 Behold, upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace, Celebrate thy feasts, O Judah, fulfil thy vows; for never more shall the wicked[l] pass again through thee, he is utterly cut off.

2 The destroyer is come up against thee[m] to enclose (thee) with works of siege: look out on the way, make thy loins strong, strengthen (thyself) greatly with power.

[a] Properly, Nachum.

[b] As is often the case in earthquakes, when hills sink and level land is upheaved. Rashi, Aben Ezra, &c. "riseth up in smoke," or "is burnt."

[c] Philippson, literally, "who can rise up."

[d] Basni, "(the wants of) those," &c.

[e] Philippson refers this and verse 12 to Israel, or Zion, meaning, that the wicked should be removed, and they should suffer no more through them. Rashi and others apply this verse to Nineveh, as the destroyer of God's people had come from it.

[f] Jonathan, "though they set across the Tigris and passed over the Euphrates."

[g] Verse 13 evidently refers to Jerusalem or Israel, and this to the king of Assyria.

[h] Lit. "there shall not be sown of thy name any more."

[i] After Rashi, who comments, "like thy father who was slain in the house of Nisrach his god." (See 2 Kings xix. 39.)

[k] In the English version, chap. ii. commences at ver. 2.

[m] Rashi conceives the land of Judah to be addressed here: "The destroyer that once came up against thee, is now himself besieged (by the king of Babylon); look out, thou man of Judah," &c. Aben Ezra thinks Nineveh is addressed.

3 For the LORD bringeth back again the excellency of Jacob, as also the excellency of Israel; for the plunderers[a] have plundered them, and have wasted the branches of their vines.

4 The shields of his mighty men are made red, the valiant men are (clothed) in scarlet: with the fire of the steel[b] the chariots (glitter) on the day when he prepareth himself (for battle), and the spears[c] are shaken.

5 In the streets the chariots rush madly along, they rattle through the public places: their appearance is like torches, they run along like the lightnings.

6 He will summon his valiant men, they shall stumble in their walk: they hasten to her walls, and the covering for defence is prepared.

7 The gates of the rivers are opened, and the palace is dissolved.

8 And the queen[d] is carried away into exile stripped of her attire, and her maids moan as with the voice of doves, striking their hand upon their breast.

9 And Nineveh was like a pool of water from the days that she existed: yet now they flee. "Stand, stand," (shall they cry,) but none shall look back.

10 Plunder silver, plunder gold; for without end are the treasures, there is an abundance[e] of all precious vessels.

11 She is void, and emptied out, and wasted; and the heart melteth, and the knees totter, and trembling is in all loins, and the faces of them all are covered with blackness.

12 Where is (now) the dwelling of the lions, and what was the feeding-place of the young lions, where the lion, the lioness, and the lion's whelp walked, and none made them afraid?

13 The lion tore in pieces (prey) enough for his whelps, and strangled for his lionesses, and filled with prey his holes, and his dens with what he had torn.

14 Behold, I will be against thee, saith the LORD of hosts, and I will burn into smoke thy[f] chariots, and thy young lions shall the sword devour: and I will cut off from the earth thy preying, and no more shall be heard the voice of thy messengers.

CHAPTER III.

1 ¶ Wo to the city of blood! it is all full of lies and robbery; never ceaseth the preying;

2 The noise of a whip, and the noise of the rattling of wheels, and of prancing horses, and of the skipping chariots.

3 Horsemen mount, and there are the flaming sword and the glittering spear: and there is a multitude of slain, and heaps of carcasses; and without end are the corpses; they stumble on their corpses;

4 Because of the multitude of the lewd deeds of the harlot, that is rich in gracefulness, the mistress of witchcrafts, that selleth nations through her lewd deeds, and families through her witchcrafts.

5 Behold, I will be against thee, saith the LORD of hosts; and I will lay thy skirts open over thy face, and I will let nations see thy nakedness, and kingdoms thy shame.

6 And I will cast abominable filth upon thee, and defile thee, and will render thee a dirt-heap.[g]

7 And it shall come to pass, that all they that see thee shall flee from thee, and say, Laid waste is Nineveh: who will condole with her? whence shall I seek comforters for thee?

8 Art thou better than No-amon, that was situated on the rivers, that had water round about her, the rampart of which was the sea,[h] and the walls of which rose out of the sea?

[a] Lit. "the emptiers have emptied them out."

[b] פלדת is supposed by Zunz and others to mean "steel," hence the weapons made of it, with which the chariots were supplied when they went to battle. Some (Rashi, Aben Ezra, and Redak) suppose it means "flames," or the sparks struck by the iron wheels as they are driven swiftly over the ground.

[c] Lit. "the fir trees," hence, "spears" or "arrows" made of this wood. Redak, "the spears are poisoned." The sentence is of difficult construction, and Jonathan renders it, "and the chiefs of the troops are enveloped in coloured garments.

[d] This verse is given after Rashi; but Redak takes והצב to stand by itself, as meaning, "the palace that stood in prosperity so many years is destroyed;" and Philippson, "And though he (i. e. the king) placed himself (in battle), she (Nineveh) is carried away into exile," &c.

[e] Johlson and others. Jonathan, "sweep it of all precious vessels."

[f] Lit. "her;" but the change of persons, as from the second to the third, is very frequent in the Bible.

[g] Philippson, "a spectacle."

[h] Philippson, "river," i. e. the Nile; so also Isa. xl 15; xix. 5.

9 Ethiopia the numerous,[a] and Egypt that was without end, Put and Lubim were thy helpers.

10 Yet also she was exiled, was carried away into captivity; also her young children were dashed in pieces at the corners of all streets; and for her honourable men they cast lots, and all her great ones were bound with chains.

11 Thou also shalt be made drunken, thou shalt be hidden from view: thou also shalt seek refuge because of the enemy.

12 All thy strong-holds shall be like fig-trees with the first-ripe figs, which, if they be shaken, will fall into the mouth of the eater.

13 Behold, thy people are become women in the midst of thee: unto thy enemies are the gates of thy land set wide open; the fire hath devoured thy bars.

14 Water for the siege draw for thyself, fortify thy strong-holds: go into the clay, and tread the mortar, make strong the brick-kiln.

15 There shall the fire devour thee; the sword shall cut thee off, it shall devour thee up like the cankerworm: (though) thou make[b] thyself many as the cankerworm; make thyself many as the locusts.

16 (Though) thou hadst multiplied thy merchants more than the stars of heaven: the cankerworm spreadeth itself out, and flieth away.

17 Thy crowned ones are like the locusts, and thy leaders like the swarms of locusts, which camp in the hedges on a cold day, but when the sun ariseth they flee away, and their place is not known where they are.

18 Thy shepherds slumber, O king of Assyria; thy valiant men are at rest: scattered are thy people upon the mountains, and there is none that gathereth them.

19 There is no healing for thy breach: fatal is thy wound: all that hear the report of thee will clap their hands over thee; for over whom did not thy wickedness pass continually?

THE PROPHECY OF HABAKKUK,

נבואה חבקוק.

CHAPTER I.

1 ¶ The prophecy which Habakkuk[c] the prophet foresaw.

2 How long, O Lord, have I entreated (thee), and thou wouldst not hear? (how long) shall I cry out unto thee (because of) violence, and thou wilt not save?

3 Why wilt thou let me see wickedness, and wilt look on trouble, and the robbery and violence (that are) before me: while[d] there is strife, and contention lifteth up (its head)?

4 Therefore is the law powerless, and justice cometh not forth victorious; for the wicked encompasseth about the righteous; therefore doth justice come forth perverted.

5 Look ye about among the nations, and behold and be astonished and astounded; for (God) will fulfil a work in your days, ye would not believe it, if it were only told you.

6 For, lo, I will raise up the Chaldeans, that bitter and impetuous nation, that march to the wide spaces of the earth to conquer dwelling-places that are not theirs.

7 Terrible and dreadful are they: from

[a] Zunz. Rashi, "Cush that was her strength." Noaman is addressed in this verse.

[b] Rashi, "it shall sweep thee off like the cankerworm, it shall sweep thee off like the locusts."

[c] Properly, Chabakkuk.

[d] Zunz; but Rashi, "while the wicked who exciteth strife and contention is allowed to exist and prosper;" so also Jonathan: but it is a forced construction.

themselves[a] go forth their judicial laws and their dignity.

8 And swifter than leopards are their horses, and fiercer than the evening wolves; and their horsemen spread themselves abroad: and their horsemen will come from afar; they will fly like the eagle hastening to eat.

9 They all will come for violence: the front[b] of their faces is like the east wind, and they gather captives as the sand.

10 And they will make sport with kings, and princes will be a play unto them: at every strong-hold will they laugh, and they will cast up earth-mounds and capture it.

11 Then[c] doth their spirit become arrogant, and they are surpassingly proud, and offend, (imputing) this their power unto their god.

12 Art thou not from everlasting, O LORD my God, my Holy One? we shall not die. O LORD, thou hast ordained them for judgment; and, O Protector,[d] thou hast appointed them to correct (nations).

13 Thou, who art too pure of eyes to behold evil, and canst not look on trouble, wherefore wilt thou look upon those that deal treacherously, be silent when the wicked swalloweth up him that is more righteous than he?

14 And (why) makest thou men[e] as the fishes of the sea, as the creeping things, that have no ruler over them?

15 All of them he[f] bringeth up with the angle, he draggeth them up in his net, and gathereth them in his drag: therefore he rejoiceth and is glad.

16 Therefore he sacrificeth unto his net, and burneth[g] incense unto his drag; because through them is his portion fat, and his food marrowy.

17 Shall he therefore (always) empty his net, and continually slay nations without sparing?

CHAPTER II.

1 ¶ Upon my watch will I stand, and place myself upon the tower,[h] and will watch to see what he will speak with me, and what I shall answer to my reproof.[i]

2 And the LORD answered me, and said, Write down the vision, and make it plain upon the tables, that every one may read it fluently.

3 For there is yet a vision for the appointed time, and it speaketh of the end, and it will not deceive: though it tarry, wait for it; because it will surely come, it will not be delayed.

4 Behold, disturbed,[k] not at rest is the soul of (the wicked) in him; but the righteous ever liveth in his (trustful) faith.

5 And though the wine-(drunken) traitor, the proud man,[l] whose house will not stand, who enlargeth his desire as the grave, and is like death, which cannot be satisfied,—though he gather unto him all the nations, and assemble unto him all the people:

6 Will not all these take up a parable against him, and a proverb and a satire concerning him? and they will say, Wo to him that increaseth what is not his! for how long? and to him that loadeth himself with a burden of guilt![m]

7 Behold, suddenly will rise up those that afflict[n] thee, and awake those that plague thee, and thou shalt become a booty unto them.

8 Because thou hast despoiled many na-

[a] i. e. They act in judicial matters without regard to right, only according to their will. So Jonathan; but Rashi, "they have judges and kings who impose their burden and fear on all."

[b] Jonathan. Rashi, "the snorting of their faces is like that of the east wind." Zunz, "their faces snort eastward." Philippson, "the raging of their faces is turned forward."

[c] This verse is given after Rashi and Redak, taking ויעבר as "passing"—the bounds, here, in pride or assumption. Philippson, however, "They pass (into the conquered city), and it is wasted; and this their power is their god." Zunz, "then move they along as a storm, and it is passed, and thus is (all) wasted, (imputing)," &c.

[d] Heb. "Rock."

[e] Rashi comments, "before this wicked one free as the fishes of the sea, whom every one than pleaseth may catch."

[f] Each one of the wicked. Eng. ver. "they," referring to the Chaldeans as a nation.

[g] Philippson takes this figuratively, as meaning that they deify their own power, not the weapons themselves.

[h] Lit. "fortress."

[i] Aben Ezra, "to him who reproveth me." Redak adds, "for I am not alone perplexed in this matter."

[k] After Rashi. עפלה from עפל, "a hill," the opposite from ישר "level;" hence, figurative, "disturbed—quiet;" the righteous is always inward, as it were, on a level, while the wicked has constant internal difficulties to overcome. Zunz, "Behold, presumptuous is the soul of him who hath no pleasure in God."

[l] Meaning the king of the Chaldeans.

[m] Rashi, deriving it from עב "thick mass," and טיט "clay." Others, from עבט "a pledge for debt."

[n] Lit. "that bite thee." Others, "thy creditors."

tions, therefore will all the remnant of the people despoil thee; because of the blood of men, and the violence against the land, the town, and all that dwell therein.

9 ¶ Wo to him that obtaineth an evil gain for his house, that he may set his nest on high, that he may be delivered from the grasp of the wicked!

10 Thou hast counselled shame to thy house, by cutting off many people, and sinning (against) thy soul.

11 For the stone will cry out of the wall, and the beam out of the wood (-work) will answer it.

12 ¶ Wo to him that buildeth a city with blood-guiltiness, and layeth the foundation of a town by wrong-doing.

13 Behold, is it not from the LORD of hosts that people shall labour for the very fire, and nations shall weary themselves for naught but vanity?

14 For the earth shall be filled with knowledge of the glory of the LORD, as the waters cover the sea.

15 ¶ Wo unto him that maketh his neighbours drink, (to thee) that pourest out thy poisonous (wine), and makest them also drunken, in order to look on their nakedness!

16 Thou art filled with shame instead of glory; drink thou also, and let thy nakedness be uncovered: there shall be turned around unto thee the cup of the LORD'S right hand, and filthy spittle shall be on thy glory.

17 For the violence against Lebanon shall cover thee, and the destruction of beasts, which he terrified away;[a] because of the blood of men, and the violence against the land, the town, and all that dwell therein.

18 What profiteth the graven image that its maker hath graven it? the molten image, and a teacher of falsehood? that the maker of his image trusteth therein, while making dumb idols?

19 ¶ Wo unto him that saith to the wood, Awake! Rouse up to the dumb stone. Shall this teach? Behold, it is overlaid with gold and silver, and no breath whatever is in its bosom.

20 But the LORD is in his holy temple: be silent before him all the earth.

CHAPTER III.

1 ¶ A prayer of Habakkuk the prophet upon Shigyonoth.

2 O LORD, I have heard thy fame, (and) was afraid: O LORD, thy work—in the midst of the years (of sorrow)[b] revive thou it, in the midst of the years make it known; in wrath remember mercy.

3 (When) God from Theman came, and the Holy One from mount Paran, Selah: his glory covered the heavens, and of his praise[c] the earth was full.

4 And (his) brightness was like the sunlight; rays streamed forth out of his hand unto them: and there[d] was the hiding of his power.

5 Before him went the pestilence, and burning coals went forth in his steps.[e]

6 He stood forward, and made the earth tremble; he looked, and dispersed nations; and there burst asunder the everlasting mountains; there sunk the perpetual hills: the ways[f] of the world are his.

7 In affliction[g] I saw the tents of Cushan: they trembled—the curtains of the land of Midian.

8 ¶ Was the LORD wroth against the rivers? yea, was against the rivers thy anger (kindled)? was against the sea thy wrath that thou rodest upon thy horses, thy chariots of victory?

9 Laid[h] quite bare is thy bow, like se-

[a] Zunz; but Rashi, "the destruction of thy cattle (armies) that wasted my people Israel, this shall break them." Philippson, "and the destruction of its beasts shall disgrace (thee)."

[b] Rashi. [c] Redak, "brightness."

[d] Jonathan, "there was revealed his glory which had been hidden from the children of men in the height of heaven." Aben Ezra, "the hiding-place," i. e. the ark where the tables of the covenant were kept. Heidenheim, "This is the cover of his power."

[e] Jonathan. Lit. "at his feet." Others render, "the fiery plague was in his train."

[f] Rashi. Philippson, "this is his everlasting course." Zunz, "for him are paths from all eternity."

[g] Rashi, "In punishment for the wickedness of Israel have I seen the tents of Cushan; (See Judges iii. 8;) but when they repented, then trembled," &c.

[h] Rashi translates, "Thy strength was fully revealed, because of the oaths thou hadst sworn to the tribes, a word that will stand for ever;" taking שבועת for "oaths," מטות "tribes," and סלה (Selah) as "eternity." Heidenheim and Johlson, boldly, "thy bow scattereth destruction around—(עריה from ערר "to destroy," "to lay bare,") —destruction sevenfold thy spears, by thy mighty comvere rods of punishment (goeth forth) thy word, Selah: into rivers thou splittest the earth.

10 The mountains saw thee, they trembled; the flowing waters passed along: the deep issued forth its voice, the height[a] lifted up its hands.

11 The sun and moon stood still in their dwelling: at the light of thy arrows they[b] walked along, at the shining of the flaming glitter of thy spear.

12 In indignation thou marchest through the earth, in anger thou treadest down nations.

13 Thou wentest forth to the assistance of thy people, to the assistance of thy anointed: thou didst wound the head[c] out of the house of the wicked, destroy the foundation with the high-towering walls.[d] Selah.

14 Thou didst strike through with his own spears the chiefs of his villages, who rushed out furiously to scatter me; who rejoiced greatly as though they were to devour the poor in secret.[e]

15 (But) thou didst pass along over the sea with thy horses, over the piled up billows of great waters.

16 I heard it, and my inmost parts trembled; at the report my lips quivered; rottenness entered into my bones, and I trembled in my place, that I should rest till the day of distress, till the withdrawing of the people that will invade us with its troops.[f]

17 For the fig-tree doth not bud, and no fruit is on the vines; the productiveness[g] of the olive deceiveth, and the fields yield no food; from the fold the flocks are cut off, and there are no herds in the stalls.

18 Yet will I rejoice in the LORD, I will exult in the God of my salvation.

19 The Lord Eternal is my strength, and he maketh my feet fleet as those of the hinds, and he will cause me to tread upon my high places. To the chief musician of my songs.[h]

THE PROPHECY OF ZEPHANIAH,

נבואת צפניה

CHAPTER I.

1 ¶ THE word of the LORD which came unto Zephanyah the son of Cushi, the son of Gedalyah, the son of Amaryah, the son of Chizkiyah, in the days of Josiah the son of Amon the king of Judah.

2 I will remove,[i] utterly remove all things from off the face of the earth, saith the LORD.

3 I will remove man and beast; I will remove the fowls of the heaven, and the fishes of the sea, and the stumbling blocks together with the wicked; and I will cut off man from off the face of the earth, saith the LORD.

4 And I will stretch out my hand over Judah, and over all the inhabitants of Jerusalem; and I will cut off the remnant[k] of Ba'al from this place, the name of his ministers with his priests;

5 And those that bow themselves down on mand." We have followed Philippson as the simplest exposition of this passage.

[a] Rashi, who comments, "the inhabitants of the earth praised him, the hosts of heaven thanked him." Others translate, "and lifted up its hands on high."

[b] Rashi, and refers it to Israel. Heidenheim, to the sun and moon. Philippson, "thy arrows fly instead of light, instead of brightness is the lightning of thy spears."

[c] Zunz, "thou didst crush the gable end from the house of the wicked, laying bare the foundation up to the neck."

[d] Rashi. Lit. "neck," or the highest points, towers, walls of a fortress.

[e] Philippson, "the oppressed in their hiding-place."

[f] After Rashi. Philippson, "till the oppressor goeth up against my people." Heidenheim, "how could I wait quietly for the day of distress, which bringeth prosperity to my enemies?" taking יגודנו as derived from גד "fortune."

[g] Lit. "work."

[h] Heidenheim. Philippson, "on Neginoth," which like Shigayon, is a name descriptive of psalmody.

[i] Lit. "bring to an end."

[k] Rashi, "the memory."

the roofs of houses to the host of heaven; and those that bow themselves down that are sworn (to be true)[a] to the LORD and still swear by Malkom;

6 And those that are turned away from following the LORD; and those that have not sought for the LORD, and have not inquired of him.

7 Be silent in the presence of the Lord Eternal; for nigh is the day of the LORD; for the LORD hath prepared a slaughter, he hath bidden[b] his invited guests.

8 ¶ And it shall come to pass on the day of the LORD'S slaughter, that I will inflict punishment on the princes, and on the king's sons, and on all such as are clothed in garments of a foreign land.[c]

9 And I will inflict punishment on all those that leap over the threshold on that day,[d] who fill the house of their master with violence and deceit.

10 ¶ And it shall come to pass on that day, saith the LORD, that there shall be a loud cry of lamentation from the fish-gate, and a wailing from the second,[e] and (that of) a great breach from the hills.

11 Wail, ye inhabitants of the mortar-street,[f] for destroyed are all the trading people; cut off are all that were laden with silver.[g]

12 ¶ And it shall come to pass at that time, that I will search Jerusalem through with lights; and I will inflict punishment on the men that are at rest[h] on their lees, that say in their heart, The LORD will not do good, nor will he do evil.

13 And their wealth shall become a booty, and their houses shall be made desolate; and they will build houses, but they shall not inhabit them; and they will plant vineyards, but they shall not drink their wine.

14 Nigh is the great day of the LORD, it is nigh, and hasteneth greatly, (there is) the noise of the day of the LORD: bitterly crieth there the mighty man.

15 A day of wrath is that day, a day of distress and anxiety, a day of wasting[i] and desolation, a day of darkness and obscurity, a day of clouds and tempestuous gloom,

16 A day of the cornet and alarm, against the fenced cities, and against the high battlements.[k]

17 And I will bring distress upon men, that they shall walk about like the blind, because against the LORD have they sinned: and their blood shall be poured out like the dust, and their flesh[l] like the dung.

18 Neither their silver nor their gold shall be able to deliver them on the day of the LORD'S wrath; through the fire of whose zeal the whole land shall be devoured; for destruction, yea, quite sudden, will he prepare for all the inhabitants of the land.

CHAPTER II.

1 ¶ Gather yourselves together, yea, gather together, O nation without desire (for repentance);[m]

2 Before the decree is brought forth—like the chaff the day passeth away[n]—before yet there be come over you the fierce anger of the LORD, before yet there be come over you the day of the anger of the LORD.

3 Seek ye the LORD, all ye meek of the earth, who have fulfilled his ordinances; seek righteousness, seek meekness: perhaps ye will be protected on the day of the LORD'S anger.

4 For Gazzah shall become forsaken, and Ashkelon a desolate place: Ashdod shall

[a] After Philippson, to distinguish between נשבעים ל and כ "unto" and "by;" meaning, they associate the worship of the Most High, which they had sworn to adhere to, (see 2 Kings xxxii. 3,) with that of the idols of Phœnicians and 'Ammonites.

[b] Philippson, literally, "sanctified;" but קדש "to sanctify," means in Hebrew, "to set aside for a particular purpose, for good or evil;" and in this sense it is frequently used,—"sanctify a battle," "sanctify guests," &c.

[c] i. e. Imitate with foreign dresses foreign fashions. Rashi. "with idol ornaments."

[d] Jonathan. "that follow the customs of the Philistines." (See 1 Sam. v. 5.) who at the same time, with those customs, oppressed the people.

[e] Rashi. Zunz, "the second city-quarter." Philippson, "the lower town."

[f] Rashi, "the valley of Kidron, which is deep like a mortar."

[g] i. e. The rich. Aben Ezra, "the money-changers."

[h] Meaning, that are like wine which has never been drawn off into another vessel. קפאים "being stiff like ice." [i] Rashi. Philippson "terror and fright."

[k] Redak, "towers." Aben Ezra, "hills."

[l] להום is an Arabic word, signifying "flesh;" so Rashi and Aben Ezra.

[m] Jonathan. Philippson, "Search yourselves through, yea, search, thou nation without desire."

[n] Zunz, taking these words as a parenthesis; but Jonathan considers them as an elliptical expression, "like the chaff that passeth off before the wind, and like the mist that evaporateth before the day." Johlson, "and your day pass off like chaff."

they drive out at the noon of day, and 'Ekron shall be rooted up.

5 ¶ Wo unto the inhabitants of the district by the sea, the nation of the Kerethites! the word of the LORD is against you, O Canaan, the land of the Philistines, I will even destroy thee, that no inhabitant shall remain.

6 And the district by the sea shall become places for pens of[a] shepherds, and folds for flocks.

7 And this district shall be for the remnant of the house of Judah; thereupon shall they feed their flocks: in the houses of Ashkelon shall they lie down in the evening; for the LORD their God will think of them, and bring back their captivity.

8 I have heard the reproach of Moäb, and the revilings of the children of 'Ammon, wherewith they have reproached my people, and made themselves great against their border.

9 Therefore as I live, saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Surely Moäb shall become like Sodom, and the children of 'Ammon like Gomorrah, overgrown[b] with nettles, and (filled with) saltpits, and a desolation to eternity: the residue of my people shall plunder them, and the remnant of my nation shall possess them.

10 This shall they have in recompense for their pride; because they have reproached and made themselves great against the people of the LORD of hosts.

11 Terrible will the LORD (appear) over them; for he will cause to vanish all the gods of the earth; and then shall prostrate themselves before him, every one from its place, all the isles of the nations.

12 Also ye Ethiopians shall be those slain by my sword.

13 And he will stretch out his hand against the north, and destroy Assyria; and he will make Nineveh a desolate place, dry, like the wilderness.

14 And there shall lie down in the midst of her flocks, all the beasts[c] of the nations; both the pelican and the hedgehog shall lodge in the capitals of her columns; singing-birds shall sing in the windows; ruin shall be on the thresholds; for the cedar wainscoting shall be torn away

15 This is the joyful city that dwelt in security, that said in her heart, I am, and there is none else beside me: how is she become desolate, a resting-place for beasts! every one that passeth by her will hiss, and shake his hand.

CHAPTER III.

1 ¶ Wo to her that is rebellious[d] and polluted, to the oppressing city!

2 She hearkened not to any voice; she accepted no correction; in the LORD she did not trust; to her God she drew not near.

3 Her princes in her midst are roaring lions: her judges are evening wolves, they leave not a bone for the morning.[e]

4 Her prophets are thoughtless, men of treachery: her priests have profaned the sanctuary, they have done violence to the law.

5 The just LORD is in her midst, he will not do wrong: morning after morning doth he bring his justice to the light (of day), it never faileth; but the unjust knoweth no shame.

6 I have cut off nations; destroyed are their battlements; I have laid in ruins their streets, so that none passeth through: their cities are wasted, without a man, without an inhabitant.

7 I said, Surely thou wilt fear me, thou wilt accept correction; so that her dwelling should not be cut off, all that I had decreed to bring over her;[f] but they rose up early, they acted[g] corruptly in all their doings.

8 Therefore wait[h] but for me, saith the LORD, for the day that I rise up to the prey;[i] for my judgment (cometh) to gather the nations, for me to assemble the kingdoms, to

[a] Zunz. Rashi, "huts where shepherds prepare their morning's meals." (Compare 2 Kings vi. 23.) Philippson, "places for shepherds' wells." Redak, "ditches made by the shepherds to keep their flocks together."

[b] Jonathan, who gives, "left for nettles." Rashi, "rustling nettles." Philippson, "thorn-hedges."

[c] Philippson, "all the troops of wild beasts."

[d] After Rabbi Joshua, "quoted by Aben Ezra. Rashi, "filthy."

[e] Rashi. Aben Ezra, "like evening wolves who have broken no bones in the morning, and are therefore hungry at evening;" so greedy for bribes are the judges.

[f] Rashi. Philippson takes כל as כבל, and translates, "all just as I had ordained for her."

[g] i. e. The people of the city—Jerusalem.

[h] Meaning, the wicked doubt the LORD's retribution; but it will come, though delayed by his mercy.

[i] Jonathan, "that I will reveal myself to judge."

pour over them my indignation, all the fierceness of my anger; for through the fire of my jealousy shall all the earth be devoured.

9 Yea then will I change unto the people a pure language,[a] that they may all call on the name of the LORD, to serve him with one accord.

10 From beyond the rivers of Cush shall they bring my suppliants, even the assembly[b] of my dispersed, as an offering unto me.

11 On that day shalt thou not be ashamed because of all thy doings, whereby thou hast transgressed against me; for then will I remove out of the midst of thee those that rejoice in thy pride, and thou shalt never more be haughty again on my holy mount.

12 And I will leave remaining in the midst of thee an humble and poor people, and they shall trust in the name of the LORD.

13 The remnant of Israel shall not do injustice, nor speak lies; and there shall not be found in their mouth a deceitful tongue; for they shall feed and lie down, with none to make them afraid.

14 ¶ Sing, O daughter of Zion; shout, O Israel; rejoice and be glad with all thy heart, O daughter of Jerusalem!

15 The LORD hath removed thy punishment, he hath cleared away thy enemy: the king of Israel, the LORD, is in the midst of thee; thou shalt not see evil any more.

16 On that day shall it be said to Jerusalem, Fear thou not: (to) Zion, Let not thy hands become weak.

17 The LORD thy God is in the midst of thee, the mighty one who will save; he will be glad over thee with rejoicing; he will be silent[c] in his love, he will exult over thee with song.

18 Those that mourn far away from the festive assembly do I gather, those that were separated from thee,[d] (that have borne) for thee the burden of reproach.

19 Behold, I will deal (severely) with all that afflict thee at that time: and I will save her that halteth, and her that was driven off will I gather; and I will render them a praise and a famous name on all the earth where they have been put to shame.

20 At that time will I bring you back, even in the time that I gather you; for I will make you for a name and for a praise among all people of the earth, when I bring back again your captives before your eyes, saith the LORD.

[a] Zunz, "Yea, then will I transform for the people their lip into a pure one."

[b] After Rashi. (See also Isa. xviii. 7; lxvi. 19.) בת, literally, "daughter," stands frequently for "assembly," "the daughter of Zion," "the daughters of the Philistines."

[c] Rashi, "he will cover up thy old transgressions."

[d] Johlson, only that עליה, referring to Jerusalem, is in the third person, "her" is given with "thee," to avoid the change of persons which is so often found in the prophets. Rashi, "those that kept themselves far from my festivals, who kept not sabbath and holy days, have I destroyed; they were of thy people, and for their guilt hadst thou a burden of reproach." Philippson, "mourners, far from the feast, do I remove from thee; they are no more in thee; to bear a burden for thy sake would be a shame," i. e. as no one will have to bear such any more.

THE PROPHECY OF HAGGAI,

נבואת חגי

CHAPTER I.

1 ¶ In the second year of king Darius,[a] in the sixth month, on the first day of the month, came the word of the LORD through means of Haggai[b] the prophet unto Zerubbabel the son of Sheâlthiel, the governor[c] of Judah, and to Joshua the son of Jehozadak, the high priest, saying,

2 Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, saying, This people have said, The time is not yet come, the time for the LORD'S house to be built.

3 ¶ And the word of the LORD came by means of Haggai the prophet, saying,

4 Is it time for you, O ye, to dwell in your ceiled[d] houses, while this house lieth in ruins?

5 Now therefore, thus hath said the LORD of hosts, Direct your heart unto your ways.

6 Ye have sown much, and bring in little; ye eat, but it doth not satisfy hunger; ye drink, but it doth not appease thirst; ye clothe yourselves, but no one is warm; and he that earneth something earneth it for a bag with holes.[e]

7 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, Direct your heart to your ways.

8 Go up to the mountain, and bring wood, and build the house: that I may take pleasure in it, and be glorified, saith the LORD.

9 (Till now) ye looked for much, and, lo, it came to be little; and when ye brought it home, I blew[f] upon it. For what cause? saith the LORD of hosts. Because of my house that lieth in ruins, while ye run every man unto his own house.

10 Therefore do the heavens for your sake withhold the dew, and the earth withholdeth her products.

11 And I called for a drought over the land, and over the mountains, and over the corn, and over the new wine, and over the oil, and over what the ground bringeth forth, and over men, and over cattle, and over all the labour of the hands.

12 ¶ Then hearkened Zerubbabel the son of Sheâlthiel, and Joshua the son of Jehozadak, the high priest, with all the remnant of the people, unto the voice of the LORD their God, and to the words of Haggai the prophet, as the LORD their God had sent him, and the people were afraid of the LORD.

13 ¶ Then said Haggai the messenger of the LORD by the LORD'S message unto the people, saying, I am with you, saith the LORD.

14 And the LORD stirred up the spirit of Zerubbabel the son of Sheâlthiel, the governor of Judah, and the spirit of Joshua the son of Jehozadak, the high priest, and the spirit of all the remnant of the people, and they came and did work on the house of the LORD of hosts, their God, 15 ¶ On the four and twentieth day of the sixth month, in the second year of king Darius.

CHAPTER II.

1 In the seventh (month), on the one and twentieth day of the month, came the word of the LORD by means of Haggai the prophet, saying,

2 Do say to Zerubbabel the son of Sheâlthiel, the governor of Judah, and to Joshua the son of Jehozadak, the high priest, and to the residue of the people, saying,

3 Who is there yet left among you that hath seen this house in its first glory? and

[a] Darius is called in Hebrew, Daryavesh, which Philippson supposes was in original Persian, Daryeüsh, signifying "royal," and that this king mentioned here was the one known as Darius Hystaspis, the fourth king of Persia, whose reign commenced about 522 or 521 before the common era.

[b] Properly, Chaggay.

[c] Heb. Pachath, the pacha of modern times.

[d] Johlson and others, "wainscoted."

[e] i. e. Nothing remains of such gains.

[f] Rashi, "I made it rot." Others, "I blew it away." It means that the return was unaccountably small.

how do ye see it now? is it not in comparison with it as nothing in your eyes?

4 Yet now be strong, O Zerubbabel, saith the LORD, and be strong, O Joshua, the son of Jehozadak, the high priest, and be strong, all ye people of the land, saith the LORD, and do;[a] (for I am with you, saith the LORD of hosts,)

5 (In accordance with) the word that I covenanted with you when ye came out of Egypt, so (will) my spirit remain among you: fear nought.

6 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD of hosts, Yet one thing more (will I do),[b] it is but little, when I will cause to quake the heavens, and the earth, and the sea, and the dry land;

7 And I will cause to quake all the nations, and the precious things of all the nations shall come (hither): and I will fill this house with glory, saith the LORD of hosts.

8 Mine is the silver, and mine is the gold, saith the LORD of hosts.

9 Greater shall be the glory of this latter house than that of the former, saith the LORD of hosts: and in this place will I give peace, saith the LORD of hosts.

10 ¶ On the four and twentieth day of the ninth month, in the second year of Darius, came the word of the LORD by means of Haggai the prophet, saying,

11 Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, Do ask the priests concerning the law, saying,

12 Lo! if one should carry holy flesh in the corner of his garment, and touch with his corner bread, or pottage, or wine, or oil, or any food, shall it become holy? And the priests answered and said, No.

13 Then said Haggai, If one that is unclean by a dead body should touch any of these, will it become unclean? And the priests answered and said, It will become unclean.

14 Then answered Haggai, and said, So is this people, and so is this nation before me, saith the LORD; and so are all works of their hands; and what they offer there[c] is unclean.

15 And now direct, I pray you, your heart from this day and upward, before the time that a stone was laid upon a stone in the temple of the LORD:

16 Since those[d] days were, when one came to a heap of sheaves of twenty (in number), and there were but ten; when one came to the winepress for to draw off fifty measures out of the vat, and there were but twenty.

17 I smote you with blasting and with mildew and with hail in all the labours of your hands; yet ye (turned) not (back) to me, saith the LORD.

18 Direct, I pray you, your heart from this day and upward, from the four and twentieth day of the ninth month, even from the day that the foundation of the LORD'S temple was laid, direct your heart (to this).

19 Is the seed yet in the barn? yea, as yet the vine, and the fig-tree, and the pomegranate, and the olive-tree, have not brought forth; (but) from this day will I bless you.

20 ¶ And the word of the LORD came the second time unto Haggai on the four and twentieth day of the month, saying,

21 Speak to Zerubbabel the governor of Judah, saying, I will cause to quake the heavens and the earth;

22 And I will overthrow the throne of kingdoms, and I will destroy the strength of the kingdoms of the nations; and I will overthrow chariots, and those that ride in them; and the horses and their riders shall come down, every one by the sword of his brother.

23 On that day, saith the LORD of hosts, will I take thee, O Zerubbabel, the son of Sheâlthiel, my servant, saith the LORD, and I will place thee as a signet;[e] for of thee have I made choice, saith the LORD of hosts.

[a] The object is continued in the next verse, "and do—in accordance with the word," &c. So Rashi, Aben Ezra. Others, "labour, for I am with you, &c, according to the word (of the covenant) which I made," &c.

[b] So Redak; meaning, that in addition to the good the LORD was then doing, he would do yet more, considering it all but a little thing. Rashi, "one more (kingdom) shall there be, (the Grecian,) which shall endure but a short time." Znuz, "in but a little while more." Some commentators refer the convulsion predicted to the overthrow of the Persians by Alexander of Macedon, and verse 9 they expound to refer to the greater interest manifested by the gentiles in the temple service than before.

[c] i. e. At the altar. [d] Redak, "before these things were."

[e] i. e. On the finger. This prophecy is, as Aben Ezra observes, an encouragement to Zerubbabel not to be dismayed in the wars which the Persian monarchy waged in those days, as he should be preserved amidst all of them, as a signet-ring on a man's finger.

THE PROPHECY OF ZECHARIAH,

נבואת זכריה.

CHAPTER I.

1 ¶ In the eighth month, in the second year of Darius, came the word of the LORD unto Zechariah,[a] the son of Berechyah, the son of 'Iddo the prophet, saying,

2 The LORD hath been greatly angry with your fathers.

3 And (now) say thou unto them, Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, Return ye unto me, saith the LORD of hosts, and I will return unto you: so hath said the LORD of hosts.

4 Be ye not like your fathers, unto whom the former prophets proclaimed, saying, Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, Do return from your evil ways, and your evil doings; but they did not hear, nor listen unto me, saith the LORD.

5 Your fathers,—where are they? and the prophets,—could they live for ever?

6 But my words and my decrees, which I commanded my servants the prophets, behold, they did overtake your fathers: and (then) they returned and said, Just as the LORD of hosts had purposed to do unto us, in accordance with our ways, and in accordance with our doings, so hath he dealt with us.

7 ¶ On the four and twentieth day of the eleventh month, which is the month Shebat,[b] in the second year of Darius, came the word of the LORD unto Zechariah, the son of Berechyahu, the son of 'Iddo the prophet, saying,

8 I saw this night, and behold there was a man riding upon a red horse, and he was standing among the myrtle-trees that were in the deep valley; and behind him were red, pale,[c] and white horses.

9 And I said, What are these, O my lord? Then said unto me the angel that spoke with me, I will show thee what these are.

10 And the man that stood among the myrtle-trees answered and said, These are those whom the LORD hath sent to traverse the earth.

11 And they answered the angel of the LORD that[d] stood among the myrtle-trees, and said, We have traversed the earth, and, behold, all the earth is inhabited quietly, and is at rest.[e]

12 Then commenced the angel of the LORD, and said, O LORD of hosts, how long yet wilt thou not have mercy on Jerusalem and on the cities of Judah, against which thou hast been indignant these seventy years?[f]

13 And the LORD answered the angel that spoke with me with good words and comforting words.

14 And the angel that spoke with me said unto me, Proclaim thou, saying, Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, I am jealous[g] for Jerusalem and for Zion with a great jealousy.

15 And with a great anger will I be angry with the nations that are at ease; for I was but a little angry (with Zion), and they helped forward the mischief.

16 ¶ Therefore thus hath said the LORD, I

[a] Pronounced Zecharyah. Rashi observes, that the prophecy of Zechariah is extremely obscure, and that, with the light he had then, it was not practicable to give a full elucidation of all the difficulties which it presents. The same may still be urged at the present day.

[b] This is the first time that we find the Chaldean names of the months, which the Jews brought back from Babylon. In the older Scriptures the months have either other names, or are designated as the first, second, &c.

[c] Zuuz. Others, "sprinkled." Rashi says, he knows not what colour is meant. Philippson quotes an opinion, that it is a reddish colour, paler than "red."

[d] Philippson, "And they that halted among the myrtles answered the angel of the LORD and said."

[e] The Persian empire, and the other nations connected with Judea, enjoyed peace at that time; but the state of the Jews was unsettled, which gave occasion to the following intercession.

[f] This period, from the first captivity in the fourth year of Jehoyakim, expired when Cyrus issued his edict; but it was almost seventy years from the destruction of the city and temple, and just that period from the time that Nebuchadnezzar besieged Jerusalem.

[g] Jonathan, "I will execute punishment for," &c.

ISAIAH, THE PROPHET.

am returned to Jerusalem in mercy: my house shall be rebuilt in it, saith the LORD of hosts, and the measuring-line shall be stretched forth over Jerusalem.

17 Proclaim yet (farther), saying, Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, My cities shall again overflow[a] with prosperity: and the LORD will again comfort Zion, and make choice again of Jerusalem.

CHAPTER II.[b]

1 ¶ And I lifted up my eyes, and saw, and behold, there were four horns.

2 And I said unto the angel who spoke with me, What are these? And he said unto me, These are the horns[c] that have dispersed Judah, Israel, and Jerusalem.

3 ¶ And the LORD showed me four carpenters.[d]

4 Then said I, What are these coming to do? And he said as followeth, These are the horns that have dispersed Judah, to the extent that no man could lift up his head; but these are come to terrify them, to cast off the horns of the nations, that have been lifting up their horn over the land of Judah to disperse it.

5 ¶ And I lifted up my eyes, and looked, and behold, there was a man with a measure-cord in his hand.

6 Then said I, Whither art thou going? And he said unto me, To measure Jerusalem, to see what is her breadth, and what is her length.

7 And, behold, the angel that spoke with me went out, and another angel came out to meet him;

8 And he said unto him, Run, speak to this young man, saying, Without walls[e] shall Jerusalem be inhabited because of the multitude of men and cattle in her midst.

9 But I—I will be unto her, saith the LORD, a wall of fire round about, and for glory will I be in the midst of her.

10 ¶ Up! up! and flee away from the land of the north, saith the LORD; for as the four winds of the heaven have I spread you abroad, saith the LORD.

11 Up, Zion, escape, thou that dwellest with the daughter of Babylon.

12 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD of hosts, For the sake of (your) glory hath he sent me unto the nations that have despoiled you; for whoever toucheth you, toucheth the apple of his eye.

13 For, behold, I will swing my hand over them, and they shall be a spoil to those that served them: and ye shall acknowledge that the LORD of hosts hath sent me.

14 ¶ Sing, and rejoice, O daughter of Zion; for, lo, I am coming, and I will dwell in the midst of thee, saith the LORD.

15 And many nations will join themselves to the LORD on that day, and they shall be unto me for a people: and I will dwell in the midst of thee, and thou shalt know that the LORD of hosts hath sent me unto thee.

16 And the LORD will take Judah as his inheritance upon the holy land; and he will again make choice of Jerusalem.

17 Be silent, all flesh! before the LORD; for he is waked up out of his holy habitation.

CHAPTER III.

1 ¶ And he showed me Joshua[f] the high priest standing before the angel of the LORD, and the accuser standing at his right hand to accuse him.

2 And the LORD said unto the accuser, The LORD rebuke thee, O Accuser; yea, the LORD rebuke thee that hath chosen Jerusalem: is not this a brand plucked out of the fire?

3 Now Joshua was clothed with filthy garments, and was standing before the angel.

4 And he commenced and said unto those that stood before him, saying. Take away the filthy garments from him. And he said unto him, Behold, I have caused thy iniquity to pass from off thee, and I clothe thee with festive garments.

5 And I said, Let them place a clean mitre

[a] Aben Ezra, "shall be extended on all sides."

[b] In the English version, chap. ii. commences at ver. 5.

[c] Rashi, "These are the nations in the four corners of the world that have butted with their horns Judah and Jerusalem till they have dispersed them."

[d] Zunz, "smiths."

[e] פרזות "country places," "open towns," hence, adverbially, "without walls."

[f] Philippson supposes that the prophet meant to indicate the purification of the high-priest as the representative of the whole people. "Filthy garments" were worn by persons criminally accused, and their friends, before trial, to excite sympathy, till he was acquitted, when they all dressed in white. As the priest is represented as absolved so is also an accuser introduced as conducting the charges of which he is declared released.

upon his head. So they placed the clean mitre upon his head, and clothed him with garments; and the angel of the LORD stood by.

6 And the angel of the LORD forewarned Joshua, saying,

7 Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, If thou wilt walk in my ways, and if thou wilt keep my charge, then shalt thou also judge my house, and shalt also keep my courts: and I will give thee places[a] to walk among these that stand by.

8 Do but hear, O Joshua the high priest, thou, and thy fellows that sit before thee; for distinguished men are they; for, behold, I will bring my servant Zemach [the SPROUT].

9 For behold (here is) the stone that I have laid before Joshua; upon one stone shall be seven eyes: behold, I will engrave thereon its inscription, saith the LORD of hosts, And[b] I will remove the iniquity of that land in one day.

10 On that day, saith the LORD of hosts, shall ye call every man his neighbour under the vine and under the fig-tree.

CHAPTER IV.

1 And the angel that spoke with me came back again, and waked me up, as a man that is wakened up out of his sleep;

2 And he said unto me, What art thou seeing? And I said, I have looked, and behold, there is a candlestick all of gold, with a bowl upon its top, and its seven lamps are thereupon, and seven pipes to the seven lamps, which are upon its top:

3 And two olive-trees are by it, one upon the right side of the bowl, and the other upon the left side thereof.

4 And I commenced and said unto the angel that spoke with me, saying, What are these, my lord?

5 Then the angel that spoke with me answered and said unto me, Knowest thou not what these are? And I said, No, my lord.

6 Then answered he and spoke unto me, saying, This is the word of the LORD unto Zerubbabel, saying, Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the LORD of hosts.

7 Who art thou, O great mountain? before Zerubbabel thou wilt become a plain: and he shall bring forth the headstone[c] with shoutings of, Grace, grace unto it.

8 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

9 The hands of Zerubbabel have laid the foundation of this house, and his hands shall complete it: and thou shalt know that the LORD of hosts hath sent me unto you.

10 For whoever even despised the day of (its) small beginning: yet will they rejoice when they see the plummet in the hand of Zerubbabel, with those seven;[d] they are the eyes of the LORD, which hold a survey through all the earth.

11 And I began, and said unto him, What are these two olive-trees upon the right side of the candlestick and upon its left?

12 And I began a second time, and said unto him, What are these two olive-branches,[e] which are close by the two golden pipes which empty out of themselves the gold-coloured oil?

13 And he said to me as followeth, Knowest thou not what these things are? And I said, No, my lord.

14 Then said he, These are the two sons of the clear oil,[f] that stand by the Lord of the whole earth.

CHAPTER V.

1 ¶ And I again lifted up my eyes, and looked, and behold there was a flying roll (-book).

2 And he said unto me, What seest thou? And I answered, I see a flying roll, its length is twenty cubits, and its breadth ten cubits.

3 Then said he unto me, This is the curse

[a] Philippson, "leaders from those standing here."

[b] These are the words of the inscription.

[c] The key-stone of an arch, or the one placed on the top of a building the last, to complete it. Zerubbabel is promised that he should see the completion of the temple.

[d] Rashi, after Jonathan, "seven rows (of stones) upon the first in the foundation;" but Aben Ezra, Redak, and others take "the seven" to be the seven eyes spoken of iii. 9, and explained in this verse to be the eyes of God. Philippson renders this verse so: "For who will despise the day when this was commenced in a small way? Truly those seven, the eyes of the LORD, which roam over all the earth, will see rejoicingly the plummet in the hand of Zerubbabel."

[e] Lit. "olive-ears," meaning, the olive-branch, around which the berries are clustered, like the grains of wheat in a wheat-ear.

[f] i. e. Those anointed. Rashi adds, "the horn of priesthood and royalty, in both of which anointing was used, which ask of God to restore their greatness."

that goeth forth over the face of all the earth; for every one that stealeth as it is on this side shall be in an equal degree entirely destroyed,[a] as also every one that sweareth (falsely) as it is on that side shall be likewise entirely destroyed.

4 I bring it forth, saith the LORD of hosts, and it shall enter into the house of the thief, and into the house of him that sweareth falsely by my name: and it shall remain in the midst of his house, and shall consume it with its timber and its stones.

5 Then went forth the angel that spoke with me, and said unto me, Do but lift up thy eyes, and see what is this that goeth forth.

6 And I said, What is it? And he said, This is an ephah that goeth forth. He said moreover, This is their appearance through all the earth.

7 And, behold, there was lifted up a heavy (cover) of lead: and there was a certain woman sitting in the midst of the ephah.

8 And he said, This is the wickedness. And he cast her into the midst of the ephah; and he cast the weighty lead cover upon the mouth thereof.

9 Then did I lift up my eyes, and looked, and, behold, there came out two women, having the wind in their wings, and they had wings like the wings of a stork: and they lifted up the ephah between the earth and the heaven.

10 Then said I to the angel that spoke with me, Whither are these bearing away the ephah?

11 And he said unto me, To build for it a house in the land of Shin'ar: and when this is erected, then will the other be set there upon its own base.

CHAPTER VI.

1 And I again lifted up my eyes, and looked, and behold, there came out four[b] chariots from between two mountains; and the mountains were mountains of copper.

2 In the first chariot were red horses; and in the second chariot, black horses;

3 And in the third chariot, white horses; and in the fourth chariot, grizzled, ash-coloured horses.

4 And I began and said unto the angel that spoke with me, What are these, my lord?

5 And the angel answered and said unto me, These are the four spirits[c] of the heavens, which go forth after having stood before the Lord of all the earth.

6 The (chariot) on which are black horses —these go forth into the north country; and the white go forth after them; and the grizzled go forth toward the south country.

7 And the red-coloured[d] were gone forth, and sought to traverse the earth: and he said, Go, traverse the earth. So they traversed the earth.

8 Then cried he loudly unto me, and spoke unto me, saying, Behold, these that are going toward the north country have quieted (the indignation of) my spirit in the north country.

9 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

10 Take from the exiles, from Cheldai, from Tobiyahu, and from Yeda'yah, and thou shalt come on the same day, and go into the house of Josiah the son of Zephanyah, whither[e] they have arrived from Babylon;

11 Take also silver and gold, and make crowns, and set them upon the head of Joshua, the son of Jehozadak the high priest;

12 And thou shalt say unto him as followeth, Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, saying, Behold a man, Sprout is his name; since[f] out of his own place shall he sprout up, even he shall build the temple of the LORD:

13 Yea, he shall build the temple of the LORD; and he shall bear the glory, and shall sit and rule upon his throne; and a priest shall be upon his own throne; and the counsel of peace shall be between both of them.

[a] Rashi, "Up to this time, whoever stole was not affected by the punishment stated here"—"but now, as their measure of sin is complete—I will bring it forth," &c.

[b] These are supposed to represent the Chaldean, Persian, Macedonian, and Roman kingdoms, which in turn held sway over Judea.

[c] Others, "winds." Redak, "These are going to the four directions (winds) of heaven."

[d] Aben Ezra, who takes אמצים in this verse as different from that in ver. 3, and as identical with אדמים in ver. 2.

[e] After Johlson.

[f] Aben Ezra. Rashi renders, "from the royal seed." Johlson, "for under him shall it sprout up." Philippson remarks that the building here spoken of means only the finishing of the temple, and translates, "under whom it shall prosper," i. e. the building.

14 And the crowns shall be for Chelem, and for Tobiyah, and for Yeda'yah, and for Chen the son of Zephanyah, as a memorial in the temple of the LORD.

15 And distant ones shall come and build on the temple of the LORD, and ye shall know that the LORD of hosts hath sent me unto you. And this shall come to pass, if ye will diligently hearken to the voice of the LORD your God.

CHAPTER VII.

1 ¶ And it came to pass in the fourth year of king Darius, that the word of the LORD came unto Zechariah on the fourth day of the ninth month, in Kislev;

2 When they had sent unto Beth-el[a] Sherezer and Regem-melech, and his men, to make entreaty before the LORD,

3 (And) to say unto the priests who were in the house of the LORD of hosts, and to the prophets, saying, Shall I weep in the fifth month with abstinence, as I have done already these many years?

4 ¶ Then came the word of the LORD of hosts unto me, saying,

5 Say unto all the people of the land, and to the priests, as followeth, When ye fasted and mourned in the fifth and in the seventh (month), already these seventy years, did ye in anywise fast for me, yea, for me?

6 And if ye do eat, and if ye do drink, are ye not yourselves those that eat, and yourselves those that drink?

7 Are[b] not these the words which the LORD hath proclaimed by means of the former prophets, when Jerusalem was inhabited and in prosperity, with her cities round about her, when (men) inhabited the south, and the lowlands?

8 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto Zechariah, saying,

9 Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, saying, Execute true justice, and show kindness and mercy every man to his brother;

10 And defraud not the widow, or the fatherless, the stranger, or the poor; and imagine not evil in your heart one against the other.

11 But they[c] refused to listen, and turned away rebelliously[d] the shoulder, and stopped their ears, so as not to hear;

12 And their heart they rendered as an adamant, so as not to hear the law, and the words which the LORD of hosts had sent through his spirit by means of the former prophets: wherefore came a great anger from the LORD of hosts.

13 And it is come to pass, that as he proclaimed, and they would not hear: so had they to call, and I would not hear, saith the LORD of hosts;

14 And I resolved to scatter them with a storm-wind among all the nations that they had not known; and the land was left desolate after them, without any one to pass through it forward or backward; and the pleasant land have they changed into a desert

CHAPTER VIII.

1 ¶ And the word of the LORD of hosts came, saying,

2 Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, I am jealous for Zion with a great jealousy, and with great fury am I jealous for her.

3 Thus hath said the LORD, I return unto Zion, and I will dwell in the midst of Jerusalem: and Jerusalem shall be called, The city of truth; and the mount of the LORD of hosts, The holy mount.

4 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, Again shall there sit old men and old women in the streets of Jerusalem, and every one with his staff in his hand because of their multitude of years.

5 And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in her streets.

6 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, If it should be marvellous in the eyes of the remnant of this people in those days, should[e] it also be marvellous in my eyes? saith the LORD of hosts.

[a] Jonathan. Others render, "house of God;" the persons who sent this embas-y are supposed to be the Jews of Babylon.

[b] Namely, that fasting without piety is not acceptable; but Ra-hi, "what caused you to fast and mourn, are they not the admonitions (unheeded) which the Lord proclaimed?" &c.

[c] "They" refers to the forefathers of that generation.

[d] Lit. "they made a rebellious shoulder."

[e] Aben Ezra, "it shall be marvellous also in my eyes;" meaning, that the marvel will be greater than ever was displayed before, or, in other words, an unheard of deed of graee, which would appear as though it were wonderful even to God from its being unprecedented.

7 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, Behold, I will save my people from the east country and from the country of the setting of the sun;

8 And I will bring them (back), that they may dwell in the midst of Jerusalem: and they shall be unto me for a people, and I will be unto them for a God, in truth and in righteousness.

9 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, Let your hands be strong, ye that hear in these days these words out of the mouth of the prophets, who (spoke) on the day that the foundation of the house of the LORD of hosts was laid, when the temple was to be built.

10 For before those days there was no reward[a] for man, nor any reward for beast; and for him that went out or came in there was no peace, because of the oppressor: and I let loose all men, every one against his neighbour.

11 But now I am no more as in the former days unto the residue of this people, saith the LORD of hosts.

12 For the seed shall be undisturbed;[b] the vine shall give its fruit, and the ground shall give her production, and the heavens shall give their dew: and I will bestow on the remnant of this people all these things.

13 And it shall come to pass, that, in the same degree as ye have been a curse among the nations, O house of Judah, and house of Israel, so will I save you and ye shall be a blessing: fear not; let your hands be strong.

14 ¶ For thus hath said the LORD of hosts, As I had purposed to do you evil, when your fathers incensed me, saith the LORD of hosts, and I bethought myself not:

15 So do I again purpose in these days to do well unto Jerusalem and to the house of Judah; fear ye not.

16 These are the things that ye shall do, Speak ye the truth every man to his neighbour; (with) truth and the judgment[c] of peace judge ye in your gates;

17 And let none of you think evil in your hearts against his neighbour; and love not a false oath; for all these are what I hate, saith the LORD.

18 ¶ And the word of the LORD of hosts came unto me, saying,

19 Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, The fast of the fourth, and the fast of the fifth, and the fast of the seventh, and the fast of the tenth (month), shall become to the house of Judah gladness and joy, and merry festivals: only love ye the truth and peace.

20 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, (A time) shall yet be when there shall come people, and the inhabitants of many cities;

21 And the inhabitants of one (city) shall go to another, saying, Let us only go to pray before the LORD, and to seek the LORD of hosts: I too will likewise go.

22 And many people and strong nations shall come to seek the LORD of hosts in Jerusalem, and to pray before the LORD.

23 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, In those days (it shall happen), that ten men out of all the languages of the nations shall take hold—yea, they shall take hold of the skirt of him that is a Jew, saying, Let us go with you; for we have heard that God is with you.

CHAPTER IX.

1 ¶ The prophecy of the word of the LORD concerning the land of Chadrach,[d] and Damascus his resting-place;[e] for unto the LORD (will look) the eye of men, and (that of) all the tribes of Israel;[f]

2 And also concerning Chamath that is bordering thereon, Tyre, and Zidon, though it be very wise.

3 And though Tyre have built herself a strong-hold, and heaped up silver as the dust, and fine gold as the mire of the streets:

[a] i. e. Labour was unproductive. (See also Haggai i. 6, 9, 10; ii. 16, 17.)

[b] Lit. "the seed of peace."

[c] Rashi, after the Rabbins, "this is the system of compromise," where disputes are settled without the extreme rigour of the law, each party yielding something which he considers his right.

[d] Rabbi Jossé states that Chadrach was a city near Damascus.

[e] Jewish commentators explain, "that Damascus also shall become a resting-place for God's glory; because unto the LORD shall look the eyes of all men, as also those of all the tribes of Israel."

[f] Rashi and Aben Ezra. Redak, one opinion, "and to all the tribes of Israel." Jonathan, "for before the LORD are revealed the deeds of men;" hence, Zunz, "for the LORD hath his eye upon men and also upon all the tribes of Israel."

4 Behold, the Lord will drive[a] her out, and he will strike down her power[b] into the sea; and she herself shall be devoured with fire.

5 Ashkelon shall see it, and fear; Gazzah also, and tremble greatly; and 'Ekron, for her trust will be made ashamed: and the king shall vanish from Gazzah, and Ashkelon shall not be inhabited.

6 And aliens[c] shall dwell in Ashdod, and I will cut off the pride of the Philistines.

7 And I will remove their bloody (-sacrifices)[d] out of their mouth, and their abominations from between their teeth; and their land[e] also shall be left for our God, and it shall be as a prince's (dwelling) in Judah, and 'Ekron shall be like Jebusi.

8 And I will encamp about my house against armies, against those that pass to and fro, and there shall not pass over them any more an oppressor; for now do I look (on them) with my eyes.

9 ¶ Be greatly glad, O daughter of Zion; shout, O daughter of Jerusalem! behold, thy King will come unto thee, righteous and victorious is he, lowly, and riding upon an ass, and upon a colt the foal of a she-ass.[f]

10 And I will cut off chariots from Ephraim, and horses from Jerusalem, and there shall be cut off the battle-bow, and he shall speak peace unto the nations; and his dominion shall be from sea to sea, and from the river to the ends of the earth.

11 As for thee also, because of the blood of thy covenant, do I send forth thy prisoners out of the pit wherein there is no water.

12 Return you to the strong-hold, ye hopeful prisoners: even to-day do I declare, that I will recompense twofold (good)[g] unto thee.

13 For I do bend Judah for me, grasp Ephraim (as) a bow; and I will stir up thy sons, O Zion, against thy sons, O Javan, and I will render thee as the sword of a mighty man.

14 And the LORD will appear over them, and then will go forth like the lightning his arrow: and the Lord Eternal will blow on the cornet, and he will go along in the tempests of the south.

15 The LORD of hosts will be a shield over them; and they shall devour (the prey), and subdue the sling-stones; and they shall drink, make a noise as one (drunken with) wine; and they shall be filled like the offering-bowls, like the corners of the altar.

16 And the LORD their God will save them on that day as the flock of his people; for (like) the stones of a crown, will they elevate themselves over his land.

17 For how great will be (that generation's) happiness, and how great its beauty! corn shall make the young men sing joyfully, and new wine the virgins.[h]

CHAPTER X.

1 Ask from the LORD rain at the time of the latter rain, (from) the LORD who maketh lightning-clouds: and he will give unto them showers of rain, to every herb in the field.[i]

2 For the Theraphim speak vanity, and the diviners foresee a lie, and those that have dreams speak what is false, with nought do they comfort: therefore do they move about like a flock, they bleat,[k] because (they have) no shepherd.

3 ¶ Against the shepherds is my anger kindled, and on the he-goats will I inflict punishment; for the LORD of hosts thinketh of his flock, the house of Judah, and maketh them as his elegant horse in the battle.

4 Out of him cometh forth the corner (-stone),[l] out of him the tent-nail, out of him

[a] Michlol Yophi. Rashi, "impoverish her." Zunz, "let her be captured."
[b] Johlson, "her wall."
[c] Rashi.
[d] Philippson, after Rashi.
[e] Jonathan, "the proselytes that are left of them shall be added to the people of our God." The version here is after Philippson, who refers הוא to the land of Philistia, which should, when purged of idolatry, become united to the holy land, devoted to God, and become like Jehudah and Jerusalem (Jebusi).
[f] As war is to cease at the coming of the Hope of the world, he is to appear not mounted upon the warlike horse, but on the humble, laborious ass.
[g] Jonathan; but Rashi, "even this day I announce to thee a twofold happy message."

[h] After Rashi; but Zunz, "how lovely is it there, how beautiful is it, (like) corn will he cause young men to spring up, and like new wine virgins.
[i] Rashi, "for the sake of every one, and for the sake of every herb," &c.
[k] Zunz; but Rashi, "they are humbled."
[l] "Corner-stone" signifies the principal leaders, "tent-nail," the chieftain, who, so to say, sustains the whole structure; "the battle-bow," the brave in war; "the ruler," (lit. "taskmaster,") the one that hath command over others; and it is here thus promised that Israelites shall be no longer subject to others, but have among themselves all the elements of independent sovereignty, and rule over their former oppressors.

the battle-bow, out of him every ruler (of others) together.

5 And they shall be like mighty men, treading down (their enemies) in the mire of the streets in the battle, and they shall fight, because the LORD is with them: and the riders on horses shall be made ashamed.

6 And I will strengthen the house of Judah, and the house of Joseph will I save, and I will bring them again to their own homes; for I have mercy upon them, and they shall be as though I had never cast them off; for I am the LORD their God, and I will answer their prayer.

7 And they of Ephraim shall be like a mighty man, and their heart shall rejoice as though from wine: and their children shall see it, and be rejoiced; their heart shall be glad in the LORD.

8 I will call[a] for them, and gather them; for I have redeemed them: and they shall increase as they have increased (formerly).

9 And when I shall have scattered them among the people, they will remember me in the far-off countries: therefore shall they live with their children, and return again.

10 And I will bring them back again out of the land of Egypt, and out of Assyria will I gather them; and into the land of Gil'ad and Lebanon will I bring them, and it shall not be sufficient for them.

11 And he will pass through the sea (with) distress,[b] and he will smite in the sea the waves, and there shall dry up all the deeps of the stream: and there shall be brought down the pride of Assyria, and the sceptre of Egypt shall depart away.

12 And I will strengthen them in the LORD, and in his name shall they ever walk, saith the LORD.

CHAPTER XI.

1 ¶ Open thy doors, O Lebanon,[c] and the fire shall eat on thy cedars.

2 Wail, fir-tree; for fallen is the cedar; those that were mighty are despoiled: wail, O ye oaks of Bashan; for the impervious[d] forest is come down.

3 (There is) the noise of the wailing of the shepherds; for wasted is their glory: (there is) the noise of the roaring of young lions; for wasted is the pride[e] of the Jordan.

4 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD my God, Feed the flocks (that are destined for) the slaughter;

5 Whom their buyers slay, and hold themselves guiltless; and whose sellers say, Blessed be the LORD, for I am rich: and none of whose shepherds have pity on them.

6 For I will no more have pity on the inhabitants of the land, saith the LORD; but, lo, I will deliver the men every one into the hand of his neighbour, and into the hand of his king: and they shall beat down the land, and I will not deliver out of their hand.

7 And I had fed the flocks (that were destined for) the slaughter,—indeed, the poorest of the flocks; and I had taken unto me two staves; the one I called Mildness [No'am], and the other I called Concord[f] [Choblim]: and I fed the flocks.

8 And I removed the[g] three shepherds in one month; and my soul was tired of them, and also their soul abhorred me.

9 Then said I, I will not feed you: what is dying may die; and what is to be lost may be lost; and those that are left may eat every one the flesh of the other.

10 And I took my staff, namely, Mildness, and cut it to pieces, to annul my covenant which I had made with all the tribes.

[a] Lit. "whistle." (See Isa. v. 26.)

[b] i. e. God will come to distress the enemies of his people. Philippson, "as the drying up of the Nile is predicted, as prefiguring the fall of Egypt, God passes through the Red Sea, renders this shallow, and then causes the Nile to dry up." Rashi, however, "Distress shall pass (over Tyre), which is situated on the sea, and the LORD, that smiteth, will smite in the sea the waves to cause Tyre to sink." Abeu Ezra, "(A wind of) distress will pass through the sea;" referring to the drying up of the sea and river of Egypt. (Isa. xix. 5, 6.)

[c] Jewish commentators suppose this prophecy to predict the destruction of the second temple; but Jonathan, "Open your gates, O ye nations." Lebanon stands generally for all the land of Israel.

[d] Lit. "fortified," i. e. by its intricacies and undergrowth.

[e] Zunz, "the pride of the flood." Philippson, "the overflow," &c.

[f] Others, "Severity," in which view Rashi agrees; but Joseph Kimchi, "companionship," "union," or as in the text, "concord." Redak, "wounding," as opposed to "mildness."

[g] i. e. Under-shepherds, who are to look out each for his portion of the flock. Various opinions are given as to who these three were; Redak, "the three sons of Josiah," &c

11 And when it was annulled on that day, then knew they well, truly the poorest of the flocks that waited for me, that it was the word of the LORD.

12 And I said unto them, If it be good in your eyes, give me my reward; and if not, forbear. So they weighed out as my reward thirty pieces of silver.

13 And the LORD said unto me, Cast it unto the treasurer,[a] the precious price which I am prized at by them. And I took the thirty pieces of silver, and cast them in the house of the LORD unto the treasurer.

14 Then I cut in pieces my second staff, namely, Concord, to annul the brotherhood between Judah and Israel.

15 ¶ And the LORD said unto me, Take unto thee yet the instruments of a foolish shepherd.

16 For, lo, I raise up a shepherd in the land, who will not think of those that are lost, nor seek for that which is gone astray, nor heal that which hath (a limb) broken; who will not care for that which hath stood still; but who will eat the flesh of the fat, and devour all even to[b] their claws.

17 Wo to the worthless shepherd that leaveth the flock! the sword shall be upon his arm, and upon his right eye: his arm shall utterly wither, and his right eye shall be completely blinded.[c]

CHAPTER XII.

1 ¶ The prophecy of the word of the LORD concerning Israel, Saith the LORD, who stretcheth forth the heavens, and layeth the foundation of the earth, and formeth the spirit of man within him:

2 Behold, I will make Jerusalem a cup of confusion unto all the people round about; and also against Judah, who will have to be at the siege[d] against Jerusalem.

3 And it shall come to pass on that day that I will make Jerusalem a burdensome stone for all the people; all that burden themselves with it shall be severely cut: yet then will be gathered together against it all the nations of the earth.

4 On that day, saith the LORD, will I smite every horse with dizziness, and his rider with madness; but over the house of Judah will I open my eyes, while I will smite every horse of the people with blindness.

5 And the chiefs of Judah will say in their heart, A strong support[e] for me are the inhabitants of Jerusalem through the LORD of hosts their God.

6 On that day will I make the chiefs of Judah like a fire-hearth among the wood, and like a torch of fire among sheaves; and they shall devour on the right hand and on the left all the people round about: and Jerusalem shall be inhabited again in her own place, even in Jerusalem.

7 The LORD also will save the tents of Judah first:[f] in order that the glory[g] of the house of David and the glory of the inhabitants of Jerusalem shall not become boastful[h] over Judah.

8 On that day will the LORD be a shield around the inhabitants of Jerusalem: and the feeblest among them shall be on that day like David; and the house of David shall be like divine beings,[i] like an angel of the LORD before them.

9 And it shall come to pass on that day,

[a] After Johlson. Philippson comments, that thirty shekels was the price of a slave slain by an ox, (see Exod. xxi. 42;) the prophet demanded in the name of God the reward for his keeping the people, and they gave the mean sum of thirty pieces; this, ironically called "the precious price" at which the Divine care was valued, was to be cast carelessly to the keeper of temple treasure, out of which the daily sacrifices were purchased. This may be viewed as an allegorical condemnation of the idea that sacrifices without piety can be in the least pleasing to God. Rashi, after Jonathan, conceives the thirty pieces to signify those who do the will of God; and would then render: "And the LORD said to me, cast the same to the treasurer, (i. e. lay up these righteous and their good deeds, that they may be kept for the end of the seventy years of the Babylonian exile, in order that the temple may be built for their sake; and what is the treasury?) the precious glory of my sanctuary, which I have stripped from them," taking יקרתי מ as "having deprived—of the glory."

[b] Johlson, after Rashi. Redak, "and breaketh their feet (claws)." Philippson, "and only teareth off their claws."

[c] Lit. "become dark."

[d] Philippson, "and also on Judah will it be obligatory to be at the siege," &c.

[e] i. e. They will acknowledge that Jerusalem is the seat of the Divine glory. Rashi and Aben Ezra, "through their prayer, because they know that we are come against our will."

[f] Rashi. Zunz, "will help them to the former state."

[g] Zunz, "boastfulness."

[h] Philippson. Lit. "become great."

that I will seek to destroy all the nations that are come against Jerusalem.

10 But I will pour out over the house of David, and over the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and of supplications:[a] and they will look up toward me (for every one)[b] whom they have thrust through, and they will lament for him, as one lamenteth for an only son, and weep bitterly for him, as one weepeth bitterly for the first-born.

11 On that day will the lamentation be great in Jerusalem, like the lamentation at Hadadrimmon[c] in the valley of Megiddon.

12 And the land will mourn, every family apart by itself: the family of the house of David apart, and their wives apart; the family of the house of Nathan apart, and their wives apart;

13 The family of the house of Levi apart, and their wives apart; the family of Shim'i apart, and their wives apart;

14 All the families that remain, every family apart by itself, and their wives apart.

CHAPTER XIII.

1 ¶ On that day shall there be a fountain opened to the house of David and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, for cleansing from sin and for purification.[d]

2 And it shall come to pass on that day, saith the LORD of hosts, that I will cut off the names of the idols out of the land, and they shall not be remembered any more: and also the prophets and the unclean spirit will I remove out of the land.

3 And it shall come to pass, if any one should yet prophesy, that his father and his mother who have begotten him shall say unto him, Thou shalt not live; for falsely hast thou spoken in the name of the LORD: and his father and his mother who have begotten him shall thrust him through when he prophesieth.

4 And it shall come to pass on that day, that the prophets shall be ashamed every one because of his vision, when he prophesieth; and they shall not clothe themselves with a hairy cloak in order to deceive.

5 But he will say, I am no prophet, a man that tilleth the ground am I; for some one hath taught[e] me to keep cattle from my youth.

6 And should some one say unto him, What are these wounds between thy hands? Then will he say, Those with which I have been wounded in the house of my (vicious) friends.

7 ¶ Awake, O sword, against my shepherd, and against the man whom I have associated with me,[f] saith the LORD of hosts: smite the shepherd, and the sheep shall be scattered; but I will turn my hand toward the feeble ones.[g]

8 And it shall come to pass, that in all the land, saith the LORD, two parts (of those) therein shall be cut off, shall perish; but the third part shall be left therein.

9 And I will bring the third part into the fire, and I will refine them as one refineth silver, and will probe them as gold is probed: they will call on my name, and I will answer their prayer; I will say, They are my people; and they will say, The LORD is my God.

CHAPTER XIV.

1 ¶ Behold, a day is coming unto the LORD, when thy spoil shall be divided in the midst of thee.

2 And I will assemble all the nations against Jerusalem to battle; and the city

[a] Rashi, "that it shall come into their mind to make supplication before me, and they shall find grace in my eyes."

[b] The objective case is omitted in the original: "whom they have pierced" cannot be in apposition "to me," because the next clause is, "they will lament for him," not "me;" hence it is clear that the objective, "every one," must be supplied, as has been done here.

[c] Rashi and Jonathan conceive that the prophet speaks of two lamentations, and take "Hadadrimmon" to mean "the slaughter made by him [Hadad] in killing Achab;" and "Megiddon" to relate to Josiah, for whom Jeremiah lamented. (2 Chron. xxxv. 25.) Others assert that Hadadrimmon was a place in the valley of Megiddo, afterward called Maximianopolis, where then perhaps a great lamentation was made for the last good king of David's line.

[d] See Num. xix.

[e] Rashi, after Menachem. Philippson and Zunz, "hath purchased me as a serf:" he denies even being a freeman, but wishes to pass for a bondman, compelled to labour daily in the humblest vocation, so as to avoid the suspicion of belonging to the band of false prophets, of whom were so many during the first temple. The same is to be observed of the next verse, where wounds are spoken of, for which see 1 Kings xviii. 28.

[f] Rashi, with the addition, "to keep my flocks," i. e. the prince or chief who was to be a true shepherd, but has failed in his duty.

[g] Meaning, protect the young or weak; but Rashi, "and I will repeat the blow against the minor chiefs."

shall be captured, and the houses plundered, and the women ravished; and half of the city shall go forth into exile, and the residue of the people shall not be cut off from the city.

3 Then will the LORD go forth, and fight against these nations, as on the day when he fought on the day of battle.

4 And his feet will stand on that day upon the mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east, and the mount of Olives shall be split in twain in its middle eastward and westward, making a very great valley; and half of the mount shall remove northward, and half of it southward.

5 And ye shall flee (from) the valley of my mountains; for the valley of the mountains shall reach unto Azal; and ye shall flee, just as ye fled from before the earthquake in the days of 'Uzziyah the king of Judah: and then will come the LORD my God, and all the saints with thee.

6 ¶ And it shall come to pass on that day, that there shall be no light, but fleeting light and thick darkness;[a]

7 But it shall be one particular day which shall indeed be known as the LORD'S, neither day nor night; but it shall come to pass, that at evening-time there shall be light.

8 And it shall happen on that day, that living waters shall go out from Jerusalem, the half of them toward the eastern sea, and the other half of them toward the western sea: in summer and in winter shall it be so.[b]

9 And the LORD will be king over all the earth: on that day shall the LORD be (acknowledged) one, and his name be one.

10 All the land shall be changed as it were into a plain from Geba' to Rimmon to the south of Jerusalem; and she herself shall be elevated, and be inhabited on her former site, from the gate of Benjamin unto the place of the first gate, up to the corner gate, and from the tower of Chananël unto the king's wine-presses.

11 And men shall dwell in it, and no destruction shall any more take place; but Jerusalem shall be inhabited in safety.

12 ¶ And this shall be the plague wherewith the LORD will afflict all the people that shall have come to battle against Jerusalem: The flesh of every one shall consume away while he standeth upon his feet, and his eyes shall consume away in their holes, and the tongue of every one shall consume away in his mouth.

13 And it shall come to pass on that day, that a great confusion from the LORD shall be among them: and they shall lay hold every one on the hand of his neighbour, and his hand shall rise up against the hand of his neighbour.[c]

14 And also Judah will have to fight against Jerusalem: and there shall be gathered together the wealth of all the nations round about, gold, and silver, and garments, in great abundance.

15 And thus shall be the plague of the horses, of the mules, of the camels, and of the asses, and of all the beasts that will be in these camps, just like this plague.

16 ¶ And it shall come to pass, that every one that is left out of all the nations who will have come against Jerusalem, yea, these shall go up year by year to bow down before the King, the LORD of hosts, and to celebrate the feast of tabernacles.[d]

17 And it shall happen, that whoso will not come up out of the families of the earth unto Jerusalem to bow down before the King, the LORD of hosts,—even upon these there shall be no rain.

18 And if the family of Egypt go not up, and come not, then shall not (any rain fall)[e] upon them also: this shall be the plague, wherewith the LORD will afflict the

[a] Rashi. Philippson, "but frost and snow." Zunz, "pressure and congelation." In the first instance יקרות is signifying "brightness," as in Job xxxi. 21; in the second, as from קר "cold," and in the third, "weighty," as in 1 Kings v. 31. The meaning of the verse, however, is, that there shall be no distinct light, as farther explained.

[b] i. e. It shall be a perpetual river, not drying up in summer.

[c] Rashi; but Jonathan and Redak, "and his hand shall become feeble with the hand of his neighbour."

[d] As this is an ordinance of the Mosaic Law, (Lev. xxiii. 41,) it proves that even then the code of Israel will not be abrogated.

[e] Egypt requires no rain near the Nile, which overflows it banks annually and fertilizes the land; Jonathan therefore renders, "the Nile shall not overflow for them." But Zunz, as in text, "the rain shall not fall on them;" which, falling in the upper course of the river, causes it to swell. Redak, "on which falleth no rain: on them shall be the plague," &c., i. e. that though the want of rain would not injure them, they shall not escape the plague.

nations that will not come up to celebrate the feast of tabernacles.

19 This shall be the punishment of Egypt, and the punishment of all the nations that will not come up to celebrate the feast of tabernacles.

20 On that day shall (every thing), even to[a] the bells of the horses, be holy unto the LORD; and the pots in the LORD'S house shall be like the bowls before the altar.

21 And every pot in Jerusalem and in Judah shall be holy unto the LORD of hosts; and all those that sacrifice will come and take some of them, and seethe therein: and on that day there shall be no more any trader[b] in the house of the LORD of hosts.

THE PROPHECY OF MALACHI,

נבואת מלאכי.

CHAPTER I.

1 ¶ THE prophecy of the word of the LORD to Israel by means of Malachi.

2 I have loved you, so hath said the LORD: yet ye say, Wherein hast thou loved us? Is not Esau brother to Jacob? saith the LORD: yet I loved Jacob;

3 And Esau I hated; and I rendered his mountains a desert, and his heritage a dwelling for the monsters[c] of the wilderness.

4 Should Edom even say, We are impoverished;[d] but we will return and build the ruined places: thus hath said the LORD of hosts, They may indeed build, but I will surely throw down; and men shall call them, The territory of wickedness, and, The people against whom the LORD hath indignation to eternity.

5 And your eyes shall see it; and ye shall then say, The LORD will be magnified beyond the territory of Israel.

6 A son honoureth his father, and a servant his master: if then I be a father, where is my honour? and if I be a master, where is my fear? saith the LORD of hosts unto you, O priests, that despise my name; and ye say, Wherein have we despised thy name?

7 Ye offer upon my altar polluted bread; and ye say, Wherein have we polluted thee? In that ye say, The table of the LORD is contemptible.

8 And if ye bring near the blind to sacrifice it, is this not evil? and if ye bring near the lame and the sick, is this not evil? do but present it unto thy governor, will he be pleased with thee, or receive thee with favour? saith the LORD of hosts.

9 And now, I pray you, beseech the presence of God that he may be gracious unto us; from your hand hath this thing come: will he receive one of you with favour? saith the LORD of hosts.

10 Oh that there were some one[e] among you that would lock up the doors (of the sanctuary), that ye might not light up my altar for nought: I have no pleasure in you, saith the LORD of hosts, neither will I accept in favour an offering from your hand.

11 For from the rising of the sun even unto his going down my name is great among the nations; and in every place incense is

[a] Zunz, after Rashi. Others, "there shall be engraved upon the bells of the horses, HOLY TO THE LORD."

[b] Rashi, "they will require no trading," i. e. to purchase vessels for the sacrifice, since every thing will be holy. Philippson, "an unclean," taking Canaanite as signifying one not believing in God. (Ezek. xli. 9.)

[c] Others, "dwellings of the wilderness."

[d] Others, "we have been destroyed."

[e] This version is according to Rashi. Arnheim refers this to "present it unto thy governor;" translating the last part of the preceding verse: "Who of you would receive in favour the giver of such a present?" And then continues, "Each of you would even lock up the doors" against such an intrusion; and then he adds, "So then light not up," &c. But Rashi's exposition of this difficult text appears to be the best.

burnt and there is offered unto my name, even a pure offering; for great is my name among the nations, saith the LORD of hosts.

12 But ye profane it, in that ye say, The table of the LORD is polluted, and by the assertion,[a] Its food is contemptible.

13 And ye have said, Behold, what a wearisome task is it! and ye have left it to famish,[b] saith the LORD of hosts; and ye have brought what was robbed, and the lame, and the sick, and thus ye have brought an offering: should I accept this in favour from your hand? saith the LORD.

14 But cursed be the deceiver, who hath in his flock a male, and voweth, and sacrificeth a corrupt[c] thing unto the Lord; for I am a great king, saith the LORD of hosts, and my name is feared among the nations.

CHAPTER II.

1 And now, this commandment is for you, O ye priests.

2 If ye will not hear, and if ye will not lay it to heart, to give glory unto my name, saith the LORD of hosts: I will even send out against you a curse, and I will curse your blessings; yea, I will curse the same,[d] because ye do not lay it to heart.

3 Behold, I will destroy unto you the seed, and spread dung upon your faces, even the dung of your festive offerings; and one shall take[e] you away with it.

4 And ye shall thereby know that I have sent out unto you this commandment, that my covenant might be with Levi, saith the LORD of hosts.

5 My covenant was with him life and peace; and I gave them to him for the fear[f] wherewith he feared me, and because of my name he had dread.[g]

6 The law of truth was in his mouth, and falsehood was not found on his lips: in peace and equity he walked with me, and many did he turn away from iniquity.

7 For the priest's lips are ever to keep knowledge, and the law are they to seek from his mouth; for he is the messenger of the LORD of hosts.

8 But ye are indeed departed out of the way; ye have caused many to stumble in the law; ye have corrupted the covenant of the Levite, saith the LORD of hosts.

9 Therefore have I also made you contemptible and low before all the people, in the same measure as ye do not keep my ways, but act with partiality[h] in the law.

10 Have we not all one father? hath not one God created us? (then) why shall we deal treacherously every man against his brother, to profane the covenant of our fathers?

11 Judah hath dealt treacherously, and an abomination hath been committed in Israel and in Jerusalem; for Judah hath profaned the sanctuary of the LORD which he loveth, and hath married the daughter of a strange god.

12 The LORD will cut off unto the man that doth this, son and grandson,[i] out of the tents of Jacob, and him that bringeth near an offering unto the LORD of hosts.

13 And this do ye secondly, covering the altar of the LORD with tears, with weeping and with loud complaint, so that he turneth not any more his regard to the offerings, nor receiveth it with favour at your hand.

14 Yet ye say, Wherefore? Because the LORD hath been witness between thee and the wife of thy youth, against whom thou hast indeed dealt treacherously: yet is she thy companion, and the wife of thy covenant.

15 And not one doth so who hath[k] a rem-

[a] Redak, giving it with, "the assertion of the priest." Others, "its income, its food (i. e. of the table of God, the altar,) is contemptible."

[b] Arnheim and Rashi. Others, "let it grieve." Philippson, simply, "despised it."

[c] i. e. An animal with a bodily defect.

[d] Arnheim ingeniously refers ארותיה to the elliptical הארץ "the earth,"—"the very earth will I curse."

[e] This difficult phrase is given by Rashi, "this dung will carry you up to itself," i. e. make you as contemptible as it is. Aben Ezra, "the enemy carrieth you along with him." Philippson, "and this is to honour you."

[f] Rashi, "that he should fear, and so he did fear me."

[g] Johlson, "he bent himself before my name."

[h] i. e. Favour the great so as not to reprove them. Philippson deems the negative of the first part of the sentence to be omitted before the last, and renders, hence, "and honour not the law."

[i] Jonathan. The Talmudists, "teacher and scholar."

[k] Verses 15 and 16 are rendered after Zunz and Philippson, who chiefly have followed Aben Ezra; but Jonathan, "Behold, Abraham (אחד the eminent one, or the first father of our people,) was an only one, from whom the world (Israel) was created; and what did this one require? nothing but that a child be preserved to him from before the LORD; therefore, &c. For if he hate her, let him dismiss her,—and not cover over violence with a garment," &c. The last clause is explained, "treating a wife nant of a (good) spirit; for what desireth such a one? he seeketh (to possess) a godly posterity: therefore take heed to your spirit, and let none of you deal treacherously against the wife of his youth.

16 For he hateth putting away (the wife), so hath said the LORD the God of Israel, and him who covereth his garment with violence, so hath said the LORD of hosts: therefore take heed to your spirit, and deal not treacherously.

17 ¶ Ye have wearied the LORD with your words: yet ye say, Wherein have we wearied him? By your saying, Every one that doth evil is good in the eyes of the LORD, and in them he findeth delight; or else, Where is the God of justice?

CHAPTER III.

1 Behold, I will send my messenger, and he shall clear out the way before me: and suddenly will come to his temple the Lord, whom ye seek; and the messenger of the covenant, whom ye desire for, behold, he is coming, saith the LORD of hosts.

2 But who can sustain the day of his coming? and who can stand when he appeareth? for he is like the fire of the melter, and like the lye of the washers:

3 And he will sit as a melter and purifier of silver; and he will purify the sons of Levi, and refine them as gold and silver, that they[a] may offer unto the LORD an offering in righteousness.

4 And then shall be pleasant unto the LORD the offerings of Judah and Jerusalem, as in the days of old, and as in former years.

5 And I will come near unto you to (hold) judgment; and I will be a swift witness against the sorcerers, and against the adulterers, and against those that swear falsely, and against those that withhold the wages of the hired labourer, (oppress) the widow, and the fatherless, and that do injustice to the stranger, and fear me not, saith the LORD of hosts.

6 For I the LORD,—I have not changed: and ye sons of Jacob—ye have not ceased to be.

7 From the days of your fathers did ye depart from my statutes, and did not keep them: return unto me, and I will return unto you, saith the LORD of hosts; but ye say, Wherein shall we return?

8 Can a man rob God, that ye will rob me? But ye say, Wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and in heave-offerings.

9 With the curse are ye cursed, and yet me do ye rob, O ye entire nation!

10 Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be provision in my house, and prove me but herewith, saith the LORD of hosts, if I will not open for you the windows of heaven, and pour out for you a blessing, until it be more than enough.

11 And I will rebuke for you the devourer,[b] and he shall not destroy for you the fruit of the ground: and the vine shall not cast its fruit for you before the time in the field, saith the LORD of hosts.

12 And all the nations shall call you blessed; for ye shall be a land of delight,[c] saith the LORD of hosts.

13 ¶ Your words have been strong against me, saith the LORD; but ye say, What have we spoken among us against thee?

14 Ye have said, It is vain to serve God: and what profit is it that we have kept his charge, and that we have walked contritely before the LORD of hosts?

15 And now we call the presumptuous happy: yea, built up are those that practise wickedness; yea, they have even tempted God and are (yet) suffered to escape.

16 Then conversed they that fear the LORD one with the other: and the LORD listened and heard it, and there was written a book of remembrance before him for those who fear the LORD, and for those who respect his name.

17 And they shall be mine, saith the LORD cruelly while keeping her bound to him, as a garment is to the body. Other Rabbins explain this verse as a conversation between those married to strange women and the prophet: "Did not the one (Abraham) do so by espousing Hagar? and was he not endowed with a divine spirit of prophecy? Yes, but what did this one want? he only sought to have a godly posterity; so be you careful of your own spirit, and act not faithlessly against the wife of your youth to seek the embrace of strangers." (See Ezra ix. and x., and Nehemiah xiii. 23—30.)

[a] Johlson, "that those only may be consecrated to the LORD, who sacrifice the offering in righteousness."

[b] Meaning the locusts and kindred insects which destroy the harvest.

of hosts, on that day which I create[a] as a special treasure: and I will spare them, as a man spareth his son that serveth him.

18 And ye shall return, and see the difference between the righteous and the wicked, between him that serveth God and him that hath not served him.

19[b] For, behold, the day is coming, which shall burn as an oven; and all the presumptuous, yea, and all who practise wickedness shall be stubble: and the day that is coming shall set them on fire, saith the LORD of hosts, who will not leave them root or bough.

20 But there shall rise unto you that fear my name the sun of righteousness with healing in his wings: and ye will go forth, and grow fat[c] as calves of the stall.

21 And ye will tread down the wicked; for they shall be ashes under the soles of your feet, on the day that I create, saith the LORD of hosts.

22 Remember ye the law of Moses my servant, whom I commanded on Horeb for all Israel, statutes and ordinances.

23 Behold, I send unto you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the day of the LORD, the great and the dreadful.

24 And he shall turn back the heart of the fathers[d] to the children, and the heart of the children to their fathers: lest I come and smite the earth with a curse.

[23 Behold, I send unto you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the day of the LORD, the great and the dreadful.]

[a] Lit. "maker;" so also in ver. 21.

[b] The English version commences here chap. iv., which is not found in our text.

[c] Zunz, "[illegible] about."

[d] Rashi, "he will turn back the heart of the fathers (to God) through the children, saying in a loving and pleasing way, 'Go speak to your fathers to lay hold of the way of the LORD,'" &c ספר תהלים.

BOOK FIRST.

PSALM I.

1 HAPPY is the man who walketh not in the council of the wicked, and standeth not in the way of sinners, and sitteth not in the seat of scorners;

2 But whose delight is in the law of the LORD, and who doth meditate in his law by day and night.

3 And he shall be like a tree planted by rivulets of water, that yieldeth its fruit in its season, and the leaf of which doth not wither; and all that he may do shall prosper.

4 Not so the wicked; but they are like the chaff which the wind driveth away.

5 Therefore shall the wicked not be able to stand in the judgment, nor sinners in the congregation of the righteous.

6 For the LORD regardeth the way of the righteous; but the way of the wicked leadeth to perdition.

PSALM II.

1 ¶ Wherefore do nations rage, and people meditate a vain thing?

2 The kings of the earth raise themselves up, and rulers take counsel together, against the LORD, and against his anointed:

3 "Let us break asunder their bands, and cast away from us their cords."

4 He who dwelleth in the heavens will laugh: the LORD will hold them in derision.

5 Then will he speak unto them in his anger, and in his displeasure will he terrify them.

6 (Saying,) Yet have I appointed my king upon Zion my holy mount.

7 I will announce the[a] decree, the LORD hath said unto me, "My son[b] art thou: I have indeed this day begotten thee.

8 Ask it of me, and I will give thee nations for an inheritance, and for thy possession the uttermost ends of the earth.

9 Thou shalt break them with a rod of iron; like a potter's vessel shalt thou dash them in pieces."

10 And now, O ye kings, be wise: take warning, ye judges of the earth.

11 Serve the LORD with fear, and rejoice with trembling.

12 Do homage[c] to the son, lest he be angry, and ye be lost on the way; for his wrath is so speedily kindled. Happy[d] are all they that put their trust in him.

PSALM III.

1[e] ¶ A psalm of David, when he fled from before Abshalom his son.

2 LORD, how numerous are my assailants! how many, that rise up against me!

3 Many say of my soul, There is no help[f] for him with God. Selah.[g]

4 But thou, O LORD, art a shield around me, my glory, and he that lifteth up my head.

5 With my voice I call unto the LORD, and he answereth me out of his holy mountain. Selah.

6 I laid myself down and slept: I awoke; for the LORD sustaineth me.

[a] Lit. "I will relate of the decree."

[b] Israel is called "my first-born son," in Exod. iv. 22; "children unto the LORD," in Deut. xiv. 1; hence, the king of Israel is preëminently, as representative of the people, called here, "thou art my son."

[c] Aben Ezra. Lit. "kiss," as the giving of a kiss was considered a sign of appointing to royalty, as with Samuel to Saul, (1 Sam. x. 1.) Rashi, "Arm yourselves with purity of heart." Jonathan, "Accept instruction." Most commentators apply "lest he be angry," to God.

[d] This Psalm concludes, like so many others, with the expression of confidence in God's goodness.

[e] In the Massoretic text the superscriptions to the Psalms are regarded as separate verses when of any length.

[f] Philippson, "salvation," or "happiness."

[g] Selah was probably a musical term; but it is now impossible to ascertain what it precisely meant. Some explain it as meaning "eternally;" hence the phrase, Amen Selah; סלה ועד "for ever and aye."

7 I will not be afraid of ten thousands of people, that have placed[a] themselves round about against me.

8 Arise, O LORD, help me, O my God; for thou smitest all my enemies upon the cheek bone: the teeth of the wicked dost thou break.

9 Salvation belongeth unto the LORD: thy blessing be upon thy people.[b] Selah.

PSALM IV.

1 ¶ To the chief musician on Neginoth, a psalm of David.

2 When I call, answer me, O God of my righteousness: amidst distress thou hast (ever) granted me enlargement; be gracious unto me, and hear my prayer.

3 O ye sons of men, how long shall my glory be put to shame? (how long) will ye love vanity, will ye seek for lies? Selah.

4 But know that the LORD hath set apart the pious for himself: the LORD will hear when I call on him.

5 Tremble, and sin not: commune with your heart upon your bed, and be still.[c] Selah.

6 Offer the sacrifices of righteousness, and put your trust in the LORD.

7 Many say, "Who will show us happiness? Let shine[d] brightly over us the light of thy countenance, O LORD."

8 (But) thou hast placed more joy in my heart than at the time when their corn and their wine were increased.

9 In peace, altogether, will I lay me down and sleep; for thou, LORD, alone,[e] causest me to dwell in safety.

PSALM V.

1 ¶ To the chief musician upon Nechiloth,[f] a psalm of David.

2 To my words give ear, O LORD, have regard to my meditation.[g]

3 Listen unto the voice of my loud cry, my King, and my God, when unto thee I pray.

4 O LORD! in the morning do thou hear my voice: in the morning will I set in order (my prayer) before thee, and look up with hope.

5 For thou art not a God that hath pleasure in wickedness: evil cannot abide with thee.

6 The arrogant[h] cannot stand up before thy eyes: thou hatest all workers of wickedness.

7 Thou wilt destroy those that speak lies: the man of blood and deceit the LORD abhorreth.

8 But as for me,—in the abundance of thy kindness will I enter thy house: I will bow myself down before thy holy temple in the fear of thee.

9 O LORD, lead me in thy righteousness because of those that regard me enviously; make straight before me thy way.

10 For there is not in their mouth any sincerity; their inward part is full of deception; an open sepulchre is their throat: they flatter with their tongue.[i]

11 Condemn them, O God: let them fall through their own counsels; for the multitude of their transgressions cast them down; for they have rebelled against thee.

12 Then will rejoice all those that put their trust in thee; for ever will they shout for joy, when thou protectest them: and then will exult in thee those that love thy name.

13 For thou wilt bless the righteous, O LORD; as with a shield wilt thou encompass him with favour.

PSALM VI.

1 ¶ To the chief musician on Neginoth upon Sheminith,[k] a psalm of David.

2 O LORD, correct me not in thy anger, and chastise me not in thy wrath.

3 Be gracious unto me, O LORD; for I am

[a] Redak, "attack me." Jonathan, "of the quarrel of the people who have gathered all around me."

[b] Rashi, "thy people are bound to praise thee for ever."

[c] Redak, "rebel no more," referring to the rebellion of Abshalom, conceiving this Psalm to have been written on that occasion.

[d] Rashi. Redak, simply, "lift up," taking נסה for נשא.

[e] So is this given by Redak; but the Massorah would require it so: "for thou, O LORD! art alone; in safety wilt thou cause me to dwell."

[f] נחילות from חלל chalal, to perforate, (whence חליל chalil, a pipe, or flute,) probably denotes wind instruments in general; such as the horn, trumpet, pipe, &c.

[g] Others, "complaint," or "sighing."

[h] Rashi, "the foolish." Jonathan, "scorners." Sachs, "boasters."

[i] Lit. "they make smooth their tongue."

[k] Sheminith, "the eighth," which Rashi explains, "a harp with eight strings." Philippson, "in the eighth measure." Others, "on the base." Mendelssohn, "on neginoth with eight strings."

withering away: heal me, O LORD; for my bones are terrified.

4 And my soul is greatly terrified; but thou, O LORD, how long yet—?

5 Return, O LORD, deliver my soul: help me for the sake of thy kindness.

6 For in death men do not remember[a] thee: in the nether world, who shall give thee thanks?

7 I am weary with my sighing; I flood every night my bed; with my tears I moisten my couch.

8 My eye is consumed because of grief; it waxeth old because of all my assailants.

9 Depart from me, all ye workers of wickedness; for the LORD hath heard the voice of my weeping.

10 The LORD hath heard my supplication; the LORD will accept my prayer.

11 Ashamed and greatly terrified shall become all my enemies: they will turn round, and be made ashamed in a moment.

PSALM VII.

1 ¶ A Shiggayon of David, which he sang unto the LORD, concerning the affairs of Cush the Benjamite.

2 O LORD my God, in thee do I put my trust; save me from every one of my persecutors, and deliver me:

3 Lest he tear like a lion my soul, rending it in pieces, with none to deliver.

4 O LORD my God, if I have done this; if there be injustice in my hands;

5 If I have recompensed him that was at peace[b] with me with evil; if I have taken aught[c] from my assailants without cause:

6 May the enemy hotly pursue my soul, and overtake it; and tread down upon the earth my life, and cause my honour to lie in the dust. Selah.

7 Arise, O LORD, in thy anger, lift up thyself because of the rage of my enemies: and awake for me (to) the judgment[d] that thou hast commanded.

8 So shall the congregation of nations compass thee about: and for their sakes return thou to the height.[e]

9 The LORD will judge the people: judge me, O LORD, according to my righteousness, and according to my integrity (grant) me (recompense).

10 Oh let the evil of the wicked come to an end; but establish the just, O thou, who triest the hearts and reins, O righteous God.

11 My protection is by God, who saveth the upright in heart.

12 God is a righteous judge, and a God who is indignant (with the wicked) every day.

13 If he turn not, He will whet his sword; he bendeth his bow, and maketh it ready.

14 Also for him he prepareth the instruments of death; he fashioneth his arrows against the persecutors.[f]

15 Behold, he travaileth with wrong doing; but he hath conceived mischief, and bringeth forth falsehood.

16 He hath hollowed out a pit, and dug it, and is fallen into the ditch which he hath wrought.

17 His mischief will return upon his own head, and upon his own skull will his violence come down.

18 I will thank the LORD according to his righteousness; and I will sing praises to the name of the LORD the Most High.

PSALM VIII.

1 ¶ To the chief musician upon Gittith, a psalm of David.

2 O Eternal One our Lord, how excellent is thy name on all the earth! thou who hast set thy majesty above the heavens.

3 Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings hast thou founded (thy) might,[g] because of

[a] Lit. "for not in death is thy memorial."

[b] Aben Ezra, "who hath done me good."

[c] Rashi, "taken off the garment of him who hated me to cause him to be naked;" taking, as he does, Cush to mean Saul, the corner of whose cloak David cut off in the cave. (1 Sam. xxiv. 5.) Others conceive this to be a parenthesis, thus, "If I have recompensed him at peace with me with evil, when I delivered him who hated me without cause." The version in the text is after Philippson, who adopts Rashi's idea, that חלץ here means, "to take away," "to unclothe."

[d] Rashi, "and awake for me, (that) I may execute the judgment," &c. Sachs, "be wakeful for me; a judgment hast thou commanded, and the congregation," &c. Aben Ezra, "and awaken for me."

[e] Redak, "to hold judgment;" David asks that God may sit upon his judgment seat to decide justly for all.

[f] So Rashi; but the moderns take רשקים to mean "burning darts," which the Asiatics often shot off against their enemies; hence, "he fashioneth his arrows to become burning darts."

[g] Sachs, "victory;" the word is usually given "strength."

thy opponents, that thou mightest bring to silence the enemy and him that seeketh vengeance.

4 When I behold thy heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon and the stars, which thou hast established:—

5 What is the mortal, that thou rememberest him? and the son of man, that thou thinkest of him?

6 Yet thou hast made him but a little less than angels,[a] and hast crowned him with honour and glory.

7 Thou hast given him dominion over the works of thy hands; every thing hast thou placed beneath his feet:

8 Flocks and herds altogether, and also the beasts of the field;

9 The birds of heaven, and the fishes of the sea, whatsoever[b] passeth through the paths of the seas.

10 O Eternal One our Lord, how excellent is thy name on all the earth!

PSALM IX.

1 ¶ To the chief musician upon Muth-labben, a psalm of David.

2 I will thank the LORD with all my heart: I will relate all thy marvellous deeds.

3 I will rejoice and exult in thee: I will sing praise to thy name, O thou Most High:

4 When my enemies are turned backward, (when) they fall and perish at thy presence.

5 For thou hast conducted my dispute and my cause; thou hast sat on the throne as a righteous judge.

6 Thou hast rebuked nations, thou hast caused the wicked to perish, their name hast thou blotted out for ever and ever.

7 O thou[c] enemy, the ruins are passed away for ever, and the cities which thou hast destroyed,—lost is their memorial, yea, theirs.

8 But the LORD will sit enthroned for ever: he hath established for giving judgment his throne.

9 And he will judge the world with righteousness, he shall decide for the people with equity.

10 The LORD also will be a strong-hold for the oppressed, a strong-hold in times of distress.

11 And they that know thy name will put their trust in thee; for thou hast not forsaken those that seek thee, O LORD.

12 Sing praises to the LORD, who dwelleth in Zion: announce among the people his deeds.

13 For he, that inquireth after acts of blood, hath remembered them: he hath not forgotten the cry of the afflicted.

14 Be gracious unto me, O LORD; have regard to my affliction (coming) from those that hate me, thou who liftest me up from the gates of death:

15 In order that I may relate all thy praises in the gates of the daughters of Zion: I will be glad in thy salvation.

16 Sunk are nations in the ditch that they have prepared: in this net which they had laid in secret is their own foot caught.

17 The LORD is made known; he executed justice: through the doing of his own hands is the wicked ensnared. Higgayon,[d] Selah.

18 The wicked shall return into hell,[e] all the nations that are forgetful of God.

19 For not everlastingly shall the needy be forgotten: the expectation of the poor shall not perish for ever.

20 Arise, O LORD; let not the mortal boast of his strength; let nations be judged before thy face.

21 Place, O LORD, fear[f] over them: let nations know, that they are but mortals. Selah.

[a] Sachs and other moderns, "thou madest him but little less than God;" referring to Gen. i. 26, where God said he would create man in his image.

[b] Redak and Aben Ezra, and after them Mendelssohn, "he (man) passeth through the paths of the seas."

[c] Aben Ezra. Philippson, however, takes this verse as a continuation of the preceding, and translates, "the enemies—complete are the ruins for ever, and cities hast thou destroyed—perished is their memory, yea, theirs;" i. e. the memorial of the enemies first spoken of. Joseph Kimchi, "thy destroyings, O enemy, are at an end." Rashi, "the enemy, the swords (of whose hate) have been on us, hath come to his end."

[d] Mendelssohn translates, "O the great thought;" but Sachs and other moderns regard Higgayon as a musical term, or instrument. (Psa. xcii. 4.) Jonathan, "the righteous shall rejoice for ever." Aben Ezra, "I declare this in truth." Rashi, "this occurreth always,"—Selah, as "eternally."

[e] Aben Ezra explains, "because man was created from the earth;" this would then mean, that "the wicked should become nothing, or dust again, as they were originally." The Talmudists, "to the lowest degree of hell" (punishment) after they have been judged in "God's" tribunal.

[f] Aben Ezra, Sforno, and others. Rashi, "master;" "put a master over them."

PSALM X.

1 ¶ Wherefore, O LORD, standest thou afar off? hidest thyself in times of distress?

2 In the pride of the wicked doth he hotly pursue the poor: they[a] are seized through the plans that those have devised.

3 For the wicked boasteth of the longing of his soul, and the robber blesseth himself when he hath despised[b] the LORD.

4 The wicked, according to the pride of his wrathfulness, (saith,) He will not require: There is no God (in) all his plans.

5 Prosperous are his ways at all times; far in the height (remain) thy punishments away from him: all his assailants—he puffeth at them.

6 He saith in his heart, I shall not be moved; I shall be for many generations, and without adversity.

7 Of false oaths is his mouth full, and deceit and fraud: under his tongue is mischief and wickedness.

8 He sitteth in the lurking-places of the villages; in the secret places doth he murder the innocent: his eyes search for the unfortunate.[c]

9 He lieth in wait in a secret place like a lion in his den; he lieth in wait to snatch up the poor: he snatcheth up the poor, as he draweth him[d] into his net.

10 He croucheth, he bendeth himself, and the unfortunate fall through his might.

11 He saith in his heart, God hath forgotten; he hath hidden his face; he will never see it.

12 Arise, O LORD; O God, lift up thy hand: forget not the afflicted.

13 For what doth the wicked despise God? (why) doth he say in his heart, Thou wilt not require it?

14 Thou hast seen it; for thou beholdest mischief and despiteful acts, to requite it with thy hand: unto thee the unfortunate committeth himself; unto the fatherless hast thou (ever) been a helper.

15 Break thou the arm of the wicked; and of the bad man—thou wilt inquire for his wickedness (till) thou find none.

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: nations are perished out of his land.

17 The longing of the afflicted dost thou hear, O LORD! thou wilt strengthen their heart, thou wilt cause thy ear to listen:

18 To judge the fatherless and the oppressed, that not farther more shall be arrogant[e] the mortal from the earth.

PSALM XI.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, by David. In the LORD have I put my trust: how can ye say to my soul, Flee to your mountain as a bird?

2 For lo, the wicked bend their bow, they arrange their arrow upon the string, to shoot in the dark at the upright in heart.

3 For (if) the foundations be torn down, what can the righteous do?

4 The LORD is in his holy temple, the LORD hath his throne in the heavens, his eyes behold, his eyelids prove, the children of men.

5 The LORD proveth the righteous; but the wicked and him that loveth violence his soul hateth.

6 He letteth rain upon the wicked burning coals, fire and brimstone; and a glowing wind is the portion of their cup.[f]

7 For righteous is the LORD, he loveth righteousness: his countenance doth behold the upright.

PSALM XII.

1 ¶ To the chief musician upon Sheminith, a psalm of David.

2 Help, O LORD; for the pious have ceased to be; for the truthful[g] have failed from among the children of men.

3 Deceptively do they speak every one with his neighbour, with flattering lips, with a double[h] heart do they speak.

4 May the LORD cut off all flattering lips, the tongue that speaketh boastful things:

[a] Rashi; "they" are the poor; "those," the wicked.

[b] After Rashi. Sachs, "the robber blasphemeth, scorneth the LORD." So also Philippson and Herxheimer.

[c] Menachem. Philippson, "the weak." Mendelssohn, "the poor wanderer."

[d] Sachs, "as he draweth in his net."

[e] Philippson and Sachs; Rashi "that they may not oppress (break in pieces) any more man sprung from the earth."

[f] This verse is given after Rashi; "the portion of their cup" is a proverbial expression, often met with in Scripture; "the cup of confusion," "my portion and cup," i. e. "fate," "lot," "portion."

[g] Sachs, "truthfulness."

[h] Heb. "a heart and a heart."

5 Who have said, With our tongue will we be mighty; our lips are with us; who is lord over us?

6 Because of the oppression of the poor, because of the sighing of the needy, now will I arise, saith the LORD: I will grant safety to him for whom the other layeth a snare.[a]

7 The words of the LORD are pure words, as silver refined in the crucible[b] of earth, purified seven times.

8 Thou, O LORD, wilt preserve them; thou wilt guard them from this generation for ever.

9 On every side do the wicked walk about, when the vile are exalted over the sons of man.

PSALM XIII.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, a psalm of David.

2 How long, O LORD, wilt thou forget me continually? how long wilt thou hide thy face from me?

3 How long shall I have to devise resolves in my soul, with grief in my heart daily? how long shall my enemy exalt himself over me?

4 Look down, answer me, O LORD my God! enlighten my eyes, that I may not sleep the sleep of death;

5 That my enemy may not say, I have overcome him; that my assailants may not be glad when I am moved.[c]

6 But I trust in thy kindness, let my heart be glad because of thy salvation: I will sing unto the LORD, because he hath dealt bountifully with me.

PSALM XIV.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, by David. The worthless fool saith in his heart, There is no God. They are corrupt, they are abominable (in their) doings, there is none that doth good.

2 The LORD looketh down from heaven upon the children of men, to see if there be one intelligent, one who seeketh for God.

3 They are all gone aside, they are altogether become corrupt: there is none that doth good, no, not even one.

4 Is there no knowledge in all the workers of wickedness? who eat up my people as they eat bread; (while) they do not call on the LORD.

5 There are they terrified in terror; for God is with the righteous generation:

6 The counsel of the poor (though)[d] you put to shame; because the LORD is his protection.

7 Oh that some one might bring the salvation of Israel out of Zion! When the LORD bringeth back the captivity of his people, then will Jacob be glad, and Israel will rejoice.

PSALM XV.

1 ¶ A psalm of David. LORD, who may sojourn in thy tent? who may dwell on thy holy mount?

2 He that walketh uprightly, and worketh righteousness, and speaketh the truth in his heart;

3 That uttereth no calumny with his tongue, that doth no evil to his neighbour, and bringeth[e] no reproach on his fellow-man;

4 In whose eyes the despicable is despised; but that honoureth those who fear the LORD; that sweareth to his own injury, and changeth not;

5 That putteth not out his money for interest, and taketh no bribe against the innocent. He that doth these things shall not be moved to eternity.

PSALM XVI.

1 ¶ A Michtham[f] of David. Preserve me, O God; for I have placed my trust in thee.

2 (O my soul,) thou hast said unto the LORD, Thou art my Lord: my happiness is not without[g] thee;

[a] Menachem. Others, "puffeth at him." Philippson, after Ewald, "who longeth for it," (the divine help.)

[b] Rashi, Aben Ezra, &c. take בעלי to mean "the Lord;" "as silver refined by the Lord of the earth." Philippson, "as refined silver freed from earth." The version here given is after an opinion cited by Rashi.

[c] Jonathan, "when I depart from thy path."

[d] Address to the enemies; and means, "Let them despise the cause of the poor, it matters not, because they are protected by the LORD."

[e] Lit. "beareth," which Redak explains as, "borne on the tongue," or, "thou shalt not bear the name of the LORD thy God in vain;" hence, "to spread reproachful reports."

[f] This word derived from Kethem, "pure gold," is rendered by Mendelssohn with "an ornament" i. e. elegant song.

[g] Jonathan. Septuagint, "thou requirest not my goodness." Others, "my goodness cannot benefit thee." Rashi, "the goodness thou dost for me is not obligatory on thee." Others, "I have no happiness beyond thee."

3 (But) in the saints who are on the earth, and in the excellent,—in them is all my delight.

4 Multiplied shall be the sorrows of those who give presents to another god: I will not pour out their drink-offerings of blood, nor bear their names upon my lips.

5 Thou, O LORD, art the portion of my inheritance, and my cup: thou hast drawn my lot.

6 My possessions[a] are fallen in agreeable places: yea, my heritage is pleasant to me.

7 I will bless the LORD, who hath given me counsel: also in the night seasons my reins admonish me.

8 I have always set the LORD before me, that,[b] being at my right hand, I might not be moved.

9 Therefore is rejoiced my heart, and my spirit[c] is glad: also my flesh shall rest in safety.

10 For thou wilt not abandon my soul to the grave: thou wilt not suffer thy pious (servant) to see corruption.[d]

11 Thou wilt let me know the path of life:[e] fulness of joy is in thy presence; pleasures are at thy right hand for evermore.

PSALM XVII.

1 ¶ A prayer of David. Hear, O LORD, (the cause of) righteousness, attend unto my entreaty, give ear unto my prayer, coming from lips without deceit.[f]

2 Let from thy presence my sentence come forth; let thy eyes behold what is right.

3 Thou hast proved my heart; thou hast thought of me in the night; thou hast refined me—thou couldst find nothing: my purpose doth not pass beyond (the words of) my mouth.[g]

4 Among the deeds of men did I observe, by the word of thy lips, the paths of the dissolute.

5 My steps held firmly to thy tracks, (and) my footsteps did not slip.

6 I call on thee, for thou wilt answer me, O God: incline thy ear unto me, hear my speech.

7 Show marvellously thy loving-kindnesses, O thou that savest those who put their trust (in thee) from those that rise up (against them) by thy right hand.

8 Keep me as the apple of the eye; conceal me under the shadow of thy wings,

9 From the wicked that despoil me, my enemies, who, to take my life,[h] compass me about.

10 They are inclosed in their own fat:[i] with their mouth they speak proudly.

11 On our steps they now encompass us: they direct their eyes to turn aside in the land.

12 Every man is just like a lion that is greedy to tear his prey, and like a young lion lurking in a covert.

13 Arise, O LORD, prevent him, cast him down; deliver my soul from the wicked, who[k] is thy sword,—

14 From these men—thy hand—O LORD, from the men of this world, whose portion is in this life, and whose belly thou fillest with thy hidden treasure: they have children in plenty, and leave the rest of their substance to their babes.

15 As for me, in righteousness shall I behold thy face: I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with contemplating thy likeness.

PSALM XVIII.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, by the servant of the LORD, by David, who spoke unto the LORD the words of this song on the day that [a] Lit. "the lines," i. e. of measuring; hence, that which is measured with them, the land possessed by any one.

[b] Sforno; but Rashi and Redak, "because he is—I shall not be moved."

[c] Lit. "honour," "glory;" and is explained by the commentators, "the soul, as she is the glory of man."

[d] שאול is, as has been remarked to Isaiah xiv. 9, the "nether world," the receptacle of all the dead; not so much "hell," a place of punishment, (though even in its original derivation from the Saxon or German, "hell" should denote a place of concealment—Saxon, hillan or helan; German, hehlen, "to hide," or hühle; Saxon, holl, "a cavern,") as "hades," where the good no less than the bad go; though in Psalm ix. 18, it means the first. Here David speaks, that his soul will not meet the same fate, to end in the grave, and not become corrupt by decomposition. The Ketib has חסידיך "thy pious ones; the Keri, however, the singular. שחת is rendered by Sachs and others, "pit;" by Sforno, gehinnam, "hell;" but in either case it is the same.

[e] Aben Ezra, "for after the death of the body thou wilt then let me know the path of life," &c. Philippson, "not mere existence, but a perfect happiness."

[f] Heb. "without lips of deceit."

[g] This is explained, that the thoughts of the Psalmist corresponded with his words, all within the limits of justice.

[h] Jonathan, "who with wantonness encompass me."

[i] Rashi, "through their fat they close their heart." Philippson, "their fat increaseth."

[k] Others, "by the sword;" next verse "by thy hand."

the LORD had delivered him out of the power of all his enemies, and from the hand of Saül;

2 And he said, I ever love thee, O LORD, my strength.

3 The LORD is my rock, and my fortress, and my deliverer; my God, my rock, in whom I trust; my shield, and the horn of my salvation, and my high tower.

4 Praised, I cried, be the LORD, and from my enemies was I saved.

5 The bonds of death encompassed me, and the floods of destruction made me afraid.

6 The bonds of hell encircled me: the snares of death seized on me.

7 (When) in my distress I called upon the LORD, and unto my God I cried: he heard from his temple my voice, and my complaint came before him, even into his ears.

8 Then shook and trembled the earth; and the foundations of the mountains were moved; and they were shaken, because he was wroth.

9 Smoke went up in his anger and consuming fire out of his mouth: coals flamed forth from him.

10 And he bent the heavens, and came down: and thick darkness was under his feet.

11 And he rode upon a cherub, and flew along, and he flitted[a] by upon the wings of the wind.

12 He made darkness his hiding-place, round about him as his pavilion, dark waters, thick clouds of the skies.

13 From the brightness before him his thick clouds passed away, (with) hail-stones and coals of fire.

14 And the LORD thundered in the heavens, and the Most High uttered forth his voice, (with) hail-stones and coals of fire.

15 And he sent out his arrows, and scattered them; and he shot forth[b] lightnings, and discomfited them.

16 And then were seen the channels of the waters, and there were laid open the foundations of the world, through thy rebuke, O LORD, through the blast of the breath of thy nostrils.

17 He stretched out from above (his hand), he took me; he drew me out from mighty waters.

18 He delivered me from my enemy, the strong, and from those that hated me, when they were too mighty for me.

19 They overcame me on the day of my calamity; but the LORD became my stay.

20 And he brought me forth into a large space; he delivered me, because he had delight in me.

21 The LORD rewarded me according to my righteousness; according to the purity of my hands did he recompense me.

22 For I have kept the ways of the LORD, and have not wickedly departed from my God.

23 For all his ordinances were before me, and his statutes had I not put away from me.

24 I was also upright with him, and I guarded myself against my iniquity.

25 Therefore did the LORD recompense me according to my righteousness, according to the purity of my hands before his eyes.

26 With the kind thou wilt show thyself kind; with the upright man thou wilt show thyself upright;

27 With the pure thou wilt show thyself pure; and with the perverse thou wilt wage a contest.

28 For thou wilt indeed save the afflicted people; but haughty eyes wilt thou bring down.

29 For thou wilt cause my light to shine: the LORD my God will enlighten my darkness.

30 For (aided) by thee I run through a troop; and (helped) by my God I leap over a wall.

31 As for God,—his way is perfect; the word of the LORD is tried: he is a shield to all those that trust in him.

32 For who is god save the LORD? or who is a rock beside our God?

33 He is the God that girdeth me with strength, and rendereth my way unobstructed.

34 He maketh my feet like those of the hinds, and upon my high-places he causeth me to stand.

35 He teacheth my hands for the war, so that a brazen bow is bent by my arms.

36 And thou gavest me the shield of thy salvation, and thy right hand supported me: and thy meekness[c] hath made me great.

[a] Here וירא "he flitted;" in 2 Sam. xxii. וירא "he was seen," or "appeared." There are other variations which will be apparent by comparing this Psalm with the chapter quoted.

[b] Aben Ezra. Jonathan, "lightnings in multitude."

[c] Jonathan, "thy word." (See note to 2 Sam. xxii. 36.) We have followed Rashi here, because the word is spelled differently from what it is in Samuel.

RUTH AMONG THE GLEANERS

37 Thou enlargest my steps under me, so that my joints do not slip.

38 I pursue my enemies, and overtake them; and I return not again till I have made an end of them.

39 I crush them that they are not able to rise: they fall under my feet.

40 For thou hast girded me with strength for the war: thou subduest my opponents under me.

41 And my enemies thou causest to turn their back to me; and those that hate me,—that I may destroy them.

42 They cry, but there is none to help; unto the LORD,—but he answereth them not.

43 And I beat them small as the dust before the wind: like the dirt in the streets do I cast them out.

44 Thou deliverest me from the contests of the people; thou appointest me to be the head of nations: a people that I know not shall serve me.

45 As soon as their ear heareth[a] they shall be obedient to me: the children of the stranger shall utter flattery unto me.

46 The children of the stranger shall fade away, and come forth trembling out of their close places.

47 The LORD liveth, and blessed be my Rock; and exalted be the God of my salvation;

48 The God that granteth me vengeance, and subdueth nations under me;

49 That delivereth me from my enemies: also above my opponents thou liftest me up; thou deliverest me from the man of violence.

50 Therefore will I give thanks unto thee among the nations, O LORD, and unto thy name will I sing praises,— 51 (To him) that maketh great the salvation of his king, and who sheweth kindness to his anointed, to David, and to his seed for ever.

PSALM XIX.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, a psalm of David.

2 The heavens relate the glory of God; and the expanse telleth of the works of his hands.

3 Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night showeth knowledge.

4 There is no speech, there are no words, their voice is not heard.[b]

5 (But) their melody extendeth through all the earth, and to the end of the world their words. For the sun hath he set a tabernacle among them;

6 And he goeth out as a bridegroom from his chamber, he is glad like a strong man to run his course;

7 From the end of the heavens is his going forth, and his circuit is unto their ends: and there is nothing hidden from his heat.

8 The law of the LORD is perfect, quieting the soul: the testimony of the LORD is sure, making wise the simple.

9 The precepts of the LORD are upright, rejoicing the heart: the commandment of the LORD is clear, enlightening the eyes.

10 The fear of the LORD is pure, enduring for ever: the ordinances of the LORD are the truth, they are just altogether.

11 They are those which are to be desired more than gold, and much fine gold; and they are sweeter than honey and the dropping of honeycomb.

12 Moreover thy servant is admonished by them: in keeping them there is great reward.

13 Who can guard[c] against errors? from secret[d] (faults) do thou cleanse me.

14 Also from presumptuous (sins) withhold thy servant; let them not have dominion over me: then shall I be blameless, and I shall be clear from any great transgression.

15 May the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable before thee, O LORD, my Rock, and my Redeemer.

PSALM XX.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, a psalm of David.

[a] Philippson, "Those of whom I have only heard with my ear, the strangers, flatter me."

[b] Aben Ezra and Redak; meaning, their admonition is without audible words. So also Sachs. Others, "There is no speech—without their voice being heard," i. e. in all that is said the voice of the heavens mingles.

[c] Rashi and Aben Ezra. Lit. "who can understand errors?" Sachs, "who can remark?" i. e. with all man's striving, errors will be committed unperceived by him.

[d] i. e. Those unknown, as they were committed unperceived.

2 May the LORD answer thee on the day of distress; may the name of the God of Jacob protect thee;

3 May he send thee help from the sanctuary, and support thee from Zion;

4 May he remember all thy meat-offerings, and accept[a] in favour thy burnt-sacrifice. Selah.

5 May he grant thee according to thy own heart, and fulfil all thy resolves.

6 We will rejoice in thy salvation, and in the name of our God will we upraise our banners: may the LORD fulfil all thy petitions.

7 Now I know that the LORD saveth his anointed; he will answer him from his holy heavens, with the saving strength of his right hand.

8 Some (trust) in chariots, and some in horses; but we will invoke[b] the name of the LORD our God.

9 They are prostrate and fallen; but we are risen up and stand erect.[c]

10 O LORD, save (us): may the king[d] answer us on the day when we call (on him).

PSALM XXI.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, a psalm of David.

2 O LORD, because of thy strength will the king rejoice; and through thy salvation how greatly will he be glad!

3 The longing of his heart hast thou given him, and the request of his lips hast thou not withholden. Selah.

4 For thou meetest him unasked[e] with the blessings of happiness: thou settest on his head a crown of pure gold.

5 Life hath he asked of thee, thou gavest it to him, length of days for ever and ever.

6 Great is his honour through thy help: glory and majesty thou layest upon him.

7 For thou appointest him to be a blessing for ever: thou makest him glad with joy from[f] thy presence.

8 For the king trusteth in the LORD; and through the kindness of the Most High shall he not be moved.

9 Thy hand will reach all thy enemies: thy right hand will reach those that hate thee.

10 Thou wilt render them as a fiery oven at the time of thy anger: the LORD in his wrath will destroy them, and a fire will devour them.

11 Their fruit wilt thou cause to perish from the earth, and their seed from among the children of men.

12 For they directed against thee evil: they devised a mischievous purpose, which they were not able to perform.

13 For thou wilt make them turn their back;[g] upon thy bow-strings thou wilt make ready (thy arrows) against their face.[h]

14 Exalt thyself, O LORD, in thy strength; (and) we will sing and praise thy power.

PSALM XXII.

1 To the chief musician upon Ayeleth-hashachar,[i] a psalm of David.

2 My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? why art thou so far from saving me, and from the words of my loud complaint?

3 O my God! I call in the day-time, but thou answerest not; and in the night I find no rest.[k]

4 But thou art holy, O thou that dwellest amidst the praises of Israel.

5 In thee did our fathers trust: they trusted, and thou didst deliver them.

6 Unto thee they cried, and were delivered: in thee they trusted, and were not put to shame.

7 But I am a worm, and not a man, a reproach of men, and despised of people.

[a] ידשנה from רשן "fat;" hence, "worthy of acceptance," as a lean, sickly gift is unworthy God's acceptance.

[b] Rashi, "נזכיר means, bringing incense and prayer; as in Isa. lxvi. 3;" hence, it has been rendered elsewhere, "confide in." Lit. "make mention."

[c] Rashi, "we shall prevail over them." Aben Ezra, "we shall be exalted, or lifted up."

[d] Septuagint and others translate, "O LORD! save the king; may he hear us, &c.;" but the above is according to the Massoretic text. Jonathan, "O powerful King, accept our prayer," &c.

[e] Rashi. [f] Jonathan. Others, "before thy face."

[g] Rashi, "thou wilt give them as a portion (to thy people)." Redak, "thou wilt set them up as a mark on one side."

[h] Sachs, "thou wilt take aim with thy bow-strings against their face."

[i] This is supposed by some to mean a particular well-known tune, commencing "The hind of the morning-dawn;" others, an instrument, &c.

[k] Lit. "there is no silence to me." Mendelssohn, "nothing allayeth my grief," or "pain."

8 All those who see me laugh me to scorn: they draw open their lips, they shake their head, (saying,)

9 "Let him throw[a] himself on the LORD, that he may deliver him: he will save him, for he delighteth in him."

10 Yea, thou art he that took me from the womb: thou hast been my trust when I hung on my mother's breasts.

11 Upon thee was I cast from my birth: from my mother's womb art thou my God.

12 Oh be not far from me (now); for distress is near; for there is none to help.

13 Many steers have encompassed me: the strong bulls of Bashan have beset me round.

14 They have opened wide against me their mouth, (as) a ravenous and roaring lion.

15 Like water am I poured out, and all my bones are disjointed: my heart is become like wax, it is melted in the midst of my entrails.

16 Like a potsherd is my strength dried up; and my tongue cleaveth to my palate;[b] and into the dust of death hast thou laid me down.

17 For dogs have encompassed me; the assembly of the wicked have enclosed me: like lions (they threaten) my hands and my feet.[c]

18 I may number all my bones: (while) they stare and look upon me.

19 They divide my clothes among themselves, and for my garment do they cast lots.

20 But thou, O LORD, be not far from me: O (thou who art) my strength, hasten to my aid.

21 Deliver from the sword my life, from the power of the dog my solitary soul.

22 Save me from the lion's mouth; as thou hast answered me from the horns of the reëm.[d]

23 I will relate thy name unto my brethren: in the midst of the congregation will I praise thee.

24 Ye that fear the LORD, praise him; all ye the seed of Jacob, glorify him; and be in dread of him, all ye the seed of Israel.

25 For he hath not despised nor abhorred the affliction of the poor; neither hath he hidden his face from him; but when he cried unto him, he heard.

26 Of thee shall be my praise in a great assembly: my vows will I pay in the presence of those who fear him.

27 The meek shall eat and be satisfied; they who seek him shall praise the LORD: may your heart live for ever.

28 All the ends of the world shall remember and return unto the LORD: and all the families of the nations shall bow themselves down before thee.

29 For the kingdom is the LORD'S, and he governeth the nations.

30 All they that eat the fat of the earth shall bow themselves down; before him shall bend the knee all that are going down into the dust; for none can keep alive his own soul.[e]

31 Distant ages shall serve him; there shall be related of the Lord unto future generations.

32 They will come, and will tell his righteousness unto a people yet unborn, that[f] he hath done this.

PSALM XXIII.

1 ¶ A psalm of David. The LORD is my shepherd, I shall not want.

2 In pastures of tender grass he causeth me to lie down: beside still waters he leadeth me.

3 My soul he refresheth: he guideth me in the tracks of righteousness for the sake of his name.

4 Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will not fear evil; for thou art with me: thy rod and thy staff —they indeed comfort me.

5 Thou preparest before me a table in the presence of my assailants; thou anointest with oil my head: my cup overfloweth.

[a] Lit. "roll," meaning, as Rashi comments, "his burden." Aben Ezra, "his words." Redak, "his prayer." But the sense is all the same as in the text.

[b] Rashi, "teeth."

[c] Aben Ezra, "the hands with which a man fighteth, and the feet with which he escapeth." Philippson explains, "Like the lions they enclose him that he cannot escape farther nor contend against them."

[d] It is not possible to determine what animal is meant. Philippson, "buffalo."

[e] Sachs, "and he that cannot keep himself alive."

[f] Philippson, "for."

6 Surely, only goodness and kindness shall follow me all the days of my life: and I shall dwell[a] in the house of the LORD to the utmost length of days.

PSALM XXIV.

1 ¶ Of David a psalm. Unto the LORD belongeth the earth with what filleth it, the world and they that dwell therein;

2 For upon seas hath he founded it, and upon rivers hath he established it.

3 Who shall ascend into the mountain of the LORD? and who shall be able to stand in his holy place?

4 He that is clean of hands, and pure of heart; who hath not lifted up his soul[b] unto falsehood, and hath not sworn deceitfully:

5 He shall bear away blessing from the LORD, and (the reward of) righteousness from the God of his salvation.

6 This is the generation of those that adore him, that seek thy presence, (the sons of)[c] Jacob. Selah.

7 Raise your heads, O ye gates; and be raised wide, ye everlasting doors: and let the King of glory enter!

8 Who is this King of glory? The LORD strong and mighty, the LORD mighty in battle.

9 Raise your heads, O ye gates; and raise (them) up, ye everlasting doors: and let the King of glory enter!

10 Who is then this King of glory? The LORD of hosts, he is the King of glory. Selah.

PSALM XXV.[d]

1 ¶ Of David. Unto thee, O LORD, do I lift up my soul.

2 O my God, in thee do I trust, let me not be ashamed, let not my enemies triumph over me.

3 Yea, none that wait on thee will be put to shame: let those be put to shame who deal treacherously without cause.

4 Show me, O LORD, thy ways; teach me thy paths.

5 Lead me in thy truth, and teach me; for thou art the God of my salvation: on thee do I wait all the day.

6 Remember thy mercies, O LORD, and thy kindnesses; for they are from everlasting.

7 The sins of my youth and my transgressions do not remember: according to thy kindness bear thou me in remembrance, for the sake of thy goodness, O LORD.

8 Good and upright is the LORD: therefore he pointeth out to sinners the right way.

9 He guideth the meek in justice, and he teacheth the meek his way.

10 All the paths of the LORD are kindness and truth unto such as keep his covenant and his testimonies.

11 For the sake of thy name, O LORD, pardon my iniquity: although it is great.

12 Who is that man who feareth the LORD? to him will he point out the way which he is to choose?

13 His soul shall abide[e] in happiness; and his seed shall inherit the land.

14 The secret counsel of the LORD is for those that fear him, and his covenant—to make it known to them.

15 My eyes are ever (directed) toward the LORD; for he will draw out of the net my feet.

16 Turn unto me, and be gracious unto me; for I am solitary and afflicted.

17 The distresses of my heart are enlarged: O bring thou me out of my afflictions.

18 Look on my misery and my trouble; and forgive all my sins.

19 Look at my enemies; for they are many; and they hate me with the hatred of violence.[f]

20 Oh guard my soul, and deliver me: let me not be put to shame; for I put my trust in thee.

[a] Mendelssohn, "I shall once have rest to eternity in the house of the Eternal;" hope of immortality.

[b] I have followed all the modern versions in translating according to the Ketib, which Redak also notices, and likewise Jonathan, נפשי "his soul." But the Keri is נפשׁ "my soul," and this would require to be rendered, "and pronounceth not falsely my own self," i. e. God. The phrase of "swearing by God's soul," or "himself," is found in 'Amos vi. 8, (which see).

[c] Lit. "Jacob." Some supply "God of," "who seek thy presence, O God of Jacob." But Aben Ezra and Redak take Jacob as standing for the entire people; meaning, the true Israelites are those who are true seekers of God.

[d] This Psalm is alphabetically arranged, only that ב, ו and ק are omitted.

[e] Rashi, "his soul abideth in happiness when he resteth in the grave;" because לין means "to lodge," "to spend the night."

[f] i. e. Unjustly; it is sprung from wrong causes.

21 Let integrity and uprightness guard me; for I wait on thee.

22 Redeem, O God, Israel out of all his distresses.

PSALM XXVI.

1 ¶ Of David. Judge me, O LORD; for I have indeed walked in my integrity: and in the LORD have I trusted; I shall not slip.

2 Try me, O LORD, and prove me; purify my reins and my heart.

3 For thy kindness is before my eyes; and I have walked in thy truth.

4 I have not sat with men of falsehood, and with dissemblers will I not enter (in communion).

5 I have hated the assemblage of evil-doers; and with the wicked will I not sit.

6 I will wash in innocency my hands, and I will compass thy altar, O LORD:

7 That I may publish with a loud voice (my) thanksgiving, and relate all thy wondrous deeds.

8 LORD, I love the site of thy house, and the place where thy glory dwelleth.

9 Take not away with sinners my soul, nor with men of blood my life;

10 In whose hands are wicked devices, and whose right hand is full of bribes.

11 But as for me, I will walk in my integrity: redeem me, and be gracious unto me.

12 My foot standeth on an even place: in assemblies will I bless the LORD.

PSALM XXVII.

1 ¶ Of David. The LORD is my light and my salvation; of whom shall I be afraid? the LORD is the fortress of my life; of whom shall I have dread?

2 When evil-doers come near against me to eat up my flesh, my assailants and my enemies at me: then do they stumble and fall.

3 If an army should encamp against me, my heart shall not fear: if war should arise against me, even then[a] will I have trust.

4 One thing have I asked of the LORD, that will I seek for: that I may dwell in the house of the LORD all the days of my life, to behold the loveliness of the LORD, and to be every morning early[b] in his temple.

5 For he will hide me in his pavilion on the day of evil; he will conceal me in the secret of his tabernacle; upon a rock will he place me high.

6 And now will my head be lifted up above my enemies all round about me; and I will sacrifice in his tabernacle sacrifices of joy:[c] I will sing, and I will triumphantly play unto the LORD.

7 Hear, O LORD, my voice, (when) I call, and be gracious unto me, and answer me.

8 Of thee,[d] said my heart, "Seek ye my presence:" thy presence, LORD, will I seek.

9 Hide (then) not thy face from me; reject not in anger thy servant, thou (who) hast been my help: cast me not off, nor forsake me, O God of my salvation.

10 For my father and my mother have forsaken me; but the LORD will take me up.

11 Point me out thy way, O LORD! and guide me on a level path, because of those that regard me enviously.

12 Give me not up to the (revengeful) desire of my assailants; for there are risen up against me false witnesses, and such as utter violence.

13 Unless I had believed to see the goodness of the LORD in the land of life—[e]

14 Wait on the LORD; be strong, and let thy heart be of good courage; and only wait on the LORD.

PSALM XXVIII.

1 ¶ Of David. Unto thee, O LORD, will I call; O my rock, turn not unheeding from me: lest thou turn away silent from me, and I become like those that go down into the pit.

2 Hear the voice of my supplications, when I cry unto thee, when I lift up my hands toward the most holy place of thy sanctuary.

3 Snatch me not away with the wicked, and with the workers of injustice, who speak

[a] Rashi, "in this," meaning what is said above, "the LORD is my strength," &c.

[b] Dunash, quoted by Rashi, and Aben Ezra. Menachem, "to make inquiry;" hence, Sachs, "to inquire (for him) in his temple." Herxheimer, "to contemplate." Philippson, "to look about in," &c.

[c] Heb. "shouting." Rashi, "whereby they sing hymns."

[d] Rashi, "By thy message said my heart to me, Seek ye, all Israel, my presence, and I obey it, and I seek thy presence, O LORD."

peace with their neighbours, with mischief in their heart.

4 Give unto them according to their doing, and according to the evil of their deeds; according to the work of their hands do thou give unto them: bestow their (just) recompense on them.

5 Because they have no regard for the doings of the LORD, nor the works of his hands: may he pull them down, and not build them up.

6 Blessed be the LORD, because he hath heard the voice of my supplications.

7 The LORD is my strength and my shield; in him hath my heart trusted, and I am helped, and my heart exulteth; and with my song will I thank him.

8 The LORD is strength unto them,[a] and he is the fortress of victory[b] of his anointed.

9 Help thy people, and bless thy heritage: and feed them, and exalt them unto all eternity.

PSALM XXIX.

1 ¶ A psalm of David. Ascribe unto the LORD, O ye sons of the mighty,[c] ascribe unto the LORD glory and strength.

2 Ascribe unto the LORD the glory of his name; bow down to the LORD in the beauty of holiness.[d]

3 The voice of the LORD is upon the waters; the God of glory thundereth, the LORD—upon mighty waters.

4 The voice of the LORD (resoundeth) with power; the voice of the LORD (resoundeth) with majesty.

5 The voice of the LORD breaketh in pieces the cedars; yea, the LORD shivereth the cedars of Lebanon;

6 And he maketh them skip like a calf; Lebanon and Siryon like young rĕ'ems.

7 The voice of the LORD heweth out flames of fire.

8 The voice of the LORD shaketh the wilderness; the LORD shaketh the wilderness of Kadesh.

9 The voice of the LORD causeth the hinds to start,[e] and maketh bare forests: and in his temple every thing speaketh (of his) glory.

10 The LORD sat (enthroned) at the flood; and the LORD will sit as King for ever.

11 The LORD will give strength unto his people; the LORD will bless his people with peace.

PSALM XXX.

1 ¶ A psalm, a song at the dedication of the temple,[f] of David.

2 I will extol thee, O LORD; for thou hast lifted[g] me up, and hast not suffered my enemies to rejoice over me.

3 O LORD my God, I cried loudly unto thee, and thou hast healed me.

4 O LORD, thou hast brought up from the nether world my soul: thou hast kept me alive, that I[h] should not go down to the pit.

5 Sing unto the LORD, O ye his pious ones, and give thanks to the memorial[i] of his holiness.

6 For his anger is momentary, (but) life is in his favour: in the evening (cometh) weeping to stay for a night, but in the morning there is joyful song.

7 And I had said indeed in my prosperity, I shall never be moved.

8 LORD, by thy favour hadst thou caused my mountain to stand in strength: thou didst hide thy face, (and) I was terrified.

9 Unto thee, O LORD, will I call; and unto the LORD will I make supplication.

10 What profit is there in my blood, when I go down to the grave? Shall the dust thank thee? shall it announce thy truth?

11 Hear, O LORD, and be gracious unto me: LORD, be thou a helper unto me.

12 Thou hast changed my mourning into dancing for me; thou hast loosened my sackcloth, and girded me with joy:

13 To the end that my glorious soul[k] may sing praise to thee, and never be silent. O LORD my God, for ever will I give thanks unto thee.

[a] i. e. All the people of God who trust in him.

PSALM XXXI.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, a psalm of David.

2 In thee, O LORD, do I put my trust; Oh that I may never be put to shame: through thy righteousness do thou release me.

3 Bend unto me thy ear; speedily deliver me: be thou unto me as a rock of protection, as a mountain strong-hold[a] to save me.

4 For my rock and my strong-hold art thou; and for the sake of thy name lead me, and guide me.

5 Draw me out of the net which they have laid secretly for me; for thou art my protection.

6 Into thy hand do I commit my spirit: thou redeemest me, O LORD, the God of truth.

7 I hate those that depend on lying vanities; but I trust indeed in the LORD.

8 I will be glad and rejoice in thy kindness; because thou hast seen my misery; thou hast taken cognizance of the distresses of my soul;

9 And thou hast not surrendered me into the hand of the enemy: thou hast caused my feet to stand on an ample space.

10 Be gracious unto me, O LORD, for I am in distress; my eye is consumed through vexation—my soul (too) and my body.

11 For my life is spent with sorrow, and my years with sighing: my strength faileth because of my iniquity, and my bones are consumed.

12 Because of all my assailants am I become a reproach, and unto my neighbours greatly so, and a terror to my acquaintance, those that see me abroad flee away from me.

13 I am forgotten as a dead man out of the heart: I am become like a perishable vessel.

14 For I have heard the slandering of many; terror was on every side, while they took counsel together against me: to take away my life did they purpose.

15 But I trusted well in thee, O LORD: I said, Thou art my God.

16 In thy hand are my destinies:[b] deliver me from the hand of my enemies, and from my persecutors.

17 Let thy face shine upon thy servant: save me through thy kindness.

18 O LORD, let me not be put to shame; for I have called on thee: let the wicked be put to shame, let them be silent, (passing) to the nether world.

19 Let the lying lips be made dumb, which speak hard things against the righteous, with pride and contempt.

20 Oh how great is thy goodness, which thou hast treasured up for those that fear thee; which thou hast wrought for those that trust in thee before the sons of men!

21 Thou wilt conceal them in the secret of thy presence from the conspiracy of men: thou wilt keep them secretly in a pavilion from the strife of tongues.

22 Blessed be the LORD; for he hath shown me his kindness wonderfully in a beleaguered[c] city.

23 And yet had I said in my despondency,[d] I am cut off from before thy eyes: nevertheless thou didst hear the voice of my supplications when I cried loudly unto thee.

24 Oh love the LORD, all ye his pious ones: the Lord preserveth the faithful, and recompenses the presumption[e] of him that acteth proudly.

25 Be strong, and let your heart be of good courage, all ye that hope in the LORD.

PSALM XXXII.

1 ¶ Of David: a Maskil.[f] Happy is he whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered (by repentance).[g]

2 Happy is the man unto whom the LORD imputeth not iniquity, and in whose spirit there is no guile.

5 My sin do I ever acknowledge unto thee, and my iniquity have I not covered up. I said, I will make confession because of my transgressions unto the LORD: and thou truly forgavest the iniquity of my sin. Selah.

6 For this shall every pious one pray unto thee in a time when thou mayest be found: surely (then) when great waters overflow, they shall never reach unto him.

7 Thou art my hiding-place; from distress wilt thou preserve me; with songs of deliverance wilt thou encompass me. Selah.

8 I will instruct thee and I will teach thee concerning the way which thou oughtest to go: I will counsel[a] thee with my eye.

9 Be ye not like the horse, or like the mule, who hath no understanding; who must be held in with bit and bridle, his ornament,[b] lest he come near unto thee.

10 Many are the pains of the wicked; but him that trusteth in the LORD will he encompass with kindness.

11 Rejoice in the LORD, and be glad, ye righteous: and shout for joy, all ye that are upright in heart.

PSALM XXXIII.

1 ¶ Be joyful, O ye righteous, in the LORD; (for) unto the righteous praise is comely.

2 Give thanks unto the LORD with the harp: with the ten-stringed psaltery do ye sing (praises) unto him.

3 Sing unto him a new song; play beautifully amidst a triumphant shout.

4 For the word of the LORD is upright; and all his works (are done) in truth.

5 He loveth righteousness and justice: the earth is full of the kindness of the LORD.

6 By the word of the LORD were the heavens made; and by the breath of his mouth all their host.

7 He gathereth together like heaps the waters of the sea: he layeth up in storehouses the depths (of the sea).

8 Let all the earth fear the LORD: of him stand in awe all the inhabitants of the world.

9 For he spoke, and it came into being: he commanded, and it stood fast.

10 The LORD frustrateth the resolves of the nations: he bringeth to nought the thoughts of the people.

11 The counsel of the LORD will stand for ever, the thoughts of his heart from generation to generation.

13 The LORD looketh from heaven; he seeth all the sons of men.

14 From the place of his habitation he directeth his view upon all the inhabitants of the earth;

15 He fashioneth their hearts altogether; he hath regard to all their works.

16 The king is not saved by the multitude of an army: a mighty man is not delivered by much strength.

17 Vain is the horse for victory: nor shall he deliver any by the greatness of his strength.

18 Behold, the eye of the LORD is upon those that fear him, upon those that hope for his kindness, 19 To deliver from death their soul, and to keep them alive in famine.

20 Our soul waiteth for the LORD: our help and our shield is he.

21 For in him shall our heart rejoice; because in his holy name have we trusted.

22 Let thy kindness, O LORD, be upon us, even as we hope in thee.

PSALM XXXIV.

2 I will bless the LORD at all times: continually shall his praise be in my mouth.

3 My soul shall make her boast in the

[a] Rashi. Redak, "concerning what I have seen with my eyes." Jonathan, "I will counsel thee and direct my eye upon thee."

[b] Aben Ezra understands עדי to mean "the jaws," or "mouth," "those whose mouth must be held in." The last part of the verse is given by Philippson, "else he cometh not nigh," &c., meaning only through restraint are the horse and mule subjected to man.

LORD: the humble shall hear it, and be rejoiced.

4 Oh magnify the LORD with me, and let us exalt his name together.

5 I sought the LORD, and he answered me, and from all that I dreaded did he deliver me.

6 They (who) looked unto him, were indeed enlightened, and their faces were not put to the blush.

7 This poor man cried, and the LORD heard him, and out of all his distresses did he save him.

8 The angel of the LORD encampeth round about those who fear him, and delivereth them.

9 Experience[a] and see that the LORD is good: happy is the man that trusteth in him.

10 Oh fear the LORD, ye his saints; for there is no want to those who fear him.

11 The young lions do lack, and suffer hunger; but those who seek the LORD shall not want any good.

12 Come, ye children, hearken unto me: the fear of the LORD will I teach you.

13 Who is the man that desireth life, loveth (many) days, that he may see happiness?

14 Guard thy tongue from evil, and thy lips from speaking deceit.

15 Depart from evil, and do good; seek peace, and pursue it.

16 The eyes of the LORD are directed unto the righteous, and his ears unto their cry.

17 (But) the anger of the LORD is against those that do evil, to cut off from the earth their remembrance.

18 Those cry, and the LORD heareth, and from all their distresses he delivereth them.

19 The LORD is nigh unto those that are broken-hearted; and he saveth those that are of a contrite spirit.

20 Many are the afflictions of the righteous; but out of them all the LORD ever delivereth him.

21 He watcheth all his bones: not one of them is broken.

22 The evil[b] will slay the wicked: and they who hate the righteous shall incur guiltiness.

23 The LORD redeemeth the soul of his servants: and all that trust in him shall not incur guiltiness.

PSALM XXXV.

1 ¶ Of David. Contend, O LORD, with those that contend with me: fight against those that fight against me.

2 Take hold of shield and buckler, and rise up for my help.

3 And draw out the spear, and step in against[c] my pursuers: say unto my soul, I am thy salvation.

4 Let those be put to shame and be confounded that seek after my life:[d] let those be turned backward and be made to blush, that devise unhappiness for me.

5 Let them be as chaff before the wind: and may the angel of the LORD cast them forth.

6 May their way be dark and slippery; and may the angel of the LORD pursue them.

7 For without cause have they hidden for me their net[e] in a pit, without cause have they dug (pit-falls) against my life.

8 May then destruction come upon each of them at unawares; and may his net that he hath hidden catch himself: in (utter) destruction let him fall therein.

9 But my soul shall exult in the LORD: she shall be glad through his salvation.

10 All my bones will say, LORD, who is like unto thee, who deliverest the poor from him that is too strong for him, yea, the poor and the needy from him that robbeth him?

11 There rise up witnesses of violence; concerning what I know not they question me.[f]

my clothing was sackcloth: I afflicted with fasting my soul, and my prayer returned into my own bosom.[a]

14 As though he had been to me a friend or a brother did I walk about: as one that mourneth for a mother did I sorrowfully bend down my head.

15 But in my downfall they rejoiced, and gathered themselves together; there gathered themselves together against me abject wretches, whom I knew not; they did tear me, and ceased not:

16 With hypocritical babbling[b] mockers, they gnashed upon me with their teeth.

17 O Lord, how long wilt thou look on? rescue my soul from their destructions, from the young lions my solitary spirit.

18 I will thank thee in the great assembly: among a mighty people will I praise thee.

19 Let not rejoice over me those that are my enemies wrongfully: (nor) let those who hate me without cause wink with the eye.

20 For they speak not peace; but against the quiet in the land they devise deceitful words.

21 Yea, they opened wide against me their mouth; they said, Aha, aha, our eye hath seen it.

22 Thou hast seen it, O LORD! remain not silent: O Lord, be not far from me.

23 Arouse thyself, and awake to do me justice, my God and my Lord, unto my cause.

24 Judge me according to thy righteousness, O LORD my God; and let them not rejoice over me.

25 Let them not say in their heart, Aha, (this is the wish of) our soul: let them not say, We have swallowed him up.

26 Let those be made ashamed and put to the blush together that rejoice at my mishap: let them be clothed with shame and confusion that magnify themselves above me.

27 Let those shout, and rejoice, that desire my righteousness:[c] yea, let them say continually, Great is the LORD, who desireth the welfare of his servant.

28 And my tongue shall speak of thy righteousness, all the day of thy praise.

PSALM XXXVI.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, by the servant of the LORD, by David.

2 Saith vice itself[d] to the wicked—so I feel it within my heart—that he should have no dread of God before his eyes.

3 For he flattereth himself in his own eyes (too much) to find out[e] his iniquity to hate it.

4 The words of his mouth are wickedness and deceit: he hath left off to be wise, to do good.

5 He deviseth wickedness upon his couch; he placeth himself on a way that is not good; evil he despiseth not.

6 O LORD, into the heavens reacheth thy kindness, thy faithfulness even into the skies.

7 Thy righteousness is like the mountains of God; thy acts of justice like the great deep: man and beast dost thou ever help, O LORD.

8 How precious is thy kindness, O God! And the children of men that seek shelter under the shadow of thy wings,—

9 These will be abundantly satisfied with the fatness of thy house; and of the stream of thy delights wilt thou give them to drink.

10 For with thee is the source of life: in thy light shall we see light.

11 Draw down continuously thy kindness unto those that acknowledge thee; and thy righteousness to the upright in heart.

12 Let not come against me the foot of pride, and let not the hand of the wicked chase me off.

13 There are fallen the workers of wick-

[a] Sforno, "and my prayer for them returned to my bosom, because it was without deceit." Aben Ezra, "May God give me according to my prayer what I have asked for them."

[b] Redak, taking מעוג as "babbling, heedless talk." Philippson, "cake," or "bread," (1 Kings xvii. 12,) "mockers for bread;" those wretches who will do any thing to get a bit of bread, even to insult the great and innocent when in trouble.

[c] i. e. That he be delivered, and proved just.

[d] Mendelssohn, after Rashi. פשע, not here transgression or a single act, but the habit, vice. Philippson divides the verse, the first applying to the thoughts of the wicked, the other to David: thus, "The words of vice to the wicked are within my heart," so says the wicked, as explaining his act, as vice is his principle and motive; and then adds David, "no dread of the LORD is before his eyes."

[e] Philippson. Jonathan, nearly so, "to find iniquity, to hate instruction." Rashi, "so that God may find his iniquity to hate him." Herxheimer, "to accomplish his iniquity, to hate."

edness: they are thrust down, and shall not be able to rise.

PSALM XXXVII.

1 ¶ Of David. Do not fret[a] thyself because of the evil-doers, neither be thou envious[b] against the workers of iniquity.

2 For like the grass they shall soon be mowed down, and like the green herb shall they wither.

3 Trust in the LORD, and do good; dwell in the land, and feed (thyself) with truthfulness.

4 And delight thyself in the LORD, and he will give thee the wishes of thy heart.

5 Commit thy way unto the LORD, and trust in him: and he will accomplish it.

6 And he will bring forth as the light thy righteousness, and the justice of thy (cause) as the noonday.

7 Be silent before the LORD, and wait patiently for him: fret not thyself because of him who prospereth in his way, because of the man who practises wicked devices.

8 Cease from anger, and forsake wrath: fret not thyself in any wise to do evil.

9 For evil-doers shall be cut off; but those that wait upon the LORD, these—shall truly inherit the land.

10 For yet but for a little while, and the wicked shall be no more: yea, thou wilt look carefully at his place, and he shall not be there.

11 But the meek shall inherit the land, and shall delight themselves because of the abundance of peace.

12 The wicked purposeth evil against the just, and gnasheth against him with his teeth.

13 The Lord will laugh at him; for he seeth that his day is coming.

14 The wicked have drawn out the sword, and have bent their bow, to cause the poor and needy to fall, and to slaughter such as are of an upright course (of life).

15 (But) their sword shall enter into their own heart, and their bows shall be broken.

16 Better is the little that the righteous hath, than the great riches of many wicked.

17 For the arms of the wicked shall be broken; but the upholder of the righteous is the LORD.

18 The LORD regardeth the days of the upright: and their inheritance shall endure for ever.

19 They shall not be made ashamed in the time of unhappiness; and in the days of famine shall they be satisfied.

20 But the wicked shall perish, and the enemies of the LORD shall be as the beauty[c] of the meadow: they pass away; in smoke they pass away.

21 The wicked borroweth, and repayeth not; but the righteous is beneficent,[d] and giveth.

22 For those blessed of him[e] shall inherit the land; and those cursed of him shall be cut off.

23 By the LORD are the steps of the righteous man established; and he findeth pleasure in his course (of life).

24 Though he fall, he shall not be utterly cast down; for the LORD upholdeth his hand.

25 I have been young, and I am also grown old: yet have I never seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed seeking for bread.

26 He is all the time beneficent, and lendeth; and his seed will be for a blessing.

27 Depart from evil, and do good; and dwell[f] for evermore.

28 For the LORD loveth justice, and never forsaketh his pious servants: they are for ever preserved; but the seed of the wicked will be cut off.

29 The righteous shall inherit the land, and dwell for ever therein.

30 The mouth of the righteous uttereth wisdom, and his tongue speaketh what is just.

31 The law of his God is in his heart: none of his steps shall slip.

32 The wicked looketh out for the righteous, and seeketh to slay him.

33 The LORD will not leave him in his Others, "the fat of lambs," which was burnt on the altar.

hand, and will not condemn him when he is judged.

34 Wait on the LORD, and keep his way, and he will exalt thee to inherit the land: when the wicked are cut off, shalt thou look on.

35 I have seen the wicked terrible[a] in power, and striking root like a green tree in its native soil.

36 Yet he passed away, and, lo, he was no more: and I sought him, but he could not be found.

37 Observe the perfect man, and behold the upright; for there is a (happy) future for the man of peace.[b]

38 But the transgressors are destroyed together: the future of the wicked is cut off.

39 And the salvation of the righteous is from the LORD: he is their strong-hold in the time of distress.

40 And the LORD helpeth them, and delivereth them; he will deliver them from the wicked, and save them; because they have put their trust in him.

PSALM XXXVIII.

1 ¶ A psalm of David, to bring to remembrance.[c]

2 O LORD, correct me not in thy wrath, nor chastise me in thy fury.

3 For thy arrows have penetrated into me, and thy hand presseth down upon me.

4 There is no soundness in my flesh because of thy indignation: there is no peace in my bones because of my sin.

5 For my iniquities are passed over my head, as a heavy burden are they too heavy for me.

6 Foul, corrupt are my bruises because of my folly.

7 I am bent double; I am bowed down to the utmost; all the day long I go about full of grief.

8 For my loins are filled with a burning disease, and there is no soundness in my flesh.

9 I am made faint and crushed to the utmost; I cry aloud because of the groaning of my heart.

10 Lord, before thee is all my longing; and my sighing is from thee not hidden.

11 My heart is restless, my strength hath left me; and the light of my eyes—that also is no more with me.

12 My lovers and my friends stand[d] aloof from my plague; and my kinsmen stand afar off.

13 They also that seek after my life lay snares; and they that wish for my mishap speak wicked falsehoods; and deceits do they devise all the day long.

14 But I, as a deaf man, hear not; and I am as a dumb man that cannot open his mouth.

15 Thus am I as a man that heareth not, and in whose mouth are no words of defence.[e]

16 For in thee, O LORD, do I hope: thou wilt answer, O Lord my God.

17 For I said, Perhaps they might rejoice over me: when my foot slippeth, they might magnify themselves over me.

18 For I am prepared for (my) downfall, and my pain is continually before me.

19 For I will tell of my iniquity; I will be grieved because of my sin.

20 But my enemies are strong in life; and numerous are those that hate me wrongfully;

21 They also that repay (me) evil in lieu of good; they hate me bitterly because I pursue what is good.

22 Forsake me not, O LORD: O my God, be not far from me.

23 Make haste to help me, O Lord, my salvation.

PSALM XXXIX.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, to Jeduthun,[f] a psalm of David.

2 I said, I will guard my ways, that I sin not with my tongue: I will guard my mouth with a muzzle, while the wicked is before me.

[a] Aben Ezra. Mendelssohn, "a wicked man who was mighty."

[b] Sachs, after Rashi, who comments, "if he have no (happy) commencement he hath still an end." Jonathan, "for the end of man is peace." Eng. ver. "of that man;" but there is no particular person spoken of in the text, wherefore it must be taken generally.

[c] Rashi, "to bring to remembrance the troubles of Israel before God." Herxheimer, "or to call sufferings to mind." Mendelssohn, "at sacrificing."

[d] Jonathan, "opposite to," i. e. they see, but come not near.

[e] Redak. Others, "rejoinder." Eng. ver. "reproofs."

[f] Some suppose that Jeduthun was the composer of the melody of this Psalm written by David; some, that it signifies a particular instrument named after him.

3 I was dumb in deep silence. I was quite still, even from (speaking) good; but my pain was greatly excited;

4 My heart was hot within me, in my self-communing there burnt a fire: (then) spoke I with my tongue,

5 Let me know, O LORD, my end, and the measure of my days, what it is: I wish to know when I shall cease to be.

6 Behold, measured out with the span hast thou made my days; and my whole duration is nothing before thee: yea, as nothing but vanity doth every man stand here.[a] Selah.

7 As nothing but a shadowy image doth man walk about, yea, for vanity only do all make a noise: he heapeth up his gains, and knoweth not who shall gather them.

8 And now, what shall I wait for, O Lord? my hope is in thee.

9 From all my transgressions deliver thou me: render me not the object of reproach of the worthless.

10 I was dumb, I opened not my mouth; because thou hadst done it.

11 Remove thou thy plague away from me: from the blows of[b] thy hand am I consumed.

12 When thou with corrections chastisest man for iniquity, thou causest his excellence to melt away as (if eaten by) the moth: yea, nothing but vanity is every man. Selah.

13 Hear my prayer, O LORD, and give ear unto my cry; be not silent at my tears; for a stranger am I with thee, a sojourner, like all my fathers.

14 Leave off from me, that I may recover strength, before I go hence, and am no more.

PSALM XL.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, a psalm of David.

2 I had waited patiently for the LORD, when he inclined himself unto me, and heard my cry.

3 And he brought me up out of the noiseful deep,[c] out of the miry clay, and he set up my feet upon a rock, making firm my steps.

4 And he placed in my mouth a new song, a praise unto our God: many will see it, and fear; and they will trust in the LORD.

5 Happy is the man that maketh the LORD his trust, and turneth not unto the proud, nor such as stray aside unto lies.

6 Many things hast thou done, O LORD my God; thy wonderful deeds and thy thoughts toward us—there is none to be compared unto thee—will I tell and speak of, (though) they are too numerous to be counted.[d]

7 Sacrifice and meat-offering thou desirest not—ears[e] hast thou hollowed out unto me—burnt-offering and sin-offering thou demandest not.

8 Then said I, Lo, I come: in the roll of the book it is written down for me;

9 To fulfil thy will, O my God, do I desire; and thy law is within my heart.

10 I announce (thy) righteousness in the great assembly: lo, I will not refrain my lips, O LORD, thou well knowest it.

11 Thy righteousness have I never hidden within my heart; thy faithfulness and thy salvation have I spoken of openly: I have not concealed thy kindness and thy truth before the great assembly.

12 Do thou, O LORD, not withhold thy mercies from me: let thy kindness and thy truth continually watch over[f] me.

13 For evils without number have compassed me about; my iniquities have overtaken me, so that I am not able to see: they are more numerous than the hairs of my head; and my courage[g] hath forsaken me.

14 Be pleased, O LORD, to deliver me; O LORD, hasten to my help.

15 May those be made ashamed and put to the blush together that seek after my soul to take her away: let them be driven backward and be confounded, that wish for my mishap.

16 May they be astonished in consequence of their shame that say unto me, Aha, aha!

[a] Hebrew, with the addition, "the greatest vanity." Rashi, "every man's position and life are vanity."

[b] Rashi; but Menachem, "from the dread of thy punishment."

[c] Philippson; meaning, "the sea which is tumultuous in its roaring;" hence, not literally "pit," as others have.

[d] Philippson, after the Massoretic punctuation. Others divide the verse off differently, but with the same general meaning.

[e] Meaning, though he cannot bring sacrifices away from the temple, still can he worship God; obedience is demanded; he has ears to listen to instruction; and this sacrifice of obedience will he bring to be accepted.

[f] Rashi.

[g] Lit. "heart"

17 (But) may all those that seek thee be glad and rejoice in thee: may they say continually, The LORD be magnified,—those that love thy salvation.

18 But though I be poor and needy, the Lord will think of me: my help and my deliverer art thou; O my God, delay not.

PSALM XLI.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, a psalm of David.

2 Happy is he that careth for the poor: on the day of evil will the LORD deliver him.

3 The LORD will preserve him, and keep him alive; he shall be made happy on the earth: and thou wilt not deliver him unto the revengeful desire of his enemies.

4 The LORD will sustain him upon the bed of painful disease: thou changest[a] all his couch in his sickness.

5 I said, LORD, be gracious unto me: heal my soul; for I have sinned against thee.

6 My enemies speak evil of me, When will he die, and his name perish?

7 And if he come to see (me), he speaketh falsely: his heart gathereth wickedness[b] to itself; he goeth abroad (and) speaketh it.

8 Altogether whisper against me all that hate me: against me do they devise my injury.

9 "His godless deed (say they) is poured out over him: as he lieth there he will never more rise up again."

10 Yea, even the man that should have sought my welfare, in whom I trusted, who eateth my bread, hath lifted up his heel against me.

11 But thou, O LORD, be gracious unto me, and raise me up, that I may requite it unto them.

12 By this do I know that thou art pleased with me, that my enemy doth not triumph over me.

13 But as for me, thou upholdest me in my integrity, and placest me before thy presence for ever.

14 Blessed be the LORD the God of Israel from everlasting, and to everlasting. Amen, and Amen.

BOOK SECOND.

PSALM XLII.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, a Maskil, for the sons of Korach.

2 As a hart panteth after brooks of water, so panteth my soul after thee, O God.

3 My soul thirsteth for God, for the living God: when shall I go (again)[c] and be seen in the presence of God?

4 My tears have been my food day and night; because[d] men say unto me all the day, Where is thy God?

5 These things will I remember, and pour out my soul in me: how I was wont to pass along amidst the multitude, journeying with them as a pilgrim to the house of God, with the voice of joyful song and thanksgiving, among the festive throng.

6 Why art thou cast down, O my soul, and disquieted in me? Hope thou in God; for I shall yet thank him, because of the salvation of his countenance.

7 O my God, my soul is cast down within me: therefore will I remember thee from the land of the Jordan, and from the peaks of Chermon, from the low[e] mount.

[a] Rashi, "also at that time when his disease is severe upon him, and all his rest and quiet are changed." Jonathan, "thou hast changed his bed and cured him." Our translation simply means, changing his sick-bed into one of recovery.

[b] Rashi, "he pretendeth to feel regret, and while he sitteth he deviseth wicked thoughts to himself—what evil to speak when he goeth out."

[c] Mendelssohn. [d] Others, "while they say."

[e] This difficult verse is variously rendered. Mendelssohn, "When I remember thee (here) in the land of Jordan and the mountains of Chermon, mountains of little import," i. e. compared to Zion, although much higher. Others take מִצְעָר to be an otherwise not named peak, "Miz'ar." Philippson takes חרמונים to be derived from חרם "destruction;" hence, "therefore will I think of thee once worshipped in the land of the Jordan and the ruins on the degraded mount," meaning, "mount Zion," now degraded by triumphant enemies, conceiving this psalm to be written by an exile who was among the heathens.

8 Deep calleth unto deep at the noise of thy waterfalls:[a] all thy waves and thy billows have passed over me.

9 In the daytime the LORD will command his kindness, and in the night his song shall be with me, as a prayer unto the God of my life.

10 I will say unto God, My rock, why hast thou forgotten me? why must I walk grieved, under the oppression of the enemy?

11 It is as death[b] in my bones, when my assailants reproach me; when they say unto me all the day, Where is thy God?

12 Why art thou cast down, O my soul? and why art thou disquieted within me? Hope thou in God; for I shall yet thank him, the salvation of my countenance, and my God.

PSALM XLIII.

1 ¶ Judge me, O God, and plead my cause against an ungodly nation: from the deceitful and unjust man do thou deliver me.

2 For thou art the God of my fortress: why hast thou abandoned me? why must I walk about grieved, under the oppression of the enemy?

3 Send thou thy light and thy truth, these shall guide me; they shall bring me unto thy holy mountain, and to thy dwellings:

4 That I may go unto the altar of God, unto God the joy of my gladness; and that I may thank thee upon the harp, O God, my God.

5 Why art thou cast down, O my soul? and why art thou disquieted within me? Hope thou in God; for I shall yet thank him, the salvation of my countenance, and my God.

PSALM XLIV.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, for the sons of Korach, a Maskil.

2 O God, with our ears have we heard, our fathers have told us, deeds which thou hadst done in their days, in times of old.

3 Thou, with thy hand, didst indeed drive out nations, and plant them; thou didst ill-treat people, and cause them to spread out.[c]

4 For not by their sword did they obtain possession of the land, and their own arm brought them no victory; but thy right hand, and thy arm, and the light of thy countenance, because thou hadst given them thy favour.

5 Thou art my King, O God: ordain salvation for Jacob.

6 Through thee will we butt down our assailants: through thy name will we tread under foot our opponents.

7 For not in my bow will I trust, and my sword shall not help me.

8 But thou helpest us against our assailants, and those that hate us thou puttest to shame.

9 Of God we boast[d] all the day, and to thy name will we give thanks for ever. Selah.

10 But (now) thou hast cast off, and put us to the blush, and goest not forth with our armies.

11 Thou causest us to turn back from before our assailant: and they who hate us take spoil for themselves.

12 Thou givest us up like sheep for food, and among the nations hast thou dispersed us.

13 Thou sellest thy people for no value, and acquirest no gain by their price.

14 Thou renderest us a reproach to our neighbours, a scorn and a derision to those that are round about us.

15 Thou renderest us a by-word among the nations, a shaking of the head among the people.

16 All the day is my disgrace before me, and the shame of my face covereth me;

17 Because of the voice of him that reproacheth and blaspheneth; by reason of the enemy and him that seeketh vengeance.

18 All this is come over us, yet have we not forgotten thee; nor have we dealt falsely by thy covenant;

19 Our heart is not moved backward, nor hath our step turned aside from thy path:

20 Even when thou didst crush us in the abode of monsters, and cover us with the shadow of death.

21 If we had forgotten the name of our God, or spread forth our hands to a strange god:

[a] צנור is explained to mean properly a pipe by which water runs down from a roof; hence, "waterfalls," as applied to the great works of God, here denoting the severe distress which overwhelms the Psalmist.

[b] After Aben Ezra. Lit. "murder."

[c] Mendelssohn; i. e. Israel. Jonathan, "cast out," i. e. the Canaanites.

[d] Aben Ezra, "God we praise," &c.

22 Would not God search out this? for he knoweth the secrets of the heart.

23 But for thy sake are we slain all the day; we are counted as flocks (destined) for slaughter.

24 Awake, wherefore wilt thou sleep, O Lord? arise, abandon us not for ever.

25 Wherefore wilt thou hide thy face, wilt thou forget our misery and our oppression?

26 For our soul is bowed down to the dust; our body cleaveth unto the earth.

27 Arise unto our help, and redeem us for the sake of thy kindness.

PSALM XLV.

1 ¶ To the chief musician upon Shoshannim, by the sons of Korach, a Maskil, a song of love.[a]

2 My heart swelleth[b] with a good speech; I say,[c] "My works shall be for the king:" my tongue is the pen of a ready writer.

3 Thou art more fair than the children of men; grace is poured out over thy lips: therefore hath God blessed thee for ever.

4 Gird thy sword upon the thigh, O mighty one, (it is) thy glory and thy majesty;

5 Yea, it is thy majesty: be prosperous, ride along for the cause of truth and meekness[d] and righteousness; and fearful things shall thy right hand teach thee.

6 Thy sharpened arrows—people will fall down beneath thee—(will enter) into the heart of the king's enemies.

7 Thy throne, given of God,[e] endureth for ever and ever: the sceptre of equity is the sceptre of thy kingdom.

8 Thou lovest righteousness, and hatest wickedness: therefore hath God, thy God, anointed thee with the oil of gladness above thy associates.

9 Of myrrh, and aloes, and cassia are (fragrant) all thy garments: out of palaces of ivory have they made thee joyful with the sound of music.[f]

10 Kings' daughters are among those dear to thee:[g] the queen standeth on thy right hand in fine gold of Ophir.

11 Hearken, O daughter, and look, and incline thy ear, and forget thy own people, and thy father's house:

12 Then will the king long for thy beauty; for he is thy lord; and bow thyself to him.

13 And the daughter of Tyre shall be there with a gift: the rich among the people shall entreat thy favour.

14 All gloriously attired awaiteth the king's daughter in the inner chamber; of wrought gold is her garment.

15 In embroidered clothes will she be brought unto the king: virgins that follow her, her companions, are brought unto thee.

16 They are led forth with rejoicings and gladness, they enter into the palace of the king.

17 Instead of thy fathers shall be thy children: thou wilt appoint them as princes in all the land.

18 I will make thy[h] name to be remembered in all generations: therefore shall the people praise thee for ever and ever.

PSALM XLVI.

1 ¶ To the chief musician: by the sons of Korach, upon 'Alamoth, a song.

2 God is our protection and strength, a help in distresses, very readily found.[i]

3 Therefore will we not fear, even when the earth is transformed, and when mountains are moved into the heart of the seas;

4 (When) the waters thereof roar and foam,[k] when mountains quake before his majesty.[l] Selah.

[a] Rashi conceives this Psalm to have been endited in praise of those who study the law of God; and explains the whole allegorically in this sense. Others give it a Messianic interpretation. Sforno comments, "to excite the love of Israel for their Father in heaven." The moderns deem it a poem by one of the sons of Korach at the nuptials of some king whose name is not mentioned.

[b] Lit. "bubbleth," or "boileth," i. e. overflows, is full of.

[c] Rashi, "This song which I have composed and made, I say it for him who is worthy to be a king," i. e. the student of the divine law.

[d] Mendelssohn, "the oppressed innocence." Zunz, "right." Philippson, "the meekness of justice."

[e] Rashi, "Thy throne, O judge and chief, is for ever."

[g] Mendelssohn, "those that grace thy feast." Sachs, "that adorn thy house."

[h] Both Rashi and Aben Ezra refer this to God, in the manner of the Psalmists, who generally conclude with a thanksgiving to the LORD. We should then render, "people shall thank thee," &c.

[i] Others, "present greatly." Eng. ver. "very present." Philippson, "approved greatly."

[k] Redak, "rise as billows."

6 God is in her midst; she shall not be moved: God will ever help her, at the dawning of (her) morning.

7 Nations rage, kingdoms are moved: he letteth his voice be heard, the earth melteth away.

8 The LORD of hosts is with us; a defence unto us is the God of Jacob. Selah.

9 Come, look at the deeds of the LORD, who hath made desolations on the earth.

10 He causeth wars to cease unto the end of the earth; he breaketh the bow, and cutteth the spear in pieces; he burneth wagons in the fire.

11 Leave off,[a] and know that I am God: I will be exalted among the nations, I will be exalted on the earth.

12 The LORD of hosts is with us; a defence unto us is the God of Jacob. Selah.

PSALM XLVII.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, a psalm for the sons of Korach.

2 All ye people, clap[b] your hands; shout unto God with the voice of triumph.

3 For the LORD is most high, fear-inspiring; he is a great king over all the earth.

4 He will subdue people under us, and nations under our feet.

5 He will choose for us our inheritance, the excellency of Jacob which he loveth. Selah.

6 God ascendeth amid a triumphal shout, the LORD, amid the sound of the cornet.

7 Sing praises to God, sing praises: sing praises unto our King, sing praises.

8 For God is King of all the earth: sing ye praises with understanding.[c]

9 God reigneth over the nations; God sitteth upon his holy throne.

10 The nobles of the people are gathered together, (to be with)[d] the people of the God of Abraham; for unto God belong the shields of the earth: he is greatly exalted.

PSALM XLVIII.

1 ¶ A song and psalm by the sons of Korach.

2 Great is the LORD, and highly praised in the city of our God, (in) his holy mountain.

3 A beautiful district, the joy of the whole earth, is mount Zion, the farthest[e] north, the city of the great King.

4 God is become known in her palaces as a defence.

5 For, lo, the kings were assembled, they are passed away together.

6 They indeed saw—(and) so they were astonished; they were terrified, they were confounded.[f]

7 Trembling seized on them there, pain, as on a woman in travail.

8 With the east wind thou breakest the ships of Tharshish.

9 As we have[g] heard, so have we seen (it) in the city of the LORD of hosts, in the city of our God: God will establish it for ever. Selah.

10 We have reflected on thy kindness, O God, in the midst of thy temple.

11 As thy name is, O God, so is thy praise over the ends of the earth: of righteousness is thy right hand full.

12 Let mount Zion rejoice, let the daughters of Judah be glad, because of thy judgments.

13 Compass Zion about, and walk round about her; number her towers.

14 Direct your mind to her outer wall, mark carefully[h] her palaces: in order that ye may tell it to the latest generation.

15 For[i] this One is God, our God for ever the mountains quake through the pride of the sea," i. e. "through the breaking of the waves against them."

[a] Words of God—"Leave off war and contest."

[b] Rashi, "strike each other on the hand," or "join hands."

[c] Jonathan. Redak, "a song giving instruction;" so has it been rendered by the modern translators. Aben Ezra, "every intelligent man."

[d] Aben Ezra. Others render this as apposition, as, "yea, the people," &c.; hence, Rashi gives נדיבי as, "those who have voluntarily yielded themselves to slaughter, the people," &c.

[e] "At the north of it is the city of the Great King;" so Mendelssohn, since Zion is south of Jerusalem. Others take the "farthest north" to be, as in Isa. xiv. 13, the seat of the heathen gods; hence, the Psalmist says here, that Zion is as the farthest north, the residence of our great King.

[f] Rashi; but Aben Ezra, "they fled hastily away."

[g] i. e. What has been related from father to son is established by what is witnessed at the moment.

[h] Rashi, "build high."

[i] Sachs, "so that ye may tell to the latest generation, that this God is," &c.

and ever: he will be our guide even unto death.[a]

PSALM XLIX.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, by the sons of Korach, a psalm.

2 Hear this, all ye people; give ear, all ye inhabitants of the perishable world:

3 Both the sons of the low and the sons of the high, rich and needy, altogether.

4 My mouth shall speak wisdom; and the meditation of my heart shall be of understanding.

5 I will incline my ear to a parable: I will open with the harp my riddle.[b]

6 Wherefore should I fear in the days of evil, when the iniquity of my oppressors encompasseth me?—

7 Of those that trust in their wealth, and boast themselves of the multitude of their riches?

8 No one can in any wise redeem his brother, nor can he give to God redemption money for himself;

9 For the ransom of their soul is too costly, and it is omitted for ever.

10 And should he still live for ever? not see the pit?[c]

11 For he must see that wise men die, that together the fool and the brutish person perish, and leave to others their wealth.

12 Their inward thought is, that their houses are to be for ever, their dwelling-places, from generation to generation; they call them by their own names in (various) countries.[d]

13 Nevertheless man in (his) splendour endureth not: he is like the beasts (that) perish.

14 This is their way, their folly: yet their posterity will take pleasure in their sayings.[e] Selah.

15 Like flocks are they thrust into the nether world; death will feed them; but the upright shall have dominion over them in that morning;[f] and their form wasteth away in the nether world, (taken away) from their own dwelling.[g]

16 But God will redeem my soul from the power of the nether world; for he will take me away. Selah.

17 Be not thou afraid when a man becometh rich, when the glory of his house is increased;

18 For when he dieth he can take nothing away; his glory will not descend after him.

19 For though he bless his soul during his life, and men praise[h] thee, when thou doest well to thyself:

20 She[i] shall go to the generation of his fathers, unto eternity will these never see light.

21 Man, though in splendour, who understandeth not, is like the beasts that perish.

PSALM L.

1 ¶ A psalm of Assaph. The God of gods, the LORD, speaketh, and calleth the earth, from the rising of the sun unto his setting.

2 Out of Zion, the perfection of beauty, God shineth forth.

3 Our God is coming, and will not keep silence: a fire devoureth before him, and round him there rageth a mighty storm.

4 He will call to the heavens above, and to the earth, to judge his people.

5 "Gather together unto me my pious servants, who make a covenant with me by sacrifice."

[a] Menachem takes לעולם על מות for "for ever." Philippson, "even in danger of death." Lit. "over death."

[b] The Psalmist calls his proposition "a riddle," something to the world unknown; and as he propounds it, he plays on his harp, to accompany his song.

[c] So does Aben Ezra connect these verses. Redak, "and he must let it pass by for ever, that he is to live," &c.

[d] Rashi. Others, "men praise their names in the countries." Sachs, "they apply their names to their lands."

[e] Lit. "Mouth;" Mendelssohn, and so partly Rashi: "if but posterity praise them."

[f] The "morning" when the righteous are to rule, (see Malachi iii. 21,) the time of the divine judgment, or resurrection. Philippson explains "over them" to mean what they leave, and "the morning," simply, as speedily.

[g] Redak. Rashi, "the form of the wicked will outlast hell; this shall cease, but not they; so that it is not to be a dwelling for them." Philippson, "the nether world is an unreal dwelling for them."

[h] Rashi, "They will praise thee, if thou actest righteously; and when thou diest thou wilt see the generation of the sinners' fathers," &c. Philippson conceives the end of ver. 19 and 20 to be an ironical address to the rich, and renders "his," "thy fathers."

[i] Redak, taking תבוא to be the third feminine singular, referring to "soul" in ver. 19; and comments, "She goeth to the generation of his fathers who were wicked like himself." (See Exod. xx. 5.)

6 And the heavens tell of his righteousness; for God is judge himself. Selah.

7 "Hear, O my people, and I will speak; O Israel, and I will testify against thee: God, thy God, am I.

8 Not because of thy sacrifices will I reprove thee; and thy burnt-offerings are continually before me.[a]

9 I will not take a bullock out of thy house, nor he-goats out of thy folds.

10 For mine are all the beasts of the forest, the cattle upon a thousand[b] mountains.

11 I know all the fowls of the mountains: whatever moveth[c] on the fields is with me.

12 If I were hungry, I would not say it to thee; for mine is the world, and what filleth it.

13 Do I eat the flesh of fatted bulls, or drink the blood of he-goats?

14 Offer unto God thanksgiving;[d] and pay unto the Most High thy vows;

15 And call on me on the day of distress: I will deliver thee,—and so wilt thou glorify me."

16 But unto the wicked God saith, "What hast thou to do to relate my statutes, and why bearest thou my covenant upon thy mouth?

17 And yet thou hatest instruction, and castest my words behind thee.

18 When thou seest a thief, then art thou pleased with him, and with adulterers hast thou thy portion.

19 Thou lettest loose thy mouth with evil, and thy tongue frameth deceit.

20 Thou sittest and speakest against thy brother; against thy own mother's son thou utterest slander.

21 These things hast thou done, and I kept silence: thou didst ween that I am like thyself; (but) I will reprove thee, and set it in order before thy eyes."

22 Do but reflect on this, ye that forget God, lest I tear (you) in pieces, with none to deliver.

23 Whoso offereth thanksgiving[e] glorifieth me: and to him that ordereth his course aright, will I show the salvation of God.

PSALM LI.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, a psalm of David,

2 When Nathan the prophet came unto him, after he had gone in unto Bath-sheba'.

3 Be gracious unto me, O God, according to thy kindness: according to the greatness of thy mercies blot out my transgressions.

4 Wash me thoroughly from my iniquity, and cleanse me from my sin.

5 For of my transgressions I have full knowledge; and my sin is before me continually.

6 To thee, thee[f] only, have I sinned, and what is evil in thy eyes have I done:—in order that thou mightest be righteous when thou speakest, be justified[g] when thou judgest.

7 Behold, in iniquity was I brought forth; and in sin did my mother conceive me.

8 Behold, thou desirest truth in the inward parts: therefore do thou cause me to know wisdom in the recesses (of the heart).

9 Cleanse me from sin with hyssop, and I shall be clean: wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow.

10 Cause me to hear gladness and joy; that the bones which thou hast crushed may rejoice.

11 Hide thy face from my sins, and all my iniquities do thou blot out.

12 Create unto me a clean heart, O God; and a firm spirit renew thou within me.

13 Cast me not away from thy presence; and thy holy spirit do not take from me.

14 Restore unto me the gladness of thy salvation; and with a liberal spirit do thou support me.—

[a] Jonathan explains this verse, that God does not reprove the people for the sacrifices not brought in the captivity, and that those brought during the temple are still present. Rashi, Redak, &c. supply "not" in the second part, "which are not before me." Mendelssohn takes it, as here given: "The altar is full of burnt-offerings; yet this is not what is needed, but obedience."

[b] Rashi, "the cattle on the mountains covered with herds."

[c] Rashi. Others, "wild beasts—are known to me."

[d] Rashi comments, "make a confession of thy sins, repent, and then pay thy vows."

[e] Philippson, "Who, offering thanksgiving, honoureth me, and guideth his course (aright), him will I show," &c.

[f] Wesseli and Mendelssohn, "who art God alone;" but all injuries to man, are sins to God alone.

[g] Others, "clear," "pure;" but purity is justification as applied to the Judge.

15 I will teach transgressors thy ways, and sinners shall return unto thee.

16 Deliver me from blood-guiltiness, O God, thou God of my salvation; (that) my tongue[a] may sing aloud of thy righteousness.

17 O Lord, open thou my lips, and my mouth shall declare thy praise.

18 For thou desirest not sacrifice; else would I give it: in burnt-offering hast thou no delight.

19 The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit: a broken and a contrite heart, O God, wilt thou not despise.

20 Do good in thy favour unto Zion; build thou the walls of Jerusalem.

21 Then wilt thou be pleased with the sacrifices of righteousness, with burnt-offering and entire offering: then shall bullocks be offered upon thy altar.

PSALM LII.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, a Maskil of David,

2 When Doëg the Edomite came and told Saül, and said unto him, David is come to the house of Achimelech.

3 What vauntest thou thyself of wickedness, O mighty man? the kindness of God endureth all the time.

4 Thy tongue deviseth mischiefs, like a sharpened razor, thou worker of[b] deceit.

5 Thou lovest evil more than good; falsehood more than speaking righteousness. Selah.

6 Thou lovest all words of destruction, the tongue of deceit.

7 (Therefore) God will also destroy thee for ever: he will take[c] thee away, and pluck thee out of his tent, and root thee out of the land of life. Selah.—

8 And the righteous shall see it, and they will be afraid, and laugh concerning him:

9 "Lo, this is the man that made not God his fortress; but trusted in the abundance of his riches, relied proudly on his mischievous wickedness."

10 But I am like a green olive-tree in the house of God: I trust in the kindness of God for ever and ever.

11 I will thank thee for ever, because thou hast done it: and I will wait on thy name, for (it[d] is) good, before thy pious ones.

PSALM LIII.

1 ¶ To the chief musician upon Machalath, a Maskil of David.

2 The worthless fool saith in his heart, There is no God. They are corrupt, and they are abominable (in their) injustice: there is none that doth good.

3 God looketh down from heaven upon the children of men, to see if there be one intelligent, one who seeketh for God.

4 Every one (of them) hath departed (from righteousness); altogether are they become corrupt: there is none that doth good, no, not one.

5 Is there no knowledge in the workers of wickedness? who eat up my people as they eat bread: (while) they do not call on God.

6 There were they terrified with terror where there was no terror; for God had scattered the bones of those that encamped against thee: thou didst put them to shame, because God had rejected them.

7 Oh that some one might bring the salvation of Israel out of Zion! When God bringeth back the captivity of his people, (then) will Jacob be glad, (and) Israel will rejoice.

PSALM LIV.

1 ¶ To the chief musician on Neginoth, a Maskil of David,

2 When the Ziphim came and said to Saül, Behold, David is hiding himself with us.

3 O God, by thy name save me, and by thy strength grant me justice.

4 O God, hear my prayer; give ear to the words of my mouth.

5 For strangers (to goodness)[e] are risen up against me, and powerful oppressors seek after my soul: they have not set God before them. Selah.

[a] Only when sins are forgiven can praise be acceptable.

[b] Rashi refers "working deceit," to the razor; commenting, "cutting the flesh with the hair." Similarly Redak.

[c] Rashi, "break thee in pieces." Others, from חתה "to gather up," as coals are taken out of the fire by a shovel.

[d] Philippson supplies, "thou art," &c.

[e] Strangers here does scarcely mean foreigners, though Aben Ezra takes it so; but those strangers to justice and godliness. Jonathan reads זדים "the presumptuous."

6 Behold, God is a helper unto me: the Lord is among those that uphold my soul.

7 He will cause the evil to return upon those that regard me with envy: in thy truth cut them off.

8 I will liberally sacrifice unto thee: I will give thanks unto thy name, O LORD; for it is good.

9 For out of all distress hath he delivered me: and my eye hath seen (its desire) on my enemies.

PSALM LV.

1 ¶ To the chief musician on Neginoth, a Maskil of David.

2 Give ear, O God, to my prayer, and hide not thyself from my supplication.

3 Listen unto me, and answer me: I mourn[a] in my grief, and moan;

4 Because of the voice of the enemy, because of the oppression of the wicked; for they cast wrong upon me, and in wrath they attack me.

5 My heart is sorely pained[b] within me, and the terrors of death are fallen upon me.

6 Fearfulness and trembling are come upon me, and shuddering hath covered me.

7 And I said, Oh that some one would give me wings like a dove! I would fly away and dwell (quietly).

8 Lo, I would flee far away, I would spend my night in the wilderness. Selah.

9 I would prepare hastily a refuge for me from the sweeping wind (and) from storm.

10 Destroy, O Lord, divide[c] their tongue; for I have seen violence and strife in the city;

11 Day and night do these encompass it upon her walls: and wrong and trouble are in her midst.

12 Mischief is in her midst: guile and deceit depart not from her streets.

13 For it is not an enemy that reproached me; then I could bear it: not he that hateth me hath magnified himself against me; then I would have hidden myself from him;

14 But it is thou, a man my equal, my guide, and my acquaintance;

15 So that we took sweet secret counsel together, and walked unto the house of God in tumultuous company.

16 Let him dispense death over them; let them go down alive into the nether world; for evil is in their dwelling, in the midst of them.

17 I, however, will call on God: and the LORD will save me.

18 At evening and morning and noon will I make my complaint and moan: and he heareth my voice.—

19 He delivereth my soul in peace from the battle against me; for in multitudes are they (contending) with me.[d]

20 God will hear, and humble them—yea, he that sitteth enthroned from the oldest time—Selah—those who dread[e] no changes, and fear not God.

21 He[f] stretcheth out his hands against those at peace with him: he violateth his covenant.

22 The creamy words[g] of his mouth are smooth, yet there is war (in) his heart: his words are softer than oil, yet are they drawn swords.

23 Cast thy burden[h] upon the LORD, and he will sustain thee: he will never suffer the righteous to be moved.

24 But thou, O God, thou wilt bring them down into the pit of destruction: let not the men of blood and deceit live out half their days; but I will indeed trust in thee.

PSALM LVI.

1 ¶ To the chief musician upon Jonath-elem-rechokim,[i] by David, a Michtham, when the Philistines seized him in Gath.

2 Be gracious unto me, O God; for man longeth to swallow me up; all the time he oppresseth me fighting.

3 Those that regard me with envy long to swallow (me) up all the time; for many are

[a] Rashi. The moderns, Saehs, &c., "I roam about."

[b] Rashi, "full of care." Sachs, "trembleth."

[c] That is, "distract their counsels, and let their devices be confounded."

[d] Rashi, "this he hid because of the many who assisted me with their prayers." But though עִמָּדִי is generally found in a good sense "with me," still it is also met with in the opposite sense in Gen. xxxi. 7.

[e] Rashi. Jonathan and Saehs, "who change not their ways." Aben Ezra, "who have had no changes of fortune."

[f] A calumniator, a rebel, of whom David complains.

[g] Similar to the English expression, "honeyed phrases."

[h] יְהָבְךָ is explained by others, "what God hath bestowed," or "fortune." Sachs, "desire." Jonathan, "hope."

[i] Lit. "the dumb dove of the distance;" probably the name of a particular tune or melody.

they that fight against me, O thou Most High.[a]

4 The day (when) I am afraid, I will still trust in thee.

5 In God will I praise his word, in God I have put my trust; I will not be afraid: what can flesh do unto me?

6 All the day they wrest my words: against me are all their thoughts for evil.

7 They come together in troops, they hide themselves, they are those that watch my heels, as though they hoped (to take) my soul.

8 Because of their wrong-doing let me escape from them:[b] in anger cast down the people, O God.

9 My wanderings hast thou well numbered: put thou my tears into thy bottle; behold, they are numbered by thee.

10 Then shall my enemies retire backward on the day when I call (on thee): this I know—that God is for me.

11 In God[c] will I praise the word: in the LORD will I praise the word.

12 In God have I put my trust; I will not be afraid: what can man do unto me?

13 Upon me, O God, (rest) thy vows: I will pay thanksgiving offerings unto thee.

14 For thou hast delivered my soul from death—yea, behold, my feet from slipping, that I may walk before God in the light of the life.

PSALM LVII.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, Al-tashcheth,[d] by David, a Michtham, when he fled from Saül, in the cave.

2 Be gracious unto me, O God, be gracious unto me; for in thee my soul seeketh protection, and under the shadow of thy wings will I seek protection, until the mischief be passed away.

3 I will call unto God, the Most High; unto God that accomplisheth[e] (his kindness) on me.

4 He will send from heaven, and save me, though he that longeth to swallow me up utter reproach. Selah. God will send forth his kindness and his truth.

5 My soul is in the midst of lions; I lie down (in the midst of) those that send out flames,[f] (those) sons of men, whose teeth are spears and arrows, and whose tongue is a sharpened sword.

6 Be thou exalted above the heavens, O God: above all the earth let thy glory be.

7 A net have they prepared for my steps; my soul hath been bent down; they have dug before me a pit; they are fallen into the midst thereof. Selah.

8 Firm is my heart, O God, firm is my heart: I will sing and play.

9 Awake, my spirit; awake, psaltery and harp: I will wake up the morning-dawn.[g]

10 I will thank thee among the people, O Lord: I will sing praises unto thee among the nations.

11 For great, even unto the heavens, is thy kindness, and even unto the skies (extendeth) thy truth.

12 Be thou exalted above the heavens, O God: above all the earth let thy glory be.

PSALM LVIII.

1 ¶ To the chief musician Al-tashcheth, by David, a Michtham.

2 Do you indeed, who are dumb, speak righteously? do ye judge in uprightness,[h] O ye sons of men?

3 Even in (your) heart ye work injustice: on the earth do ye weigh out the violence of your hands.

4 The wicked are estranged (from goodness) from the womb: those who speak lies go astray from their very birth.

5 They have poison like the poison of a serpent: (they are) like the deaf adder that stoppeth her ear;

6 Which will not hearken to the voice of conjurers, yea, that of the wisest of all charmers.

[a] Jonathan. Philippson, "many are the proud fighters against me."

[b] Rashi and Aben Ezra. Jonathan, "for the falsehood in their hands let them have want." Sachs, "in vain be their escaping." Philippson, "through wickedness they obtain an escape," meaning, that singly they escape through cunning: he therefore prays for collective punishment—on the people—who compose the evil-doers.

[c] Jonathan, "I will praise God's word of justice, I will praise the LORD's word of mercy."

[d] Lit. "destroy not;" probably also a melody.

[e] Mendelssohn, "who decreeth over me."

[f] Figurative for those that speak calumnies. So Rashi.

[g] A beautiful image: the Psalmist rises before day, and impatiently calls for the morning to appear.

[h] Sachs, "judge righteously the sons of man."

7 O God, break out their teeth in their mouth: the jaw-teeth of the young lions tear thou out, O LORD.

8 Let them melt away as water (which) runneth off:[a] when each one bendeth (his bow to shoot) his arrows, let them be as if cut in pieces.[b]

9 As a snail which melteth, let him pass away; like the untimely birth[c] of a woman which hath not seen the sun.

10 Before your pots can feel the thorns, will he take them away with a whirlwind, both the green[d] and the burning.

11 The righteous will rejoice when he seeth the vengeance: he will bathe his steps in the blood of the wicked.

12 So that a man shall say, Verily fruit will come for the righteous: verily there is a God that judgeth on the earth.

PSALM LIX.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, Al-tashcheth, by David, a Michtham, when Saül sent, and they watched the house to put him to death.

2 Deliver me from my enemies, O my God: defend me from them that rise up against me.

3 Deliver me from the workers of wickedness, and from men of blood do thou save me.

4 For, lo, they lie in wait for my soul, the mighty are gathered in troops against me: not for my transgression, nor for my sin, O LORD.

5 Without guilt (in me) they run and make themselves ready: awake, (come) toward me, and behold.

6 And thou, O LORD God of hosts, the God of Israel, awake to punish all the nations: be not gracious to any treacherous wicked ones. Selah.

7 They will return at evening; they will howl like dogs, and go round about the city.

8 Behold, they sputter with their mouth: swords are in their lips; for who, (say they,) doth hear?[e]

9 But thou, O LORD, wilt laugh at them: thou wilt hold in derision all the nations.

10 Because of (the enemy's) strength will I wait upon thee; for God is my defence.

11 The God who showeth me kindness will go before me: God will let me see (my desire) upon those who regard me with envy.

12 Slay them not, that my people may not forget: drive them about by thy power; and bring them down, thou our shield, O Lord.

13 The sin of their mouth is the word of their lips: let them be caught through their pride, because of the cursing and lying which they relate.

14 Make an end in fury, make an end (of them), that they may be no more, and let them know that God ruleth in Jacob, as far as the ends of the earth. Selah.

15 And they will return in the evening; they will howl like dogs, and go round about the city.

16 They will indeed roam about after something to eat, if they be not satisfied, so that they can be at rest.[f]

17 But I will truly sing of thy strength; yea, I will sing joyfully in the morning of thy kindness; for thou hast been a defence unto me and a refuge on the day when I was distressed.

18 Unto thee, O my strength, will I sing; for God is my defence, the God of my kindness.

[a] Others, "Let them (the wicked) pass away."

[b] Rashi, "God bendeth his arrows that they may be destroyed." Redak, however, explains as in the text, and it means, that their arrows should be rendered harmless, as though the points were cut away.

[c] Jonathan, "like the untimely born and the mole, which are blind and have not seen the sun." אשת like the Chaldean אשותא "the mole." Philippson, "let them not see," &c.

[d] Herxheimer, who comments, that the simile is taken from a caravan, which prepares its food with the thorns of the desert, which are whirled away by a sudden gale, whether yet green or already burning. Philippson, partly after Redak, "Whether the flesh in the pot be raw or already cooked;" and says, "that so the counsel of the wicked shall be frustrated." Rashi, "Before your briers become thorns, (ere the children of the wicked grow up,) the LORD will sweep them off with might (חי like חיל) and in wrath." Mendelssohn, "When yet raw, scarcely warmed," &c.

[e] Rashi, Aben Ezra, and Redak. Mendelssohn, simply, "for who heareth." Philippson, "but who heareth them?"

[f] Rashi. Aben Ezra, "if they be not satisfied they will (not) rest." Philippson, "if they be not satisfied they will roam about all night;" which gives the same sense as the text, meaning, that the houseless dogs roam about all night unless they find enough to still their hunger, after which alone they will seek rest; and so the wicked roam about to commit injustice against the just.

PSALM LX.

1 ¶ To the chief musician upon Shushan-'eduth, a Michtham of David, to teach,

2 When he fought with Aram-naharayim, and with Aram-zobah, and Joäb returned, and smote of Edom in the Salt Valley twelve thousand (men).

3 O God, thou hast cast us off, thou hast made a breach in us, thou hast been displeased: restore now unto us (thy favour).

4 Thou hast caused the earth to quake; thou hast split it: heal her breaches; for she is moved.

5 Thou hast caused thy people to see hard things: thou hast made us to drink the wine of confusion.

6 Thou hast given to those that fear thee a banner,[a] to elevate themselves, because of the truth. Selah.

7 In order that thy beloved may be delivered: help with thy right hand, and answer me.

8 God hath spoken in his holiness: I will exult, I will divide Shechem, and the valley of Succoth will I measure out.

9 Mine is Gil'ad, and mine is Menasseh; Ephraim also is the strong-hold of my head; of Judah are my chiefs;[b]

10 Moäb is my washpot; upon Edom will I cast my shoe: Philistia, triumph thou but over me.

11 Who will bring me into the fortified city? who will lead me as far as Edom?

12 Behold, it is thou, O God, who hast cast us off; and thou, O God, goest not forth with our armies.

13 Give us help against the assailant; for vain is the help of man.

14 Through God shall we do valiantly: and he it is that will tread down our assailants.

PSALM LXI.

1 ¶ To the chief musician upon Neginah, by David.

2 Hear, O God, my entreaty; listen to my prayer.

3 From the end of the earth will I call unto thee, when my heart is overwhelmed: lead me to the rock that is too high for me.

4 For thou hast been a shelter unto me, a strong tower against the enemy.

5 Let me sojourn in thy tent to all eternity; let me be sheltered under the covert of thy wings. Selah.

6 For thou, O God, hast truly listened to my vows: thou hast given back[c] the heritage of those that fear thy name.

7 Oh, add days unto the king's days: may his years be as of many generations.

8 May he abide for ever before God: ordain that kindness and truth may guard him.

9 So will I sing praise unto thy name for ever, that I may pay my vows day by day.

PSALM LXII.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, upon Jeduthun, a psalm of David.

2 Only in God my soul trusted in silence: from him cometh my salvation.

3 Only he is my rock and my salvation; (he is) my defence: I shall not be greatly moved.

4 How long will ye devise mischief against a man? will ye all assault him murderously, as though he were a falling wall, a tottering fence?

5 Yea, from his height do they take counsel to cast (him) down; they delight in lies: with their mouth do they bless, but inwardly do they curse. Selah.

6 Yea, in God hope in silence, my soul; for from him is my expectation.

7 Only he is my rock and my salvation; (he is) my defence: I shall not be moved.

8 With God are my salvation and my glory: the rock of my strength (and) my protection are in God.

9 Trust in him at all times, O ye people; pour out before him your heart: God is a protection for us. Selah.

10 Verily nought are the sons of common men, a lie the sons of the great; they must rise in the balance; they are altogether (lighter) than nought.[d]

[a] As God's vassals a banner is given them, under which they are to march to victory, that truth may prevail.

[b] Rashi. Lit. "lawgiver," or "dispenser." Sachs and others, "sceptre," or "ruler's staff."

[c] Rashi. Others, "thou hast given (me) the heritage," &c.

[d] Sforno. Others render הבל with "a breath," hence, Mendelssohn, "on the scale a breath will outweigh them all."

11 Do not put your trust in defrauding, and be not rendered vain through robbery: if riches flourish, set not your heart (upon them).

12 Once hath God spoken; (yea,) twice (what) I have heard: that strength belongeth unto God.

13 And unto thee, O Lord, belongeth kindness; for thou wilt recompense every man according to his works.

PSALM LXIII.

1 ¶ A psalm of David, when he was in the wilderness of Judah.

2 O God, thou art my God; early will I seek thee: my soul thirsteth for thee, my flesh longeth for thee in a dry land, and it is faint without water.

3 As[a] I have beheld thee in the sanctuary, seeing thy strength and thy glory;

4 Because thy kindness is better than life, my lips shall praise thee:

5 Thus will I bless thee while I live; in thy name will I lift up my hands.

6 As with fat and marrow will my soul be satisfied; and with tuneful lips shall my mouth praise thee.

7 When I remember thee upon my couch, I meditate on thee in the night-watches.

8 Because thou hast been a help unto me; and in the shadow of thy wings will I sing rejoicingly.

9 My soul cleaveth unto following thee: me thy right hand upholdeth.

10 But those that seek my soul, to destroy it, shall go down into the lowest deeps of the earth.

11 They shall be delivered up to the power of the sword: they shall become a prey for jackals.

12 But the king shall rejoice in God: every one that sweareth by him shall glorify himself; for the mouth of those that speak falsehood shall be stopped.

PSALM LXIV.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, a psalm of David.

2 Hear my voice, O God, in my complaint: preserve my life from the dread of the enemy.

3 Hide me from the secret counsel of evil-doers, from the tumultuous assault of the workers of wickedness;

4 Who whet their tongue like a sword, who aim with[b] their arrow, the bitter word:

5 To shoot in secret at the innocent; suddenly do they shoot at him, and fear not.

6 They encourage themselves in an evil plan;[c] they tell secretly of laying snares: they say, Who will see them?

7 They search out iniquities; "We are ready with the carefully searched out device:" and the inward thought and heart of each is deeply (hidden).[d]

8 But God shooteth at them suddenly (his) arrow;—(thence) are come their wounds.

9 And their own tongues will stumble over themselves: all that look on them will shake their head.

10 All men shall fear, and shall declare the deeds of God, and understand his works.

11 The righteous shall rejoice in the LORD, and shall trust in him; and all the upright in heart shall glorify themselves.

PSALM LXV.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, a psalm (and) song of David.

2 For thee praise is waiting,[e] O God, in Zion: and unto thee shall vows be paid.

3 O thou that hearest prayer, unto thee all flesh shall come.

4 The iniquitous things have become too mighty for me: our transgressions—these wilt thou wipe away.

5 Happy is he whom thou choosest, and causest to approach, that he may dwell in thy courts: let us be satisfied with the happiness of thy house, the holiness[f] of thy temple.

[a] Philippson. Rashi connects this with the preceding verse, "my soul thirsteth—to see thy might and thy glory as I have beheld thee in the tabernacle at Shiloh."

[b] Lit. "who bend their arrow."

[c] Aben Ezra; lit. "word." Jonathan, "they fortify for themselves the evil word."

[d] After Philippson, who takes the sentence commencing תכנו as indicating the words of the wicked; notwithstanding which device being resolved on, each one keeps his thoughts hidden within his heart. Rashi reads טכנו "they have hidden—the well-considered device," &c. Others render, "they have accomplished."

[e] Aben Ezra and Redak. Jonathan and Rashi, "Silence is praise to thee." Philippson, "unto thee gentle praise is due." Herxheimer combines both these views, "unto thee is due silence and praise."

[f] Rashi, Mendelssohn, Sachs, &c.—The holiness will then be felt by man, when he is at peace with God.

6 With terrific deeds in righteousness wilt thou answer us, O God of our salvation, who art the confidence of all the ends of the earth, and of the sea, that are far away;

7 Who setteth firmly the mountains by his power, who is girded with might;

8 Who assuageth the roaring of the seas, the roaring of their waves, and the tumult of nations.

9 And they that dwell in the uttermost parts are afraid of thy wondrous signs: the outgoings[a] of the morning and evening thou causest to rejoice.

10 Thou hast thought of the earth, and waterest her abundantly; thou greatly enrichest her; the brook of God is[b] full of water: thou preparest their corn, when thou hast thus prepared her.[c]

11 Watering her furrows abundantly, smoothing down her ridges, thou softenest her with showers: thou blessest her growth.

12 Thou hast crowned the year of thy goodness; and thy tracks drop fatness.

13 The pastures of the wilderness are dropping (with plenty): and the hills are girt with gladness.

14 The meadows are clothed with flocks, and the valleys are enveloped with corn: men shout for joy, (yea,) they also sing.

PSALM LXVI.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, a song or psalm. Shout joyfully unto God, all ye lands:

2 Sing forth the glory of his name; make glorious his praise.

3 Say unto God, How fear-inspiring is every one of thy works! through the greatness of thy strength will thy enemies yield feigned obedience unto thee.

4 All the lands shall bow themselves down unto thee, and shall sing praises unto thee; they shall sing praises to thy name. Selah.

5 Come and see the deeds of God: fear-inspiring is his doing toward the children of men.

6 He changed the sea into dry land; through the river they went on foot: there did we rejoice in him.

7 He ruleth by his might for ever; his eyes look upon the nations: the rebellious—these shall not be exalted. Selah.

8 Bless, O ye people, our God, and cause the voice of his praise to be heard:

9 Who hath appointed our soul to life, and hath not suffered our foot to slip.

10 For thou hast proved us, O God: thou hast refined us, as silver is refined.

11 Thou hast brought us into the net; thou hast placed fetters upon our loins.

12 Thou hast caused men to ride on our head: we entered into fire and into water; but thou broughtest us out to (the enjoyment) of overflowing plenty.

13 I will enter thy house with burnt-offerings: I will pay unto thee my vows, 14 Which my lips have uttered, and my mouth hath spoken, when I was in distress.

15 Burnt-offerings of fatlings will I offer up unto thee, with the incense of rams; I will prepare steers with he-goats. Selah.

16 Come, hear, and I will relate, all ye that fear God, what he hath done for my soul.

17 Unto him I cried with my mouth, and a song of extolling was on my tongue.

18 If I had looked on wickedness with my heart, the Lord would not have heard;

19 But verily God hath heard; he hath listened to the voice of my prayer.

20 Blessed be God, who hath not removed my prayer (from him), nor his kindness from me.

PSALM LXVII.

1 ¶ To the chief musician on Neginoth, a psalm or song.

2 May God be gracious unto us, and bless us; may he cause his face to shine upon[d] us. Selah.

3 That upon earth men may know thy way, among all nations thy salvation.

4 The people will thank thee, O God; the people, all of them together, will thank thee.

5 Nations will rejoice and sing for joy:

[a] Philippson supplies, "the inhabitants of," i. e. those who live east and west. Others regard "the outgoing" as the stars that rise at the end of day, and the animals that go forth at the end of night. Rashi, "men thank him for the ending of the day and night."

[b] God's rain—his overflowing brook—is abundant for all.

[c] i. e. The earth: moistened by rain, she is prepared to prepare corn for man.

[d] Heb. "with us."

when thou judgest the people righteously, and guidest the nations upon earth. Selah.

6 The people will thank thee, O God; the people, all of them together, will thank thee.

7 The earth yieldeth her products: (yea,) God, our own God, will bless us.

8 God will bless us: and all the ends of the earth shall fear him.

PSALM LXVIII.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, by David, a Psalm or song.

2 Oh that God would arise, that his enemies might be scattered, and those that hate him might flee before him.

3 As smoke is driven off, so drive them away: as wax melteth before the fire, so let the wicked perish at the presence of God.

4 But the righteous shall rejoice; they shall exult before God: yea, they shall be exceedingly joyful.[a]

5 Sing unto God, sing praises to his name; extol him who rideth upon the heavens: the Everlasting is his name, and rejoice before him.

6 A father of the fatherless, and a judge of the widows, is God in his holy habitation.

7 God places those who are solitary in the midst of their families: he bringeth out those who are bound unto happiness; but the rebellious dwell in a dry land.

8 O God, when thou didst go forth before thy people, when thou didst tread along through the wilderness—Selah—

9 The earth quaked, also the heavens dropped at the presence of God: yea, this Sinai, at the presence of God, the God of Israel.

10 Rain of beneficence[b] didst thou pour down, O God, whereby thou didst truly strengthen thy heritage, when it was weary.

11 Thy assembly dwelt therein: thou didst prepare it with thy goodness for the afflicted (people), O God, 12 The Lord gave (happy) tidings; they are published by the female messengers, a numerous host.

13 The kings of the armies flee away—flee away: yet she that tarried at home divideth the spoil.

14 When ye lie still between the folds[c] (of your cattle), (ye will be like) the wings of the dove covered with silver, and her pinions shining with flaming gold.

15 When the Almighty scattered kings in the midst of her, then even in darkness shone light (as pure) as snow.[d]

16 A mountain of God is the mount of Bashan; many peaks hath the mount of Bashan

17 Why watch ye enviously, ye many peaked mountains, yonder mountain which God hath chosen for his residence? yea, the LORD will also dwell (there) for ever.

18 The chariots of God are two myriads; thousands of angels (follow him): the Lord is among them; so is Sinai holy (among mountains).[e]

19 Thou didst ascend on high, lead away captives, receive gifts among men, yea, even the rebellious, to dwell among them, O LORD God.

20 Blessed be the Lord; day by day he loadeth us (with benefits);[f] our God is our salvation. Selah.

21 Our God is to us the God of salvation; and by the Eternal the Lord are the escapes from death.

22 But God will crush the head of his enemies, the hairy skull of him who walketh in his guiltiness.

23 The Lord hath said, From Bashan will I bring back, I will bring back from the depths of the sea:

24 In order that thou mayest[g] wade with thy feet in blood, feeding the tongue of thy dogs from the enemies' blood.

25 Men see thy goings forth, O God! the goings forth of my God, my King, into the sanctuary.

[a] Lit. "they shall be glad in joy."

[b] Philippson, "a rain of gifts," such as the manna and the quails bestowed in the wilderness—not actual rain. But Rashi and others take it literally as rain, destructive to God's enemies—blessing to his people. נדבות is literally, "of liberalities," what is cheerfully, willingly given; hence, "beneficence."

[c] The Israelites, living in peace among their sheepfolds, shall resemble in their loveliness the dove, whose wings present a beautiful play of colours, silver and gold.

[d] Sforno. When God's retribution falls on the oppressors, then even the oppressed feel joy and ease. "In her," is the land of Israel.

[e] After Mendelssohn. Lit. "Sinai (is) in the sanctuary." Sachs, Philippson, and others render literally, and explain, "the glory of God is transferred from Sinai into the sanctuary on Zion."

[f] Rashi, Redak, &c. Philippson, "if man lay burdens on us, God is our help."

[g] Rashi, "crush the enemy and wade in blood."

26 First come singers, then follow players on instruments, in the midst of maidens playing on timbrels.

27 In assemblies bless ye God, (praise) the Lord, ye sprung from Israel's fountain.

28 There Benjamin the youngest leadeth them on, the princes of Judah in purple robes,[a] the princes of Zebulun, the princes of Naphtali.

29 Thy God hath ordained the rule to thee: strengthen, O God, what thou hast wrought for us.

30 Because of thy temple over Jerusalem shall kings bring presents unto thee.

31 Rebuke the wild beasts hiding among the reeds, the troop of steers among the calves of nations, that hasten along with presents of silver. He scattereth nations that are eager for the fight.

32 Nobles will come out of Egypt: Ethiopia will stretch forth eagerly her hands unto God.

33 Kingdoms of the earth, sing unto God; sing praises unto the Lord; Selah;

34 To him who rideth over the highest heavens, of ancient days: hear! he sendeth forth his voice, the voice of might.

35 Ascribe ye strength unto God: his excellency is over Israel, and his strength is in the skies.

36 Thou art tremendous, O God, from thy holy residences: O God of Israel. (thou art) he that givest strength and power unto (thy) people. Blessed be God.

PSALM LXIX.

1 ¶ To the chief musician upon Shoshannim, by David.

2 Save me, O God; for the waters are come even to threaten my life.[b]

3 I am sunk in the mire of the deep, where there is no standing: I am come into the depths of the waters, and the flood overfloweth me.

4 I am weary of my calling; my throat is hoarse; my eyes fail, while I hope for my God.

5 More than the hairs of my head are those that hate me without a cause; numerous are those that would destroy me, that are my enemies wrongfully: what I have not robbed shall I now[c] restore.

6 O God, thou art well aware of my folly, and my guilty deeds are from thee not hidden.

7 Let not those that wait on thee, O Lord Eternal of hosts, be made ashamed through me: let not those that seek thee be confounded through me, O God of Israel.

8 Because for thy sake have I borne reproach, hath confusion covered my face.

9 A stranger am I become unto my brothers, and an alien unto my mother's children.

10 Because the zeal for thy house hath devoured me; and the reproaches of those that reproached thee are fallen upon me.

11 When I wept at the fasting of my soul, it became a reproach to me.

12 And when I made sackcloth my garment, I became a proverb to them.

13 Those that sit in the gate talk against me; and (about me make) songs the drinkers of strong drink.

14 But as for me, I direct my prayer unto thee, O LORD, in a time of favour; O God, in the multitude of thy kindness: answer me in the truth of thy salvation.

15 Deliver me out of the mire, that I may not sink: let me be delivered from those that hate me, and out of the depths of the waters.

16 Let not the flood of waters overflow me, and let not the deep swallow me up, and let not the pit close its mouth upon me.

17 Answer me, O LORD; for thy kindness is good: according to the multitude of thy mercies turn thou unto me.

18 And hide not thy face from thy servant; for I am in distress: make haste and answer me.

19 Draw nigh unto my soul, and redeem it: because of my enemies do thou ransom me.

20 Thou well knowest my reproach, and my shame, and my confusion: before thee are all my assailants.

21 Reproach hath broken my heart; and I am sick: and I waited for pity, but there was none; and for comforters, but I found none.

22 And they put into my food gall; and in my thirst they give me vinegar to drink.

23 May (then) their table become a snare

[a] Menachem. Others, "with their troops"

[b] Lit "up to the soul."

[c] Philippson.

before them: and to those that are at peace, a trap.

24 May their eyes become dark, that they cannot see; and make their loins continually to waver.

25 Pour out over them thy indignation, and let the heat of thy anger overtake them.

26 May their palace become desolate: in their tents let no one dwell.

27 For whom thou hast smitten they persecute; and of the pain of those whom thou hast wounded do they converse.

28 Lay guilt upon their guilt; and let them not come into thy righteousness.

29 Let them be blotted out of the book of the living; and with the righteous let them not be written down.

30 But I am poor and suffering: let thy salvation, O God, set me up on high.

31 I will praise the name of God with song, and will magnify him with thanksgiving.

32 And this will please the LORD better than an ox or bullock having horns and cloven hoofs.

33 The meek will see this, and be rejoiced: ye that seek God, and your heart shall revive.

34 For the LORD listeneth unto the needy, and his prisoners he despiseth not.

35 Let heaven and earth praise him, the seas, and every thing that moveth therein.

36 For God will save Zion, and will build the cities of Judah: that they may abide there, and have it in possession;

37 And the seed of his servants shall inherit it; and they that love his name shall dwell therein.

PSALM LXX.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, by David, to bring to remembrance.[a]

2 O God, (arise) to deliver me; O LORD, make haste to help me.

3 Let those that seek after my life be made ashamed and put to the blush: let those that desire my unhappiness be turned backward and put to confusion.

4 Let them be turned backward in consequence of their shame, that say, Aha, aha.[b]

5 Let all those that seek thee be glad and rejoice in thee; and let such as love thy salvation say continually, God is great.

6 But I am poor and needy, O God; come hastily unto me; my help and my deliverer art thou: O LORD, do not delay.

PSALM LXXI.

1 ¶ In thee, O LORD, do I put my trust; let me never be made ashamed.

2 In thy righteousness do thou deliver me and release me: incline thy ear unto me, and save me.

3 Be thou unto me a rocky habitation, whereunto I may continually resort, which thou hast ordained to save me; for my rock and my strong-hold art thou.

4 O my God, release me out of the hand of the wicked, out of the grasp of the unrighteous and violent man.

5 For thou art my hope, O Lord Eternal: thou art my trust from my youth.

6 By thee have I been supported from my birth; thou art he that took[c] me out of my mother's womb: of thee is my praise continually.

7 As a wonderful token have I been unto many; but thou art my strong refuge.

8 My mouth shall be filled with thy praise, and with thy glory all the day.

9 Cast me not off in the time of old age: when my strength faileth, forsake me not.

10 For my enemies speak of me; and they that watch for my soul take counsel together,

11 Saying, "God hath forsaken him: pursue and seize him; for there is none to deliver."

12 O God, be not far from me: O my God, hasten to my help.

13 Let those be made ashamed, let them perish, that are adversaries to my soul: let those be covered with reproach and dishonour that seek my unhappiness.

14 But I will continually hope, and will add yet more to all thy praise.

15 My mouth shall relate thy righteousness, all the day thy salvation; for I know not their numbers.

16 I will come to praise the mighty deeds

[a] Rashi explains this here to be a species of prayer.

[b] Either a term of rejoicing at his distress, or one of contempt and insult.

[c] Jonathan. Others take גּוֹ as "my refuge;" thus, "thou art my refuge since I escaped from my mother's womb."

of the Lord Eternal: I will make mention of thy righteousness, yea, thine only.

17 O God, thou hast taught me from my youth: and hitherto I ever tell of thy wondrous deeds.

18 Therefore also even in old age, and when I am grayheaded, O God, forsake me not: until I have told of thy strength unto (this) generation, to every one that may come of thy might.

19 And thy righteousness, O God, reacheth even to the height, thou, who hast done great things: O God, who is like thee!

20 Thou, who hast shown me great distresses and misfortunes, wilt again revive me; and from the depths of the earth wilt thou bring me up again.

21 Thou wilt increase my greatness, and wilt turn round and comfort me.

22 Also I, I will thank thee with the psaltery, (for) thy truth, O my God: I will sing unto thee with the harp, O thou Holy One of Israel.

23 My lips shall shout joyfully when I sing unto thee; and my soul (too), which thou hast redeemed.

24 Also my tongue shall speak all the day of thy righteousness; for ashamed, for put to the blush are those that seek my unhappiness.

PSALM LXXII.

1 ¶ By[a] Solomon. O God, give unto the king thy decisions,[b] and thy righteousness unto the king's son.

2 He shall decide for thy people with righteousness, and for thy afflicted with justice.

3 The mountains shall bear peace for the people, and the hills (the same), through righteousness.

4 He shall judge the afflicted of the people, he shall give help to the children of the needy; but he shall crush the oppressor.

5 They shall fear thee as long as the sun shineth, and in the presence of the moon, throughout all generations.

6 He shall come down like rain upon the mown grass, as showers which are dropping on the earth.

7 In his days shall the righteous flourish; and abundance of peace (shall be) till the moon shall be no more.

8 And he shall have dominion from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth.

9 Before him shall bend down those that dwell in the wilderness; and his enemies shall lick the dust.

10 The kings of Tharshish and of the isles shall bring presents: the kings of Sheba and Seba shall offer gifts.

11 Yea, there shall bow down before him all kings: all nations shall serve him.

12 For he will deliver the needy when he crieth; the afflicted also, who hath no helper.

13 He will spare the poor and needy; and the souls of the needy will he assist.

14 From wrong and violence will he deliver their soul; and precious shall their blood be in his eyes.

15 And he shall live; and he[c] will give him of the gold of Sheba: and he will pray in his behalf continually; all the time will he bless him.

16 There shall be an abundance of corn in the land; upon the top of the mountains its fruit shall shake like (the trees of) Lebanon: and (men) shall blossom out of the city like herbs of the earth.

17 His name will endure for ever; in the presence of the sun his name shall flourish; and men shall bless themselves with him: all nations shall call him happy.

18 Blessed be the LORD the God, the God of Israel, who alone doth wondrous things.

19 And blessed be his glorious name for ever; and with his glory may the whole earth be filled: Amen, and Amen.

20 Here are ended the prayers of David the son of Jesse.

[a] Rashi and others, "for," as though it were composed by David or some other poet in reference to Solomon.

[b] This is explained by Rashi, "the wisdom of thy decisions according to the law."

[c] Philippson comments, "The poor shall live, and give presents to the king (after the custom of the East) from the property which he has recovered for him from those who had withheld it from him, and pray also for his welfare."

BOOK THIRD.

PSALM LXXIII.

1 ¶ A PSALM of Assaph. Truly God is good to Israel, to such as are pure of heart.

2 But as for me, it lacked but little that my feet had been moved: almost nothing was needed that my steps had slipped.

3 For I was envious at the arrogant, when I saw the prosperity of the wicked.

4 For there are no deadly fetters for them;[a] but their strength is firm.[b]

5 They share not in the trouble of mortals, and with men are they not afflicted.

6 Therefore is pride their neck-chain: violence envelopeth them as a garment.[c]

7 Their eyes start out from fatness: they have exceeded their heart's imaginings.[d]

8 They scorn, and speak wickedly of oppression: loftily do they speak.

9 They set their mouth in the heavens, and their tongue walketh busily on the earth.

10 Therefore do his people turn away hither: and waters of a full cup are drained by[e] them.

11 And they say, How should God know? and is there knowledge in the Most High?

12 Behold, these are the wicked; and yet prospering continually they increase in wealth.

13 Verily in vain have I thus cleansed my heart, and have washed in innocency my hands:

14 While I was afflicted all the day, and my chastisement (came) every morning.

15 But if I were to say, I will speak thus: behold, I would be treacherous[f] against the generation of thy children.

16 And when I should think to know this, it would be trouble in my eyes:

17 Until I enter into the sanctuary of God; and understand what their future will be.

18 Surely thou placest them on slippery spots: thou lettest them fall down into destruction.

19 How are they brought into desolation, as in a moment! they perish, they come to their end with terrific events.[g]

20 As a dream after awaking, O Lord, reject thou in wrath[h] their image.

21 For it fermented in my heart, and in my reins I felt sharp thrusts;

22 But I was indeed foolish, and I knew it not: I was as a (thoughtless) beast with thee.

23 Nevertheless I am continually with thee: thou hast seized hold of me by my right hand.

24 With thy counsel wilt thou guide me, and afterward take me on to glory.

25 Whom have I in heaven? and beside thee I desire nothing upon earth.

26 Though my flesh and my heart should fail: yet the rock of my heart, and my portion will be God for ever.

27 For, lo, those that are far from thee shall perish: thou destroyest every one that strayeth away from thee.

28 But as regardeth me, to draw near to God is good for me: I have put in the Lord Eternal my trust, that I may relate all thy works.[i]

PSALM LXXIV.

1 ¶ A Maskil of Assaph. Why, O God, hast thou cast us off for ever? why will thy anger smoke against the flock of thy pasture?

2 Remember thy congregation, which thou

[a] Lit. "there are no fetters to their death."

[b] Lit. "fat."

[c] Redak and Jonathan, "the crown they put on their head is obtained by violence." Rashi and Sforno render שית with "shame:" "their violently obtained wealth covereth their shame."

[d] Rashi, "they have obtained more than their heart's desire." Philippson, "the imaginings of their heart swelleth over."

[e] Jonathan takes the first part of the verse as saying that the wicked fall upon the people of God, "and many tears are wrung from them."

[f] Rashi, "I would make them all traitors;" but Philippson, "Speaking thus would bring him in contradiction to the pious—the sons of God, preeminently so called."

[g] Sachs, "as a shadowy image." Mendelssohn, "terrific vision."

[h] Jonathan. Rashi, Redak, and Aben Ezra, "in the city," either Jerusalem where they have done much evil, or any other where they were honoured. Moderns render בעיר as בהעיר "in awaking;" and Philippson, "Thou rejectest their vain plans when thou wakest them up." Sachs, "when they awake."

[i] Jonathan, "all the ordinances of thy messages."

didst acquire of old; which thou didst redeem as the tribe of thy inheritance: this mount Zion, whereon thou hast dwelt.

3 Lift up thy steps[a] unto the perpetual heaps of ruins: the enemy hath ill-used every thing in the sanctuary.

4 Thy adversaries have roared in the midst of thy places of assembly: they have set up their signs for signs.

5 (The enemy) is known as one that lifteth up high axes against the thickets of a forest.

6 And now they hew in pieces the carved work thereof altogether with hatchets and hammers.

7 They have set on fire thy sanctuary: to the ground have they profaned the dwelling-place of thy name.

8 They have said in their heart, We will oppress[b] them altogether: they have burnt up all the places of assembly of God in the land.

9 Our signs do we not see; there is no more any prophet: and there is no one among us that knoweth how long.

10 How long, O God, shall the adversary utter defiance? shall the enemy blaspheme thy name for ever?

11 Why withdrawest thou thy hand, and thy right hand? (draw it) out of thy bosom —exterminate (them);

12 Since (thou) God art my King from olden days, working salvation in the midst of the earth.

13 It was thou that didst divide by thy strength the sea: thou brokest in pieces the heads of the crocodiles[c] on the waters.

14 Thou didst crush the heads of leviathan, and gavest them as food to the people inhabiting the wilderness.

15 Thou didst cleave fountain and stream: thou didst dry up ever-flowing[d] rivers.

16 Thine is the day and thine is the night: it is thou who hast prepared the luminary and the sun.

17 It is thou who hast set up all the boundaries of the earth: summer and winter—thou thyself hast formed them.

18 Remember this, that the enemy hath defied the LORD, and that a worthless foolish people have blasphemed thy name.

19 Oh give not up unto the multitude of enemies the soul of thy turtle-dove: the congregation[e] of thy afflicted do not thou forget for ever.

20 Look unto the covenant; for the dark places of the earth are full of the habitations of violence.

21 Oh let not the oppressed return confounded: let the poor and needy praise thy name.

22 Arise, O God, plead thy own cause: remember thy defiance from the worthless fool all the day.

23 Forget not the voice of thy adversaries: the tumult of those that rise up against thee ascendeth continually.

PSALM LXXV.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, Al-tashcheth, a psalm or song of Assaph.

2 We give thanks unto thee, O God, we give thanks, and nigh is thy name:[f] men relate thy wondrous deeds.

3 "For[g] I will take up a fixed time when I will judge uprightly.

4 The earth and all her inhabitants are melting away: I myself establish firmly her pillars." Selah.

5 I said unto the arrogant, Deal not arrogantly: and to the wicked, Lift not up the horn.

[a] Redak; but Rashi, "thy blows and terrors that they be to the enemy as perpetual destructions, because of the evil, &c."

[b] Jonathan, "Their children (נינם from נין 'child') altogether said in their heart, whose fathers have," &c. Rashi, "their rulers;" but Redak and others, from יגה "to oppress," "to overreach."

[c] תנינים is rendered by Philippson here "crocodile," by others, "dragons;" and לויתן "leviathan" in next verse with "dragon." But the words are like many proper and generic names in Scripture, not certain in their precise signification.

[d] Lit. "mighty," or those the water of which has a constant flow and does not dry up in the hottest summer.

[e] The חית עניך is given by Rashi, "the life of thy," &c. Others render לחית "to beast of prey," as though it were written לחית השדה "to the beasts of the field." Philippson connects לחית נפש and renders, "Give not up to the savage soul thy dove, the soul of thy afflicted do not forget for ever." Jonathan renders תורך with "the teachers of thy law."

[f] Rashi, "it is in our mouth continually."

[g] Rashi regards this and the next verse as applied to Israel, who at their appointed festivals act according to the ordinances of God, and not riotously like the nations at their feasts, and who sustained the world by their receiving the Law. Others take these verses as spoken by God, who will judge the world at the time fixed by him.

PETRA

6 Lift not up on high your horn, speak not with a stiffly erect neck.

7 For neither from the rising (of the sun), nor from (his) setting, nor from the wilderness of mountains (cometh this);[a]

8 But God is the judge: he lowereth one, and lifteth up another.

9 For there is a cup in the hand of the LORD, and the wine foameth, it is full of mixture; and he poureth out of the same; but its lees they drain, they drink—all the wicked of the earth.

10 But I will declare for ever, I will sing praises to the God of Jacob.

11 And all the horns of the wicked will I hew off; but the horns of the righteous shall be exalted.

PSALM LXXVI.

1 ¶ To the chief musician on Neginoth, a psalm or song of Assaph.

2 In Judah hath God been made known: in Israel is his name great.

3 And in Salem was his tabernacle made, and his dwelling-place in Zion.

4 There broke he the shining[b] arrows of the bow, shield, and sword, and battle. Selah.

5 Thou art more brilliant, more excellent than the mountains (full) of prey.[c]

6 Bereft of reason[d] are the stouthearted, they slumber their sleep: and none of the men of might have found (the use of)[e] their hands.

7 From thy rebuke, O God of Jacob, lie in deep sleep both chariot and horse.

8 Thou—thou art to be feared: and who may stand in thy sight when once thy anger (is kindled)?

9 From heaven hast thou caused (thy) sentence to be heard: the earth feared, and became still,

10 When God rose to judgment, to save all the lowly of the earth. Selah.

11 For the fury of man shall praise[f] thee: the remainder of the fury wilt thou gird about thee.

12 Make vows, and pay (them) unto the LORD your God, all ye that are round about him: let men bring presents unto him that exciteth fear.

13 He will cut down the spirit of the powerful: he is terrible to the kings of the earth.

PSALM LXXVII.

1 ¶ To the chief musician on Jeduthun, by Assaph a psalm.

2 (I lift up) my voice unto God, and I cry; (I lift up) my voice unto God: do then give ear unto me.

3 On the day of my distress I sought the Lord; in the night my hand was stretched out, and did not cease: my soul refused to be comforted.

4 I think of God, and moan: I reflect, and my spirit is overwhelmed. Selah.

5 Thou holdest my eyes awake: I am troubled and I cannot speak.

6 I think over the days of old, the years of ancient times.

7 I call to remembrance my song in the night; with my own heart I reflect: and my spirit maketh diligent search.

8 Will the Lord cast me off for ever? and will he never more give his favour again?

9 Is his kindness spent for ever? is his promise come to an end for all generations?

10 Hath God forgotten to be gracious? or hath he shut up in anger his mercies? Selah.

11 And I said, This shall be my entreaty, (for) the years of the right hand[g] of the Most High.

[a] This verse is given after Rashi.

[b] Redak. Rashi, "the winged messengers of the bow." Jonathan, "arrows and bows." Sachs and others, "the sparkling bow."

[c] i. e. Those inaccessible mountains where prey is placed for safety; but all of these avail nothing against the power of God, before whom their security is nought.

[d] Rashi. Redak, "plundered," or "despoiled."

[e] Lit. "they have not found their hands," i. e. when they wanted to strike, their hands were powerless.

[f] Rashi, "When the wicked are punished, mankind see that against God their fury is nothing;" hence they confess and praise his power. The fury of men is the weapon of God (girt about him) with which they are punished, while they retain but a remnant of their rebellion against their Maker. Others render the last part of the verse, "the remainder of the fury thou wilt restrain."

[g] i. e. That time when God will again vindicate the cause of his people; the right hand, metaphorical for power. So do Philippson and Sachs translate after an ancient Chaldean paraphrase inserted in Jonathan. Rashi, "My thoughts tell me, This is not so; but only to afflict me and to influence me with fear to return unto him, is the right hand of God changed, (שנות not "years," then, but "changes,") which, formerly prevailing with might crushed the enemy, hath now withdrawn itself."

12 I will remember the deeds of the LORD; for I will remember out of ancient times thy wonders.
13 I will meditate also of all thy work,
and on thy deeds will I reflect.
14 O God, in holiness is thy way: where is there a god so great as God?
15 Thou art the God that dost wonders:
thou hast made known among the people thy strength.
16 Thou hast redeemed with (a mighty) arm thy people, the sons of Jacob and Joseph.
Selah.
17 The waters saw thee, O God, the waters saw thee; they shook: also the depths trembled.
18 The clouds poured out water; the skies sent forth thunder: also thy arrows sped along.
19 The voice of thy thunder was in the whirlwind;[a] lightnings gave light to the world; the earth trembled and quaked.
20 Through the sea led thy way, and thy path was through mighty waters, and thy footsteps could not be known.
21 Thou didst lead like a flock thy people by means of Moses and Aaron.

PSALM LXXVIII.

1 ¶ A Maskil of Assaph. Give ear, O my people, to my instruction: incline your ear to the words of my mouth.
2 I will open with a parable my mouth; I will utter riddles out of ancient times;
3 Which we have heard and know, and which our fathers have related unto us.
4 We will not conceal them from their children, relating to the latest generation the praises of the LORD, and his strength, and his wonderful deeds which he hath done.
5 Yea, he established a testimony in Jacob, and instituted a law in Israel, which he commanded our fathers, that they should make them known to their children:
6 In order that the latest generation might know them, even the children that are to be born; that they may arise and relate them to their children;
7 That they may place in God their hope, and not forget the doings of God, but observe his commandments;
8 And that they may not be like their fathers, a stubborn and rebellious generation;
a generation that had not directed their heart firmly, and whose spirit was not faithful to God.
9 The children of Ephraim, like well-armed archers, that turn round on the day of battle,
10 Kept not the covenant of God, and in his law they refused to walk;
11 And they forgot his deeds, as also his wonders which he had permitted them to see.
12 In the presence of their fathers did he do wonders, in the land of Egypt, in the fields of Zo'an.
13 He divided the sea, and caused them to pass through; and he made the waters stand upright as a wall.
14 And he led them with the cloud by day, and all the night with a light of fire.
15 He split rocks in the wilderness, and gave them drink as out of the mighty deep.
16 And he brought forth running streams out of the rock, and caused water to run down like rivers.
17 But they repeated to sin yet more against him, rebelling against the Most High in the desert.
18 And they tempted God in their heart, by asking food for their desire.
19 Yea, they spoke against God: they said, Will God be able to set in order a table in the wilderness?
20 Behold, he smote the rock, so that waters gushed out, and streams overflowed:
shall he also be able to give bread? or can he provide flesh for his people?
21 Therefore, when the LORD heard this, he became wroth: and a fire was kindled against Jacob, and anger also ascended against Israel;
22 Because they had not believed in God,
and had not trusted in his salvation.
23 Then he ordained the skies from above, and the doors of heaven he opened;
24 And he let rain down upon them manna to eat, and the corn of heaven gave he unto them.
25 Angels' bread did man eat: he sent them provision to satisfaction.
26 He caused an east wind to pass along the heavens: and he led forth by his strength the south wind.

[a] Mendelssohn. Rashi, "by the rattling of the voice of thy thunder."

27 And he let rain upon them flesh (as plentiful) as the dust, and winged birds like the sand of the sea;

28 And he let them fall in the midst of their camp, round about their habitations.

29 And they ate, and were greatly satisfied, and what they longed for he brought unto them.

30 They were not estranged from their longing, yet was their food in their mouth:

31 When the wrath of God ascended against them, and he slew some of the fattest of them, and the young men of Israel did he strike down.

32 With all this they sinned again, and believed not in his wonders.

33 Therefore he caused their days to come to an end in nought, and their years in dread.

34 When he slew them, then did they seek him, and they returned and inquired earnestly after God.

35 And they remembered that God was their rock, and the most high God their redeemer.

36 Nevertheless they prayed insincerely to him with their mouth, and with their tongue they lied unto him.

37 For their heart was not firm with him, and they were not faithful in his covenant.

38 But he, being merciful, forgave[a] the iniquity, and destroyed (them) not: yea, many a time turned he his anger away, and did not awaken all his fury.

39 And he remembered that they are but flesh, a spirit[b] that passeth away, and returneth not again.

40 How oft did they rebel against him in the wilderness, grieve him in the desert!

41 Yea, they once more tempted God, and set[c] limits to the Holy One of Israel.

42 They remembered not his hand, the day when he ransomed them from the adversary;

43 When he displayed in Egypt his signs, and his wonderful tokens in the fields of Zo'an.

44 And he changed their rivers into blood; and their running streams, that they could not drink (of them).

45 He sent out among them various wild beasts, which devoured them; and frogs, which destroyed them.

46 And he gave unto the cricket their products, and their labour unto the locust.

47 He slew with hail their vines, and their sycamore-trees with ice-bolts.[d]

48 And he surrendered to the hail their cattle, and their herds to the lightning's flashes.

49 He let loose against them the fierceness of his anger, wrath, and indignation, and distress, a host of angels of misfortune.

50 He levelled a path for his anger; he withheld not from death their soul, and their life he surrendered to the pestilence;

51 And he smote all the first-born in Egypt; the first of their strength in the tents of Ham;

52 But he caused his own people to depart like flocks, and guided them like a drove in the wilderness.

53 And he led them in safety, so that they felt no dread; but the sea covered over their enemies.

54 And he brought them to his holy territory, even to this mount, which his right hand had acquired.

55 And he drove out from before them nations, and divided them by the measuring-line as an inheritance, and he caused to dwell in their tents the tribes of Israel.

56 Yet they tempted and rebelled against the most high God, and his testimonies they kept not;

57 But swerved aside, and dealt unfaithfully like their fathers; they turned about like a deceitful bow.

58 And they provoked him to anger with their high-places, and with their graven images they moved him to jealousy.

59 God heard this, and he became wroth, and felt greatly disgusted with Israel;

60 And he cast off the dwelling at Shiloh,[e]

[a] The construction of the verse is in the future tense in the text, giving it thus a general sense, that God is always mereiful and acts up to the same measure of goodness he showed the Israelites in the desert.

[b] When death takes place, the spirit leaves the body and returns not to it in the course of nature; and death would be final unless the Creator himself gave new life.

[c] So Aben Ezra and Redak; meaning, they pretended that his power was exhausted by what he had done. Rashi, "they prescribed signs to God," wanted proof that he was with them. (Exod. xvii. 7.) Sachs, "they pained."

[d] Philippson. Rashi, "a species of locusts."

[e] The place where Joshua erected the tabernacle.

the tabernacle where he had dwelt[a] among men;

61 And he gave up his strength unto captivity, and his glory into the adversary's hand.

62 And he surrendered his people unto the sword; and with his inheritance was he wroth.

63 His young men the fire devoured; and his virgins were not demanded in marriage.

64 His priests fell by the sword; and his widows did not weep.

65 Then awoke the Lord as one that sleepeth, like a mighty man that shouteth by reason of wine.

66 And he smote his enemies backward: a perpetual disgrace laid he on them.

67 Yet was he disgusted with the tent of Joseph, and of the tribe of Ephraim he made not choice;

68 But he chose the tribe of Judah, the mount Zion which he loved.

69 And he built like high (mountains)[b] his sanctuary, like the earth which he hath founded for ever.

70 And he made choice of David his servant, and took him from the sheep-folds:

71 From following the ewes with young he brought him, to feed Jacob his people, and Israel his inheritance.

72 And he fed them according to the integrity of his heart; and by the skilfulness of his hands did he lead them.

PSALM LXXIX.

1 ¶ A psalm of Assaph. O God! nations have entered into thy heritage; they have profaned thy holy temple; they have rendered Jerusalem heaps of ruins.

2 They have given the dead bodies of thy servants as food unto the fowls of the heaven, the flesh of thy pious ones unto the beasts of the earth.

3 They have shed their blood like water all round about Jerusalem: and there is no one to bury them.

4 We are become a reproach to our neighbours, a scorn and derision to those that are round about us.

5 How long, Lord? wilt thou be indignant for ever? shall thy jealousy burn like fire?

6 Pour out thy fury over the nations that acknowledge thee not, and over the kingdoms that have not called on thy name.

7 For they have devoured Jacob, and laid waste his dwelling-place.

8 Oh remember not against us the iniquities of our fathers: make haste, let thy mercies come to our aid; for we are very miserable.

9 Help us, O God of our salvation, because of the glory of thy name; and deliver us, and atone for our sins, for the sake of thy name.

10 Wherefore shall the nations say, Where is their God? let there be made known among the nations before our eyes, the vengeance for the blood of thy servants which hath been shed.

11 Let the sighing of the prisoner come before thee: according to the greatness of thy almighty power[c] preserve[d] thou those that are doomed to death;

12 And recompense unto our neighbours sevenfold into their bosom their defiance wherewith they have defied thee, O Lord.

13 But we thy people and the flock of thy pasture will give thanks unto thee for ever: from generation to generation will we relate thy praise.

PSALM LXXX.

1 ¶ To the chief musician upon Shoshannim; an 'Eduth[e] by Assaph; a psalm.

2 O Shepherd of Israel, give ear, thou that leadest Joseph like a flock; thou that dwellest between the cherubims, shine forth.

3 Before Ephraim and Benjamin and Menasseh awaken thy might, and come to our help.

4 O God, cause us to return, and let thy countenance shine, that we may be saved.

5 O Lord of hosts, how long shall thy anger smoke against the prayer of thy people?

6 Thou feedest them with the bread of tears, and givest them tears to drink in great measure.

7 Thou renderest us a contest unto our

[a] Jonathan. Philippson, "which he had placed among men." [b] Rashi, "like the heavens."

[c] Heb. "arm."

[d] Rashi, "undo the fetters of those," &c.

[e] Probably a species of psalm, like Maskil, for "instruction;" so 'Eduth, "a testimony." So renders Rashi, who conceives that the Psalmist indicates and prays for three captivities.

neighbours: and our enemies hold derision among themselves.

8 O God of hosts, cause us to return, and let thy countenance shine, that we may be saved.

9 A vine didst thou remove out of Egypt: thou drovest out nations, and plantedst it.

10 Thou didst clear out a place before it, and it struck its root deeply, and it filled the land.

11 Mountains were covered with its shadow, and with its boughs the cedars of God.

12 It sent out its tendrils as far as the sea, and unto the river its suckers.

13 Wherefore hast thou now broken down its fences, so that all who pass by the way pluck the fruit from it?

14 The boar out of the forest doth gnaw at it, and what moveth on the field feedeth on it.

15 O God of hosts, return; I pray thee, look down from heaven, and behold, and think of this vine;

16 And of the sprout[a] which thy right hand hath planted, and of the branch that thou hast made strong for thyself.

17 It is burnt with fire, it is hewn down: because of the rebuke of thy countenance do they perish.

18 Let thy hand be over the man of thy right hand, over the son of man whom thou hast made strong for thyself.

19 Then will we not swerve from thee: revive us again, and we will call on thy name.

20 O LORD God of hosts, cause us to return: let thy countenance shine, that we may be saved.

PSALM LXXXI.

1 ¶ To the chief musician upon Gittith; by Assaph.

2 Sing aloud unto God our strength: shout joyfully unto the God of Jacob.

3 Lift up psalm, and bring hither the timbrel, the pleasant harp with the psaltery.

4 Blow on the new moon the cornet, at the time appointed, on the day of our feast.

5 For this is a statute for Israel, an ordinance by the God of Jacob.

6 As a testimony in Joseph did he ordain it, when he went out over the land of Egypt. The language of one I had not known did I hear.[b]

7 I removed from the burden his shoulder: his hands left behind the burden-basket.[c]

8 In distress thou didst call, and I delivered thee; I answered thee in the secret[d] of the thunder: I proved thee at the waters of Meribah. Selah.

9 Hear, O my people, and I will give warning unto thee; O Israel, if thou wouldst but hearken unto me!

10 There shall not be among thee a foreign god; nor shalt thou bow thyself down to any strange god.

11 I am the LORD thy God, who have brought thee up out of the land of Egypt: open wide thy mouth, and I will fill it.

12 But my people did not hearken to my voice; and Israel was not willing (to follow) me.

13 So I let them go in the stubbornness of their own hearts: and they walked in their own counsels.

14 Oh that my people would hearken unto me, that Israel would walk in my ways!

15 In a little while would I subdue their enemies, and against their adversaries would I turn my hand.

16 The haters of the LORD should offer flattery unto him; but their[e] time should endure for ever.

17 And he would feed him with the best[f] of wheat: and out of the rock would I satisfy thee with honey.

[a] Rashi, Jonathan, and other Jewish interpreters. Others, after the Septuagint, take it as an imperative, from כנן: "and establish what thy right hand hath planted and the son whom thou hast made strong for thyself."

[b] Some suppose these to be the words of the Psalmist, referring to God, whom he had not known, and whom he now heard. Philippson takes them as the words of God, who says that he heard the prayer of a people (Israel) that had not known him, and redeemed them, as farther described. Aben Ezra, "Then I (Israel) had to hear the language of a people I did not understand."

[c] After Aben Ezra; i. e. the basket in which the newly made bricks were carried to the kiln. Rashi, however, "the cauldron," or "pot," as the Israelites had to perform all domestic labour besides that of brickmaking.

[d] Rashi, "thou calledst me in secret, between me and thee, and I answered thee publicly with the voice of thunder."

[e] Most commentators explain, "the prosperity of Israel;" but Rashi, "the punishment of the enemies."

[f] Lit. "the fat of wheat." A similar description is found in Deut. xxxii. 13, 14.

PSALM LXXXII.

1 ¶ A psalm of Assaph. God standeth in the congregation of God, in the midst of judges doth he judge.

2 How long will ye judge unjustly, and treat with favour the face of the wicked? Selah.

3 Judge uprightly the poor and fatherless: do justice to the afflicted and indigent.

4 Release the poor and needy: deliver them out of the power of the wicked.

5 They know not, nor will they understand; in darkness do they walk on: all the foundations of the earth are moved.

6 I have indeed said, Ye are gods; and children of the most High are all of you.

7 But verily like men shall ye die, and like one of the princes shall ye fall.

8 Arise, O God, judge the earth; for thou wilt possess[a] all the nations.

PSALM LXXXIII.

1 ¶ A song or psalm of Assaph.

2 O God, take no rest for thyself: be not silent and keep not still, O God!

3 For, lo, thy enemies make a tumult, and they that hate thee have lifted up their head.

4 Against thy people they take crafty secret device, and they consult against those whom thou protectest.

5 They have said, Come, and let us cut them off from being a nation; and the name of Israel shall be remembered no more.

6 For they have consulted cordially together; against thee they make a covenant:

7 The tents of Edom, and the Ishmaëlites; Moäb, and the Hagarenes;

8 Gebal, and 'Ammon, and 'Amalek; the Philistines with the inhabitants of Tyre;

9 Also Asshur is joined with them; they have become an arm[b] unto the children of Lot. Selah.

10 Do unto them as (unto) Midian; as to Sissera, as to Jabin, at the brook Kishon:

11 Who were annihilated at 'En-dor; they became as dung for the ground.

12 Render them, their nobles, like 'Oreb, and like Zeëb; yea, like Zebach and like Zalmunna' all their princes;

13 Who said, Let us conquer for ourselves the dwellings of God.

14 O my God, render them like the thistle-down, like stubble before the wind.

15 As the fire burneth up a forest, and as the flame setteth the mountains on fire:

16 So pursue them with thy storm, and with thy whirlwind do thou terrify them.

17 Fill their faces with shame, that they may seek thy name, O LORD!

18 Let them be made ashamed and terrified for ever and aye; yea, let them be put to the blush and perish:

19 That they may know that thou, whose name is the Eternal, art by thyself alone, the Most High over all the earth.

PSALM LXXXIV.

1 ¶ To the chief musician upon Gittith, by the sons of Korach, a psalm.

2 How lovely are thy dwelling-places, O LORD of hosts!

3 My soul desired,[c] yea, it also longed for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh shout with joy unto the living God.

4 Even as the sparrow hath found a house, and the swallow a nest for herself, where she may lay her young:—(have I found)[d] thy altars, O LORD of hosts, my King, and my God.

5 Happy are they who dwell in thy house: they will be continually praising thee. Selah.

6 Happy is the man whose strong confidence is in thee, (all) whose heart reflecteth on the paths[e] (of righteousness).

7 Passing through the valley of weeping, they will change it into a spring: also the early rain covereth it with blessings.[f]

8 They go from strength to strength, each of them appeareth before God in Zion.

[a] All nations shall once acknowledge God. Sforno, "thou possessest the righteous among all nations." Aben Ezra, "thou wilt be the portion of those who call on thee among all the nations."

[b] i. e. Assistants.

[c] Rashi conceives this Psalm to be a prophecy of the captivity, and says that even then Israel desires to be in the courts of God. So also Sforno. Philippson takes it to be a hymn of one who had been compulsorily absent, and had just returned to the temple precincts.

[d] Rashi, "at thy altars, which are ruined and are a resting-place for birds:" the version in the text is partly after R. Judah Ibn Bil'am, followed by Mendelssohn, Sachs, and Philippson.

[e] After Rashi.

[f] Philippson. Jonathan, "the wicked who pass through the depth of hell, these make it a spring with their tears;

9 O LORD God of hosts, hear my prayer: give ear, O God of Jacob. Selah.

10 (Thou,) our shield,[a] behold, O God, and look upon the face of thy anointed.

11 For better is a day in thy courts than a thousand (elsewhere): I would rather choose to wait at the threshold of the house of my God, than to dwell in the tents of wickedness.

12 For a sun and shield is the LORD God; grace and glory will the LORD give; he will not withhold any good from those that walk with integrity.

13 O LORD of hosts, happy is the man that trusteth in thee.

PSALM LXXXV.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, by the sons of Korach, a psalm.

2 Thou hast[b] been favourable, O LORD, unto thy land: thou hast brought back the captivity of Jacob.

3 Thou hast forgiven the iniquity of thy people: thou hast covered over all their sin. Selah.

4 Thou hast taken away all thy wrath: thou hast relinquished the fierceness of thy anger.

5 Return unto us, O God of our salvation, and cause thy ill-will toward us to cease.

6 Wilt thou be wroth with us for ever? wilt thou extend thy anger from generation to generation?

7 Wilt thou not (now) revive us again, that thy people may rejoice in thee?

8 Show us thy kindness, O LORD, and grant us thy salvation.

9 I will hear what God the LORD will speak; for he will speak peace unto his people, and to his pious ones: only let them not turn again to folly.

10 Surely, nigh is his salvation unto those that fear him: that glory may dwell in our land.

11 Kindness and truth are met together: righteousness and peace kiss each other.

12 Truth will grow up out of the earth, and righteousness will look down from heaven.

13 Yea, the LORD will also give the good, and our land will yield its products.

14 Righteousness will walk firmly before him, and will make (level) the way by its steps.

PSALM LXXXVI.

1 ¶ A prayer of David. Incline, O LORD, thy ear, answer me; for poor and needy am I.

2 Preserve my soul; for I am pious: help thy servant, O thou my God, that trusteth in thee.

3 Be gracious unto me, O Lord; for unto thee I call all the time.

4 Cause to rejoice the soul of thy servant; for unto thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul.

5 For thou, O Lord, art good and forgiving, and abundant in kindness unto all that call on thee.

6 Give ear, O LORD, unto my prayer, and attend to the voice of my supplications.

7 On the day of my distress will I call on thee; for thou wilt answer me.

8 There is none like unto thee among the gods, O Lord; and there is nothing like thy works.

9 All the nations whom thou hast made shall come and bow themselves down before thee, O Lord; and they shall ascribe honour unto thy name.

10 For great art thou, and doing wondrous things: thou art God by thyself alone.

11 Teach me, O LORD, thy way; I will walk firmly in thy truth: unite[c] my heart to fear thy name.

but blessings will cover those who return to the teaching of the law." Rashi, "they will confess his justice, and will invoke blessings on those who have taught them righteousness." But these are merely allegorical versions. מורה, as in Joel ii. 23, means "the first rain," which falls in November. The verse then means, "Those who trust in God will regard even the parched valley through which they have to pass, as it were, as one supplied with springs; and then indeed will all become bright for them, as the land dried up by the long summer heats suddenly is wrapt in a mantle of green when the early rain falls in Palestine; and so will they overcome difficulty after difficulty till they appear duly before God at his residence.

[a] Redak. Others make "shield" the object, and render then, "Behold our shield, (the chief or king,) O God."

[b] Philippson, "thou hadst," and so in all the construction to ver. 4. Mendelssohn, "Formerly thou didst love thy land." The Psalm is either a prophecy for those returned from the Babylonian exile, or written by a son of Korach soon after that event.

[c] Meaning, "let all the desires of the heart be directed solely to the fear of God."

12 I will thank thee, O Lord my God, with all my heart, and I will honour thy name for evermore.

13 For thy kindness is great toward me: and thou hast delivered my soul from the grave[a] of the lower world.

14 O God, the presumptuous are risen up against me, and the assembly of the powerful wicked have sought after my life, and have not set thee before them.

15 But thou, O Lord, art God, full of mercy, and gracious, long-suffering, and abundant in kindness and truth.

16 Oh turn unto me, and be gracious unto me: give thy strength unto thy servant, and save the son of thy handmaid.

17 Display on me a sign for good, that those who hate me may see it, and be ashamed; because thou, LORD, hast helped me, and comforted me.

PSALM LXXXVII.

1 ¶ By the sons of Korach; a psalm or song. It is founded[b] by him on holy mountains.

2 The LORD loveth the gates of Zion more than all the dwellings of Jacob.

3 Glorious things are spoken of thee, O city of God. Selah.

4 I will make mention of Rahab[c] and Babylon as those that know me; behold, here is Philistia, and Tyre, with Ethiopia:[d] "This man was born there."

5 But of Zion will it be said, "This and that man were born in her:" and the Most High himself doth establish her.

6 The LORD will number when he writeth down nations, "This man was born there." Selah.

7 And the singers[e] as well as the players on instruments shall be there: all my springs (of joy) are in thee.

PSALM LXXXVIII.

1 ¶ A song or psalm of the sons of Korach, to the chief musician upon Machalath-le'annoth, a Maskil of Heman the Ezrachite.

2 O LORD the God of my salvation, by day do I cry, (and) at night I am before thee.

3 Let my prayer come unto thy presence; incline thy ear unto my entreaty.

4 For my soul is sated with troubles; and my life draweth nigh unto the nether world.

5 I am counted with those that descend into the pit; I am become as a man without vigour:

6 Free[f] among the dead, like the slain that dwell in the grave, whom thou rememberest no more; and those that are cut off by[g] thy hand.

7 Thou hast laid me in the pit of the lower world, in darkness, in the depths.

8 Upon me lieth heavily thy fury, and with all thy billows hast thou afflicted me. Selah.

9 Thou hast removed my acquaintances far from me; thou hast rendered me an abomination unto them: I am imprisoned, and I cannot go forth.

10 My eye languisheth by reason of affliction: I call on thee, O LORD, every day, I stretch out unto thee my hands.

11 Wilt thou display wonders to the dead? shall the departed arise (and) thank thee? Selah.

12 Shall thy kindness be related in the grave? thy faithfulness in the place of corruption?

13 Shall thy wonders be acknowledged in the darkness? and thy righteousness in the land of forgetfulness?

14 Yet I cry indeed aloud unto thee, O LORD; and in the morning shall my prayer come before thee.

[a] Redak. Rashi, "from the lowermost hell," and comments, "for the sin with Bath-sheba', when Nathan said to him, 'The LORD hath let thy sin pass away, thou shalt not die.'"

[b] Mendelssohn and Sachs, "his foundation," i. e. Jerusalem and Zion. Our version is after Philippson. Herxheimer, "The mountains are the various hills on which thy holy city is built." Rashi and other ancients take this as a part of the title, and render, "The Psalmist hath founded it (the song) in behalf of the holy mountains."

[c] Egypt.

[d] Meaning, but few, here and there one, are acquainted with God's mercy and worship him; hence they will have to be recorded by the LORD himself when he reviews the world; but in Zion all are God-fearing, every man born there is holy to the most High.

[e] Rashi, "All my thoughts shall sing of the salvation like those who play festive music." In our version, "in thee" refers to Zion.

[f] i. e. Having no farther concern with life, either to enjoy or to act; whereas the living are bound to be dutiful in the observance of charity and goodness.

[g] Rashi. Others, "from thy hand," i. e. protection, incapable of happiness.

15 Why, O LORD, wilt thou cast off my soul? (why) wilt thou hide thy face from me?

16 I am afflicted and perishing from[a] my youth up: I bear thy terrors, I am distracted.

17 Over me have the fires of thy wrath passed; thy terrors have destroyed me;

18 They encompass me like water all the time; they have closed in round about me together.

19 Thou hast removed far from me lover and friend, my acquaintances (are in)[b] darkness.

PSALM LXXXIX.

1 ¶ A Maskil of Ethan the Ezrachite.

2 The kindnesses of the LORD will I for ever sing: from generation to generation will I make known thy faithfulness with my mouth.

3 For I have said, To eternity will kindness be built up: the heavens—yea, in these wilt thou establish thy faithfulness.

4 "I[c] have made a covenant with my elect, I have sworn unto David my servant,

5 Unto eternity will I establish thy seed, and I will build up thy throne from generation to generation." Selah.

6 And the heavens praise thy wonder, O LORD: also thy faithfulness in the assembly of holy ones.

7 For who in the sky can be compared unto the LORD? who can be likened unto the LORD among the sons of the mighty?[d]

8 God is greatly terrific in the secret council of the holy ones, and fear-inspiring over all that are about him.

9 O LORD God of hosts, who is powerful, like thee, Eternal! and thy faithfulness is round about thee.

10 Thou rulest over the pride of the sea: when its waves are lifted up, thou assuagest them.

11 Thou didst crush Rahab as one that is slain: with thy strong arm[e] didst thou scatter thy enemies.

12 Thine are the heavens, also thine is the earth: as for the world and what filleth it, thou hast founded them.

13 The north and the south[f]—these hast thou created: Tabor and Chermon shall rejoice in thy name.

14 Thine is the powerful arm, with might: strong is thy hand, and exalted is thy right hand.

15 Righteousness and justice are the prop of thy throne: kindness and truth precede thy presence.

16 Happy is the people that know the cornet's sound:[g] O LORD, in the light of thy countenance will they ever walk firmly.

17 In thy name will they be glad all the day, and in thy righteousness will they be exalted.

18 For thou art the glory of their strength; and through thy favour will our horn be exalted.

19 For of[h] the LORD is our shield; and of the Holy One of Israel is our king.

20 Then spokest thou in a vision to thy pious (servant), and saidst, "I have bestowed help to one that is mighty; I have exalted a youth[i] out of the people;

21 I have found David my servant; with my holy oil have I anointed him;

22 With whom my hand shall be firmly established; also my arm shall strengthen him;

23 The enemy shall not exact from him like a lender; and the son of injustice shall not afflict him;

24 And I will beat down before his face his assailants, and those that hate him will I plague.

25 But my faithfulness and my kindness

[a] Rashi, "from being shaken," as one shaketh off the dust; hence, "tremour," "anxiety."

[b] Redak. Rashi, "by my acquaintances I am considered in the dark, and I am withdrawn from them." Philippson, "my confidants are—the place of darkness," i. e. the grave alone is his friend.

[c] The words of God in 2 Sam. vii. 12, referred to, not exactly quoted, in regard to David and his family, which must have been in great danger when this psalm was composed.

[d] Aben Ezra, "the stars;" Redak, "angels;" and Philippson, Sachs, &c., "sons of God."

[e] Heb. "the arm of thy strength."

[f] Lit. "the right hand," which is the south when the face is turned to the east; so is Tabor on the west of Palestine, Chermon on the east.

[g] The peculiar sounds which are known to Israel, which they blow at their festivals at the sacrifices, and the day of Memorial in particular. (See Lev. xxiii. 24; Num. x. 10.)

[h] i. e. By God is the shield, the king, appointed. The elevation of the family of David was not a mere matter of chance, but a display of the divine will, and to be for the future also.

[i] Jonathan. Redak, "a chosen one."

shall be with him: and through my name shall his horn be exalted.

26 And I will place on the sea his hand, and on the rivers his right hand.

27 He will call unto me, Thou art my father, my God, and the rock of my salvation.

28 Also I will appoint him my first-born, the highest among the kings of the earth.

29 For evermore will I keep for him my kindness, and my covenant shall stand faithfully with him.

30 And I appoint for ever his seed, and his throne as the days of heaven.

31 If his children forsake my law, and walk not in my ordinances;

32 If they profane my statutes, and keep not my commandments:

33 Then will I visit with the rod their transgressions, and with plagues their iniquity.

34 Nevertheless my kindness will I not make utterly void from him, and I will not act falsely against my faithfulness.

35 I will not profane my covenant, and what is gone out of my lips will I not alter.

36 One thing have I sworn by my holiness, that I will not lie unto David.

37 His seed shall endure for ever, and his throne shall be like the sun before me.

38 Like the moon shall it be firmly established for ever, and as this faithful witness in the sky." Selah.

39 And yet thou hast cast off and despised, thou hast become wroth with thy anointed.

40 Thou hast made void the covenant of thy servant: thou hast profaned, down to the ground, his crown.

41 Thou hast broken down all his fences: thou hast brought his strong-holds to terror.[a]

42 All that pass by the way plunder him: he is become a reproach to his neighbours.

43 Thou hast raised up the right hand of his assailants: thou hast caused all his enemies to rejoice.

44 Thou hast also turned the edge of his sword, and hast not let him stand erect in the battle.

45 Thou hast made his brilliancy cease; and his throne hast thou thrown down to the ground.

46 Thou hast shortened the days of his youth:[b] thou hast enshrouded him with shame. Selah.

47 How long, LORD, wilt thou hide thyself, continually?[c] how long shall thy fury burn like fire?

48 Remember (what) I am, what my duration is (here), for what nothingness thou hast created all sons of men!

49 What man is there that can live, and shall not see death? that can deliver his soul from the power of the nether world? Selah.

50 Where are thy former kindnesses, O Lord, which thou hast sworn unto David by thy truth?

51 Remember, Lord, the disgrace of thy servants; that I bear in my bosom the (burden) of all the many nations;

52 That thy enemies have defied, O LORD; that they have defied the footsteps[d] of thy anointed.

53 Blessed[e] be the LORD for evermore. Amen, and Amen.

[a] Jonathan, "ruin," or "breach."

[b] Redak explains this to mean the time of the Davidian rule, which lasted but a short time compared with the length of the captivity.

[c] Heb. "for ever." Sachs, "so entirely."

[d] Aben Ezra comments, "They that utter the defiance are the enemies of the LORD, and they say his heels are broken, (meaning, he—the redeemer—cannot,) wherefore he is not come as yet."

[e] In this manner end all the various books of the Psalms, such as xli. lxxii. lxxxix. cvii. and cl., which see. Philippson regards their terminations as doxologies.

BOOK FOURTH.

PSALM XC.

1 ¶ A PRAYER of Moses the man of God. Lord, a place of refuge[a] hast thou been unto us in all generations.

2 Before yet the mountains were brought forth, or thou hadst ever produced the earth and the world, even from everlasting to everlasting, thou art God.

3 Thou turnest man to contrition,[b] and sayest, Return ye children of men.

4 For a thousand years are in thy eyes but as the yesterday when it is past, and as a watch in the night.

5 Thou carriest them away as with a flood; they are as a sleep: in the morning[c] (they grow) like the grass which changeth.

6 In the morning it blossometh, and is changed: in the evening it is mowed off, and withereth.

7 For (thus) are we consumed by thy anger, and by thy fury are we terrified.[d]

8 Thou hast set our iniquities before thee, our concealed sins before the light of thy countenance.

9 For all our days are passed away in thy wrath: we consume our years like a word that is spoken.[e]

10 The days of our years in this life[f] are seventy years; and if by uncommon vigour they be eighty, yet is their greatness[g] trouble and mishap; for it soon hasteneth off, and we fly away.

11 Who knoweth the strength of thy anger, and thy wrath which is like the fear of thee?

12 Let us then know how to number our days, that we may obtain a heart endowed with wisdom.

13 Return, O LORD, how long yet?[h] and bethink thee concerning thy servants.

14 Oh satisfy us in the morning with thy kindness, that we may be glad and rejoice throughout all our days.

15 Cause us to rejoice as many days as those wherein thou hast afflicted us, the years wherein we have seen unhappiness.

16 Let thy act be visible on thy servants, and thy majesty over their children.

17 And may the beauty[i] of the LORD our God be upon us; and the work of our hands do thou firmly establish upon us: yea, the work of our hands—firmly establish thou it.

PSALM XCI.

1 ¶ He[k] who sitteth under the secret protection of the Most High, shall rest under the shadow of the Almighty.

2 I will say of the LORD, who is my refuge and my stronghold, my God, in whom I ever trust,

3 That he will surely deliver thee from

[a] Rashi. Lit. "dwelling," or "place of abiding" against danger; hence, "refuge."

[b] Rashi and Joseph Kimchi, who conceive that sufferings brought on man are the means alluded to, to effect this contrition; they are followed by Mendelssohn and Sachs. דכא stand for "contrite," in Isaiah lvii. 15. But Aben Ezra, "Thou bringest man back (in his old age) to dissolution, and sayest, Return ye (to the dust), O children of men;" and so translate Philippson and Herxheimer.

[c] Rashi and Aben Ezra, חלף "to change." Sachs and others, "In the morning he groweth up like grass—in the morning he blossometh and groweth up," &c. Redak, וחלף in ver. 6, "he is renovated," as though it were in the Hiphil from החליף, which has this meaning. Philippson insists that this is the right sense, or rather, "growing constantly larger," and then "in the evening it is cut off," &c. But the Psalmist seems to say, that no sooner has man produced his flower, reached his best, than he changes like the grass; he remains but a moment in his glory; and evening speedily following, he is then mowed down and left to wither.

[d] Sachs, "we decay." (See Isaiah lxv. 23.)

[e] Rashi. Philippson, "sigh;" (Isaiah xvi. 7; Jer. xlviii. 31; Ezek. ii. 10.) Mendelssohn, "idle talk." Herxheimer, "thought."

[f] Jonathan. Rashi refers בהם to "our iniquities;" thus, "through these sins are the days, &c. but seventy years." Sachs, "the years of our life—yea, these are seventy years."

[g] Rashi. Aben Ezra, "strength," or "youth," "for it is soon cut off." Mendelssohn, "pride." Philippson, "storm," i. e. the uneasy, stormy, excited state of existence; but I know not whence this meaning is derived. The word רהב (Rohab) is found but here; hence the uncertainty of its derivation, and commentators therefore expound as they believe the context warrants. The same is the case with other words of the kind.

[h] i. e. Shall the punishment or evil endure?

[i] Sachs, "grace." Mendelssohn, "kindliness." Philippsou, "favour," or "lovingness."

[k] Philippson, "He who sitteth under the protection of the Most High, lodgeth under the Almighty's shadow: I say unto the LORD, My refuge, &c.—for he, he will deliver," &c.

the snare of the fowler, and from the pestilence of destruction.[a]

4 With his pinions will he cover thee, and under his wings shalt thou find shelter: shield and buckler is his truth.

5 Thou shalt not be afraid of the terror of the night; nor of the arrow that flieth by day;

6 Nor of the pestilence that stalketh in darkness; nor of the deadly disease that wasteth at noonday.

7 There shall fall at thy side a thousand, and ten thousand at thy right hand; unto thee (however) shall it not come nigh.

8 Only with thy eyes shalt thou behold it, and see the recompense of the wicked.

9 Because thou hast (said),[b] The LORD is my protection; the Most High hast thou made thy refuge:

10 No evil shall befall thee, nor shall any plague come nigh unto thy tent.

11 For his angels will he give charge concerning thee, to guard thee on all thy ways.

12 Upon (their) hands shall they bear thee, that thou mayest not dash against a stone thy foot.

13 Upon the fierce lion and asp shalt thou tread: thou shalt trample under foot the young lion and serpent.[c]

14 Because he hath fixed his desire upon me, therefore will I release him: I will set him on high, because he knoweth my name.

15 He will call on me, and I will answer him: with him will I be in distress; I will deliver him, and grant him honour.

16 With length of days will I satisfy him, and I will let him see my salvation.

PSALM XCII.

1 ¶ A psalm or song for the sabbath day.

2 It is a good thing to give thanks unto the LORD, and to sing praises unto thy name, O Most High:

3 To tell in the morning of thy kindness, and of thy faithfulness in the nights,

4 Upon a ten-stringed instrument, and upon the psaltery; and with the sweet[d] sound of the harp.

5 For thou hast caused me to rejoice, O LORD, through thy doing: because of the works of thy hands will I triumph.

6 How great are thy works, O LORD! exceedingly profound are thy thoughts.

7 A brutish man knoweth it not, and a fool cannot understand this.

8 When the wicked spring up like herbs, and when all the workers of wickedness do flourish: it is that they may be destroyed evermore.

9 But thou art exalted to eternity, O LORD!

10 For, lo, thy enemies, O LORD, for, lo, thy enemies shall perish: all the workers of wickedness shall be scattered.

11 But thou exaltest my horn like that of a reëm: I am anointed with fresh oil.

12 And my eye looketh on (the punishment of) those that regard me with envy: of the evildoers that rise up against me my ears shall hear it.

13 The righteous shall spring up like the palm-tree: like a cedar in Lebanon shall he grow high.

14 Planted in the house of the LORD, in the courts of our God shall they spring up.

15 They shall still flourish in high old age; they shall be vigorous and covered with foliage;

16 To declare that the LORD is upright: he is my rock, and there is no faultiness in him.

PSALM XCIII.

1 ¶ The LORD reigneth, he is clothed with excellency; the LORD is clothed, he hath girded himself with strength: (therefore) also the world is firmly established, that it cannot be moved.

2 Firmly established is thy throne from the beginning: from everlasting art thou (God).

3 The rivers have lifted up, O LORD, the rivers have lifted up their voice; the rivers lift up their waves.

[a] Philippson renders הוות "wickedness;" metaphorical, "the plague of wickedness;" not the actual pestilence which is spoken of in v. 6.

[b] Rashi, who supplies "said." Others take these as the words of the Psalmist, "Because thou, O LORD, art my refuge."

[c] Elsewhere rendered "dragon," "monster," &c.

[d] One opinion cited by Aben Ezra; another referred to by him would make Higgayon an instrument, perhaps a guitar. So also Philippson. But if we derive הגיון from הגה "to meditate," the meaning would justly be the meditating, soothing, or sweet sound elicited from the strings of the harp. Hence, Mendelssohn, "waked to thinking by the harp."

4 (But) more than the noise of great waters, than the mighty billows of the sea, is the LORD excellent on high.

5 Thy testimonies are exceedingly steadfast: in thy house abideth holiness,[a] O LORD! to the utmost length of days.

PSALM XCIV.

1 ¶ O God, of vengeance,[b] LORD! O God of vengeance, shine forth.

2 Lift up thyself, O Judge of the earth! bring a recompense upon the proud.

3 How long shall the wicked, O LORD—how long shall the wicked exult?

4 They sputter, they speak hard things: all the workers of wickedness boast themselves.

5 Thy people, O LORD! they crush, and thy heritage they afflict.

6 The widow and the stranger they slay, and the fatherless they murder.

7 And they say, The LORD will not see, and the God of Jacob will not take notice of it.

8 Understand, ye brutish among the people: and ye fools, when will ye become intelligent?

9 He that hath planted the ear, shall he not hear? or he that hath formed the eye, shall he not see?

10 He that admonisheth[c] nations, shall he not correct? is it not he that teacheth man knowledge?[d]

11 The LORD knoweth the thoughts of man, that they are nought.

12 Happy is the man whom thou admonishest, O LORD, and teachest him out of thy law:

13 That thou mayest grant him repose from the days of evil, until the pit be dug for the wicked.

14 For the LORD will not cast off his people, and his inheritance will he not forsake.

15 For unto righteousness will justice return; and it shall be followed by all the upright in heart.

16 Who will rise up for me against evildoers? or who will stand forward for me against the workers of wickedness?

17 Unless the LORD had been a help unto me, but a little would have been wanting that my soul had dwelt in the silence of death.

18 When I said, My foot hath slipped: thy kindness, O LORD, sustained me.

19 In the multitude of my (painful) thoughts within me, thy consolations delight my soul.

20 Can there be associated with thee the throne of destructive wickedness, which frameth mischief as[e] a law?

21 They band themselves together against the soul of the righteous, and innocent blood do they condemn.

22 But the LORD is become my defence, and my God, the rock of my refuge.

23 And he will bring back upon them their own injustice, and in their own wickedness will he destroy them: (yea,) he will destroy them—the LORD our God.

PSALM XCV.

1 ¶ Oh come, let us sing unto the LORD: let us shout joyfully to the rock of our salvation.

2 Let us come before his presence with thanksgiving, and shout joyfully unto him with psalms.

3 For a great God is the LORD, and a great King above all gods;

4 In whose hand are the deep places of the earth; and whose are the heights of mountains;

5 Whose is the sea, and who hath made it; and whose hands have formed the dry land.

6 Oh come, let us prostrate ourselves and

[a] Rashi. Redak, "holiness graceth thy house." Others, "becometh thy house."

[b] Vengeance in man may be the result of malevolence, because he is subject to passion, and may punish unjustly; hence we are prohibited (Lev. xix. 18) from taking revenge on those who have injured us; but to the Omniscient belongs properly the prerogative of vengeance; because retribution is the highest prerogative of justice, and this the more in Him who knows all secrets, and is not liable to forgetfulness, and whose very chastisement is mercy.

[c] יסר generally means "to chastise;" and so do Aben Ezra and Redak explain it, as having reference to great national calamities like the flood, &c.; but Jonathan renders, "is it possible that he who gave to his people the law should not chastise them when they are guilty?" and hence Philippson, generally, as in our version, "who warneth."

[d] Jonathan, Mendelssohn, and others connect this part of verse 10 with verse 11: "he who teacheth man knowledge—the LORD, knoweth," &c.

[e] Rashi. Others, "against the law," i. e. of God. The mischief this confederacy of the ungodly do is contrary to the divine commands.

bow down: let us kneel before the LORD our Maker.

7 For he is our God; and we are the people of his pasture, and the flock of his hand: yea, this day, if ye will hearken to his voice.

8 Harden not your heart, as at Meribah, as on the day of the temptation in the wilderness:

9 When your fathers tempted me, proved me, although they had seen my doing.

10 Forty years long did I feel loathing on that generation, and I said, It is a people of an erring heart; and they truly acknowledged not my ways:

11 So that I swore in my wrath, that they should not enter into my rest.

PSALM XCVI.

1 ¶ Oh sing unto the LORD a new song: sing unto the LORD, all the lands.

2 Sing unto the LORD, bless his name: announce from day to day his salvation.

3 Relate among the nations his honour, among all the people his wonders.

4 For the LORD is great, and greatly praised: he is to be feared above all gods.

5 For all the gods of the nations are idols; but the LORD hath made the heavens.

6 Glory and majesty are before him: strength and beauty are in his sanctuary.

7 Ascribe unto the LORD, O ye families of the people, ascribe unto the LORD honour and strength.

8 Ascribe unto the LORD the honour (due unto) his name: bear hither a present, and come unto his courts.

9 Bow down unto the LORD in the beauty of holiness: tremble before him, all ye lands.

10 Say among the nations, "The LORD reigneth;" (therefore) also the world is ever firmly established that it shall not be moved: he will judge the people in equity.

11 Let the heavens rejoice, and let the earth be glad: let the sea roar, with all that filleth it.

12 Let the field exult, and all that is therein: then shall all the trees of the forest sing for joy,

13 Before the LORD; for he cometh, for he cometh to judge the earth; he will judge the world with righteousness, and people in his truth.

PSALM XCVII.

1 ¶ The LORD reigneth: let the earth be glad; let the multitude of isles rejoice.

2 Clouds and thick darkness are round about him: righteousness and justice are the support of his throne.

3 A fire goeth before him, and burneth up round about his adversaries.

4 His lightnings give light to the world: the earth seeth it, and trembleth.

5 The mountains melt away like wax at the presence of the LORD, at the presence of the Lord of all the earth.

6 The heavens tell of his righteousness, and all the people see his glory.

7 Made ashamed shall be all that serve graven images, that boast themselves of idols: unto him bow down all the gods.

8 Zion heareth it, and rejoiceth; and glad are the daughters of Judah, because of thy decrees, O LORD.

9 For thou, O LORD, art the most high above all the earth: thou art greatly exalted above all gods.

10 Ye that love the LORD, hate ye the evil: he preserveth the souls of his pious ones; out of the hand of the wicked he ever delivereth them.

11 Light is sown for the righteous, and joy for the upright in heart, 12 Rejoice, ye righteous, in the LORD, and give thanks to his holy memorial.

PSALM XCVIII.

1 ¶ A psalm. Oh sing unto the LORD a new song; for he hath done wonderful things: his right hand and his holy arm have gotten him the victory.

2 The LORD hath made known his salvation: before the eyes of the nations hath he revealed his righteousness.

3 He hath remembered his kindness and his truth toward the house of Israel: all the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God.

4 Shout joyfully unto the LORD, all the lands: break forth, and rejoice, and sing praises.

5 Sing praises unto the LORD with the harp, —with the harp, and the voice of psalmody.

6 With trumpets and the sound of cornet shout joyfully before the King, the LORD.

7 Let the sea roar, with all that filleth it; the world, with those that dwell therein.

8 Let the rivers clap their hands; let the mountains be joyful together,

9 Before the LORD; for he cometh to judge the earth: he will judge the world with righteousness, and people with equity.

PSALM XCIX.

1 ¶ The LORD reigneth; people tremble: he sitteth enthroned over the cherubim; the earth is moved.

2 The LORD is great in Zion; and he is exalted above all the people.

3 They will give thanks to thy name, great, and terrible, (and) holy it is;

4 And[a] to the power of the king who loveth justice; thou hast established equity; justice and righteousness hast thou truly executed in Jacob.

5 Exalt ye the LORD our God, and bow yourselves down before his footstool: he is holy.—

6 Moses and Aaron were among his priests, and Samuel among those that call on his name; they called on the LORD, and he answered them.

7 In the pillar of cloud he used to speak unto them: they kept his testimonies, and the statutes which he had given unto them.

8 O LORD, our God, thou didst answer them: thou wast a forgiving God unto them, yet also an avenger for their wrong doings.[b]

9 Exalt the LORD our God, and bow yourselves down before his holy mount; for holy is the LORD our God.

PSALM C.

1 ¶ A psalm of thanksgiving. Shout joyfully unto the LORD, all ye lands.

2 Serve the LORD with joy; come before his presence with triumphal song.

3 Know, that the LORD is God indeed: it is he that hath made us, and his are we[c]—his people and the flock of his pasture.

4 Enter his gates with thanksgiving, his courts with praise: give thanks unto him, bless his name.

5 For the LORD is good; to eternity endureth his kindness; and unto the latest generation his truth.

PSALM CI.

1 ¶ By David, a psalm. Of kindness and justice will I sing: unto thee, O LORD, will I sing praises.

2 I will carefully regard the way of the perfect: oh when wilt thou come unto me? I will walk in the integrity of my heart in the midst of my house.[d]

3 I will not set before my eyes a godless thing; to commit a departure (from righteousness) do I hate; it shall not cleave to me.

4 A perverse heart shall depart from me: evil will I not know.

5 Whoso slandereth in secret his neighbour, him will I destroy: whoso hath proud eyes and a haughty heart, him will I not suffer.

6 My eyes shall be upon the faithful of the land, that they may abide with me: he that walketh in the way of the perfect, he it is that shall serve me.

7 He that practiseth deceit shall not dwell within my house: he that speaketh falsehoods shall not succeed before my eyes.

8 Every morning will I destroy all the wicked of the land, cutting off from the city of the LORD all the wrong-doers.

PSALM CII.

1 ¶ A prayer of the afflicted, when he is overwhelmed, and poureth out before the LORD his complaint.

2 O LORD, hear my prayer, and let my cry come unto thee.

3 Hide not thy face from me on the day when I am distressed; incline unto me thy ear; on the day when I call, answer me speedily.

[a] So Rashi and other commentators, who conceive "they will give thanks" is to be understood before this verse also; thus: "And they will praise the power of the king," &c.; but Aben Ezra, "And the power is the king's, who loveth justice."

[b] So Jonathan, Rashi, &c.; but Aben Ezra and Redak refer it to the rebellion of Korach, and we should then render, "and thou didst avenge the false accusations against them." But it more probably means, that even the beloved of God do not escape the punishment due to their transgressions, so even-handed is divine justice. Philippson regards this verse as applied to all Israel, not to Moses, Aaron, and Samuel.

[c] So is the Keri ולו; but the Kethib is אל "not we ourselves," we are not the architects of our own fortune. Or might it not be thus rendered as a question, "and are we not his people?" &c.

[d] Rashi explains, "no less in secret than in public."

4 For my days vanish in smoke, and my bones are burning like a hearth.[a]

5 Struck (by heat) like the herb and dried up is my heart; for I forget to eat my bread.

6 Because of the voice of my groaning my bones cleave to my flesh.

7 I am like the pelican of the wilderness: I am become like the owl amid ruins.

8 I watch, and I am become like a (night-) bird sitting alone upon the housetop.

9 All the day my enemies reproach me: they that mock[b] me swear by me.

10 For ashes do I eat like bread, and my drink I mingle with weeping;

11 Because of thy indignation and thy wrath; for thou hadst lifted me up, and hast cast me down.

12 My days are like a shadow that declineth;[c] and like the herb I wither.

13 But thou, O LORD, wilt sit enthroned for ever; and thy memorial is unto all generations.

14 Thou wilt indeed arise; thou wilt have mercy upon Zion; for it is time to favour her, for the appointed time is coming.

15 For thy servants hold dear her stones, and her very dust they cherish.

16 Then shall nations fear the name of the LORD, and all the kings of the earth thy glory:

17 When the LORD shall have built up Zion, he appeareth in his glory;

18 (When) he hath regarded the prayer of the forsaken, and doth not despise their prayer.

19 This shall be written down for the latest generation; and the people which shall be created shall praise the LORD.

20 For he hath looked down from the height of his sanctuary; the LORD hath cast from heaven his view to the earth;

21 To hear the sighing of the prisoner; to loosen those that are doomed to death:

22 That men may proclaim in Zion the name of the LORD, and his praise in Jerusalem;

23 When people, are gathered together, and kingdoms, to serve the LORD.—

24 He hath weakened on the way my strength; he hath shortened my days.

25 I will say, O my God! take me not away in the midst of my days: throughout all generations are thy years.

26 In olden times didst thou lay the foundations of the earth; and the heavens are the work of thy hands.

27 These will indeed perish, but thou wilt ever exist: yea, all of them will wear out like a garment; as a vesture wilt thou change them, and they will be changed;

28 But thou art ever the same, and thy years will have no end.

29 The children of thy servants will dwell (securely), and their seed will be firmly established before thee.

PSALM CIII.

1 ¶ Of David. Bless, O my soul, the LORD, and all that is within me, his holy name.

2 Bless, O my soul, the LORD, and forget not all his benefits:

3 Who forgiveth all thy iniquities; who healeth all thy diseases;

4 Who redeemeth from the pit[d] thy life; who crowneth thee with kindness and mercies;

5 Who satisfieth with happiness thy spirit,[e] so that thy youth is renewed like the eagle's (plumage).[f]

6 The LORD executeth righteousness, and justice for all that are oppressed.

7 He made known his ways unto Moses, unto the children of Israel his acts.

8 Merciful and gracious is the LORD, long-suffering and abundant in kindness.

9 Not for all eternity will he contend; nor will he for ever retain his anger.

10 Not in accordance with our sins hath he dealt with us; nor according to our iniquities hath he requited us.

11 For as high as heaven is above the

[a] Mendelssohn, "are consumed as a firebrand."

[b] Rashi. Redak, "who rave about me." Philippson, "who would make me a fool." "Swear by me" means that they say, "May I become like him, if I have done so."

[c] Others, "lengthened," i. e. toward night; but it is the same as declining—toward extinction by the coming darkness.

[d] Others, "destruction."

[e] Aben Ezra. Jonathan, "old age." Lit. "ornament," which old age is to the good, and the spirit to the chief of God's creation. Redak, "mouth." (See Ps. xxxii. 9.)

[f] Rashi; but Philippson conceives that it merely means that the youth spoken of should be renewed to be as vigorous as the eagle is.

earth, so mighty is his kindness toward those that fear him.

12 As far as the east is from the west, so far hath he removed from us our transgressions.

13 As a father hath mercy on his children, so hath the LORD mercy on those that fear him.

14 For he knoweth our frame;[a] he remembereth that we are dust.

15 As for man, like the grass are his days: as the blossom of the field, so doth he bloom.

16 When a wind but passeth over it,[b] it is gone, and its place will recognise it no more.

17 But the kindness of the LORD is from everlasting to everlasting over those that fear him, and his righteousness unto children's children, 18 To such as keep his covenant, and to those who remember his precepts to execute them.

19 The LORD hath established in the heavens his throne; and his kingdom ruleth over all.

20 Bless the LORD, ye his angels, mighty in strength, that execute his word, hearkening unto the voice of his word.

21 Bless ye the LORD, all his hosts, ye his ministers, that execute his will.

22 Bless the LORD, all his works, in all the places of his dominion: bless, O my soul, the LORD.

PSALM CIV.

1 ¶ Bless, O my soul, the LORD. O LORD my God, thou art very great; with glory and majesty art thou clothed.

2 (Thou art he) who wrappeth himself in light as with a garment; who stretcheth out the heavens like a curtain;

3 Who frameth of the waters the beams of his upper-chambers; who maketh the clouds his chariot; who walketh along upon the wings of the wind;

4 Who maketh the winds his messengers; the flaming fire his ministers;

5 Who hath founded the earth upon her bases, that she should not be moved to all eternity.

6 Thou[c] hadst covered the deep as with a garment: above the mountains stood the waters.

7 At thy rebuke they fled, at the voice of thy thunder they hastened away.

8 They ascended mountains; they went down valleys, unto the place which thou hadst founded for them.

9 Bounds hast thou set which they cannot pass over, that they return not again to cover the earth.

10 (Thou art he) who sendeth springs into the valleys,[d] between mountains they run along.

11 They give drink to all the beasts of the field: the wild asses quench (thereon) their thirst.

12 By them have the fowls of the heaven ever their habitation, from between the branches they send forth their voice.

13 Who watereth the mountains from his upper-chambers: from the fruit of thy works is the earth satisfied.

14 (Thou art he) who causeth grass to grow for the cattle, and herbs by[e] the service of man, that he may bring forth bread out of the earth;

15 And wine that maketh joyful the heart of man, (and)[f] oil to brighten his face, and bread which strengtheneth the heart of man.

16 Full of sap are the trees of the LORD, the cedars of Lebanon, which he hath planted;

17 Where the birds make their nests: the stork—fir-trees are her house.

18 The high mountains are for the wild goats: the rocks are a shelter for the conies.

[a] i. e. The manner we were made, our mind wavering, our body perishable. Others think יצר is used to represent the disposition, either good or bad, of man. Philippson renders, "our framing," i. e. what we do.

[b] Philippson, after Rashi, "over him," "he is," &c. Redak, "so will his (man's) place," &c. Rashi explains "wind" to mean "the sickness preceding death."

[c] The Psalmist represents the first appearance of the earth after the creation, perfect in its mountains and valleys, but all covered over with the sea, (deep, or abyss,) which has to retire into its proper receptable at God's rebuke, unwilling in a measure to lose its dominions, but obeying at length the will of the Creator.

[d] Redak. Jonathan, "sendeth out springs to become streams."

[e] Aben Ezra, &c. Philippson, "for the use of man."

[f] Rashi. Sachs, "that his countenance may shine more than oil." Philippson, "than from oil." Herxheimer, "as it (the wine) maketh the face more shining than oil."

19 He hath made the moon for seasons: the sun knoweth his going down.

20 Thou causest darkness, and it becometh night, wherein creep forth all the beasts of the forest.

21 The young lions roar after their prey, and ask from God their food.

22 The sun ariseth, they withdraw (to their lairs), and lie down in their dens.

23 Man goeth (then) forth unto his work, and to his labour until the evening.

24 How manifold are thy works, O LORD! in wisdom hast thou made them all: the earth is full of thy riches.[a]

25 Here is this great and wide-extended sea; therein are moving things without number, living creatures both small and great.

26 There the ships make their way: (there also) is that leviathan, whom thou hast made to sport therein.

27 All of these wait upon thee, to give them their food in its due season.

28 What thou givest them they gather: thou openest thy hand, they are satisfied with good.

29 Thou hidest thy face, they suddenly vanish:[b] thou takest away their spirit,[c] they perish, and to their dust they return.

30 Thou sendest forth thy spirit, they are created; and thou renewest the face of the earth.

31 The glory of the LORD will endure for ever; the LORD will rejoice in his works:

32 He who looketh down on the earth, and she trembleth; who toucheth the mountains, and they smoke.

33 I will sing unto the LORD while I live: I will sing praises to my God while I exist.

34 May my speech be agreeable to him: I will indeed rejoice in the LORD.

35 May the sinners cease from off the earth, and the wicked be no more. Bless, O my soul, the LORD. Hallelujah.[d]

PSALM CV.

1 ¶ O give thanks unto the LORD; call on his name: make known among the people his deeds.

2 Sing unto him, sing praises unto him: speak of all his wonderful works.

3 Glorify yourselves in his holy name: let the heart of those rejoice that seek the LORD.

4 Inquire after the LORD and his strength: seek his presence evermore.

5 Remember his wonderful works which he hath done; his tokens, and the decrees of his mouth;

6 O ye seed of Abraham his servant, ye children of Jacob, his elect.

7 He is the LORD our God: over all the earth are his decrees.

8 He remembereth his covenant for ever, the word which he hath commanded, to the thousandth generation,

9 Which he covenanted with Abraham; and his oath unto Isaac;

10 And which he established unto Jacob as a statute, unto Israel as an everlasting covenant:

11 Saying, "Unto thee will I give the land of Canaan, as the portion[e] of your inheritance."

12 When they were but a few men in number; yea, very few, and strangers in it;

13 And when they wandered from one nation to another, from one kingdom to another people:

14 He suffered no man to oppress them; yea, he reproved kings for their sake;

15 (Saying,) "Touch not my anointed, and do my prophets no harm."—

16 And he called for a famine over the land; every staff of bread he broke.

17 He sent a man before them; for a servant was Joseph sold;

18 They forced into fetters his feet; in iron was his body put:

19 Until the time that his word came[f] to pass, (when) the saying of the LORD had purified him.

[a] Lit. "acquisitions."

[b] Mendelssohn, as in Isaiah lxv. 23, the sudden or speedy transition from life to death; here the effect of God's hiding his countenance. Jonathan and others simply, "they are terrified." Sachs, "they become a prey to terror."

[c] Others, "breath;" and so in next verse.

[d] This is a compound word from הללו hallelu, "praise ye," and יה Jah, (yah,) "the LORD." We shall leave it untranslated, as it has passed into the modern languages as a familiar word.

[e] Lit. "cord," or that which is measured by a surveyor's cord or line. Others, "lot."

[f] Rashi refers "his word" to God; Aben Ezra, to Joseph, i. e. whose prophecy or interpretation was fulfilled, which was the cause of his being sent for.

20 The king[a] sent and unfettered him; the ruler of people, and let him go free.

21 He appointed him lord of his house, and ruler of all his possession:

22 That he might bind his princes at his pleasure; and teach his ancients wisdom.

23 Then came Israel into Egypt, and Jacob sojourned in the land of Ham.

24 And he increased his people greatly, and made them stronger than their adversaries.

25 He turned their heart to hate his people, to deal subtilely with his servants.

26 He sent Moses his servant, Aaron also whom he had made choice of.

27 They displayed among them his effective signs, and wonders in the land of Ham.

28 He sent darkness, and made it dark; and they rebelled not against his word.

29 He changed their waters into blood, and slew their fish.

30 Their land brought forth frogs in abundance, in the very chambers of their kings.

31 He spoke, and there came various wild beasts, lice also within all their boundary.

32 He gave them as their rain hail, and flames of fire in their land.

33 And he smote their vines and their figtrees, and broke the trees within their boundary.

34 He spoke, and the locusts came, and crickets,[b] and that without number;

35 And they ate up all the herbs in their land, and ate up the fruit of their ground.

36 And he smote all the first-born in their land, the first of all their strength.

37 And he brought them forth with silver and gold: and there was not one that stumbled among his tribes.

38 Egypt rejoiced when they departed; for the dread of them was fallen upon them.

39 He spread out a cloud for a covering, and fire to give light in the night.

40 The people asked, and he brought quails, and with heavenly bread he satisfied them.

41 He opened the rock, and the waters gushed out: they ran in the dry places like a river.

42 For he remembered his holy word given to Abraham his servant.

43 And he brought forth his people with gladness, with joyful song his elect.

44 And he gave them the lands of nations; and the labour of people they obtained as an inheritance:

45 So that they might observe his statutes, and keep his laws. Hallelujah.

PSALM CVI.

1 ¶ Hallelujah. Oh give thanks unto the LORD; for he is good; for to eternity endureth his kindness.

2 Who can utter the mighty acts of the LORD? who can publish all his praise?

3 Happy are those that observe justice, that execute righteousness at all times.

4 Remember me, O LORD, when thou favourest thy people: oh visit me with thy salvation;

5 That I may look on the happiness of thy elect, that I may rejoice in the joy of thy nation, that I may glorify myself with thy inheritance.

6 We have sinned[c] together with our fathers, we have committed iniquity, we have done wickedly.

7 Our fathers did not reflect on thy wonders in Egypt: they remembered not the multitude of thy kindnesses; but rebelled at the sea, even at the Red Sea.

8 Nevertheless he saved them for the sake of his name, to make known his might.

9 He rebuked the Red Sea also, and it was dried up; and he led them through the depths, as through the wilderness.

10 And he saved them from the hand of him that hated them, and redeemed them from the hand of the enemy.

11 And the waters covered their adversaries: not one of them was left.

12 Then believed they in his words, they sang his praise.

13 Speedily they forgot his works, they waited not for his counsel;

14 And they felt a lustful longing in the wilderness, and tempted God in the desert.

15 And he gave them what they had asked; but sent dryness into their soul.

[a] So Rashi. Aben Ezra, however, "God sent a king who unfettered him."

[b] Philippson, as in Joël, יֶלֶק with "grub."

[c] The national sins since the exodus are here recounted.

16 Moreover they envied[a] Moses in the camp, and Aaron the holy one of the LORD.
17 The earth opened and swallowed up Dathan, and covered over the company of Abiram.
18 And a fire was kindled in their company: the flame burnt up the wicked.
19 They made a calf in Horeb, and bowed themselves down to a molten image.
20 And they exchanged their glory for the similitude of an ox that eateth herbs.
21 They forgot God their saviour, who had done great things in Egypt, 22 Wonders in the land of Ham, terrible things by the Red Sea.
23 He therefore spoke of destroying them: had not Moses his elect stood in the breach before him, to turn away his fury, that he might not destroy.
24 And they despised the pleasant land, they believed not in his word;
25 But they murmured in their tents, they hearkened not unto the voice of the LORD.
26 He therefore lifted up his hand against them, to cause them to fall in the wilderness;
27 And to let their seed fall among the nations, and to scatter them in the lands.
28 And they joined themselves unto Ba'al-pe'or, and ate the sacrifices of the dead.[b]
29 And they provoked him to anger with their deeds: and there broke in among them the plague.
30 Then stood up Phinehas, and executed judgment:[c] and the plague was stayed.
31 And it was accounted unto him for righteousness, unto all generations for evermore.
32 They angered him also at the waters of Meribah, and evil happened to Moses for their sake;
33 Because they had imbittered his spirit, and so he spoke thoughtlessly with his lips.
34 They did not exterminate the nations, that the LORD had indicated to them;
35 But they mingled themselves among the nations, and learned their doings.
36 And they served their idols, and these became unto them a snare.
37 Yea, they sacrificed their sons and their daughters unto the evil spirits;
38 And they shed innocent blood, the blood of their sons and of their daughters, whom they sacrificed unto the idols of Canaan: and the land was polluted with blood-guiltiness.
39 Thus were they made unclean through their own doings, and went astray with their own deeds.
40 Therefore was the wrath of the LORD kindled against his people, and he felt disgust for his own inheritance.
41 And he gave them up into the hand of the nations: and there ruled over them those that hated them.
42 And their enemies also oppressed them: and they were subdued under their hand.
43 Many times did he deliver them; but they rebelled with their counsel, and they were brought low through their iniquity.
44 Nevertheless he looked on when they were in distress, when he heard their entreaty.
45 And he remembered unto them his covenant, and he bethought himself according to the abundance of his kindnesses;
46 And he caused them to find mercy[d] before all those that had carried them away captive.
47 Save us, O LORD our God, and gather us from among the nations, to give thanks unto thy holy name, to triumph in thy praise.
48 Blessed be the LORD the God of Israel from everlasting even to everlasting: and let all the people say, Amen, Hallelujah.

[a] Rashi, "they made Moses angry."
[b] i. e. The idols which are inanimate, in opposition to "the living God" of Israel.
[c] Aben Ezra; but Jonathan, as though it were ויתפלל "and he prayed."
[d] Lit. "And he gave them unto mercy."

BOOK FIFTH.

PSALM CVII.

1 ¶ Oh give thanks unto the LORD; for he is good; for unto eternity endureth his kindness.

2 Thus let the LORD's redeemed say, even those whom he hath redeemed from the hand of the adversary;[a]

3 And whom he hath gathered out of the (various) lands, from the east, and from the west, from the north, and from the sea.[b]

4 They wandered about in the wilderness, in the desert path;[c] they could not find an inhabited[d] city:

5 Hungry and thirsty, their soul within them fainted.

6 Then they cried unto the LORD when they were in distress, (and) out of their afflictions he delivered them.

7 And he led them forth on the right way, that they might go to an inhabited city.

8 They (therefore) shall give thanks unto the LORD for his kindness, and (proclaim)[e] his wonders to the children of men!

9 For he satisfied the longing soul, and the hungry soul he filled with good.—

10 Such as sit in darkness and in the shadow of death, bound in misery and (fetters of)[f] iron;—

11 Because they have rebelled against the words of God, and have contemned the counsel of the Most High;

12 And he humbled with trouble their heart; they stumbled, and there was none to help;

13 But when they cry unto the LORD when they are in distress, he saveth them out of their afflictions;

14 He bringeth them out of darkness and the shadow of death, and teareth their bands asunder.

15 They (therefore) shall give thanks unto the LORD for his kindness, and (proclaim) his wonders to the children of men!

16 For he hath broken the doors of copper, and the bolts of iron hath he hewn asunder.—

17 Fools, because of their transgression, and because of their iniquities, are afflicted.

18 All manner of food their soul abhorreth; and they draw near unto the gates of death;

19 But when they cry unto the LORD when they are in distress, he saveth them out of their afflictions.

20 He sendeth his word and healeth them, and delivereth them from their graves.[g]

21 They (therefore) shall give thanks unto the LORD for his kindness, and (proclaim) his wonders to the children of men!

22 They shall also sacrifice the sacrifices of thanksgiving, and relate his deeds with joyful song.—

23 They who go down to the sea in ships, who do business on great waters;—

24 These have seen the works of the LORD, and his wonders on the deep.

25 For he spoke, and he raised the stormy wind, which lifteth up its waves.

26 They would mount up to heaven, they would go down to the depths: their soul was melted because of their danger.[h]

27 They would reel to and fro, and stagger like a drunken man, and all their wisdom was exhausted.[i]

28 And they cried unto the LORD when they were in distress, and he brought them out of their afflictions.

[a] Aben Ezra, Redak and others, the same as צרה "distress."

[b] Sforno, "the Red Sea," which is to the south of Palestine. Redak remarks, the south is not mentioned because, from its heat, it is not much travelled.

[c] Sforno, "trackless desert;" but thus is precisely the way through the sea or desert, immediately obliterated.

[d] Eng. ver. and Philippson, "a city to dwell in."

[e] Aben Ezra and Redak. Others supply אשר עשה "and for his wonders (which he hath done) to," &c.

[f] Lit. "prisoners of misery and iron."

[g] So Redak. Others, "their destruction." In the whole construction of this Psalm the future alternates rapidly with the past; wherefore either tense may be adopted in the translation.

[h] Redak. Lit. "evil," i. e. misfortune, or the consequence of it; here evidently the danger awaiting the crew from shipwreck.

[i] Lit. "was swallowed." Aben Ezra, "was hidden as though it were not." Eng. ver., "they are at their wit's end." Philippson, "all their wisdom was at an end." i. e. as regards devising means of escape

29 He calmed the storm into a whisper, and stilled were the waves of the sea.

30 And they were rejoiced because they were silent: and then he guided them unto their desired haven.[a]

31 They (therefore) shall give thanks unto the LORD for his kindness, and (proclaim) his wonders to the children of men![b]

32 And they must exalt him in the congregation of the people, and in the assembly[c] of the elders must they praise him.—

33 He changeth rivers into a wilderness, and water-springs into parched ground;

34 A fruitful land into a salty waste, for the wickedness of those that dwell therein.

35 He changeth the wilderness into a pool of water, and desert land into water-springs.

36 And there he causeth to dwell the hungry, that they may found an inhabited city;

37 And they sow fields, and plant vineyards, that they may yield the fruits of the (annual) product.[d]

38 He also blesseth them, and they multiply greatly, and he suffereth not their cattle to diminish.

39 They[e] were also diminished and bowed low through oppression, misfortune, and sorrow:

40 He (then) poureth contempt upon princes, and causeth them to wander in a pathless wilderness.

41 And he exalteth the needy from misery, and maketh (his) families like flocks.

42 The righteous shall see it, and rejoice;
but all wickedness shall stop her mouth.

43 Whoever is wise, let him observe these things, and let (all) understand the kindness of the LORD.

PSALM CVIII.[f]

1 ¶ A song or psalm of David.

2 My heart is firm, O God; I will sing and give praise, even with my spirit.

3 Awake, psaltery and harp: I will wake up the morning-dawn.

4 I will give thee thanks among the people, O LORD: and I will sing praises unto thee among the nations.

5 For great above the heavens is thy kindness, and thy truth reacheth even unto the skies.

6 Exalt thyself above the heavens, O God;
and above all the earth thy glory.

7 In order that thy beloved may be delivered: help with thy right hand, and answer me.

8 God hath spoken in his holiness: I will exult, I will divide Shechem, and the valley of Succoth will I measure out.

9 Mine is Gil'ad, and mine is Menasseh;
Ephraim also is the strong-hold of my head;
of Judah are my chiefs.

10 Moäb is my washpot; upon Edom will
I cast my shoe; over Philistia will I triumph.

11 Who will bring me into the fortified city? who will lead me as far as Edom?

12 Behold, it is thou, O God, who hast cast us off; and thou, O God, goest not forth with our armies.

13 Give us help against the assailant;
for vain is the help of man.

14 Through God shall we do valiantly; for he it is that will tread down our adversaries.

PSALM CIX.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, by David, a psalm. O God of my praise, do not keep silence.

2 For the mouth of the wicked and the mouth of deceit are opened against me: they have spoken with me with the tongue of falsehood.

3 Also with words of hatred have they encompassed me, and they fight against me without a cause.

4 In recompense for my love[g] are they my accusers, while I have nothing but prayer.

[a] Rashi, "boundary."

[b] The Rabbins say that four classes are bound to return public thanks: those who have returned from a journey through the wilderness, who have been imprisoned, been sick, and lastly, who have returned from sea. Moderns interpret this Psalm as referring to those returned from the Babylonian exile, and explain it metaphorically for all Israel, who had undergone various mishaps from the destruction of the temple.

[c] Lit. "seat," where the elders sit together.

[d] Redak, "fruit and products."

[e] Mendelssohn connects the verses in this way: "If they are diminished, &c.—then doth he pour out contempt upon princes—and delivereth the needy from oppression," &c.

[f] This Psalm is from 1 to 6 the same as Ps. lvii. 6, 8–12; and from 7 to 11 nearly as lx. 7–14.

[g] Rashi, "my love to thee."

5 And they impose evil on me in recompense for good, and hatred in lieu of my love.

6 Appoint[a] thou a wicked man over him, and let an accuser stand at his right hand.

7 When he is to be judged, let him go forth guilty, and let his prayer become sin.

8 Let his days be few, and let another take his office.[b]

9 Let his children be fatherless, and his wife a widow.

10 Let his children be continually moving about, and beg, and let them seek (their bread) out of their ruined places.

11 Let the creditor lay snares after all that he hath, and let strangers plunder his labour.

12 Let him have none that extendeth kindness, and let there be none that is gracious to his fatherless children.

13 Let his posterity be cut off: in another generation let their name be blotted out.

14 Let the iniquity of his fathers be remembered by the LORD, and let the sin of his mother not be blotted out.

15 Let them[c] be before the LORD continually, that he may cut off from the earth their memory.

16 For the reason that he remembered not to show kindness; but persecuted the poor and needy man, and the grieved in heart to put him to death.

17 As he loved cursing, so let it come over him: and as he delighted not in blessing, so let it be far from him.

18 And he clothed himself with cursing as with his garment: and it cometh like water within him, and like oil into his bones.[d]

19 Let it be unto him as a garment in which he wrappeth himself, and for a girdle let him be continually girded with it.

20 Let this be the reward of my accusers from the LORD, and of those that speak evil against my soul.

21 But thou, O Eternal Lord, deal with me for the sake of thy name: because thy kindness is good, deliver thou me.

22 For poor and needy am I, and my heart is deeply wounded within me.

23 Like the shadow when it declineth do I hasten away: I am driven suddenly off like the locusts.[e]

24 My knees stumble through fasting, and my flesh faileth of fatness.[f]

25 And I am become a reproach unto them: when they see me, they shake their head.

26 Help me, O LORD my God: O save me according to thy kindness:

27 That they may know that this is thy hand; that thou, LORD, hast truly done it.

28 Let them then curse, but do thou bless: when they arise, let them be made ashamed; but let thy servant rejoice.

29 Let my accusers be clothed with confusion, and let them wrap themselves, as with a mantle, in their own shame.

30 I will thank the LORD greatly with my mouth, and in the midst of many will I praise him.

31 For he ever standeth at the right hand of the needy, to save him from those that judge[g] his soul.

PSALM CX.

1 ¶ By David, a psalm. The Eternal saith unto my lord, Sit thou at my right hand, until I place thy enemies as a stool for thy feet.

2 The staff of thy strength will the Eternal stretch forth out of Zion: rule thou in the midst of thy enemies.

3 Thy people will bring freewill-gifts on the day of thy power, in the ornaments of holiness: as out of the bosom of the morning-dawn, so is thine the dew of thy youth.[h]

4 The LORD hath sworn, and will not re-

[a] Mendelssohn and others take all from ver. 6 to 19 as the curse of David's enemies against him; while the greater part of the commentators regard it as the outbreak of feeling of the Psalmist against the chief of those who persecuted him relentlessly without the least regard to justice. Redak conceives this one to be Doëg, who betrayed his staying with Achimelech to the enraged Saül.

[b] Rashi. Redak, "his property," or "his wife."

[c] i. e. The iniquity and sin just spoken of.

[d] Philippson, "as water and oil penetrate substances, so may the inner part of the wicked be penetrated by the curse."

[e] i. e. Which are suddenly destroyed at times by rain or carried away by a storm. (See Exod. x. 19.)

[f] Philippson, "my flesh deceiveth, because there is no oil," i. e. to anoint therewith, anointing being omitted during a fast.

[g] Sachs, "that condemn his soul."

[h] i. e. The dew, the emblem of blessing, which he had so long deserved, shall now come to him as the actual dew drops on the earth, so to say, out of the bosom of the morning-dawn. This verse is rendered after Philippson. Rashi, interpreting this Psalm as applied to Abraham, pent of it, Thou shalt be a priest[a] for ever after the order of Malki-zedek.

5 The Lord at thy right hand crusheth kings on the day of his wrath.

6 He will judge among the nations—there shall be a fulness of corpses—he crusheth heads on a wide-spread land.

7 From the brook will he drink on the way:[b] therefore will he lift up the head.

PSALM CXI.

1 ¶ Hallelujah. I will thank the LORD with all (my) heart, in the council of the upright, and in the congregation.

2 Great are the works of the LORD, they are sought for (by them) in all their desires.[c]

3 Glorious and majestic is his doing, and his righteousness endureth for ever.

4 He hath made a memorial for his wonderful works: gracious and merciful is the LORD.

5 He hath given sustenance unto those that fear him: he will for ever be mindful of his covenant.

6 The power of his works hath he told unto his people, that he might give them the heritage of nations.

7 The works of his hands are truth and justice: faultless[d] are all his precepts.

8 They are well supported for ever and eternally: they are framed in truth and uprightness.

9 Redemption hath he sent unto his people; he hath commanded his covenant for ever: holy and to be feared is his name.

10 The beginning of wisdom is the fear of the LORD; a good[e] understanding have all that fulfil (his commandments): his praise[f] endureth for ever.

PSALM CXII.

1 ¶ Hallelujah. Happy is the man that feareth the LORD, that greatly delighteth in his commandments.

2 His seed shall be mighty upon earth: the generation of the upright shall be blessed.

3 Plenty and riches shall be in his house, and his righteousness shall endure for ever.

4 There ariseth in the darkness a light to the upright: he is gracious, and merciful, and righteous.

5 Well[g] will it be with the man who is kind, and lendeth: he will guide his affairs with justice.

6 Surely unto eternity shall he not be moved: in everlasting remembrance shall the righteous be held.

7 Of an evil report shall he not be afraid: his heart is firm, trusting in the LORD.

8 Well supported is his heart, he shall not be afraid, until he looketh on (the punishment of) his assailants.

9 He distributeth, he giveth to the needy: his righteousness endureth for ever; his horn shall be exalted in honour.

10 The wicked shall see it, and be vexed; he will gnash with his teeth, and melt away: the longing of the wicked shall perish.

PSALM CXIII.[h]

1 ¶ Hallelujah. Praise, O ye servants of the LORD, praise ye the name of the LORD.

2 Let the name of the LORD be blessed from this time forth and for evermore.

renders, "Thy people will come voluntarily unto thee on the day of thy gathering an army; this shall be thine because of the beauties of holiness which thou hadst from thy earliest age, soon after thou didst leave thy mother's womb; to thee shall be accounted the way of righteousness which thou didst follow in thy youth, to be as pleasant as the dew." Sachs, accordingly, "Thy people, voluntarily coming on the day of the gathering of thy army, is in holy ornament; out of the bosom of the morning-dawn (floweth) unto thee the dew of thy youth."

[a] Aben Ezra, "minister," or "servant," to serve the LORD. Malki-zedek was king and priest at Salem, afterward Jerusalem; and so the king it is said here shall be both temporal chief and a priest in the general sense, not sacrificial, or servant of God. So also, "you shall be unto me a kingdom of priests." (Exod. xix. 6.) This precisely was David, as he superintended and organized the temple worship, without infringing on the office of the Aaronitic priesthood, in which a stranger, though king of Israel, could not mingle.

[b] "In the haste of pursuit the king will not stop to have the water brought, but drink it as he finds it on his way."—HERXHEIMER. But Philippson, "Wherever he goes God provides him the brook to quench his thirst, and so to acquire a complete victory."

[c] Sforno and Rabbi Morenus; meaning, the righteous seek for the works of the LORD, to satisfy themselves in all their desires.

[d] Redak. Lit "faithful," "approved," or "found true."

[e] Others, "good success," &c.

[f] i. e. God's praise. Aben Ezra and Redak, "the praise of the man that observeth the precepts," &c.

[g] Redak; but Jonathan, "the good man hath pity on the poor and lendeth."

[h] This and Psalms cxiv. cxvii. are called "the (Egyptian) Hallel."

3 From the rising of the sun unto his going down the name of the LORD is[a] praised.

4 High above all nations is the LORD, above the heavens is his glory.

5 Who is like the LORD our God, who dwelleth on high?

6 Who condescendeth[b] to view what is done in the heavens, and on the earth?

7 He raiseth up out of the dust the poor, from the dunghill he lifteth up the needy:

8 That he may set him with princes, even with the princes of his people.

9 He causeth the barren woman to dwell in the midst of (her) household,[c] the joyful mother of children. Hallelujah.

PSALM CXIV.

1 ¶ When Israel went forth out of Egypt, the house of Jacob from a people of a strange language:

2 Judah became his sanctuary, (and) Israel his dominion.

3 The sea beheld it, and fled: the Jordan was driven backward.

4 The mountains skipped like wethers, the hills like lambs.

5 What aileth thee, O sea, that thou fleest? thou, O Jordan, that thou art driven backward?

6 Ye mountains, that ye skip like wethers? ye hills, like lambs?

7 At the presence of the Lord tremble,[d] O earth, at the presence of the God of Jacob;

8 Who changeth the rock into a pool of water, the flint into a fountain of water.

PSALM CXV.

1 ¶ Not for our sake, O LORD, not for our sake,[e] but unto thy name give glory, for the sake of thy kindness, for the sake of thy truth.

2 Wherefore should the nations say, Where now is their God?

3 Whereas our God is in the heavens: whatsoever he desireth hath he done.[f]

4 Their idols are silver and gold, the work of the hands of man.

5 A mouth they have, but speak not; eyes they have, but see not;

6 Ears they have, but hear not; a nose they have, but smell not.

7 They have hands,[g] but they touch not; they have feet, but they walk not: nor do they give any utterance by their throat.

8 Like them are those that make them, every one that trusteth in them.

9 O Israel, trust thou in the LORD—he is their help and their shield.

10 O house of Aaron, trust ye in the LORD—he is their help and their shield.

11 Ye that fear[h] the LORD, trust ye in the LORD—he is their help and their shield.

12 The LORD hath even been mindful of us, he will bless (us); he will bless the house of Israel; he will bless the house of Aaron;

13 He will bless those that fear the LORD, the small together with the great.

14 May the LORD increase you more and more, you and your children.

15 Blessed are ye of the LORD, who made heaven and earth.

16 The heavens are the heavens of the LORD; but the earth hath he given to the children of men.

17 Not the dead can praise the LORD, nor all those that go down into the silence (of death).[i]

18 But as for us, we will bless the LORD from this time forth and for evermore. Hallelujah.

[a] Redak. Others, "let the name of the LORD be praised."

[b] Redak, who also quotes a version by others, "who dwelleth so high in heaven, and seeth so deep on the earth." Rashi, who is followed by Sachs, &c.: "Who looketh down so deeply, (who is) in heaven and on earth."

[c] Redak and Aben Ezra. Rashi, allegorically, "Zion, who is like a barren woman, will he cause to be inhabited as the joyful mother of children." Philippson, "the barren one of the house he causeth to dwell, as," &c.

[d] Aben Ezra, one opinion, "the earth trembleth;" חוּלִי as infinitive absolute, not imperative. But Rashi, "before the Lord who produceth the earth," as though it were הַמְחוֹלֵל.

[e] Rashi, with the comment, "deal with us." Others, "Not to us give glory, but to thy name."

[f] Others, "whatsoever he desireth that he doeth."

[g] There is a change of construction in the text, and might be rendered, "as regardeth their feet these do not walk," &c.

[h] Rashi here, "the proselytes;" in cxviii. 4, "the Levites." Aben Ezra, "those that fear God among all nations."

[i] Lit. "silence," i. e. death where there is no speech." (See Ps. xciv. 17.)

PSALM CXVI.

1 ¶ It is lovely to me[a] that the LORD heareth my voice, my supplications.

2 For he hath inclined his ear unto me: therefore throughout all my days will I call on him.

3 The bands of death had compassed me, and the pangs of the nether world had overtaken me; I had met with distress and sorrow:

4 I then called on the name of the LORD, I beseech thee, O LORD, release my soul.

5 Gracious is the LORD, and righteous; and our God is merciful.

6 The LORD preserveth the simple: I was in misery, and he helped me.

7 Return, O my soul, unto thy rest; for the LORD hath dealt bountifully with thee.

8 For thou hast delivered my soul from death, my eyes from tears, my feet from falling.

9 I will walk before the LORD in the lands of life.

10 I believe, therefore will I speak: I was greatly afflicted;

11 I indeed said in my despondency, Every man is a liar.[b]

12 What shall I give in return unto the LORD for all his bounties toward me?

13 The cup of salvation will I lift up, and on the name of the LORD will I call.

14 My vows will I pay unto the LORD, yea, in the presence of all his people.

15 Grievous in the eyes of the LORD is the death of his pious ones.

16 O LORD, truly am I thy servant; I am thy servant,—the son of thy handmaid: thou hast loosened my fetters.

17 Unto thee will I offer the sacrifice of thanksgiving, and on the name of the LORD will I call.

18 My vows will I pay unto the LORD, yea, in the presence of all his people, 19 In the courts of the house of the LORD, in thy midst, O Jerusalem. Hallelujah.

PSALM CXVII.

1 ¶ Praise the LORD, all ye nations: praise him, all ye people.

2 For mighty is his kindness over us: and the truth of the LORD endureth for ever. Hallelujah.

PSALM CXVIII.

1 ¶ O give thanks unto the LORD; for he is good; because unto eternity endureth his kindness.

2 Let Israel then say so; because to eternity endureth his kindness.

3 Let the house of Aaron then say so; because to eternity endureth his kindness.

4 Let those who fear the LORD then say so; because to eternity endureth his kindness.

5 From the midst of distress I called on the LORD: the LORD answered me with enlargement.

6 The LORD is for me; I will not fear: what can a man do unto me?

7 The LORD is for me, among those that help me: therefore shall I indeed look on (the punishment of) those that hate me.

8 It is better to seek shelter with the LORD than to trust in man.

9 It is better to seek shelter with the LORD than to trust in princes.

10 All nations encompassed me about; but in the name of the LORD I will surely[c] cut them off.

11 They encompassed me about; yea, they compassed about; but in the name of the LORD I will surely cut them off.

12 They encompassed me about like bees; they blazed[d] up like the fire of thorns; but in the name of the LORD I will surely cut them off.

13 Thou hast thrust violently at me that I might fall; but the LORD assisted me.

[a] Rashi and Aben Ezra. Redak supplies, "the LORD;" thus, "I love (the LORD), because the LORD heareth."

[b] Rashi, one opinion, "I said in my haste to escape from Saül, Every man, even Samuel who had anointed me as king, is a liar." The verses thus mean, "At present, seeing the fulfilment of God's truth, he would speak confidently—in times past he was greatly afflicted; in the despondency (or hastiness) thence occurring he had doubted both men and Providence; all words, all prophecy was deemed a deception."

[c] Jonathan, "In the name of the LORD (I trust), therefore will I destroy them;" supplying "I trust," and rendering כי as "because." Philippson deems it useless to supply this, and translates, "—in the name of the LORD; for I destroy them." So also in verses 11 and 12.

[d] Jonathan and Rashi, the latter commenting that the root דעך signifies a sudden starting from a spot, such as water and fire, which leave their starting-point rapidly, especially the flame when it is quenched; hence also the sudden blazing up of a fire of dry bushes, which is thereupon speedily quenched. Aben Ezra, however, renders it with "quenched" here also.

14 My strength and song is the LORD, and he is become my salvation.

15 The voice of rejoicing and salvation is in the tents of the righteous: the right hand of the LORD doth valiantly.

16 The right hand of the LORD is exalted: the right hand of the LORD doth valiantly.

17 I shall not die, but I shall live, and relate the works of the LORD.

18 Severely hath the LORD chastised me; but unto death hath he not given me up.

19 Open to me the gates of righteousness: I will enter into them, I will give thanks unto the LORD.

20 This is the gate which belongeth unto the LORD, the righteous shall enter thereby.

21 I will thank thee; for thou hast answered[a] me, and art become my salvation.

22 The stone[b] which the builders rejected is become the chief corner-stone.

23 From the LORD is this come to pass, it is marvellous in our eyes.

24 This is the day which the LORD hath made, we will be glad and rejoice thereon.

25 We beseech thee, O LORD, save (us) now: we beseech thee, O LORD, send (us) now prosperity.

26 Blessed be he that cometh in the name of the LORD: we bless you out of the house of the LORD.

27 God is the LORD, and he giveth us light: bind the festive sacrifice with cords, (leading it)[c] up to the horns of the altar.

28 Thou art my God, and I will thank thee: my God, I will exalt thee.

29 Oh give thanks unto the LORD; for he is good; because to eternity endureth his kindness.

PSALM CXIX.[d]

א ALEPH.

1 ¶ Happy are they whose way is perfect, who walk in the law of the LORD.

2 Happy are they who keep his testimonies, that seek him with all their heart.

3 They also commit no injustice: in his ways do they walk.

4 Thou thyself hast commanded us thy precepts, that we might keep (them) diligently.

5 Oh that my ways were firmly directed to observe thy statutes!

6 Then would I not be made ashamed, while I look at all thy commandments.

7 I will thank thee with uprightness of heart, when I learn thy righteous ordinances.

8 Thy statutes will I observe: oh forsake me not too greatly.

ב BETH.

9 Wherewithal shall a youth keep his way pure? by guarding it according to thy word.

10 With all my heart have I sought thee: oh let me not wander astray from thy commandments.

11 In my heart have I treasured up thy saying, in order that I may not sin against thee.

12 Blessed art thou, O LORD: teach me thy statutes.

13 With my lips have I related all the ordinances of thy mouth.

14 On the way of thy testimonies have I been glad, as over all wealth.

15 On thy precepts will I meditate, and direct my look unto thy paths.

16 In thy statutes will I seek[e] my delight: I will not forget thy word.

ג GIMEL.

17 ¶ Deal bountifully with thy servant: let me live, that I may observe thy word.

18 Open thou my eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law.

19 A stranger am I on the earth: hide not from me thy commandments.

20 My soul is broken from longing for thy ordinances at all times.

21 Thou hast rebuked the accursed proud, who go erringly astray from thy commandments.

22 Roll away from me reproach and contempt; for thy testimonies have I kept.

[a] Jonathan. Sachs, Mendelssohn, and others, "for thou hast afflicted me."

[b] Rashi comments, "the people which has been so low among idolaters."

[c] Redak. Mendelssohn renders בעבתים "wound about with myrtles." Philippson understands the closing words, "till the blood be sprinkled on the horns of the altar."

[d] This Psalm consists of 176 verses, and is divided into 22 sections, each one consisting of 8 verses, all of which commence with the same letter of the alphabet, which is thus contained eight times in this Psalm. Each verse contains a sentence praising the law of God.

[e] Rashi, "I will turn my attention to," or "busy myself with."

23 Although even princes should sit and speak against me, thy servant would still meditate on thy statutes.

24 Also thy testimonies are my delight, my counsellors.[a]

ד DALETH.

25 ¶ My soul cleaveth unto the dust: revive thou me according to thy word.

26 My ways do I relate (to thee), and thou answerest me: teach me thy statutes.

27 Cause me to understand the way of thy precepts, that I may meditate on thy wonders.

28 My soul droppeth away from grief: sustain me according to thy word.

29 The way of falsehood do thou remove from me, and grant me graciously thy law.

30 The way of truth have I chosen: thy ordinances have I set (before me).

31 I have adhered unto thy testimonies: O LORD, put me not to shame.

32 The way of thy commandments will I run; for thou wilt enlarge my heart.

ה HE.

33 ¶ Teach me, O LORD, the way of thy statutes, and I shall keep it in all its windings.[b]

34 Give me understanding, that I may keep thy law, and I will observe it with all (my) heart.

35 Guide me on the path of thy commandments; for therein do I find my delight.

36 Incline my heart unto thy testimonies, and not to desire for gain.

37 Turn away my eyes from beholding vanity: on thy way do thou give me life.

38 Fulfil unto thy servant thy promise[c] for those who are devoted to thy fear.

39 Cause to pass away my disgrace of which I have dread; for thy ordinances are good.

40 Behold, I have longed after thy precepts: through thy righteousness do thou give my life.

ו VAV.

41 ¶ And let thy kindness come unto me, O LORD, thy salvation, according to thy promise.

42 Then shall I have a word to answer the one that reproacheth me; for I trust in thy word.

43 And snatch not the word of truth out of my mouth too greatly; for I wait for thy ordinances.

44 So shall I observe thy law continually for ever and ever.

45 And I will walk in an open space; for thy precepts have I sought.

46 And I will speak of thy testimonies before kings, and will not be ashamed.

47 And I will delight myself in thy commandments, which I love.

48 And so will I lift up my hands unto thy commandments, which I love, and I will meditate on thy statutes.

ז ZAYIN.

49 ¶ Remember thy word unto thy servant, upon which thou hast caused me to wait.

50 This is my comfort in my affliction, that thy promise hath revived me.

51 The presumptuous have held me too greatly in derision: yet have I not departed away from thy law.

52 I remembered thy decrees (which were) from olden times, O LORD, and thus comforted myself.

53 Horror seized on me because of the wicked that forsake thy law.

54 Songs have thy statutes been unto me in the house of my pilgrimage.

55 I remembered in the night thy name, O LORD, and observed thy law.

56 This came to pass unto me, because I had kept thy precepts.

ח CHETH.

57 ¶ My portion is the LORD, have I said, that I might observe thy words.

58 I make entreaty before thee with all my heart: be gracious unto me according to thy promise.

59 I have thought over my ways, and made my feet return unto thy testimonies.

60 I hastened, and delayed not to observe thy commandments.

61 Companies of wicked men have surrounded[d] me; but I have not forgotten thy law.

[a] Heb. "men of my counsel."

[b] Rashi. Aben Ezra, after whom Sachs, "and if I keep it, (then followeth) its reward." Eng. ver. and Philippson, "to the end."

[c] אמר "the saying" of God, i. e. his promise through the prophets.

[d] Jonathan. Menachem, "robbed," from עד "booty," "plunder."

62 At midnights do I constantly rise to give thanks unto thee, because of thy righteous decrees.

63 An associate am I unto all that fear thee, and unto those that keep thy precepts.

64 Of thy kindness, O LORD, is the earth full: teach me thy statutes.

ט TETH.

65 ¶ Thou hast shown goodness on thy servant, O LORD, according to thy word.

66 The best of discernment and knowledge do thou teach me; for in thy commandments do I believe.

67 Before I was afflicted[a] I was in error; but now I observe thy saying.

68 Thou art good, and doing good: teach me thy statutes.

69 The presumptuous have invented falsehoods against me; but I will with all my heart indeed keep thy precepts.

70 Gross as fat is their heart; but I take truly delight in thy law.

71 It is well for me that I have been afflicted, in order that I might learn thy statutes.

72 Better is unto me the law of thy mouth than thousands of gold and silver.

י YOD.

73 ¶ Thy hands have made me and established me: give me understanding, that I may learn thy commandments.

74 Those that fear thee will see me and be rejoiced; because I have waited for thy word.

75 I know, O LORD, that thy decrees are righteous, and that in faithfulness thou hast afflicted me.

76 Let, I pray thee, thy kindness come to comfort me, according to thy promise unto thy servant.

77 Let thy mercies come unto me, that I may live; for thy law is my delight.

78 Let the presumptuous be made ashamed; because they have without a cause dealt perversely with me; but I will indeed meditate on thy precepts.

79 Let those that fear thee return unto me, and those that know thy testimonies.

80 Let my heart be entire in thy statutes, in order that I may not be put to shame.

כ CAPH.

81 ¶ My soul ardently desireth for thy salvation: for thy word do I wait.

82 My eyes look eagerly for thy promise, saying, When wilt thou comfort me?

83 For I am become like a bottle[b] in the smoke: (yet) do I not forget thy statutes.

84 How many are the days of thy servant? when wilt thou execute justice on my persecutors?

85 The presumptuous have dug pits[c] for me, which is not in accordance with thy law.

86 All thy commandments are founded on truth: without cause they persecute me; help thou me.

87 But little was wanting that they had consumed me upon earth; but I have truly not forsaken thy precepts.

88 According to thy kindness give me life, that I may observe the testimony of thy mouth.

ל LAMED.

89 ¶ To eternity, O LORD, standeth firm thy word with the heavens.[d]

90 Unto all generations endureth thy faithfulness: thou hast established the earth, and she standeth.

91 According[e] to thy ordinances they exist this day; for all are thy servants.

92 Unless thy law had been my delights, I should long since have been lost in my affliction.

93 Never will I forget thy precepts; for with them thou hast kept me alive.

94 Thine am I, save me; for thy precepts have I sought.

95 Wicked men have waited for me to destroy me; (but) I will reflect on thy testimonies.

96 Of all perfection have I seen the end; (but) thy commandment is exceedingly extended.

[a] Rashi, "before I had studied them;" but others, as in the text, that affliction taught the Psalmist the value of religion.

[b] i. e. Shrivelled up like a leathern water-bottle hung up to dry in the smoke.

[c] As wild beasts are taken in pits slightly covered over.

[d] Redak, who comments, "that God having said the heavens should exist, they will endure for ever."

[e] Redak, "to obey thy ordinances."

מ MEM.

97 ¶ Oh how do I love thy law! all the day is it my meditation.

98 Wiser than my enemy doth thy commandment[a] make me; for it is perpetually with me.

99 Above all my teachers have I obtained intelligence; for thy testimonies are my meditation.

100 More than the elders do I possess understanding; because thy precepts do I keep.

101 From every evil path have I withholden my feet, in order that I might observe thy word.

102 From thy ordinances have I not departed; for thou hast instructed me.

103 How much sweeter are to my palate thy sayings than honey to my mouth!

104 Through thy precepts shall I obtain understanding: therefore do I hate every path of falsehood.

נ NUN.

105 ¶ A lamp unto my feet is thy word, and a light unto my path.

106 I have sworn, and I will perform it, to observe thy righteous ordinances.

107 I am afflicted exceedingly much: O LORD, revive me, according to thy word.

108 Receive in favour the freewill-offerings of my mouth, I beseech thee, O LORD, and teach me thy ordinances.

109 My life is in my hand[b] continually: yet thy law do I not forget.

110 The wicked have laid a snare for me: yet have I not erred from thy precepts.

111 I have taken thy testimonies as a heritage to eternity; for they are the joy of my heart.

112 I have inclined my heart to perform thy statutes always, in all their ways.

ס SAMECH.

113 ¶ Those of divided thoughts I hate; but thy law do I love.

114 My shelter and my shield art thou: for thy word do I wait.

115 Depart from me, ye evildoers, that I may keep the commandments of God.

116 Uphold me according to thy promise, that I may live, and let me not be made ashamed of my hope.

117 Support me that I may be placed in safety, and I will direct my regard unto thy statutes continually.

118 Thou hast trodden down all that erringly stray from thy statutes; for falsehood is their deceit.

119 Like dross dost thou put away all the wicked of the earth: therefore do I love thy testimonies.

120 My flesh trembleth shudderingly from dread of thee, and of thy decrees am I afraid.

ע 'AYIN.

121 ¶ I have executed justice and righteousness: leave me not to those who oppress me.

122 Protect[c] thy servant for good: let not the presumptuous oppress me.

123 My eyes look eagerly for thy salvation, and for thy righteous promise.

124 Deal with thy servant according to thy kindness, and thy statutes do thou teach me.

125 I am thy servant: give me understanding, that I may know thy testimonies.

126 It is time to act[d] for the LORD: they have broken[e] thy law.

127 Therefore do I love thy commandments more than gold, and more than fine gold.

128 Therefore do I esteem all thy precepts in all things as right: every path of falsehood do I hate.

פ PE.

129 ¶ Wonderful are thy testimonies: therefore doth my soul keep them.

130 The opening[f] of thy words giveth light, it giveth understanding unto the simple.

131 I opened my mouth, and panted for breath; because for thy commandments did I long.

[a] Aben Ezra explains the plural in the original as, "every one of thy commandments."

[b] i. e. Is in constant danger.

[c] Rashi, "protect," or "deliver." Lit. "to guarantee," i. e. against evil. Redak, "give delight to."

[d] Jonathan. Redak, "It is time for the LORD to act," i. e. that he might dispense punishment.

[e] "Broken," as in Gen. xvii. 14. Eng. ver., "made void," which man cannot do except by transgressing.

[f] Philippson, "The exposition," i. e. what they teach

132 Turn thou unto me, and be gracious unto me, as is thy wont[a] unto those that love thy name.

133 My steps establish thou through thy promise, and suffer not any wrong to have dominion over me.

134 Deliver me from the oppression of man, and I will observe thy precepts.

135 Let thy face shine upon thy servant, and teach me thy statutes.

136 Streams of water have run down my eyes; because they[b] had not observed thy law.

צ TZADDE.

137 ¶ Righteous art thou, O LORD, and upright are thy decrees.

138 Thou hast commanded thy testimonies, as righteous and faithful exceedingly.

139 My zeal destroyeth me; because my assailants have forgotten thy words.

140 Thy promise is greatly refined, and thy servant loveth it.

141 I am little and despised: yet thy precepts have I not forgotten.

142 Thy righteousness is an everlasting righteousness, and thy law is the truth.

143 Distress and trouble have overtaken me: (yet) are thy commandments my delights.

144 Righteous are thy testimonies for everlasting: give me understanding, that I may live.

ק KOPH.

145 ¶ I have called with all my heart: answer me, O LORD: thy statutes will I keep.

146 I have called on thee, save me, and I will observe thy testimonies.

147 I come before thee in the dawn of morning, and cry: for thy word do I wait.

148 My eyes are awake before the night-watches, that I may meditate in thy saying.

149 Hear my voice according to thy kindness: O LORD, according to thy decree do thou grant me life.

150 They that pursue mischievous devices draw nigh: from thy law are they far.

151 Near art thou, O LORD; and all thy commandments are the truth.

152 Of old already I knew of thy testimonies; because for eternity hast thou founded them.

ר RESH.

153 Look on my affliction, and release me; for thy law have I not forgotten.

154 Plead my cause, and deliver me: according to thy promise do thou revive me.

155 Far from the wicked is salvation; because thy statutes have they not sought for.

156 Thy mercies are abundant, O LORD; according to thy decrees do thou revive me.

157 Many are my persecutors and my assailants: yet from thy testimonies do I not turn away.

158 I beheld the treacherous, and felt disgust; because they observed not thy saying.

159 Behold that I love thy precepts: O LORD, according to thy kindness do thou revive me.

160 The summit[c] of thy word is truth: and the whole of thy righteous judgment endureth for ever.

ש SHIN.

161 ¶ Princes have persecuted me without a cause; but of thy word standeth my heart in dread.

162 I am rejoiced over thy promise, as one that findeth great spoil.

163 Falsehood I hate and abhor; but thy law do I love.

164 Seven times in the day do I praise thee because of thy righteous decrees.

165 Abundant peace have they who love thy law; and there is nothing that causeth them to stumble.

166 I have hoped for thy salvation, O LORD, and thy commandments have I fulfilled.

167 My soul hath observed thy testimonies, and I love them exceedingly.

168 I have observed thy precepts and thy testimonies; because all my ways are before thee.

ת TAV.

169 ¶ Let my entreaty come near before thee, O LORD: according to thy word grant me understanding.

[a] Sachs, "as is proper for," &c.

[b] Aben Ezra refers this to the eyes; or renders it "men."

[c] Sachs. Herxheimer, "the sum." (Exod. xxx. 12.) Redak, "From the beginning is thy word true."

170 Let my supplication come before thee: according to thy promise do thou deliver me.

171 My lips shall utter[a] praise; because[b] thou wilt teach me thy statutes.

172 My tongue shall speak loudly of thy promise; for all thy commandments are righteous.

173 Let thy hand be (ready) to help me; for thy precepts have I chosen.

174 I have longed for thy salvation, O LORD; and thy law is my delights.

175 Let my soul live, and it shall praise thee: and let thy decrees help me.

176 I have gone erringly astray like a lost sheep: seek thy servant; for thy commandments have I not forgotten.

PSALM CXX.

1 ¶ A song of the degrees.[c] Unto the LORD, when I was in distress, did I call, and he hath answered me.

2 O LORD, deliver my soul from lips of falsehood, and from a tongue of deceit.

3 What will (God)[d] give unto thee? or what will he add unto thee, thou tongue of deceit?

4 Sharpened arrows of the mighty, with coals of the broom-bush.

5 Wo is me, that I sojourn in Meshech,[e] that I dwell in the tents of Kedar!

6 Too long for herself hath my soul dwelt with him that hateth peace.

7 I am for peace; but when I speak, they are for war.

PSALM CXXI.

1 ¶ A song for the degrees. I lift up my eyes unto the mountains: whence shall come my help?

2 My help is from the LORD, the maker of heaven and earth.

3 He will not suffer thy foot to slip: thy keeper doth not slumber.

4 Behold, he slumbereth not, and he sleepeth not—the keeper of Israel.

5 The LORD is thy keeper: the LORD is thy shade, he is on thy right hand.

6 By day the sun shall not strike thee, nor the moon by night.

7 The LORD will guard thee against all evil: he will guard thy soul.

8 The LORD will guard thy going out and thy coming in from this time forth and for evermore.

PSALM CXXII.

1 ¶ A song of the degrees by David. I was rejoiced when they said unto me, Unto the house of the LORD let us go.

2 Our feet are now standing within thy gates, O Jerusalem!

3 Jerusalem, which art built as a city wherein all associate together.[f]

4 For thither go up the tribes of the LORD, as a testimony[g] for Israel, to give thanks unto the name of the LORD.

5 For there are placed chairs for (giving) judgment, the chairs for the house of David.—

6 Pray ye for the peace of Jerusalem: may those that love thee prosper.

7 May there be peace within thy walls, prosperity[h] within thy palaces.

8 For the sake of my brethren and my friends, let me now speak, Peace be within thee.

9 For the sake of the house of the LORD our God, will I seek thy good.

PSALM CXXIII.

1 ¶ A song of the degrees. Unto thee do I lift up my eyes, O thou that dwellest in the heavens.

2 Behold, as the eyes of servants are directed unto the hand of their masters, as the eyes of a maiden unto the hand of her

[a] Rashi. Mendelssohn, "flow with."

[b] Aben Ezra, "when thou wilt teach," &c.

[c] The most reasonable signification of the term seems to be that these Psalms were sung by the people on their pilgrimages to Jerusalem at the festivals; hence Philippson, "A song for the pilgrimages."

[d] So does Rashi, after one opinion, translate and connect these two verses; and they mean, that deceit will at length meet with the heaviest retribution, as the arrow shot unfailingly by the arm of a hero, and the unquenchable coals of the Rothem (broom-bush).

[e] Rashi, "This is the complaint of the congregation of Israel, who have dwelt in many banishments." Meshech, in Armenia, is the north; Kedar, in Arabia, the south.

[f] Redak, meaning, where all the tribes of Israel meet. Sachs, "like an entirely compact city." Philippson, "which is all closed in together," i. e. with walls, and yet full of beautiful structures.

[g] To acknowledge that they are God's people and be their God. Philippson, "as an institution," a "law for Israel."

[h] Philippson, "quiet." Sachs, "security."

mistress: thus are our eyes directed unto the LORD our God, until he be gracious unto us.

3 Be gracious unto us, O LORD! be gracious unto us; for we are overburdened with contempt.[a]

4 Our soul is overburdened with the scorn of those who are at ease, with the contempt of the proud oppressors.

PSALM CXXIV.

1 ¶ A song of the degrees by David. If it had not been the LORD who was for us, so should Israel say;

2 If it had not been the LORD who was for us, when men rose up against us:

3 Then would they have swallowed us up alive, when their wrath was kindled against us;

4 Then would the waters have overwhelmed us, the stream would have passed over our soul;

5 Then would have passed over our soul the presumptuous waters.

6 Blessed be the LORD, who hath not given us up as a prey to their teeth.

7 Our soul is escaped like a bird out of the snare of the fowlers: the snare is broken, and we are escaped.

8 Our help is in the name of the LORD, the maker of heaven and earth.

PSALM CXXV.

1 ¶ A song of the degrees. Those who trust in the LORD are like mount Zion, which will not be moved, which endureth for ever.

2 Jerusalem hath mountains round about her: and (so) is the LORD round about his people, from this time forth and for evermore.

3 For the sceptre of wickedness shall not rest upon the lot of the righteous: in order[b] that the righteous may not stretch forth their hands unto wrong-doing.

4 Do good, O LORD, unto the good, and to those that are upright in their hearts.

5 But as for those who turn aside unto their crooked ways, them will the LORD drive away with[c] the workers of wickedness; but peace shall be upon Israel.

PSALM CXXVI.

1 ¶ A song of the degrees. When the LORD bringeth[d] back again the captivity[e] of Zion, then shall we be like dreamers.

2 Then shall our mouth be filled with laughter, and our tongue with singing: then shall they say among the nations, Great things hath the LORD done for these.

3 Great things would the LORD have done for us, (whereat) we should be joyful.

4 Bring back again, O LORD, our captivity, like rivulets in arid land.[f]

5 Those that sow in tears shall reap with joyful song.

6 He goeth forth indeed and weepeth, that beareth the seed for sowing; but he will surely come with joyful song when he beareth (home) his sheaves.

PSALM CXXVII.

1 ¶ A song of the degrees for Solomon. Unless the LORD do build the house, in vain labour they that build it on it: unless the LORD guard the city, in vain is the watchman wakeful.

2 It is in vain for you to be early in rising, to be late in sitting up, eating the bread of painful toils; (for) so doth he give unto his beloved during sleep.[g]

3 Lo, children are an inheritance from the LORD: a reward is the fruit of the body.

4 Like arrows in the hand of a mighty man, so are the children of youth.[h]

5 Happy is the man that hath his quiver filled with them: they shall not be put to shame, when they do speak with the enemies in the gate.[i]

[a] Lit. "for much are we satisfied of contempt."

[b] Rashi, "because the righteous do not," &c.

[c] Jonathan. Others, "them, the workers of wickedness, will the LORD drive away."

[d] Rashi conceives, and after him Philippson, this Psalm to be a petition for the return of the captives; and so it is here translated.

[e] Jonathan. Philippson, שיבה as "those who return."

[f] Rashi. Lit. "in the south;" some explain this to mean that the exiles are to return just as the southern torrents are filled with the winter's rain. Philippson more generally, that the dry land might obtain water, the want of which makes it barren; similar to which will the return of the exiles be in their effect on the world.

[g] i. e. While the worldly toil early and late, God gives his blessing to the righteous while they yet sleep; hence the folly of too much toil with nothing but self-reliance.

[h] i. e. Children born while the parents are yet in vigorous age.

[i] i. e. When they defend their parents before the judges.

PSALM CXXVIII.

1 ¶ A song of the degrees. Happy is every one that feareth the LORD, that walketh in his ways.

2 When thou eatest the labour of thy hands: (then) wilt thou be happy, and it shall be well with thee.

3 Thy wife is (then) as a fruitful vine in the recesses of thy house: thy children, like olive-plants round about thy table.

4 Behold, truly thus shall be blessed the man that feareth the LORD.

5 May the LORD bless thee out of Zion: and see thou the happiness of Jerusalem all the days of thy life.

6 And see thou thy children's children: may[a] there be peace upon Israel.

PSALM CXXIX.

1 ¶ A song of the degrees. Many a time have they assailed me from my youth, so should Israel say;

2 Many a time have they assailed me from my youth: yet have they not prevailed against me.

3 Upon my back have ploughmen ploughed; they have drawn long their furrows:

4 (Yet) the LORD is righteous; he hath cut asunder the cords of the wicked.

5 May all be put to shame and turned backward that hate Zion;

6 May they become like the grass of the roofs, which withereth before it is pulled[b] up;

7 Wherewith the mower filleth not his hand; nor his arm[c] he that bindeth sheaves.

8 Nor do they who pass by say, The blessing of the LORD be with you: we bless you in the name of the LORD.

PSALM CXXX.

1 ¶ A song of the degrees. Out of the depths have I called thee, O LORD.

2 Lord, listen to my voice: let thy ears be attentive to the voice of my supplications.

3 If thou, LORD, shouldst treasure up iniquities, O Lord, who would be able to stand?

4 But with thee there is forgiveness, in order that thou mayest be feared.

5 I hope for the LORD, my soul doth hope, and for his word do I wait.

6 My soul (waiteth) for the Lord, more than they that watch for the morning expect[d] the morning.

7 Let Israel wait for the LORD; for with the LORD there is kindness, and with him is redemption in abundance;

8 And he will surely redeem Israel from all his iniquities.

PSALM CXXXI.

1 ¶ A song of the degrees by David. O LORD, my heart was not haughty, nor were my eyes lofty: neither have I walked after matters too great, or those too wonderful for me.

2 Surely I have pacified and stilled my soul, like the suckling[e] on its mother's breast: like a suckling is in me my soul.

3 Let Israel wait for the LORD from this time forth and for ever more.

PSALM CXXXII.

1 ¶ A song of the degrees. Remember, O LORD, unto David all his afflictions;

2 How he swore unto the LORD; how he vowed unto the mighty One of Jacob:

3 Surely, I will not enter into the tent of my house, nor ascend the couch of my repose;

4 I will not grant any sleep to my eyes, nor to my eyelids any slumber:

5 Until I shall have found out a place for the LORD, a dwelling-place for the mighty One of Jacob.

6 "Lo, we heard of it at Ephratah: we met with it in the fields of the forest:[f] .

[a] Jonathan. Redak, "(and see) peace over Israel."

[b] Rashi. Others, "before it groweth."

[c] Rashi, "the upper arm," wherein sheaves are carried.

[d] Sforno. Others simply, "than watchers for the morning, watchers for the morning;" the repetition is then to denote the ardency of the waiting for the morning after watching sleeplessly the whole night.

[e] Rashi, and after him Mendelssohn and Philippson. Redak and others take גמול in the sense of "weaned," and say, "As the child just weaned is fearful of walking without its mother's support, so does the Psalmist lean on God for help."

[f] Verses 6 and 7 are regarded as the saying of the people in reply to the first verses, containing the words of David which are continued in 8–10. "The fields of the forest" are the highlands of Lebanon. The verse then means, the people declare they heard of the selection of Zion at Bethlechem-Ephratah in the south and on Lebanon on the north; hence, they wish to go thither to see the sanctuary.

7 Let us then go into his dwelling; let us prostrate ourselves before his footstool."

8 Arise, O LORD, unto thy resting-place: thou, and the ark of thy strength.

9 Let thy priests be clothed with righteousness; and let thy pious servants shout for joy.

10 For the sake of David thy servant turn not away the face[a] of thy anointed.

11 The LORD hath sworn unto David in truth; he will not turn from it: "From the fruit of thy body will I set (some one) on the throne to succeed thee.

12 If thy children will observe my covenant and this my testimony which I teach them: then also shall their children sit for evermore upon the throne to succeed thee."

13 For the LORD hath made choice of Zion: he hath desired it as a habitation for himself.

14 This is my resting-place for evermore: here will I dwell; for I have desired it.

15 Her provision will I bless abundantly: her needy ones will I satisfy with bread.

16 And her priests will I clothe with salvation: and her pious ones shall shout aloud for joy.

17 There will I cause to grow a horn unto David: I arrange a lamp for my anointed.

18 His enemies will I clothe with shame; but upon himself shall his crown shine brilliantly.[b]

PSALM CXXXIII.

1 ¶ A song of the degrees by David. Behold, how good and how pleasant it is when brethren[c] dwell closely together (in union)!

2 (It is) like the precious oil[d] upon the head, running down upon the beard, yea, Aaron's beard, which runneth down upon the upper border of his garments;

3 Like the dew of Chermon,[e] running down upon the mountains of Zion; for there hath the LORD commanded the blessing, even life for evermore.

PSALM CXXXIV.

1 ¶ A song of the degrees. Arise![f] bless ye the LORD, all ye servants of the LORD that stand in the house of the LORD in the nights.

2 Lift up your hands toward the sanctuary, and bless the LORD.

3 May the LORD bless thee out of Zion, he that is the maker of heaven and earth.

PSALM CXXXV.

1 ¶ Hallelujah. Praise ye the name of the LORD; praise him, O ye servants of the LORD;

2 Ye that stand in the house of the LORD, in the courts of the house of our God.

3 Hallelujah; for the LORD is good: sing praises unto his name; for it is lovely.

4 For Jacob hath the LORD chosen unto himself, Israel, as his peculiar treasure.

5 For I well know that the LORD is great, and that our Lord is above all gods.

6 Whatsoever the LORD willeth, hath he done in the heavens, and on the earth, in the seas, and in all the deeps.

7 He causeth clouds to ascend from the ends of the earth; he maketh lightnings with the rain; he bringeth forth the wind out of his treasuries.

8 (He it is) who smote the first-born of Egypt, both of man and of cattle;

9 Who sent signs and wonderful tokens into the midst of thee, O Egypt, against Pharaoh, and against all his servants;

10 Who smote many nations, and slew mighty kings;

11 Sichon the king of the Emorites, and Og the king of Bashan, and all the kingdoms of Canaan;

12 And gave their land as an inheritance, an inheritance unto Israel his people.

13 O LORD,[g] thy name (endureth) for ever: O LORD, thy memorial is throughout all generations.

[a] i. e. Refuse not the prayer of Solomon who built the temple. [b] Rashi. Others, "shall blossom."

[c] i. e. The Israelites, who are brothers in faith. Jonathan, "Zion and Jerusalem." Aben Ezra, "the priests," the chief of whom is next mentioned.

[d] Aaron, symbolical for all the high-priests, was anointed by having oil poured upon his head: this ran down naturally upon his beard, which the Asiatics perfume, and thence to the upper hem of his garments; thus making all penetrated with the sweet odour. The comparison explains itself.

[e] Some wish to read שׂיאן Sion, a branch of Chermon, instead of ציון Zion. Redak, "And as the dew that descendeth," &c. Others, "the clouds that are gathered at Chermon let out their dew on the mountains of Zion," which appears to be the best exposition. The abundance of dew in summer compensates for the want of rain in Palestine.

[f] הנה generally rendered with "behold," or "lo," is a sign of exclamation; here, a call to praise; hence, "arise."

[g] Philippson, "The Eternal is thy name for ever; the Eternal is thy memorial," &c.

14 For the LORD will espouse the cause of his people, and concerning his servants will he bethink himself.

15 The idols of the nations are silver and gold, the work of the hands of men.

16 Mouths they have, but they speak not; eyes they have, but they see not;

17 Ears they have, but they hear not; neither is there any breath in their mouth.

18 Like them are those that make them, every one that trusteth in them.

19 O house of Israel, bless ye the LORD; O house of Aaron, bless ye the LORD;

20 O house of Levi, bless ye the LORD; ye that fear the LORD, bless the LORD.

21 Blessed be the LORD out of Zion, even he that resideth at Jerusalem. Hallelujah.

PSALM CXXXVI.

1 ¶ O give thanks unto the LORD; for he is good; for to eternity endureth his kindness.

2 O give thanks unto the God of gods; for to eternity endureth his kindness.

3 O give thanks to the Lord of lords; for to eternity endureth his kindness.

4 To him who doth great wonders alone; for to eternity endureth his kindness.

5 To him that made the heavens with understanding; for to eternity endureth his kindness.

6 To him that stretched out the earth above the waters; for to eternity endureth his kindness.

7 To him that made great lights; for to eternity endureth his kindness;

8 The sun for the rule by day; for to eternity endureth his kindness;

9 The moon and stars for the rule by night; for to eternity endureth his kindness.

10 To him that smote Egypt in their first-born; for to eternity endureth his kindness;

11 And brought out Israel from the midst of them; for to eternity endureth his kindness;

12 With a strong hand, and with an outstretched arm; for to eternity endureth his kindness.

13 To him who divided the Red Sea into parts; for to eternity endureth his kindness;

14 And caused Israel to pass through the midst of it; for to eternity endureth his kindness;

15 But overthrew Pharaoh and his host in the Red Sea; for to eternity endureth his kindness.

16 To him who led his people through the wilderness; for to eternity endureth his kindness.

17 To him who smote great kings; for to eternity endureth his kindness;

18 And slew mighty kings; for to eternity endureth his kindness;

19 Even Sichon the king of the Emorites; for to eternity endureth his kindness;

20 And 'Og the king of Bashan; for to eternity endureth his kindness;

21 And gave their land as an inheritance; for to eternity endureth his kindness;

22 As an inheritance unto Israel his servant; for to eternity endureth his kindness;

23 Who hath in our low estate remembered us; for to eternity endureth his kindness;

24 And hath freed us from our assailants; for to eternity endureth his kindness;

25 Who giveth food unto all flesh; for to eternity endureth his kindness.

26 O give thanks unto the God of the heavens; for to eternity endureth his kindness.

PSALM CXXXVII.

1 ¶ By the rivers of Babylon, there we sat, and we also wept when we remembered Zion.

2 Upon the willows in her midst had we hung up our harps.

3 For there our captors demanded of us the words of song; and those that mocked[a] us, joy, (saying,) Sing for us one of the songs of Zion.

4 How should we sing the song of the LORD on the soil of the stranger?

5 If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, may my right hand forget—.[b]

6 May my tongue cleave to my palate if I

[a] Rashi, meaning those heartless conquerors who asked the captives for one of their joyous national hymns. Jonathan, "that robbed us." Saehs and others, "oppressors."

[b] i. e. After Redak, how to play on the harp. One opinion quoted by Aben Ezra, "may my right hand wither," or "forget" to render its service.

do not remember thee: if I recall[a] not Jerusalem at the head of my joy.

7 Remember, O LORD, unto the children of Edom the day of Jerusalem; who said, Rase it, rase it, even to her very foundation.

8 O daughter of Babylon, who art wasted;[b] happy he, that repayeth thee thy recompense for what thou hast done to us.

9 Happy he, that seizeth and dasheth thy babes against the rock.

PSALM CXXXVIII.

1 ¶ By David. I will praise thee with my whole heart: before (thee), O God,[c] will I sing praise unto thee.

2 I will bow myself down before thy holy temple, and I will thank thy name for thy kindness and for thy truth; for thou hast magnified above all thy name thy promise.[d]

3 On the day when I called didst thou answer me, and raise[e] me up with strength in my soul.

4 All the kings of the earth will give thanks unto thee, O LORD, when they hear the promises of thy mouth.

5 And they will sing on the ways of the LORD; for great is the glory of the LORD.

6 For exalted is the LORD, yet doth he regard the lowly; but the proud he punisheth[f] from afar.

7 If I should walk in the midst of distress, thou wilt revive me: against the wrath of my enemies wilt thou stretch forth thy hand, and thy right hand will save me.

8 The LORD will accomplish (all) in my behalf; O LORD, thy kindness endureth for ever: the works of thy own hands do not abandon.

PSALM CXXXIX.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, by David, a psalm. O LORD! thou hast searched me through, and thou knowest (me).

2 Thou indeed knowest my sitting down and my rising up, thou understandest my thinking while yet[g] afar off.

3 My walking and my lying down hast thou limited, and with all my ways art thou acquainted.

4 For, while there is not a word on my tongue, lo, thou, O LORD, knowest it entirely.

5 Behind and before hast thou hedged me in, and thou placest upon me thy hand.

6 Too wonderful is such knowledge for me: it is too exalted, I cannot attain unto it.

7 Whither shall I go from thy spirit? or whither shall I flee away from thy presence?

8 If I should ascend into heaven, thou art there; and if I should make my bed in the nether world, behold, thou art there.

9 If I should lift up the wings of the morning-dawn, if I should dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea:

10 Even there would thy hand lead me, and thy right hand would seize hold of me.

11 If I said, Surely darkness shall enshroud me, and into night (be turned) the light about me:

12 Yet even darkness can obscure nothing from thee; but the night will shine like the day; both the darkness and the light are alike (to thee).

13 For thou possessest my reins: thou hast covered me in my mother's womb.

14 I will thank thee therefor, that I am (so) fearfully (and) wonderfully made: wonderful are thy works; and that my soul knoweth right well.

15 My being was not concealed from thee, when I was made in secret, when I was (so to say) embroidered in the lowest parts of the earth.

16 My undeveloped substance did thy eyes

[a] Rashi. Philippson, "if I let not Jerusalem transcend the summit of my joy."

[b] Jonathan understands the word שׁדוּדה as an active participle, "plunderer." Redak, "that is to be destroyed," or "doomed."

[c] Mendelssohn. Rashi, "before the chiefs will I sing praises unto thee."

[d] The fulfilment of the promises then witnessed exceeded, in the eyes of the Psalmist, all what had been told of God before: "name," equal to "fame." Aben Ezra, "thou hast magnified over all (things) thy name (and) thy promise."

[e] Rashi; or, "madest me great." Aben Ezra, "strengthenedst." Sachs, "gavest me courage, power of victory to my soul."

[f] Jonathan, with the addition, "from (the heavens) afar off." Redak, "and being high, he maketh (his greatness) known from afar." Others, "the proud he knoweth afar off."

[g] Redak: i. e. before the thought was yet framed. Rashi and Jonathan, "thou understandest from afar how to draw me into companionship with thee." רעי from רֵעַ "friend," "companion." Others, as רעיון "thinking."

see; and in thy book were all of them written down—the days[a] which have been formed, while yet not one of them was here.

17 And how precious are unto me thy thoughts, O God! how mightily great is their sum!

18 Should I count them, they would be more numerous than the sand: I awake,[b] and I am still with thee.

19 If thou wouldst but slay the wicked, O God! and ye men of blood, depart from me.

20 Who speak of thee for a wicked end, thy enemies, that bear (thy name) for a vain purpose.

21 Behold, those that hate thee I ever hate, O LORD; and for those that rise up against thee do I feel loathing.

22 With the utmost hatred do I hate them: enemies are they become unto me.

23 Search me through, O God, and know my heart; probe me, and know my thoughts:

24 And see if there be a way of perverseness[c] in me, and lead me on the way of eternity.

PSALM CXL.

1 ¶ To the chief musician, a psalm of David.

2 Deliver me, O LORD, from an evil man; from a man of violence do thou keep me;

3 Who think over evil (resolves) in their heart, (who) every day are gathered together for war.

4 They have sharpened their tongues like a serpent: the poison of the adder is under their lips. Selah.

5 Preserve me, O LORD, from the hands of the wicked; from the man of violence do thou keep me, who think of overthrowing my steps.

6 The proud have hidden a snare for me, and cords; they have spread a net by the side of (my) track; traps have they set for me. Selah.

7 I have said unto the LORD, Thou art my God: give ear, O LORD, to the voice of my supplications.

8 O thou Eternal LORD, the strength of my salvation, thou hast covered my head on the day of battle.[d]

9 Grant not, O LORD, the longings of the wicked; suffer not his wicked device to succeed: lest they exalt themselves. Selah.

10 (As for) the heads[e] of those that encompass me about, let the mischief of their own lips cover them.

11 Let burning coals be cast upon them: let them be thrown into the fire; into deep pits,[f] that they rise not up again.

12 Let not the man of an (evil) tongue be established on the earth: may evil hunt down the violent man to his downfall.

13 I know that the LORD will procure right for the afflicted, (and) justice for the needy.

14 Surely the righteous shall give thanks unto thy name: the upright shall dwell before thy presence.

PSALM CXLI.

1 ¶ A psalm of David. O LORD, I call thee, hasten unto me: give ear unto my voice, when I call unto thee.

2 May my prayer be valued as incense before thee, the lifting up[g] of my hands, as the evening offering.

3 Set, O LORD, a watch unto my mouth: keep a guard at the door of my lips.

4 Permit not my heart to incline after any evil thing, to practise deeds in wickedness with men that are doers of wrong: and let me not eat of their dainties.

5 If the righteous strike me, it is a kindness; and if he reprove me, it is (as) oil poured on the head,[h] my head shall not refuse it; for yet my prayer also (is offered) in their sufferings.[i]

6 Are their judges fallen down through

[a] Rashi, who explains, "All the acts of man and the end of all days are known though not one of them hath yet existed." But Redak supplies "limb:" "all my limbs were written down, coming as they should in later times, while not one of them yet existed."

[b] Aben Ezra; but Rashi, "I come to the end קץ of generations, and this one is still with thee."

[c] Rashi and Redak. Others, "the way of pain," trouble.

[d] Lit. "arms," i. e. when arms are wielded—the battle.

[e] Rashi, "The troop of those who endeavour to turn me away from thee." ראש as "the sum," or "the collective body."

[f] Sachs, after an Arabic root, "floods." Rashi, "battles."

[g] Philippson, "the gift of my hands."

[h] i. e. With which the head is anointed. (See Ps. cxxxiii. 2.)

[i] This verse is rendered after Philippson, who nearly follows Jonathan, who, however, joins, "and let him re-means of a rock:[a] then will they listen to my words; for they are pleasant.

7 As when one cutteth in and splitteth open the earth:[b] so are our bones scattered for the mouth of the grave.

8 For unto thee, O Eternal Lord, are my eyes directed; in thee do I trust: pour not out my life.

9 Guard me from the power of the snare which they have laid for me, and the traps of the wrong-doers.

10 Let the wicked fall into their own nets, altogether—while I pass safely by.

PSALM CXLII.

1 ¶ A Maskil of David, when he was in the cave. A prayer.

2 With my voice I cry unto the LORD: with my voice I make supplication unto the LORD.

3 I pour out before him my grief: my distress I recite before him.

4 When my spirit was overwhelmed within me—and thou knowest well my path—on the way whereon I desired to walk they had secretly laid a snare for me.

5 Look[c] to the right, and behold, yea, there is no man that recogniseth me: (every) refuge is lost to me; there is no one that careth[d] for my soul.

6 I cried unto thee, O LORD: I said, Thou art my refuge, my portion in the land of life.

7 Listen unto my entreaty; for I am very miserable: deliver me from my pursuers; for they are too mighty for me.

8 Bring forth out of prison my soul, that I may thank thy name: with me shall the righteous crown themselves,[e] when thou wilt deal bountifully with me.

PSALM CXLIII.

1 ¶ A psalm of David. O LORD, hear my prayer, give ear to my supplications: in thy faithfulness answer me, in thy righteousness.

2 And enter not into judgment with thy servant; for no living man can be regarded righteous before thee.

3 For the enemy hath pursued my soul; he hath crushed to the ground my life; he hath made me dwell in darkness, as those that are dead eternally.[f]

4 And my spirit within me is overwhelmed: in my bosom is my heart astounded.

5 I remember the days of olden times; I meditate on all thy doings: on the work of thy hands do I reflect.

6 I spread forth my hands unto thee: my soul (longeth) for thee, as a thirsty land. Selah.

7 Hasten, answer me, O LORD, my spirit faileth: hide not thy face from me, that I may not become like those that go down into the pit.

8 Cause me to hear in the morning thy kindness; for in thee do I trust: cause me to know the way whereon I should walk; for unto thee do I lift up my soul.

9 Deliver me, O LORD, from my enemies: by thee do I seek shelter.

10 Teach me to do thy will; for thou art my God: thy spirit is good;[g] guide me on a level land.

11 For thy sake, O LORD, revive me: in thy righteousness bring forth out of distress my soul.

12 And in thy kindness destroy my enemies, and annihilate all the adversaries of my soul; for I am thy servant.

PSALM CXLIV.

1 ¶ By David. Blessed be the LORD my Rock, who exerciseth my hands for the battle, my fingers for the war:

2 My kindness, and my strong-hold; my high tower, and my deliverer; my shield, and he in whom I trust; who subdueth my people under me.

3 LORD, what is man, that thou takest cognizance of him! the son of a mortal, that thou regardest him!

prove me," to the first part of the verse, and continues, "the oil of the holy greatness shall not quit my head." Rashi renders the conclusion of the verse, "for I yet pray against their evil deeds—that I may not stumble through them."

[a] Philippson, after Rashi; the latter says "rock" means, the evil inclination, which is as hard as stone.

[b] Jonathan. Rashi, "As one cutteth (wood) and splitteth open the earth, so are our bones scattered to reach the door of death through the wickedness of the sinner." In this sense is also this verse rendered here.

[c] Redak, "I look—I behold."

[d] Lit. "inquireth for."

[e] Redak. Rashi and Jonathan, "for my sake will the righteous offer a crown to thee."

[f] Sforno, who comments, "as those who have no share in eternal life." Aben Ezra and Redak, "dead a long time."

[g] Sachs and others, "thy good spirit guide me," &c.

4 Man is like the breath: his days are like a passing shadow.

5 O LORD, bend thy heavens, and come down: touch the mountains, that they may smoke.

6 Cast forth lightning, and scatter them: send out thy arrows, and confound them.

7 Stretch out thy hands from above: rid me, and deliver me out of great waters, from the hand of the children of the stranger.

8 Whose mouth speaketh vanity, and whose right hand is the right hand of falsehood.

9 O God, a new song will I sing unto thee: upon the ten-stringed psaltery will I sing praises unto thee.

10 (Thou art he) that giveth victory unto kings: who riddeth David his servant from the evil-bringing sword.

11 Rid me, and deliver me from the hand of the children of the stranger, whose mouth speaketh vanity, and whose right hand is the right hand of falsehood.

12 So[a] that our sons may be like plants, grown up in their youth: our daughters, like corner-pillars, sculptured in the model[b] of a palace.

13 May our garners be full, furnishing all manner of store:[c] our sheep bringing forth thousands and ten thousands in our open pastures.

14 May our oxen be strong to labour: may there be no breach, nor migration, nor loud complaint in our streets.

15 Happy the people, that fare thus: happy the people, whose God is the LORD.

PSALM CXLV.

1 ¶ A hymn of praise by David. I will extol thee, my God, O king; and I will bless thy name for ever and ever.

2 Every day will I bless thee, and I will praise thy name for ever and ever.

3 Great is the LORD, and greatly praised, and his greatness is unsearchable.

4 One generation shall praise thy works to the other, and thy mighty acts shall they declare.

5 On the majestic glory of thy excellence, and on thy wondrous deeds will I meditate.[d]

6 And of the might of thy terrible acts shall men converse: and thy greatness will I relate.

7 The memorial of thy abundant goodness shall they loudly proclaim, and they shall sing joyfully of thy righteousness.

8 Gracious and merciful is the LORD, long-suffering, and great in kindness.

9 The LORD is good to all, and his mercies are over all his works.

10 All thy works shall thank thee, O LORD; and thy pious servants shall bless thee.

11 Of the glory of thy kingdom shall they converse, and of thy might shall they speak:

12 To make known to the sons of men his mighty acts, and the glorious majesty of his kingdom.

13 Thy kingdom is a kingdom of all eternities, and thy dominion (subsisteth) throughout all generations.

14 The LORD upholdeth all who are falling, and raiseth up all those who are bowed down.

15 The eyes of all wait hopefully upon thee, and thou givest them their food in its due season.

16 Thou openest thy hand, and satisfiest the desire of every living thing.

17 Righteous is the LORD in all his ways, and beneficent in all his works.

18 The LORD is nigh unto all those who call on him, to all who call on him in truth.

19 The desire of those who fear him will he fulfil, and their cry will he hear, and save them.

20 The LORD preserveth all those who love him; but all the wicked will he destroy.

21 The praise of the LORD shall my mouth speak: and let all flesh bless his holy name for ever and ever.

PSALM CXLVI.

1 ¶ Hallelujah. Praise, O my soul, the LORD.

2 I will praise the LORD throughout my life: I will sing praises unto my God while I have any being.

3 Put not your trust in princes, in the son of man, in whom there is no salvation.

[a] Others, "Truly our sons are," &c.

[b] Mendelssohn, "our daughters, like pillars, sculptured an ornament for a temple."

[c] Heb. "from kind to kind."

[d] Aben Ezra. Jonathan and Redak, "of thy wondrous acts will I speak."

4 When his spirit goeth forth, he returneth to his (native) earth: on that very day perish his thoughts.[a]

5 (But) happy is he who hath the God of Jacob for his help, whose hope is on the LORD his God;

6 Who hath made heaven, and earth, the sea, and all that is therein; who keepeth truth for ever;

7 Who executeth justice for the oppressed; who giveth bread to the hungry: the LORD looseneth the prisoners;

8 The LORD causeth the blind to see;[b] the LORD raiseth up those who are bowed down; the LORD loveth the righteous;

9 The LORD guardeth the strangers; the fatherless and widow he helpeth up; but the way of the wicked he maketh crooked.

10 The LORD will reign for ever, even thy God, O Zion, unto all generations. Hallelujah.

PSALM CXLVII.

1 ¶ Hallelujah; for it is good to sing praises unto our God; for it is comely;[c] (him) becometh praise.

2 The LORD buildeth up Jerusalem: the outcasts of Israel will he gather together;

3 He that healeth the broken-hearted, and bindeth up their hurts;

4 Who counteth[d] the number of the stars; who calleth them all by (their) names.

5 Great is our Lord, and abundant in power: his understanding is immeasurable.

6 The LORD helpeth up the meek: he bringeth down the wicked to the ground.

7 Lift up a song unto the LORD with thanksgiving; sing praises unto our God with the harp;

8 Who covereth the heaven with clouds, who prepareth rain for the earth, who causeth grass to grow upon the mountains;

9 Who giveth to the beast its food, to the young ravens which cry.[e]

10 Not in the strength of the horse hath he delight: nor in the (swiftness[f] of the) legs of man taketh he pleasure.

11 The LORD taketh pleasure in those that fear him, that wait for his kindness.

12 Glorify, O Jerusalem, the LORD: praise thy God, O Zion.

13 For he hath strengthened the bars of thy gates; he hath blessed thy children in the midst of thee;

14 He who bestoweth peace in thy borders, who satisfieth thee with the best of wheat;

15 He who sendeth forth his decree unto the earth: how swiftly speedeth his word along!

16 He who dispenseth snow like wool; who streweth about the hoarfrost like ashes;

17 He who casteth down his ice[g] like pieces: before his cold who can stand?

18 He sendeth out his word, and melteth them: he causeth his wind to blow, and waters run along.[h]

19 He declareth his word unto Jacob, his statutes and his ordinances unto Israel.

20 He hath not done so unto any nation: and (his) ordinances[i]—these they know not. Hallelujah.

PSALM CXLVIII.

1 ¶ Hallelujah. Praise ye the LORD from the heavens: praise him in the heights.

2 Praise ye him, all his angels: praise ye him, all his hosts.

3 Praise ye him, sun and moon: praise him, all ye stars of light.

4 Praise him, ye heavens of heavens, and ye waters that are above the heavens.

5 Let them praise the name of the LORD; for he commanded and they were created.

6 And he established them for ever and to eternity: he gave a decree which none shall transgress.[k]

7 Praise the LORD from the earth, ye seamonsters, and all deeps;

8 Fire, and hail; snow, and vapour; thou storm-wind that fulfillest his word;

[a] Rashi. Mendelssohn, "wisest resolves."

[b] Lit. "openeth the blind."

[c] Philippson, "because he (God) is lovely, praise becometh him." Sforno, "because he delighteth in kindness, therefore," &c.

[d] Mendelssohn, "fixeth," or "determineth."

[e] The ravens are said to throw their young out of the nest before they can fly; hence God's care for them.

[f] Jonathan, "not in the legs of running men hath he pleasure."

[g] Some, "hail," which comes down in pieces. Eng. ver., "morsels," i. e. of bread.

[h] Saehs, after Redak, "they run off in water."

[i] Philippson after Hengstenberg, "and laws of justice;" because heathen laws are a sad mixture of right and wrong.

[k] Rashi. Redak, "which shall not pass away."

9 Ye mountains, and all hills; fruitful trees, and all cedars;
10 Ye beasts, and all cattle; creeping things, and winged birds;
11 Ye kings of the earth, and all nations; ye princes, and all judges of the earth;
12 Young men and also virgins; old men, together with boys:—
13 Let them praise the name of the LORD; for his name alone is exalted; his majesty is above earth and heaven.
14 He also exalteth the horn of his people, a praise unto all his pious servants, (even) unto the children of Israel, a people near unto him. Hallelujah.

PSALM CXLIX.

1 ¶ Hallelujah. Sing unto the LORD a new song, his praise in the congregation of the pious.
2 Let Israel rejoice in his Maker: let the children of Zion exult in their King.
3 Let them praise his name in the dance: with the timbrel and harp let them sing praises unto him.
4 For the LORD taketh pleasure in his people: he will adorn the meek with salvation.
5 Let the pious be joyful in glory: let them sing aloud upon their couches.
6 The exalted praises of God are in their mouth, and a two-edged sword is in their hand;
7 To execute vengeance on the nations, and chastisements on the people;
8 To bind their kings with chains, and their nobles with fetters of iron;
9 To execute upon them the judgment (which is) written: this is an honour[a] for all his pious servants. Hallelujah.

PSALM CL.

1 ¶ Hallelujah. Praise ye God in his sanctuary: praise him in the expansion[b] of his power.
2 Praise him for his acts of might: praise him according to the abundance of his greatness.
3 Praise him with the blowing of the cornet: praise him with the psaltery and harp.
4 Praise him with the timbrel and dance: praise him with stringed instruments and pipe.
5 Praise him upon the clear-ringing cymbals: praise him upon the high-sounding cymbals.
6 Let every thing that hath breath[c] praise the LORD. Hallelujah.

THE BOOK OF PROVERBS.

ספר משלי.

CHAPTER I.

1 ¶ THE proverbs of Solomon the son of David, the king of Israel:
2 To know wisdom and instruction;[d] to comprehend the sayings of understanding;
3 To accept the instruction of intelligence, righteousness, and justice, and equity;
4 To give to the simple prudence, to the youth knowledge and discretion.
5 The wise will hear, and will increase (his) information; and the man of understanding will obtain wise counsels:[e]

[a] Sachs, "He (God) is an ornament to all," &c.
[b] Eng. ver., "firmament;" more correctly, "the expansion," i. e. of the atmosphere.
[c] Not alone by means of instruments made by men, but the creatures endowed with a soul themselves shall continually praise the LORD, to whom praise is due from all, for his mercy and goodness, which are without end or measure.
[d] מוסר is that species of knowledge proceeding from experience; lit. "correction," as it is often translated.
[e] From חבל "the pilot" of a ship; hence, Jonathan, מדברנותא "guidance," or such counsels as it is safe to 6 To understand a proverb, and a sage sentence;[a] the words of the wise, and their riddles.

7 The fear of the LORD is the beginning of knowledge: wisdom and instruction fools (alone) despise.

8 ¶ Hear, my son, the instruction of thy father, and cast not off the teaching of thy mother;

9 For a wreath of grace are they unto thy head, and chains for thy throat.

10 My son, if sinners wish to entice thee, consent thou not.

11 If they should say, Come with us, let us lie in wait for blood,[b] let us watch in concealment for the uselessly[c] innocent;

12 We will swallow them up like the grave alive; and the men of integrity,[d] as those that go down into the pit;

13 We shall find all (kinds of) precious wealth, we will fill our houses with booty;

14 Thy lot must thou cast in our midst; one purse shall be for us all:

15 My son, walk not thou on the way with them; withhold thy foot from their path;

16 For their feet run after evil, and they make haste to shed blood.

17 For uselessly is the net spread[e] out before the eyes of every winged bird:

18 While they lie in wait for their (own) blood; they watch in concealment for their (own) lives.

19 So are the paths of every one that is greedy after (unlawful) gain; it taketh away the life of those that own it.

20 Wisdom crieth loudly without; in the public places she uttereth her voice;

21 At the corner of noisy streets she calleth, at the entrances of gates; in the city she sayeth her speeches:

22 How long, ye simple ones, will ye love simplicity? and the scorners take their delight in scorning, and fools hate knowledge?

23 Turn back to my admonition: behold, I will pour[f] out my spirit unto you, I will make known my words unto you.

24 Whereas I called, and ye refused; I stretched out my hand, and no man was attentive;

25 And ye have set at nought all my counsel, and would not accept my admonition:

26 (Therefore) I also will truly laugh at your calamity; I will deride (you) when your terror cometh;

27 When your terror cometh like the tempest-cloud, and your calamity hasteneth like a whirlwind; when there come upon you distress and affliction.

28 Then will they call me, but I will not answer; they will seek me earnestly, but they shall not find me;

29 For the reason that they hated knowledge, and the fear of the LORD they did not choose;

30 (That) they would not attend to my counsel; (that) they rejected all my admonition.

31 Therefore shall they eat of the fruit of their own way, and from their own counsels shall they be satisfied.

32 For the defection of the simple will slay them, and the prosperity of fools will cause them to be lost.

33 But he that hearkeneth unto me shall dwell safely, and shall be at rest from the dread of evil.

CHAPTER II.

1 ¶ My son, if thou wouldst but accept my words, and treasure up my commandments with thee;

follow. So also Philippson, führung. There is no single word in English to convey this idea; hence we have retained the "wise counsels" of the English version.

[a] Herxheimer. Arnheim, as the English version, "interpretation."

[b] Rashi, "to shed blood."

[c] i. e. Whose innocence cannot save him. So renders Philippson. Ralbag, "although he has not sinned against us." Herxheimer, "without danger," i. e. we need apprehend no danger in assailing him unawares.

[d] Aben Ezra; but Rashi, "we will swallow them while they are entire."

[e] Arnheim, "strewed with seed." Rashi would connect the verses so: the birds conceive the seed strewed in the net is there for no purpose; hence, they will snatch at it, while the hunters draw in the cords, as they are waiting and are concealed to take the life of their prey. According to this view the word oren must not be supplied. Others, however, interpret, "The bird seeing the net will escape, it is useless to catch him, and so will the innocent be delivered from the wicked, while the persecutors themselves are caught in their own toils."

[f] True wisdom, the fear and knowledge of God, is always accessible, like a stream of water. (Deut. xxx. 14.)

2 To let thy ear listen unto wisdom: (if) thou wouldst incline thy heart to understanding.

3 For if thou wilt call after intelligence; if after understanding thou wilt lift up thy voice;

4 If thou wilt seek her as silver, and search for her as for hidden treasures:

5 Then wilt thou understand the fear of the LORD, and the knowledge of God wilt thou find.

6 For the LORD giveth wisdom: out of his mouth (come) knowledge and understanding.

7 He treasureth up sound wisdom[a] for the righteous, as a shield to those that walk in integrity:

8 That men[b] may keep the paths of justice; and the way of his pious servants doth he guard.

9 Then wilt thou understand righteousness, and justice, and equity: yea, every track of goodness.

10 For[c] wisdom will enter thy heart, and knowledge will be pleasant unto thy soul;

11 Discretion will watch over thee, understanding will keep thee;

12 To deliver thee from the way of the bad, from the man that speaketh perverse things;

13 (From those) who leave the paths of uprightness, to walk in the ways of darkness;

14 Who rejoice to do evil, who are delighted in the perverseness of the bad;

15 Who as regardeth their paths are crooked, and froward in their tracks.

16 To deliver thee from the adulteress,[d] from the alien woman that useth flattering speeches;

17 That forsaketh the friend of her youth, and forgetteth the covenant of her God.

18 For she[e] sinketh unto death—her house, and unto the departed (lead) her tracks.

19 All that come unto her return not again, and they will not reach the paths of life.

20 In order that thou mayest walk in the way of good men, and observe the paths of the righteous.

21 For the upright will dwell on the earth, and the perfect will be left remaining on it.

22 But the wicked will be cut off from the earth, and the treacherous shall be plucked up therefrom.

CHAPTER III.

1 ¶ My son, forget not my teaching, and let thy heart keep my commandments;

2 For length of days, and years of life, and peace, will they increase unto thee.

3 Let kindness and truth not forsake thee; bind them about thy throat; write them upon the table of thy heart:

4 So shalt thou find grace and good favour[f] in the eyes of God and man.

5 Trust in the LORD with all thy heart: and upon thy own understanding do not rely.

6 In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he will make level thy paths.

7 Be not wise in thy own eyes: fear the LORD, and depart from evil.

8 It will be healing to thy body,[g] and marrow to thy bones.

9 Honour the LORD with thy wealth, and with the first-fruits of all thy products:

10 So shall thy storehouses be filled with plenty, and with new wine shall thy presses overflow.

11 The correction[h] of the LORD, my son, do not despise; and feel no loathing for his admonition;

12 Because whomever the LORD loveth he admonisheth; and as a father who delighteth in (his) son.

13 Happy the man that hath found wis-

[a] Aben Ezra. Rashi takes it as equivalent for the divine law. Philippson, "happiness."

[b] Rashi, Aben Ezra, &c. Philippson, "Watching (i. e. on the part of God) the paths of justice."

[c] Jonathan. Aben Ezra, "when wisdom entereth—then will discretion," &c.

[d] So Rashi; but he understands by the term, not the adultress proper, but idolatry, which is, as it were, a breach of the marriage tie between God and Israel. (See Hosea ii. 21.) The "alien" spoken of in the latter part of the verse is also one "alien to virtue."

[e] Aben Ezra; i. e. death is her proper dwelling, whither her conduct leads her. Rashi, "Who entereth her house is on the declivity leading down to death." Philippson, "For her house sinketh unto hell;" but בית house is masculine, and cannot therefore agree with שחה the third person feminine.

[f] Lit. "intelligence." Others, "success."

[g] Lit. "navel," the soft portion of the body against bones.

[h] The sorrows and trials of life are the means God employs to correct man's faults and to admonish him to amend.

dom, and the man that acquireth[a] understanding.

14 For the obtaining[b] of her is better than the obtaining of silver, and better than fine gold is her product.

15 She is more precious than pearls; and all the things thou valuest are not equal unto her.

16 Length of days is in her right hand: in her left are riches and honour.

17 Her ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are peace.

18 A tree of life is she to those that lay hold on her: and every one that firmly graspeth her will be made happy.

19 ¶ The LORD hath through wisdom founded the earth: he hath established the heavens through understanding.

20 By his knowledge were the depths split open, and the skies drop down the dew.

21 My son, let them not be removed from thy eyes; keep (before thee) sound wisdom and discretion:

22 And they will be life unto thy soul, and grace to thy throat.

23 Then wilt thou walk in safety on thy way, and thy foot will not strike (against aught):

24 When thou layest thyself down, thou shalt feel no dread; and as thou liest down, thy sleep shall be pleasant.

25 Thou needest not to be afraid of sudden dread, neither of the (unlooked-for) tempest over the wicked, when it cometh.

26 For the LORD will be thy confidence, and he will guard thy foot from being caught.

27 Withhold not a benefit[c] from him who is deserving it, when it is in the power of thy hand to do it.

28 Say not unto thy neighbour, Go, and return, and to-morrow will I give: when thou hast it by thee.

29 Contrive not against thy neighbour any evil, when he dwelleth in safety with thee.

30 Quarrel not with any man without cause, if he have done thee no harm.

31 Envy not the man of violence, and choose none of his ways.

32 For the froward is an abomination to the LORD; but with the upright is his good-will.[d]

33 The curse of the LORD is in the house of the wicked; but the habitation of the righteous will he bless.

34 If (it concern) the scornful he will himself render them a scorn; but unto the lowly doth he give grace.

35 The wise shall inherit glory; but fools shall obtain disgrace as their portion.[e]

CHAPTER IV.

1 ¶ Hear, ye children, the correction of a father, and attend to know understanding.

2 For good information do I give you: my teaching must ye not forsake.

3 For I was a son unto my father, a tender and an only child before my mother.

4 And he instructed me, and said unto me, Let thy heart grasp firmly my words: observe my commandments and live.

5 Acquire wisdom, acquire understanding: forget not, and depart not from the sayings of my mouth.

6 Forsake her not, and she will watch over thee: love her, and she will keep thee.

7 The beginning of wisdom is, Acquire wisdom: and with all thy acquisition acquire understanding.

8 Hold her in high esteem,[f] and she will exalt thee: she will bring thee to honour, when thou embracest her.

9 She will give to thy head a wreath of grace: a crown of ornament will she deliver[g] to thee.

10 Hear, O my son, and accept my sayings: and they will increase unto thee the years of life.

11 In the way of wisdom have I instructed thee: I have led thee in the tracks of uprightness.

[a] Rashi, "to be so ready with it, that he can spread it abroad to others."

[b] Ralbag; but Rashi, literally, "exchanges," or "merchandise."

[c] Ralbag. Zunz and Eng. ver., "to whom is it due." Rashi, one opinion, "Hinder not thy friend to do good to the poor who meriteth it, when thou hast even the power to do so."

[d] Lit. "secret;" hence, Arnheim, "confidence," or "good-will;" because those, to whom we impart our secrets, must have first our friendship.

[e] Rashi. Ralbag, one opinion, "shall be removed by disgrace."

[f] Aben Ezra. Rashi, "Glean for her," i. e. seek for her with ardour wherever she may be found.

[g] Aben Ezra. Others, "will encompass thee."

12 When thou walkest, thy step shall not be narrowed; and when thou runnest, thou shalt not stumble.

13 Lay fast hold of correction; let her not go: keep her; for she is thy life.

14 Enter not into the path of the wicked, and step not on the way of the bad.

15 Avoid it, pass not through by it, turn off from it, and pass away.

16 For they sleep not, except they have done evil; and their sleep is robbed away, unless they cause some to stumble.

17 For they eat the bread of wickedness; and the wine of violence do they drink.

18 But the path of the righteous is as the early morning[a] light, that shineth more and more brightly until the height of noonday.[b]

19 The way of the wicked is like darkness: they know not against what they stumble.

20 ¶ My son, attend to my words, unto my sayings incline thy ear.

21 Let them not slip away from thy eyes: guard them in the midst of thy heart.

22 For they are life unto every one of those that find them, and to all his body a healing.

23 Above all that is to be guarded, keep thy heart; for out of it are the issues of life.

24 Remove from thee frowardness[c] of mouth; and perverseness of lips put away far from thee.

25 Let thy eyes look right forward, and let thy eyelids see straight out before thee.

26 Balance well the track of thy foot, and let all thy ways be firmly right.

27 Turn not to the right hand nor to the left: remove thy foot from evil.

CHAPTER V.

1 ¶ My son, attend unto my wisdom; to my understanding incline thou thy ear:

2 That thou mayest observe discretion, and that thy lips may keep knowledge.

3 For as of fine honey drop the lips of an adulterous woman, and smoother than oil is her palate;

4 But her end is bitter as wormwood, it is sharp as a two-edged sword.

5 Her feet go down to death, her steps take firm hold on the nether world:

6 So that she cannot balance the[d] path of life; her tracks are unsteady, and she knoweth it not.

7 ¶ And now, O ye children, hearken unto me, and depart not from the sayings of my mouth.

8 Remove far from her thy way, and come not nigh to the door of her house;

9 That thou mayest not give up unto others thy vigour,[e] and thy years unto the cruel;

10 That strangers may not satisfy themselves with thy strength, and with thy exertions, in the house of an alien:

11 While thou moanest at thy end, when thy flesh and thy body are coming to their end,

12 And thou sayest, How have I hated correction, and how hath my heart rejected reproof;

13 While I hearkened not to the voice of my instructors, and to my teachers I inclined not my ear;

14 But little more[f] was wanting, and I had been in all (kinds of) unhappiness in the midst of the congregation and assembly.

15 Drink water out of thy own cistern, and running waters out of thy own well.

16 So will thy springs overflow abroad; and in the open streets will be thy rivulets of water;[g]

17 They will be thy own only, and not those of strangers with thee.

[a] Ralbag. Philippson, "as the upward-beaming light," i. e. of the sun.

[b] Rashi. Lit. "the establishment of day."

[c] Arnheim, "Remove from thyself crookedness [Philippson, "obliquity"] of the mouth; and distortion [Philippson, "crooking"] of the lips put away far from thee;" which Rashi explains, that we should take care not to be ill spoken of by others; Philippson, that we should be so full of truth as not to use distortions when we speak, which betoken falsehood. But that, as is said in the next verse, we should be straightforward and look men in the face, conscious of our truthfulness.

[d] Philippson, after Jonathan; but Rashi, "Weigh not near her the path of life, choosing to do one thing or the other; for the tracks of a harlot are unsteady and they lead to perdition, and thou wilt not be able to take heed till thou stumblest and fallest."

[e] Lit. "glory," or "respectability," here what makes the youth respected, viz. his manly vigour.

[f] Ralbag; but Rashi, "for a trifle have I been brought unto all manner of evil." Philippson conceives this to mean the arraignment on trial for adultery, which would have caused the speaker's death.

[g] After Aben Ezra, who understands herewith a multi-

18 Thy fountain will be blessed; and rejoice with the wife of thy youth,—

19 The lovely gazelle and the graceful chamois: let her bosom satisfy thee abundantly at all times; with her love be thou ravished continually.

20 And why wilt thou, my son, be ravished with an adulteress, and embrace the bosom of an alien woman?

21 For before the eyes of the LORD are the ways of man, and all his tracks doth he weigh in the balance.

22 His own iniquities will truly catch the wicked, and with the cords of his sin will he be held firmly.

23 He will indeed die for want of correction; and through the abundance of his folly will he sink into error.

CHAPTER VI.

1 My son, if thou hast become surety for thy friend, if thou hast struck thy hand[a] for a stranger;

2 If thou art ensnared through the words of thy mouth, if thou art caught through the words of thy mouth:

3 (Then) do this, by all means, my son, and deliver thyself, because thou art come into the power[b] of thy friend, Go hasten to him, and urge[c] thy friend.

4 Grant not any sleep to thy eyes, nor slumber to thy eyelids.

5 Deliver thyself as a roebuck from the hand (of the hunter), and as a bird from the hand of the fowler.

6 ¶ Go to the ant, thou sluggard; look on her ways, and become wise.

7 She, that hath no prince, officer, or ruler,

8 Provideth in the summer her provision, gathereth in harvest-time her food.

9 How long, O sluggard, wilt thou lie down? when wilt thou arise out of thy sleep?

10 "A little (more) sleep, a little slumber, a little folding of the hands in lying down;"

11 But then will thy poverty come like a rover,[d] and thy want as a man armed with a shield.

12 A Godless person is a man of injustice, who walketh with a distorted mouth.

13 He blinketh with his eyes, he scrapeth[e] with his feet, he pointeth with his fingers;

14 Perverseness is in his heart, he contriveth evil at all times; he scattereth abroad discord.[f]

15 Therefore shall suddenly come his calamity: unawares shall he be broken without a remedy.

16 Six things there are which the LORD hateth; and seven are an abomination unto his spirit:

17 Haughty eyes, a tongue of falsehood, and hands that shed innocent blood,

18 A heart that contriveth plans of injustice, feet that hasten to run after evil,

19 A false witness that eagerly uttereth lies, and him that scattereth abroad discord among brethren.

20 ¶ Keep, O my son, the commandment of thy father, and reject not the teaching of thy mother:

21 Bind them upon thy heart continually, tie them about thy throat.

22 When thou walkest, it shall lead thee; when thou liest down, it shall watch over thee; and when thou art awake it shall converse with thee.

23 For the commandment is a lamp, and the law is light; and the way of life are the admonitions of correction:

24 To guard thee against a bad woman, from the flattery of an alien tongue.[g]

tude of children springing from a happy and faithful married life. Others apply it all metaphorically to wisdom.

[a] i. e. Giving a pledge, by striking in the hand of the person who is to receive assurance of payment.

[b] Lit. "hand," metaphorical for "grasp," or "power."

[c] Rashi, who explains רהב "multiply friends," upon him that he may forgive thee if thou canst not pay; and התרפס "open him thy hand to pay if thou hast the means." Arnheim, after Aben Ezra, "cast thyself at his feet, then canst thou defy the friend," i. e. the one who does not pay his debt.

[d] Septuagint, "κακὸς ὁδοιπόρος;" hence, Herxheimer, "vagabond." Philippson, "robber;" but the word "rover" expresses perfectly the Hebrew כהרך and all the other ideas of these commentators.—A man supplied with a shield makes an attack and at the same time wards off the blows of the other; or the same as "irresistible."

[e] Philippson and Eng. ver., "he speaketh," i. e. he does not speak out, but by distortion of the mouth, by scraping with the foot and pointing with the finger, he infers a falsehood which he dares not to utter.

[f] Lit. "quarrels," "disputes."

[g] Jonathan, "the tongue of an alien woman."

25 Covet not her beauty in thy heart, and let her not conquer thee with her eyelids.

26 For by means of a harlot[a] (one is brought down) to the last loaf of bread: and an adulterous woman will even hunt for the precious life.

27 Can a man gather up fire in his lap, and shall his clothes not be burnt?

28 Can a man walk along upon hot coals, and shall his feet not be burnt?

29 So it is with him that goeth in to his neighbour's wife: no one that toucheth her shall remain unpunished.

30 Men do not despise the thief, if he steal, to gratify his craving when he is hungry:

31 And if he be found, he must pay sevenfold; all the wealth of his house must he give.

32 But whoso committeth adultery with a woman lacketh sense: he that is the destroyer of his soul, will alone do this.

33 Plague and disgrace will he meet with; and his reproach will not be blotted out.

34 For jealousy is the fury of a husband, and he will not spare on the day of vengeance.

35 He will not regard the appearance of any ransom; and he will not be content, though thou give ever so many bribes.

CHAPTER VII.

1 ¶ My son, observe my sayings, and my commandments must thou treasure up with thee.

2 Observe my commandments, and live: and my teaching as the apple of thy eyes.

3 Bind them around thy fingers, write them upon the table of thy heart.

4 Say unto wisdom, Thou art my sister; and call understanding thy kinswoman:

5 That they may keep thee from an adulterous woman, from an alien that useth flattering speeches.

6 For through the window of my house, through my lattice did I (once) look out,

7 And I beheld among the simple ones, I discerned among the youths, a lad void of sense;

8 He was passing through the market-place near her corner; and he stepped along on the way to her house,

9 In the twilight,[b] in the evening of the day, in the depth of the night and when it was dark:

10 And, behold, a woman came to meet him with the attire of a harlot, and obdurate[c] of heart.

11 (She is noisy and ungovernable; in her house her feet never rest;

12 At one time she is in the street, at another in the open places, and near every corner doth she lurk,)

13 And she caught hold of him, and kissed him, and with an impudent face[d] she said to him,

14 "I had bound myself to bring peace-offerings; this day have I paid my vows:

15 Therefore am I come forth to meet thee, to seek thy presence diligently, and I have found thee.

16 With tapestry coverings have I decked my bed, with embroidered coverlids[e] of the fine linen of Egypt.

17 I have sprinkled my couch with myrrh, aloes, and cinnamon.

18 Come, let us indulge in love until the morning: let us delight ourselves with dalliances.

19 For the man is not in his house, he is gone on a journey a great way off:

20 The bag of money hath he taken with him,[f] by the day of the new-moon festival only will he come home."

21 She seduced him by the abundance of her reasoning:[g] by the flattery of her lips she misguided him.

22 He followed after her suddenly, as an ox goeth to the slaughter, and as in fetters[h] to his correction, the fool:

23 Till an arrow cleaveth through his

[a] i. e. The company with dissolute women in general will ruin even the wealthiest and lead to penury; but adultery will endanger life even.

[b] Meaning, he was first observed loitering about at dusk, and he continued till it was quite dark.

[c] Arnheim. Philippson, "of a deceitful tongue." Herxheimer, "concealed intention."

[d] Lit. "She hardened her face and said," &c.

[e] Jonathan, Aben Ezra, and Philippson. Ralbag, taking כרכרים as chains or gold ornaments, supposes חטבות to be "cords."

[f] Heb. "in his hand."

[g] Lit. "information," or "doctrine;" here the volubility of false reasoning.

[h] Arnheim. Jonathan takes יעכב to mean dog, and renders as "the dog to correction," and takes אויל for liver; as a bird hasteneth into the snare, and knoweth not that it is done to take his life.

24 ¶ And now, O children, hearken unto me, and listen to the sayings of my mouth.

25 Let not thy heart turn aside to her ways, do not go astray on her paths.

26 For many deadly wounded hath she caused to fall: yea, very numerous are all those slain by her.

27 The ways to the nether world is her house, leading down to the chambers of death.

CHAPTER VIII.

1 Behold, wisdom calleth, and understanding sendeth forth her voice.

2 On the top of high places, by the wayside, at the house where there are (many) paths doth she place herself.

3 Alongside of gates, at the opening of the city, at the entrance of the town(-doors) doth she call loudly,

4 Unto you, O men, I call, and my voice (goeth forth) to the sons of men.

5 Learn, O ye simple, to understand prudence: and, ye fools, be ye of an understanding heart.

6 Hear! for of noble things will I speak; and the opening of my lips shall be of what is equitable.

7 For truth uttereth my palate ever, and the abomination of my lips is wickedness.

8 In righteousness are all the sayings of my mouth, there is in them nothing crooked or perverse.

9 They are all evident to the man of understanding, and correct to those that have obtained knowledge.

10 Accept my correction, and not silver; and knowledge rather than choice gold.

11 For wisdom is better than pearls; and all the things that men wish for are not equal to her.

12 I wisdom dwell with prudence, and the knowledge of discreet thoughts do I discover.

13 The fear of the LORD is to hate evil, pride and arrogance, and the evil way: and the mouth of perverseness do I hate.

14 Mine are counsel and sound wisdom: I am understanding; mine is might.

15 Through me do kings reign, and chieftains give decrees (in) righteousness.

16 Through me do princes rule, and the nobles,[a] even all the judges of the earth.

17 I indeed love those that love me; and those that seek me earnestly shall find me.

18 Riches and honour are with me, yea, enduring wealth and righteousness.

19 My fruit is better than gold, and than fine gold; and my products, than choice silver.

20 On the road of righteousness do I walk firmly, in the midst of the paths of justice:

21 That I may cause those that love me to inherit a lasting possession;[b] and their treasures will I fill.

22 ¶ The LORD created[c] me as the beginning of his way, the first[d] of his works from the commencement.

23 From eternity was I appointed chief, from the beginning, from the earliest times of the earth.

24 When there were yet no depths, was I brought forth; when there were yet no springs laden heavily with water.

25 Before the mountains were yet sunk down,[e] before the hills was I brought forth:

26 While as yet he had not made the land and open fields, nor the chief[f] of the dust of the world.

27 When he prepared the heavens, I was there; when he drew a circle[g] over the face of the deep;

28 When he fastened the skies above; when the springs of the deep became strong;

29 When he assigned to the sea his decree, that the waters should not transgress his

אִיָּל "the deer," and connects it with the next verse: "And like the deer who receiveth the flying arrow in his liver." Philippson, after Rosenmüller, and others, "as a deer springeth in the net," taking מוֹכֵר as synonymous with "net."

[a] Philippson, "and nobly all the judges of the earth."

[b] Aben Ezra. Rashi, "I have a great inheritance to give to my friends."

[c] Jonathan. Lit. "acquired."

[d] Aben Ezra and Arnheim. Philippson, קֶדֶם as a preposition, "before his works, long ago."

[e] As though the mountains were dropped down on their bases by the hands of the Creator.

[f] Rashi; meaning, "the first man, Adam." Philippson, "the total of the unfruitful dust of the world." Others, "the highest." Arnheim, after Aben Ezra, "the beginning."

[g] Ralbag, "the globe of the earth."

order;[a] when he established firmly the foundations of the earth:

30 Then was I near him, as a nursling; and I was day by day (his) delights, playing before him at all times;

31 Playing in the world, his earth;[b] and having my delights with the sons of men.

32 ¶ And now, O children (of men), hearken unto me! for happy are those that observe my ways.

33 Hear correction, and be wise, and reject it not.

34 Happy is the man that hearkeneth unto me, watching day by day at my gates, waiting at the posts of my doors.

35 For he who findeth me findeth life, and he obtaineth favour from the LORD.

36 But he that sinneth against me doth violence to his own soul: all those that hate me love death.

CHAPTER IX.

1 ¶ Wisdom hath built her house; she hath hewn out her seven pillars;

2 She hath killed her cattle; she hath mingled her wine; she hath also set in order her table.

3 She hath sent forth her maidens: she inviteth (her guests) upon the top[c] of the highest places of the town.

4 Whoso is simple, let him turn in hither: as for him that is void of sense, she saith to him,

5 "Come, eat of my bread, and drink of the wine which I have mingled.

6 Forsake simplicity, and live; and go onward on the way of understanding.

7 He that correcteth a scorner acquireth for himself abuse; and he that reproveth the wicked getteth himself a blemish.

8 Do not correct a scorner, lest he hate thee: reprove a wise man, and he will love thee.

9 Give to the wise (instruction), and he will become yet wiser: impart knowledge to the righteous, and he will increase his information.

10 The commencement of wisdom is the fear of the LORD; and the knowledge of the Most Holy One[d] is understanding.

11 For through me shall thy days be multiplied, and the years of thy life shall be increased unto thee.

12 If thou art become wise, thou art wise for thyself; but if thou art a scorner, thou alone wilt have to bear it."

13 The woman of folly is noisy: she is simple, and knoweth not what (to do).

14 And she sitteth at the door of her house, upon a chair in the high places of the town.

15 To call the wayfarers who go straight forward on their paths.

16 Whoso is simple, let him turn in hither; and as for him that is void of sense, she saith to him,

17 "Stolen waters are sweet, and bread of secrecy is pleasant."

18 But he knoweth not that the departed are there; that in the depths of the nether world are her guests.

CHAPTER X.

1 ¶ The proverbs of Solomon. A wise son causeth (his) father to rejoice; but a foolish son is the grief of his mother.

2 Treasures of wickedness will not profit aught; but righteousness will deliver from death.

3 The LORD will not suffer the soul of the righteous to famish; but the sinful desires of the wicked will he cast away.

4 He becometh poor that laboureth with an indolent hand; but the hand of the diligent maketh rich.

5 He that gathereth in summer is an intelligent son; (but) he that sleepeth in harvest is a son that causeth shame.

6 Blessings come upon the head of the righteous; but the mouth of the wicked covereth violence.

7 The memory of the just is (destined) to be blessed; but the name of the wicked shall rot.

8 The wise in heart will accept commandments; but he that is a fool in his speaking[e] will stumble.

[a] Arnheim, "that the water should not pass beyond its shore," פִּי the mouth of the sea; but others, "the order of God."

[b] Aben Ezra. Others, "on the globe of his earth."

[c] Lit. "backs."

[d] Aben Ezra, as though it were אֱלֹהִים קְדֹשִׁים. Others, "and the knowledge of holy men," &c.

[e] Heb. "a fool of lips."

9 He that walketh uprightly ever walketh securely; but he that perverteth his ways will be punished.

10 He that winketh with the eye causeth vexation; and he that is a fool in his speaking will stumble.

11 A source of life is the mouth of the righteous; but the mouth of the wicked covereth violence.

12 Hatred stirreth up strifes; but love throweth a cover over all transgressions.

13 On the lips of the man of understanding there is found wisdom; but a rod is for the back of him that is void of sense.

14 Wise men treasure up knowledge; but the mouth of the foolish is an approaching terror.[a]

15 The wealth of the rich man is his strong town: the terror of the poor is their poverty.

16 The labour of the righteous (tendeth) to life: the product of the wicked is for sin.

17 On the way unto life is he that observeth correction; but he that forsaketh reproof is in error.

18 He that hideth hatred hath lips of falsehood; and he that spreadeth abroad an evil report, is a fool.

19 In a multitude of words transgression cannot be avoided; but he that refraineth his lips is intelligent.

20 (Like) choice silver is the tongue of the righteous: the heart of the wicked is worth but very little.

21 The lips of the righteous feed many; but fools die through lack of sense.[b]

22 The blessing of the LORD it is which maketh rich, and painful labour addeth nothing thereto.

23 It is as sport to a fool to do wicked deeds; but a man of understanding hath wisdom.[c]

24 What the wicked dreadeth, that will come upon him; but the longing of the righteous will God grant.

25 As the whirlwind passeth by, the wicked is no more; but the righteous is an everlasting foundation.

26 As vinegar is to the teeth, and as smoke is to the eyes: so is the sluggard to those that send him.

27 The fear of the LORD increaseth (man's) days; but the years of the wicked will be shortened.

28 The expectation of the righteous is joy; but the hope of the wicked shall perish.

29 The way of the LORD is a strong-hold to the upright; but terror[d] is destined to the workers of injustice.

30 The righteous shall never be removed; but the wicked shall not inhabit the earth.

31 The mouth of the just uttereth[e] wisdom; but the tongue of perverseness shall be cut out.

32 The lips of the righteous know (how to obtain) favour; but the mouth of the wicked (speaketh) perverseness.

CHAPTER XI.

1 Balances of deceit are an abomination of the LORD; but a full weight (obtaineth) his favour.

2 When pride cometh, then cometh disgrace; but with the modest there is wisdom.

3 The integrity of the upright guideth them; but the cunning of the treacherous destroyeth them.

4 Wealth cannot profit on the day of wrath;[f] but righteousness will deliver from death.

5 The righteousness of the perfect maketh even his way; but by his own wickedness will the wicked fall.

6 The righteousness of the upright will deliver them; but through their own sinful desires are the treacherous caught.

7 When a wicked man dieth, (his) hope vanisheth; and the expectation of (his) children[g] is lost.

8 The righteous is delivered out of distress, and the wicked cometh in his stead.

9 With his mouth doth the hypocrite destroy his neighbour; but through knowledge are the righteous delivered.

10 When it goeth well with the righteous, the town rejoiceth loudly: and when the wicked perish, there is joyful shouting.

11 Through the blessing of the upright a city is exalted; but through the mouth of the wicked it is pulled down.

12 He that despiseth his neighbour is void of sense; but a man of understanding maintaineth silence.

13 He that walketh about as talebearer revealeth secrets; but he that is of a faithful spirit concealeth the matter.

14 Where there is no wise guidance, a people must fall; but (it will obtain) help through the multitude of counsellors.

15 With evil will he be overwhelmed that is surety for a stranger; but he that hateth giving the hand as pledge is safe.

16 A woman endowed with grace will surely obtain honour; and the powerful[a] will obtain riches.

17 The man of kindness doth good to his own soul; but he that troubleth his own flesh is cruel.

18 The wicked practiseth a work of falsehood;[b] but he that soweth righteousness (obtaineth) the reward of truth.

19 He who is firm in righteousness attaineth to life: and he that pursueth evil (doth it) to his own death.

20 An abomination of the LORD are those of a perverse heart; but his favour is for those who are unblemished in their way.

21 The hand (of God) being against (his) hand,[c] the bad man shall not go unpunished; but the seed of the righteous shall escape.

22 As a golden ring in a swine's snout, so is a handsome woman that hath thrown off discretion.[d]

23 The desire of the righteous is only good; but the hope of the wicked is the wrath (of God).

24 There is a man that scattereth gifts, and yet his wealth is increased: and there is one that withholdeth more than is proper, and still cometh only to want.

25 A beneficent soul will be abundantly gratified;[e] and he that refresheth (others) will be also refreshed himself.

26 Him that withholdeth corn, the people will denounce; but blessing will be heaped upon the head of the one that selleth it.

27 He that diligently searcheth after good seeketh favour; but if one inquireth after evil, it will come unto him.

28 He that trusteth in his riches will surely fall; but the righteous shall grow like the leaves (of a tree).

29 He that troubleth his own house will inherit the wind; and the fool will become the servant to the wise of heart.

30 The fruit of the righteous is of the tree of life; and the wise draweth souls to himself.

31 Behold, the righteous is recompensed on the earth: how much more the wicked and the sinner.[f]

CHAPTER XII.

1 Whoso loveth correction loveth knowledge; but he that hateth reproof is brutish.

2 The good obtaineth favour of the LORD; but a man of wicked devices will he condemn.

3 A man cannot be firmly established by wickedness; but the root of the righteous will not be moved.

4 A virtuous woman is a crown to her husband; but as rottenness in his bones is one that bringeth shame (on him).

5 The thoughts of the righteous are justice: the best counsels of the wicked are deceit.

6 The words of the wicked are of lying in wait for blood; but the mouth of the upright will deliver them.

7 The wicked are suddenly overthrown, and are no more; but the house of the righteous will endure.

8 In accordance with his intelligence is a

[a] Rashi, and so Philippson, gives עָרִיצִים, a bad sense, "those who are tyrannical or unjustly exacting;" but Herxheimer thinks it merely intended to represent here the "industrious," "hardy labourers."

[b] Arnheim, "the wicked acquire a worthless gain."

[c] So Rashi and Aben Ezra. Jonathan, "He that stretcheth out his hand against his neighbour." Some, "from hand to hand," i. e. though the evil pass from one generation to another. Philippson, after Ewald, "The hand I pledge," or "is pledged that," &c., i. e. it is certain.

[d] Philippson, "that is without morals." Others, "grace."

[e] Lit. "made fat,"—"watered."

[f] Rashi comments, "How much more must the wicked be ultimately punished, either in life or in death."

man praised; but he that is perverse of heart will come to be despised.

9 Better is he that is lightly esteemed who hath a servant, than he that aimeth after honour, and lacketh bread.

10 A righteous man careth for the life of his beast; but the mercies of the wicked are cruelty.

11 He that tilleth his ground will be satisfied with bread; but he that runneth after idle persons is void of sense.

12 The wicked is covetous for the net of evil men; but (God) giveth root[a] to the righteous.

13 In the transgression of his lips is the snare of the wicked; but the righteous cometh out of distress.

14 From the fruit of his mouth will a man be satisfied with what is good; and the recompense of a man's hands will be brought back unto him.

15 The way of a fool is straight in his own eyes; but he that hearkeneth unto counsel is wise.

16 The wrath of the fool is known on the very day; but he that concealeth the disgrace is prudent.

17 He that uttereth truth announceth righteousness; but a false witness, deceit.

18 There is some one that useth words (which are) like the thrusts of a sword; but the tongue of the wise is healing.

19 The lip of truth will stand firm for ever; but only for a moment the tongue of falsehood.

20 Deceit is in the heart of those that contrive evil; but for the counsellors of peace there is joy.

21 No wrong can come unawares to the righteous; but the wicked are full of evil.

22 An abomination of the LORD are lips of falsehood; but they that deal in faithfulness (obtain) his favour.

23 A prudent man concealeth (his) knowledge; but the heart of fools proclaimeth (their) folly.

24 The hand of the diligent will bear rule; but the indolent must become tributary.

25 If there be care in the heart of man let him suppress it; and a good word will change it into joy.[b]

26 The righteous is more excellent[c] than his neighbour; but the way of the wicked leadeth them astray.

27 The indolent roasteth not that which he hath caught in hunting; but the most precious wealth of man is diligence.[d]

28 On the path of righteousness there is life; and on her pathway there is immortality.

CHAPTER XIII.

1 ¶ A wise son (becometh so) by the correction of his father; but a scorner hearkeneth not to rebuke.

2 From the fruit of a man's mouth doth he eat what is good; but the longing of the treacherous is for violence.

3 He that watcheth his mouth guardeth his soul; but he that openeth wide his lips (prepareth) himself destruction.[e]

4 The sluggard longeth (in) his soul, and there (cometh) nothing; but the soul of the diligent will be abundantly gratified.

5 The righteous hateth the word of falsehood; but the wicked bringeth shame and dishonour.

6 Righteousness keepeth (him that is) upright on his way; but wickedness perverteth[f] the (man of) sin.

7 There is some one that pretendeth to be rich without having any thing: another that pretendeth to be poor while having abundant wealth.

8 As the ransom of a man's life (hath he

[a] So Arnheim and others, after Jonathan, who, however, merely gives, "the root of the righteous shall endure." Rashi, however, "the root of the righteous shall yield fruit." Aben Ezra, "shall strike into the ground," i. e. become deeply rooted.

[b] Rashi and Ralbag, who conceive that Solomon says it is unfit for men to entertain care either for the present or future, but he should remove it by relying on God. In this view is דאגה "care," a feminine noun, the object. Others, for this once, make לב "the heart," generally masculine, a feminine, and the object of the verse, and translate, "Care in a man's heart will bend it down; but a good word will cause it to rejoice." Philippson adopts both constructions, the first for the beginning, and the other for the conclusion of the verse.

[d] Arnheim. Rashi, "the wealth of a man who is diligent is precious."

[e] Others, "terror."

[f] Philippson, "produceth the sinners downfall."

often to give)[a] his riches; but the poor heareth no threat.

9 The light of the righteous burneth joyfully;[b] but the lamp of the wicked will be quenched.

10 Only through presumptuous conduct doth man produce contention; but with the well-advised is wisdom.

11 Wealth (gotten) by vain deeds will[c] be diminished; but he that gathereth by close labour[d] will increase it.

12 Expectation long deferred maketh the heart sick; but a tree of life is a desire which is fulfilled.

13 Whoso despiseth the word shall fall in debt to it;[e] but he that feareth the commandment will be rewarded.

14 The instruction of the wise is a source of life, (teaching) to avoid the snares of death.

15 Good intelligence giveth grace; but the way of the treacherous is hard.[f]

16 Every prudent man acteth with knowledge; but a fool spreadeth abroad his folly.

17 A wicked messenger falleth into unhappiness; but a faithful ambassador (bringeth) healing.

18 Poverty and disgrace will overtake him that rejecteth correction; but he that observeth admonition will be honoured.

19 A desire accomplished is pleasant to the soul; but it is abomination to fools to depart from evil.

20 He that walketh with wise men will become wise; but he that associateth with fools will be destroyed.[g]

21 Evil pursueth the sinners; but the righteous will (God) repay with happiness.

22 A good man leaveth an inheritance to his children's children; but the wealth of the sinner is treasured up for the righteous.

23 Much food bringeth the new-tilled ground[h] of the poor; but there are many others that are taken away through injustice.

24 He that withholdeth his rod hateth his son; but he that loveth him chastiseth him betimes.

25 The righteous eateth to satisfy his desire (to eat); but the belly of the wicked always suffereth want.

CHAPTER XIV.

1 The wise among women buildeth her house; but the foolish pulleth it down with her own hands.

2 In his uprightness walketh he that feareth the LORD; but perverse in his ways is he that despiseth him.

3 In the mouth of the foolish is a stick (for his) pride; but the lips of the wise will preserve them.

4 Where no oxen are, is the crib clean; but the abundance of harvests is (only) through the strength of the ox.

5 A faithful witness will not lie; but a false witness constantly uttereth lies.

6 A scorner seeketh wisdom, and there is none; but knowledge is easy to the man of understanding.

7 Go far away from a foolish man, else thou wilt (never) know[i] the lips of knowledge.

8 The wisdom of the prudent is to understand his way; but the folly of fools is deceit.[k]

9 The fool maketh a mockery[l] of guilt; but among the upright there is good-will.

10 The heart knoweth its own bitterness; and with its joy can no stranger intermeddle.

11 The house of the wicked will be destroyed; but the tent of the upright will flourish.

12 There is many a way which seemeth

[a] Arnheim, Philippson, &c., after Ralbag and Aben Ezra; i. e. wealth often becomes dangerous because of the cupidity of rulers and malice of informers; but the poor escape this danger.

[b] Lit. "rejoiceth," i. e. it shines as though it felt joy.

[c] Aben Ezra. Herxheimer, "Wealth is diminished through vanity."

[d] Heb. "upon the hand."

[e] Rashi. By despising the word of God we incur guilt—as it were, fall in debt for the good neglected.

[f] Rashi comments, "grievous to him and others." Philippson, "destructive."

[g] Heb. "broken in pieces."

[h] Philippson; meaning, a piece of ground laboriously reclaimed by the poor brings an abundant return, whereas others perish for the injustice they practise. Others render the verse, "Abundance of food giveth the field to the poor, while wealth is dissipated through improper acting." Ralbag, "Much food is obtained through the tillage of the poor."

[i] Rashi.

[k] Both self-deception and deceiving others.

[l] Aben Ezra. Arnheim, "(between) the fools is guilt the interpreter, but benevolence between the upright."

even before a man; but its end are ways unto death.

13 Even in laughter the heart feeleth pain; and at its end joy is sorrow.

14 The backslider in heart will have enough of his own ways; and from him (departeth) the good men.[a]

15 The simple believeth every word; but the prudent man understandeth his steps.

16 A wise man is fearful, and departeth from evil; but the fool exciteth himself, and is confident.

17 He that is soon angry committeth folly; and a man of wicked devices is hated.

18 The simple inherit folly; but the prudent crown themselves with knowledge.

19 The bad sink down before the good; and the wicked are at the gates of the righteous.

20 Even to his own neighbour is the poor man hateful; but the friends of the rich are many.

21 He that despiseth his neighbour is a sinner; but he that is gracious to the poor—happiness attend him!

22 Behold, those who contrive evil are in error; but kindness and truth attend on those who contrive what is good.

23 In all painful labour there is profit; but mere words of the lips (lead) only to want.

24 The crown of the wise is their riches; but the folly of fools is (only) folly.

25 A deliverer of souls is the true witness; but a witness of deceit uttereth lies.

26 In the fear of the LORD is the strong confidence (of man), and unto his children will it be a place of shelter.

27 The fear of the LORD is the source of life, (teaching) to avoid the snares of death.

28 In the multitude of people is the king's glory; but in the want of a population is the downfall of the prince.

29 He that is slow to anger is of great understanding; but he that is hasty of spirit holdeth up (to view) his folly.

30 A sound heart is the life of the body; but jealousy is the rottenness of the bones.

31 He that oppresseth the poor blasphemeth his Maker; but he that is gracious to the needy honoureth him.

32 Through his own evil is the wicked thrust down; but even in his death doth the righteous have confidence.

33 In the heart of the man of understanding resteth wisdom; but (the little which is) in the bosom of fools is made known.

34 Righteousness exalteth a people; but the disgrace of nations is sin.

35 The king's favour is bestowed on an intelligent servant; but his wrath is against him that deserveth shame.

CHAPTER XV.

1 A soft answer turneth away fury; but a mortifying word stirreth up anger.

2 The tongue of the wise maketh knowledge acceptable; but the mouth of fools sputtereth out folly.

3 In every place are the eyes of the LORD, looking on the bad and the good.

4 A healing (word) of the tongue is a tree of life; but perverseness therein is a breach to the spirit.

5 A fool contemneth the correction of his father; but he that observeth admonition will become prudent.

6 In the house of the righteous there is much treasure; but in the income of the wicked is trouble.

7 The lips of the wise scatter knowledge; but the heart of fools is not reliable.

8 The sacrifice of the wicked is an abomination of the LORD; but the prayer of the upright (obtaineth) his favour.

9 An abomination of the LORD is the way of the wicked; but him that pursueth righteousness will he love.

10 An evil correction[b] is (destined) for him that forsaketh the (right) path: he that hateth admonition will die.

11 The nether world and corruption are open before the LORD: how much more then the hearts of the children of men!

12 A scorner loveth not that one should admonish him: unto the wise doth he not go.

13 A merry heart cheereth up the counte-

[a] Ralbag. Aben Ezra, מעליו "from his leaves," meaning the lightest good deeds, "will the good man be satisfied." Philippson, "from his deeds," &c. Others, "from what is in him." Jonathan, "from his piety." Rashi, "above the wicked will be the good man."

[b] Rashi. Aben Ezra, "Correction is evil to," &c.

nance; but when the heart feeleth pain the spirit is depressed.

14 The heart of the man of understanding seeketh knowledge; but the mouth of fools feedeth on folly.

15 All the days of the afflicted are evil; but he that is of a cheerful heart hath a continual feast.

16 Better is little with the fear of the LORD, than great treasure and confusion therewith.

17 Better is an allowance of herbs when love is there, than a stall-fed ox and hatred therewith.

18 A man of fury stirreth up strife; but he that is slow to anger assuageth contention.

19 The way of the slothful man is like a hedge of thorns; but the path of the upright is a levelled (road).

20 A wise son causeth his father to rejoice; but a foolish man despiseth his mother.

21 Folly is joy to him that is void of sense; but a man of understanding walketh straight forward.

22 Plans are frustrated without consultation; but through a multitude of counsellors canst thou maintain thyself.

23 A man hath joy by the answer of his mouth; and a word (spoken) at the proper time, how good is it!

24 The path of life (leadeth) upward for the intelligent, in order that he may avoid the nether world beneath.

25 The LORD will tear down the house of the proud; but he will set up firmly the boundary(-stone) of the widow.

26 An abomination of the LORD are the thoughts of the bad man; but pleasant speeches are pure (before him).

27 He that is greedy after gain troubleth his own house; but he that hateth gifts will live.

28 The heart of the righteous reflecteth to answer; but the mouth of the wicked sputtereth out evil things.

29 The LORD is far from the wicked; but the prayer of the righteous doth he hear.

30 (What is pleasant to) the light of the eyes rejoiceth the heart: a good report giveth marrow to the bones.

31 The ear that heareth the admonition of[a] life will ever abide in the midst of the wise.

32 He that rejecteth correction despiseth his own soul; but he that heareth admonition acquireth intelligence.

33 The fear of the LORD is the correction for wisdom; and before honour there must come humility.

CHAPTER XVI.

1 Unto man belong the resolves[b] of the heart; but from the LORD cometh the expression[c] of the tongue.

2 Every one of the ways of a man is pure in his own eyes; but the LORD measureth the spirits.

3 Commit[d] unto the LORD thy works, and thy plans will be firmly established.

4 Every thing hath the LORD wrought for its destined end:[e] yea, even the wicked for the day of unhappiness.

5 An abomination of the LORD is every one that is proud of heart: the hand (of God) being against (his) hand,[f] he shall not go unpunished.

6 Through kindness and truth is iniquity atoned for; and by the fear of the LORD (men) depart from evil.

7 When the LORD receiveth in favour a man's ways, he maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him.

8 Better is a little with righteousness, than great incomes through injustice.

9 A man's heart deviseth his way; but the LORD directeth firmly his steps.

10 There should be a wise sentence on the lips of the king: his mouth should never commit a trespass in judging.

11 A just balance and scales belong to the LORD: his work are all the weights in the bag.[g]

[a] i. e. Such admonitions as lead to life eternal.

[b] Rashi, who explains, "he putteth in order his counsel and his words in his heart." Lit. "orderings," or "arrangings."

[c] Philippson, "the answering (of the prayer) of the tongue."

[d] Heb. "roll."

[e] Ralbag; i. e. every thing is adapted to the end for which it was made, and even wickedness meets its end in the punishment which it naturally produces. Rashi, "Every thing hath the LORD made for his own glorification."

[f] See note to xi. 21.

[g] Compare with xi. 1.

12 It should be an abomination to kings to commit wickedness; for through righteousness (alone) can a throne be established.

13 Righteous lips (should obtain) the favour of kings; and him that speaketh up-rightly should they[a] love.

14 The fury of a king is like the messengers of death; but a wise man will appease it.

15 In the light of the king's countenance there is life; and his favour is as a cloud of the latter rain.

16 How much better is it to obtain wisdom than gold! and to obtain understanding is preferable to silver!

17 The highway of the upright is to depart from evil: he preserveth his soul that watcheth his way.

18 Before downfall (goeth) pride, and before stumbling, haughtiness of spirit.

19 Better it is to be of an humble spirit with the lowly, than to divide spoil with the proud.

20 He that reflecteth on a matter wisely will find happiness; and whoso trusteth in the LORD—happiness attend him!

21 The wise in heart is called a man of understanding; and the sweetness of the lips increaseth information.

22 Intelligence is a source of life unto its possessor; but the correction of fools is folly.

23 The heart of the wise maketh his mouth intelligent, and upon his lips he increaseth information.

24 (Like) the droppings of honey are pleasant sayings, sweet to the soul, and healing to the bones.

25 There is many a way which seemeth even before a man, but its end are the ways unto death.

26 The desire of the labourer laboureth for him; for his mouth imposeth it on him.

27 An ungodly man diggeth up mischief, and on his lips there is as it were a scathing fire.

28 A perverse man scattereth strife; and a whisperer separateth confident friends.

29 The man of violence misleadeth his neighbour, and maketh him go on a way which is not good.

30 He shutteth his eyes to devise perverse things: when he compresseth his lips then hath he fully resolved on evil.

31 An ornamental crown is the hoary head, on the way of righteousness can it be found.

32 One that is slow to anger is better than a hero; and he that ruleth his spirit, than the conqueror of a city.

33 In the lap the lot is cast; but from the LORD cometh the whole of its decision.

CHAPTER XVII.

1 Better is a piece of dry bread, and quiet therewith, than a house full of the sacrifices of contention.

2 An intelligent servant will have rule over a son that bringeth shame, and among the brothers will he have part of the inheritance.

3 The crucible is for silver, and the furnace for gold; but the LORD proveth the hearts.

4 An evil-doer listeneth to unjust lips:
falsehood giveth ear to a tongue that bringeth destruction.

5 Whoso mocketh the poor blasphemeth his Maker: he that is glad at calamities will not remain unpunished.

6 The crown of old men are children's children; and the ornament of children are their fathers.

7 High-toned language[b] is not seemly to a worthless fool: and yet much less the language of falsehood to a noble.

8 As a precious stone appeareth a bribe in the eyes of him that obtaineth[c] it: whither-soever it turneth, it prospereth.

9 He that covereth a transgression seeketh love; but he that repeateth a matter separarateth confident friends.

10 A reproof penetrateth more deeply into a wise man, than a hundred stripes into a fool.

11 Only rebellion[d] doth a bad man seek:
therefore a cruel messenger will be sent out against him.

12 A man may meet a she-bear robbed of her whelps, but not a fool in his folly.

[a] Lit. "he," or every one that is king.

[b] Rashi, "words of pride." Others, "excellent;" but "high-toned" embraces both shades of meaning.

[c] So Jonathan. Others render בעליו "the one who hath it to give." But the verse is a warning, as in Deut. xvi. 19, against the taking of bribes, as else justice will be perverted.

[d] Philippson, "Only evil doth the rebel seek."

13 Whoso bestoweth evil in return for good—evil shall not depart from his house.

14 As one letteth loose (a stream) of water, so is the beginning of strife: therefore before it be enkindled,[a] leave off the contest.

15 He that declareth the wicked innocent, and he that condemneth the righteous, yea, both of them are equally an abomination to the LORD.

16 Wherefore is the purchase-money in the hand of a fool to acquire wisdom, seeing he hath no sense?

17 A friend loveth at all times, and as a brother is he born for (the time of) distress.

18 A man void of sense pledgeth his hand, and becometh surety for his friend.

19 He loveth transgression that loveth quarrel; and he that maketh high his door[b] seeketh destruction.

20 He that hath a froward heart will not find happiness; and he that hath a perverse tongue will fall into evil.

21 He that begetteth a fool (doth it) to his sorrow; and the father of a worthless fool cannot have any joy.

22 A merry heart causeth a healthy appearance of the countenance;[c] but a depressed spirit drieth up the bones.

23 A wicked man taketh a bribe out of the bosom, to pervert the paths of justice.

24 Wisdom is before him that hath understanding; but the eyes of a fool are at the ends of the earth.[d]

25 A foolish son is a vexation to his father, and bitterness to her that hath born him.

26 To punish the just with a fine even is not good, nor to strike the noble(-hearted) for (their) equity.[e]

27 He that holdeth back his speeches hath knowledge; and he that is sparing[f] of his spirit is a man of understanding.

28 Even a fool, when he keepeth silence, is counted wise: he that shutteth his lips (is esteemed) a man of understanding.

CHAPTER XVIII.

1 He that separateth himself (from God) seeketh his own desires: at every sound wisdom is he enraged.[g]

2 A fool hath no delight in understanding, but in laying open what is in his heart.

3 When the wicked cometh, then cometh also contempt, and with dishonourable acts, disgrace.

4 Like deep waters are the words of a (wise) man's mouth, and a bubbling brook is the well-spring of wisdom.

5 It is not good to favour the person of the wicked, to wrest (the cause of the) righteous in judgment.

6 The lips of the fool come with contention, and his mouth calleth for blows.

7 The mouth of the fool is a destruction to himself, and his lips are the snare of his soul.

8 The words of a whisperer are as wounds,[h] and they go down indeed into the innermost parts of the body.

9 He also[i] that showeth himself slothful in his work is a brother to the destroyer.

10 ¶ The name of the LORD is a strong tower, whereunto the righteous runneth, and is placed in safety.

11 The rich man's wealth is his strong town, and as a towering wall in his own conceit.

12 Before downfall the heart of man becometh haughty, and before honour goeth humility.

[a] Philippson, after Jonathan. Rashi, התגלע like ההגלה "before it be laid open," and adds, "thy shame." Aben Ezra, "mingled," "intermeddled with." Arnheim, "it breaketh forth."

[b] i. e. According to Rashi, "speaking proudly," as though it read, "opening the door of his mouth." According to Ralbag, "who exalteth himself above and despiseth others."

[c] Rashi. Jonathan, "maketh the body healthy." Aben Ezra, "doth good like medicine."

[d] i. e. Wisdom is easily found by the intelligent; the fool looks too far, and does not find her.

[e] Ralbag. Philippson, על ישר "and to strike the noble exceedeth all equity." Arnheim, "Punish the righteous when he doth wrong, and smite the noble for the sake of equity."

[f] i. e. He does not say all he knows. Philippson, "the cool-spirited," after the Ketib.

[g] Rashi and Philippson. Rashi, however, renders as in xvii. 14, "among the men his shame will be laid open." And Philippson, after Sa'adyah, "from mankind." Aben Ezra, "He that separateth himself (from his kindred) to seek wisdom which he longeth for, will mingle with all the men of sound wisdom."

[h] Arnheim and others render the word מתלהמים with "dainty food;" meaning the words of a man who slily conveys slanderous information are pleasant to one who hears them, if he be fond of them, while they at the same time penetrate the very heart of man and leave their effects there.

[i] Philippson explains "also" as saying, "though the judgment against the slothful is severe, it is still true."

13 When one returneth an answer before he understandeth (the question), it is folly unto him and shame.

14 The spirit of a man will readily bear his disease; but a depressed spirit who can bear?

15 The heart of the man of understanding will obtain knowledge; and the ear of the wise seeketh knowledge.

16 A man's gift maketh room for him, and before great men will it lead him.

17 He that is first in his cause seemeth just; but when his neighbour cometh, then will it be investigated.[a]

18 The lot causeth disputes to cease, and it decideth[b] between the mighty.

19 A brother offended is harder (to be won) than a strong town; and quarrels (among brothers) are like the bars of a castle.

20 From the fruit of a man's mouth is his body satisfied: with the product of his lips doth he satisfy himself.

21 Death and life are in the power of the tongue, and they that love it will eat its fruit.

22 Whoso hath found a wife hath found happiness, and hath obtained favour from the LORD.

23 The poor speaketh entreatingly; but the rich answereth roughly.

24 A man's many companions are hurtful[c] to him; but there is many a friend that cleaveth closer than a brother.

CHAPTER XIX.

1 Better is the poor that walketh in his integrity, than one of perverse lips, who is a fool.

2 Also in the want of knowledge in the soul there is nothing good; and he that hasteneth with his feet misseth the right path.

3 The folly of a man perverteth his way, and against the LORD will his heart rage.

4 Wealth bringeth many friends; but the poor becometh separated from his (only) friend.

5 A false witness shall not remain unpunished, and he that uttereth lies shall not escape.

6 Many will entreat the favour of the liberal man; and every one is the friend to him that bestoweth gifts.

7 All the brothers of the poor hate him: how much more do his friends go far away from him! he pursueth (their) promises; but these are (all) that he hath.[d]

8 He that getteth intelligence loveth his own soul: he that guardeth understanding will find happiness.

9 A false witness shall not remain unpunished, and he that uttereth lies shall perish.

10 Delicacy is not seemly for a fool: much less for a servant to have rule over princes.

11 It is intelligence in man to be slow in his anger, and it is his glory to pass over a transgression.

12 Like the roaring of a young lion is the wrath of a king: as dew upon the herbs is his favour.

13 A calamity unto his father is a foolish son; and a continual dropping are the quarrels of a wife.

14 House and wealth are an inheritance from fathers; but from the LORD (cometh) an intelligent wife.

15 Slothfulness casteth (man) into a deep sleep; and an indolent soul will suffer hunger.

16 He that observeth the commandment guardeth his own soul; but he that disregardeth (directing) his ways (aright) shall die.

17 He lendeth unto the LORD that is liberal to the poor, and his good deed will he repay unto him.

18 Chastise thy son, for there is hope; and let not thy soul spare (him) for his crying.[e]

19 A man of great fury must suffer punish-

[a] Meaning, when a man relates his cause to a judge he can make his own side appear just; but when his opponent comes, then can the matter be properly investigated. Hence, no judge should listen to an accusation till both parties are before him, that he may be impartial.

[b] Lit. "separateth."

[c] Ralbag, Arnheim, &c.

[d] So is the Kerî יֵ֫ש; but Philippson, and so Jonathan and others, render the Ketîb אֵשׁ, "should he pursue promises, (i. e. those frequently made him,) he cannot find them any more."

[e] Ralbag, המיתו hamîtho for hemyatho. Rashi, "but do not let thy passion rise to smite him so that he die." Arnheim, "Chastise thy son while there is yet hope; and thou wilt then not desire to slay him." Philippson, nearly like Rashi, "and do not let thy soul crave to slay him." Thus advising moderate but not cruel punishment.

ment; for if thou deliver him, thou must still do it again.[a]

20 Hear counsel, and accept correction, in order that thou mayest be wise in thy latter end.

21 There are many thoughts in a man's heart; but the counsel of the LORD alone will stand firm.

22 The longing of a man is (to exercise)[b] his kindness; and a poor man is better than a liar.

23 The fear of the LORD leadeth unto life: and he (that hath it) shall abide satisfied; he shall not be visited with evil.

24 When a slothful man hath hidden his hand in the dish,[c] then will he not even bring it back to his mouth.

25 Smite a scorner, and the simple will become prudent; and if one that hath understanding be admonished, he will understand knowledge.

26 He that plundereth his father, and chaseth away his mother, is a son that bringeth shame and dishonour.

27 Cease, my son, to hear the instruction that causeth (thee) to err from the sayings of knowledge.[d]

28 An ungodly witness scorneth at justice, and the mouth of the wicked swalloweth mischief.

29 Punishments are prepared for scorners, and stripes for the back of fools.

CHAPTER XX.

1 Wine is a mocker, strong drink is noisy; and whosoever indulgeth therein will never be wise.

2 Like the roaring of a young lion is the dread of a king: whoso provoketh him to anger sinneth against his own soul.

3 It is an honour for a man to cease from a contest; but every fool enrageth himself.

4 Because it is winter's cold, will the sluggard not plough: when he therefore seeketh in the harvest time, there will be nothing.

5 Like deep water is counsel in the heart of man; but the man of understanding will draw it out.

6 Most men will proclaim every one his own kindness;[e] but who can find a faithful man?

7 The righteous walketh in his integrity: happy will be his children after him.

8 A king that sitteth on the throne of justice scattereth away with his eyes all evil.

9 Who can say, I have made my heart pure, I am cleansed from my sin?

10 Divers weights, and divers measures, are both of them alike an abomination of the LORD.

11 Even a child maketh himself known by his doings, whether his work will be pure, and whether it will be upright.

12 The ear that heareth, and the eye that seeth, the LORD hath made both of them alike.

13 Love not sleep, lest thou come to poverty: open thy eyes, so wilt thou be satisfied with bread.

14 It is bad, it is bad, saith the buyer; but when he is gone his way, then doth he boast.

15 There is gold, and a multitude of pearls; but a precious vessel are the lips of knowledge.

16 Take away his garment, because he hath become surety for a stranger; and on account of a strange woman take a pledge from him.

17 Bread of falsehood is pleasant to a man; but afterward his mouth will be filled with gravel-stones.

18 Plans are established by counsel; and with wise reflection conduct war.

19 He that goeth about as a talebearer revealeth secrets: therefore meddle not with him that enticeth with his lips.

20 Whoso curseth his father or his mother —his lamp shall be quenched in obscure darkness.

[a] Aben Ezra. Rashi renders, "if thou save thy enemy when thou seest evil coming to him, thou wilt prolong thy years."

[b] Aben Ezra. Rashi, "the good-will of the world for a man is his kindness." Philippson, "In accordance with a man's desire is what he loveth."

[c] Rashi; meaning, when, as they do in the East, they sit round the dish to take out the meat with their fingers, the slothful has put his hand in it, he is too lazy to bring it back to his mouth with the food. Others, "bosom."

[d] Aben Ezra. Rashi, "Cease, my son, to go astray from the sayings of knowledge to hear correction." Philippson, "Cease but once, my son, to hear correction, thou wilt soon go astray," &c.

[e] Ralbag and Aben Ezra; but Rashi, "Most men will rely on their friends who promise them kindness in their necessity," &c.

21 An inheritance hastily gotten[a] at the beginning will at its end not be blessed.

22 Do not say, I will recompense evil; (but) wait on the LORD, and he will help thee.

23 Divers weights are an abomination of the LORD; and a deceitful balance is not good.

24 From the LORD are the steps of man (ordained); but man—how can he understand his own way?

25 It is a snare to a man to sanctify things hastily,[b] and to make inquiry only after having made vows.

26 A wise king scattereth the wicked, and turneth over them the threshing-wheel.[c]

27 A lamp of the LORD is the soul of man, searching all the inner chambers of the body.

28 Kindness and truth will watch over a king, and he will prop up through kindness his throne.

29 The ornament of young men is their strength; and the glory of old men is a hoary head.

30 The bruises of a wound are cleansing means for the bad, and stripes (will reach) the inner chambers of the body.

CHAPTER XXI.

1 Like brooks of water is a king's heart in the hand of the LORD: whithersoever it pleaseth him doth he turn it.

2 Every way of a man is straight in his own eyes; but the LORD weigheth the hearts.

3 To exercise righteousness and justice is more acceptable to the LORD than sacrifice.

4 Haughtiness of the eyes, and an immoderate heart, are the sinful field[d] of the wicked.

5 The plans of the diligent tend only to plenty; but every hasty man is (destined) only to want.

6 The getting of treasures by a tongue of falsehood is like the fleeting breath of those that seek death.

7 The robbery of the wicked will drag them away; because they refuse to execute justice.

8 Perverse is the way of the man that is estranged (from goodness); but as for the pure, his work is upright.

9 It is better to dwell in a corner of a roof, than with a quarrelsome woman in a roomy[e] house.

10 The soul of the wicked longeth for evil: his neighbour findeth no grace in his eyes.

11 When the scorner is punished, the simple is made wise: and when the wise is taught intelligence, he receiveth knowledge.

12 The righteous[f] regardeth attentively the house of the wicked; (but God) overturneth the wicked into unhappiness.

13 Whoso stoppeth his ears against the cry of the poor, he also will cry himself, but shall not be answered.

14 A gift in secret pacifieth anger, and a bribe in the bosom,[g] strong fury.

15 It is joy to the righteous to execute justice; but it is a terror to wrong-doers.

16 The man that wandereth astray out of the way of intelligence shall rest in the assembly of the departed.

17 He that loveth pleasure[h] will be a man of want: he that loveth wine and oil will not become rich.

18 The wicked shall be a ransom for the righteous, and the treacherous shall be put in the stead of the upright.

19 It is better to dwell in a desert land, than with a quarrelsome and vexatious woman.

20 There are a desirable treasure and oil in the dwelling of the wise; but a foolish man will swallow it up.

21 He that pursueth righteousness and kindness will find life, righteousness, and honour.

22 A wise man scaleth the city of the mighty, and casteth down the strength in which they trusted.

23 Whoso guardeth his mouth and his tongue guardeth his soul against distresses.

24 The presumptuous and proud, scorner is his name, dealeth in the wrath of presumption.

[a] So the Kerî; but the Ketîb, "accursed at the beginning."

[b] Arnheim, Herxheimer, and Philippson. Aben Ezra, "to devour what is holy."

[c] He threshes them in his anger, as the wheel does the grain on the threshing-floor.

[d] Jonathan, "and the light of the wicked is sin;" נר nîer as nair.

[e] Lit. "a house of society," i. e. where many can dwell

[f] Rashi refers "Righteous" also to God.

[g] i. e. Privately conveyed, unseen by men.

[h] Lit. "joy."

25 The longing of the slothful will kill him; for his hands refuse to labour.

26 All the day he feeleth a great longing; but the righteous giveth and withholdeth not.

27 The sacrifice of the wicked is an abomination: how much more, when he bringeth it with a sinful purpose?[a]

28 A lying witness shall perish; but the man that is obedient[b] (to the law) can speak for ever.

29 A wicked man showeth impudence in his face; but as for the upright, he will consider well his way.

30 There is no wisdom nor understanding nor counsel against the LORD.

31 The horse is prepared for the day of battle; but with the LORD is the victory.

CHAPTER XXII.

1 A good name is preferable to abundant riches, and good grace, to silver and to gold.

2 The rich and poor meet together: the LORD is the maker of them all.

3 The prudent foreseeth the evil, and hideth himself; but the simple pass on, and are punished.

4 The reward of humility (and)[c] the fear of the LORD are riches, and honour, and life.

5 Thorns and snares are on the way of a perverse man: he that doth guard his soul will keep far from them.

6 Train up the lad in accordance with his course:[d] even when he groweth old, will he not depart from it.

7 A rich man ruleth over the poor, and the borrower is servant to the man that lendeth.

8 He that soweth injustice will reap wrongdoing; and the rod of God's wrath will not fail.[e]

9 A man of a benevolent eye will indeed be blessed; for he giveth of his bread to the poor.

10 Drive away the scorner, and strife will go off; and then will cease contention and dishonour.

11 He that loveth with a pure heart, and hath grace on his lips, will have the king as his friend.

12 The eyes of the LORD guard knowledge,[f] and he overturneth the words of the treacherous.

13 The slothful saith, There is a lion without, in the midst of the streets shall I be murdered.

14 A deep pit is the mouth of adulterous women: he that hath obtained the indignation of the LORD will fall thereinto.

15 When folly is bound fast to the heart of a lad, the rod of correction must remove it far from him.

16 He that oppresseth the poor to increase his riches, (must at length)[g] give to the rich, and come only to want.

17 Incline thy ear, and hear the words of the wise, and apply thy heart unto my knowledge.

18 For it is a pleasant thing if thou keep them within thy bosom, if they be altogether firmly seated upon thy lips.

19 That thy trust may be in the LORD, have I made them known to thee this day, yea, even to thee.

20 Have not I written for thee excellent things in counsels and knowledge, 21 That I might make thee know rectitude, the sayings of truth; that thou mightest bring back answers of truth to those that send thee?

22 ¶ Rob not the poor, because he is poor, neither crush the afflicted in the gate;[h]

23 For the LORD will plead their cause,

[a] Jonathan, "in sin." Philippson, "with a scandalous act."

[b] Rashi, who refers this obedience specially to the prohibition of false testimony. Rosenmüller, "who saith what he hath heard."

[c] Rashi and other commentators do not supply and, but give: "the reward of humility are the fear of the LORD," &c.

[d] i. e. According to his peculiar character and capacity; directing thus the parent to watch over the early development of the mind, and to correct any vicious propensity. Eng. ver., "Train up a child in the way he should go."

[e] Philippson; lit. "will be complete." Arnheim, "he completeth the rod of his own punishment." Rashi, "the rod with which he exerciseth his wrathful rule shall fail," i. e. come to an end. The difficulty is in the word כלה which is generally intransitive.

[f] Arnheim, "the wise," as though it read איש דעת "the man of knowledge."

[g] Rashi. Jonathan, "He that oppresseth the poor heapeth upon himself shame; he that giveth to the rich, will procure himself want." Ralbag, "He that oppresseth the poor maketh him rich, (i. e. exciteth him to more labour;) he that giveth to the rich bringeth him to want."

[h] i. e. In the court of justice.

and despoil the life of those that despoil them.

24 Make no friendship with a man given to anger; and with a man of fury thou must have no intercourse:

25 Lest thou learn his ways, and get a snare for thy own soul.

26 Be not one of those that pledge their hand, or of those that are sureties for debts.

27 If thou have nothing to pay, why should he take away thy bed from under thee?

28 Remove not the ancient landmark, which thy fathers have established.

29 Seest thou a man that is diligent in his work? before kings may he place himself: let him not place himself before obscure men.

CHAPTER XXIII.

1 When thou sittest to eat with a ruler, consider diligently what is before thee;

2 For thou puttest a knife to thy throat, if thou be a man of a craving desire.

3 Do not long for his savoury meats; for they are deceitful food.

4 Fatigue thyself not to become rich: because thou hast understanding, forbear.[a]

5 When thou lettest merely thy eyes fly over it, it is no more; for it will ever make itself wings: like an eagle will it fly toward heaven.

6 ¶ Eat not the bread of a man with an evil eye, and do not long for his savoury meats;

7 For as though there were a division[b] in his soul, so doth he act: Eat and drink, saith he to thee; but his heart is not with thee.

8 Thy morsel which thou hast eaten must thou spit out, and thou hast wasted thy pleasant words.

9 Speak not before the ears of a fool; for he will despise the intelligence of thy words.

10 Remove not the ancient landmark, and into the fields of the fatherless must thou not enter;

11 For their redeemer is strong; he will indeed plead their cause with thee.

12 Apply thy heart unto instruction, and thy ears to the sayings of knowledge.

13 Withhold not from a lad correction; for if thou beat him with the rod, he will not die.

14 Thou wilt indeed beat him with the rod; but thou wilt deliver his soul from perdition.[c]

15 My son, if thy heart be wise, my heart shall rejoice, even mine.

16 And my reins shall exult when thy lips speak what is equitable.

17 Let not thy heart be envious[d] against sinners; but (remain) in the fear of the LORD all the time.

18 For surely there is a future, and thy hope will not be cut off.

19 Hear thou, my son, and become wise, and guide thy heart on the right way.

20 Be not among those that drink wine immoderately, among those that over-indulge in eating flesh;

21 For the drunkard and the glutton will come to poverty; and drowsiness clotheth a man in rags.

22 Hearken unto thy father that hath begotten thee, and despise not thy mother although[e] she be old.

23 Buy the truth and sell it not; (also) wisdom, and instruction, and understanding.

24 The father of the righteous will be greatly glad, and he that begetteth a wise child will have joy through him.

25 Let (then) thy father and thy mother rejoice, and let her that hath born thee be glad.

26 Give, my son, thy heart unto me, and let thy eyes watch[f] my ways.

27 For a harlot is a deep ditch, and a strange woman is a narrow well.

28 She also lieth in wait like a robber, and she increaseth the treacherous[g] among men.

[a] Jonathan. Others, "leave off thy resolves." Eng. ver., "cease from thine own wisdom."

[b] Herxheimer. Jonathan, "As though there were a high gate, so is it in his soul." Arnheim, "For like one who weigheth something which may cost his life, so is he." Rashi, "As though one were to pour bitterness in his soul." All these opinions are founded upon the supposed meaning of the word שער found here alone as a verb.

[c] Rendered elsewhere "grave," "nether world," or "hell."

[d] Philippson, "Do not exeite thyself about sinners, but rather about the fear," &c.

[e] Aben Ezra. Arnheim and Eng. ver., "when she is." Philippson, "because."

[f] The Kethîb would require, "have pleasure on my ways"

[g] Philippson, "who act treacherously against men."

29 Who hath wo? who hath sorrow? who hath quarrels? who hath complaints? who hath wounds without cause? who hath redness of eyes?

30 They that tarry late over the wine: they that come to seek for mixed drink.

31 Do not look on the wine when it looketh red, when it giveth its colour[a] in the cup, when it glideth down so readily.

32 At the last it will bite like a serpent, and like a basilisk will it sting.

33 Thy eyes will see strange forms, and thy heart will speak perverse things.

34 And thou wilt be like one that lieth down in the heart of the sea, or as he that lieth on the top of a mast.[b]

35 "They smote me, (but) I suffered no pain; they struck me hard, (but) I felt it not: when shall I awake? I will continue to seek it again."

CHAPTER XXIV.

1 Be thou not envious of bad men, and do not long to be with them

2 For their heart meditateth destruction, and of mischief do their lips speak.

3 Through wisdom is a house built; and through understanding is it firmly established;

4 And through knowledge are chambers filled with all manner of precious and pleasant wealth.

5 A wise man is (always) in power; and a man of knowledge fortifieth (his) strength.

6 For by wise counsel canst thou conduct thy war; and there is help[c] in a multitude of counsellors.

7 Wisdom is too high for a fool: in the gate can he not open his mouth.

8 Him that deviseth to do evil, men call a master of wicked devices.

9 The counsel[d] of folly is sin; and an abomination to men is the scorner.

10 If thou despond[e] on the day of distress, thy strength is small.

11 Deliver those that are taken unto death, and those that are moved away to the slaughter hold back.[f]

12 If thou shouldst say, Behold, we know not this man: lo, he that weigheth hearts will truly regard it, and he that keepeth thy soul will surely know it; and he will give a recompense to man according to his doing.

13 Eat honey, my son, because it is good; and the fine honey, which is sweet to thy palate:

14 So obtain the knowledge of wisdom for thy soul; when thou hast found her, then shall there be a (happy) future, and thy hope shall not be cut off.

15 Lie not in wait, O wicked man! against the dwelling of the righteous; waste not his resting-place;

16 For though the righteous were to fall seven times, he will rise up again; but the wicked shall stumble into misfortune.[g]

17 At the fall of thy enemy do not rejoice; and at his stumbling let not thy heart be glad:

18 Lest the LORD see it, and it be displeasing in his eyes, and he turn away from him his wrath.

19 Fret not thyself because of evil-doers, neither be thou envious of the wicked;

20 For there will be no (happy) future for the bad man: the lamp of the wicked will be quenched.

21 My son, fear the LORD and the king: with those that are desirous to change do not mingle thyself;

22 For suddenly will their calamity arise; and who knoweth the ruin of both of them?

23 These things also are for the wise.[h] To have respect of persons in judgment is not good.

24 Him that saith unto the wicked, Thou art righteous, will the people denounce, him will nations hold accursed;

[a] Others, "as it casteth its beads in the cup."

[b] Jonathan, "like the pilot that sleepeth at the helm." Philippson, "like one that sleepeth in front of the rudder."

[c] Comp. xi. 14; xx. 18.

[d] Rashi. Others, "the thought."

[e] Rashi, "If thou hast let thy friend sink," &c.

[f] Jonathan, taking אם not as usual for "if," but as an unusual affirmative. Some, however, connect this verse with the preceding, "thy strength is small if thou forbearest," &c. Arnheim connects the end of this with the next verse, thus: "if thou shouldest forbear, saying, behold," &c.

[g] Ralbag, "will stumble through one mishap."

[h] So the ancient commentators: "These sentences which follow are to be regarded by the wise." But the moderns take this as a heading for a small collection of proverbs, and render, "Also these are from the wise."

ARTAXERXES PROCLAIMING FREEDOM TO THE JEWS

25 But to those that punish[a] delight shall be given, and upon them shall come the blessing of the good.

26 Men will kiss the lips of him that giveth a proper answer.

27 Prepare without thy work, and make it fit in the field for thyself:[b] and afterward build thy house.

28 Be not without cause a witness against thy neighbour; for wouldst thou beguile with thy lips?

29 Say not, As he hath done to me so will I do to him: I will recompense every man according to his doing.

30 By the field of a slothful man I once passed along, and by the vineyard of a man void of sense:

31 And, lo, it was all grown over with thorns, nettles had covered its surface, and its stone-wall was broken down.

32 And when I had indeed beheld (this) I took it to my heart: I saw it, and received a warning.

33 "A little (more) sleep, a little slumber, a little folding of the hands in lying down;"

34 But then will thy poverty come like a rover; and thy wants as a man armed with a shield.

CHAPTER XXV.

1 ¶ Also these are the proverbs of Solomon, which the men of Hezekiah the king of Judah have collected.

2 It is the honour of God to conceal a thing; but the honour of kings is to search out a matter.

3 As are the heavens for height, and the earth is for depth, so should the heart of kings be unsearchable.

4 Take away the dross from the silver, and there will come forth a vessel for the melter.[c]

5 Take away the wicked from before the king, and his throne will be firmly established in righteousness.

6 Do not glorify thyself in the presence of the king, and force[d] thyself not into the place of great men;

7 For better it is that it be said unto thee, "Come up hither," than that thou shouldst be put lower in the presence of the prince, which[e] thy own eyes have (often) seen.

8 Do not proceed to a contest hastily, lest (thou know not) what thou wilt have to do at its end, when thy neighbour hath put thee to confusion.

9 Carry on thy cause with thy neighbour; but lay not open the secret of another:

10 Lest he that heareth it put thee to shame, and thy infamy never be removed.[f]

11 Like apples of gold among figures of silver is a word spoken in a proper manner.

12 As an ear-ring of gold, and a pendant of fine gold, so is a wise reprover toward an ear that listeneth.

13 As the cooling of snow on a harvest-day, so is a faithful messenger to those that send him; for he refresheth the soul of his master.

14 Like clouds and wind without rain, so is a man that vaunteth falsely of a gift.

15 By long forbearing is a prince persuaded, and a soft tongue breaketh bones.

16 Hast thou found honey? eat so much as is sufficient for thee; lest thou consume too much of it, and have to vomit it forth.

17 Make thy foot scarce in the house of thy friend: lest he have too much of thee, and so hate thee.

18 A battle-axe, and a sword, and a sharpened arrow is a man that testifieth as a false witness against his neighbour.

19 Like a broken tooth and a foot out of joint, is confidence in a treacherous man in a time of distress.

20 (As) he that taketh off his garment on a cold day, (as) vinegar is upon natron: so is he that singeth songs before an unhappy heart.

21 If thy enemy be hungry, give him bread to eat; and if he be thirsty, give him water to drink;

22 For though thou gatherest coals of fire upon his head, yet will the LORD repay it unto thee.

23 The north wind bringeth forth rain: so doth secret talking,[g] angry countenances.

24 It is better to dwell in the corner of a

[a] i. e. Who punish the wicked. Others, "who admonish, in general." Arnheim, "who decide (correctly)."
[b] Philippson, "cultivate well thy field."
[c] Others, "goldsmith," or "worker in gold and silver."
[d] Lit. "stand."
[e] Rashi. Jonathan, "whom thy eyes have seen."
[f] Lit. "return."
[g] Lit. "a tongue of secrecy."

roof, than with a quarrelsome woman even in a roomy house.

25 As cold water is to a fainting soul, so are good news from a far-off country.

26 Like a turbid spring and a corrupt fountain, is a righteous man that giveth way before the wicked.

27 To eat too much honey is not good: so is it honour to set a limit to men's honour.

28 Like a city that is broken in, and is without walls: so is the man that hath no control over his spirit.

CHAPTER XXVI.

1 As snow is in summer, and as rain in harvest: so is honour not seemly to a fool.

2 As the bird (cometh) to flit away, as the swallow, to fly off: so will an undeserved curse not come (to fulfilment).

3 A whip is for the horse, a bridle for the ass, and a rod for the fool's back.

4 Do not answer a fool according to his folly, lest thou also become equal unto him.

5 Answer a fool according to his folly, lest he be wise in his own eyes.[a]

6 He choppeth off the feet, and drinketh vexation,[b] that sendeth important messages by the hand of a fool.

7 Too feebly hang down[c] the thighs on a lame man: so is a parable in the mouth of fools.

8 As is the one that bindeth a stone fast[d] in a sling, so is he that giveth honour to a fool.

9 (As) a thorn that is come into the hand of a drunkard, so is a parable in the mouth of fools.

10 A master injureth all things when he hireth a fool or hireth mere rovers.[e]

11 As a dog returneth to his vomit, so doth a fool repeat to act in his folly.

12 When thou seest a man wise in his own eyes, then is there more hope for[f] a fool than for him.

13 The slothful saith, There is a leopard in the way: a lion is between the streets.

14 As a door turneth upon its hinges, so doth the slothful upon his bed.

15 Hath the slothful hidden his hand in the dish, it wearieth him to bring it back again to his mouth.

16 The slothful is wiser in his own eyes, than seven[g] men that can give wise answers.

17 As is one that taketh hold of a dog by the ears, so is he that passing by becometh excited about a dispute which concerneth him not.

18 As one fatigueth[h] himself shooting off firebrands, arrows, and death:

19 So is the man that hath cheated his neighbour, and saith, Behold, I am only jesting.

20 Where there is no wood, the fire goeth out: so where there is no whisperer, strife is silenced.

21 As char-coals are added to burning coals, and wood to fire: so is a contentious man fitted to enkindle a dispute.

22 The words of a whisperer are as wounds, and they go down into the innermost chambers of the body.

23 Like silver dross laid over an earthen vessel, so are burning lips with a bad heart.

24 With his lips dissembleth he that hateth, and within himself layeth he up deceit:

25 Though he make his voice sound ever so graciously, believe him not; for there are seven abominations in his heart.

26 If one's hatred be covered by deception, then shall be laid bare his wickedness before a (whole) assembly.

27 Whoso diggeth a pit will fall therein; and upon him that rolleth a stone, will it return.

[a] Herxheimer simply explains, that we are told not to answer a fool after his own manner, for that would make us his equals; but to reply, in case our silence would induce him to become more confirmed in his conceit.

[b] Arnheim, lit. "violence."

[c] Aben Ezra. Rashi, "Too high appear the thighs of other men to the lame; and so is a parable difficult of attainment in the mouth of a fool." Philippson, "as when the lame lifteth up his thigh."

[d] Rashi, meaning, as it is useless to tie a stone which you mean to hurl away. Aben Ezra, "As when one tieth a stone in a fine garment," כרגמה like ארגמן, &c. Ralbag, "As one putteth a precious stone amid common pebbles," from רגם "to cast stones."

[e] Philippson. But the verse is variously rendered. Rashi takes רב as "the Master of the world," מחולל "produceth," "bringeth forth," "God who hath brought forth all, employeth both the fool and idlers." Others, "As an archer who woundeth all, is," &c.

[f] Philippson, "to be hoped for from a fool than from him."

[g] Arnheim, "the seven wise counsellors," i. e. of state.

[h] Rashi, as in Gen. xlvii. 13. Others, "As a madman shooteth off."

28 A lying tongue hateth those that are crushed by it; and a flattering mouth prepareth (others') downfall.

CHAPTER XXVII.

1 Make no boast for thyself of the coming day;[a] for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth.

2 Let another man praise thee, and not thy own mouth; a stranger, and not thy own lips.

3 A stone hath heaviness, and the sand, weight; but a fool's wrath is heavier than both of them.

4 Fury hath its cruelty, and anger its overwhelming power; but who is able to stand before jealousy?

5 Better is open reproof than concealed love.

6 Faithful are the wounds of a friend; but deceptive[b] are the kisses of an enemy.

7 The satisfied soul treadeth under foot fine honey; but to the hungry soul every bitter thing is sweet.

8 As a bird that wandereth away from her nest, so is a man that wandereth away from his place.

9 Oil and perfume cause the heart to rejoice, and so do the sweet words of a friend more than one's own counsel.[c]

10 Thy own friend, and thy father's friend, thou must not forsake; but[d] into thy brother's house enter not on the day of thy calamity: better is a near neighbour than a distant brother.

11 Become wise, my son, and cause my heart to rejoice, that I may give an answer to him that reproacheth me.

12 The prudent foreseeth the evil, and hideth himself; but the simple pass on, and are punished.

13 Take his garment, for he became surety for a stranger; and on account of an alien woman take a pledge of him.

14 When one saluteth his friend with a loud voice, when rising early in the morning, it will be counted a curse to him.[e]

15 A continual dropping on a very rainy day and a contentious woman are alike.

16 He that would conceal her might conceal the wind, and as (fragrant) oil on his right hand, which would betray itself.[f]

17 Iron is sharpened by iron: so doth a man sharpen himself on the countenance of his friend.

18 Whoso guardeth the fig-tree will eat its fruit: so he that watcheth over his master will be honoured.

19 As the water (showeth) to the face the (reflected) face: so doth the heart of man show itself to man.

20 The nether world and the place of corruption are never satisfied: so are the eyes of man never satisfied.

21 (As) the fining-pot is for silver, and the furnace for gold: so is a man (proved) according to his praise.

22 Though thou shouldst pound the fool in a mortar, in the midst of grains of wheat with a pestle: still would his folly not depart from him.

23 Endeavour to know well the appearance of thy flocks, direct thy attention[g] to thy herds;

24 For property endureth not for ever, nor doth the crown remain for all generations.

25 When the grass is past, young verdure showeth itself, and then are gathered the herbs of the mountains.

26 The sheep are for thy clothing, and he-goats are the purchase-price of a field.

27 And thou wilt have enough of goats' milk for thy food, for the food of thy household, and the support for thy maidens.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

1 Every wicked fleeth when no man pursueth; but the righteous are like the confident young lion.

2 When there is transgression in a land, it hath many for its princes; but under a man of understanding and knowledge (its) prosperity will long continue.

[a] Heb. "the day of to-morrow."

[b] Jonathan, "evil." Rashi, "large," i. e. burdensome.

[c] Rashi. Others, "so is the friend sweet through hearty counsel."

[d] Arnheim, "then wilt thou not have need to enter," &c.

[e] Obtrusiveness being not rarely a token of insincerity.

[f] Wind cannot be held fast, nor can the scent or mark of oil be concealed when poured on the hand. Philippson, "and his right hand holdeth oil fast."

[g] Heb. "set thy heart."

3 A poor man[a] that oppresseth the indigent is like a sweeping rain which bringeth no bread.

4 They that forsake the law praise the wicked; but such as observe the law contend with them.

5 Bad men understand not justice; but they that seek the LORD understand all things.

6 Better is the poor that walketh in his integrity, than he that is perverse in his ways, though he be rich.

7 Whoso keepeth the law is an intelligent son; but he that is a companion of gluttons bringeth dishonour on his father.

8 He that increaseth his wealth by interest and usury will gather it for him that will be kind to the poor.

9 When one turneth away his ear so as not to listen to the law, even his prayer becometh an abomination.

10 Whoso causeth the upright to go astray on an evil way, will surely fall into his own ditch; but the men of integrity will inherit what is good.

11 The rich man is wise in his own eyes; but the indigent that hath understanding can search him through.

12 When the righteous exult, there is great splendour; but when the wicked rise up, a man hath to be sought for.

13 He that concealeth his transgressions will not prosper; but whoso confesseth and forsaketh them will obtain mercy.

14 Happy is the man that always dreadeth (to do evil); but he that hardeneth his heart will fall into unhappiness.

15 As a roaring lion, and a greedy bear, so is a wicked ruler over an indigent people.

16 The[b] prince that is void of understanding is also a great oppressor; (but) he that hateth unjust gain will prolong his days.

17 ¶ A man oppressed by the load of having shed human blood will flee even to the pit: let no man hold him.

18 Whoso walketh in integrity will be saved; but he that walketh perversely on two paths, will fall on one.[c]

19 He that tilleth his ground will have plenty of bread; but he that runneth after idle persons will have enough of poverty.

20 A faithful man will abound with blessings; but he that maketh haste to be rich will not go unpunished.

21 To have respect to persons is not good; because[d] even for a piece of bread will a man transgress

22 He that is eager for wealth is a man of an evil eye, and he knoweth not that want will come upon him.

23 He that reproveth a man after (my example)[e] will obtain more grace than he that flattereth with the tongue.

24 Whoso robbeth his father or his mother, and saith, It is no transgression,—the same is a companion of a destroyer.[f]

25 He that hath an insatiable desire[g] stirreth up strife; but he that putteth his trust in the LORD will be abundantly gratified.

26 He that trusteth in his own sense is a fool; but whoso walketh in wisdom, will ever escape.

27 He that giveth unto the poor will not have any want; but he that hideth his eyes will have an abundance of curses.

28 When the wicked rise, men conceal themselves; but when they perish, the righteous increase.

CHAPTER XXIX.

1 A man that, having received many admonitions, still hardeneth his neck, will suddenly be broken, and this without remedy.

2 When the righteous are in authority,[h] the people will rejoice; but when the wicked beareth rule, the people groan.

3 The man that loveth wisdom causeth his father to rejoice; but he that keepeth company with harlots wasteth (his) wealth.

4 A king will through the exercise of justice establish (the welfare of) a land; but one that loveth gifts[i] overthroweth it.

5 A man that flattereth his neighbour spreadeth a net for his steps.

6 In the transgression of a man there is

[a] Rashi, "an ignorant judge."

[b] Others, as an address, "O prince, void of understanding, but rich in oppression! he that," &c.

[c] Others, "at once."

[d] Arnheim, "nor that a man should transgress for," &c.

[e] Aben Ezra, and so is the Massoretic punctuation. But Rashi takes אחרי adverbially, "will ultimately find."

[f] Heb. "a destroying man."

[g] Rashi. Philippson, "the conceited arrogant."

[h] Ralbag. Jonathan, "when the righteous increase."

[i] Others, "that imposeth many taxes."

an evil[a] snare; but the righteous ever singeth and rejoiceth.

7 The righteous considereth the cause of the indigent; but the wicked will not understand the knowledge (of justice).

8 Scornful men will kindle (confusion) in a town; but the wise turn away wrath.

9 If a wise man contend with a foolish man, whether he be angry or whether he laugh, (he will have) no rest.

10 Men of blood hate the guiltless one; but the upright seek (to preserve) his life.

11 A fool uttereth all his mind; but the wise holdeth it back.

12 If a ruler listen to the word of falsehood, all his servants become wicked.

13 The poor and the man of exactions meet together: the LORD enlighteneth the eyes of both of them.

14 When a king judgeth in truth the indigent, his throne shall stand firmly for ever.

15 The rod and reproof impart wisdom; but a lad abandoned to himself bringeth shame on his mother.

16 With the increase of the wicked[b] transgression increaseth; but the righteous shall yet look on their downfall.

17 Correct thy son, and he will procure thee rest: yea, he will give delight unto thy soul.

18 Without a prophetic vision a people become unruly; but when it observeth the law, then will it be happy.

19 Not with words (alone) can a servant be corrected; for though he understand, there will be no response.

20 Seest thou a man that is hasty in his words? there is more hope for a fool than for him.

21 If one rear his servant delicately from his youth, then will he at length become as (his) son.[c]

22 A man of anger stirreth up strife; and a man of fury aboundeth in transgression.

23 The pride of a man will humble him; but the humble in spirit will attain to honour.

24 Whoso divideth with a thief hateth his own soul: he heareth the adjuration[d] and dareth not to tell.

25 The dread of man bringeth a snare;[e] but whoso putteth his trust in the LORD will be upheld in safety.

26 Many seek the favour of a ruler; but from the LORD cometh justice for man.

27 An abomination of the righteous is an unjust man: and an abomination of the wicked is one who is upright in (his) way.

CHAPTER XXX.

1 ¶ The words of Agur the son of Yakeh, even the prophecy: the man said unto Ithiël, even unto Ithiël and Ukkal,[f]

2 "Surely I am more brutish than any man, and have not the understanding of a common man.

3 Nor have I learned wisdom, so that I should have knowledge of the Holy One.

4 Who was it that ascended into heaven, and came down again? who gathered the wind in his fists? who bound the waters in a garment? who set up all the ends of the earth? what is his name, and what is his son's name, if thou knowest it?"

5 Every saying of God is purified: he is a shield unto those that put their trust in him.

6 Do not add aught unto his words: lest he reprove thee, and thou be found a liar.

7 ¶ Two things do I request of thee: deny them not to me before I die.

[a] After the Massoretic punctuation. Rashi and others, "of the bad man is (his) snare."

[b] Arnheim, "When the wicked obtain authority."

[c] Aben Ezra. Rashi, "he will be at length a ruler."

[d] See Lev. v. 1.; he is summoned to testify, and his own guilt seals his lips, and thus he incurs the punishment of offending Heaven by his silence.

[e] Rashi, "The snare of sin causeth terror unto man."

[f] Rashi considers all these words as merely allegorical names applied to Solomon: Agur, "the gatherer;" Yakeh, "the dispenser," i. e. of wisdom; Ithiël, "God with me," because he had trusted in his wisdom; Ithiël and Ukkal, "God is with me and I shall prevail; though I multiply horses, wives and gold, I shall not stumble;" and "to" is to be taken as concerning, and as applied to himself. Aben Ezra considers Ithiel and Ukkal as scholars of the wise man Agur named here, otherwise unknown. Philippson believes Ithiël and Ukkal to be mere ideal names, like Rashi, though regarding Agur ben Yakeh as an actual being. He conceives these words to represent two classes of persons, the believer, "God with me," and the doubter, "who is to be consumed," not as Rashi, from יכל "to be able," but as from אכל (Pual participle,) "The to-be-consumed." Verses 2 to 4 are then the words of the doubter; 5 and 7 the reply of the pious; and it is the same whether we take it as a self-communing or the answer of Agur to his scholars. Otherwise, they are the reflection of a sage who professes his inability to account for all things on natural ground, wherefore reliance on God's word becomes both duty and the best of wisdom.

8 Vanity[a] and lying words do thou remove far from me; neither poverty nor riches give thou unto me; let me eat the bread appointed unto me:
9 Lest I become over-full, and deny thee, and say, Who is the LORD? or lest I become poor, and steal, and trespass against the name of my God.
10 ¶ Do not calumniate a servant unto his master: lest he curse thee, and thou incur guilt.
11 There is a generation that curseth its father, and doth not bless its mother.
12 There is a generation that is pure in its own eyes, and yet is not washed (clean) of its filthiness.
13 There is a generation—O how lofty are its eyes! and its eyelids are so lifted up.
14 There is a generation, whose teeth are as swords, and whose cutting teeth are as knives, to devour the poor from off the earth, and the needy from among men.
15 ¶ Insatiability[b] hath two daughters,
(crying,) Give, give. There are three things that are never satisfied, yea, four things which never say, Enough:
16 The nether world; and a barren womb;
the earth which is not satisfied with water;
and the fire which never saith, Enough.
17 The eye that mocketh at his father, and despiseth to obey his mother, this shall the ravens of the valley pick out, and the young eagles shall eat it.
18 ¶ Three things there are which are too wonderful for me; and four, which I know not:
19 The way of the eagle in the air; the way of a serpent upon a rock; the way of a ship in the heart of the sea; and the way of a man with a young woman.
20 Such is the way of an adulterous woman: she eateth, and wipeth her mouth, and saith, I have done no wrong.
21 ¶ Under three things the earth trembleth, and under four which she cannot bear:
22 Under a servant when he becometh king, and a worthless fool when he hath eaten enough bread;
23 Under an odious woman when she is married, and a bondwoman when she dispossesseth her mistress.
24 ¶ There are four which are the little ones of the earth, and they are nevertheless exceedingly wise:
25 The ants are a people not strong, therefore do they prepare in the summer their food;
26 The conies are but a feeble people, therefore do they place on the rocks their houses;
27 The locusts have no king, and yet they go forth in troops altogether;
28 The spider[c] thou canst catch with
(thy) hands, and yet she is in the palaces of a king.
29 ¶ Three there are that have a stately step, and four, that are stately in going:
30 The lion, the mightiest among beasts, who turneth not round from before any one;
31 The light-legged greyhound,[d] and the he-goat;[e] and a king, against whom there is no rising up.[f]
32 If thou hast become degraded by lifting up thyself, or if thou hast devised evil, put thy hand to thy mouth;
33 For the pressure[g] of milk bringeth forth butter, and the pressure of the nose bringeth forth blood: so the pressure of wrath bringeth forth strife.

CHAPTER XXXI.

1 ¶ The words of king Lemuel,[h] the prophecy with which his mother instructed him.
2 What (hast thou done),[i] O my son? and what, O son of my body? and what, O son of my vows?

[a] In the sense of false, unreal things.
[b] Philippson. עלוקה is variously explained; some take it as "leech," hence "the insatiable." Rashi, "the nether world." Others, "fate," "vampyre." Aben Ezra, עקולה 'Akulah "injustice." Arnheim, as the name of the author "Of 'Alukah: Two daughters say, Give, give." Philippson takes "give, give" as the name of the daughters of insatiability.
[c] Others, "The lizard taketh hold (of walls) with her hands."
[d] Others, "the horse girded around the loins."
[e] Others, "the leading-wether," who goes before the flock.
[f] אלקום. Others, "people," with whom the people are.
[g] Butter is said to be produced in the East by pressing cream in a goat's skin.
[h] Lemuel, or as more correctly in ver. 4, Lemoel, "given," or "devoted to God."
[i] Rashi. Others, "what (shall I say)?"

3 Give not unto women thy vigour, nor thy ways to those that ruin kings.

4 Not for kings, O Lemoel, not for kings (is it fitting) to drink wine, nor[a] for princes, strong drink:

5 Lest either might drink, and forget what is written in the law, and pervert the cause of all the afflicted.

6 Give strong drink unto him that is ready to perish, and wine unto those who have an embittered soul.

7 Let such a one drink, and forget his poverty, and remember his trouble no more.

8 Open thy mouth for the dumb, for the cause of all fatherless children.[b]

9 Open thy mouth, judge righteously, and decide the cause of the poor and needy.

10 ¶ Who can find a virtuous woman? for far above pearls is her value.

11 The heart of her husband doth safely trust in her, and he will not see his gain[c] diminish.

12 She treateth him well and not ill, all the days of her life.

13 She seeketh for wool and flax, and worketh with her willing hands.

14 She is become like the merchant's ships: from afar doth she bring her food.

15 And she riseth while it is yet night, and giveth provision to her household, and a task to her maidens.

16 She thinketh of a field, and buyeth it: with the fruit of her hands she planteth a vineyard.

17 She girdeth with strength her loins, and giveth vigour to her arms.

18 She perceiveth that her profit[d] is good: (therefore) her lamp goeth not out by night.

19 She stretcheth out her hands to the spindle, and her palms hold fast the distaff.

20 She spreadeth out wide her open palm to the poor: yea, her hands she stretcheth forth to the needy.

21 She hath no fear for her household of the snow; for all her household are clothed in scarlet.[e]

22 Tapestry-covering she maketh for herself: of linen and purple is her attire.

23 Well known is in the gates her husband, when he sitteth with the elders of the land.

24 Fine tunics she maketh, and selleth them, and girdles she furnisheth unto the merchant.

25 Strength and dignity are her clothing: and she smileth at the coming of the last day.[f]

26 She openeth her mouth with wisdom, and the law of kindness is on her tongue.

27 She looketh well to the ways of her household, and the bread of idleness she doth not eat.

28 Her children rise up, and call her blessed; her husband, also, and he praiseth her:

29 "Many daughters have done virtuously; but thou excellest them all."

30 False is grace, and vain is beauty: a woman only that feareth the LORD shall indeed be praised.

31 Give her of the fruit of her hands, and let her own works praise her in the gates.

[a] Rashi. Ralbag taking אַי as "where," gives, "It is not for princes to say, 'Where is strong drink?'"

[b] Rashi, חלף "to change," whose help hath passed away. Aben Ezra, "who are destined to death."

[c] Arnheim. Lit. "booty," or "spoil."

[d] Eng. ver., "merchandise," i. e. what the merchant obtains, "profit."

[e] i. e. Woollen garments, which were coloured; in opposition to the linen uncoloured summer clothes.

THE BOOK OF JOB,

ספר איוב.

CHAPTER 1.

1 ¶ There was a man in the land of 'Uz, Job[a] was his name; and this man was perfect and upright, and fearing God, and eschewing evil.

2 And there were born unto him seven sons and three daughters.

3 And his cattle consisted of seven thousand sheep, and three thousand camels, and five hundred yoke of oxen, and five hundred she-asses, and he had a very great store of servants:[b] so that this man was greater than all the sons of the east.

4 And his sons used to go and prepare a feast in the house of every one on his day; and they sent and invited their three sisters to eat and to drink with them.

5 And it happened, when the days of the feast were gone round, that Job sent and sanctified them, and he then rose up early in the morning, and offered burnt-offerings according to the number of all of them; for Job said, It may be that my sons have sinned, and have renounced[c] God in their heart. In this manner used Job to do all the time.

6 Now it happened on a certain day, when the sons of God came to present themselves before the Lord, that the Accuser also came in the midst of them.

7 Then said the Lord unto the Accuser, Whence comest thou? And the Accuser answered the Lord, and said, From roaming over the earth, and from wandering through it.

8 Then said the Lord unto the Accuser, Hast thou directed thy attention[d] toward my servant Job; for there is none like him on the earth, a man perfect and upright, who feareth God, and escheweth evil?

9 Then answered the Accuser the Lord, and said, Is it for nought that Job feareth God?

10 Behold, thou hast indeed placed a fence about him, and about his house, and about all that he hath, on every side: the work of his hands hast thou blessed, and his cattle are far spread out in the land.

11 But stretch only forth thy hand and touch all that he hath, and (see) whether he will not renounce thee to thy face.

12 Then said the Lord unto the Accuser, Behold, all that is his be in thy power;[e] only against himself shalt thou not stretch forth thy hand. The Accuser went thereupon away from the presence of the Lord.

13 And it happened on a certain day, when his sons and his daughters were eating and drinking wine in the house of their first-born brother,

14 That a messenger came unto Job, and said, The oxen were ploughing, and the she-asses were feeding beside them:

15 When the Sabeans made an incursion, and took them away, and the young men they slew with the edge of the sword; and I am escaped, none but myself alone, to tell it unto thee.

16 This one was yet speaking, when another came, and said, A fire of God fell from heaven, and burnt among the sheep and the young men, and consumed them; and I am escaped, none but myself alone, to tell it unto thee.

17 This one was yet speaking, when another came, and said, The Chaldeans posted themselves in three divisions, and made an inroad against the camels, and took them away, and the young men they slew with the edge of the sword; and I am escaped,

[a] Properly, Iyyob.

[b] Others, "agriculture." (See Gen. xxvi. 14.)

[c] ברך certainly can mean "blaspheme," as in 1 Kings xxi. 10; but it means also to bless at parting, to say, "farewell;" hence, "renounce," and afterward to "blaspheme," to "speak disrespectfully," or "bidding farewell to allegiance" to God or the civil government. Rashi and Aben Ezra give "blasphemed." Jonathan, "made angry."

[d] Lit. "Hast thou set thy heart upon."

[e] Heb. "hand."

none but myself alone, to tell it unto thee.

18 While this one was yet speaking, there came also another, and said, Thy sons and thy daughters were eating and drinking wine in the house of their first-born brother:

19 When, behold, a violent wind came from the direction of the wilderness, and struck against the four corners of the house, so that it fell upon the young men, and they died; and I am escaped, none but myself alone, to tell it unto thee.

20 Then arose Job, and rent his robe, and shaved his head, and fell down upon the ground, and prostrated himself,

21 And he said, Naked came I out of my mother's womb, and naked shall I return thither:[a] the LORD gave, and the LORD hath taken away; may the name of the LORD be blessed.

22 With all this did Job not sin, and attributed no injustice to God.[b]

CHAPTER II.

1 ¶ And it happened (again) on a certain day, when the sons of God came to present themselves before the LORD, that the Accuser also came in the midst of them to present himself before the LORD.

2 Then said the LORD unto the Accuser, Whence comest thou now? And the Accuser answered the LORD, and said, From roaming over the earth, and from wandering through it.

3 Then said the LORD unto the Accuser, Hast thou directed thy attention toward my servant Job; for there is none like him on the earth, a man perfect and upright, who feareth God, and escheweth evil? and he is still holding fast to his integrity, and thou hast incited me against him, to destroy him without cause.

4 Then answered the Accuser the LORD, and said, Skin for skin:[c] yea, all that a man hath will he give in behalf of his life.

5 But stretch only forth thy hand, and touch his bone and his flesh, and (see) whether he will not renounce thee to thy face.

6 Then said the LORD unto the Accuser, Behold, he is in thy hand: only take care of his life.

7 Thereupon went the Accuser forth from the presence of the LORD, and he smote Job with a sore inflammation,[d] from the sole of his foot unto the crown of his head.

8 And (Job) took himself a potsherd to scrape himself therewith, while he was sitting down among the ashes.

9 Then said his wife unto him, Art thou still holding fast to thy integrity? renounce[e] God, and die.

10 But he said unto her, Thou speakest as one of the worthless women would speak. What? should we accept the good alone from God, and the evil we should not accept? With all this did Job not sin with his lips.

11 ¶ When now the three friends of Job had heard of all this evil that was come over him, they came every one from his own place, Eliphaz the Themanite, and Bildad the Shuchite, and Zophar the Na'amathite; and they met[f] together to come to condole with him and to comfort him.

12 And when they lifted up their eyes afar off, and they recognised him not, they lifted up their voice, and wept; and they rent every one his robe, and strewed dust upon their heads toward heaven.

13 They likewise sat down with him on the ground seven days and seven nights; but no one spoke a word unto him; for they saw that his pain was very great.

CHAPTER III.

1 After this time Job opened his mouth, and cursed his day.

[a] The general mother—the earth.

[b] Rashi. Others, "he uttered nothing offensive to God."

[c] Rashi comments, "Limb for limb; this is the way of man when he sees a sword extended over his head, he will ward it off with his arm; how much more will he be likely to yield all his wealth to save his life; and this one well knoweth within himself that he is guilty, therefore he grieveth not for his money;" and we may add, "for his children, as nothing is so dear to a man as his own life."

[d] שחין a disease which produces a discoloration of the skin, inflammation of any kind; here supposed to be elephantiasis.

[e] Some would render this verse, "praise God," for what he has done. Others again, "say farewell;" again, "thank him for past favours and then die by thy own hand." Rashi agrees with this version of the end of the verse, as he says ברכת "is imperative." With this view agrees well the answer of Job, stating it to be our duty to submit to the evil as well as to accept the good.

[f] Eng. ver., "they had made an appointment," &c.

2 ¶ And Job commenced, and said,

3 Oh that the day whereon I was born might perish, and the night[a] when it was said, There hath been a male child conceived.

4 May that day be (covered with) darkness; may not God from above inquire for it, and may no light beam upon it.

5 Oh that darkness and the shadow of death might defile[b] it; may a cloud rest upon it; may the blackness[c] of the day terrify it.

6 Yon night—let darkness seize upon it; let it not be united[d] to the days of the year; let it not come into the number of the (periods lighted by the) moon.

7 Lo, may that night be solitary, let no song of joy occur thereon.

8 Let those denounce it that curse the day, who are ready to raise up their mourning cry.[e]

9 Let the stars of its twilight be darkened; let it hope for light, and there be none; and let it not behold the eyelids of the morning-dawn;

10 Because God closed not against me the doors of the womb, and thus concealed trouble from my eyes.

11 Why did I not die (the moment I issued) from the womb? (why) was I not born merely to perish at once?

12 Wherefore were knees ready to receive me? and for what purpose were breasts there that I might suck?

13 For now should I be lying still and be quiet; I should sleep: then would I be at rest,

14 With kings and counsellors of the earth, who build up ruined places for themselves;

15 Or with princes possessing gold, who fill their houses with silver;

16 Or as an untimely birth, hidden (from view) I should not exist; as infants that never have seen the light;

17 There (where) the wicked cease from troubling; and where the exhausted weary are at rest;

18 (Where) the prisoners repose together, (and) they hear no more the taskmaster's voice.

19 The small with the great is there, and the servant free from his master.

20 Wherefore giveth He now light to the labour-laden, and life unto the bitter in soul?

21 Who wait for death, which (cometh) not; and who dig for it sooner than for hidden treasures;

22 Who would rejoice even to exulting, who would be glad could they but find a grave?

23 (Why is light given) to a man whose way is hidden, and around whom God hath placed a fence?[f]

24 For before my food cometh my groaning, and like the water are poured forth my loud complaints.

25 Because what I greatly dreaded is come upon me, and what I apprehended is come unto me.

26 I have had no safety, and no quiet, and no rest; and (now) harrowing trouble is come.

CHAPTER IV.

1 ¶ Then answered Eliphaz the Themanite, and said,

2 If we essay[g] to address a word to thee, wilt thou be wearied? yet who is able to refrain from speaking?[h]

3 Behold, thou hast (ere this) corrected many, and weak hands thou wast wont to strengthen.

4 Him that stumbled thy words used to uphold, and to sinking knees thou gavest vigour.

5 Yet now, when it cometh to thee, thou art wearied: it toucheth even thee, and thou art terrified.

6 Is not then thy fear of God still thy con-

[a] Jonathan, "and the night which said."

[b] Rashi and Aben Ezra. Others, "May darkness, &c. claim it back as their own;" גאל as "to redeem from those who have no equitable right of permanent possession."

[c] Ralbag. Rashi and Aben Ezra, "pestilential vapours," &c.

[d] Others, "Let it not be glad among," &c.

[e] Ralbag. Aben Ezra and others take לויתן to mean, as elsewhere, Leviathan, a sea-monster; and we should then translate, "who are prepared to raise up the sea-monster," i. e. by their enchantments.

[f] Meaning, barred the egress from evil; first, by hiding the path which he should travel, and then keeping him locked up within the bounds of misery.

[g] Jonathan. Rashi, "Art thou wearied because one temptation hath come to thee?" Aben Ezra, נסה for נשא "if we lift up our word?"

[h] Lit. "who is able to reprove with words?"

fidence,[a] thy hope equal to the integrity of thy ways?

7 Remember, I pray thee, who ever perished, being innocent? or where were the righteous destroyed?

8 Even as I have seen, that those who plough wrong-doing, and sow trouble, have to reap the same.

9 Before the breathing of God they perish, and before the breath of his nostrils they come to their end.

10 The roaring of the lion, and the voice of the fierce lion, and the teeth of the young lions, are broken.

11 The old lion perisheth for lack of prey, and the whelps of the lioness have to scatter themselves abroad.

12 But to me a word came by stealth, and my ear took in a scarcely perceptible whisper thereof,

13 In intense thoughts out of visions of the night, when deep sleep falleth on men:

14 Dread came over me, with trembling, and it caused all my bones to shudder.

15 Then flitted a spirit past before my face; the hair of my body stood up:

16 It stood still, but I could not recognise its form; a figure was before my eyes, a slight whisper, then a (louder) voice I heard, saying,

17 Can a mortal be more righteous[b] than God? or can a man be more pure than his Maker?

18 Behold, in his servants he putteth no trust, and his angels he chargeth with folly:

19 How much less in those that dwell in houses of clay, whose foundation is in the dust, who are crushed till they come to be eaten by[c] the moth?

20 From morning to evening are they broken to pieces: without laying it (to heart) they perish for ever.

21 Behold, their excellency which is in them is torn away: they die, and this without wisdom.

CHAPTER V.

1 Do but call: is there one that will answer thee? and to whom of the saints wilt thou turn thyself?

2 For vexation will prove death to a foolish man, and jealousy will slay the simple.[d]

3 I have myself seen the foolish taking root; but I suddenly held his habitation as accursed.

4 His children are far from help, and men crush them in the gate, with no one to deliver them.

5 (He it is) whose harvest the hungry eateth up, and taketh it even out of the thorns, and the robber[e] snatcheth eagerly after their substance.

6 For wrong doth not come forth out of the dust, neither doth trouble grow up out of the ground;

7 But man is born unto trouble, as young birds[f] take up their flight.

8 I, however, would[g] have besought God, and unto God would I have committed my cause;

9 Who doth great things which are unsearchable, marvellous things till they are without number;

10 Who giveth rain upon the surface of the earth, and sendeth out waters over the face of the fields;

11 To set up the lowly on high, that those who mourn may rise high to happiness;[h]

12 (But) who frustrateth the plans of the crafty, so that their hands cannot execute their well-devised counsel;

13 Who catcheth the wise in their own craftiness; and the advice of the perverse is hastened on headlong;

14 By day they meet with darkness, and

[a] Rashi, כסלתך "thy folly," "was then thy fear, thy hope, the integrity of thy ways but sheer folly in thee?"

[b] Löwenthal and Philippson, "Is a mortal righteous before God," &c.

[c] So doth Rashi explain לפני "before."

[d] Arnheim and others, "the babbler."

[e] Jonathan. Rashi makes צמים equal to צמאים "the thirsty," and translates: "some one of the thirsty will snatch at," &c. Philippson, "whether he fetch it out of thornhedges or snatch up his wealth with snares."

[f] Aben Ezra; so also Philippson, who renders, literally, "as the children of the lightning (that fly with lightning speed) fly up high." Others, "the children of the flame," i. e. the sparks. The meaning is, wrong-doing brings evil; men are prone to sin; hence, they prepare themselves trouble, just as sure as sparks, or birds, fly upward; but all is in strict justice.

[g] Rashi, who comments, "Had affliction seized on me, I would have entreated God with prayer and supplication."

[h] Rendered elsewhere, "salvation;" here the opposite to mourning.

as though it were night they grope about in the noon of day;

15 But who saveth from the sword, from their mouth, and from the hand of the mighty, the needy one:

16 And so cometh to the indigent hope, and iniquity stoppeth her mouth.

17 Behold, happy is the man whom God admonisheth: despise then not the correction of the Almighty.

18 For he it is that woundeth, and bindeth up: he smiteth, and his hands do heal.

19 In six distresses will he deliver thee; and in seven there shall no evil touch thee.

20 In famine he redeemeth thee from death; and in war from the power of the sword.

21 Against the scourge of the tongue shalt thou be hidden; and thou needest not be afraid of destruction when it cometh.

22 At destruction and famine canst thou laugh; and thou needest not to have any fear of the beasts of the earth.

23 For with the stones of the field shalt thou have thy covenant; and the beasts of the field shall be at peace with thee.

24 And thou shalt know that there is peace in thy tent; and thou wilt look over thy habitation,[a] and shalt miss nothing.

25 And thou shalt know that thy seed is numerous, and thy offspring as the herbage of the earth.

26 Thou wilt go in a ripe age[b] unto the grave, as a shock[c] of corn is carried home in its season.

27 Behold this, we have searched it out, so it is: hear it, and do thou note it well for thyself.

CHAPTER VI.

1 ¶ Then answered Job, and said,

2 Oh that my vexation could be truly weighed, and my calamity—oh that men might lift it up in the balances at once!

3 For now it is already heavier than the sand of the sea: therefore are my words confused.

4 For the arrows of the Almighty are within me, the poison whereof my spirit drinketh in: the terrors of God set themselves in array against me.

5 Doth the wild ass bray over the grass? or loweth the ox over his fodder?

6 Is ever tasteless food eaten without salt? or is there any flavour in the white of an egg?[d]

7 My soul refuseth to touch them: they are unto me like disgusting[e] food.

8 Oh that some one would grant the accomplishment of my request; and that God would grant me the fulfilment of my hope!

9 Yea, that it would please God that he might crush me: that he would let loose his hand, and make an end of me!

10 Then would this be still my comfort; yea, I would rejoice[f] in my pain while he would not spare: that I have not gainsaid the commands of the Holy One.—

11 What is my strength, that I should wait? and what my end, that I should yet longer retain my patience?[g]

12 Is the strength of stones my strength? or is my flesh brazen?

13 Truly, am I not without my help in me? and is not wise counsel driven far away from me?

14 As[h] though I were one who refuseth kindness to his friend, and forsaketh the fear of the Almighty:

15 My brothers are treacherous as a brook, like flowing brooks they pass along;[i]

16 Which are made turbid[k] by reason of the ice, wherein the snow hideth itself;

[a] Arnheim, "thy pasture."

[b] Rashi. Philippson, after Rambam, "full of vigour."

[c] Philippson, "when the grave's hillock is raised in its season." גדיש, after Sa'adyah, not "shock," but the "grave's hillock." [d] Aben Ezra, "the juice of the mallow."

[e] Philippson, who comments: "as unwillingly as a man tastes unsalted food, so little can the sufferer bear disease without complaining; Job saying this to justify his complaint, as being in the nature of things, and not rebellion." Herxheimer and Eng. ver., "What my soul refused to touch are now the food of my sickness."

[f] Rashi, "I would entreat his forgiveness that he should not spare me." Jonathan, "though I burn in pain and he will not spare." The various versions, "entreat," "burn," and "rejoice," are given by different commentators of the word כלד, only found in this verse.

[g] After Rashi, taking נפש as "will," "desire," "pleasure."

[h] Rashi and Jonathan. Ralbag, "Shall the man that sufferth have disgrace from his friend, saying he hath forsaken," &c Philippson and others, "To the sufferer kindness is due from his friend, even though he forsake the fear of the Almighty."

[i] Philippson, "which overflow." Arnheim, "like the brooks of valleys."

[k] Rashi would render, "which become ice by reason of 17 At the time when they feel the warmth, they vanish; when it is hot, they are quenched out of their place.

18 The paths of their course wind themselves along;[a] they go up in the wilderness and are lost.

19 The caravans of Thema look hither, the travelling companies of Sheba hope for them;

20 But they stand ashamed because they had trusted; they come thither and are made to blush.

21 For truly now ye are like such a one: ye see my terrible state, and are afraid.

22 Have I then ever said, Give me something, and out of your property offer a bribe in my behalf?

23 And deliver me from the hand of the adversary? and redeem me from the hand of tyrants?

24 Teach me, and I will indeed remain silent; and wherein I have erred give me to understand.

25 How pleasant are straightforward words! but what doth your arguing prove?

26 Do ye think to reprove[b] words, and (to regard) as wind the speeches of one that is despairing?

27 Yea, ye would cast any thing upon the fatherless, and ye would dig a pit against your friend.

28 But now, if it please you, turn yourselves toward me, and (say) whether I would lie before your face.

29 Reflect again, I pray you, there will be no wrong: yea, reflect once more, my righteousness (will be found) therein.

30 Is there any wrong on my tongue? or should my palate not understand (if I spoke) what is iniquitous?[c]

CHAPTER VII.

1 Is there not a limited time of service to a mortal upon earth? are not his days also like the days of a hired labourer?

2 As a servant eagerly longeth for the shadow, and as a hired labourer hopeth for his reward:

3 *So was I compelled to possess months of vanity, and nights of trouble were counted[d] out unto me.

4 When I lie down, I say, When shall I arise, and the night[e] be gone? and I am wearied with tossings about till the dawn of day.

5 My flesh is covered with worms and clods of dust: my skin is burst open, and become loathsome.

6 My days hasten away more swiftly than a weaver's shuttle, and they come to an end in the absence of hope.

7 Oh remember that nothing but a breath is my life; that my eye will not again see happiness;

8 The eye of him that seeth me now will not behold me again: (thou fixest) thy eyes upon me, and I am no more.

9 As the cloud vanisheth and passeth away: so will he that goeth down to the nether world not come up again.

10 He will return no more to his house, and his place will not recognise him any more.

11 Therefore will I also not restrain my mouth; I will speak in the anguish of my spirit; I will complain in the bitterness of my soul.

12 Am I a sea, or a monster, that thou settest a watch over me?

13 For should I say, My bed shall comfort me, my couch shall help me bear my complaint:

14 Then wouldst thou frighten me with dreams, and with visions wouldst thou terrify me;

15 So that my soul would choose strangling, death rather than these limbs[f] of mine.

the cold, which are hidden by means of the snow," which covers the course of the stream, so that no one can obtain water from it to quench his thirst.

[a] Meaning, these brooks, being at first nearly empty, glide along in the deep ravines, and at length meet the sands of the desert where they disappear. Philippson applies ארחות, as in ver. 19, to caravans: "The caravans bend thither their way, they get into the wilderness and perish." Ver. 20 completes the picture: the guide assures the travellers that a stream can be found at a certain place; they reach it, but find it empty.

[b] Rashi, "Will you prove your words, which are at last mere words and valueless speeches?"

[c] These two verses are given after Rashi. Philippson renders the last clause, "should my palate not feel sufferings?"

[d] Or "ordained for."

[e] Rashi, taking ערב "evening," for לילה "night," the beginning for the whole; but Philippson, "the evening extendeth itself out."

[f] After Rashi, literally, "bones," i. e. the framework of the body.

16 I loathe[a] it; I cannot live for ever: let me alone; for my days are but nought.

17 What is the mortal, that thou shouldst make him great? and that thou shouldst direct thy heart toward him?

18 And that thou shouldst visit him every morning, probe him every moment?

19 How long wilt thou not turn thy regard from me, nor let me loose till I swallow down my spittle?[b]

20 If I have sinned, what (injury) can I cause unto thee, O thou Guardian of men? why hast thou set me as an object for thee to strike at, so that I am become a burden to myself?

21 And why wilt thou not forgive my transgression, and let my iniquity pass away? for soon[c] must I lie down in the dust; and thou wilt seek for me, but I shall be no more.

CHAPTER VIII.

1 ¶ Then answered Bildad the Shuchite, and said,

2 How long wilt thou speak these things? and (let) like a mighty wind be the words of thy mouth?

3 Should God pervert justice? or should the Almighty pervert righteousness?

4 If thy children have sinned against him, then did he send them off through the means of[d] their transgression.

5 If thou wilt earnestly seek for God, and make thy supplication to the Almighty;

6 If thou become pure and upright: surely then will he watch over thee, and restore thy righteous habitation.

7 And thy beginning will have been small; because thy latter end will grow up greatly.

8 For ask, I pray thee, of an earlier generation, and prepare thyself to (stand by) the research of their fathers;—

9 For we are but of yesterday, and know nothing, because a (mere) shadow are our days upon earth;—

10 Behold, these will truly teach thee, they will speak unto thee, and out of their very heart will they bring forth words:

11 Can the bulrush shoot upward without mire? can the meadow-grass grow up without water?

12 It is yet in its greenness, not yet cut down, when it withereth before any other grass.

13 So are the paths of all that forget God; and the hope of the hypocrite will perish:

14 (It is he) whose trust will be cut off, and but a spider's web is that in which he confideth.

15 He leaneth against his house, but it[e] shall not stand: he layeth fast hold on it, but it shall not remain erect.

16 He is in full vigour before the sun, and over his garden his shoots go forth.

17 His roots are twisted about a stone-heap, he selecteth (for himself) a place of stones.

18 But when men destroy him from his place, then will it deny him, saying, I have never seen thee.

19 Behold, this is the joy of his way, and out of the (same)[f] dust others will grow up.

20 Behold, God will not reject a perfect man, and will not hold fast by their hand the evil-doers:

21 Till he fill thy mouth with laughing, and thy lips with joyful shouting.

22 They that hate thee shall be clothed with shame; and the tent of the wicked shall be no more.

CHAPTER IX.

1 ¶ Then answered Job, and said,

2 Truly I know that it is so: and how could a mortal be righteous before God?

3 If he were desirous to enter into a contest with him, he could not give him one answer out of a thousand.

4 He is wise of heart, and mighty in strength: who hath hardened himself against him, and escaped unscathed?

5 (He it is) who removeth mountains, and

[a] Philippson, "I melt away."

[b] This is a proverbial expression among the Arabs to the present day, signifying the same as, "Let me draw my breath."

[c] Anonymous. Lit. "now." Arnheim, "for now would I lie," &c.

[d] Rashi. Their own sins are become the means of their punishment.

[e] Arnheim, "but he shall not stand," &c.

[f] Arnheim. Rashi, "And from those who were as low as the dust another will grow up (to receive his greatness)."

they know it not, yea, when he overturneth them in his anger;

6 Who shaketh the earth loose out of her place, that her pillars tremble;

7 Who speaketh to the sun, and he shineth not, and around the stars he placeth a seal;

8 Who spread out the heavens by himself alone, and treadeth upon the hillocks of the sea;

9 Who made the Bear, Orion, and the Pleiades, and the chambers of the south;

10 Who doth great things which are quite unsearchable, and wonders which are quite without number.

11 Lo, were he to go past by me, I should not see him; and were he to pass along, I should not perceive him.

12 Behold, were he to snatch aught away, who could hold him back? who would say unto him, What dost thou?

13 God will not withdraw his anger: beneath him sink down the helpers of the proud.[a]

14 How much less then could I answer him, and select my words (to contend) with him?

15 Whom, were I even righteous, I could not answer? to him that condemneth me I could (only) make supplication.

16 Or were I to call, and he would answer me, I could yet not believe that he would give ear unto my voice—

17 He that bruiseth me with (his) tempest, and multiplieth my wounds without a cause.

18 He suffereth me not to recover my breath; but feedeth me overmuch with bitter things.

19 If it regard strength, lo, he is the powerful; and if justice, who will cite him for me to appear?

20 If I were righteous[b] even, my own mouth would condemn me: were I innocent, it would still prove me perverse.

21 I am innocent;[c] I will not have regard for myself; I will despise my life.

22 One thing is (certain),[d] therefore have I said it, The innocent and the wicked he bringeth to their end.

23 If a scourge should slay suddenly, he will mock at the trial of the guiltless.

24 Is a land given up into the hand of the wicked? he covereth the faces of its judges: if this be not the truth, who is it then?

25 And my days pass swifter than a runner: they flee away, they see no happiness, 26 They hasten along like pirate[e] ships: like the eagle that stoopeth down upon his food.

27 If I say, I will forget my complaint, I will leave off my sorrowful countenance, and recover my cheerfulness:

28 O then would I be in dread of all my pains; I know that thou wilt not declare me innocent.

29 I must ever be guilty: why then should I fatigue myself for nought?

30 If I were to wash myself in snow-water, to cleanse myself in the purity of my hands:

31 Even then wouldst thou plunge me in the ditch, that my own clothes would render me abhorred.

32 For he is not a man, like me, that I could answer him, that we should enter together into a contest.

33 There is no one who can decide between us, who could lay his hand upon us both.

34 Let him but remove from me his rod, and let not his dread terrify me:

35 Then would I speak, and not fear him; for the like I feel not within me.

CHAPTER X.

1 My soul is disgusted with my life; I will give free vent to my complaint over myself; I will speak in the bitterness of my soul.

2 I will say unto God, Do not condemn me; let me know for what cause thou contendest against me.

3 Is it well for thee that thou shouldst oppress, that thou shouldst reject the labour of thy hands, and shed light upon the counsel of the wicked?

[a] Philippson, "resistance." Arnheim, "the proud props." Rashi, "of Rahab," i. e. Egypt.

[b] Arnheim, "(But) if I be righteous, shall my own mouth condemn me? if I be innocent, shall it convict me of wicked devices?" and so also v. 21.

[c] Job repeats, he is guiltless, and avers, that he cares not for himself, (lit. "my soul,") whether death ensue this avowal or not.

[d] Rashi; Arnheim, &c. "It is all the same."

[e] Ralbag. Rashi, Ebeh, as the name of a river which flows rapidly. Aben Ezra, "Ebeh, a city." Others, "papyrus ships."

4 Hast thou eyes of flesh? or wilt thou see as a mortal seeth?

5 Are thy days as the days of a mortal, or are thy years as the days of a man,

6 That thou inquirest after my iniquity, and searchest after my sin?

7 Still it is within thy knowledge that I am not wicked, and there is none that can deliver me out of thy hand.

8 Thy hands have carefully fashioned me and made me; every thing is in harmony all round about; and yet thou dost destroy me!

9 Remember, I beseech thee, that as though I were clay hast thou made me; and wilt thou cause me to return again unto the dust?[a]

10 Behold, like milk didst thou pour me out, and like cheese didst thou curdle me.

11 With skin and flesh didst thou clothe me, and with bones and sinews didst thou cover me.[b]

12 Life and kindness didst thou grant me, and thy providence watched over my spirit.

13 And yet these things hadst thou treasured up in thy heart: I know that this was (resolved) within thee.

14 If I have sinned, then dost thou watch me, and from my iniquity thou wilt not declare me guiltless.

15 If I be wicked, wo unto me; and if I be righteous, I can still not lift up my head; I am sated with disgrace, and ever seeing my affliction;

16 And it[c] constantly increaseth; like a fierce lion dost thou hunt for me; and again thou showest thyself continually wonderful on me;

17 Thou ever renewest thy witnesses against me, and causest thy indignation to grow strong against me; changes and multitudes (of sufferings) are around me.

18 Wherefore then didst thou bring me forth out of the womb? Oh that I had perished, and that no eye had seen me!

19 That I were as though I had not been,—had been borne from the womb to the grave.

20 Lo! my days are but few: cease, then, withdraw from me (thy hand), that I may recover my cheerfulness a little,

21 Before I go, and return not, to the land of darkness and the shadow of death,

22 A land of utter gloom, as of the darkness of the shadow of death, without any order, and the light of which[d] is like utter gloom.

CHAPTER XI.

1 ¶ Then answered Zophar the Na'amathite, and said,

2 Shall a multitude of words not be answered? and is it so that a man full of talk shall be deemed in the right?

3 Thy inventions are to bring men to silence; and when thou utterest thy mocking no one is to cause thee to feel abashed!

4 For thou hast said (to God), My doctrine is pure, and I am become clean in thy eyes.

5 But oh that God would but speak, and open his lips against thee;

6 And that he would declare unto thee the secrets of wisdom; for it is double to that which is really in our possession: and thou wouldst experience that God overlooketh[e] unto thee much of thy iniquity.

7 Canst thou find out the experience of God? or canst thou find (the way) unto the utmost limit of the Almighty?

8 It is as high as heaven; what canst thou effect? it is deeper than the nether world; what canst thou know?

9 Longer than the earth is its measure, and broader than the sea.

10 If he pass by, and surrender (one to suffering), and call together an assembly,[f] who can hinder him?

11 For he knoweth the men of vanity: he seeth the wrong-doer and him[g] who considereth not;

[a] Rashi, affirmatively, "and (at last) thou wilt cause me to return unto dust."

[b] Ralbag. Others, "And thou didst branch out within me bones and sinews." Arnheim, "wovest within me," &c.

[c] Aben Ezra. Ralbag, "Oh that it might grow strong, so that thou mightest hunt me up like a lion, (who slayeth at once;) but thou," &c. Rashi, "It is sufficiently great in thy estimation to hunt for me as though I were a lion." Arnheim, "Is my head lifted up—like one hunteth a lion thou wouldst hunt me."

[d] Rashi. Lit. "where it shineth like gloom." Philippson, "where the light is uncertain, like the twilight gloom." אפל would then mean, not perfect darkness, but that gray, uncertain glimmer before perfect night sets in.

[e] Lit. "forgetteth," i. e. he acts as though he had forgotten. Rashi, "that thou art indebted to God for thy iniquity."

[f] i. e. To hold a trial. Aben Ezra renders יחלף with "If he destroy."

[g] Philippson, "Though men should not notice it." Rashi, "although he appeareth not to notice it," i. e. by delaying the punishment.

12 And the heartless who[a] acquireth intelligence, and him who is (like) the colt of the wild ass who is transformed into a man.

13 If thou truly direct (aright) thy heart, and spread out thy hands toward him:—

14 If wrong be in thy hand, put it far away, and let not wickedness dwell in thy tents.

15 For then canst thou lift up thy face free from blemish: yea, thou wilt stand steadfast, and needest not to fear;

16 Because thou wilt truly forget thy trouble, and as a waterflood that is passed away wilt thou remember it;

17 And brighter than the noon of day will thy earthly existence arise; and thy obscurity will be like thy morning.

18 And thou wilt feel trust, because there is hope: yea, thou wilt search about carefully, and thou wilt lie down in safety.

19 Also thou wilt stretch thyself out (to rest), with none to make thee afraid; and many will entreat thy favour.

20 But the eyes of the wicked shall fail, and the means of escape will vanish from them, and their (sole) hope shall be the breathing out of their soul.[b]

CHAPTER XII.

1 ¶ Then answered Job, and said,

2 Truly ye are indeed the (right kind of)[c] people, and with you wisdom must die out.

3 I also have sense like you; I do not fall short compared with you: and who possesseth not such things as these?

4 I am as one laughed at by his friend,[d] who calleth upon God, while he answereth him: (yea,) a laughing-stock though righteous and innocent.

5 To the unfortunate there is given contempt—according to the thoughts of him that is at ease—prepared (also) for those whose foot slippeth.[e]

6 Prosperous are the tents of robbers, and security is given to those that provoke God, to him who carrieth his god[f] in his hand.

7 Yet, do only ask of the beasts, and they will instruct thee; and the fowls of the heavens, and they will tell it thee;

8 Or speak to the earth, and she will instruct thee; and the fishes of the sea will inform thee:

9 Who knoweth not through all these that the hand of the LORD hath wrought this?

10 (He) in whose hand is the soul of every living thing, and the spirit of all the bodies of men?

11 Doth not the ear try words, as the palate tasteth food for itself?

12 So[g] is with the ancients wisdom, and with (those of) length of days understanding,

13 That with him are wisdom and strength, his are counsel and understanding.

14 Behold, he pulleth down, and there can be no rebuilding: he locketh (the prison) upon a man, and there can be no opening.

15 Behold, he restraineth the waters, and they dry up; or he suffereth them to flow, and they overturn the earth.

16 With him are strength and counsel: his are[h] the deceived and the deceiver.

17 He leadeth counsellors away bereft of sense, and maketh the judges fools.

18 He looseth the bond of kings, and bindeth a girdle[i] around their loins.

19 He leadeth priests away bereft of sense, and the powerful he causeth to walk on crooked paths.

20 He removeth the speech from trusty speakers, and taketh away the intelligence of the aged.

[a] Rashi would render this verse, "And so will the heartless acquire a heart, to return unto God; and he who was like the colt of the wild ass will teach himself to become a new man, to watch over his course of life."

[b] i. e. Death. Ralbag renders נפש "grief," "care."

[c] Philippson and others, merely, "you are the people," i. e. every one.

[d] Wolfson, "I, the laughing-stock of my friend, would, were God to answer my prayer, become a joy of the righteous and innocent."

[e] Ralbag. Philippson, "For misfortune there is contempt; ease to the cunning; a push for those who slip;" taking לעשתות as "one who dealeth in cunning thoughts;" and נכון from נכה "to be lame;" hence a thrust or push which makes the slipping lameness.

[f] Aben Ezra and Ralbag; but Rashi, "to whom God hath bestowed it into his hand." Philippson, "who rely on their own hand as God."

[g] Rashi; Arubeim, "is there wisdom in ancients?" &c.

[h] Aben Ezra, "to him (are known) the deceived," &c.

[i] Rashi explains, "At first when they please him he gives them strength and power to rule." Others, "He putteth the girdle with which slaves tie up their garments to labour around their loins."

21 He poureth contempt upon princes, and the belt of the mighty he looseneth.[a]

22 He layeth open deep things from the midst of darkness, and bringeth out unto light the shadow of death.

23 He permitteth the nations to become great, and destroyeth them: he spreadeth out the nations, and leadeth them away.

24 He taketh away the sense of the chiefs of the people of the land, and causeth them to wander astray in a wilderness where there is no way.

25 They grope in the dark without light, and he causeth them to wander astray like a drunken man.

CHAPTER XIII.

1 Lo, all (this) hath my eye seen, my ear hath heard and noted it for itself;

2 As much as ye know, do I also know: I do not fall short compared with you.

3 However, I would gladly speak to the Almighty; and to argue with God do I desire.

4 But ye are inventors of falsehood,[b] physicians of no value are all of you.

5 Oh, who would grant that ye might keep a profound silence! and it would be accounted unto you as wisdom.

6 Do hearken but to my reasoning, and listen to the pleadings of my lips.

7 Will ye speak wrong things for God? and will ye speak for him deceitfully?

8 Will ye show him undue favour, when ye contend for God?

9 Will it be well if he should search you out? or as one overreacheth another mortal, do ye expect to overreach him?

10 He will surely reprove you, if in secret you show him undue favour.

11 Doth not his excellency terrify you? and his dread fall upon you?

12 The things you remember are mere proverbs of ashes, your high-places are high-places[c] of clay.

13 Keep silence toward me, that I may indeed speak, and let pass over me what will.

14 Whatever it may cost, I will[d] take my flesh in my teeth, and my life will I put in my hand.

15 Lo, though he slay me, yet will I trust in him:[e] only I will argue my own ways before him.

16 Even he will come to my assistance; for a hypocrite cannot come before him.

17 Listen well to my word, and to my demonstration with your ears.

18 Behold now, I have arrayed my cause: I know that I shall be indeed justified.

19 Who is he that will contend with me? for now, if I keep silence, I must perish.[f]

20 Only two things do not unto me: then will I not hide myself from thy presence.

21 Remove thy hand far from me; and let not thy dread terrify me.

22 Then call thou, and I will answer; or let me speak, and do thou reply to me.

23 How many are my iniquities and sins? my transgression and my sin let me know.

24 Wherefore wilt thou hide thy face, and regard me as an enemy unto thee?

25 Wilt thou terrify a leaf driven about (by the wind)? and wilt thou pursue dry stubble?

26 That thou writest bitter decrees against me, and assignest unto me the iniquities of my youth;

27 And (that) thou puttest my feet in the stocks, and watchest narrowly all my paths; (and) settest for thyself a mark upon the soles[g] of my feet?

28 And yet the body decayeth like a rotten thing, as a garment that the moth hath eaten.

CHAPTER XIV.

1 Man born of a woman is short of days, and sated with harrowing trouble.

2 Like a flower he cometh forth, and is cut down: and he fleeth like a shadow, and remaineth not.

3 And yet on such a one dost thou open

[a] Meaning, taking away their strength; the belt being the receptacle of the sword and other light arms.

[b] Arnheim, "false quacks."

[c] Meaning, their wisely remembered sayings are worthless as though composed of ashes; their lofty reasoning as weak as fortifications of clay. Others, משלי "are like," "Your memorials are like ashes," &c.

[d] i. e. Will brave every danger.

[e] Arnheim, "Lo, were he to slay me, it would only be what I expect."

[f] Ralbag. Philippson, "for then I would be silent," &c

[g] Heb. "roots;" meaning, man is so circumscribed, having, so to say, a mark on his soles, that he cannot take a step unperceived by God thy eyes, and me thou bringest into judgment with thee?

4 Who can make a clean thing out of an unclean? not one (thing).

5 Seeing that his days are determined, the number of his months are (fixed) with thee, that thou hast set his bounds which he cannot pass:

6 Turn thyself from him that he may recover from his pain, and be able to enjoy like a hired labourer his day.

7 For there is hope for the tree: if it be cut down, it may still sprout again, while its young shoot will not cease.

8 If even its root become old in the earth, and its stock die in the dust:

9 Yet through the scent of water will it flourish (again), and produce boughs as though it were newly planted.

10 But man dieth, and lieth powerless: yea, the son of earth departeth—and where is he?

11 The waters run off from the sea, and the river faileth and drieth up:

12 So doth man lie down, and riseth not; till the heavens be no more, they will not awake, and will not be roused out of their sleep.

13 Oh who would grant that thou mightest hide me in the nether world, that thou mightest conceal me, until thy wrath be appeased, that thou mightest set for me a fixed time, and remember me then!

14 Or, when a man dieth, will he live again? all the days of my time of service would I then wait, till (the hour of) my release were come.

15 Do thou call, and I will truly answer thee: have a desire for the work of thy hands.

16 Yet now thou numberest my steps; and thou waitest[a] not with (the punishment of) my sin.

17 Sealed up in a bag is my transgression, and thou yet addest to my iniquity.

18 But truly a falling mountain will crumble, and (even) a rock is moved out of its place.

19 The water weareth out stones; thou sweepest away their fragments[b] (like) the dust of the earth: and so thou destroyest the hope of man.

20 Thou assailest him with might without ceasing, till he passeth away: thou changest his countenance, and sendest him off.

21 His children acquire honour, but he knoweth it not: and they are esteemed little, but he perceiveth nothing of them.

22 But his body,[c] on him, feeleth pain, and his soul will mourn for him.

CHAPTER XV.

1 ¶ Then answered Eliphaz the Themanite, and said,

2 Should a wise man utter windy knowledge, and fill his inward parts with the east wind?

3 Should he reason with a speech which availeth nothing? and with words in which there is no profit?

4 Yea, thou truly makest void the fear (of God), and diminishest devotion before God.

5 For thy iniquity teacheth thy mouth, so that thou choosest the language of the crafty.

6 Thy own mouth must condemn thee, but not I: yea, thy own lips will testify against thee.

7 Wast thou born as the first man? or wast thou brought forth before the hills?

8 Hast thou listened to the secret counsel of God? and is wisdom therefore of little esteem with thee?[d]

9 What knowest thou, that we do not know? what understandest thou, which is not with us?

10 Both the grayheaded and the very aged are among us,—richer than thy father in days.

11 Are the divine consolations too little for thee? and the word that was so mild[e] with thee?

[a] Rashi. Others, interrogatively, "dost thou not watch over my iniquity? and thou imaginest yet additions to my iniquities."

[b] Rashi; but he translates, "thou sweepest away its fragments to become dust," &c. Philippson, "its fragments is swept off by the dust of the earth" Ralbag, סחיפיה like סחיפיה "their flood (of the water) sweepeth away the dust," &c.

[c] Rashi, referring, as in the text, to the state after death. Ralbag refers it to the state of sickness before death, and renders, "his soul in him mourneth."

[d] Wolfson, after Aben Ezra. Others, "Hast thou taken away," "made it less where it was," i. e. with God, and render, "and hast thou abstracted for thyself wisdom?"

[e] Rashi, לאט as "pleasant," "soft," "imperceptible almost," "gentle to the touch." Aben Ezra, "in secret." Arnheim, "was the word too indistinct for thee?"

12 Whither doth thy heart carry thee away? and what do thy eyes gaze at?

13 That thou shouldst turn against God thy spirit, and utter (such) words out of thy mouth?

14 What is man, that he should be pure? and that he who is born of woman should be declared righteous?

15 Behold, in his holy ones he putteth no trust; and the heavens are not pure in his eyes:

16 How much more then the abominable and corrupt, the man who drinketh like water wrong-doing?

17 I will instruct[a] thee, hear me; and what I have seen will I relate;

18 Which wise men have ever told, and have not concealed, as they obtained[b] it from their fathers;

19 Unto whom alone the earth was given, and into whose midst no stranger ever entered.

20 All his days is the wicked plagued with pain, and the number of years which are laid by for the tyrant.

21 A sound of terrors is in his ears: during peace will the waster come over him.

22 He believeth not that he shall return out of darkness, and he is looked for by the sword.

23 He wandereth abroad for bread, (saying,) Where is it? he knoweth that there is ready at his hand the day of darkness.

24 Distress and anguish terrify him: they assail him with might, as a king prepared for the battle.[c]

25 Because he had stretched out against God his hand, and strengthened himself against the Almighty;

26 (And) he had run against him, with an (extended) neck, with the thick roundings of his bucklers;

27 Because he had covered his face with his fat, and had made thick folds of fat on his flanks;

28 And he had dwelt in abandoned cities, in houses which none inhabited, which were destined to be ruinous heaps.

29 (Yet) will he not remain rich, neither will his wealth endure, nor will he attain their perfection on earth.

30 He will never depart out of darkness: the flame shall dry up his shoots, and he will depart by the breath of God's mouth.[d]

31 Let him that goeth astray not trust in vanity; for vanity will be what he obtaineth thereby.

32 Even before his time will it be overfull, and his branches will not be green.

33 He will shake off like the vine his unripe grapes, and cast off like the olive his blossoms.

34 For the assembly of hypocrites will remain desolate, and fire will consume the tents of bribery.

35 They conceive trouble, and bring forth wrong-doing, and their body prepareth deceit.

CHAPTER XVI.

1 ¶ Then answered Job, and said,

2 I have heard many things such as these: troublesome comforters are ye all.

3 Shall there be any end to words of wind? or what compelleth thee that thou shouldst answer?

4 I also could well speak as ye do: if your soul were but in my soul's stead, I could overwhelm you with words, and could shake my head at you.

5 But I would strengthen you with my mouth, and the condolence of my lips should restrain (your grief).

6 Though I were to speak, my pain would not be restrained; and though I should forbear, what will go away from me?

7 But now he hath made me weary: thou hast made desolate all my company.[e]

8 And thou hast filled me with wrinkles,[f] they are my witnesses; and my leanness riseth up for me, giveth its testimony to my face.

[a] Lit. "show."

[b] Ralbag; i. e. the wisdom derived from their predecessors; but Rashi, literally, "and concealed it not from their fathers."

[c] Ralbag and Aben Ezra. Rashi, "as on a king destined to hell."

[d] Jonathan. Others, literally, "his mouth," as though his own breath were enough to destroy the wicked.

[e] Ralbag, "my limbs," the company forming the body.

[f] Ralbag. Philippson and others refer the verses 7 to 10, not to God, but to Job's friends, chiefly Eliphaz; and render: "But now he hath wearied me—thou hast destroyed all my friendship, and hast pressed me hard—he became a witness, rose up against me with lies, he testified against me in my own presence; his wrath teareth me in pieces; ha! he persecuteth me, he gnasheth his teeth against me, my adversary looketh at me with fiery looks," &c.

9 In his wrath he teareth me to pieces, and assaileth me; he gnasheth over me with his teeth; my adversary sendeth threatening[a] looks at me.

10 They now open wide against me their mouth; reproachfully they smite my cheek: altogether do they assemble against me.

11 God hath surrendered me to the unjust, and cast me down into the hands of the wicked.

12 I was at ease, but he hath crushed me; he hath also grasped me by the neck, and shaken me to pieces, and set me up unto himself as a mark;

13 His archers encompass me round about; he cleaveth my reins asunder, and doth not pity; he poureth out upon the ground my gall;

14 He breaketh me down with breach upon breach; he runneth against me like a mighty man.

15 Sackcloth have I sewed upon my skin, and my horn I roll in the dust.[b]

16 My face[c] gloweth from weeping, and on my eyelids resteth the shadow of death:

17 Not because any violence is in my hands, and while my prayer is pure.

18 Earth! do thou not cover up my blood, and let no place restrain[d] my cry.

19 Even now, behold, my witness is in the heavens, and one that testifieth for me is on high.

20 Are my friends my defenders? unto God my eye poureth out (its tears).

21 And oh that a man might plead[e] with God, as one son of earth with the other!

22 For when the numbered years are passed, then must I travel a path whence I cannot return.

CHAPTER XVII.

1 My spirit is broken, my days are cut short, the grave is ready for me.

2 Yet truly those that mock are with me, and on their offendings must my eye rest.

3 And thou, (Creator!) attend, I pray thee, be my surety with thyself: who else is there that would strike hands with me?

4 For thou hast concealed their heart against intelligence: therefore art thou not exalted (through them).[f]

5 Every one of them speaketh deceptively[g] to his friends: may also the eyes of his children fail.

6 And he hath placed me here as a by-word unto nations; and I become openly as a place of abomination.[h]

7 Therefore is my eye dim from vexation, and my limbs are all of them like a shadow.

8 Upright men must be astonished at this, and the innocent must arouse himself against the hypocrite.

9 Yet will the righteous hold firmly on to his way; and he that is clean of hands will acquire additional strength.

10 But all of you, do only return, and come but (to me): and yet I shall not find among you one wise man.

11 My days are past, my resolves are broken off, (even the thoughts)—the possessions of my heart.

12 These would change the night into day, the light as near[i] in the presence of darkness,—

13 When I hope for the nether world as my house; in the darkness have I spread my couch;

14 When I call to corruption, Thou art my father: Thou art my mother, and my sister, to the worms.

15 Ay, where is then my hope? as for my hope, who will see it (fulfilled)?

16 Let then my limbs sink down to the

[a] Lit. "he sharpeneth his eyes at me."

[b] Rashi, "Upon my cicatrized wound have I sewed sackcloth, and defiled in the dust my splendour;" קרן being often, "ray of light." But horn is the emblem of power here no less than elsewhere.

[c] Rashi, "is shrivelled."

[d] Rashi, "let no place swallow up my cry, but let it ascend to heaven." Philippson, "let no space limit my cry." Lit. "let there be no place for," &c.

[e] Rashi and Ralbag. Philippson, "that he may plead for a man before God, (i. e. himself,) and judge the son of earth for his friend." Arnheim, "that he may argue with a man who hath a contest with God, as one son of earth with the other."

[f] Rashi. Aben Ezra, "thou wilt not exalt (them)."

[g] Rashi, &c. Philippson, "As my portion hath he assigned me friends." The difficulty is in the word לחלק which is of uncertain derivation, being either "part," or "flattery—smoothness of tongue."

[h] Jonathan, the same as Thopeth, near Jerusalem, where the idols were worshipped. So also Aben Ezra, "as the place of Thopeth before the children of men." Others, "as one who is to be spit in the face."

[i] Rashi, "as newly come."

nether world: truly in the dust alone there is rest for all.[a]

CHAPTER XVIII.

1 ¶ Then answered Bildad the Shuchite, and said,

2 When will ye at length put an end to words? Come to an understanding, and afterward let us speak.

3 For what cause are we counted as beasts, reputed stupid in your eyes?

4 Thou, the one that teareth himself to pieces in his anger—shall for thy sake the earth be forsaken, and the rock[b] be moved away out of its place?

5 Ah, truly the light of the wicked will be quenched, and the spark[c] of his fire shall not give light.

6 The light becometh dark in his tent, and his lamp will be quenched above him.

7 His powerful steps will be narrowed, and his own counsel will cast him down.

8 For he is driven into the net by his own feet, and he taketh his walk upon a snare.

9 The trap will seize him by the heel, and the robber[d] will prevail over him.

10 The cord is hidden for him in the ground, and a trap is set for him on the pathway.

11 All around do terrors scare him, and chase him as he walketh along.[e]

12 His first-born[f] will suffer hunger, and calamity will be ready for his wife.[g]

13 It will devour the limbs of his body: yea, the first-born[h] of death will devour his limbs.

14 Then will be plucked up out of his tent his confidence, and (the evil) will urge him forward to the king of terrors.

15 It will dwell in his tent, because it is no more his: there will be strewed sulphur on his habitation.

16 Beneath, his roots will be dried up, and above will his boughs be cut away.

17 His remembrance vanisheth from the earth, and no name remaineth for him in the streets.

18 Men will thrust him out from light into darkness, and out of the world will they drive him.

19 He will have neither son nor grandson among his people, nor any that escapeth in the places of his sojourning.

20 Because of his (calamitous) day are they that come after him astonished, and they that went before are seized with shuddering.

21 Yea, such are the dwellings of the unjust, and this is the place of one that knew not God.

CHAPTER XIX.

1 ¶ Then answered Job, and said,

2 How long will ye grieve my soul, and crush me with words?

3 These ten times have ye reproached me: ye are not ashamed when ye show yourselves as strangers to me.[i]

4 Yea, if it be indeed that I have erred, let my error remain with myself.

5 But if indeed ye wish to magnify yourselves above me, and to prove against me my disgrace:

6 Then know for certain that God hath bent me down, and hath laid his net all around me.

7 Behold, I cry out concerning the violence (done me), but I am not answered: I entreat aloud, but there is no justice.

8 My road hath he fenced up, so that I cannot pass out; and on my paths he placeth darkness.

9 My glory hath he stripped from me, and removed the crown of my head.

10 He hath pulled me down on every side, and I am going hence; and he hath rooted up like a tree my hope.

11 He hath also kindled against me his wrath, and he counteth me with himself as one of his adversaries.

[a] Rashi. Philippson, "In the solitude of the grave all descend, when we rest together in the dust." Arnheim, "To the bars of the nether world they descend, when we go down to the dust altogether." The difficulty here is in the word בדי, which the first interprets as "limbs," the other as "solitude," and the last as "bars."

[b] Rashi, "the Creator be moved from his knowledge and wont."

[c] Others, "flame."

[d] The one who has laid the snare.

[e] Lit. "at his feet."

[f] Jonathan; lit. "his strength."

[g] Jonathan. Lit. צלע "rib." Gen. i. 21. Others, "His strength wasteth from hunger, and calamity is ready at his side."

[h] A trusty servant of death, such as hunger, war, pestilence.

[i] Jonathan. Fürst, "ye condemn me." Others, "ye show yourselves insolent to me."

12 Altogether come on his troops, and make level against me their way, and encamp round about my tent.

13 My brothers hath he removed far from me, and my acquaintance are entirely estranged from me.

14 My near of kin have withdrawn, and those befriended by me have forgotten me.

15 Ye that sojourn in my house, and my maid-servants, regard me as a stranger: an alien am I become in their eyes.

16 I call for my servant, but he will not answer, though I were to entreat him with my mouth.

17 My breath is become nauseous to my wife, and my caressing, to the children of my own body.

18 Yea, children even despise me: I rise up, but they speak against me.

19 All that have had my confidence abominate me; and those whom I have loved are turned against me.

20 To my skin and to my flesh my bones do cleave, and I must sustain myself with the gums[a] of my teeth.

21 Spare me, spare me, O ye, my friends; for the hand of God hath touched me.

22 Why will ye persecute me as God (hath done), and will never be satisfied with my flesh?

23 Oh who would but grant, that my words might be written down! oh who would grant that they were entered in a book!

24 That they were hewn with an iron pen and (blackened with)[b] lead for eternity in the hard rock!

25 And well I know that my redeemer liveth, and that he will remain as the last after the creatures[c] of the dust (are passed away);

26 And after my skin is cut to pieces will this[d] be: and then freed from my body shall I behold God;

27 Whom I shall myself behold to my happiness,[e] and whom my eyes will see, and not as a stranger,[f] (when even) my reins are consumed within my bosom.

28 But if ye should say, How will we pursue him? seeing the root[g] of the matter is found in me:

29 Then have dread for yourselves of the sword; for the wrath (which ye excite) is an iniquity that bringeth the sword; in order that ye may know there is one that judgeth (in the world).

CHAPTER XX.

1 ¶ Then answered Zophar the Na'amathite, and said,

2 Even therefore do my inmost thoughts give me an answer, and for this reason do I feel a strong excitement within me.

3 Reproof which casteth shame on me must I hear: yet out of my understanding will the spirit give me an answer.

4 Dost thou know this? from the very beginning of things, from the very time when man was placed upon earth it was,

5 That the triumphal shouting of the wicked is ever of but a recent date, and the joy of the hypocrite endureth only for a moment.

6 Though his exaltation should mount up to the heavens, and his head should reach unto the clouds:

7 Yet when he but turneth round will he vanish for ever; those who have seen him will say, Where is he?

8 Like a dream will he fly away, and men will find him no more: yea, he will be chased away like a vision of the night.

9 If an eye have surveyed him, it will not do so again, and it will not behold him any more in his place.

10 His children will suffer oppression[h]

[a] After Rambam. Lit. "and I make my escape with the skin of my teeth." The meaning is, that the teeth having fallen out, he just contrives to chew enough with the gums to sustain life.

[b] So doth Rashi explain this verse. Philippson, "with an iron style in lead."

[c] Rashi, taking עפר "the dust," as "those formed of the dust." Philippson, "over my dust."

[d] After Jonathan. Rashi, however, "in my flesh shall I see the judging God."

[e] Löwenthal, taking לי "for me" as לטובתי "for my happiness"

[f] After Philippson, זר "a stranger" or "an enemy." Others render, "My own eyes shall see him, and no stranger," i. e. he will not need to take the assertion of another, as he himself will obtain correct and unequivocal knowledge of the Almighty.

[g] i. e. The cause of his suffering was his own conduct. Rashi, however, "And if ye should say, Why should we persecute him, and what is the root of the matter on which he dependeth? (you will never comprehend all this happiness)."

[h] Rashi, from רצץ, "to crush, oppress." Aben Ezra, "seek the favour of the poor," from רצה "to please," "to receive in favour;" here in the Piel form, "to seek for favour."

from the indigent, and his hands will have to restore his (ill-gotten) wealth.

11 (Now) his bones are full of his youthful vigour;[a] but it will (suddenly) lie down with him in the dust.

12 If the evil be sweet in his mouth, he will conceal it under his tongue;

13 He will cherish it, and not forsake it; and hold it back within his palate:

14 His food is thus changed within his bowels, and becometh the venom of asps within him.

15 The wealth which he hath swallowed, will he have to vomit up again: God will drive it out of his belly.

16 The poison of asps will he have to suck: the viper's tongue will slay him.

17 He shall not look with pleasure on streams, on flowing brooks of honey and cream.

18 He restoreth what he hath laboured for, and will not swallow it down: however much he may have obtained[b] by toil, he will not have any joy of it.

19 Because he oppressed and forsook the indigent; because he took violently away a house, shall he not rebuild it;

20 Because he knew not quietness in his bosom, shall he not escape through what is the most precious to him.

21 Nothing was spared from his craving to eat: therefore shall his wealth not prosper.[c]

22 In the fulness of his abundance will distress assail him: every hand of (those he) troubled will come against him.

23 In order to fill his belly, (God) will send out[d] against him the fury of his wrath, and will rain it upon him for his eating.

24 If he flee from the iron weapon, the brazen bow will strike him through.

25 He draweth it, and[e] it cometh out of the body; yea, out of his gall the glittering (arrow) cometh forth: over him come the terrors (of death).

26 Entire darkness is laid by for his treasures: a fire not urged by blowing will consume him; it will destroy any one that is left in his tent.

27 The heavens will lay open his iniquity; and the earth will raise herself up against him.

28 The product of his house will be banished, flowing away on the day of his wrath.

29 This is the portion of a wicked man from God, and his decreed heritage from God.

CHAPTER XXI.

1 ¶ Then answered Job, and said,

2 Hear, O hear my speech, and let this be wherewith you give consolations.

3 Bear with me that I may indeed speak: and after my speaking, then canst thou mock.

4 As for me,—is against man my complaint? and if this be so, why should my spirit not be impatient?

5 Turn yourselves unto me, and be astounded, and lay your hand upon your mouth.

6 Yea, when I think of it, I am terrified, and shuddering seizeth hold of my flesh.

7 Wherefore do the wicked live, become old, yea, grow strong in power?

8 Their seed is firmly established in their presence with them, and their offspring are before their eyes.

9 Their houses are at peace without any dread, and no rod of God (cometh) over them.

10 The bull of each one gendereth, and disappointeth not: the cow of each one calveth, and casteth not her young.

11 They send forth their little ones like a flock, and their children skip about (with joy).

12 They sing to the timbrel and harp, and rejoice at the sound of the pipe.

13 They wear out their days in happiness,

[a] Jonathan and Rashi. Aben Ezra, "his secret sins, which will lie," &c.; but the singular "it" of השכב must refer to that possessed by עלומיו, i. e. the strength or vigour.

[b] Rashi, "When that which he hath exchanged is great wealth, then will he come to want, and have no joy of it." תמורה must be understood here, "the exchange for toil."

[c] Arnheim. Rashi renders the first part of the verse, "He left nothing of his food to divide among the poor."

[d] Rashi. Others, "When he is about—then will God, &c.—while he is eating."

[e] Arnheim, after Rashi, "He draweth (it) and it cometh forth out of its scabbard, (נוד, not "body," but "the scabbard of a sword;") and the glittering arrow passeth out of its poison over him (with) terrors."

and in a moment they go down to the nether world.

14 And yet they say unto God, "Depart from us; and the knowledge of thy ways we desire not.

15 What is the Almighty, that we should serve him? and what profit shall we have, if we entreat him urgently?"

16 Lo, not in their hand[a] doth their happiness rest! The counsel of the wicked be (still) far from me.

17 How often is the lamp of the wicked quenched?[b] and how often cometh over them their calamity? and doth (God) distribute their lot in his anger?

18 Are they as straw before the wind, and as chaff which the storm stealeth away?[c]

19 Should God lay up for his children his wrong-doing? it were better that he reward him, that he might know it himself.

20 His own eyes ought to see his downfall, and from the wrath of the Almighty ought he to drink.

21 For what care[d] hath he for his household after him, when the number of his months is all apportioned to him?

22 Is this fitting God,[e] who teacheth knowledge? him who judgeth those that are highest?

23 That this one dieth in his full strength, being wholly at ease and quiet;

24 His vessels being full of healthy fluid, and the marrow of his bones being well moistened:

25 While this other dieth with an embittered soul, and hath never partaken of any happiness;[f]

26 (And yet) together they must lie down in the dust, and the worms will cover them?

27 Behold, I know your thoughts, and the opinions which ye wrongfully devise against me.

28 For ye say, Where is the house of the noble-minded? and where is the tent of the dwelling-places of the wicked?

29 Have ye not asked the wayfarers? surely their token ye cannot disregard,

30 That the bad man is reserved for the day of calamity, (that the wicked) are carried forward to the day of wrath.

31 (But) who will tell him to his face of his way? and who will repay him what he hath done?

32 Yea he will indeed be carried to the grave, and men will quickly think of his monument:

33 Sweet are to him the clods of the valley; and after him succeedeth every man, as those that were before him are without number.

34 How then will ye comfort me with vanity? and of your answers there remaineth only deception.

CHAPTER XXII.

1 ¶ Then answered Eliphaz the Themanite, and said,

2 Can a man be serviceable[g] unto God? Truly the intelligent is serviceable unto himself.

3 Is it any pleasure to the Almighty that thou art righteous? or is it any gain to him, that thou makest thy ways perfect?

4 Is it out of fear of thee that he will reproach thee? or go with thee into judgment?

5 Is not thy evil great? and no end to thy iniquities?

6 For thou hast taken a pledge from thy brothers for nought, and stripped the naked of their clothing.

7 Thou hast not given water to the weary to drink, and from the hungry thou hast withholden bread.

8 But as for the man of a strong arm, he obtained[h] the land, and the highly honoured could dwell therein.

9 Widows hast thou sent away empty, and the arms of the fatherless have been broken.

10 Therefore are snares round about thee, and sudden dread terrifieth thee.

[a] Rashi, "Is not their happiness in their hand?"

[b] Philippson conceives that Job quotes the assertions of his friends, and shows their defects. (See xviii. 5, &c.; xx. 10, 28.)

[c] Others, affirmatively, "they are as straw," and so also the end of verse 17.

[d] Rashi. Lit. "desire."

[e] Philippson. Rashi, "Is one of you in God's place, who will teach knowledge how this is?"

[f] Lit. "hath not eaten of."

[g] Rashi would translate, "Can a man teach God, when he, the intelligent, teacheth men knowledge?" or "Can man labour for the benefit of God?" &c. עליכו is referred by Rashi to "mankind;" others, to "himself," although it is a plural form.

[h] Rashi, "Shalt thou, because thou art of a strong arm, obtain the land, and shall the highly honoured dwell therein?"

11 Or seest thou not the darkness? and the abundance of water which covereth thee?

12 Is not God in the height of heaven? and beholding[a] the highest elevation of the stars, however high they are?

13 But thou sayest, "What doth God know? can he judge behind the darkness?

14 Thick clouds are a covering for him, so that he will not see; and he walketh along on the c rcle of heaven."

15 Wilt thou (thus) observe the path of ancient times which the men of injustice have trodden?

16 Who were shrivelled up before their time, whose foundation was flooded[b] away like a river;

17 Who said unto God, "Depart from us:' and what wrought the Almighty for them?

18 And yet it was he that filled their houses with good things; but the counsel of the wicked be (still) far from me.

19 The righteous will see it, and be glad; and the innocent will laugh them to scorn.

20 "Is not he destroyed that rose up against us, and hath not the fire consumed what they had left?"[c]

21 Do but become acquainted with him, and be at peace: thereby will happiness come unto thee.

22 Do but accept instruction from his mouth, and lay up his sayings in thy heart.

23 If thou return to the Almighty, thou shalt be built up, so thou wilt but remove wrong-doing far away from thy tents.

24 And throw[d] down in the dust precious metals, and (the gold of) Ophir to the stones of the brooks:

25 Then will the Almighty be thy precious metal, and brightly-shining silver unto thee.

26 For then wilt thou have in the Almighty thy delight, and thou canst lift up unto God thy face.

27 Thou wilt make entreaty unto him, and he will hear thee, and thy vows wilt thou pay.

28 And if thou decree a thing, it will be fulfilled unto thee; and upon thy ways the light will shine.

29 For when men are brought low,[e] thou wilt say, Pride (hath done it); but those of lowly eyes (God) will help.

30 He will even deliver him who is not guiltless: and thou wilt be[f] delivered by the purity of thy hands.

CHAPTER XXIII.

1 ¶ Then answered Job, and said,

2 Even now is my complaint bitter: my suffering is heavier than my groans.

3 Oh who would grant that I knew where I might find him! that I might attain to his judgment throne!

4 I would put in order before him my cause, and my mouth would I fill with arguments.

5 I should know the words which he might answer me, and understand what he might say unto me.

6 Would he with his power contend against me? he would truly not lay such doings to my charge.[g]

7 There would an upright one[h] argue with him; and I should be allowed to escape for ever by my judge.

8 But, lo, I go eastward—and he is not there; and to the west—and I cannot perceive him;

9 When he doth great things at the north, I behold him not; he hideth himself in the south—and I see him not.

10 But he[i] knoweth the way that I take: were he to probe me, I should come forth as gold.

11 On his steps my foot hath held fast: his way have I kept, and swerved not.

12 From the commandment of his lips have I also not moved away: as a fixed sta-

[a] Rashi, as in x. 15. Others, "Look at the head of the stars, how high they are."

[b] Rashi, "over whose foundation a river was poured forth."

[c] After Arnheim. Rashi, however, קימנו "the high estate;" יתרם "the excellence" of that generation.

[d] Löwenthal and others, after Ralbag, כצר "as gold ore." But Jonathan, "And place on the dust a strong fortress, and as the rocks of brooks the gold of Ophir: then will the Almighty be to thee a strong fortress, and more than silver be the strength of thy exaltation."

[e] Aben Ezra. Rashi, "When men are brought low, thou canst say, they shall be lifted up, and it will be."

[f] Aben Ezra supplying אתה "thou wilt be delivered." He also renders אי נקי "the isle of the innocent."

[g] Rashi; meaning, "only justice, not false charges, would he obtain from God." Aben Ezra, "No, he would have regard for me." Ralbag, "he would put (strength) in me."

[h] Rashi, "My righteousness would be clear before him."

[i] Though God is unseen, he knows the deeds of man.

tute[a] for me have I treasured up the sayings of his mouth.

13 But he is unchangeably one,[b] and who can turn him? and what his will desireth, even that he doth.

14 For he will bring to completion what hath been destined for me: and like these hath he many other things with him.

15 Therefore am I terrified at his presence: I will reflect, and be in dread of him.

16 Still God hath made timid my heart, and the Almighty hath terrified me;

17 Because I was not destroyed before this darkness, and because he hath not hidden from my face (this) gloom.

CHAPTER XXIV.

1 Why are not times (of punishment) treasured up[c] by the Almighty, and why do his adorers not see his days (of retribution)?

2 (The wicked) remove landmarks: they rob flocks, and feed them.[d]

3 They drive away the ass of the fatherless, they take in pledge the widow's ox.

4 They chase the needy out of the highway: altogether hide themselves the poor of the earth.

5 Behold,[e] as wild asses in the wilderness go they forth to their work, rising betimes after (their) prey: the desert yieldeth food for them and for their young men.

6 In the field they reap their food;[f] and in the vineyard of the wicked they gather the fruit.

7 They cause (the poor) to spend the night naked, without clothing and without any covering in the cold.

8 Through the sweeping rain of the mountains are they made wet, and for want of a shelter do they embrace the rock.

9 The others pluck from the breast the fatherless, and the garment[g] of the poor they take in pledge.

10 They cause him[h] to go naked without clothing, and from the hungry they take away the sheaf:

11 Within their walls do they make oil, they tread their winepresses, and suffer thirst.

12 Out of a populous city is groaning heard, and the soul of the deadly wounded crieth out: yet God regardeth it not as an offence.

13 Yon men are of those that rebel against the light: they know not its ways, nor abide in its paths.

14 With the earliest light riseth the murderer, he slayeth the poor and needy, and in the night he becometh like the thief.

15 And the eye of the adulterer watcheth for the twilight, saying, No eye will see me; and placeth a covering on his face.

16 They break into houses in the dark, in the daytime they lock themselves in:[i] they know not the light.

17 For to all of these alike is the morning as the shadow of death; for they are familiar with the terrors of the shadow of death.

18 Swift[k] are such men (to flee) on the face of the water; accursed is their field on the land; none of them turneth himself to the way of the vineyards.

19 Drought and heat speedily consume the snow-waters: so doth the grave those who have sinned.

20 The mother that bore such a one will forget him; the worm will feed sweetly on him; he will be no more remembered; and like a tree will wickedness be broken.

[a] Rashi, "more than my apportioned food have I," &c.

[b] Others, "He persevereth in one thing, and who can gainsay him?"

[c] Löwenthal, Herxheimer, and Philippson. Arnheim and Eng. ver., "Why—since from the Almighty, destinies are not hidden—do not those who know him see his days (of punishment)?"

[d] i. e. They have no fear nor shame in exhibiting their wrongfully obtained possessions.

[e] Rashi and others conceive verses 5 and 6 to represent the robbers; Philippson, the state of the poor, who have to seek for means to sustain life: he renders also verse 7, "They (the poor) spend their nights," &c. Others, again, imagine this and verse 8 also to refer to the robbers, especially the Bedouins, who are often in the greatest want, notwithstanding their dishonest mode of life. But we must then assume that, as early as Job, Arabia was in the same condition it is now.

[f] Aben Ezra, בלילו, not "his food," lit. "fodder," but בלי לו "not his,"—"they hold harvest in a field not theirs." [g] Ralbag.

[h] Rashi and Aben Ezra. Arnheim, "These (the poor) go about naked without clothes, and hungering do they carry sheaves."

[i] Others,—"the houses which in the daytime they had marked for themselves."

[k] Ralbag and Aben Ezra. Philippson, "Swift is he on the face of the waters; if his portion be accursed on the land, he turneth no more the way to the vineyards. In the desert and in the heat they plunder, in the snow-water of the deep they sin." Arnheim and Herxheimer nearly so, with some variations.

21 He ill-treateth the barren that beareth not; and to the widow he acteth not well.

22 But he[a] also draweth down the mighty with his power: when he riseth up, no one is sure of life.

23 To such (God) granteth to be in safety, that he may find support; and His eyes are upon their ways.

24 They are exalted; in but a little while they are no more; and they are brought down low: like all others are they gathered in, and like the top of the ear of corn are they cut off.[b]

25 But if it be not so, who will prove me a liar, and render as nought my word?

CHAPTER XXV.

1 ¶ Then answered Bildad the Shuhite, and said,

2 Dominion and dread are with him: he maketh peace in his high places.

3 Can the number of his hosts be given? and over whom riseth not his light?

4 How then can man be justified with God? or how can be pure one that is born of woman?

5 Behold, even as regardeth the moon, that is not bright: yea, the stars are not pure in his eyes.

6 How much less the mortal, the mere worm? and the son of earth, the mere maggot?

CHAPTER XXVI.

1 ¶ Then answered Job, and said,

2 What assistance hast thou given to the powerless? (how) hast thou helped the arm without strength?

3 How hast thou counselled the unwise? and what sound wisdom hast thou made known so plentifully?

4 To whom hast thou told words? and whose spirit came from thee?

5 The departed are called into being[c] beneath the waters, and their inhabitants.

6 Naked is the nether world before him, and there is no covering for the place of corruption.

7 He stretched out the north over empty space; he suspended the earth on nothing;

8 He bound up the waters in his clouds; and the cloud bursteth not under their weight;

9 He closed up the surface of his throne, spreading over it his cloud;

10 A fixed limit he compassed off over[d] the face of the waters, for the division of the light and darkness.

11 The pillars of heaven tremble greatly, and are astounded at his rebuke.

12 By his power he split[e] in pieces the sea, and by his understanding he crushed (its) pride:

13 By his breath the heavens (acquired) beauty; his hand hath created the flying serpent.

14 Lo, these are ends of his ways; for how slight a whisper is heard (by us) of him! but the thunder of his mighty deeds who can understand?

CHAPTER XXVII.

1 ¶ And Job continued taking up his parable, and said,

2 As God liveth, who hath removed justice from me; and by the Almighty, who hath embittered my soul:

3 All the while my breath is in me, and the spirit of God is in my nostrils,

4 Shall my lips not speak any wrong, nor shall my tongue utter deceit.

5 Far be it from me that I should justify you: till I depart hence will I not allow (any one) to take my integrity away from me.

6 I have laid fast hold on my righteousness, and I will not let it go: my heart shall

[a] Rashi supplies here also "God"—"God draweth down these mighty ones to punishment: their day cometh, and they trust not their life." But the whole of this chapter is exceedingly difficult to render, as the imagery is so rapid, and every one of the commentators forms his own opinion.

[b] i. e. The wicked die often without pain; they sin and depart hence like the good.

[c] When God surveys the world, the dead are again present (born) under his view.

[d] After Philippson; i. e. God expanded the essence of light over the deep. (Gen. i. 2, 3.) Rashi, "God drew a circle over the water to last till light and darkness be no more." Wolfson, "His law limiteth the water, and fixeth the ends of light and darkness." Arnheim, "He drew a circle on the face of the water to the limit of light and darkness." Aben Ezra explains, "to where light and darkness are separated."

[e] Rashi, after whom Arnheim, referring to the creation. But Philippson, "he stirreth up the sea—breaketh the storm—the heavens become clear—and the flying serpent (constellation Ophiuchus) appeareth in the sky."

not reproach me (for my conduct) during all my[a] life.

7 Like the wicked is[b] (therefore) my enemy, and he that riseth up against me like a wrong-doer.

8 For what is the hope of the hypocrite, when[c] he hath gained unjust wealth, when God casteth forth his soul?

9 Will God hear his cry, when distress cometh upon him?

10 Or can he find delight in the Almighty? can he call on God at all times?

11 I will instruct you concerning what is in the hand of God: (the way) which is with the Almighty will I not conceal.

12 Lo! ye yourselves have all beheld it: why is it then that ye deal in such vanities?

13 This[d] is the portion of a wicked man with God, and the portion of tyrants, which they shall receive from the Almighty.

14 If his children be multiplied, it is only for the sword; and his offspring will not be satisfied with bread.

15 Those of his that are left to escape will be buried by death; and his widows will not be able to weep.

16 Though he heap up silver as the dust, and prepare garments (as plentifully) as the clay:

17 He may prepare, but the righteous will clothe himself (therewith), and the silver the innocent will divide.

18 He buildeth his house like the moth, and like a hut that a keeper hath made.

19 Rich will he lie down, but will not be gathered (into the grave):[e] one openeth his eyes, and he is no more.

20 Like a flood will terror overtake him, in the night a tempest will steal him away.

21 The east wind will lift him up, and he must be gone; and it hurleth him like a storm out of his place.

22 And (God)[f] will cast (evil) upon him, and have no pity: out of his hand (his wealth)[g] will surely escape.

23 Men will clap their hands over him, and will hiss after him out of his place.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

1 For truly there is a source for the silver, and a place for the gold which men refine.

2 Iron is taken out of the dust, and the stone is melted into copper.

3 An end doth he set to darkness, and the very utmost limit doth he search out, the stones of darkness, and of the shadow of death.

4 He breaketh a channel[h] far from the inhabited place; those of unsteady foot,[i] the poorest of men move (there about).

5 The earth, out of which cometh forth bread, is under its surface turned up as it were with fire.

6 Her stones are the place whence the sapphire cometh; and golden dust is also there;

7 (On the) path which no bird of prey knoweth, and which the vulture's eye hath not surveyed;

8 (Which) ravenous beasts have never trodden, over which the lion hath never passed.

9 To the flinty rock he stretcheth forth his[k] hand; he overturneth the mountains from the root.

10 Amid rocks he heweth out canals; and every precious thing doth his eye behold.

[a] Rashi. Others, "my heart shall not cast blame on one of my days."

[b] After Rashi, who regards יהי "he will be," as the consequence of the preceding verse. So also Philippson and Löwenthal; not "Let my enemy be."

[c] Jonathan. Philippson, "For what is the hope of the ungodly? that God should cut off, that he should take away his soul."

[d] Philippson considers verses 13 to 23 as containing a recapitulation of the arguments of Job's friends, which he had already refuted, and called them hence "vanities." Rashi, however, views this passage as meaning: Job says, "Ye have seen all I relate; why then will ye be hypocrites, in saying vain things of God?"

[e] Rashi. Others, "He layeth himself down being rich; but he will not be (so) buried; if he were to open his eyes—it would be gone."

[f] Rashi. Philippson refers it to the storm.

[g] Aben Ezra. Rashi, "his friend will flee far away." Herxheimer, "He casteth away all that is on him, and spareth not; he only desireth to flee from its power (of the storm);" so also Philippson, the last clause of the verse.

[h] The simplest explanation of this difficult verse is to assume, with Herxheimer and others, that it refers to mining, where channels and galleries are broken, wherein the most miserable of men, often slaves and criminals, have to take out the ore at the peril of life.

[i] Lit. "who are forgotten by the foot;" explained by Philippson as "those who from their confinement in mines are unsteady in their walk."

[k] Rashi and Aben Ezra refer verses 9 to 11 to God, as having done so at the creation; but other commentators think they refer to man in his mining operations.

11 The various droppings[a] of water he maiteth into streams, and what is hidden he bringeth forth to light.

12 ¶ But wisdom—where shall she be found? and where is the place of understanding?

13 Man knoweth not her value; and she is not to be found in the land of the living.

14 The deep saith, Not in me is she: and the sea saith, She is not with me.

15 No fine gold can be given in lieu of her, and silver cannot be weighed out as her price.

16 She cannot be valued with the gold of Ophir, with the precious onyx, or the sapphire.

17 She cannot be estimated after gold and glass; and not in exchange for her (can) vessels of refined gold (be taken.)

18 Coral and crystal will not be thought of;
and the value of wisdom is above pearls.

19 She cannot be estimated after the topaz of Ethiopia, nor can she be valued with pure gold.

20 ¶ But wisdom—whence cometh she?
and where is the place of understanding?

21 Yea, she is hidden from the eyes of all living, and from the fowls of the heavens is she concealed.

22 Perdition and death say, With our ears have we heard a report of her.

23 God (alone) understandeth her way,
and he knoweth her place;

24 For he looketh to the ends of the earth, (whatever is) under the whole heaven doth he see.

25 When he imparted weight unto the wind; and (when) the waters he established by measure;

26 When he made a law for the rain, and a way for the lightning of (his) thunders:

27 Then did he see her, and make her known; he established her, and also searched her out.

28 And he said unto man, Behold, the fear of the Lord, that is wisdom; and to eschew evil is understanding.

CHAPTER XXIX.

1 ¶ And Job continued to take up his parable, and said,

2 Who will give me back months like those which are past, days like those when God guarded me;

3 When his lamp shone over my head,
when by his light I could walk in darkness;

4 As I was in the days of my abundance,[b] when the confidence[c] of God was upon my tent;

5 When the Almighty was yet with me,
when my servants stood round about me;

6 When I bathed my steps in cream, and the rock poured out near me streamlets of oil!

7 When I went out to the gate close by the city, when in the open place I established my seat:

8 Young men saw me, and hid themselves;
and the aged rose up, and remained standing;

9 Princes stopped in the midst of (their) words, and laid their hand on their mouth;

10 The voice of nobles was arrested, and their tongue cleaved to their palate.

11 For the ear that heard me called me happy; and the eye that saw me bore witness for me;

12 Because I delivered the poor that cried, and the fatherless, yea, that had none to help him.

13 The blessing of him that was ready to perish[d] came upon me; and the heart of the widow I caused to sing for joy.

14 I took righteousness as my garment, and it clothed me: as a robe and a mitre was justice unto me.

15 Eyes was I to the blind; and feet to the lame was I.

16 A father was I to the needy; and the cause of him I knew not I used to investigate.

17 And I broke the cutting-teeth of the wrong-doer, and out of his teeth I cast down his prey.

[a] Philippson; i. e. the various rills which issue forth in the mine are united into large canals, that the work may go forward.

[b] Lit. "autumn," i. e. the season when all is ripe. Others, "youth."

[c] Lit. "secret," or "secret counsel." So Rashi, "When the pious of the generation came to my tent to be fortified in God's law." Others, "friendship."

[d] Others, "that had to roam about," or "the unhappy."

18 And I said then, "In the midst of my nest shall I depart hence, and like the sand[a] shall I have many days.

19 My root will stand open for the water, and the dew will lodge on my boughs.

20 My glory will ever be new with me, and my bow will acquire fresh strength in my hand."

21 Unto me men listened, and waited, and watched in silence for my counsel.

22 After my words they made no reply, and my speech dropped on them (like dew).

23 And they waited for me as for the rain, and they opened wide their mouth as for the latter rain.

24 I smiled on those that had lost their confidence;[b] and the light of my countenance they never cast down.

25 I chose[c] their way for them, and I sat as chief, and dwelt as a king in his army, as one that comforteth mourners.

CHAPTER XXX.

1 But now they who are younger than I in years laugh at me, whose fathers I scorned to put as equals with the dogs of my flocks.

2 Yea, what possible use can the strength of their hands be unto me, over whom old age hath passed fruitlessly?

3 Who suffer of want and famine in solitude; who flee[d] into the wilderness (where all is) darkness, ruin, and desolation;

4 Who crop off mallows[e] by the bushes, and have broom-bush roots as their bread;

5 Who are driven forth from among (men), who are shouted after as though they were thieves,

6 To dwell in the caverns[f] of the valleys, in holes of the earth, and on naked cliffs.

7 Among the bushes they shriek: under briers[g] they are huddled together,

8 The children of the worthless, yea, the children of the nameless, who were outcasts from the land.

9 But now I am become their song, and I am become a byword unto them.

10 They loathe me, they keep themselves far from me, and from my face they withhold not their spittle.

11 Because he hath loosened the cord of my bow,[h] and afflicted me, they have also cast off the bridle before me.

12 Against my right hand rise up this swarm of worthless youths: they push away my feet, and they level against me their calamity-bringing paths.

13 They destroy my footpath, they help forward my downfall, without any one to aid them.

14 As (through) a broad breach they come: amidst a loud noise they rolled themselves along.

15 Terrors have turned their face against me; they chase like the wind my glory; and like a cloud is my happiness passed away.

16 And now my soul is poured out over me; the days of affliction have seized on me;

17 All night it holloweth out my bones out of my body; and my pursuers[i] take no rest.

18 Through the Almighty's power[k] is my garment made unknown: like the opening of my coat hath he enclosed[l] me.

19 He hath cast me into the mire, and I am become like dust and ashes.

20 I cry aloud unto thee, but thou answerest me not: I stand up, and thou fixest thy regard against me.

21 Thou art changed into a cruel master toward me: with the strength of thy hand thou assailest me.

22 Thou liftest me up to the wind; thou causest me to pass away, and dissolvest in me all wise counsel.[m]

23 For I know that thou wilt bring me

[a] Rashi, after Talmud Sanhedrin, 108 b, חול as the name of a bird, "the phœnix;" so also Arnheim.

[b] Löwenthal and Philippson, לא יאמינו "those who have no confidence;" but Aben Ezra, "When I smiled on them, they would not believe it," &c.

[c] Philippson, "When I chose to be among them, I sat at the head."

[d] Philippson, "who gnaw the growth of the desert, which is long since desolate and waste."

[e] Arnheim and others, "salty herbs."

[f] Rashi. Aben Ezra, "in frightful valleys."

[g] Rashi, "nettles," and so rendered elsewhere; here, however, evidently something higher, which they could hide among.

[h] Rashi.

[i] Jonathan and Rashi, as in ver. 3. Ralbag, "my pulses." Philippson and others, "those that gnaw at me."

[k] Herxheimer and others refer ברב כח to God, who becomes the subject in ver. 20.

back to death, and to the house of assembly for all the living.

24 But doth not a man stretch out his hand among ruins? or doth one not cry out therefrom (for help) when he meeteth his downfall?[a]

25 Did not I weep for him that was hard pressed by misfortune? was not my soul grieved for the needy?

26 That I hoped for good, but there came evil; and I waited for light, and there came darkness!

27 My bowels heave, and rest not: the days of affliction have overcome me.

28 I walk about mournfully without sunlight: when I rise up, in the assembly, I cry with pain.

29 I am become a brother to (howling) monsters, and a companion to ostriches.

30 My skin hangeth down black from me, and my bones are burnt from heat.

31 And thus is changed to mourning my harp, and my pipe to the sound of weeping.

CHAPTER XXXI.

1 A covenant had I made with my eyes: how then should I fix my look on a virgin?

2 And what would then have been my portion of God from above? and what lot of the Almighty from on high?

3 Is not calamity (ready) for the unjust? and misfortune for the wrong-doers?

4 Behold, he truly seeth my ways, and numbereth all my steps;

5 (And knoweth) whether I have walked with vain desires, or if my foot hath hastened after deceit.

6 Let him weigh me then in a righteous balance, and let God acknowledge my integrity.

7 If my step have turned aside from the (proper) way, and my heart have walked after my eyes, and if any blemish have cleaved to my hands:

8 Then let me sow, and let another eat; and let what I have growing be rooted out.

9 If my heart have been beguiled toward a woman, or if I have lain in wait at my neighbour's door:

10 Then may my wife labour at the mill for another, and may strangers ill-use her;

11 For this would be incest; yea, it would be an iniquity (to be punished by) the judges;

12 For it would be a fire that consumeth down to the place of corruption, and would root out all my products.

13 If ever I cast aside the justice due to my man-servant and my maid-servant, when they contended with me:

14 What then could I do when God should rise up? and when he should investigate, what could I answer him?

15 Did not he that made me make him born of a woman? and did not the same one fashion us in the womb?

16 If ever I denied the wish of the indigent, or ever allowed the eyes of the widow to fail (in vain hopes);

17 Or if ever I ate my bread by myself alone, and the fatherless did not eat thereof;

18 (For from my youth he was brought up with me, as though we were of one[b] father, and I have guided her (as though she was sprung) from my mother's womb;)

19 If ever I saw any one perishing for want of clothing, or the needy without covering;

20 If his loins have not blessed me, and if he have not been warmed with the fleece of my sheep;

21 If I have swung my hand against the fatherless, because I saw in the gate those that would help me:

22 Then may my shoulder fall from my shoulder-blade, and my arm be broken from the channel-bone;

23 For dreaded by me was the calamitous punishment of God, and against his highness I can[c] accomplish nothing.

24 If I have made gold my confidence, or have said to the fine gold, Thou art my trust;

25 If ever I rejoiced because my wealth

[a] Löwenthal and Philippson. Jonathan, "But he (God) will not lay violent hand in wrath on men when they pray to him in time of affliction." Herxheimer, "But may he not stretch out his hand against ruins; or do they (death and the grave) find help in their destruction?" Others, "He will not lay his hand on the grave; surely in the downfall (of death) there is help for all." The verse is very difficult and obscure.

[c] Philippson, "could."

was abundant, and because my hand had gotten much;

26 If ever I looked at the light (of the sun) when he shone brightly and on the moon walking in splendour;

27 And my heart became misled in secret, and my hand kissed my mouth:[a]

28 This also were an iniquity to be punished by the judge; for thus would I have denied the God that is above.

29 If ever I rejoiced at the downfall of him that hated me, or was elated when evil befell him;—

30 But I suffered not my mouth to sin by denouncing with a curse his soul;—

31 If the men of my tent said not, Oh is there one that is not satisfied of his flesh;—

32 In the street a stranger had not to lodge; my doors I held open to the roadside;

33 If I covered up my transgressions like a common man, by hiding in my bosom my iniquity;

34 Because I dreaded the great multitude, or because the contempt of families did terrify me, so that I kept silence, and dared not to go out of the door;[b]—

35 Oh who will bring me one that would hear me! behold, here is my plea; may the Almighty answer me; and any record[c] which my opponent may have written,—

36 Surely upon my shoulder would I carry it:[d] I would bind it as a crown unto me.

37 The number of my steps would I tell him: as (to) a prince would I go near unto him.—

38 If my land ever cried out because of me, or if its furrows wept together;

39 If I ever consumed its strength without payment, or caused the soul of its owners[e] to grieve:

40 Then may instead of wheat, thorns come forth, and instead of barley, cockle. (Here end the words of Job.)

CHAPTER XXXII.

1 ¶ So had these three men abstained from answering Job; because he was righteous in his own eyes.

2 ¶ Thereupon was kindled the wrath of Elihu the son of Barachel the Buzite, of the family of Ram: against Job was his wrath kindled, because he had declared himself more righteous than God.

3 And against his three friends was his wrath kindled; because they had found no answer, and yet had condemned Job.

4 Now Elihu had held back toward Job (his) words; because the others were older in days than he.

5 But when Elihu saw that there was no answer in the mouth of these three men, then was his wrath kindled.

6 ¶ And Elihu the son of Barachel the Buzite commenced, and said, Young am I in days, and ye are very old: therefore I hesitated and feared to show you what I know.

7 I had said, Days shall speak, and multitude of years shall make wisdom known.

8 But it is the spirit in man, and the breath of the Almighty which giveth them understanding.[f]

9 Not those rich in years must be always wise: neither do the aged constantly understand what is just.

10 Therefore do I say, Hearken to me: I also will show forth what I know myself.

11 Behold, I waited for your words: I gave an attentive ear to your reasonings, till you might have searched out the (proper) words.

12 And now I understand you fully, and, behold, there is none that convinceth Job, or, that answereth his speeches among you.

13 Say then not, We have found wisdom: God will thrust him down, not man.[g]

14 But he hath not directed any words

[a] i. e. Offering the slightest token of homage, by touching the mouth with the hand, as was probably the custom of idolaters of the Zabean kind.

[b] The conclusion of the sentence is in verse 40.

[c] ספר does not mean necessarily "book," but any connected writing. Others, "let my opponent write," &c.

[d] Rashi, and so Arnheim, "I would carry him (the opponent) on my shoulder, I would bind crowns on him for my sake."

[e] Rashi, "those who occupied it as tillers on half profit." Others render, "caused its owners to breathe out their soul."

[f] Jonathan, "In truth the spirit of prophecy is in man, and the word of God giveth them understanding."

[g] Wolfson, "the one who is no man." The text as here given is simple, "God will convince him, not a man;" and this was the wisdom they had discovered, that God would ultimately prove that Job had sinned.

against me: and with your speeches will I not answer him.

15 They are dismayed, they answer no more: words have escaped away from them.

16 And should I wait (longer), because they cannot speak, because they stand still and answer no more?

17 (But) I also will surely answer my part, I myself also will show forth what I know; 18 For I am full of words, the spirit in my bosom urgeth me hard.

19 Behold, my bosom is like (fresh) wine which hath not been opened: like new[a] bottles it is ready to burst.

20 I will speak, that I may breathe freer: I will open my lips and answer.

21 On no account will I show undue favour to any man, and to no son of earth will I give flattering titles.

22 For I know not to give flattering titles; (for else) my Maker would speedily carry me away.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

1 Therefore do thou but hear, O Job, my speeches, and give ear to all my words.

2 Behold now, I have opened my mouth, my tongue speaketh in my mouth.[b]

3 Out of my straightforward heart (come) my sayings; and my lips utter knowledge clearly.

4 The spirit of God hath made me, and the breath of the Almighty giveth me life.

5 If thou canst, answer me, array thyself before me, stand forward.

6 Behold, I am in the same relation as thyself toward God:[c] I myself also am cut out of the clay.

7 Behold, dread of me cannot terrify thee, and my pressure[d] will not be too heavy upon thee.

8 But thou hast said before my ears, and the sound of the words I still hear,

9 "I am pure without transgression, I am quite clean; and there is no iniquity in me:

10 Yet, behold, he findeth hateful backsliding[e] on me, he regardeth me as an enemy unto him;

11 He putteth my feet in the stocks, he watcheth all my paths."

12 Behold, in this thou art not just: I will answer thee; for God is far greater than a mortal.

13 Why dost thou contend against him? for with[f] all his words will he not give an answer.

14 For God speaketh once, yea twice: (yet man) regardeth it not.

15 In a dream, in a vision of the night, when deep sleep falleth upon men, in slumbers upon the couch:

16 Then doth he lay open the ear of men, and sealeth it with their warning;[g]

17 To remove the son of earth (from his intended) deed; and he covereth up pride from man;

18 He withholdeth his soul from the pit, and his life from passing away by the sword.

19 And so is he admonished by pain upon his couch, and all his bones with violent (aches).[h]

20 So that his inclination[i] abhorreth bread, and his soul, the most agreeable food.

21 His flesh is consumed away, that it cannot be seen; and his bones that were not seen stick out.

22 Yea, his soul draweth near unto the pit, and his life to those that slay.

23 If there be now about him one single angel, as defender, one out of a thousand, to tell for man his uprightness:[k]

24 Then is he gracious unto him, and saith, Release him from going down to the pit, I have found an atonement.

25 His flesh becometh full again as in youth: he returneth to the days of his boyhood.

[a] i. e. Bottles containing new wine, the fermentation of which bursts them.

[b] Heb. "palate."

[c] Aben Ezra. Rashi, "I am here, as thou hast asked, in God's place, and for him do I speak his words."

[d] Jonathan and Rashi. אכפי from אכף "to force," "to urge;" hence the noun, "that which presseth hard"—"the burden." Aben Ezra, "my hand," like כפי with paragogic א.

[e] Rashi, "pretexts."

[f] i. e. Only partially he reveals his acts to man. Herxheimer, "concerning." Löwenthal, "that he giveth no answer concerning all his doings,"

[g] Rashi, "He sealeth and bindeth them with sufferings for their iniquity."

[h] Ralbag. Rashi, "all his bones that were so strong." Löwenthal and others, "with violent contest in his limbs."

[i] Lit. "life;" here the appetite necessary to sustain life.

[k] Philippson: "If there come to him one angel as interpreter—to tell man what is just for him."

26 He will offer his entreaty unto God, and he will receive him in favour, that he may see his face with joy: so doth He recompense unto the mortal his righteousness.

27 He then should assemble[a] men around, and say, "I had sinned, and perverted what is right, yet have I not received a like return."[b]

28 Thus he redeemeth his[c] soul from passing into the pit, and his life will look joyously on the light.

29 Lo, all these things doth God two or three times with man;

30 To bring back his soul from the pit, that she may shine in the light of life.

31 Listen well, O Job, hearken unto me: keep silence, and I will truly speak.

32 If thou hast any words, answer me: speak, for I wish to justify thee.

33 If not, hearken thou unto me: keep silence, and I will teach thee wisdom.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

1 ¶ And Elihu commenced, and said,

2 Hear, O ye wise men, my words; and ye that have knowledge, give ear unto me.

3 For the ear probeth words, as the palate tasteth the food.[d]

4 Let us choose for ourselves what is just: let us acknowledge between ourselves what is good.

5 For Job hath said, "I am righteous; and God hath taken away justice from me.

6 Should I lie concerning the justice due me? incurable is (my wound from) the arrow I bear in me without any transgression."

7 What man is there like Job, who drinketh scorning like water,

8 And is on the road to keep company with the wrong-doers, and to walk with men of wickedness?

9 For he hath said, "It profiteth a man nothing when he acteth according to the pleasure of God."

10 Therefore ye men of sense hearken unto me: far is it from God to practise wickedness; and from the Almighty to do wrong!

11 For the work of a son of earth doth he recompense unto him, and according to the path of man doth he permit things to occur to him.

12 Yea, surely God will not condemn unjustly, nor will the Almighty pervert justice.

13 Who hath given him a charge concerning the earth? or who hath intrusted (him)[e] the whole world?

14 If he were to set his heart upon man, he would gather unto himself his spirit and his breath;

15 All flesh would perish together, and the son of earth would return again unto dust.

16 If then thou wishest to understand, hear this: give ear to the sound of my words.

17 Is it possible that he who hateth justice should govern? or wilt thou condemn the righteous mighty One?

18 (Is it fit) to say[f] to a king, Thou art worthless? and to princes, Ye are wicked?

19 Whereas he is one that showeth no favour to chieftains, and distinguisheth not the rich before the indigent; for all of them are the work of his hands.

20 In a moment will they die, and in the midst of the night, people are moved, and pass away: and the mighty will be removed without a human hand.

21 For his eyes are upon the ways of man, and all his steps doth he see.

22 There is no darkness, nor shadow of death, where the evil-doers can hide themselves.

23 For he need not direct[g] (his attention) a long time upon man, that he should enter into judgment before God.

24 He breaketh down mighty men without (long) searching, and placeth others in their stead.

25 For the reason that he knoweth their deeds: therefore he overturneth them in the night, and they are crushed.

[a] Rashi, from שׁוּרָה "a row." Löwenthal and others, "he will sing aloud among men."

[b] Rashi. Others, "which profited me nothing," as in Esther vi. 13.

[c] So the Keri. Philippson and Löwenthal, after the Ketib, make this a continuation of verse 27, and render, "he hath delivered my soul," &c.

[d] Lit. "to eat."

[e] Aben Ezra, "who created the whole world?" Löwenthal, "who watcheth," &c.

[f] Rashi, Jonathan, Aben Ezra, &c. Others, after the Septuagint, "Who saith to a king, Thou art worthless, and to princes, Ye are wicked?"

[g] Rashi, "For he will not lay undue charges on man, that he should have to enter into a trial before God." The text here means, God's knowledge is always sure.

26 Among wicked men[a] doth he strike them, in the place where (many) see them;

27 Because they have departed from following him, and have not considered all his ways,

28 Bringing before them the cry of the indigent, and the cry of the afflicted which he had to hear.

29 When he now granteth rest, who will ¶ condemn (him)? and when he hideth his face, who can behold him? whether it be against a nation, or against one man, it is the same:

30 That no hypocritical man may reign, that such shall not be a snare to the people.[b]

31 For truly it is only fitting to say unto God, "I bear (cheerfully), I will not do any wrong;

32 What I cannot see myself, do thou truly teach me; if I have done what is unjust, I will do so no more."

33 Should he then according to thy view send a recompense, because thou hast rejected him? "Because thou must choose, and not I?"[c] and what thou knowest, do speak.

34 Men of sense will say unto me, and every wise man who heareth me, 35 That Job hath not spoken with knowledge, and that his words are without intelligence.

36 Oh that Job[d] may therefore be probed continually, in order to give answers against sinful men.[e]

37 For he addeth unto his sin transgression: among us he uttereth too many loud words,[f] and multiplieth his speeches against God.

CHAPTER XXXV.

1 ¶ Then commenced Elihu, and said,

2 Dost thou deem this to be just, that thou hast said, "My righteousness is more than God's?"

3 For thou sayest, "What benefit will it be unto thee? what more profit shall I have, than if I had sinned?"

4 I will truly reply unto thee with words, and unto thy friends with thee.

5 Look unto the heavens, and see; and gaze on the skies which are higher than thou.

6 If thou sin, what dost thou effect against him? and if thy transgressions be multiplied, what canst thou do unto him?

7 If thou be righteous, what givest thou him? or what doth he accept out of thy hand?

8 A man like thyself thy wickedness may reach, and a son of earth thy righteousness.

9 By reason of the multitude of oppressions (the wicked) cause men to cry: these complain aloud because of the arm of the mighty.

10 But (man)[g] saith not, Where is God my maker, who bestoweth joyful songs even in the night;

11 Who teacheth us more than the beasts of the earth, and maketh us wiser than the fowls of the heavens?

12 There do they cry, but he answereth not; because of the pride of evil men.

13 Only what is false[h] will God not hear, nor will the Almighty regard it.

14 Although thou sayest, thou canst not see him: yet the decision is before him; and do thou wait for him.[i]

15 But now, because his anger hath punished nothing,[k] shall he not greatly take cognizance of the multitude of sins?

16 But Job openeth wide his mouth for

[a] Rashi, "In their own place doth he strike the wicked." Others, "because they are wicked." Others, "in lieu of the (i. e. as though they were) wicked." The difficulty is in the word תחת, literally, "under."

[b] Löwenthal and Herxheimer. Philippson, "That there may not reign a hypocrite, one of those who mislead the people." Arnheim, gives the last part, "nor a people be a snare."

[c] Arnheim, after Rashi, who refer "rejected" to Job's words: "I despise it, I wish to live always." The words, "thou must choose," are regarded as Elihu's speaking in the name of God. Philippson, "Behold, on thee too will he accomplish it. For thou must reject it, thou must accept it, not I; and what thou hast now discovered as true, that do thou speak;" i. e. he calls on Job to accept or reject his theory of the divine government.

[d] Jonathan, אבי from אבה, "to desire," "it is my wish." Others, from אב, "father," "O my heavenly Father!"

[e] Rashi. Aben Ezra, "because of his answer after the manner of sinful men."

[f] Rashi and Aben Ezra. Others, "he clappeth (his) hands;" hence, Philippson, "he scorneth."

[g] i. e. The sufferers cry, but think not on God. Rashi, however, "The wicked saith not, &c. who cutteth down the evil in the night," referring to Amraphel, the Egyptians and other sinners.

[h] i. e. The crying of those spoken of in verse 9 is deceitful, they think not of God.

[i] Arnheim, "it," i. e. the decision.

[k] Löwenthal. Rashi, "And now know that his present visitation on thee is nothing, and he hath not fully regarded the multitude (of thy sins)."

nought: without knowledge he heapeth up words.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

1 ¶ Then continued Elihu, and said,

2 Wait for me a little, and I will instruct thee; for (I have) still some words on God's behalf.

3 I will lift up my knowledge for him[a] who is afar, and for my Maker will I obtain righteousness.

4 For truly no falsehood is (in) my words: one that is upright in (his) opinions (dealeth now) with thee.

5 Behold, God is mighty, and despiseth not any: he is mighty in strength of intellect.[b]

6 He permitteth not the wicked to live; but he procureth justice for the afflicted.

7 He withdraweth not his eyes from the righteous; but (he placeth them) with kings[c] on the throne: yea, he doth establish them for ever, and they are exalted.

8 And if they be bound in fetters, and if they be entangled[d] in the cords of affliction:

9 Then doth he tell them of their work, and of their transgressions, when they had become strong.

10 And he openeth thus their ear to correction, and saith that they should return from wrong-doing.

11 If they hearken and serve (him),[e] they will spend their days in happiness, and their years in pleasures.

12 But if they hearken not, they will pass away through the sword, and they will perish in want of knowledge.

13 But the hypocrites in heart persevere[f] in wrath; they will not offer entreaty when he bindeth them:

14 Their soul will die in youth, and their life, among the incestuous.

15 He delivereth the afflicted through his affliction, and openeth through oppression his[g] ear.

16 And also thee hath he incited away from the[h] jaws of distress into a wide space, on the site of which there is no straitness; and what is set on thy table is full of fatness.

17 But if thou art full of the judgment of the wicked: (divine) judgment and decree will support each other.

18 For there would be fury, if aught were to incite thee to utter an abundance (of rebellious words);[i] and the greatness of the infliction must not mislead thee.

19 Will he esteem thy riches?[k] no, not gold ore, nor all the highest forces of strength.

20 Desire then not eagerly the night, when nations pass away in their place.

21 Take heed, turn not thyself to wrong-doing, so that thou wouldst choose this because of (thy) affliction.

22 Behold, God is exalted by his power: who is an instructer like him?

23 Who hath given him a charge concerning his way? or who hath ever said, Thou hast acted unjustly?

24 Reflect, that thou shouldst magnify his work, which (other) men have beheld.[l]

25 All men have looked at it (with astonishment); the mortal gazeth at it from afar.

26 Behold, God is great, and we comprehend him not, the number of his years can truly not be searched out.

27 For he taketh away[m] drops of water, which are purified into rain in his mist;

[a] God; as in the end of the verse.

[b] Heb. "heart."

[c] Philippson, "And kings on the throne, he letteth them sit continually, and maketh them still higher." את in this manner, not "with," but merely as the sign of the objective case.

[d] Lit. "caught."

[e] Rashi. Others, "subject themselves."

[f] Rashi; literally, "lay up anger," i. e. they utter their blasphemy, as though they suffered wrong at the hands of God.

[g] Lit. "their."

[h] Herxheimer. Philippson, "Also thee hath he excited, not distress, but abundance, there was nothing firm under it; and what was set on thy table so full of fatness. Therefore thou art full of the guilt of the wicked, and decree and justice follow thereupon. But the fury—let not this incite thee against the chastisement, (שׁפע, not abundance, but a blow with the hand,) and let the greatness of the atonement not mislead thee."

[i] Rashi; Herxheimer, "The abundance of the fury must not," &c.

[k] Arnheim, "Would this be equal to thy prayer? No gold, and nothing gained through exertions." Herxheimer, "Should he ordain help for thee without distress, and without any exertion of strength?"

[m] The vapours arise from the water on the surface of the earth, and though the sea is salt and briny, the rain comes down pure and sweet after being held in the atmosphere.

28 These drop down out of the skies; they distil upon the multitude of men.

29 But (what man) can understand the outspreadings of the clouds? the tumult of his[a] tabernacle?

30 Behold, he spreadeth out over it his light, and covereth up the roots[b] of the sea.

31 For by means of them he judgeth nations, he giveth food in superfluity.

32 (His) hands[c] he covereth with light; and he commandeth it to strike the one who striveth against him.

33 The noise of his storm telleth of it, yea, the cattle also, of the rising tempest.[d]

CHAPTER XXXVII.

1 At this also my heart trembleth, and is moved upward out of its place.

2 Hear, O hear, the rattling of his thunder, and the storm's roar that goeth out of his mouth.

3 Under the whole heavens he letteth it loose, and his lightning over the ends of the earth.

4 Behind it roareth the thunder; he thundereth with his majestic voice; and he holdeth them not back when his voice is heard.

5 God thundereth with his marvellous voice: he doth great things, which we cannot comprehend.

6 For to the snow he saith, Be thou on the earth: likewise to the pouring rain, and to the pouring rains of his strength.

7 He sealeth it on[e] the hand of every man, that all men whom he hath made may know it.

8 Then retire the beasts into (their) dens, and rest in their lairs.

9 Out of (his) chamber cometh the whirlwind, and out of the north[f] the cold.

10 From the breathing of God ice is given, and the broad waters become solid.[g]

11 Also with moisture[h] he loadeth the cloud; (and) he scattereth the cloud of his lightning;

12 And it is turned round about by his guidance, to execute what he commandeth it upon the face of the world, the earth.

13 Whether it be as a chastising rod—if this be destined for his earth—or for kindness, doth he cause it come.

14 Give ear unto this, O Job: stand still, and consider well the wonders of God.

15 Dost thou know how God hath imposed (a law) on them, and (how) he hath caused the light of his cloud to shine?

16 Dost thou know aught about the balancings of the clouds, the wondrous works of him who is perfect in knowledge?

17 (Thou) who clothest thyself[i] with warm garments, when He giveth the earth rest from the south wind?

18 Hast thou with him spread out the skies, which are strong even as a molten mirror?

19 Let us know what we shall say unto him: we cannot set aught in order (before him) because of darkness.

20 Can (all) be related of him, when I speak (ever so much)? or if a man talk (of him) even till he be swallowed up (in death)?

21 Yet now men see not the light which is bright in the skies, when the wind hath passed along, and purified them,

22 The golden (light) that cometh out of the north: around God is terrible majesty.

23 The Almighty, whom we cannot find out, excellent in power, and in justice, and abounding in righteousness, will not afflict:

[a] Figurative for "the thunder," the noise (or "crashing"—Herxheimer) in God's tabernacle, the overhanging sky.

[b] i. e. The bottom.

[c] Herxheimer; meaning, God's hands are, so to say, covered with his lightnings, and he hurls them against those who rise up against him; כפנים "who meeteth;" or, as Löwenthal, "who is to be met," or "struck." Rashi, in the light of "one who prayeth," and translates, "The (violence of) hands covereth up the light (for, the rain which is to enlighten, refresh the earth); but he ordaineth it to come in answer to him who meeteth him with prayer."

[d] This verse is mainly given after Aben Ezra.

[e] Jonathan. Aben Ezra, "It (the rain) keepeth all men within their houses." But it means here, that God impresses this deeply on man, that all may recognise his power.

[f] Ralbag; but Philippson, in the sense this word is found in the Mishnah, renders it with "bottles," as though the cold were tied up in wine-skins, to be let loose when needed.

[g] Philippson, מוצק "hard like metal." Others, "straitened."

[h] רי "moisture," after one opinion cited by Aben Ezra; another is to take ברי as "brightness:" "Also when a bright sky chaseth away the cloud," &c.

[i] Philippson; meaning, man, when the south (summer) wind ceases to blow, must needs clothe himself warmly; so weak is he; and he will know the ways of God?

24 Therefore do men fear him;[a] he respecteth not any that are wise of heart.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

1 ¶ Then did the LORD address Job out of the storm-wind, and said,

2 Who is this that casteth darkness (on my) counsel by words without knowledge?

3 Do but gird up like a mighty man thy loins: and I will ask thee, and do thou inform me.

4 Where wast thou when I laid the foundations of the earth? tell it, if thou hast[b] any understanding (of it).

5 Who fixed her measurements, if thou knowest it? or who stretched the measuring-line over her?

6 Upon what are her foundation-pillars placed at rest?[c] or who laid her corner-stone:

7 When altogether sang the morning stars in gladness, and shouted for joy all the sons of God?

8 And who closed up with doors the sea, when, issuing forth, it came out of the deep bosom of the earth?

9 When I made the clouds its garment, and thick fog its swaddling-cloth,

10 And when I decreed for it my law,[d] and set (for it) bars and doors,

11 And said, Thus far mayest thou come, but no farther; and here shall be stayed (thy strength)[e] in the pride of thy waves?

12 Didst thou ever, in all thy days,[f] command the morning; didst thou ever assign the morning-dawn its place:

13 That it might lay hold of the ends of the earth, so that the wicked might be shaken out therefrom?

14 She is changed as the sealing-clay:[g] and (all things) stand as though newly clad.[h]

15 And from the wicked is their light withdrawn, and the high-raised arm is broken.

16 Didst thou ever penetrate as far as the springs of the sea? or wander through the bottom of the deep?

17 Were the gates of death ever laid open unto thee? or canst thou see the doors of the shadow of death?

18 Hast thou a clear understanding of the breadth of the earth? Tell it, if thou knowest it all.

19 Where is the way (to the spot where) the light dwelleth? and the darkness—where is its place, 20 That thou mightest take each to its boundary, and that thou mightest mark the pathways to its house?

21 Thou (surely) knowest it; because thou wast then born, and the number of thy days is great!

22 Didst thou ever enter into the treasuries of the snow? or canst thou see the treasuries of the hail,

23 Which I have reserved for the time of distress, for the day of fight and battle?

24 Where is the way (to the spot where) the light divideth itself, (where) the east wind is scattered over the earth?

25 Who hath divided off watercourses for the overflowing rain, and a way for the lightning (that is followed by) thunders,

26 To bring rain on a land, void of men; on a wilderness wherein no son of earth (is found);

27 To satisfy waste and desolate lands; and to promote the growth of the tender grass?

28 Hath the rain a father? or who hath begotten the drops of the dew?

29 Out of whose womb cometh forth the ice? and the hoary frost of heaven—who giveth birth to it?

30 (When) like a stone the waters are congealed,[i] and the face of the deep is bound in fetters?

31 Canst thou bind together the chains of the Pleiades, or loosen the bands of Orion?

[a] Arnheim, "Therefore fear ye him, O mortals!" Philippson, "yet do not see him the wise in spirit."

[b] Heb. "knowest understanding."

[c] Lit. "made to sink."

[d] Jonathan. Rashi, "I have set for it broken-in shores (to restrain it), and these are its law, which it cannot pass."

[e] Aben Ezra.

[f] Arnheim, "Hast thou commanded during all," &c.

[g] During the dark, nothing is prominent on earth; but with the dawn of day, every thing appears in a new impression, as the clay is changed by the impression of the seal. Clay seals were appended to documents, as has been exhibited in the late discoveries of Layard in the ruins of Nineveh.

[h] Aben Ezra, who supplies "men." Philippson, "(the wicked) hide themselves as with a garment."

[i] Heb. "hide themselves," i. e. to the eye the water is hidden by being ice. Others, "(As with) a stone the waters are hidden."

32 Canst thou bring forth the constellations of the zodiac, each in its season? or canst thou guide the Bear with its young?[a]

33 Knowest thou the laws of heaven? or dost thou appoint its rule on the earth?

34 Canst thou lift up to the clouds thy voice, that the abundance of waters may cover thee?

35 Canst thou send out lightnings, that they may go, and say unto thee, Here are we?

36 Who hath put wisdom in the dark clouds?[b] or who hath given understanding to the bright meteors?

37 Who ordaineth[c] the skies with wisdom? or who emptieth out the bottles of heaven, 38 When the dust is poured out as molten metal, and the clods are made to cleave fast together?

39 Dost thou hunt for the lioness her prey? and suppliest thou the food for the young lions, 40 When they are couched in their lairs, rest in the thicket, lying in wait?

41 Who provideth for the raven his provision? when his young ones cry unto God, and wander about for lack of food?

CHAPTER XXXIX.

1 Knowest thou the time when the chamois of the rock bring forth? or markest thou when the hinds do calve?

2 Numberest thou the months of gestation which they complete? and knowest thou the time when they bring forth?

3 They bend themselves; they drop their young ones; they throw off their pains.

4 Their littles ones become strong; they grow up in the open field; they go forth, and return not unto them.

5 Who sent out the wild ass free? or who loosened the bonds of the forest-ass?

6 To whom I assigned the wilderness as his house, and the salty land as his dwellings.

7 He laugheth at the noise of a town, and the shoutings of the driver he heareth not.

8 What he espieth on the mountains is his pasture, and after every green thing doth he search.

9 Will the forest-ox[d] be willing to serve thee, or will he stay over night at thy crib?

10 Canst thou bind the forest-ox with a rope (to labour) in the furrow? or will he harrow valleys, following after thee?

11 Wilt thou trust him, because his strength is great? and wilt thou leave to him thy labour?

12 Wilt thou confide in him, that he should bring home thy seed, and gather it into thy threshing-floor?—

13 The wing of the ostrich moveth joyfully: hath she the pinions and plumage of the careful stork?[e]

14 (No,) for she intrusteth her eggs to the earth, and letteth them be hatched out on the dust;

15 And she forgetteth that a foot may crush them, or that the beast of the field may stamp them down.

16 He hath made her callous against her young, as though they were not hers: her labour is in vain, (but she feeleth) no dread;

17 Because God hath denied her wisdom, and he hath not imparted to her understanding.

18 At the time she raiseth herself up on high, she laugheth at the horse and his rider.

19 Dost thou give the horse strength? dost thou clothe his neck with the rolling mane?[f]

20 Canst thou make him jump like a locust? his majestic snort is terrible.

21 Men spy about in the valley, and he rejoiceth in his strength: he goeth forth to meet the armed array.[g]

22 He laugheth at fear, and is not dismayed; and turneth not back from before the sword.

[a] This is said to signify the three stars called the tail of the Bear.

[b] Löwenthal, taking שחוּת, rendered in Ps. li. 8 "inward parts," for what is not distinctly seen; so שכוי (from שכה "to behold,") what is readily seen, here the brilliant meteors. Jonathan renders, "Who hath put wisdom in the reins, or who hath given understanding to the heart?" Philippson, "images of light—images of the air."

[c] Rashi. Others, "Who numbereth the clouds;" but their numbering requires organization, hence "ordaineth."

[d] Arnheim leaves רים untranslated, "reëm." Philippson, "buffalo."

[e] Löwenthal. Philippson, חסידה, not as the name, "stork," but a feminine adjective from חסיד, and renders, "is therefore lovely her pinion and her plumage?" Wolfsun, "See how pleasant is the wing of the singing birds, the flight and plumage of the stork; and there is one that leaveth her eggs," &c.

[f] Löwenthal and others. Rashi, רעמה "terror," "shuddering;" so Philippson. Others, "thunder." Jonathan, "power."

[g] Heb. "armour."

23 Over him rattle the quiver, the glittering spear and the lance.

24 With impatient noise and rage he holloweth[a] (with his hoof) the ground, and keepeth not quiet when the cornet's voice (is heard).

25 Midst the sound of the cornet he uttereth his joyful neigh;[b] and from afar he perceiveth[c] the battle, the loud call[d] of the captains, and the battle-cry.—

26 Is it through thy understanding that the hawk flieth along, and spreadeth out his wings toward the south?

27 Or is it by thy order that the eagle doth mount upward, and buildeth high up his nest?

28 On a rock he dwelleth, and spendeth his nights, on a rocky crag and mountain fastness.

29 From there he espieth his food, from afar can his eyes behold.

30 His young ones, also, sip up blood: and where the slain lie, there is he.

CHAPTER XL.

1 ¶ And the LORD addressed Job, and said,

2 Will he that contendeth with the Almighty yet find fault? let him that reproveth God answer this.

3 ¶ Then answered Job the LORD, and said,

4 Behold, I am too vile: what shall I answer thee? my hand do I place on my mouth.

5 Once have I spoken; but I will not answer: yea, twice; but I will not repeat it again.

6 ¶ Then answered the LORD unto Job out of the storm-wind, and said,

7 Do but gird up like a mighty man thy loins: I will ask thee, and do thou inform me.

8 Wilt thou indeed annul my decree? wilt thou condemn me, in order that thou mayest appear righteous?

9 But if thou hast an arm like God, or if thou canst thunder loudly like him:

10 Then do deck thyself with excellence and greatness, and clothe thyself in majesty and glory.

11 Scatter abroad the ragings of thy wrath, and look on every proud one, and humble him.

12 Look on every proud one, and bend him low; and tread down the wicked in their place.

13 Hide them in the dust altogether: bind up their faces in concealment.

14 Then will I also myself praise thee, when thy own right hand hath helped thee.

15 Only behold Behemoth,[e] which I made near thee: grass he eateth like the ox.

16 Only see, (how great) is his strength in his loins, and his force, in the muscles[f] of his belly.

17 He stretcheth out his tail like a cedar: the sinews of his loins are closely wrapped together.

18 His bones are like pipes[g] of brass: his frame is like bars of iron.

19 He is the first in rank of the works of God: he that made him can alone bring[h] his sword near unto him.

20 But truly the mountains bear for him his food, and all the beasts of the field play there.[i]

21 Under shady trees he lieth down, in the covert of the reeds, and swamp.

22 Shady trees cover him as his shadow: willows of the brook encompass him about.

23 Behold, a river sweepeth violently along, but he hasteneth not away: he remaineth quiet, though a Jordan rusheth up to his mouth.

24 Can one catch him before his eyes? pierce his nose by means of snares?[k]—

[a] Rashi. Others, "he drinketh in," he acts as though he could drink in the land between him and the enemy.

[b] Lit. "he saith, Aha!"

[c] Lit. "smelleth."

[d] Lit. "thunder."

[e] This description is supposed to refer to the hippopotamus, or the river-horse, which lives on vegetables.

[f] Philippson, "sinews."

[g] Löwenthal and others. Ralbag, "are strong pieces of steel." Aben Ezra, "are strong like brass."

[h] Rashi. Others, "furnisheth him with his sword," i. e. the two long teeth, twenty-six to thirty inches long, used to mow down the herbage and for formidable defence.

[i] Meaning, his great strength is not used to injure those around him.

[k] Philippson, giving this verse an interrogative sense. Herxheimer, "Yet do men catch him before his eyes," &c. Arnheim, "With his eyes would he sweep away who would attempt to pierce his nose with snares." Rashi, "God taketh him by looking at him."

25[a] Canst thou draw out the crocodile[b] with a fishhook? or cause his tongue to sink into the baited rope?

26 Canst thou put a reed[c] through his nose? or bore his jaw through with a thorn?

27 Will he address many supplications unto thee? or will he speak submissively unto thee?

28 Will he make a covenant with thee? that thou couldst take him as a servant for ever?

29 Canst thou play with him as with a bird? and tie him up for thy maidens?

30 Can companions waylay[d] him? can they divide him among merchants?

31 Canst thou fill his skin with barbed irons? and (pierce) with a fish-spear his head?

32 Lay thy hand upon him; think of the battle: thou wilt never do it again.

CHAPTER XLI.

1 Behold, his expectation was deceived: even at his mere sight is he cast down.

2 None is so daring that he would stir him up: and who is there that will stand up before me?

3 Who hath shown me favour,[e] that I should repay him? whatsoever is under the whole heaven is mine.—

4 I will not conceal (the account of) his limbs, nor the relation of his might, nor the grace of his proportion.[f]

5 Who hath ever laid open the front of his garment? or who can penetrate into his double row of teeth?

6 Who hath opened the doors of his face? all round about his teeth abideth terror.

7 What pride is there in (his) strong shields; he is locked up as with a close seal.

8 One is joined to another; and no breath can come between them.

9 They are fitted closely one to another: they are interlocked, that they cannot be severed.

10 From his sneezing there beameth forth a light, and his eyes are like the eyelids of the morning-dawn.

11 Out of his mouth issue burning torches, sparks of fire escape (therefrom).

12 Out of his nostrils cometh forth smoke, as out of a seething-pot or caldron.

13 His breath kindleth coals, and a flame cometh out of his mouth.

14 In his neck abideth strength, and before him danceth terror joyfully.

15 The flakes of his flesh are fitted closely together: they are as molten metal on him, immovable.

16 His heart is firm like a stone: yea, as firm as the nether millstone.

17 At his lifting himself up the mighty are terrified: the waves also are lessened.[g]

18 If one overtake him with the sword, it cannot hold: nor the spear, the dart,[h] and armour.

19 He esteemeth iron as straw, (and) brass as rotten wood.

20 The child of the bow[i] cannot make him flee: into stubble are slingstones changed unto him.

21 Clubs are esteemed as stubble, and he laugheth at the whirring of the lance.

22 Beneath him are sharp-pointed potsherds,[k] he spreadeth out, (as it were, a) threshing-roller upon the mire.

23 He causeth the deep to boil like a pot: he rendereth the sea like an apothecary's mixture.[l]

[a] With this verse the English version commences chap. xli.

[b] Heb. Livyathan, "Leviathan."

[c] Rashi conceives this to be a species of strong hook.

[d] Rashi. Bensev, "sell him as merchandise." Aben Ezra, "make a banquet of him."

[e] Philippson, "Who would assail me, that I should have to repay him?"

[f] Ralbag. Rashi, Aben Ezra, and others connect ver. 4 with 3. Rashi renders, "I would not be silent toward his children (of the righteous) for the great deeds he hath done and the pleasant prayers he hath offered." Herxheimer renders the verse interrogatively, in accordance with the Keri, לו "to him," for לא "not:" "Shall I be silent concerning, &c. and his pleasant worth?"

[g] Rashi, "the waves even of sea or river are diminished as he passes over them." Arnheim, "they are made dizzy because of the waves," i. e. the crocodile's course marked by the ripple deprives them of courage. Philippson, "they are made dizzy because of the wounds they expect." Löwenthal, "because they fail to inflict wounds on him."

[h] Rashi, מסע as an adjective, "the heavy spear and armour."

[i] Rashi, "the archer." Others, "the arrow."

[k] "Potsherds" means to express the scales which have the rough pointed appearance of a potsherd; and when he lies down in the mire, he leaves an impression as though a pointed "threshing-roller" had been spread out there. Rashi, "he spreadeth out shining scales upon," &c.

[l] i. e. Frothy. Philippson explains (as in Ezekiel xxiv. 10) a mixture where all the ingredients are stirred up to-24 Behind him he causeth his pathway to shine, (so that) men esteem the deep to be hoary.

25 There is none upon earth that ruleth over him, who is made to be without dread.

26 He looketh upon all that is high: he is the king over all the ravenous beasts.

CHAPTER XLII.

1 ¶ Then answered Job unto the LORD, and said,

2 I acknowledge that thou art able to do every thing, and that no deep plan of thine can be restrained.

3 Who is he that dareth to conceal (thy) counsel without knowledge? Truly I have spoken of what I understood not, of things too wonderful for me, which I knew not.

4 Oh do but hear (me), and I will indeed speak: I will ask of thee, and do thou inform me.

5 I had only heard of thee by the hearing of the ear;[a] but now my eye hath seen thee.

6 Therefore I reject (what I have said),[b] and repent; because I am dust and ashes.

7 ¶ And it came to pass, after the LORD had spoken these words unto Job, that the LORD said to Eliphaz the Themanite, My wrath is kindled against thee, and against thy two friends; because ye have not spoken of me properly, like my servant Job.

8 And now take unto yourselves seven bullocks and seven rams, and go to my servant Job, and offer up a burnt-offering in your behalf; and my servant Job shall pray for you; for him alone will I receive favourably, so as not to deal with you after your folly; because ye have not spoken of me properly, like my servant Job.

9 Then went Eliphaz the Themanite and Bildad the Shuchite and Zophar the Na'amathite, and did in accordance with what the LORD had spoken to them: and the LORD received Job in favour.

10 And the LORD brought back the captivity of Job, when he prayed in behalf of his friends; and the LORD increased all that Job had had twofold.

11 And then came unto him all his brothers, and all his sisters, and all that had been of his acquaintance before, and ate bread with him in his house; and they condoled with him, and comforted him for all the evil that the LORD had brought upon him; and they gave him, every one, a kessitah,[c] and every one an earring of gold.

12 And the LORD blessed the latter end of Job more than his beginning: and he had fourteen thousand sheep, and six thousand camels, and a thousand yoke of oxen, and a thousand she-asses.

13 He had also seven sons and three daughters.

14 And he called the name of the first Jemimah;[d] and the name of the second, Keziah; and the name of the third, Keren-happuch.

15 And there were not found such handsome women as the daughters of Job in all the land; and their father gave them an inheritance among their brothers.

16 And Job lived after this one hundred and forty years; and he saw his sons, and his sons' sons, even four generations.

17 Then died Job, being old and full of days.

gether, here sand, mud, clay, all appearing as though they were boiling.

[a] i. e. As report had represented God, not as he is, inscrutably wise, as he now had revealed himself.

[b] Aben Ezra, and so also the Massorah. Others, "I repent in dust and ashes." Rashi, "I despise my life, and I would comfort myself if I were dwelling in the grave to return to dust and ashes."

[c] A silver coin. (See Gen. xxxiii. 19.)

[d] These names are explained, "Brightness of day," "The sweet-scented cassia," and "The painting-horn," used to ornament the eyes.

THE SONG OF SOLOMON,

שיר השירים אשר לשלמה.

CHAPTER I.

1 ¶ The song of songs, which is Solomon's.

2 Oh that he might kiss me with the kisses of his mouth; for thy caresses are more pleasant than wine.

3 To the smell are thy fragrant oils pleasant, (like) precious oil poured forth is thy name (famous afar):[b] therefore do maidens love thee.

4 Oh draw me, after thee will we run: the king hath brought me into his chambers; we will be glad and rejoice in thee; we will recall thy caresses, more (pleasant) than wine; without deceit[c] (all) love thee.—

5 Black am I, yet comely, O daughters of Jerusalem, like the tents of Kedar, like the curtains of Solomon.

6 Look not so at me, because I am somewhat black, because the sun hath looked fiercely at me: my mother's children were angry with me; they appointed me to be keeper of the vineyards; but my vineyard, which is my own, have I not kept.—

7 Tell me, O thou whom my soul loveth, where thou feedest? where lettest thou thy flock rest at noon? for why should I appear like a vailed mourner[d] by the flocks of thy companions?—

8 If thou knowest this not, O thou fairest of women, go but forth in the footsteps of the flock, and feed thy kids around the shepherds' dwellings.—

9 Unto the horse in Pharaoh's chariot do I compare thee, my beloved.

10 Comely are thy cheeks between strings (of pearls), thy neck with rows (of jewels).

11 Chains of gold will we make for thee with studs of silver.—

12 While the king sitteth at his table, my spikenard[e] sendeth forth its (pleasant) smell.

13 A bundle of myrrh is my friend unto me, that resteth on my bosom.

14 A copher-cluster[f] is my friend unto me in the vineyards of 'En-gedi.—

15 Lo, thou art beautiful, my beloved: lo, thou art beautiful: thy eyes are those of a dove.—

16 Lo, thou art beautiful, my friend, also pleasant: also our couch is (made in the) green (wood).

17 The beams of our house are cedar, and our wainscoting[g] of cypress-trees.

CHAPTER II.

1 I am the rose[h] of Sharon, the lily of the valleys.—

2 Like the lily among the thorns, so is my beloved among the young maidens.—

3 Like the apple-tree among the trees of the forest, so is my friend among the young

[a] This song, ascribed to the wise king of Israel, has always been regarded as an exposition of the love of God for his people. It is represented under the image of a country maiden, Shulammith, who is desirous of being reunited to her friend to whom she is betrothed, but from whom now separated at the court of King Solomon. The king, in addressing her, calls her "my beloved" רעיתי; her betrothed calls her כלה "bride," or אחתי כלה "my sister bride;" the chorus of court ladies, היפה בנשים "fairest of women." The poem consists of a number of conversations: the speakers being readily distinguished, though not named. (After Herxheimer's Introduction; yet there appears at times some variation in the above modes of address.)

[b] Rashi: "When sweet oil is sealed up in a flask, its scent is not diffused: open it, and pour it into another vessel, its scent is carried far."

[c] Rashi. Others, "the upright love thee." Sachs, "with justice men love thee."

[d] Rashi. Others, "like a suspected person;" but Philippson, referring to Jer. xliii. 12, where the shepherd is represented as wrapping his cloak around him against the storm, renders here עטיה, one who in wandering about has put on a cloak as a protection against an unexpected storm.

[e] This is said to be an extract from the root of an Indian plant, Valeriana jatamansi.

[f] Supposed to be the Lawsonia alba, with many evergreen leaves, and flowers of an agreeable scent which hang in clusters.

[g] Aben Ezra, one opinion, "our water-troughs are of marble."

[h] Arnheim, "narcissus." Sachs, "the lily of Sharon, the rose of the valleys."

men: under his shadow do I ardently wish to sit, and his fruit is sweet to my palate.

4 He brought me to the banqueting-house,[a] and his banner over me was love.

5 Strengthen me with flagons of wine,[b] refresh me with apples; for sick of love am I.

6 Oh that his left hand might be under my head, and that his right might embrace me.

7 I adjure you, O daughters of Jerusalem, by the roes, and by the hinds of the field, that ye awaken not, nor excite my love, till it please (to come of itself).[c]—

8 The voice of my friend! behold, there he cometh, leaping over the mountains, skipping over the hills.

9 My friend is like a roebuck or the fawn of the hinds: behold, there he standeth behind our wall, looking in at the windows, seeing through the lattice.

10 My friend commenced, and said unto me, Rise thee up, my beloved, my fair one, and come along.

11 For, lo, the winter is past, the rain is over and gone its way.

12 The flowers are seen in the land; the time of the (birds') singing is come, and the voice of the turtle-dove is heard in our land;

13 The fig-tree perfumeth its green figs, and the vines with young grapes[d] give forth a (pleasant) smell. Arise thee, my beloved, my fair one, and come along.

14 O my dove, who art in the clefts of the rock, in the recesses of the cliffs, let me see thy countenance, let me hear thy voice; for thy voice is sweet, and thy countenance is comely.—

15 Seize for us the foxes, the little foxes, that injure the vineyards; for our vineyards have young grapes.

16 My friend is mine, and I am his—that feedeth among the lilies.

17 Until the day become cool, and the shadows flee away, turn about, my friend, and be thou like the roebuck or the fawn of the hinds upon the mountains of separation.

CHAPTER III.

1 ¶ On my couch during the nights I sought him whom my soul loveth: I sought him, but I found him not.

2 Oh, I must rise now, and go about in the city, in the streets, and in the open places; I will seek him whom my soul loveth: I sought him, but I found him not.

3 Then found me the watchmen that walked about the city. "Have ye seen him whom my soul loveth?"

4 Scarcely had I passed away from them, when I found him whom my soul loveth: I laid fast hold of him, and would not let him go, until I had brought him into my mother's house, and into the chamber of her that had born me.

5 I adjure you, ye daughters of Jerusalem, by the roes, and by the hinds of the field, that ye awaken not, nor excite my love, till it please (to come of itself).—

6 Who is this that cometh up from the wilderness, like pillars of smoke, perfumed with myrrh and frankincense, with all spicy powders of the merchant?

7 Behold, it is the bed,[e] which is Solomon's, sixty valiant men are round about it, of the valiant ones of Israel.

8 All of them are girded with the sword, are expert in war; every one hath his sword upon his thigh, because[f] of the terror in the nights.

9 A palanquin did king Solomon make for himself out of the wood of Lebanon.

10 The pillars thereof he made of silver, its coverlid of gold, its seat of purple: its inner part is arranged lovely,[g] by the daughters of Jerusalem.

11 Go forth, and look, O ye daughters of Zion, on king Solomon, with the crown wherewith his mother hath crowned him on the day of his espousals, and on the day of the joy of his heart.—

CHAPTER IV.

1 Behold, thou art beautiful, my beloved, behold, thou art beautiful: thy dovelike eyes (look forth) from behind thy vail; thy hair is like a flock of goats, that come quietly down from mount Gil'ad.

[a] Heb. "house of wine." A great entertainment is called "wine-drinking," as it takes place on such occasions.

[b] Philippson, "cakes of raisins."

[c] Philippson.

[d] Rashi. Aben Ezra, "vines in bloom," &c.

[e] Others, "litter," "palanquin," in which the king was carried, surrounded by his guards.

[f] Arnheim, "fearless," "without fear in the nights."

[g] Philippson, after Herder, taking אהבה as an adverb, not "love," but "lovely."

2 Thy teeth are like a flock of well-selected sheep, which are come up from the washing, all of which bear twins, and there is not one among them that is deprived of her young.

3 Like a thread of scarlet are thy lips, and thy mouth[a] is comely: like the half of a pomegranate is the upper part of thy cheek behind thy vail.

4 Thy neck is like the tower of David built on terraces,[b] a thousand shields hang thereon, all the quivers of the mighty men.

5 Thy two breasts are like two fawns, the twins of the roe, that feed among the lilies.

6 Until the day become cool, and the shadows flee away, will I get me to the mountain of myrrh, and to the hill of frankincense.

7 Thou art altogether beautiful, my beloved, and there is no blemish on thee.—

8 Come with me from Lebanon, O bride, with me from Lebanon: look about from the top of Amanah, from the top of Senir and Chermon, from the lions' dens, from the leopards' mountains.

9 Thou hast ravished my heart, O my sister, (my) bride; thou hast ravished my heart with one of thy eyes, with one chain of thy neck.

10 How beautiful are thy caresses, O my sister, (my) bride! how much more pleasant are thy caresses than wine! and the smell of thy fragrant oils more than all spices.

11 Of sweet honey drop thy lips, O bride: honey and milk are under thy tongue; and the scent of thy garments is like the scent of Lebanon.

12 A locked-up garden is my sister, (my) bride; a locked-up spring, a sealed fountain.

13 Thy sprouts are an orchard of pomegranates, with precious fruits, copher and spikenard:

14 Spikenard and saffron; calamus and cinnamon, with all the trees of frankincense; myrrh and aloes, with all the chief of spices;

15 A garden-spring, a well of living waters, and flowing down from Lebanon.—

16 Awake, O north wind; and come thou, O south; blow over my garden, that its spices may flow out. Let my friend come into his garden, and eat its precious fruits.—

CHAPTER V.

1 I am come into my garden, my sister, (my) bride; I have plucked my myrrh with my spice; I have eaten my sugar-cane[c] with my honey; I have drunk my wine with my milk: eat, ye companions; drink, yea, drink abundantly, ye friends.—

2 I slept, but my heart was awake: (there was) the voice of my beloved that knocked, "Open for me, my sister, my beloved, my dove, my guiltless one; for my head is filled with dew, and my locks with the drops of the night."

3 I have put off my coat: how shall I put it on? I have washed my feet: how shall I defile them?

4 My friend stretched forth his hand through the opening, and my inmost parts were moved for him.

5 I rose up myself to open for my friend; and my hands dropped with myrrh, and my fingers with fluid myrrh, upon the handles of the lock.

6 I indeed opened for my beloved; but my beloved had vanished, and was gone: my soul had failed me while he was speaking; I sought him, but I could not find him; I called him, but he answered me not.

7 Then found me the watchmen that walked about the city; they smote me, they wounded me: they took away my vail from me, they that watched the walls.

8 I adjure you, O daughters of Jerusalem, if ye find my beloved, what will ye tell him? that I am sick of love.—

9 What is thy friend more than another's friend, O thou fairest of women? what is thy friend more than another's friend, that thus thou adjurest us?—

10 My friend is white and ruddy, distinguished among ten thousand.

11 His head is bright as the finest gold, his locks are like waving foliage, and black as a raven.

12 His eyes are like (those of) doves by streamlets of waters, bathed in milk, well fitted in their setting.

[a] Rashi, "thy speech;" but evidently here the means by which speech is uttered, "the mouth."

[b] Fürst. Rashi, "for ornament." Others, "as an armoury."

[c] Rashi.

13 His cheeks are as a bed of spices, as turrets of sweet perfumes:[a] his lips, like lilies, dropping with fluid myrrh.

14 His hands are like wheels of gold beset with the chrysolite: his body, an image made of ivory overlaid with sapphires.

15 His legs are like pillars of marble, resting upon sockets of fine gold: his countenance is as Lebanon, excellent[b] like the cedars.

16 His palate is full of sweets, and every thing in him is agreeable. This is my friend, and this is my beloved, O daughters of Jerusalem.—

CHAPTER VI.

1 Whither is thy friend gone, O fairest of women? whither hath thy friend turned himself? that we may seek him with thee?—

2 My beloved is gone down to his garden, to the beds of spices, to feed in the gardens, and to gather lilies.

3 I am my friend's, and my friend is mine: he that feedeth among the lilies.—

4 Thou art beautiful, O my beloved, like Thirzah, comely like Jerusalem, terrible as armies encamped round their banners.

5 Turn away thy eyes from me, for they have excited me: thy hair is like a flock of goats that come quietly down from mount Gil'ad.

6 Thy teeth are like a flock of ewes which are come up from the washing, all of which bear twins, and there is not one among them that is deprived of her young.

7 Like the half of the pomegranate is the upper part of thy cheek behind thy vail.

8 Sixty are the queens, and eighty the concubines, and the young women without number;

9 But one alone is my dove, my guiltless one; she is the only one of her mother, she is the chosen of her that bore her: maidens see her, and call her happy; yea, queens and concubines, and praise her.

10 Who is this that shineth forth like the morning-dawn, beautiful as the moon, bright as the sun, terrible as armies encamped round their banners?

11 Into the nut-garden was I gone down, to look about among the plants[c] of the valley, to see whether the vine had blossomed, whether the pomegranates had budded.

12 I knew not (how it was),[d] my soul made me (like) the chariots of my noble people.

CHAPTER VII.[e]

1 Return, return, O Shulammith; return, return, that we may look upon thee. "What will ye see in the Shulammith?" As though it were the dance of a double company.[f]

2 How beautiful are thy steps in sandals, O prince's daughter! the roundings of thy thighs are like jewelled ornaments, the work of the hands of the artificer.

3 Thy navel is like a round goblet which lacketh not the mixed wine: thy body is like a heap of wheat fenced about with lilies.

4 Thy two breasts are like two fawns, the twins of the roe.

5 Thy neck is like a tower of ivory; thy eyes are like the pools in Cheshbon, by the gate of Bath-rabbim; thy nose is like the tower of Lebanon which looketh toward Damascus.

6 Thy head upon thee is like Carmel, and the hair of thy head like purple: a king is held bound in the tresses.[g]

7 How beautiful and how pleasant art thou, O love, in thy attractions!

8 This thy stature is like a palm-tree, and thy breasts are like clusters of grapes.

9 I thought, I wish to climb up the palm-tree, I wish to take hold of its boughs; and, oh, that thy breasts might be like clusters of the vine, and the smell of thy nose like apples;

10 And thy palate like the best wine, that glideth down for my friend gently, exciting[h] the lips of those that are asleep.—

[a] Lit. "mixtures of spices." Herxheimer, "towers of spices." [b] Others, "a growth like cedar-trees."

[c] Aben Ezra, "fruits."

[d] Philippson comments, "Before I was aware, the feeling awakened within me made me like the chariots violently urged forward." (See also 2 Kings ii. 12, "Israel's chariot," applied to Elijah.) Arnheim, "My desire placed me among the chariots of my noble people:" this version would take these words as spoken by the maiden; in our text, as those of the king.

[e] In the English version, chap. vii. commences at ver. 2.

[f] Zunz. Philippson explains, the desire is to see her walk, which is as graceful as the steps taken in a dance where two rows of expert dancers exercise their skill.

[g] Rashi. Aben Ezra, "water-troughs," which is explained by Arnheim, "even a king would be held entranced by such charms at the water-troughs of the shepherds."

[h] Rashi. Aben Ezra, "causing to speak." Philippson, "moistening."

11 I am my friend's, and toward me is his desire.

12 Come, my friend, let us go forth into the field; let us spend the night in the villages;

13 Let us get up early to the vineyards; let us see if the vine have blossomed, whether the young grape have opened (to the view), whether the pomegranates have budded: there will I give my caresses unto thee.

14 The mandrakes give forth (their) smell, and at our doors are all manner of precious fruits, new and also old: O my friend, these have I laid up for thee.

CHAPTER VIII.

1 Oh that some one would make thee as my brother that hath sucked my mother's breasts! should I then find thee without, I would kiss thee; and yet, people would not despise me.

2 I would lead thee, I would bring thee into my mother's house, thou shouldst teach me:[a] I would cause thee to drink of spiced wine, of the sweet juice of my pomegranate.

3 Oh that his left hand might be under my head, and that his right hand might embrace me.

4 I adjure you, O daughters of Jerusalem, why will ye awaken, and why will ye excite my love, until it please (to come of itself)?—

5 Who is this that cometh up from the wilderness, leaning upon her friend?—Under the apple-tree have I waked thee up; there thy mother brought thee forth; there brought thee forth she that bore thee.

6 Set me as a seal upon thy heart, as a seal upon thy arm; for strong as death is love; violent like the nether world is jealousy; its heat is the heat of fire, a flame of God.

7 Many waters are not able to quench love, nor can the rivers flood it away: if a man were to give all the wealth of his house for love, men would utterly despise him.—

8 We have a little sister, and she hath yet no breasts: what shall we do for our sister on the day when she shall be spoken for?

9 If she be a wall, we will build upon her a palace of silver: and if she be a door, we will enclose her with boards of cedar.—

10 I am a wall, and my breasts are like towers: then was I in his eyes as one that found favour.[b]

11 Solomon had a vineyard at Ba'al-hamon; he had given up the vineyard unto the keepers; every one was to bring for its fruit a thousand pieces of silver.

12 My vineyard, which was mine, was before me: thine, O Solomon, be the thousand, and let two hundred be for those that keep its fruit.—

13 "Thou that dwellest in the gardens, the companions listen for thy voice: oh let me hear it."

14 Flee[c] away, my friend, and be thou like the roebuck, or the fawn of the hinds, upon the mountains of spices.

THE BOOK OF RUTH,

מגלת רות.

CHAPTER I.

1 ¶ And it came to pass in the days when the judges judged, that there was a famine in the land: and there went a certain man of Beth-lechem-judah to sojourn in the fields of Moäb, he, and his wife, and his two sons.

2 And the name of the man was Elimelech, and the name of his wife Na'omi,[d] and the name of his two sons Machlon and Kil-yon, Ephrathites of Beth-lechem-judah. And they came into the fields of Moäb, and remained there.

3 Thereupon died Elimelech Na'omi's husband; and she was left, with her two sons.

4 And they took themselves wives of the women of Moäb; the name of one was 'Orpah, and the name of the other Ruth: and they dwelt there about ten years.

5 And then died also both of these, Machlon and Kilyon, and the woman was left (deprived) of her two children and her husband.

6 Then did she arise with her daughters-in-law, and returned homeward from the fields of Moäb; for she had heard in the fields of Moäb that the LORD had thought of his people in giving them bread.

7 Therefore she went forth out of the place where she had been, and her two daughters-in-law (were) with her; and they went on their way to return unto the land of Judah.

8 Then said Na'omi unto her two daughters-in-law, Go, return each one to her mother's house: may the LORD deal kindly with you, as ye have dealt with the dead, and with me.

9 May the LORD grant unto you that ye may find rest, each one in the house of her husband. Then she kissed them, and they lifted up their voice, and wept.

10 And they said unto her, (No,) for truly we will return with thee unto thy people.

11 Then said Na'omi, Return back, my daughters: why will ye go with me? are there yet any more sons in my womb, that they may become your husbands?

12 Return back, my daughters, go; for I am too old to become (the wife) of any man; yea, if I were even to think, I have hope; should I even obtain this night a husband, and should also bear sons:

13 Would ye wait in hopes for them till they were grown? would ye debar yourselves for them so as not to become the wives of any man? not so, my daughters; for I feel much more bitter pain than[a] you; because the hand of the LORD is gone out against me.

14 And they lifted up their voice and wept a long time; and 'Orpah kissed her mother-in-law; but Ruth cleaved unto her.

15 And she said, Behold, thy sister-in-law is returned back unto her people, and unto her gods: return thou after thy sister-in-law.

16 But Ruth said, Urge me not to leave thee, to return from following thee; for whither thou goest, will I go; and where thou lodgest, will I lodge: thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God.

17 Where thou diest, will I die, and there will I be buried: may the LORD do so to me, and may he so continue, if aught but death shall part me from thee.

18 When she thus saw that she was persisting to go with her, she left off speaking unto her.

19 So these two went until they came to Beth-lechem. And it came to pass, when they entered Beth-lechem, that all the city was in a commotion about them, and people said, Is this Na'omi?

20 And she said unto them, Call me not Na'omi,[b] call me Mara; for the Almighty hath dealt very bitterly with me.

21 I went out full, but empty hath the LORD brought me home again: why then will ye call me Na'omi, seeing the LORD hath testified[c] against me, and the Almighty hath sent me affliction?

22 So did Na'omi return, and Ruth the Moäbitess, her daughter-in-law, with her, who had returned out of the fields of Moäb: and they came to Beth-lechem at the beginning of the barley-harvest.

CHAPTER II.

1 And Na'omi had a kinsman of her husband's, a mighty, valiant man, of the family of Elimelech, whose name was Bo'az.

2 And Ruth the Moäbitess said unto Na'omi, Let me go, I pray thee, into the field, and glean ears of corn after him in whose eyes I shall find grace. And she said unto her, Go, my daughter.

3 And she went, and came, and gleaned in the field after the reapers: and the accident happened to her, that it was a part of the field belonging unto Bo'az, who was of the family of Elimelech.

[a] Others, "I feel a very bitter grief for your sake." Arnheim, "without you."

[b] Na'omi, "pleasant;" Mara, "bitter."

[c] Rashi; i. e. shown his displeasure by his dispensation.

4 And, behold, Bo'az came from Bethlechem, and he said unto the reapers, The LORD be with you. And they said unto him, May the LORD bless thee.

5 Then said Bo'az unto his young man that was appointed over the reapers, Whose maiden is this?

6 And the young man that was appointed over the reapers answered and said, It is a Moäbitish maiden that is returned with Na'omi out of the fields of Moäb;

7 And she said, Let me glean, I pray you, and gather among the sheaves after the reapers: so she came, and hath remained ever from the morning even until now; it is but a little while that she hath sat down in the house.

8 Then said Bo'az unto Ruth, Hearest thou not, my daughter? Go not to glean in another field, neither go away from this; but keep close company with my own maidens.

9 Let thy eyes be on the field which they may reap, and go thou after them; behold, I have charged the young men that they shall not touch thee: and when thou art thirsty, go unto the vessels, and drink of that which the young men may draw.

10 Thereupon she fell on her face, and bowed herself to the ground, and said unto him, Why have I found grace in thy eyes, that thou shouldst take cognizance of me, seeing I am but a stranger?

11 But Bo'az answered and said unto her, It hath fully been told me, all that thou hast done unto thy mother-in-law after the death of thy husband; and how thou hast forsaken thy father and thy mother, and the land of thy birth, and art come unto a people which thou knewest not yesterday or the day before.

12 May the LORD recompense thy work, and may thy reward be complete from the LORD the God of Israel, under whose wings thou art come to seek shelter.

13 Then said she, Let me find grace in thy eyes, my lord; for thou hast comforted me, and because thou hast spoken (kindly) unto the heart of thy handmaid, though I be not like one of thy handmaids.

14 And Bo'az said unto her, At mealtime come near hither, and eat of the bread, and dip thy morsel in the vinegar. And she seated herself beside the reapers: and he reached her parched corn, and she ate, and was satisfied, and had some left.

15 Then did she arise to glean: and Bo'az commanded his young men, saying, Even between the sheaves let her glean, and do not cause her to feel any shame;

16 And ye shall also draw out some for her from the bundles on purpose, and leave it, that she may glean it, and ye shall not rebuke her.

17 So she gleaned in the field until the evening; and when she beat out what she had gleaned, it was about an ephah of barley.

18 And she took it up, and she went into the city; and her mother-in-law saw what she had gleaned; and she brought forth, and gave to her what she had left over after she was satisfied.

19 And her mother-in-law said unto her, Where hast thou gleaned to-day? and where hast thou wrought? may he that took cognizance of thee be blessed. And she told her mother-in-law with whom she had wrought, and said, The name of the man with whom I wrought to-day is Bo'az.

20 Then said Na'omi unto her daughter-in-law, Blessed be he unto the LORD, who[a] hath not withheld his kindness from the living and from the dead. And Na'omi said unto her, The man is nearly related unto us, he is one of our next kinsmen.[b]

21 And Ruth the Moäbitess said, He hath also said unto me, Thou shalt keep close company with my young men, until they have ended all my harvest.

22 Then said Na'omi unto Ruth her daughter-in-law, It is good, my daughter, that thou go out with his maidens, and that men may not[c] meet with thee in any other field.

23 So she kept close company with the maidens of Bo'az in gleaning until the end of the barley-harvest and of the wheat-harvest; and she dwelt with her mother-in-law.

CHAPTER III.

1 Then said Na'omi her mother-in-law unto her, My daughter, behold I will seek for thee a resting-place, where it may be well with thee.

2 And now, behold, Bo'az is our kinsman, he with whose maidens thou hast been. Lo, he is winnowing the barley to-night in the threshing-floor.

3 Therefore bathe, and anoint thyself, and put thy garments upon thee, and go down to the threshing-floor; (but) make thyself not known unto the man, until he shall have finished eating and drinking.

4 And it shall be, when he lieth down, that thou shalt note the place where he will lie, and thou shalt then go in, and lift up the covering that is on his feet, and lay thyself down: and he will tell thee what thou shalt do.

5 And she said unto her, All that thou sayest unto me will I do.

6 And she went down unto the threshing-floor, and did in accordance with all that her mother-in-law had commanded her.

7 And Bo'az ate and drank, and his heart became merry; and he then went in to lie down at the end of the heap of corn: and she came in softly, and lifted up the covering that was on his feet, and laid herself down.

8 And it came to pass at midnight, that the man became terrified, and bent himself forward; and, behold, a woman was lying at his feet.

9 And he said, Who art thou? And she said, I am Ruth thy handmaid: spread therefore thy skirt over thy handmaid; for thou art a near kinsman.

10 And he said, Blessed be thou unto the LORD, my daughter; for thou hast shown more kindness in the last instance than the first, by not going after the young men, whether they be poor or rich.

11 And now, my daughter, fear not: all that thou mayest say will I do for thee; for all (the men in) the gate of my people know that thou art a virtuous woman.

12 And now, it is indeed true that I am thy near kinsman;[a] nevertheless, there is a kinsman nearer than I.

13 Remain here this night, and it shall be in the morning, that if he will redeem thee, well, let him redeem; but if he be not willing to redeem thee, then will I redeem thee, as the LORD liveth: lie still until the morning.

14 And she lay at his feet until the morning; and she rose up before one could know another. And he said, It must not be known that this woman came into the threshing-floor.

15 Also he said, Bring hither the cloak that thou hast upon thee, and lay hold of it. And she laid hold of it, and he measured six (measures) of barley, and laid it on her, and went into the city.

16 And she came to her mother-in-law, and she said, How is it with thee, my daughter? And she told her all that the man had done to her.

17 And she said, These six measures of barley gave he unto me; for he said to me, Thou shalt not come empty to thy mother-in-law.

18 Then said she, Remain still, my daughter, until thou know how the matter will fall out; for the man will not rest, until he have finished the matter this day.

CHAPTER IV.

1 ¶ But Bo'az went up to the gate,[b] and sat down there; and, behold, the kinsman of whom Bo'az had spoken came passing by; and he said unto him, Turn aside hither, sit down here, such a one. And he turned aside, and sat down.

2 And he took ten men of the elders of the city, and said, Sit ye down here. And they sat down.

3 And he said unto the kinsman, Na'omi, that is returned out of the field of Moäb, hath to sell[c] a parcel of land, which was our brother Elimelech's.

4 And I thought to inform thee of it, saying, Buy it before those sitting here, and before the elders of my people. If thou wilt redeem it, redeem it; but if thou wilt not redeem it, then tell me, that I may know; for there is none beside thee to redeem it, and I am after thee. And he said, I will redeem it.

5 Then said Bo'az, On the day that thou buyest the field out of the hand of Na'omi, thou buyest it also from Ruth the Moäbitess, the wife of the dead, to raise up the name of the dead upon his inheritance.

[a] Lit. "that I am a redeemer, but there is a redeemer," &c.

[b] The place for the magistrates to meet in.

[c] Philippson; literally, "hath sold."

6 And the kinsman said, I am not able to redeem it for myself, lest I injure my[a] own inheritance: redeem thou what I should redeem for thyself; for I am not able to redeem it.

7 Now this was formerly the custom in Israel at a redeeming and at an exchanging, to confirm any thing, that a man pulled off his shoe, and gave it to the other; and this was the manner of testimony in Israel.

8 Thereupon said the kinsman unto Bo'az, Buy it for thee. And he pulled off his shoe.

9 And Bo'az said unto the elders, and unto all the people, Ye are witnesses this day, that I have bought all that belonged to Elimelech, and all that belonged to Kilyon and Machlon, out of the hand of Na'omi.

10 And also Ruth the Moäbitess, the wife of Machlon, have I obtained for myself as my wife, to raise up the name of the dead upon his inheritance, that the name of the dead may not be cut off from among his brethren, and from the gate of his place: ye are witnesses this day.

11 And all the people that were in the gate, and the elders, said, (We are) witnesses. The LORD grant that the woman that is coming into thy house be like Rachel and like Leah, who did both build up the house of Israel: and acquire thou wealth in Ephrathah, and let thy name become famous in Bethlechem;

12 And may thy house be like the house of Perez, whom Thamar bore unto Judah through the seed which the LORD will give thee of this young woman.

13 And Bo'az took Ruth, and she became his wife, and he went in unto her: and the LORD gave her conception, and she bore a son.

14 And the women said unto Na'omi, Blessed be the LORD, who hath not allowed to be wanting unto thee a kinsman this day: and may his name become famous in Israel.

15 And may he be unto thee one who refresheth thy soul, and who nourisheth thy old age; for thy daughter-in-law, who loveth thee, hath born him, she who is better to thee than seven sons.

16 And Na'omi took the child, and laid it in her lap, and she became a nurse unto it.

17 And the neighbouring women gave him a name, saying, There hath been a son born unto Na'omi: and they called his name 'Obed, who is the father of Jessé, the father of David.

18 And these are the generations of Perez: Perez begat Chezron;

19 And Chezron begat Ram; and Ram begat 'Amminadab;

20 And 'Amminadab begat Nachshon; and Nachshon[b] begat Salmah;

21 And Salmon begat Bo'az; and Bo'az begat 'Obed;

22 And 'Obed begat Jessé, and Jessé begat David.

CHAPTER I.

1 ¶ OH how doth she sit solitary—the city that was full of people is become like a widow! she that was so great among the nations, the princess among the provinces, is become tributary!

2 She weepeth sorely in the night, and her tears are on her cheeks; she hath none to comfort her among all her lovers: all her friends have dealt treacherously toward her, they are become her enemies.

[a] Rashi says, he feared to cast a reproach upon the probable issue of the marriage by taking a Moäbitess; Jonathan, that he feared to take another wife, being married already, not to destroy his domestic peace; Herxheimer, that by purchasing the land, which must go to the child of Ruth, he would diminish his own means by so much as he paid for the land.

3 Exiled is Judah because of affliction, and because of the greatness of servitude; she dwelleth indeed among the nations, she findeth no rest: all her pursuers have overtaken her between the narrow passes.[a]

4 The ways to Zion are in mourning, because none come to the solemn feasts; all her gates are desolate; her priests sigh; her virgins moan, and she suffereth herself from bitter grief.

5 Her adversaries are become chiefs, her enemies prosper; for the LORD hath caused her to grieve because of the multitude of her transgressions: her babes are gone into captivity before the adversary.

6 And there is gone forth from the daughter of Zion all her splendour: her princes are become like harts that have found no pasture, and they flee without strength before the pursuer.

7 Jerusalem remembereth in the days of her affliction and of her miseries all her magnificent things which have been in the days of old: when her people fell into the hand of the adversary, with none to help her, the adversaries looked at her, they laughed at the cessation (of her glory).

8 A grievous sin did Jerusalem commit, therefore is she become a wanderer: all that honoured her hold her in contempt, because they have seen her nakedness; she also sigheth, and turneth (ashamed) backward.

9 (With) her uncleanness on her skirts, she thought not of her latter end: therefore is she come down wonderfully, without one to comfort her. Behold, O LORD, my affliction; for the enemy hath become great (above me).[b]

10 His hand hath the adversary spread out over all her magnificent things; for she hath seen nations entering into her sanctuary, of whom thou didst command that they should not enter into thy congregation.

11 All her people sigh, they are seeking bread; they have given their precious things for food to refresh their soul: see, O LORD, and look, how I have been brought low.

12 "I adjure[c] you, all that pass this way, behold, and see if there be any pain like unto my pain, which hath been inflicted on me, wherewith the LORD hath aggrieved me on the day of his fierce anger.

13 From on high hath he sent a fire into my bones, and breaketh[d] (them) one by one: he hath spread a net for my feet, he hath caused me to return backward; he hath made me desolate, sick all the day.

14 Bound fast[e] is the yoke of my transgressions by his hand,—they are wreathed, and come up upon my neck; he hath made my strength to stumble: the Lord hath given me up into the hands of (those against whom) I am not able to rise up.

15 The Lord hath trodden under foot all my mighty men in the midst of me; he hath called an assembly against me to crush my young men: a winepress hath the Lord trodden over the virgin, the daughter of Judah.

16 For these things do I weep; my eye, my eye runneth down with water; because far from me is the comforter that should refresh my soul: my children are in misery,[f] because the enemy hath prevailed."

17 Zion spreadeth forth her hands, without one to comfort her; the LORD hath given a charge[g] concerning Jacob to all his adversaries round about him: Jerusalem is become as an unclean woman among them.

18 "Righteous is the LORD; for against his orders have I rebelled: oh do hear, all ye people, and see my pain! my virgins and my young men are gone into captivity.

19 I called for my lovers, but they deceived me: my priests and my elders perished in the city; for they sought food for themselves to refresh their soul.

20 See, O LORD! how I am in distress; my bowels are heated; my heart is turned round within me; because I have grievously rebel-

21 They hear how greatly I sigh, (yet) there is none to comfort me; all my enemies have heard of my misfortune, they are glad that thou hast done it: oh that thou wouldst bring the day which thou hast proclaimed (against me),[b] that they may become like me.

22 Let all their wickedness come before thee, and do unto them as thou hast done unto me because of all my transgressions; for many are my sighs, and my heart is sick."

CHAPTER II.

1 ¶ Oh how hath the LORD covered in his anger the daughter of Zion with a cloud; he hath cast down from heaven unto the earth the ornament of Israel; and he hath not remembered his footstool on the day of his anger!

2 The LORD hath destroyed and hath not pitied all the habitations of Jacob; he hath thrown down in his wrath the strong-holds of the daughter of Judah; he hath thrown them down to the ground: he hath defiled the kingdom and its princes.

3 He hath hewn away in his fierce anger the whole horn of Israel; he hath drawn back his right hand from before the enemy; and he burnt against Jacob like a flaming fire, which devoureth round about.

4 He bent his bow like an enemy; he held out his right hand as an adversary, and slew all that were pleasant to the eye: in the tent of the daughter of Zion did he pour out like fire his fury.

5 The Lord became like an enemy; he destroyed Israel, he destroyed all her palaces, he ruined her strong-holds; and he increased in the midst of the daughter of Judah groaning and wailing.

6 And he violently wasted,[c] as if it were a garden, his tabernacle; he destroyed his place of assembly: (yea,) the LORD hath caused to be forgotten in Zion the solemn feast and the day of rest, and hath despised in the indignation of his anger both king and priest.

7 The Lord hath cast off his altar, he hath made void his sanctuary, he hath surrendered into the hand of the enemy the walls of her palaces: they have made their voice to resound in the house of the LORD, as on a day of a solemn feast.

8 The LORD had resolved to destroy the wall of the daughter of Zion; he stretched out the measuring-line, he withdrew not his hand from destroying: and he caused the rampart and the wall to mourn; together they languish.

9 Sunk into the ground are her gates; he hath ruined and broken her bars: her king and her princes are among the nations without any law; her prophets also obtain no more any vision from the LORD.

10 The elders of the daughter of Zion sit upon the ground, they keep silence; they have thrown dust upon their head; they have girt themselves with sackcloth: the virgins of Jerusalem have brought down low their head to the ground.

11 My eyes do fail with tears, my bowels are heated, my liver is poured upon the earth, because of the breach of the daughter of my people; because babes and sucklings faint away in the streets of the town.

12 To their mothers they say, Where is corn and wine? when they faint away like the deadly wounded in the streets of the city, when their soul is poured out on the bosom of their mother.

13 What shall I take to witness[d] for thee? what shall I compare unto thee, O daughter of Jerusalem? what shall I find equal to thee, that I may comfort thee, O virgin daughter of Zion? for great like the sea is thy breach; who can bring healing to thee?

14 Thy prophets foresaw for thee vain and deceptive things; and they did not lay open thy iniquity, to cause thy backsliders to return; but they foresaw for thee prophecies of falsehood and seduction.[e]

15 All that pass by (this) way clap their hands on account of thee; they hiss and shake their head over the daughter of Jerusalem: (saying,) Is this the city that men

16 All thy enemies open wide their mouth against thee; they hiss and gnash their teeth; they say, We have swallowed her up: ah, truly this is the day that we hoped for; we have found, we have seen it.

17 The LORD hath done what he had resolved; he hath accomplished his word which he had ordained already in the days of old; he hath thrown down, and hath not pitied: and he hath caused to rejoice over thee thy enemy, he hath raised on high the horn of thy adversaries.

18 Their heart crieth unto the Lord. O thou wall of the daughter of Zion, let tears run down like a stream day and night; allow thyself no rest; let not the apple of thy eye be still.

19 Arise, complain aloud in the night, in the beginning of the watches; pour out like water thy heart before the face of the Lord: lift up toward him thy hands because of the life of thy babes, that faint away for hunger at the corner of all the streets.

20 See, O LORD, and behold! to whom hast thou ever done the like? Shall women, then, eat their own fruit, the babes they have tenderly nursed? or shall there be slain in the sanctuary of the Lord the priest and the prophet?

21 There lie down on the ground in the streets the lad and the ancient; my virgins and my young men are fallen by the sword: thou hast slain on the day of thy anger; thou hast slaughtered, thou hast not pitied.

22 Thou hast called, as it were on a festive day, my evil neighbours[a] from round about; and there was not on the day of the LORD'S anger one that escaped or remained: those that I had tenderly nursed and reared up my enemy brought to their end.

CHAPTER III.

1 ¶ I am the man who hath seen affliction by the rod of his wrath.

2 Me hath he driven out, and led into darkness, but not into light.

3 Surely against me doth he turn again and again his hand all the day.

4 He hath caused my flesh and my skin to wear out, he hath broken my bones.

5 He hath built around me, and encompassed me with poison and hardship.

6 In dark places hath he set me to dwell, like the dead of olden times.

7 He hath placed a fence round about me, that I cannot get out: he hath made heavy my chain.

8 Also when I cry aloud and make entreaty, he shutteth out my prayer.

9 He hath fenced up my ways with hewn stone, my paths hath he made crooked.

10 A bear lying in wait is he to me, a lion in secret places.

11 On my ways hath he placed thorns[b] and torn me in pieces: he hath made me desolate.

12 He hath bent his bow, and placed me as a mark for the arrow.

13 He hath caused to enter into my reins the children[c] of his quiver.

14 I am become a laughing-stock to all my people, their (jeering) song all the day.

15 He hath sated me with bitter things, he hath made me drunken with wormwood.

16 He hath also broken my teeth with gravel-stones, he hath covered me with ashes.

17 And my soul hath given up all thoughts of peace: I forget happiness.

18 And I said, Lost is my strength,[d] my expectation also from the LORD.

19 Remembering my affliction and (the cause of) my complaint, is wormwood and poison.

20 Remembering (this) continually my soul is bowed down deeply within me.

21 (Yet) this answer will I give to my heart: therefore will I wait (in confidence).

22 It is through the LORD'S kindness that we are not consumed,[e] because his mercies have no end;

23 They are new every morning: great is thy faithfulness.

24 The LORD is my portion, saith my soul, therefore will I wait for him.

[a] Rashi. Aben Ezra, "terrors." Philippson, "riotous assemblages."

[b] Rashi, כורר as the verb of כור "thorn." Arnheim, "turneth upside down." Others, "turned aside."

[c] i. e. The arrows.

[d] Rashi, "my eternal portion." Arnheim, "victory." Jonathan, "My strength and the good I hoped for from the LORD."

[e] Rashi, one opinion, "For the kindnesses of the LORD do not cease."

25 The LORD is good unto those that hope in him, to the soul that seeketh him.

26 It is good that one should wait and this in silence for the salvation of the LORD.

27 It is good for a man that he bear the yoke in his youth;

28 That he sit in solitude and be silent; because He hath laid it upon him;

29 That he put his mouth in the dust; perhaps there still is hope;

30 That he offer his cheek to him that smiteth him; that he be satisfied with reproach.

31 For the Lord will not cast off for ever;

32 But though he have caused grief, yet will he have mercy according to the abundance of his kindnesses.

33 For he doth not afflict of his own will, and aggrieve the children of men.

34 To crush under his feet all the prisoners of the earth,

35 To pervert the justice (due to man) before the face of the Most High,

36 To subvert a man in his contest—should the LORD not see this?[a]

37 Who is he that saith aught, and it cometh to pass, when the Lord hath not ordained it?

38 Do not out of the mouth of the Most High come both the evil things and the good?

39 Wherefore should a living man complain? let every man complain[b] because of his sins.

40 Let us search through and investigate our ways, and let us return to the LORD.

41 Let us lift up our heart with our hands unto God in the heavens.

42 We have indeed transgressed and rebelled: thou hast truly not pardoned.

43 Thou hast covered (us)[c] with thy anger, and made pursuit after us: thou hast slain, thou hast not pitied.

44 Thou hast covered thyself with a cloud, that no prayer should pass through.

45 As something loathsome and rejected hast thou rendered us in the midst of the people.

46 Wide have all our enemies opened against us their mouth.

47 Terror and a snare are come upon us, (with) desolation and breaches.

48 With streams of water runneth my eye down, because of the breach of the daughter of my people.

49 My eye trickleth down, and resteth not, without any intermission,

50 Till the LORD look down, and behold from heaven.

51 My eye affecteth[d] my soul because of all the daughters of my city.

52 Those who are my enemies, without a cause, have chased me about like a bird.

53 They have shut up[e] in the dungeon my life, and have cast stones upon me.

54 Waters streamed over my head: I said, I am cut off.

55 I called on thy name, O LORD, out of the dungeon of the lowest depth.

56 Thou didst hear my voice: hide not thy ear to give me enlargement[f] at my cry.

57 Thou wast ever near on the day that I called on thee: thou saidst, Fear not.

58 Thou didst plead, O Lord, the causes of my soul: thou didst (before this) redeem my life.

59 Thou hast (now) seen, O LORD, the wrong I suffer: judge thou my cause.

60 Thou hast seen all their vengeance, all their plans against me.

61 Thou hast heard their reviling, O LORD, all their plans against me, 62 The speeches[g] of those that rise up against me, and their device against me all the day.

63 Oh look upon their sitting down, and their rising up: I am their (jeering) song.

64 Render unto them a recompense, O LORD, according to the work of their hands.

65 Give them confusion[h] of heart, thy curse be upon them.

[a] Jonathan. Verses 34–36 state thus several cases of wrong-doing; and Jeremiah then asks himself, whether the Lord must not see and condemn it; consequently it is not to be expected that God would willingly and arbitrarily do himself injustice by afflicting the just. Rashi renders, "The LORD doth not approve this, and it hath not entered his thoughts to do so."

[b] Rashi. Others continue the question, "Why will man complain while he liveth, every man over his sins?"

[c] Jonathan, Rashi, and Aben Ezra. Arnheim, "thyself."

[d] Jonathan, who supplies, "the weeping of." Rashi, "My eye is defaced because of myself more than all the," &c.

[e] Rashi, "shut up," "bound." Others, "they have cut off." [f] Jonathan. [g] Lit. "lips."

[h] Philippson. Rashi, "breach." Zunz, "what their heart concealeth." Herxheimer, "obstinacy."

66 Pursue them in anger and destroy from under the heavens of the LORD.

CHAPTER IV.

1 ¶ Oh how is the gold become dim! how is the most fine gold changed! how are the stones of the sanctuary poured out at the corners of every street.

2 The precious sons of Zion, valued equal to pure gold, how are they now esteemed as earthen pitchers, the work of the hands of the potter!

3 Even wild beasts offer the breast, they give suck to their young ones: the daughter of my people is become cruel, like the ostriches[a] in the wilderness.

4 The tongue of the suckling cleaveth to its palate by reason of thirst: babes ask for bread, there is not one to break it for them.

5 Those that used to eat dainty food are desolate in the streets: they that were reared up on scarlet now embrace dunghills.

6 For greater is the iniquity of the daughter of my people than the sin of Sodom, that was overthrown as it were in a moment, and no human hands were laid on her.

7 Her crowned princes were purer than snow, they were whiter than milk, they were more brilliant in body than pearls, more than the sapphire, their countenance:

8 Darker than black is now their visage; they are not to be recognised in the streets; their skin is shrivelled fast upon their bones; it is dry, it is become like wood.

9 Happier are those slain by the sword than those slain by hunger; for those poured forth their blood, being pierced through,—(these perished) without the fruits of the field.[b]

10 The hands of merciful women cooked their own children: they became food unto them in the downfall of the daughter of my people.

11 The LORD hath let loose all his fury; he hath poured out the fierceness of his anger; and he hath kindled a fire in Zion, which hath devoured her foundations.

12 The kings of the earth, and all the inhabitants of the world, would not believe that an adversary or an enemy could ever enter within the gates of Jerusalem.

13 (But it hath happened) because of the sins of her prophets, the iniquities of her priests, that had shed in the midst of her the blood of the righteous.

14 They wandered about blindly in the streets, they became defiled with blood: so that men were not able to touch their garments.

15 Depart, ye unclean, they called out unto them; depart, depart, touch not. So they flee away and also wander about: men say among the nations, They shall no more sojourn there.[c]

16 The anger of the LORD hath divided them; he will no more look at them: the faces of the priests they respected not, and the elders they spared not.

17 Even now our eyes anxiously wait for our valueless help: in our waiting have we waited for a nation that cannot help.

18 They hunt our steps, that we cannot walk in our streets: our end is near, our days are full; for our end is come.

19 Swifter were our pursuers than the eagles of heaven: upon the mountains did they hotly follow us, in the wilderness did they lie in wait for us.

20 The breath of our nostrils, the anointed of the LORD, was caught in their pits, he, of whom we said, Under his shadow shall we live among the nations.

21 Be glad and rejoice, O daughter of Edom, that dwellest in the land of 'Uz: also unto thee shall the cup pass; thou wilt be drunken, and make thyself naked.[d]

22 Brought to an end is thy iniquity, O daughter of Zion; He will no more carry thee away into exile: He visiteth thy iniquity, O daughter of Edom; He layeth open thy sins.

CHAPTER V.

1 ¶ Remember, O LORD, what hath occurred to us, look down, and behold our disgrace.

2 Our inheritance is turned over to strangers, our houses to aliens.

3 Orphans are we become, and (we are) without a father, our mothers are like widows.

[a] Job xxxix. 14.

[b] Partly after Jonathan, referring שהם to the first mentioned, those actually slain; and מתנובות שדי to the second, "without the fruits of the field." So also Arnheim. Philippson renders, "for these pour forth their blood, pierced through, not caring for the fruits of the field."

[c] i. e. In their land, made unclean by them.

[d] Rashi, "thou wilt vomit," or "empty thyself."

4 Our water have we drunk for money:
our wood cometh to us for a purchase price.
5 Up to our necks are we pursued: we are fatigued, and no rest is allowed us.
6 To Egypt do we stretch out our hand, to Asshur, to be satisfied with bread.
7 Our fathers have sinned, and are no more; but we have indeed to bear their ini-quities.
8 Servants rule over us: no one delivereth us out of their hand.
9 At the peril of our life must we bring home our bread, because of the sword of the wilderness.
10 Our skin gloweth like an oven, because of the heat of famine.
11 Women have they ravished in Zion, virgins, in the cities of Judah.
12 Princes were hanged up by their hand:
the faces of elders were not honoured.
13 Young men they bore to the mill, and boys stumbled under the wood.[a] 14 The elders have ceased from the gate, young men, from their singing.
15 Ceased hath the joy of our heart: our dance is changed into mourning.
16 Fallen is the crown of our head: wo to us, for we have sinned.
17 Because of this is our heart made sick;
for these things are our eyes dimmed;
18 Because of the mount of Zion which is wasted, foxes walk about on it.
19 O thou, LORD, wilt truly abide for ever, thy throne existeth throughout all generations.
20 Wherefore wilt thou forget us for ever?
wilt thou forsake us for so long a time?
21 Cause us to return, O LORD, unto thee, and we will return: renew our days as of old.
22 For wouldst[b] thou entirely reject us, be wroth with us to the uttermost?
[21 Cause us to return, O LORD, unto thee,
and we will return: renew our days as of old.]

THE BOOK OF ECCLESIASTES,

מגלת קהלה.

CHAPTER I.

1 ¶ THE words of Koheleth,[c] the son of David, the king in Jerusalem.
2 Vanity[d] of vanities, saith Koheleth, vanity of vanities: all is vanity.
3 What profit hath a man of all his toil which he toileth under the sun?
4 One generation passeth away, and another generation cometh; but the earth endureth for ever.
5 The sun also riseth, and the sun goeth down, and striving to reach his place he riseth again there.
6 Going[e] toward the south, and turning round toward the north, the wind moveth round about continually; and around its circles doth the wind return again.
7 All the rivers run into the sea; yet the sea is never full: unto the place whither[f] the rivers go, thither will they continue to go.

[a] i. e. While carrying heavy loads of wood.

[b] Herxheimer, Philippson and Sachs, "Wouldst thou have rejected us?" Rashi, "Thou shouldst not have rejected us (for our sins) nor been angry with us too much, as thou hast been wroth;" but the sense is in all the same. Arnheim, "For truly thou hast rejected us, been angry with us exceedingly much"

[c] קהלת Koheleth, is rendered "the preacher;" the root is קהל Kahal, "to assemble;" hence it signifies either, as Rashi states, "who had gathered up much wisdom," or "who spoke in public assemblies,"—"the preacher," or "orator."

[d] Philippson, "Nothingness," and so throughout.

[e] Some, and among them Rashi, refer the first part of verse 6 to the sun: "in the day he goeth to the south, at night he goeth round to the north."

[f] Rashi, "whence the rivers come, thither will they return."

8 All things weary themselves[a] (constantly); man cannot utter them: the eye is never satisfied with seeing, nor the ear filled with hearing.

9 That which hath been, is the same which will be; and that which hath been done, is the same which will be done; and there is nothing new under the sun.

10 If there be any thing whereof it is said, See, this is new: it hath already been in olden times which were before us.[b]

11 (Only) there is no recollection of former (generations); and also of the later ones, that are to be—of these (likewise) there will be no recollection with those that will be still later.

12 I Koheleth was king over Israel in Jerusalem.

13 And I directed my heart to inquire and to search out by wisdom concerning all that is done under the heavens: this is an evil employment which God hath given to the sons of man to busy themselves therewith.

14 I saw all the deeds that are done under the sun: and, behold, all is vanity and a torture of the spirit.[c]

15 What is crooked cannot be made straight; and that which is defective cannot be numbered.

16 I spoke with my own heart, saying, Lo, I have truly obtained greater and more wisdom than all those who have been before me over Jerusalem: yea, my heart had seen much wisdom and knowledge.

17 And I directed my heart to know wisdom, and to know madness and folly; (but) I have perceived that this also is a torture of the spirit.

18 For where there is much wisdom there is much vexation; and he that increaseth knowledge increaseth pain.

CHAPTER II.

1 Come, then, I said in my heart, I will have a taste of joy, and thou shalt see what is good; but, behold, this also was vanity.

2 Of laughter I said, It maketh one mad: and of joy, What doth this do?

3 I resolved in my heart to indulge[d] my body with wine, while my heart guideth itself with wisdom; and to lay fast hold on folly, till I might see what it is that is good for the sons of men, which they should do under the heavens during the number of the days of their life.

4 I made great works: I built myself houses; I planted myself vineyards;

5 I made myself gardens and orchards, and I planted therein trees of all kinds of fruit;

6 I made myself pools of water, to water therewith the forest overgrown with trees;

7 I bought men-servants and maid-servants, and I had likewise those born in my house; I had also great possessions of cattle and flocks above all that had been before me in Jerusalem.

8 I gathered unto myself also silver and gold, and the choice treasures of kings and of the provinces: I procured myself male singers and female singers, and the delights of the sons of men, wagons and chariots.[e]

9 So was I great, and obtained more than all that had been before me in Jerusalem: also my wisdom remained[f] with me.

10 And whatsoever my eyes desired I refused them not; I withheld not my heart from any joy; for my heart was rejoiced with all my toil, and this was my portion of all my toil.

11 But when I turned myself (to look) on all my works that my hands had wrought, and on the toil that I had toiled to accomplish: then, behold, all was vanity and a torture of the spirit, and there was no profit under the sun.

12 And then I turned myself to behold wisdom, and madness, and folly; for what (can) the man (do) that cometh after the king? (only) that which (others) have done already.[g]

13 But I saw indeed that wisdom hath the

[a] Aben Ezra; i. e. are acting ceaselessly. Rashi, "cause fatigue."

[b] Philippson, after Ewald, "that which happeneth in our presence happened already long since in olden times."

[c] Jonathan. Aben Ezra, "feeding the wind." (Hosea xii. 2.) Philippson, "striving for wind."

[d] Rashi. Lit. "draw." Philippson, "to guide."

[e] Rashi. Jonathan, "warm and hot baths." Aben Ezra, "female captives as concubines." With the latter Arnheim agrees. Philippson and Herxheimer, "many wives." The word שרה occurs but here, and is of uncertain derivation.

[f] Jonathan, "and assisted me."

[g] Aben Ezra; meaning, the experience of those inferior in rank to the king cannot be any more happy than his own; he can only do as others have done, and find no satisfaction in the pursuit of mere carnal pleasures.

advantage over folly, as great as the advantage of light over darkness.

14 The wise man hath his eyes in his head, while the fool walketh in darkness; but I myself perceived then also that one occurrence will befall all of them.

15 Then said I in my heart, The same that befalleth the fool will also befall even me: and why have I then been wiser? Then spoke I in my heart, that this is also vanity.

16 For there is no recollection of the wise any more than of the fool for ever: seeing that which hath long ago been will, in the days that are coming, all be forgotten. And how doth the wise die equally with the fool!

17 Therefore I hated life; because I felt displeased with the work that is wrought under the sun; for all is vanity and a torture of the spirit.

18 Yea, I hated also all my toil with which I had toiled under the sun; because I should have to leave it unto the man that will be after me.

19 And who knoweth, whether he will be a wise man or a fool? yet will he have full sway over all my toil wherein I have toiled, and wherein I have shown myself wise under the sun. Also this is vanity.

20 Therefore I turned about to cause my heart to give up thinking of all the toil wherewith I had toiled under the sun.

21 For there is many a man whose toil is in wisdom, and in knowledge, and with energy: yet to a man that hath not toiled therefor must he give it as his portion. Also this is vanity and a great evil.

22 For what doth a man obtain of all his toil, and of the torture[a] of his heart, wherewith he toileth under the sun?

23 For all his days are full of pains, and vexation is (mingled with) his employment: yea, even in the night his heart taketh not rest. Also this is vanity.

24 It is not a good[b] thing (inherent) in man that he should eat and drink, and that he should make his soul enjoy happiness for his toil. Also this have I seen, that it cometh out of the hand of God.

25 For who can well eat, or who can enjoy earthly things more than I?[c]

26 For to a man who is good in his presence (God) giveth wisdom, and knowledge, and joy; but to the sinner he giveth employment, to gather up and to bring together, that he may give it to him that is good before God. Also this is vanity and a torture of the spirit.

CHAPTER III.

1 For every thing there is a season; and a (proper) time is for every pursuit under the heavens.

2 (There is) a time to be born, and a time to die; a time to plant, and a time to pluck up what hath been planted;

3 A time to kill, and a time to heal; a time to break down, and a time to build up;

4 A time to weep, and a time to laugh; a time to mourn, and a time to dance;

5 A time to throw away stones, and a time to gather up stones; a time to embrace, and a time to be far from embracing;

6 A time to seek, and a time to let things be lost; a time to keep, and a time to throw away;

7 A time to rend, and a time to sew; a time to keep silence, and a time to speak;

8 A time to love, and a time to hate; a time of war, and a time of peace.

9 What profit hath (now) he that worketh in that wherein he toileth?

10 I have seen the employment, which God hath given to the sons of men to busy themselves therewith.

11 Every thing hath he made beautiful in its (proper) time: he hath also placed the eternity[d] in their heart, without a man's being able to find out the work that God hath made from the beginning to the end.

12 I know that there is nothing good (inherent) in them, but for every one to rejoice, and to do what is good during (all) his life.

13 For also that every man should eat

[a] Rashi. Eng. ver., "vexation." Philippson, "striving." Arnheim, "thinking."

[b] Jonathan, "Nothing is good for man, but that he should," &c.

[c] Septuagint reads, מכנו "from him;" thus, "For who can eat—unless it be from him?" i. e. God.

[d] Aben Ezra, who explains, "Man acts as though he would live for ever; and because he is so occupied in worldly matters, he has no understanding of God's working." Others render, "he hath also placed the world," i. e. worldly wisdom, according to Rashi; others, desire for worldly things. Philippson, "eternal duration."

and drink, and enjoy what is good for all his toil, is likewise a gift of God.

14 I know that whatsoever God doth, that will be for ever; to it nothing can be added, and from it there is nothing to be diminished: and God hath so made it, that men should be afraid of him.

15 That which hath been hath long since appeared (again)[a]; and what is to be hath already been; and God seeketh (again) that which is sped away.[b]

16 And moreover I have seen under the sun, (that in) the place of justice, even there was wickedness; and (that in) the place of righteousness, even there was wickedness.

17 I said in my heart, God will judge the righteous and the wicked; for there is a time for every pursuit; and on account of every deed there (will he judge).[c]

18 I said in my heart concerning the speaking[d] of the sons of men, that God might make it clear to them, and that they might see that they by themselves are but beasts.

19 For that which befalleth the sons of men befalleth beasts; even the same thing befalleth them; as the one dieth, so dieth the other; yea, they have all one kind of spirit: so that the preëminence of man above the beast is nought; for all is vanity.

20 Every thing goeth unto one place: every thing came from the dust, and every thing returneth to the dust.

21 Who knoweth the spirit of the sons of man[e] that ascendeth upward, and the spirit of the beast that descendeth downward to the earth?[f]

22 And so did I perceive that there is nothing better, than that a man should rejoice in his own works; for that is his portion; for who can bring him to look with pleasure on what will be after him?

CHAPTER IV.

1 And I turned about, and beheld all the oppressed that are made so under the sun: and, behold, there are the tears of the oppressed, and they have no comforter; and from the hand of their oppressors they suffer violence;[g] and they have no comforter.

2 Thereupon praised I the dead that are already dead, more than the living who are still alive;

3 And as happier than both of them, him who hath not yet come into being, who hath not seen the evil-doing that is done under the sun.—

4 Again, I beheld all the toil, and all the energy in doing, that it is (from) the envy of one man of his neighbour. Also this is vanity and a torture of the spirit.

5 The fool foldeth his hands together, and eateth his own flesh.

6 Better is a handful of quiet, than both the hands full of toil and torture of the spirit.

7 Then I turned about, and I saw a vanity under the sun.

8 There is one alone, and he hath not a companion; yea, he hath neither son nor brother: yet is there no end to all his toil; his eye also is not satisfied with riches. Yet for whom do I toil, and deprive my soul of good? Also this is vanity, yea, it is a bad employment.

9 Two are better than one; because they will have a good reward for their toil.

10 For if they fall, the one will lift up his fellow; but wo to the single one that falleth; for he hath no companion to lift him up.

11 Also, if two lie together, then will they become warm; but how can one person alone become warm?

12 And if a man could overpower him, the single one, two would stand up against him: and a threefold cord cannot quickly be torn asunder.

13 Better is a poor and a wise youth than an old and foolish king, who knoweth not how to be admonished any more.

14 For out of the prison cometh the one[h] to reign: whereas also in his kingdom the other becometh poor.

[a] Philippson, distinguishing between היה "was," and הוא "is;" but Rashi, "what hath been is past, and we have seen it or heard of it"

[b] Jonathan and Rashi, "looketh after the persecuted."

[c] Rashi.

[d] Rashi, "arrogance." Aben Ezra, "because of the sons of men whom God hath selected, I see that," &c. Philippson, "it is to prove God, and to see that," &c.

[e] So must it be rendered after the Massorah; the moderns, however, render it, "whether it ascend," &c.

[f] Philippson regards verses 19–21 as the speaking of the worldly, which Koheleth cites in verse 18; consequently, all contradiction to himself is thus avoided.

[g] כח here the effect of "power," "wrong," "violence."

[h] Arnheim; but he renders the last part, "so is the other with his royal dignity one born poor." Rashi, giving

15 I have seen all the living who walk under the sun, being with the second child that is to stand up in his stead.

16 There was no end to all the people, (belonging) to all that have been before them: they also that come after will not rejoice in him. Surely this also is vanity and a torture of the spirit.—

17[a] Watch thy foot when thou goest to the house of God, and be near to hearken (to his will), more than to give the sacrifice of fools; for they consider not that they do evil (to themselves).[b]

CHAPTER V.

1 Suffer not thy mouth to be rash, and let thy heart not be hasty to utter any word before God; for God is in the heavens, and thou art upon the earth: therefore let thy words be few.

2 For a dream cometh through being much employed (with something), and the voice of a fool cometh with a multitude of words.

3 When thou makest a vow unto God, do not delay to pay it; for he hath no pleasure in such fools: that which thou hast vowed must thou pay.

4 It is better that thou shouldst not vow, than that thou shouldst vow and not pay.

5 Suffer not thy mouth to cause thy body[c] to sin; and say thou not before the messenger,[d] that it was an error: wherefore should God be angry because of thy voice, and destroy the work of thy hands?

6 For in the multitude[e] of dreams and vanities there are also many words; but rather fear thou God.

7 If thou see the oppression of the poor, and violence done to justice and righteousness in a province, do not feel astounded at the matter; for one that is high watcheth over the high; and over them, the highest Power.

8 But the advantage of a land in all things is, a king who is subject to the country.[f]

9 He that loveth money will never be satisfied with money; nor he that loveth abundance, with any increase. Also this is vanity.

10 When prosperity increaseth, those that consume it (likewise) increase: and what advantage is there to its owner, saving to see (it) with his eyes?

11 Sweet is the sleep of the labouring man, whether he eat little or much; but the overabundance of the rich will not suffer him to sleep.

12 There is a sore evil which I have seen under the sun, (namely,) riches reserved for their owner to his own hurt.

13 And these riches are lost through an unfortunate event;[g] and he begetteth a son, and hath not the least in his hand:

14 As he came forth out of his mother's womb, naked will he return to go as he came; and not the least will he carry off for his toil, which he might take away with him.[h]

15 And also this is a sore evil, that in all points as he came, so must he go: and what profit hath he that hath toiled for the wind?

16 All his days also had he to eat in darkness, and hath had much vexation and wrath with his sickness.[i]

17 Behold, what I have truly seen as a good thing, that it is fitting to eat and to drink, and to enjoy the good of all one's toil that he taketh under the sun the number of the days of his life, which God hath given him; for this is his portion.

18 Also every man to whom God hath the second part a good sense, "for even in his kingdom becometh he (unlike other rulers) humble to the wise;" hence he is worthy to rule. Philippson, "For out of prison can a man come to be a ruler; so also can one become poor in his kingdom."

[a] In the English version this is the first verse of chap. v.

[b] So Rashi. Arnheim, "for they wish not to know, in order to do evil." Philippson, "then will men not understand to do evil."

[c] Rashi, "thy children," on whom unfulfilled vows would be punished.

[d] Rashi; i. e. who is sent to demand payment. Others, "the angel," he who punishes the sinner by God's mission.

[e] Philippson. Rashi renders, "For despite a multitude of dreams, vanities, and many words (men may say to thee): do thou only fear God."

[f] Philippson. Rashi's explanation is somewhat paraphrastic. Aben Ezra, "a king who tilleth himself the field." Philippson ingeniously takes שדה, not as a single field, but the whole country; like שדי מואב "the fields—country of Moäb."

[g] Arnheim, "striving;" rendered elsewhere, "employment;" but we have followed Philippson. It might, perhaps, be given with "speculation."

[h] Lit. "in his hand."

[i] Meaning, the constant wrathful anxiety was a disease which permitted him not the least enjoyment.

given riches and property, and hath given him power to eat thereof, and to take his portion, and to rejoice in his toil—this is the gift of God.

19 Let him then remember, that the days of his life are not many, that God hath answered[a] him with the joy of his heart.

CHAPTER VI.

1 There is an evil which I have seen under the sun, and it is great on men:[b]

2 (There is many) a man to whom God hath given riches, property, and honour, and nothing is wanting for his soul of all that he longeth for: yet God empowereth him not to eat thereof, but a stranger will consume it. This is vanity, and it is an evil disease.

3 If a man were to beget a hundred children, and live many years, so that the days of his years were many, and his soul were not satisfied with what is good, and he have not had even a burial: then do I say, that an untimely birth is better than he.

4 For in vanity it came, and in darkness it departeth, and with darkness will its name be covered.

5 Moreover it never saw the sun, and knew nothing: this hath more rest than the other.

6 Yea, though he were to live a thousand years twice told, and had not seen any good —doth not every one go to one place?

7 All the toil of a man is for his mouth; and yet is his desire never filled.

8 For what hath the wise more than the fool? what hath the poor, that knoweth to walk (properly) before the living?

9 Better is what one seeth with the eyes than the wandering[c] of the desire. Also this is vanity and a torture of the spirit.

10 That which hath been is already called by its name, and it is known that[d] he is a man: and he is not able to contend with him that is mightier than he.

11 For there are many things that increase vanity: what advantage (cometh thence) for man?

12 For who knoweth what is good for man in this life, the number of the days of his vain life, that he should spend them as a shadow? for who can tell a man what will be after him under the sun?

CHAPTER VII.

1 A good name is better than precious oil, and the day of death, better than the day of one's birth.

2 It is better to go to the house of mourning than to go to the house of feasting; inasmuch as that is the end of all men: and let the living lay it to his heart.

3 Better is vexation than laughing; for through the sadness of the countenance the heart is made better.

4 The heart of the wise is in the house of mourning; but the heart of fools is in the house of joy.

5 It is better to hear the rebuke of the wise, than that a man should hear the song of fools.

6 For as the crackling of thorns under a pot, so is the laughter of the fool. Also this is vanity.

7 For (exercising) oppression maketh a wise man mad; and bribery corrupteth the heart.[e]

8 Better is the end of a thing than the beginning thereof: better is the patient in spirit than the proud in spirit.

9 Be not rash in thy spirit to be angry; for anger resteth in the bosom of fools.

10 Thou must not say, How was it that the former days were better than these? for it is not out of wisdom that thou askest concerning this.

11 Wisdom is better than[f] an inheritance, yea, preferable for those that see the sun;[g]

12 For under the shadow[h] of wisdom (a man is equally well as) under the shadow of money; but the superior excellency of knowledge is, that wisdom giveth life to him that possesseth it.

[d] Philippson, "what a man is."

[e] Rashi, "For contending (with a fool) maketh a wise man mad, and causeth the intelligence given (by God) to be lost."

13 Consider (then) the work of God; for who can make straight what he hath made crooked?

14 On the day of prosperity be happy, but on the day of adversity look on: also this hath God made in equal measure with the other, to the end that man should not find the least to censure[a] him.

15 All things have I seen in the days of my vanity: there is many a righteous man that perisheth in his righteousness, and there is many a wicked man that liveth long in his wickedness.—

16 Be not righteous over much; neither show thyself over wise: why wouldst thou destroy thyself?

17 Be not wicked over much, and be no fool: why wouldst thou die before thy time?

18 It is good that thou shouldst take hold of that, and that also from this thou withdraw not thy hand; for he that feareth God will come forth out of them all.[b]

19 Wisdom giveth more strength to the wise than ten rulers which were in the city.

20 For no man is so righteous upon earth, that he should do always good, and never sin.—

21 Also take no heed unto all the words that are spoken: lest thou hear thy servant cursing thee.

22 For oftentimes also doth thy own heart know that thou thyself likewise hast cursed others.—

23 All this have I proved by wisdom: I said, I will be wise; but it was far from me.

24 Far is what formerly was so, and what was deep remaineth deep: who can find it out?

25 Then I turned myself about together with my heart to know, and to search, and to seek out wisdom, and experience,[c] and to know the wickedness of folly, and the foolishness[d] of madness.

26 And I find as more bitter than death the woman, whose heart is snares and nets, and whose hands are bonds: he that is deemed good before God will escape from her; but the sinner will be caught by her.

27 Behold, this have I found, saith Koheleth, (adding) one to the other, to find experience, 28 What my soul constantly sought, but I found it not: one man among a thousand did I find; but a woman among all these did I not find.

29 Lo, this only did I find, that God hath made man upright; but they have sought for many (sinful) devices,

CHAPTER VIII.

1 Who is like the wise? and who knoweth (as well) the explanation of a thing? a man's wisdom enlighteneth his face, and the boldness of his face will be lessened.[e]

2 I (counsel thee), Keep the king's[f] command, and that which regardeth the oath (to him taken) by God.

3 Be not hasty to go out of his presence; engage not in an evil thing; for whatsoever pleaseth him, can he do;

4 Because the word of a king is powerful; and who may say unto him, What doest thou?—

5 Whoso keepeth the commandment will experience no evil thing: and a wise man's heart knoweth both time and the just consequence.

6 Because for every pursuit there is a time and a just consequence; for the evil of man (resteth) heavily upon him.[g]

7 For he knoweth not that which will be: for who can tell him how it will be?

8 No man hath control over the spirit to detain the spirit; and there is no control over the day of death; and there is no representative[h] in that war; and wickedness will not deliver those that practise it.

9 All this have I seen, and directed my heart unto every work that is done under the

[a] Rashi. Philippson, "nothing beyond this."

[b] Koheleth recommends avoiding extremes; to obey God in all things,—not to be wiser and better than the law.

[c] חשבון "the account," "calculation," from חשב "to think;" hence the result of all this—the experience in life.

[d] Philippson. Herxheimer, "wickedness, folly, foolishness, and madness."

[e] Aben Ezra explains that the truly wise bears humility, not arrogance, in his face.

[f] Rashi refers King to God, the sovereign of all; "and because of the oath we took at Horeb" (to God).

[g] Philippson; but Rashi, "when the evil of man is great upon him;" for then the punishment follows.

sun: there is a time when one man ruleth over another to his own injury.

10 Then also did I see the wicked buried, who had gone to their rest; but those who had acted correctly[a] had to go away from the holy place, and were forgotten in the city. Also this is vanity.

11 Because the punishment against evil deeds is not executed speedily, therefore is the heart of the sons of men filled up in them to do evil.

12 But let a sinner do evil a hundred times, and (God) withhold long his punishment from him: still do I truly know for certain that it will be well with those that fear God, because they are afraid of him;

13 And that it will not be well with the wicked, and that he will not endure many days, like the shadow; because he is not afraid of God.

14 There is a vanity which is done upon the earth, that there are righteous men, unto whom it happeneth in accordance with the deeds of the wicked: again, there are wicked men, to whom it happeneth in accordance with the deeds of the righteous. I said that this also is vanity.

15 Therefore do I praise joyfulness, that there is nothing better for man under the sun, than to eat, and to drink, and to be joyful; for this will adhere to him in his toil, during the days of his life which God hath given him under the sun.—

16 When I applied my heart to know wisdom, and to see the employment that is done upon the earth, how even neither by day nor by night sleep is seen in the eyes of some men:

17 Then did I see (in) the whole work of God, that a man is not able to find out the work that is done under the sun; inasmuch as though a man were to toil to seek for it, he would yet not find it; and even if the wise were to think to know it, he would yet not be able to find it.

CHAPTER IX.

1 For all this did I reflect over[b] in my heart and to explain all this, that the righteous, and the wise, and their services, are in the hand of God: that man knoweth neither love nor hatred;[c] it is all (ordained) before them;

2 Every thing as it is to happen to all; there is but one occurrence for the righteous, and for the wicked; for the good and for the clean, and for the unclean; and for him that sacrificeth, and for him that sacrificeth not; as is the good, so is the sinner; he that sweareth, as he that feareth an oath.

3 This is an evil among all things that are done under the sun, that there is one occurrence for all, and that also the heart of the sons of men is full of evil, and that madness is in their heart while they live, and after this they go to the dead.

4 For whoever is yet united[d] with all the living hath still hope; for a living dog fareth better than a dead lion.

5 For the living know that they will die; but the dead know not the least; nor have they longer any reward;[e] for their memory is forgotten.

6 Also their love, and their hatred, and their envy, are now already lost; and they will have never more a portion in all that is done under the sun.

7 Go, eat with joy thy bread, and drink with a merry heart thy wine, if God have[f] already received thy works in favour.

8 At all times let thy garments be white, and let oil not be wanting on thy head.

9 Enjoy life with the wife whom thou lovest all the days of the life of thy vanity, which God hath given thee under the sun, (yea,) all the days of thy vanity; for this is thy portion in this life, and in thy toil with which thou toilest under the sun.

10 Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do with thy might, that do; for there is no work, nor experience, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the nether world, whither thou goest.[g]—

11 I turned about, and saw under the sun, that the race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the mighty; and that also the wise

[d] The Ketib יבחר would require this version: "For who is exempt? all the living have hope."

[e] Koheleth speaks here merely of earthly life, and the reward of this terminates with death. (See next verse.)

[f] That is, if a man have acted to please God, he may freely enjoy life. Others, "for God hath," &c.

[g] As man knows not what may come, let him fulfil all duties accessible to him, regardless of the future.

have no bread, nor yet the men of understanding riches, nor yet men of knowledge favour; but time and fate[a] will overtake them all.

12 For man also knoweth not his time, like the fishes that are caught in an evil net, and like the birds that are caught in the snare: like these are the sons of men ensnared at an evil time, when it falleth upon them suddenly.

13 Also in this manner have I seen wisdom under the sun, and it seemed great unto me:

14 There was a little city, and the men therein were few; and there came against it a great king, who enclosed it, and built around it great works of siege;

15 But there was found in it a poor wise man, and he delivered the city by his wisdom; yet no man had thought of that same poor man.

16 Then said I, Wisdom is better than might: although the poor man's wisdom is held in contempt, and his words are not heard.

17 The words of wise men heard in quiet are better than the cry of him that ruleth among fools.

18 Wisdom is better than weapons of war; but one sinner causeth much good to be lost.

CHAPTER X.

1 Dead flies cause the precious oil of the apothecary to become stinking and foaming: so doth a little folly him that is valued for wisdom and honour.[b]

2 The heart of a wise man is at his right hand; but the heart of a fool is at his left.

3 Yea also, on whatever way the fool walketh, doth he lack proper sense,[c] and he saith to all that he is a fool.

4 If the spirit of the ruler rise up against thee, leave not thy place; for submissiveness causeth great offences to be avoided.[d]

5 There is an evil which I have seen under the sun, like an error which proceedeth from the ruler:

6 Folly is set in great high places, and the rich sit in lowness.

7 I have seen servants on horses, and princes walking like servants upon the ground.—

8 He that diggeth a pit will fall into it; and him who breaketh down a fence—a serpent will bite him.

9 Whoso removeth stones will be hurt through them; and he that cleaveth wood will be endangered[e] thereby.

10 If the iron be blunt, and man do not whet the edge, then must he exert more strength; but the advantage of making it properly sharp is wisdom.

11 If the serpent do bite because no one uttered a charm, then hath the man that can use his tongue (in charming) no preference.—

12 The words of a wise man's mouth (bring) grace; but the lips of a fool will destroy himself.

13 The beginning of the words of his mouth is foolishness; and the last that cometh out of his mouth is evil-bringing madness.

14 The fool also multiplieth words; (but) a man cannot know what is to be; and what is to be after him, who can tell him?

15 The toil of the foolish will weary every one of them, because he knoweth not how to go to the city.[f]—

16 Wo to thee, O land, when thy king is lowminded,[g] and when thy princes eat in the morning![h]

17 Happy art thou, O land, when thy king is noble-spirited, and thy princes eat in proper time, for strengthening, and not for gluttony![i]—

18 Through slothful hands[k] the rafters will sink; and through idleness of the hands the house will become leaky.

[a] פגע "that which is to happen," or "fate," as it is a divine decree, not "chance."

[b] Aben Ezra; but Rashi, "so is a little folly weightier than wisdom and power," because it destroys both.

[c] Lit. "his heart."

[d] Lit. "to lie down." Jonathan, "cause to be forgotten."

[e] Aben Ezra; but Rashi, "will be made warm thereby;" because סכן, in the sense of "endanger," is only found in the Aramaic, but not in the Hebrew, unless here.

[f] i. e. He goes a roundabout way, and hence becomes wearied, while the wise finds out the shortest road in all pursuits of life.

[g] Lit. "a lad;" here, one who is satisfied with low pursuits.

[h] "Eating and drinking in the morning is odious to the orientals, who eat little in the morning, and take their principal meal toward evening." (See Isa. v. 11.)—Philippson.

[i] Lit "drinking."

[k] Aben Ezra.

19 For gay pleasure they prepare a feast, and wine is to make the living joyful; but money procureth[a] all things.

20 Even in thy thought thou must not curse a king; and in thy bed-chambers do not curse the rich; for a bird of the air can carry the sound, and that which hath wings can tell the word.

CHAPTER XI.

1 Cast thy bread upon the face of the waters;[b] for after many days wilt thou find it again.

2 Give a portion to seven, and also to eight; for thou knowest not what evil may come upon the earth.—

3 If the clouds be full of rain, they will empty it out upon the earth; and if the tree fall toward the south, or toward the north, on the place where the tree falleth, there will it remain.

4 He that watcheth the wind will not sow; and he that gazeth on the clouds will not reap.

5 As thou knowest not which is the way of the wind, as little as what is enclosed in the womb of her that is with child: even so thou canst not know the works of God who maketh all.

6 In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening let not thy hand rest; for thou knowest not which will succeed, whether this or that, or whether both of them will be alike good.

7 Truly the light is sweet, and it is a pleasant thing for the eyes to see the sun;

8 For if a man live (even) many years, let him rejoice in them all; and let him remember the days of darkness; for they will be many; all that cometh is vanity.

9 Rejoice,[c] O young man, in thy childhood; and let thy heart cheer thee in the days of thy youthful vigour, and walk firmly in the ways of thy heart, and in (the direction which) thy eyes see; but know thou, that concerning all these things God will bring thee into judgment.

10 And remove vexation from thy heart, and cause evil to pass away from thy body; for childhood and the time when the head is black are vanity.

CHAPTER XII.

1 But remember also thy Creator in the days of thy youthful vigour, while the evil days are not yet come, nor those years draw nigh of which thou wilt say, I have no pleasure in them;

2 While the sun, and the light, and the moon, and the stars, are not yet darkened, and the clouds return not again after the rain;

3 On the day when the watchmen[d] of the house will tremble, and the men of might will bend themselves, and the grinders stand idle, because they are become few, and those be darkened that look through the windows;

4 And when the two doors on the streets will be locked, while the sound of the mill becometh dull, and man riseth up[e] at the voice of the bird, and all the daughters of song are brought low;

5 Also when men will be afraid of every elevation, and are terrified on every way, and the almond-tree will refuse (its blossom),[f] and the locust will drag itself slowly along, and the desire will gainsay compliance; because

[a] Lit. "answereth."

[b] i. e. Do acts of kindness, though there appears no advantage to thyself; be kind also to many—literally, seven and eight, an indefinite number.

[c] Both Rashi and Aben Ezra interpret this verse in this way: "See what the end will be, if thou follow the inclination of the heart; since punishment will thence result." Otherwise it may mean, that man should well take heed to regulate his conduct by the divine will, and not follow blindly his heart and eyes, (Num. xv. 39;) as otherwise he will meet the punishment due to transgression.

[d] The keepers, "the watchmen," are supposed by some to signify the hands,—Jonathan, "the ribs;" "the men of might," "the legs;" "the grinders," the "teeth;" "the lookers-out," "the eyes;" "the two doors," "the lips;" "the mill," "the mouth,"—but Rashi, the "stomach:" "the daughters of song," explains Rashi, "when all the song of singers appears dull in his ears,"—Philippson, "the several notes become unintelligible."

[e] Philippson, "and the voice of man rise to shrillness, like the voice of a bird."

[f] Aben Ezra. Rashi, "will blossom," which he explains, "that old age will suddenly overtake him, as the almond-tree blossometh before other trees." Others, as expressing the whiteness of the head, like the almond-tree when covered with blossoms. Philippson takes it as an image of wakefulness, which is man's in the vigour of life, as also the general activity which characterizes the young man, which ceases when he gets old. "The locust" is emblematic of the ease and readiness with which the strong man labours; whereas in age this activity becomes less and less, as though the locust, otherwise so nimble, had to drag its light weight as a burden. Rodkinson renders, "when the locust even becometh burdensome."

man goeth to his eternal home, and the mourners go about the streets;

6 While the silver cord[a] is not yet torn loose, and the golden bowl is not crushed, and the pitcher is not broken at the fountain, and the wheel is not crushed at the cistern;

7 When the dust will return to the earth as it was, and the spirit will return unto God who gave it.—

8 Vanity of vanities, saith Koheleth: all is vanity.—

9 And in addition to this that Koheleth was wise, he continually also taught the people knowledge, and he probed, and searched out, and composed many proverbs.

10 Koheleth sought to find out acceptable words, and that which would be written down uprightly, even words of truth.

11 The words of the wise are like goads, and like nails fastened (are the words of) the men of the assemblies,[b] which are given by one shepherd.

12 But more than all these, my son, take warning for thyself:[c] the making of many books would have no end; and much preaching is a weariness of the flesh.

13 The end of the matter is, let us hear the whole:[d] Fear God, and keep his commandments; for this is the whole (duty of) man.

14 For every deed will God bring into the judgment concerning every thing that hath been hidden, whether it be good, or whether it be bad.

[13 The end of the matter is, let us hear the whole: Fear God, and keep his commandments; for this is the whole (duty of) man.]

THE BOOK OF ESTHER,

מגלת אסתר.

CHAPTER I.

1 ¶ And it came to pass in the days of Achashverosh, of the same Achashverosh who reigned, from India even unto Ethiopia, over a hundred and seven and twenty provinces,

2 In those days, when this king Achashverosh was sitting on the throne of his kingdom, which was in Shushan the capital,[e]

3 That, in the third year of his reign, he made a feast unto all his princes and his servants, the army of Persia[f] and Media, the nobles and the princes of the provinces who were near him:

4 When he showed the riches and the glory of his kingdom, and the brilliance (and) the splendour of his greatness, during many days, a hundred and eighty days.

5 And when these days were completed, the king made unto all the people that were found in Shushan the capital, unto every one, from the great even to the small, a feast of

[a] This is, as Philippson well observes, a description of the body in general, not necessarily, as some suppose, the spinal marrow, &c.

[b] i. e. The assemblies of the learned. (See Prov. xxv. 1.)

[c] Rashi; meaning, a man should be more on his guard than even is recommended directly in the words of the wise; for all cannot be written, and too much study (as he renders להג) would give more weariness than man could bear; but at the end it is requisite a man should obey God in all, (נשמע as "to be obeyed,") and observe the commandments. Aben Ezra, "take care not to make or purchase many books."

[d] Meaning, "Let us sum up all and hear what it is." Others, "All is understood (to be): Fear God," &c. I would merely remark, that though the sense of this chapter is nowise difficult to ascertain, the particular phrases are full of difficulties. The whole book is a calm view of life; and Koheleth admonishes, that as all is so unsatisfactory, no pursuit certain of success, and as man is accountable, it becomes his duty to obey God unhesitatingly, for herein lies all our hope of happiness; "this is the whole man," since the greatest success and the longest life will not exempt us from punishment.

seven days, in the court of the garden of the king's palace;

6 (Where were) white,[a] green, and blue (hangings), fastened with cords of fine linen and purple, on rollers of silver and pillars of marble; couches of gold and silver, upon a pavement of green, and white, and yellow, and black marble.

7 And they gave them to drink in vessels of gold,—the vessels being diverse one from the other,—and the royal wine was in abundance, according to the ability[b] of the king.

8 And the drinking was, according to the (king's) order, without compulsion; for so had the king enjoined on all the officers of his house, to do according to the pleasure of every man.

9 ¶ Also Vashti the queen made a feast for the women, in the royal house which belonged to king Achashverosh.

10 On the seventh day, when the heart of the king was merry with wine, he commanded Mehuman, Biztha, Charbona, Bigtha, and Abagtha, Zethar, and Carcass, the seven chamberlains that served in the presence of king Achashverosh, 11 To bring Vashti the queen before the king (ornamented) with the royal crown, to show the people and the princes her beauty; for she was handsome in appearance.

12 But queen Vashti refused to come at the word of the king brought by the hand of the chamberlains; and the king was very wroth, and his fury burnt in him.

13 ¶ Then said the king to the wise men, who knew (the occurrences of) the times; for so (came) every affair of the king before all acquainted with law and state institutions;

14 And those next unto him were Carshena, Shethar, Admatha, Tharshish, Meress, Marsena, and Memuchan, the seven princes of Persia and Media, who could see (at all times) the king's face, who sat in the first rank in the kingdom:

15 What should according to law be done with queen Vashti; because she had not fulfilled the order of king Achashverosh by the hand of the chamberlains?

16 ¶ Then said Memuchan before the king and the princes, Not against the king alone hath Vashti the queen done wrong, but also against all the princes, and against all the people that are in all the provinces of king Achashverosh.

17 For the conduct of the queen will go abroad unto all the women, so that they will despise their husbands in their eyes, when it shall be reported,[c] King Achashverosh ordered Vashti the queen to be brought into his presence, but she came not.

18 And even this day will the ladies of Persia and Media, who have heard of the conduct of the queen, say this unto all the princes of the king; and there will arise too much contempt and quarrel.[d]

19 If it please the king, let there go forth a royal order from him, and let it be written among the laws of the Persians and the Medes, that no one transgress it,[e] That Vashti come no more before king Achashverosh: and let the king give her royal dignity unto another that is better than she.

20 And when the king's decree which he will make shall be published throughout all his kingdom, however great it is: all the wives will show respect to their husbands, unto every one, from the great even to the small.

21 And the speech was pleasing in the eyes of the king and of the princes; and the king did according to the speech of Memuchan.

22 And he sent letters unto all the provinces of the king, unto every province according to its writing, and to every people according to its language, that every man should bear rule in his own house, however[f] he may speak according to the language of his people.

CHAPTER II.

1 ¶ After these events, when the fury of king Achashverosh was appeased, he remem-

Others, "mother of pearl and tortoise shell."

[b] Philippson, "manner;" (and so in ii. 18.)

[c] Others, "because they will say."

[f] Rashi, "and make her speak in the language," &c.

bered Vashti, and what she had done, and what had been decreed concerning her.

2 Then said the king's young men, his servants, Let there be sought for the king virgins handsome in appearance;

3 And let the king appoint officers in all the provinces of his kingdom, that they may gather together all the young virgins, handsome in appearance, unto Shushan the capital, into the house of the women, under the custody of Hegé the king's chamberlain,[a] the keeper of the women; and let them give them their customary anointings;

4 And let the maiden who may be pleasing in the eyes of the king become queen instead of Vashti: and the speech was pleasing in the eyes of the king, and he did so.

5 ¶ There was a certain Jew in Shushan the capital, whose name was Mordecai, the son of Yaïr, the son of Shim'i, the son of Kish, a Benjamite;

6 Who had been carried away into exile from Jerusalem with the exiles who had been exiled with Jeconyah, the king of Judah, whom Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon had carried into exile.

7 And he had brought up Hadassah, that is Esther, the daughter of his uncle; for she had neither father nor mother, and the maiden was beautiful in form and handsome in appearance; and when her father and mother were dead, Mordecai had taken her to himself as a daughter.

8 And it came to pass, when the king's order and his decree were heard, and when many maidens were brought together unto Shushan the capital, under the custody of Hegai, that Esther also was brought unto the king's house, under the custody of Hegai, the keeper of the women.

9 And the maiden was pleasing in his eyes, and she obtained favour before him; and he made haste to give her her anointings, with her presents, and the seven maidens, who were selected to be given her, out of the king's house: and he preferred her and her maidens with the best things in the house of the women.

10 Esther told nothing of her people or of her descent; for Mordecai had charged her that she should not tell.

11 And day by day did Mordecai walk before the court of the house of women, to ascertain the well-being of Esther, and what would be done with her.

12 And when the turn of every maiden was come to go in unto king Achashverosh, at the expiration (of the time) that she had been treated according to the custom of the women, twelve months; for so were the days of their anointings accomplished, six months with the oil of myrrh, and six months with sweet odours, and with other ointments of the women;

13 And thus came the maiden unto the king; (and) whatsoever she asked for was given her to go with her out of the house of the women as far as the house of the king.

14 In the evening she went, and in the morning she returned unto the second house of the women, to the custody of Sha'ashgas, the king's chamberlain, the keeper of the concubines: she used not to come again unto the king, except the king desired for her, and she was called by name.

15 And when the turn of Esther, the daughter of Abichayil, the uncle of Mordecai, who had taken her to himself as a daughter, was come to go in unto the king, she required nothing but what Hegai the king's chamberlain, the keeper of the women, said: and Esther obtained grace in the eyes of all those that beheld her.

16 And Esther was taken unto king Achashverosh, unto his royal house, in the tenth month, which is the month Tebeth, in the seventh year of his reign.

17 And the king loved Esther above all the women, and she obtained grace and favour before him more than all the virgins; and he placed the royal crown upon her head, and made her queen instead of Vashti.

18 And the king made a great feast unto all his princes and his servants, the feast of Esther; and he made a release of taxes to the provinces, and gave presents, according to the ability of the king.

19 And when virgins were gathered together the second time, then was Mordecai sitting in the king's gate.

20 (But) Esther had not yet told of her descent nor her people; as Mordecai had charged her; and Esther did (fulfil) the order of Mordecai, equally as when she was under his guardianship.

[a] More properly, "eunuch."

21 ¶ In those days, while Mordecai was sitting in the king's gate, Bigthan and Theresh, two chamberlains of the king, of those who kept the door, became wroth, and sought to lay (their) hand on king Achashverosh.

22 And the thing became known to Mordecai, and he told it unto Esther the queen; and Esther said it to the king in the name of Mordecai.

23 And the thing was inquired into and found true; and they were both of them hanged on a gallows;[a] and it was written in the book of chronicles before the king.

CHAPTER III.

1 ¶ After these events did king Achashverosh make great Haman the son of Hammedatha the Agagite, and he advanced him; and he placed his seat above that of all the princes that were with him.

2 And all the king's servants, that were in the king's gate, bent the knee and prostrated themselves to Haman; for so had the king commanded concerning him; but Mordecai bent not the knee nor prostrated himself.

3 Then said the king's servants, who were in the king's gate, unto Mordecai, Why transgressest thou the king's command?

4 Now it came to pass, when they spoke unto him day by day, and he hearkened not unto them, that they told it to Haman, to see whether the words of Mordecai would be able to stand; for he had told them that he was a Jew.

5 And when Haman saw that Mordecai bent not the knee, nor prostrated himself to him, Haman became full of fury.

6 But it appeared too contemptible in his eyes to lay his hand on Mordecai alone; for they had told him of the people of Mordecai: therefore Haman sought to destroy all the Jews that were throughout all the kingdom of Achashverosh, the people of Mordecai.

7 In the first month, that is the month Nissan, in the twelfth year of king Achashverosh, some one cast the Pur,[b] that is, the lot, before Haman from day to day, and from month (to month), to the twelfth month, which is the month Adar.

8 ¶ Then said Haman unto king Achashverosh, There is one people scattered yet separate[c] among the nations in all the provinces of thy kingdom; and their laws are different from those of every people; while they do not execute the laws of the king; and it is no profit for the king to tolerate them.[d]

9 If it be pleasing to the king, let (a decree) be written to destroy them; and ten thousand talents of silver will I weigh[e] out into the hands of those that have the charge of the business, to bring (the same) into the king's treasuries.

10 And the king drew his signet-ring from off his hand, and gave it unto Haman the son of Hammedatha the Agagite, the adversary of the Jews.

11 And the king said unto Haman, The silver is given to thee, that people also, to do therewith as it seemeth good in thy eyes.

12 Then were called the king's scribes in the first month on the thirteenth day thereof, and there was written all just as Haman had commanded unto the king's lieutenants, and to the governors that were over every province, and to the princes of every people, to every province according to its writing, and to every people according to its language: in the name of king Achashverosh was it written, and it was sealed with the king's signet-ring.

13 And the letters were sent by the runners unto all the king's provinces, to destroy, to kill, and to exterminate all the Jews, from young to old, little ones and women, on one day, on the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, which is the month Adar, and to plunder their property as spoil.

14 A copy of the writing, to be given out as a law in every province, was published unto all the nations, that they might be ready against that day.

15 The runners went out with all speed with the king's decree, and the law was given out in Shushan the capital: and the king and

[a] Lit. "tree," or "wood." Arnheim, "pole."

[b] According to heathen customs, he resorted to this method, as a species of divination, to discover the month and day when it would be most propitious to attempt the destruction of the hated people.

[c] Philippson. Others, "and dispersed."

[d] Philippson, "to leave them at rest."

[e] This term is equivalent to "paying;" but as large sums are generally transferred by weight, it is preferred to the more minute expression of "counting out."

Haman sat down to drink; but the city of Shushan was perplexed.

CHAPTER IV.

1 ¶ When Mordecai ascertained all that had been done, Mordecai rent his clothes, and put on sackcloth (strewed) with ashes, and went out into the midst of the city, and cried with a loud and a bitter cry;

2 And thus he came up to the front of the king's gate; for none dared to enter into the king's gate clothed with sackcloth.

3 And in each and every province, in every place whither the king's decree and his law had reached, there was great mourning for the Jews, with fasting, and weeping, and wailing; and a sackcloth (strewed) with ashes became the bed of the great.[a]

4 Then came the maidens of Esther with her chamberlains and told it her; and the queen was exceedingly terrified; and she sent garments to clothe Mordecai, and to remove his sackcloth from him; but he accepted them not.

5 Then called Esther for Hatach, one of the king's chamberlains, whom he had appointed to attend upon her,[b] and gave him a charge for Mordecai to know what this was, and why this was.

6 So Hatach went forth to Mordecai unto the street of the city, which was before the king's gate.

7 And Mordecai told him all that had happened unto him, and of the fixed sum of money which Haman had promised to weigh out into the treasuries of the king for the Jews, to destroy them.

8 Also the copy of the writing of the law that had been given out in Shushan to destroy them he gave to him, to show it unto Esther, and to tell her (all), and to charge her that she should go in unto the king, to make supplication unto him, and to present a request before him for her people.

9 And Hatach came and told Esther the words of Mordecai.

10 And Esther said unto Hatach, and gave him a charge unto Mordecai,

11 All the king's servants, and the people of the king's provinces, do know, that every one, whether man or woman, who should come unto the king into the inner court, who is not called, there is but one law for him, to put him to death, except the one to whom the king should hold out the golden sceptre, for he will be suffered to live; but I have not been called to come in unto the king these thirty days.

12 And they told Mordecai the words of Esther.

13 Then said Mordecai to bring this answer back to Esther, Imagine not in thy soul to be able to escape in the king's house out of all the Jews.

14 For if thou do indeed maintain silence at this time, enlargement and deliverance will arise to the Jews from another place; but thou and thy father's house will perish: and who knoweth whether thou hast not for a time like this attained to the royal dignity?

15 Then said Esther to bring this answer back to Mordecai,

16 Go, assemble together all the Jews who are now present in Shushan, and fast ye for me, so that ye neither eat nor drink three days, either night or day; also I myself with my maidens will fast in like manner; and then will I go in unto the king, which is not according to the law; and if I then perish, I perish.[c]

17 And Mordecai went about, and did in accordance with all that Esther had charged him.

CHAPTER V.

1 And it came to pass on the third day, that Esther put on her royal apparel, and placed herself in the inner court of the king's house, opposite the king's apartment;[d] and the king was sitting upon his royal throne in the royal apartment, opposite to the entrance of the house.

2 And it happened, when the king saw Esther the queen standing in the court, that she obtained grace in his eyes; and the king held out to Esther the golden sceptre that was in his hand; and Esther drew near, and touched the top of the sceptre.

[a] Arnheim. Others, "many put on," or "laid themselves in sackcloth with ashes."

[b] Lit. "whom he had caused to stand before her."

[c] Arnheim renders, "For I am lost in either case," and explains: "For if I pretermit the death-bringing approach of the king, and the destruction overtakes my people, then will I also not live."

[d] Arnheim. Lit. "house."

3 Then said the king unto her, What wilt thou, queen Esther? and what is thy request? if it be equal to half[a] of the kingdom it shall still be given thee.

4 And Esther said, If it seem good unto the king, let the king and Haman come this day unto the banquet which I have prepared for him.

5 Then said the king, Bring Haman quickly hither to fulfil the word of Esther: so came the king with Haman to the banquet which Esther had prepared.

6 And the king said unto Esther at the banquet of wine, What is thy petition? and it shall be granted thee: and what is thy request? even if it be equal to half of the kingdom, it shall still be done.

7 Then answered Esther, and said, My petition and my request are,

8 If I have found grace in the eyes of the king, and if it please the king to grant my petition, and to fulfill my request, that the king may come with Haman to the banquet which I will prepare for them, and to-morrow will I do according to the word of the king.

9 And Haman went forth on that day joyful and with a glad heart; but when Haman saw Mordecai in the king's gate, who did not rise up, nor move out of the way for him, then was Haman filled against Mordecai with fury.

10 Nevertheless Haman refrained himself, and went to his house: he then sent and had his friends brought in with Zeresh his wife.

11 And Haman recounted to them the glory of his riches, and the multitude of his children, and all the things wherein the king had made him great, and how he had advanced him above the princes and the servants of the king.

12 And Haman said (farther), Yea, Esther the queen did not let any one come in with the king unto the banquet that she had prepared but myself: and also for to-morrow am I invited unto her with the king.

13 Yet all this profiteth me nothing, every[b] time that I see Mordecai the Jew sitting in the king's gate.

14 Then said unto him Zeresh his wife with all his friends, Let them make a gallows of fifty cubits high, and in the morning speak unto the king that they may hang Mordecai thereon; and then go thou in with the king unto the banquet joyfully. And the thing pleased Haman; and he had the gallows made.

CHAPTER VI.

1 ¶ In that night sleep fled from the king, and he ordered to bring in the book of the memorable events of the chronicles; and they were read before the king.

2 And it was found written, that Mordecai had told of Bigthana and Theresh, two chamberlains of the king, of those who kept the door, who had sought to lay (their) hand on king Achashverosh.

3 And the king said, What honour and distinction have been done to Mordecai for this? Then said the king's young men, his servants, There hath nothing been done with him.

4 And the king said, Who is in the court? Now Haman was come into the outer court of the king's house, to say unto the king to hang Mordecai on the gallows which he had prepared for him.

5 And the king's young men said unto him, Behold, Haman is standing in the court. And the king said, Let him come in.

6 So Haman came in; and the king said unto him, What shall be done with the man whom the king desireth to honour? And Haman said in his heart, To whom would the king desire to do honour more than to myself?

7 Haman therefore said to the king, (For) the man whom the king desireth to honour,

8 Let them bring a royal apparel which the king hath worn,[c] and a horse on which the king hath ridden, and let there be placed a royal crown on his head.

9 And let the apparel and the horse be

[a] An assurance and encouragement for her to ask, since she could scarcely think of demanding a favour which could at all equal the extent offered her by the king. The more admirable is the prudence of Esther, who said that only on the morrow would she make use of the gracious permission.

[b] Arnheim. Others, "so long as I see."

[c] Arnheim, after Jonathan, renders this: "The apparel which the king wore, and the horse on which he rode when the royal crown was placed on his head." Aben Ezra thinks that the crown was to be put on the horse's head.

given into the hand of one of the king's princes, of the most noble, that they may array the man whom the king desireth to honour, and let them cause him to ride on the horse through the streets of the city, and proclaim before him, Thus shall be done to the man whom the king desireth to honour.

10 Then said the king to Haman, Make haste, take the apparel and the horse, as thou hast spoken, and do thus to Mordecai the Jew, that sitteth at the king's gate: leave out nothing of all that thou hast spoken.

11 And Haman then took the apparel and the horse, and arrayed Mordecai, and caused him to ride through the streets of the city, and proclaimed before him, Thus shall be done unto the man whom the king desireth to honour.

12 And Mordecai thereupon returned to the king's gate; but Haman hastened to his house, mourning, and having his head covered.

13 And Haman related to Zeresh his wife and to all his friends all that had befallen him: then said unto him his wise men and Zeresh his wife, If Mordecai, before whom thou hast begun to fall, be of the seed of the Jews, thou wilt not prevail against him, but thou wilt surely fall before him.

14 They were yet speaking with him, when the king's chamberlains arrived, and they hastened to bring Haman unto the banquet which Esther had prepared.

CHAPTER VII.

1 And the king came with Haman to drink with Esther the queen.

2 And the king said unto Esther also on the second day at the banquet of wine, What is thy petition, queen Esther? and it shall be granted thee: and what is thy request? even if it be equal to half the kingdom, it shall still be done.

3 Then answered Esther the queen and said, If I have found grace in thy eyes, O king! and if it be pleasing unto the king, let my life be given me at my petition, and my people at my request;

4 For we have been sold, I and my people, to be destroyed, to be slain and to be exterminated; and if we had been only sold for bondmen and bondwomen, I would have remained silent; for the adversary regardeth not the damage of the king.

5 ¶ Then spoke king Achashverosh and said unto Esther the queen, Who is this, and where is he, whose heart hath emboldened him to do so?

6 And Esther said, An adversary, and inimical man, this wicked Haman. Then became Haman terrified before the king and the queen.

7 And the king arose in his fury from the banquet of wine, and went into the palace-garden: and Haman remained[b] behind to make request for his life of Esther the queen; for he saw that there was evil fully determined against him by the king.

8 And when the king returned out of the palace-garden into the apartment of the banquet of wine, Haman was fallen upon the couch whereon Esther was: then said the king, Will he even do violence to the queen before me in the house? The word had just come out of the king's mouth, when they covered Haman's face.

9 Then said Charbonah, one of the chamberlains, before the king, Behold, there is also the gallows, which Haman hath had made for Mordecai, who hath spoken well for the king, standing in the house of Haman, fifty cubits high. And the king said, Hang him thereon.

10 So they hanged Haman on the gallows which he had prepared for Mordecai, and the fury of the king was appeased.

CHAPTER VIII.

1 ¶ On that day did king Achashverosh give the house of Haman the adversary of the Jews unto Esther the queen: and Mordecai came before the king; for Esther had told what he was unto her.

2 And the king took off his signet-ring which he had taken away from Haman, and gave it unto Mordecai: and Esther appointed Mordecai over the house of Haman.

3 ¶ And Esther spoke again before the king, and fell down at his feet, and wept, and besought him to do away the evil of Haman the Agagite, and his device which he had devised against the Jews.

4 And the king held out toward Esther

[a] Rashi. Philippson, "maketh no compensation for," &c.

[b] Others, "stood up."

the golden sceptre; and Esther arose, and stood up before the king;

5 And she said, If it be pleasing to the king, and if I have found grace before him, and the thing seem proper before the king, and I be pleasing in his eyes, let it be written to recall the letters, the device of Haman the son of Hammedatha the Agagite, which he hath written to exterminate the Jews who are in all the provinces of the king.

6 For how could I endure to look on the evil that is to befall my people? and how could I endure to look on the extermination of my kindred?

7 ¶ Then said king Achashverosh unto Esther the queen and to Mordecai the Jew, Behold, the house of Haman have I given to Esther, and him have they hanged on the gallows, because he had stretched out his hand against the Jews.

8 But ye[a] write yourselves concerning the Jews, as it may be good in your eyes, in the king's name, and seal it with the king's signet-ring; for a writing which is written in the king's name, and sealed with the king's signet-ring, cannot be recalled.

9 Then were called the king's scribes at that time in the third month, that is, the month Sivan, on the three and twentieth day thereof; and it was written all just as Mordecai commanded to the Jews, and to the lieutenants, and the governors and the princes of the provinces who were from India unto Ethiopia, one hundred and twenty-seven provinces, unto every province according to its writing, and unto every people according to its language, and to the Jews according to their writing, and according to their language.

10 And he wrote in the name of king Achashverosh, and sealed it with the king's signet-ring, and he sent letters through means of the swift[b] messengers on horseback, and riders on mules, camels, and young dromedaries:[c]

11 That the king had granted to the Jews who were in every city to gather themselves together, and to stand forward for their life, to destroy, to slay, and to exterminate all the military strength of the people and province that would assault them, both little ones and women, and to plunder their property as spoil,

12 On one day in all the provinces of king Achashverosh, on the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, which is the month Adar.

13 A copy of the writing to be given out as a law in every province, was published unto all nations, and that the Jews should be ready against that day to avenge themselves on their enemies.

14 The swift messengers that rode upon mules and camels went out, being hastened and hurried forward with the command of the king: and the law was given out at Shushan the capital.

15 ¶ And Mordecai went out from the presence of the king in a royal apparel of blue and white, and with a great crown of gold, and with a cloak of fine linen and purple: and the city of Shushan was glad and joyful.

16 For the Jews there was light, with joy and gladness, and honour.

17 And in every province, and in every city, whithersoever the king's command reached with his law, there were joy and gladness for the Jews, entertainments and a feast-day: and many of the people of the land became Jews; for the dread of the Jews had fallen upon them.

CHAPTER IX.

1 And in the twelfth month, that is, the month Adar, on the thirteenth day thereof, when the king's command with his law drew near to be put in execution, on the day that the enemies of the Jews had hoped to have power over them, which had been changed nevertheless, so that the Jews had power over those that hated them,

2 The Jews assembled together in their cities, throughout all the provinces of king

[a] In the commentary to the book of Esther, by Aaron Halle Wolfsohn, this is thus explained: "All that is in my power to do I have done; Haman has been punished, and I have thus shown my abhorrence of the crime which he meditated. But as the laws of Persia cannot be repealed, you shall be authorized by a decree equal to the former to protect yourselves against the malignity of your adversaries, by putting to death every one from whom you may apprehend any danger." This view will also account for the destruction of their enemies by the Jews, while they touched none of their property.

[b] Lit. "runners."

[c] Arnheim, "riders on dromedaries, (or swift horses,) mules, the children of mares."

Achashverosh, to stretch out their hand against those that had sought their injury: and no man could keep standing before them; for the dread of them had fallen upon all the nations.

3 And all the rulers of the provinces, and the lieutenants, and the governors, and the superintendents of the affairs of the king, elevated the Jews; because the dread of Mordecai had fallen upon them.

4 For Mordecai was great in the king's house, and his fame went throughout all the provinces; for the man Mordecai became greater and greater.

5 And the Jews smote all their enemies[a] with the stroke of the sword, and slaughter, and extermination; and they acted with those that hated them according to their pleasure.

6 And in Shushan the capital the Jews slew and exterminated five hundred men.

7 And Parshandatha, and Dalphon, and Aspatha,

8 And Poratha, and Adalya, and Aridatha,

9 And Parmashtha, and Arissai, and Aridai, and Vayzatha,

10 The ten sons of Haman the son of Hammedatha, the adversary of the Jews, did they slay; but to the spoil did they not stretch forth their hand.

11 On that same day came the number of those that were slain in Shushan the capital before the king.

12 Then said the king unto Esther the queen, In Shushan the capital have the Jews slain and exterminated five hundred men, and the ten sons of Haman: what have they done in the rest of the king's provinces? Now what is thy petition? and it shall be granted thee: and what is thy request farther? and it shall be done.

13 Then said Esther, If it please the king, let it to-morrow also be granted to the Jews who are in Shushan to do according to the law of this day, and let the ten sons of Haman be hanged on the gallows.

14 And the king ordered that it should be done so; and the law was given out at Shushan; and the ten sons of Haman were hanged.

15 And the Jews that were in Shushan assembled together also on the fourteenth day of the month Adar, and slew at Shushan three hundred men; but to the spoil they did not stretch forth their hand.

16 And the remaining Jews that were in the king's provinces assembled together, and stood forward for their life, and procured rest from their enemies, and slew of those that hated them seventy and five thousand; but to the spoil did they not stretch forth their hand.

17 On the thirteenth day of the month Adar, and they rested on the fourteenth day thereof, and made it a day of entertainment and joy.

18 But the Jews that were at Shushan assembled together on the thirteenth day thereof, and on the fourteenth thereof, and rested on the fifteenth thereof, and made it a day of entertainment and joy.

19 Therefore do the Jews of the villages, that dwell in the unwalled towns, make the fourteenth day of the month Adar as one of joy and entertainment, and a feast-day, and of sending portions[b] one to another.

20 And Mordecai wrote down these events; and he sent letters unto all the Jews that were in all the provinces of king Achashverosh, those nigh and those far away,

21 To take it on themselves as a duty, that they should celebrate the fourteenth day of the month Adar, and the fifteenth day of the same in each and every year,

22 Like those days whereon the Jews had rest from their enemies, and the month which was changed unto them from sorrow to joy, and from mourning into a feast-day: to make them days of entertainment and joy, and of sending portions one to the other, and gifts to the needy.[c]

[a] It must not be supposed that this was indiscriminate slaughter of all against whom the Jews had conceived hatred, but it only says that those perished who had actually been prepared to exterminate the Jews. See also iii. 11, and compare with ix. 16, where it says, "and stood forward for their life." Philippson correctly remarks, that though the number of the slaughtered enemies only is given, it is highly probable that many Jews also perished in this internal warfare which thus occurred in the Persian kingdom.

[b] That is, portions of food: this custom is still extensively observed.

[c] As in the decree of Haman there was no distinction made between rich and poor, as all were thereby doomed to destruction, it is proper that every one should have cause to be joyful in all future generations; the poor should of right therefore be remembered on this day especially by their more wealthy neighbours, so that they too may bless the LORD in joy and plenty

23 And the Jews took upon themselves that which they had begun already to do, and that which Mordecai had written unto them.

24 Because Haman the son of Hammedatha, the Agagite, the adversary of all the Jews, had devised against the Jews to exterminate them, and had cast the Pur, that is, the lot, to destroy them, and to exterminate them.

25 But when (Esther) came before the king, he ordered by that letter that his wicked device, which he had devised against the Jews, should return upon his own head: and they hanged him and his sons on the gallows.

26 Therefore did they call these days Purim, after the name of the Pur: therefore, because of all the words of this letter, both for that which they had experienced thereby, and for that which had occurred unto them,

27 The Jews confirmed it as a duty, and took upon themselves, and upon their seed, and upon all such as join themselves unto them, so that no one should fail therein, that they would celebrate these two days according to their prescription, and at their appointed time, in each and every year.

28 And these days are remembered and celebrated throughout each and every generation, every family, every province, and every city; and these days of Purim will not pass away from the midst of the Jews, nor will their memorial cease from their seed.

29 ¶ Then wrote Esther the queen, the daughter of Abichayil, with Mordecai the Jew, with all due strength, to confirm this letter of Purim the second time.

30 And he sent letters unto all the Jews, to the hundred and twenty-seven provinces of the kingdom of Achashverosh, words of peace and truth,

31 To confirm these days of Purim in their times, just as Mordecai the Jew and Esther the queen had enjoined on them, and as they had confirmed for themselves and for their seed, the matters of the fastings and their prayers.

32 And the order of Esther confirmed these matters of Purim; and it was written in the[a] book.

CHAPTER X.

1 ¶ And king Achashverosh imposed a tribute upon the land, and the isles of the sea.

2 And all the acts of his strength and of his might, and the exposition of the greatness of Mordecai, wherewith the king made him great, behold they are written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Media and Persia.

3 For Mordecai the Jew was the second in rank after king Achashverosh, and great among the Jews, and acceptable to the multitude of his brethren, a promoter of good to his people, and speaking peace to all its seed

THE BOOK OF DANIEL,

ספר דניאל.

CHAPTER I.

1 ¶ In the third year of the reign of Jehoyakim the king of Judah came Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon unto Jerusalem, and besieged it.[b]

2 And the Lord gave up into his hand Yehoyakim the king of Judah, with part of the vessels of the house of God: and he brought them into the land of Shin'ar into the house of his god, namely, he brought the vessels into the treasure-house of his god.

[a] This no doubt refers to the biblical canon, and means that the history of Esther was added thereto.

[b] Philippson, in his notes to this verse, proves that this irruption of Nebuchadnezzar must have taken place while he was yet co-regent with his father, on his expedition against the Egyptians, whom he subdued in the following

3 And the king said unto Ashpenas, the chief of his eunuchs, that he should bring out of the children of Israel, and of the royal seed, and of the nobles,

4 (Certain) lads in whom there should be no kind of blemish, but who should be handsome in appearance, and intelligent in all wisdom, and acquainted with knowledge, and understanding science, and such as should have the ability to serve[a] in the king's palace, and that these should be taught the learning and the language of the Chaldeïns.

5 And the king ordered for them a daily provision for its day of the king's food, and of the wine which he drank, and to educate them three years, so that at the end thereof they should serve before the king.

6 Now there were among these of the children of Judah, Daniel, Chananyah, Mishaël, and 'Azaryah.

7 And the chief of the eunuchs assigned them names; and he assigned to Daniel the name of Belteshazzar; and to Chananyah, of Shadrach; and to Mishaël, of Meshach; and to 'Azaryah, of 'Abed-nego.

8 But Daniel resolved[b] in his heart that he would not defile himself with the food of the king, nor with the wine which he drank: and therefore he requested of the chief of the eunuchs that he might not need to defile himself.

9 And God gave Daniel kindness and mercy before the chief of the eunuchs.

10 And the chief of the eunuchs said unto Daniel, I fear my lord the king, who hath ordered your food and your drink; for why should he see your face sadder looking than that of the lads who are of your age?[c] and ye would thus endanger my head with the king.

11 Then said Daniel to the steward whom the chief of the eunuchs had given charge over Daniel, Chananyah, Mishaël, and 'Azaryah,

12 Prove, I beseech thee, thy servants, ten days; and let them give us vegetables to eat, and water to drink;

13 And then let our countenances be looked at before thee, and the countenance of the lads that eat the food of the king: and as thou mayest see (fitting), so deal with thy servants.

14 And he hearkened unto them in this matter, and proved them ten days.

15 And at the end of ten days their countenances appeared better and fuller in flesh than (that of) all the lads who ate the food of the king.

16 And the steward took away their (apportioned) food, and the wine that they were to drink, and gave them vegetables.

17 But as regardeth all these four lads, God gave them knowledge and intelligence in all learning and wisdom; and Daniel had understanding in all visions and dreams.

18 And at the end of the days (after) which the king had said that they should be presented, the chief of the eunuchs presented them before Nebuchadnezzar.

19 And the king spoke with them; and there was not found among them all any one like Daniel, Chananyah, Mishaël, and 'Azaryah: and so they served before the king.

20 And in every matter of wise understanding, which the king required of them, he found them ten times superior above all the magicians and astrologers that were in all his kingdom.

21 And Daniel continued even unto the first year of king Cyrus.

CHAPTER II.

1 ¶ And in the second year of the reign of Nebuchadnezzar, Nebuchadnezzar dreamed dreams, whereat his spirit was troubled, and his sleep that was upon him was gone.

2 Then said the king to call the magicians, and the astrologers, and the sorcerers, and the Chaldeans, to solve for the king his dreams: and they came and placed themselves before the king.

3 And the king said unto them, I have dreamed a dream, and my spirit is troubled to know the dream.

4 Then spoke the Chaldeans to the king in Aramic, O king, live for ever: recite the dream to thy servants, and we will tell the interpretation.

5 The king answered and said to the Chal-year, when at the death of his father he became sole king of Babylon. Some Rabbins suppose it refers to the third year of Jehoyakim's rebellion.

deans. The decree is firmly resolved on by me: If ye do not make known unto me the dream with its interpretation, ye shall be cut in pieces, and your houses shall be changed into a dunghill.

6 But if ye tell the dream and its interpretation, then shall ye receive gifts and rewards and great honour from me. Therefore tell me the dream and its interpretation.

7 They answered the second time and said, Let the king recite the dream to his servants, and we will tell its interpretation.

8 The king answered and said, I know of a certainty that ye wish to gain time, because ye see the decree is firmly resolved on by me:

9 That[a] if ye do not make known unto me the dream, there is but one sentence for you; for ye have prepared lying and deceptive words to speak before me, till the time be changed. Therefore relate to me the dream, and I shall know that ye can tell me its interpretation.

10 The Chaldeans answered before the king, and said, There is not a man upon the habitable earth that can tell the king's matter: wherefore no mighty and powerful king ever hath asked such a thing of any magician, or astrologer, or Chaldean.

11 And the matter which the king requireth is difficult, and there is no other that can tell it before the king, except the gods, whose dwelling is not with flesh.

12 For all this cause the king became angry, and very furious; and he commanded to destroy all the wise men of Babylon.

13 And the law went forth and (some of) the wise men were slain: and they sought Daniel and his companions to slay them.

14 ¶ Then made Daniel representations with intelligence and prudence to Aryoch the captain of the king's guard,[b] who was gone forth to slay the wise men of Babylon.

15 He commenced and said to Aryoch the king's commander, Wherefore is the law so hasty[c] from the king? Then made Aryoch the matter[d] known to Daniel.

16 But Daniel went in, and requested of the king that he would give him time, that he might tell the interpretation to the king.

17 ¶ Then went Daniel to his house, and made the matter known to Chananyah, Mishaël, and 'Azaryah, his companions.

18 In order that they might pray for mercy of the God of heaven concerning this secret: so that Daniel and his companions might not be destroyed with the rest of the wise men of Babylon.

19 Thereupon was the secret revealed unto Daniel in a vision of the night. Then did Daniel bless the God of heaven.

20 Daniel commenced and said, May the name of God be blessed from eternity and to all eternity; for wisdom and might are his;

21 And he changeth times and seasons; he removeth kings, and raiseth up kings: he giveth wisdom unto the wise, and knowledge to those that possess understanding:

22 He it is that revealeth what is deep and secret; he knoweth what is in the darkness, and the light dwelleth with him.

23 To thee, O God of my father, do I give thanks, and I praise thee, who hast given me wisdom and might, and because thou hast made known unto me what we prayed for of thee; for thou hast made known unto us the king's matter.

24 Therefore did Daniel go in unto Aryoch, whom the king had ordered to destroy the wise men of Babylon. He went and said thus unto him, The wise men of Babylon must thou not destroy: bring me before the king, and I will tell unto the king the interpretation.

25 ¶ Then did Aryoch bring Daniel before the king in haste, and thus he said unto him, Here have I found a man out of the children of the exiles of Judah, who will make known unto the king the interpretation.

26 The king answered and said to Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar, Art thou able to make known unto me the dream which I have seen, and its interpretation?

27 Daniel answered in the presence of the king, and said, The secret which the king hath demanded no wise men, astrologers, magicians, or soothsayers, can tell unto the king;

[a] Philippson, "For if ye do not make known to me the dream, then is this your sole object, and you have agreed to speak," &c.

[b] Rashi, "the chief of the executioners."

[c] Rashi and Aben Ezra. Others, "severe."

[d] Philippson, all through, טעמא with "order."

28 But there is a God in heaven that revealeth secrets, and he hath made known to king Nebuchadnezzar what is to be in the latter days. Thy dream, and the visions of thy head upon thy couch, were these.

29 ¶ As for thee, O king, thy thoughts, when thou wast on thy couch, rose (within thee) concerning what is to come to pass hereafter; and the Revealer of secrets hath made known to thee what is to come to pass.

30 But as for me, this secret hath not been revealed to me because of any wisdom that is in me more than in all other living; but for the sake that men might make known the interpretation to the king, and that thou mightest understand the thoughts of thy heart.

31 ¶ Thou, O king, sawest, and behold there was a large image; this image was mighty, and its brightness was excellent; it stood opposite to thee; and its form was fear-inspiring.

32 As regardeth this image, its head was of fine gold, its breast and its arms were of silver, its belly and its thighs of copper,

33 Its legs of iron, its feet part of them of iron and part of them of clay.

34 Thou didst look on till the moment that a stone tore itself loose, not through (human) hands, and it struck the image upon its feet that were of iron and clay, and ground them to pieces.

35 Then were the iron, the clay, the copper, the silver, and the gold ground up together, and became like the chaff of the summer threshing-floors; and the wind carried them away, that no trace[a] was found of them; and the stone that had stricken the image became a mighty mountain, and filled the whole earth.

36 This is the dream; and its interpretation will we relate before the king.

37 Thou, O king, art a king of kings, to whom the God of heaven hath given kingdom, power, and strength, and honour:

38 And wheresoever the children of men dwell, hath he given[b] the beasts of the field and the fowls of the heaven into thy hand, and hath made thee ruler over them all. Thou art the head of gold.

39 And after thee there will arise another kingdom inferior to thee; and another[c] third kingdom of copper, which will bear rule over all the earth.

40 And the fourth kingdom will be as strong as iron; forasmuch as iron grindeth up and beateth down all things, and as iron that breaketh (every thing), will it grind up and break all these.

41 And that thou sawest the feet and toes, part of them of potter's clay, and part of them of iron, (signifieth) that it will be a divided kingdom, although there will be in it of the strength of the iron; forasmuch as thou sawest the iron mingled with miry clay.

42 And as the toes of the feet were part of them of iron, and part of them of clay: so will the kingdom be partly strong and partly brittle.

43 And whereas thou sawest iron mingled with miry clay: so will they mingle themselves among the seed of men; but they will not cleave firmly one to another, even as iron cannot be mingled with clay.

44 But in the days of these kings will the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall to eternity not be destroyed, and its rule shall not be transferred to any other people; (but) it will grind up and make an end of all these kingdoms, while it will itself endure for ever.

45 Whereas thou sawest that out of the mountain a stone tore itself loose, not through (human) hands, and that it ground up the iron, the copper, the clay, the silver, and the gold: the great God hath made known to the king what is to come to pass after this. And the dream is reliable, and its interpretation certain.

46 ¶ Then did king Nebuchadnezzar fall upon his face, and he bowed down to Daniel, and ordered that they should offer an oblation and sweet odours unto him.

47 The king answered unto Daniel, and said, Of a truth it is, that your God is the God of gods, and the Lord of kings, and the revealer of secrets; because thou hast been able to reveal this secret.

48 Then did the king elevate Daniel, and gave him many great presents, and made him ruler over the whole province of Babylon, and chief of the superintendents over all the wise men of Babylon.

49 Then requested Daniel of the king, that he might appoint Shadrach, Meshach, and 'Abed-nego, over the public service of the province of Babylon; but Daniel remained in the gate of the king.

CHAPTER III.

1 ¶ King Nebuchadnezzar made an image of gold,[a] the height of which was sixty cubits, and the breadth of which was six cubits: he set it up in the valley of Dura, in the province of Babylon.

2 And king Nebuchadnezzar sent to assemble (his) lieutenants, the superintendents, and the governors, the judges, the treasurers, the counsellors, those learned in the law, and all the rulers of the provinces, to come to the dedication of the image which king Nebuchadnezzar had set up.

3 Thereupon were assembled the lieutenants, the superintendents, and the governors, the judges, the treasurers, the counsellors, those learned in the law, and all the rulers of the provinces, unto the dedication of the image that king Nebuchadnezzar had set up; and they stood opposite to the image that Nebuchadnezzar had set up.

4 Then a herald called out with a loud[b] voice, To you it is commanded, O people, nations, and languages,

5 That at the time when ye do hear the sound of the cornet, flute, guitar, harp, psaltery, bagpipe, and all kinds of music, ye shall fall down and bow yourselves to the golden image which king Nebuchadnezzar hath set up:

6 And whoso doth not fall down and bow himself shall in the same hour be cast into the midst of a burning fiery furnace.

7 Therefore at the same time, when all the people heard the sound of the cornet, flute, guitar, harp, psaltery, and all kinds of music, all the people, the nations, and the languages fell down bowing themselves to the golden image which king Nebuchadnezzar had set up.

8 Therefore at the same time certain Chaldean men came near, and accused the Jews treacherously.

9 They commenced and said to king Nebuchadnezzar, O king, live for ever.

10 Thou, O king, hadst made a decree, that every man that should hear the sound of the cornet, flute, guitar, harp, psaltery, and bagpipe, and all kinds of music, should fall down and bow himself to the golden image;

11 And that whoso should not fall down and bow himself should be cast into the midst of a burning fiery furnace.

12 There are certain Jewish men whom thou hast appointed over the public service of the province of Babylon, Shadrach, Meshach, and 'Abed-nego: these men, O king, have not paid any regard to thee; thy god they do not worship, and to the golden image which thou hast set up they do not bow themselves.

13 ¶ Then ordered Nebuchadnezzar in rage and fury to bring Shadrach, Meshach, and 'Abed-nego. Then were these men brought before the king.

14 Nebuchadnezzar commenced and said unto them, Is it out of disrespect,[c] O Shadrach, Meshach, and 'Abed-nego? My god ye do not worship, and to the golden image which I have set up ye do not bow yourselves?

15 Now then if ye be ready at the time when ye hear the sound of the cornet, flute, harp, guitar, psaltery, and bagpipe, and all kinds of music, to fall down and bow yourselves to the image which I have made, (well); but if ye bow yourselves not, ye shall be cast in the same hour into the midst of a burning fiery furnace: and who is the God that can deliver you out of my hand?

16 Then answered Shadrach, Meshach, and 'Abed-nego, and said to the king, O Nebuchadnezzar, we have no need to answer thee a word in this matter.

17 Behold, there is our God whom we worship, he is able to deliver us from the burning fiery furnace: and out of thy hand, O king, will he deliver us.

18 But if not, then be it known unto thee, O king, that thy god will we not worship,

[a] Philippson suggests that it was probably only overlaid.
[b] Lit. "with might."
[c] Rashi. Herxheimer, "on purpose." Aben Ezra "Is it true?"

and to the golden image which thou hast set up will we not bow ourselves.

19 ¶ Then was Nebuchadnezzar filled with fury, and the form of his countenance was changed because of Shadrach, Meshach, and 'Abed-nego; (and) he commenced and ordered that they should heat the furnace thoroughly seven times more than it was wont[a] to be heated.

20 And he ordered the mightiest men in strength that were in his army, to bind Shadrach, Meshach, and 'Abed-nego, (and) to cast them into the burning fiery furnace.

21 Then were these men bound in their mantles, their under-garments, and their turbans, and their other garments, and were cast into the midst of the burning fiery furnace.

22 Now, because the king's command was so urgent, and the furnace exceedingly heated, the flame of the fire slew those men that carried up Shadrach, Meshach, and 'Abed-nego.

23 And these three men, Shadrach, Meshach, and 'Abed-nego, fell down bound into the midst of the burning fiery furnace.

24 ¶ Then was king Nebuchadnezzar astonished, and he rose up in haste, (and) commenced, and said unto his counsellors, Did we not cast three men bound into the midst of the fire? They answered and said unto the king, Certainly, O king.

25 He answered and said, Lo, I see four men unbound, walking in the midst of the fire, and there is no injury on them; and the appearance of the fourth is like a son of the gods.

26 ¶ Then came Nebuchadnezzar near to the door of the burning fiery furnace, commenced, and said, Shadrach, Meshach, and 'Abed-nego, ye servants of the most high God, step forth, and come hither. Then stepped Shadrach, Meshach, and 'Abed-nego forth out of the midst of the fire.

27 And the lieutenants, superintendents, and governors, and the king's counsellors, being assembled together, saw these men, over whose bodies the fire had had no power, and the hair of whose head was not singed, whose mantles were not changed, and on whom there was not come the smell of fire.

28 Then commenced Nebuchadnezzar, and said, Blessed be the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and 'Abed-nego, who hath sent his angel, and delivered his servants that had trusted in him, and had transgressed the king's word, and yielded up their bodies, that they might not worship nor bow themselves to any god, except their own God.

29 Therefore do I make a decree, That every people, nation, and language, that may speak any thing disrespectful against the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and 'Abed-nego, shall be cut in pieces, and their houses shall be changed into a dunghill; because there is no other God that can deliver like this one.

30 Then did the king promote Shadrach, Meshach, and 'Abed-nego, in the province of Babylon.

31[b] ¶ Nebuchadnezzar the king, unto all people, nations, and languages, that dwell on all the earth, May your welfare increase.

32 The signs and wonders which the most high God hath wrought toward me I find it for good to make known.

33 His signs—how great are they! and his wonders—how mighty are they! his kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and his rule is over every generation.

CHAPTER IV.

1 ¶ I Nebuchadnezzar was at rest in my house, and flourishing in my palace.

2 I saw a dream which terrified me; and the thoughts upon my couch and the visions of my head troubled me.

3 Therefore made I a decree to bring before me all the wise men of Babylon, that they might make known unto me the interpretation of the dream.

4 Then came up the magicians, the astrologers, the Chaldeans, and the soothsayers; and the dream did I recite before them; but its interpretation did they not make known unto me.

5 But at the last came up before me Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar, after the name of my god, and in whom is the spirit of the holy gods; and the dream did I recite before him, (saying,)

6 O Belteshazzar, chief of the magicians,

[a] Philippson, "than they saw it was heated." Herxheimer, "than they found it requisite."

[b] The English version commences here chapter iv., to which verses 31–33 are a sort of introduction.

of whom I know that the spirit of the holy gods is in thee, and that no secret is concealed[a] from thee, tell me the visions of my dream which I have seen, with its interpretation.

7 And the visions of my head on my couch were, (that) I saw, and behold, there was a tree in the midst of the earth, and its height was great.

8 The tree grew,[b] and was strong, and its height reached unto heaven, and it was visible[c] to the end of all the earth.

9 Its foliage was splendid, and its fruit large, and on it was food for all: under it sought the beasts of the field for shade, and in its boughs dwelt the fowls of heaven, and from it was fed all flesh.

10 I saw in the visions of my head on my couch, and, behold, a watcher who was also a holy one came down from heaven.

11 He called with might, and thus he said, Hew down the tree, and lop off its branches, strip off its leaves, and scatter its fruit; let the beasts flee away from under it, and the fowls from among its branches:

12 Nevertheless leave the body of its roots in the earth, but (bound) with fetters of iron and copper, among the grass of the field; and let it be made wet with the dew of heaven, and let its portion be with the beasts on the herbage of the earth;

13 Let his heart be changed not to be human, and let a beast's heart be given unto him; and let seven times elapse over him.

14 Through the resolve of the watchers is this decree, and by the order of the holy ones is this decision: to the intent that the living may know that the Most High ruleth over the kingdom of men, and that he can give it to whomsoever he pleaseth, and can set up over it the lowest of men.

15 This dream have I, king Nebuchadnezzar, seen; but thou, O Belteshazzar, relate its interpretation, forasmuch as all the wise men of my kingdom are not able to make known unto me the interpretation; but thou art able; for the spirit of the holy gods is in thee.

16 Then was Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar, astounded for one hour,[d] and his thoughts troubled him. The king then commenced, and said, Belteshazzar, let not the dream, or its interpretation, trouble thee. Belteshazzar answered and said, My lord, O that the dream might be for those that hate thee, and its interpretation for thy enemies.

17 The tree that thou hast seen, which grew, and was strong, the height of which reached unto the heaven, and which was visible to all the earth;

18 The foliage of which was splendid, and the fruit of which was large, and on which was food for all; under which dwelt the beasts of the field, and in the boughs of which nestled the fowls of the heaven:—

19 It is thou, O king, that art grown and become strong; and thy greatness is grown apace, and reacheth unto heaven, and thy dominion is to the end of the earth.

20 And whereas the king saw a watcher and a holy one coming down from heaven, who said, Hew the tree down, and destroy it; yet leave the body of its roots in the earth, but (bound) in fetters of iron and copper, among the grass of the field; and let it be made wet with the dew of heaven, and let its portion be with the beasts of the field, till seven times elapse over it:—

21 This is the interpretation, O king, and this is the resolve of the Most High, which will come over my lord the king:

22 They will drive thee away from men, and with the beasts of the field is thy dwelling to be, and they will suffer thee to eat herbs like oxen, and they will suffer thee to be made wet with the dew of heaven, and seven times will elapse over thee; until that thou wilt know that the Most High ruleth over the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he pleaseth.

23 And whereas they ordered to leave the body of the roots of the tree: thy kingdom will remain unto thee, as soon as thou wilt know that the Heavens do rule.

24 Therefore, O king, let my counsel be agreeable unto thee, and atone for thy sins by righteousness, and for thy iniquities by showing kindness to the poor: perhaps thy prosperity may (thereby) endure long.

25 All this came over king Nebuchadnezzar.

26 ¶ At the end of twelve months he was walking upon the royal palace at Babylon.

27 The king commenced, and said, Is not this Babylon the great, that I myself have built for a royal residence by the might of my power, and for the honour of my majesty?

28 The word was still in the king's mouth, when there fell a voice from heaven, (saying,) To thee it is said, O king Nebuchadnezzar, The kingdom departeth from thee.

29 And from men will they drive thee away, and with the beasts of the field shall thy dwelling be; herbs like oxen will they suffer thee to eat, and seven times shall elapse over thee: until thou wilt know that the Most High ruleth over the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he pleaseth.

30 At the same hour the word was fulfilled upon Nebuchadnezzar; and from men was he driven away, and herbs like oxen had he to eat, and with the dew of heaven was his body made wet: till his hair was grown like eagles' (feathers), and his nails were like birds' (claws).—

31 But at the end of the days I Nebuchadnezzar lifted up my eyes unto heaven, and my understanding returned unto me, and I blessed the Most High, and I praised and glorified the Ever-living, whose dominion is an everlasting dominion, and whose kingdom is over every generation;

32 And (by whom) all the inhabitants of the earth are regarded as nought; and (who) according to his pleasure doth with the host of heaven and the inhabitants of the earth: while there is none that can stay his hand, or say unto him, What doest thou?

33 At the same time my understanding returned unto me; and with[a] the glory of my kingdom, my honour and my splendour returned unto me; and my counsellors and my lords sought for me: and I was replaced in my kingdom, and additional greatness was added unto me.

34 Now I Nebuchadnezzar praise and extol and glorify the King of heaven, all whose works are truth, and whose ways are justice; and who is able to bring low those that walk in pride.

CHAPTER V.

1 ¶ King Belshazzar prepared a great feast for a thousand of his lords, and before these thousand did he drink wine.

2 Belshazzar ordered, through the counsel of the wine, to bring in the golden and silver vessels which his father Nebuchadnezzar had taken away out of the temple which was in Jerusalem: that the king, and his lords, his wives, and his concubines, might drink therefrom.

3 Then they brought in the golden vessels that were taken away out of the temple of the house of God which was at Jerusalem; and the king, and his lords, his wives, and his concubines, drank from them.

4 They drank wine, and praised their gods of gold, and of silver, of copper, of iron, of wood, and of stone.

5 At that same hour came forth fingers of a man's hand, and wrote opposite to the chandelier upon the plaster of the wall of the king's palace: and the king saw the part of the hand that wrote.

6 Then was the king's colour changed, and his thoughts troubled him: so that the bands[b] of his loins were loosed, and his knees knocked one against the other.

7 The king called with might to bring in the astrologers, the Chaldeans, and the soothsayers. The king commenced, and said to the wise men of Babylon, Whatsoever man will read this writing, and tell me its interpretation, shall be clothed with purple,[c] and have a chain[d] of gold about his neck, and shall rule as the third in the kingdom.

8 Then came in all the wise men of the king; but they were not able to read the writing, nor to make its interpretation known to the king.

9 Then was king Belshazzar greatly terrified, and his colour was changed on him, and his lords were confounded.

[b] Rashi explains, that his belt opened from the sudden fright as his body shrank together; others, that his spinal joints shrank together.

[c] Others, "scarlet."

[d] Others, "an ornament," like a crescent.

10 (Now) the queen[a] in consequence of the words of the king and of his lords came into the banquet-house; the queen commenced and said, O king, live for ever; let thy thoughts not trouble thee, nor let thy colour be changed:

11 There is a man in thy kingdom in whom is the spirit of the holy gods; and in the days of thy father enlightenment and intelligence and wisdom, like the wisdom of the gods, were found in him; and king Nebuchadnezzar thy father appointed him chief of the magicians, astrologers, Chaldeans, and soothsayers:—yes, thy father, O king.—

12 Forasmuch as a superior spirit, and knowledge, and intelligence, interpreting of dreams, and solving of riddles, and of untying knotty (doubts), were found in him, in Daniel, to whom the king assigned the name of Belteshazzar: now let Daniel be called, and he will tell the interpretation.

13 ¶ Then was Daniel brought in before the king: the king commenced and said unto Daniel, Art thou Daniel, who art of the children of the exiles of Judah,[b] whom the king my father brought out of Judah?

14 And I have heard of thee, that the spirit of the gods is in thee, and that enlightenment and intelligence and superior wisdom are found in thee.

15 And now the wise men, the astrologers, had been brought before me, that they should read this writing, and make known unto me its interpretation; but they were not able to tell the interpretation of the matter.

16 But I have truly heard concerning thee, that thou art able to give interpretations, and untie knotty (doubts): now if thou art able to read the writing, and make known to me its interpretation, thou shalt be clothed with purple, with a chain of gold about thy neck, and shalt rule as the third in the kingdom.

17 ¶ Then answered Daniel and said before the king, Let thy gifts remain in thy possession, and bestow thy bounty on another: nevertheless will I read the writing unto the king, and make known to him the interpretation.

18 O thou king! the most high God gave kingdom, and greatness, and glory, and honour unto Nebuchadnezzar thy father;

19 And because of the greatness that he had given unto him, all people, nations, and languages trembled and shook before him: whom he pleased he slew; and whom he pleased he kept alive; and whom he pleased he lifted up; and whom he pleased he brought low.

20 But, when his heart was lifted up, and his spirit hardened to deal presumptuously, he was cast down from the throne of his kingdom, and his dignity did they take from him;

21 And from the sons of men was he driven forth, and his heart became equal with (that of) the beasts, and with the wild asses was his dwelling; they suffered him to eat herbs like oxen, and with the dew of heaven was his body made wet: till he acknowledged that the most high God ruleth over the kingdom of men, and that he appointeth over it whomsoever he pleaseth.

22 And thou his son, O Belshazzar, hast not humbled thy heart, though thou knewest all this;

23 But against the Lord of heaven hast thou lifted thyself up; and the vessels of his house have they brought before thee, and thou, and thy lords, thy wives, and thy concubines, have drunk wine from them; and the gods of silver, and gold, of copper, iron, wood, and stone, which neither see, nor hear, nor know, hast thou praised; and the God in whose hand thy soul is, and whose are all thy ways, hast thou not glorified:

24 Thereupon was sent from before him the part of the hand, and this writing was noted down.

25 And this is the writing that was noted down, M'NÉ, M'NÉ, T'KEL, UPHARSIN.

26 This the interpretation of the matter: M'NÉ, God hath numbered thy kingdom, and made an end of it.

27 T'KEL, Thou hast been weighed in the balances, and been found wanting.

28 P'RESS;[c] Thy kingdom hath been divided, and is given to the Medes and Persians.

29 Then gave Belshazzar the order, and they clothed Daniel with purple, with a chain of gold about his neck, and they made a proclamation concerning him, that he should rule as the third in the kingdom.

30 In that very night was Belshazzar the king of the Chaldeans slain.

CHAPTER VI.

1[a] ¶ And Darius[b] the Median obtained the kingdom, when he was sixty and two years old.

2 Darius deemed it proper, and he set over the kingdom one hundred and twenty lieutenants, who should be over all the kingdom:

3 And over these, three presidents, of whom Daniel was one; that these lieutenants should give accounts unto them, so that the king might suffer no damage.

4 Then did this Daniel excel (all) the presidents and lieutenants, because a superior spirit was in him: and the king thought to appoint him over the whole kingdom.

5 Then sought the presidents and lieutenants to find a pretext against Daniel on account of the management of the kingdom; but they were not able to find any pretext or fault, forasmuch as he was faithful, and no kind of error or fault was to be found on him.

6 Then said these men, We shall not find any pretext against this Daniel, except we find it against him in the law of his God.

7 Then came these presidents and lieutenants tumultuously to the king, and thus said they unto him, King Darius, live for ever.

8 All the presidents of the kingdom, the superintendents, and the lieutenants, the counsellors, and the governors, have consulted together to establish a royal statute, and to make a firm prohibition, that whosoever will ask any thing by prayer of any God or man within thirty days, save of thee, O king, shall be cast into the den of lions.

9 Now, O king, establish the prohibition, and sign the writing, that it cannot be changed, according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which is not to be repealed.[c]

10 In view of this king Darius signed the writing and the prohibition.

11 Now when Daniel knew that the writing was signed, he went up unto his house, where he had open windows in his upper chamber in the direction of Jerusalem; and three times every day he kneeled upon his knees, and prayed, and offered thanks before his God, as he had been doing before that time.

12 Then came in these men tumultuously, and found Daniel praying and making supplication before his God.

13 Then came they near, and spoke before the king concerning the king's prohibition, Hast thou not signed a prohibition, that every man that will pray (for aught) of any God or man, within thirty days, save of thee, O king, shall be cast into the den of lions? The king answered and said, The thing is certainly so, according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which cannot be repealed.

14 Then answered they and said before the king, That Daniel, who is of the children of the exiles of Judah, hath paid no regard to thee, O king, nor to the prohibition which thou hast signed; but three times every day he offereth up his prayer.

15 Then the king, when he heard this matter, felt very much distressed within himself, and on account of Daniel he sought an excuse[d] to deliver him; and till the going down of the sun he strove hard to rescue him.

16 Then came these men tumultuously unto the king, and said unto the king, Know, O king, that it is the law of the Medes and Persians, That every prohibition and statute which the king hath established is not to be changed.

17 Then gave the king the order, and they brought Daniel, and cast him into the den of lions. The king commenced and said unto Daniel, May thy God whom thou worshippest continually, truly deliver thee.

18 And a stone was brought, and placed upon the mouth of the den; and the king sealed it with his own signet-ring, and with the signet-ring of his lords, that nothing should be changed in the purpose concerning Daniel.

19 Then went the king to his palace, and

[a] In the English version, chapter vi. commences at verse 2.

[b] This is supposed to be Cyaxares II., son of Astyages, king of Media, and maternal uncle to Cyrus, who allowed him the title of his conquest, as long as he lived. passed the night fasting; and no food[a] was brought before him; and his sleep fled from him.

20 Then arose the king by the morning-dawn, as soon as it was light, and went in great haste unto the den of lions.

21 And when he came near to the den, he cried with a mournful voice unto Daniel: the king commenced and said to Daniel, O Daniel, servant of the living God, hath thy God, whom thou worshippest continually, been able to deliver thee from the lions?

22 Then spoke Daniel with the king, O king, live for ever.

23 My God sent his angel, and locked up the mouths of the lions, and they have not hurt me; forasmuch as before him innocency was found in me; and also before thee, O king, had I done nothing injurious.

24 Then was the king exceedingly glad within himself, and concerning Daniel he ordered to bring him up out of the den. So was Daniel brought up out of the den, and no manner of hurt was found upon him, because he had trusted in his God.

25 And the king gave the order, and they brought those men who had accused Daniel treacherously, and they cast into the den of lions them, their children, and their wives; and they had not yet touched the bottom of the den when the lions had the mastery over them, and ground up all their bones.

26 Then wrote king Darius unto all people, nations, and languages, that dwell on all the earth, May your welfare increase.

27 From me is it decreed, That in all the dominion of my kingdom men shall tremble and have fear before the God of Daniel; for he is the living God, and endureth for ever, and it is his kingdom which will not be destroyed, and his dominion will be unto the end (of things).

28 He delivereth and rescueth, and he displayeth signs and wonders in heaven and on earth, he who hath delivered Daniel from the power of the lions.

29 So this Daniel prospered in the reign of Darius, and in the reign of Cyrus the Persian.

CHAPTER VII.

1 ¶ In the first year of Belshazzar the king of Babylon, Daniel saw a dream and the visions of his head while on his couch: afterward he wrote down the dream, relating the principal things.

2 Daniel commenced and said, I saw in my vision by night, and, behold, the four winds of heaven blew fiercely on the great sea.

3 And four great beasts came up from the sea, differing one from another.

4 The first was like a lion, and had eagle's wings: I looked till its wings were plucked out, and it was lifted up from the earth, and was placed upon its feet as a man, and a human heart was given to it.

5 And behold there was another, a second beast, like a bear, and on one side was it placed, with three ribs in its mouth between its teeth: and thus they said unto it, Arise, eat much flesh.

6 After this I looked, and lo there was another, like a leopard; and it had four wings of a bird on its back: the beast had also four heads; and dominion was given unto it.

7 After this I looked in the night visions, and behold there was a fourth beast, dreadful and terrible, and strong exceedingly; and it had great iron teeth: it devoured and ground up, and what was left it stamped with its feet; and it was different from all the beasts that were before it; and it had ten horns.

8 I looked carefully at the horns, and, behold, another little horn came up between them, and three of the first horns were plucked up by the roots before the same; and, behold, there were eyes like the eyes of man in this horn, with a mouth speaking presumptuous things.

9 I was looking until chairs were set down, and an Ancient of days seated himself, whose garment was white as snow, and the hair of whose head was like clean wool; his chair was like flames of fire, and his wheels like fire that burnt;

10 A stream of fire issued and came forth from before him; thousand times thousands ministered unto him, and myriad times myriads stood before him: they sat down to hold judgment, and the books were opened.

11 I looked then, because of the sound of the presumptuous words which the horn had spoken,—I looked till the beast was slain, and its body destroyed, and given over to the burning fire.

[a] Rashi. Sa'adyah, "music."

12 But concerning the rest of the beasts, they had their dominion taken away: yet a longer duration of life was given unto them until the time and period.[a]

13 I looked in the nightly visions, and, behold, with the clouds of heaven came one like a son of man,[b] and he attained as far as the Ancient of days, and they brought him near before him.

14 And there were given him dominion, and dignity, and government, and all people, nations, and languages had to serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom is one which shall never be destroyed.

15 ¶ My spirit was deeply shaken within me, Daniel, in the midst of its tenement,[c] and the visions of my head troubled me.

16 I came near unto one of those that stood by, and asked him something certain concerning all this: and he spoke to me, and made known unto me the interpretation of the things.

17 These great beasts, of which there are four, are four kings, who are to arise on[d] the earth.

18 But the saints of the Most High will obtain the kingdom, and possess the kingdom to eternity, even to all eternity for ever.

19 Then I desired what is certain concerning the fourth beast, which was different from all these others, exceedingly dreadful, whose teeth were of iron, and whose nails of copper; which devoured, ground up, and stamped with its feet what was left;

20 And concerning the ten horns that were in its head, and concerning the other which came up, and before which three fell down,—even concerning that horn which had eyes, and a mouth which spoke presumptuous things, and whose appearance was greater than that of its companions.

21 I had seen how the same horn had made war with the saints, and had prevailed against them:

22 Until the Ancient of days came, and procured justice unto the saints of the Most High; and the time came and the saints took possession of the kingdom.

23 Thus said he, The fourth beast (signifieth that) a fourth kingdom will be upon earth, which is to be different from all kingdoms, and will devour all the earth, and will tread it down, and grind it up.

24 And the ten horns out of this kingdom (signify) that ten kings will arise; and another will rise after them, and he will be different from the first, and three kings will he bring low.

25 And he will speak words against the Most High, and the saints of the Most High will he oppress, and think to change the festivals[e] and the law: and they will be given up into his hand until a time and times and half a time.[f]

26 But they[g] will sit down to hold judgment, and they will take away his dominion, to destroy and to annihilate it unto the end.

27 And the kingdom and the dominion, and the power over the kingdoms under the whole heaven, will be given to the people of the saints of the Most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all governments are to worship and obey him.

28 Thus far is the end of the speech.[h] As for me Daniel, my reflections troubled me greatly, and my colour was changed on me; but I kept the speech in my heart.

CHAPTER VIII.

1 ¶ In the third year of the reign of king Belshazzar a vision appeared unto me, to me Daniel, after that which had appeared unto me at the first.

2 And I saw in the vision—and it came to pass, in my seeing, that I was at Shushan the capital, which is in the province of 'Elam; —and I saw in the vision, as though I was by the river Ulai.

3 And I lifted up my eyes, and saw, and,

[d] Lit. "out of the earth."

[e] Whether the wicked king spoken of be Antiochus, Titus, or another yet to come, there can be no doubt that the interpretation of Rashi is correct, that he would purpose to make them transgress the sabbaths, festivals, and the law; with what success the text teaches us.

[f] Rashi conceives these numbers to be indefinite; but if they refer to Antiochus (Epiphanes), they mean three and a half years, during which it is said he abolished the daily sacrifices.

[g] i. e. Those whose right it is to do so,—God's angels.

[h] i. e. What the angel had told him. Others, "the matter."

behold, there was a ram standing before the river, and he had two horns; and the horns were high; but one was higher than the other, and the higher one came up last.

4 I saw the ram butting westward, and northward, and southward; so that all the beasts could not stand before him, and no one was there to deliver out of his hand: and he did according to his will, and became great.[a]

5 And as I was looking attentively, behold, there came a shaggy he-goat from the west over the face of the whole earth, without touching the ground; and the goat had a sightly large[b] horn between his eyes.

6 And he came as far as the ram that had two horns, that I had seen standing before the river, and ran at him with his furious power.

7 And I saw him coming close unto the ram, and he became bitterly enraged against him, and he struck the ram, and broke his two horns; and there was no power in the ram to stand forward before him: and he cast him down to the ground, and stamped upon him; and there was no one to deliver the ram out of his hand.

8 And the shaggy he-goat became very great; but when he was grown strong, the great horn was broken; and there came up four sightly large ones in its place toward the four winds of heaven.

9 And out of one of them came forth a little horn, which became exceedingly great, toward the south, and toward the east, and toward the glorious land.[c]

10 And it became great, even up to[d] the host of the heavens; and it cast down to the ground some of the host and of the stars, and trod them under foot.

11 Yea, it magnified itself even up to the prince of the host, and by it[e] the continual sacrifice was taken away, and the place of his sanctuary was cast down.

12 And the host is[f] given up together with the continual sacrifice, by reason of transgression: and it casteth down the truth to the ground, and it doth (this), and is prosperous.

13 Then did I hear a certain holy one speaking, and a holy one said unto the unknown one who was speaking, For how long is the vision concerning the continual sacrifice, and the wasting[g] transgression, to give up both the sanctuary and the host to be trodden under foot?

14 And he said unto me, Until two thousand and three hundred evenings and mornings, when the sanctuary shall be justified.[h]

15 And it came to pass, when I, even I Daniel, saw the vision, and sought for understanding, that, behold, there was standing opposite to me something like the appearance of a man.

16 And I heard the voice of a man between (the banks of) the Ulai, and it called, and said, Gabriel, cause this one to understand this appearance.

17 So he came close to where I stood; and when he came, I was terrified, and I fell upon my face; but he said unto me, Mark it well, O son of man; because for the time of the end is the vision.

18 Now as he was speaking with me, I fell down in amazement on my face to the ground; but he touched me, and set me upright where I had been standing.

19 And he said, Behold, I will make known unto thee what is to be at the last end of the indignation; for it is for the appointed time of the end.

20 The ram that thou hast seen, him with the two horns, (signifieth) the kings of Media and Persia.

23 And in the latter time of their kingdom, when the transgressors have filled their measure of guilt,[b] there will arise a king of an impudent face, and understanding deep schemes.

24 And his power will be mighty, but not by his own power;[c] and he will destroy wonderfully, and will prosper while he doth (this); and he will destroy very many and the people of the saints.

25 And through his intelligence, and because he prospereth,[d] is craftiness in his hand; and in his heart will he magnify himself, and in peace will he destroy many: he will also stand up against the Prince of princes; but without a human hand will he be broken.

26 And the appearance of the evening and the morning which was spoken of is true; but do thou keep the vision closed up; for it will come to pass after many days.

27 And I Daniel grieved, and was sick several days: afterward I rose up, and did the king's business; and I was depressed because of the appearance; but no one observed it.[e]

CHAPTER IX.

1 ¶ In the first year of Darius the son of Achashverosh, of the seed of the Medes, who was made king over the kingdom of the Chaldeans,

2 In the first year of his reign, I Daniel searched in the books for understanding concerning the number of the years whereof the word of the LORD had come to Jeremiah the prophet, that he would let pass full seventy years over the ruins of Jerusalem.[f]

3 And I directed my face unto the Lord God, to ask by prayer and supplications, with fasting, and in sackcloth, and ashes.

4 And I prayed unto the LORD my God, and made my confession, and said, O Lord, the great and terrible God, who keepeth the covenant and kindness to those that love him, and to those that keep his commandments:

5 We have sinned, and have committed iniquity, and have done wickedly, and have rebelled, and have departed from thy commandments and from thy ordinances;

6 Nor have we hearkened unto thy servants the prophets, who spoke in thy name to our kings, our princes, and our fathers, and to all the people of the land.

7 Thine, O Lord, is the righteousness, but unto us belongeth the shame of face, as it is this day,—to the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and unto all Israel, those that are near, and those that are far off, through all the countries whither thou hast driven them, because of their trespass which they have trespassed against thee.

8 O Lord, to us belongeth the shame of face, to our kings, to our princes, and to our fathers; because we have sinned against thee.

9 To the LORD our God belong mercies and pardonings; for we have rebelled against him;

10 And we have not obeyed the voice of the LORD our God, to walk in his laws, which he set before us through means of his servants the prophets.

11 Yea, all Israel have transgressed thy law, and have departed so as not to obey thy voice: therefore was poured out over us the curse, with the oath that is written in the law of Moses the servant of God; because we had sinned against him.

12 And he hath accomplished his words, which he had spoken concerning us, and concerning our judges that judged us, by bringing upon us a great evil, which was never done under the whole heaven as it hath been done in Jerusalem.

13 As it is written in the law of Moses; all this evil came over us: yet offered we not any entreaty before the LORD our God, to return from our iniquities, and to become intelligent in thy truth.

14 Therefore did the LORD watch[g] over the evil, and he brought it upon us; for the LORD our God is righteous because of all his deeds which he hath done; but we have not obeyed his voice.

15 And now, O Lord our God, who hast brought forth thy people out of the land of Egypt with a strong hand, and hast made thyself a (great) name, as it is this day: we have sinned, we have done wickedly.

16 O Lord, according to all thy righteousness, I beseech thee, let thy anger and thy fury be turned away from thy city Jerusalem, thy holy mountain; because through our sins, and through the iniquities of our fathers, Jerusalem and thy people are become a reproach to all who are round[a] about us.

17 And now listen, O our God, to the prayer of thy servant, and to his supplications, and cause thy face to shine upon thy sanctuary which is desolate, for the sake[b] of the Lord.

18 Incline, O my God, thy ear, and hear; open thy eyes, and look on our desolations, and the city whereupon thy name is called; for not (relying) on our acts of righteousness do we present humbly our supplications before thee, but (relying) on thy great mercies.

19 O Lord, hear; O Lord, forgive; O Lord, hearken and do it; delay it not; for thy own sake, O my God; for thy name is called upon[c] thy city and upon thy people.

20 And while I was yet speaking, and praying, and confessing my sin and the sin of my people Israel, and presenting my supplication humbly before the LORD my God because of the holy mountain of my God:

21 Yea, while I was yet speaking in prayer, the man Gabriel, whom I had seen in the vision at the beginning, came, flying[d] swiftly, near me about the time of the evening oblation.

22 And he gave me understanding, and spoke with me, and said, O Daniel, now am I come forth to make the intelligent with understanding.

23 At the begining of thy supplications the word went forth, and I am come to tell it; for thou art greatly beloved: therefore understand the matter, and have understanding of the appearance.

24 Seventy weeks are determined upon thy people and upon thy holy city, to close up[e] the transgression, and to make[f] an end of sins, and to atone for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal up[g] the vision and prophecy, and to anoint the most holy thing.

25 Know therefore and comprehend, that from the going forth of the word to restore and to build Jerusalem unto the anointed[h] the prince will be seven weeks: and during sixty and two weeks will it be again built with streets and ditches (around it), even in the pressure of the times.

26 And after the sixty and two weeks will an anointed[i] one be cut off without a successor to follow him: and the city and the sanctuary will the people of the prince that is coming destroy; but his end will come in a violent overthrow; but until the end of the war devastations are decreed (against it).[k]

27 And he will make a strong covenant

[g] Meaning, that prophecy and visions should be confirmed through the glorious fulfilment. Rashi conceives that the angel tells Daniel that after the return of Israel to Palestine there should be another destruction by Titus, the captivity subsequent to which would be inflicted to remove, through sufferings, the sins of Israel, after which the promised glory should be fully accomplished. Ancient Jewish writers thought that the second temple stood 420 years, which with the 70 years of the Babylonian captivity, make 490. But the moderns suggest, and among them Dr. Philippson, that the temple stood 600 years, wherefore the number 490 lacks 180 for their completion to the destruction by Titus. So also must this chronology destroy the assumption that it terminates with the vulgar era, since there is no conceivable period from which the 70 weeks are to be computed to deduct them from 530 years which elapsed from the permission of Cyrus to restore Jerusalem till then. Dr. Philippson accordingly thinks the period terminates with the downfall of Antiochus. But we cannot in this note go over all his calculations.

[h] Rashi and other commentators refer this to Cyrus, who after seven year-weeks and three years permitted Jerusalem to be built up, which afterward existed under all sorts of pressure from without, Persians, Greeks, and Romans.

[i] After Rashi is this anointed Agrippa the last of the Herodian princes; Philippson, however, Seleucus Philopator, who was poisoned by Antiochus, and who then usurped his goverment.

[k] Rashi, explaining, "Jerusalem shall experience a de-with the many for one week; and in the half of the week will he cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease, and this because of the prevalence[a] of the abominations which bringeth devastation, and until destruction and what is decreed shall be poured out upon the waster.

CHAPTER X.

1 ¶ In the third[b] year of Cyrus the king of Persia a word was revealed unto Daniel, whose name was called Belteshazzar; and the word is the truth, but the time appointed is long off:[c] and he[d] noted the word, and took notice of it in the appearance.

2 In those days I Daniel was mourning three full weeks.

3 Costly food did I not eat, and flesh and wine came not in my mouth, nor did I at all anoint myself, till three whole weeks were elapsed.

4 ¶ And on the four and twentieth day of the first month, while I was by the side of the great river, which is Chiddekel,

5 I lifted up my eyes, and looked, and behold there was a certain man clothed in linen, and his loins were girded with fine gold of Uphaz;[e]

6 And his body also was like the chrysolite, and his face, like the appearance of lightning, and his eyes were like torches of fire, and his arms and his feet, like the colour of polished copper, and the sound of his words was like the noise of a multitude.

7 And I Daniel saw alone this appearance; but the men that were with me did not see the appearance: nevertheless a great terror fell upon them, so that they fled to hide themselves.

8 And I was left by myself alone, and I saw this great appearance, and there remained no strength in me; and my healthy colour was changed on me into corruption, and I retained no strength.

9 Then heard I the sound of his words; and as I heard the sound of his words, I sank in amazement on my face, with my face toward the ground.

10 And, behold, a hand touched me, and it moved me upon my knees and the palms of my hands.

11 And he said unto me, O Daniel, the man greatly beloved, mark well the words that I speak unto thee, and stand on thy standing-place; for now have I been sent unto thee. And when he had spoken this word unto me, I stood up trembling.

12 And he said unto me, Fear not, Daniel, for from the first day that thou didst set thy heart to obtain understanding, and to fast before thy God, were thy words heard: and I am come in consequence of thy words.

13 But the prince of the kingdom of Persia stood up against me one and twenty days: but, lo, Michaël, one of the chief princes, came to help me; and I obtained the victory there with the kings of Persia.

14 Now am I come to make thee understand what is to befall thy people in the latter days; for the vision is yet for the (coming) days.

15 And when he spoke unto me such words, I directed my face toward the ground, and I became dumb.

16 And, behold, something like the form of the sons of men touched my lips; and I opened my mouth, and I spoke, and said unto him that stood opposite to me, O my lord, because of the appearance my pains suddenly overcame me, and I have retained no strength.

17 And how shall the servant of this my lord be able to speak with this my lord? And as for me, from that moment there remained no strength in me, and no breath was left in me.

18 Then there touched me again something like the appearance of a man, and he strengthened me;

cree of desolation." Fürst, "and till the end there is decreed war with desolation." Philippson, "and till the end there will be war, misery and wastings."

[a] Rashi explains כנף "wing" with "what is high like the wing of a bird," hence the prevalence or victory of idolatry. Philippson takes משכם as the nominative to שבית "the destroyer will cause to cease—because of the least touch of idol abominations," referring to the defiling of the temple by the idolatrous sacrifices of Antiochus.

[b] Rashi remarks that this was the year when the enemies of Judah induced the king to stop the building of the temple, (Ezra iv.;) hence Daniel's grief.

[c] Rashi. Others, "it concerneth great trouble."

[d] Rashi, "to understand the word and to note it." Philippson, "understand thou the word and understand it well in the appearance," as an address to the reader.

[e] Rashi, "with a belt set with jewels." Fürst, "purified gold."

[f] Philippson, as in Gen. xlix. 4 Others, "I was left behind."

19 And he said, Fear not, O man greatly beloved: peace be unto thee, be strong, yea, be strong. And when he spoke with me, I felt myself strengthened, and said, Let my lord speak; for thou hast strengthened me.

20 Then said he, Knowest thou wherefore I am come unto thee? and now will I return to fight with the prince of Persia; and as I am going forth, lo, the prince of Javan is coming.

21 Nevertheless will I tell thee what is noted down in the writing of truth:—and there is none that holdeth with me (to assist me) against those, except Michaël your prince.

CHAPTER XI.

1 ¶ And I in the first year of Darius the Mede had my station to assist and to protect him.

2 And now will I tell thee the truth. Behold, there will stand up yet three kings of Persia; and the fourth will obtain far greater riches than all (these); and when he is strong through his riches will he stir up all, (namely,)[a] the kingdom of Javan.[b]

3 And then will stand up a mighty king, who will rule with great dominion, and do according to his pleasure.

4 And when he shall have stood, his kingdom will be broken, and will be divided toward the four winds of the heavens, and not to his posterity, nor according to his dominion which he ruled; for his kingdom will be torn asunder, even for others beside those.

5 And the king of the south will become strong, yea, he who is one of his princes; but (another) will become strong against him, and will rule: a great dominion will his dominion be.

6 But at the end of (some) years will they associate themselves together; and the daughter of the king of the south[c] will come to the king of the north to make a settlement of difficulties; but she will not retain the power of the support;[d] neither will he stand, nor his support; but she will be given up, with those that had brought her, and he that begat her, and he that strengthened[e] her in those times.

7 But there will stand up a sprout of her roots in his place, and he will come to the army, and will enter into the stronghold of the king of the north, and will deal with them, and prevail;

8 And also their gods with their molten images,[f] with their precious vessels of silver and of gold, will he carry into captivity to Egypt; and he will stand off[g] some years from the king of the north.

9 But this one will then enter the kingdom of the king of the south, and then return into his own land.

10 But his sons will commence a war, and assemble a multitude of great armies; and one will certainly enter, and overflow, and pass along: then will he return, and make war again, even to his strong-hold.

11 And the king of the south will be moved with bitter wrath, and go forth and fight with him, even with the king of the north: and he will set forth a great multitude; but the multitude (of the other) will be given up into his hand.

12 And the multitude will be lifted up,[h] and his heart will become proud; and he will cast down myriads; but he will not be strengthened by it.

13 And the king of the north will return, and set forth a multitude greater than the former; and at the end of the times, of years, will he certainly come with a great army and with much riches.

14 And in those times many will stand up against the king of the south: also the rebellious[i] sons of thy people will lift themselves up to establish the vision; but they will stumble.

15 And the king of the north will come, and cast up a mound, and capture the city

[a] Sa'adyah. Others, "he will stir up all against," &c.

[b] JAVAN, Greece and its colonies. Alexander is described in the sequel.

[c] South and north, signify Egypt and Syria.

[d] Lit. "arm," the symbol of strength.

[e] Philippson, "had taken her" (as wife). Commentators agree that these kings were Ptolemy Philadelphus of Egypt, and Antiochus Theos of Syria.

[f] Rashi, "princes."

[g] i. e. Be at peace with him. Sa'adyah, "will continue more years than," &c.

[h] Rashi. Aben Ezra, "will be carried away," i. e. the defeated Syrian army.

[i] Sa'adyah, explaining, "who have rebelled against God." Many Jews joined Antiochus as though thus they could bring about the fulfilment of the good prophecies defended by fortifications: and the arms of the south will not withstand, and as regardeth his chosen people, there will be no power (in them) to withstand.

16 But he that cometh against them will do according to his pleasure, and none will stand before him; and he will place himself in the glorious land, which will be altogether[a] in his hand.

17 He will also direct his face to enter with the strength of his whole kingdom, having professions of peace[b] with him; and thus will he do it: and he will give him the daughter of his wife to destroy it;[c] but it will not stand, and it will not remain his.

18 And he will direct his face unto the isles, and capture many; but a chieftain will cause to cease his reproach against him; without his giving back to him his[d] own reproach.

19 Then will he direct his face toward the strong-holds of his own land; but he will stumble and fall, and will no more be found.

20 And there will stand up in his place one who will cause the exactor (of taxes) to pass[e] through the glorious (land) of the kingdom; but within a few days will he be broken, but not in anger, nor in battle.

21 And there will stand up in his place a despicable[f] person, to whom they assigned not the honour of the kingdom; but he will come in quietly, and lay hold of the kingdom by flatteries.

22 And the powers of the overflow will be swept away from before him, and will be broken: yea, so also the prince in covenant (with him).

23 And from the time of his associating with him will he deal deceitfully; and he will come up, and obtain the victory with a small number of people.

24 In quiet and into the fattest portion of the province will he enter; and he will do what his fathers have not done, nor his fathers' fathers: the prey, and spoil, and riches will he divide freely to them, and against the strong-holds will he devise his plans, but only till a certain time.

25 And he will then stir up his power and his courage[g] against the king of the south with a great army: and the king of the south will prepare himself for the war with an exceedingly great and mighty army; but he will not stand; for they will devise (evil) plans against him.

26 Yea, they that eat of his food will bring his downfall,[h] and the army of the other will overflow; and many will fall down slain.

27 And as for both these kings, their heart is bent on mischief, and at one table will they speak lies; but it shall not prosper; for the end is yet for the time appointed.

28 Then will he return into his land with great riches, and his heart will be against the holy covenant: and he will do it, and return to his own land.

29 At the time appointed will he return, and enter into the south; but not as in the former will it be in the latter time.

30 For there will come against him the ships of Kittim; and he will become faint-hearted, and return, and will rage against the holy covenant; and he will do it: and he will return, and have an understanding with those that forsake the holy covenant.

31 And army divisions will proceed from him, and they will defile the sanctuary, the fortress, and remove the continual sacrifice, and they will set up the desolating abomination.

32 And such as act wickedly against the covenant will he corrupt by flatteries; but the people that do know their God will be strong, and deal (valiantly).[i]

33 And the intelligent among the people will impart understanding to many: yet they will stumble through the sword, and through flame, through captivity, and through being plundered for some time.

34 But in their stumbling will they be aided with a little help; but many will join

[c] i. e. The kingdom of the other; but he will have no success in this scheme.

[d] Fürst, "that he will not repeat to him this reproach."

[e] Rashi, "who will drive out," &c., alluding to the Assyrian monarchs, and the end of the family wars by which they were overthrown.

[f] Antiochus Epiphanes, called also Epimanes, or madman, for his despicable conduct.

[i] Rashi, "will lay hold of the fear of God, and act according to the law."

themselves to them with deceptive flatteries.

35 And some of the intelligent will stumble, to make a purification among them, and to select and to cleanse[a] them, until the time of the end; because it is yet for the time appointed.

36 And the king will do according to his pleasure; and he will exalt and magnify himself above every god, and against the God of gods will he speak incredible things, and he will prosper till the indignation be at an end; for that which is determined will be accomplished.[b]

37 And to the gods of his fathers will he pay no regard; and to the desire of women,[c] or to any god whatever will he not pay any regard; for above all will he magnify himself.

38 But in his place will he pay honour to the god of the fortresses;[d] and to a god whom his fathers knew not will he pay honour with gold, and silver, and with precious stones, and costly things.

39 This will he do for the very strong fortresses together with the strange god: whoever will acknowledge him, him will he give much honour; and he will cause such to rule over many, and he will divide out the land for a price.

40 And at the time of the end will the king of the south push against him; and the king of the north will come against him like a storm-wind, with chariots, and with horsemen, and with many ships; and he will enter into some countries, and will overflow and pass along.

41 And he will enter into the glorious land, and much will be overthrown; but these will escape out of his hand, even Edom, and Moäb, and the first portion of the children of 'Ammon.

42 And he will stretch forth his hand against some countries, and the land of Egypt will not escape.

43 And he will have control over the treasures of gold and of silver, and over all the costly things of Egypt: and the Libyans and the Ethiopians will follow at his steps.

44 But reports out of the east and out of the north will terrify him; and he will go forth with great fury to destroy, and to exterminate many.

45 And he will pitch the tents[e] of his palace between seas and the glorious holy mountain; and he will come to his end, without one to help him.

CHAPTER XII.

1 And at that time will Michaël, the great prince who standeth for the children of thy people, stand forth; and there will be a time of distress, such as hath never been since the existence of any nation, until that same time; and at that time shall thy people be delivered, every one that shall be found written in the book.

2 And many of those that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to disgrace and everlasting abhorrence.

3 And the intelligent shall shine brilliantly like the brilliance of the expanse (of the sky); and they that bring many to righteousness shall be like the stars, for ever and ever.

4 ¶ But thou, O Daniel, close up the words, and seal the book, until the time of the end: many will roam about,[f] yet shall knowledge be increased.

5 Then I Daniel looked, and behold, there were two others standing, the one on this side of the bank of the stream, and the other on that side of the bank of the stream.

6 And one said to the man clothed in linen, who was above the waters of the stream, How long shall it be to the end of these wonders?

7 Then heard I the man clothed in linen, who was above the waters of the stream; and he lifted up his right hand and his left hand unto the heavens, and swore by the

[a] Lit. "make white," wash away impurities.

[b] Sa'adyah, "and God accomplish the evil determined on (against the enemies of Israel.")

[c] This is explained by modern commentators to be a female deity worshipped at Elymais, whose temple Antiochus endeavoured to plunder. Rashi explains, in part allegorically, "The God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob;—the congregation of Israel, called, 'the beautiful of women.'" &c.

[d] This is said to refer to the Capitolian idol, to which Antiochus commenced a temple in Antiochia; but which he did not complete.

[e] Meaning, the royal tent of state which oriental rulers carried with them in their campaigns.

[f] As in 'Amos viii. 12; they will seek, perhaps, and not find divine knowledge; still will this gradually increase till it conquers the world. (See Isa. xi. 9, &c.)

Everliving One that after a time, times, and a half, and when there shall be an end to the crushing of the power of the holy people, all these things shall be ended.

8 And I heard indeed, but I understood it not: then said I, O my lord, what shall be the end[a] of these things?

9 And he said, Go (thy way), Daniel; for the words are closed up and sealed till the time of the end.

10 Many shall be selected and cleansed, and purified; but the wicked will deal wickedly, and none of the wicked will understand; but the intelligent will understand.

11 And from the time that the continual sacrifice will be removed, even to set up the desolating abomination, there will be a thousand two hundred and ninety days.[b]

12 Happy is he that waiteth, and attaineth to the thousand three hundred and five and thirty days.

13 But thou, go (thy way) toward the end; and thou shalt rest, and arise again for thy lot at the end of the days.

THE BOOK OF EZRA,

ספר עזרא.

CHAPTER I.

1 ¶ And in the first year of Cyrus the king of Persia, at the time[c] the word of the Lord by the mouth of Jeremiah was accomplished, the Lord awakened the spirit of Cyrus the king of Persia; and he caused a proclamation to be made throughout all his kingdom, and also by means of writing, saying,

2 Thus hath said Cyrus the king of Persia, All the kingdoms of the earth hath the Lord the God of heaven given unto me; and he hath directed me to build for him a house at Jerusalem, which is in Judah.

3 Whoever among you that is of all his people, may his God be with him, and let him go up to Jerusalem, which is in Judah, and build the house of the Lord the God of Israel, he is the God who[d] is in Jerusalem.

4 And whosoever remaineth[e] out of any place where he hath sojourned, him shall the men of his place assist with silver, and with gold, and with goods, and with beasts, beside the freewill offering for the house of God which is in Jerusalem.

5 Then rose up the chiefs of the divisions of Judah and Benjamin, and the priests, and the Levites, with all those whose spirit God had awakened, to go up to build the house of the Lord which is in Jerusalem.

6 And all those that were round about them supplied them[f] with vessels of silver, with gold, with goods, and with beasts, and with precious things, beside all that was willingly offered.

7 ¶ Also king Cyrus brought forth the vessels of the house of the Lord, which Nebuchadnezzar had brought away out of Jerusalem, and had placed in the house of his god:

8 Even these did Cyrus the king of Persia bring forth through the hand of Mithredath the treasurer, and counted them out unto Sheshbazzar the prince for Judah.

9 And this is their number: Thirty chargers[g] of gold, a thousand chargers of silver, nine and twenty knives,

[a] Philippson, "consequence," or "result."

[b] This verse is supposed to refer to the time during which the temple was desecrated by Antiochus, till its re-dedication, and the next verse to the death of Antiochus. Though the chronologists are not very clear on the last point.

[c] Rashi. Others, "that the word of the Lord by the mouth of Jeremiah might be fulfilled."

[d] Aben Ezra, "which," referring to "house."

[e] Rashi and Aben Ezra explains, "out of poverty."

[f] Lit. "strengthened (them) by their hands."

[g] i. e. Basins, to hold the blood of sacrifices.

10 Thirty cups of gold, silver cups of a second degree four hundred and ten, other vessels a thousand.

11 All the vessels of gold and of silver were five thousand and four hundred. All these did Sheshbazzar[a] bring up with the exiles that were brought up from Babylon unto Jerusalem.

CHAPTER II.

1 ¶ Now these are the children of the province who went up out of the captivity of the exiles, whom, Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon had carried away into exile unto Babylon, and who returned unto Jerusalem and Judah, every one unto his city;

2 Who came with Zerubbabel, Jeshua', Nehemiah, Serayah, Re'elayah, Mordecai, Bilshan, Misspar, Bigvai, Rechum, Ba'anah. The number of the men of the people of Israel was:[b]

3 The children of Par'osh, two thousand one hundred seventy and two.

4 The children of Shephatyah, three hundred seventy and two.

5 The children of Arach, seven hundred seventy and five.

6 The children of Pachath-moäb, of the children of Jeshua' and Joäb, two thousand eight hundred and twelve.

7 The children of 'Elam, one thousand two hundred fifty and four.

8 The children of Zatthu, nine hundred and forty and five.

9 The children of Zaccai, seven hundred and sixty.

10 The children of Bani, six hundred forty and two.

11 The children of Bebai, six hundred twenty and three.

12 The children of 'Azgad, one thousand two hundred twenty and two.

13 The children of Adonikam, six hundred sixty and six.

14 The children of Bigvai, two thousand fifty and six.

15 The children of 'Adin, four hundred fifty and four.

16 The children of Ater of Hezekiah, ninety and eight.

17 The children of Bezai, three hundred twenty and three.

18 The children of Jorah, one hundred and twelve.

19 The children of Chashum, two hundred twenty and three.

20 The children of Gibbar, ninety and five.

21 The people[c] of Beth-lechem, one hundred twenty and three.

22 The men of Netophah, fifty and six.

23 The men of 'Anathoth, one hundred twenty and eight.

24 The people of 'Azmaveth, forty and two.

25 The people of Kiryath-'arim, Kephirah, and Beëroth, seven hundred and forty and three.

26 The people of Ramah and Geba', six hundred twenty and one.

27 The men of Michmass, one hundred twenty and two.

28 The men of Beth-el and 'Ai, two hundred twenty and three.

29 The people of Nebo, fifty and two.

30 The children of Magbish, one hundred fifty and six.

31 The children of the other 'Elam, one thousand two hundred fifty and four.

32 The children of Charim, three hundred and twenty.

33 The people of Lod, Chadid, and Ono, seven hundred twenty and five.

34 The people of Jericho, three hundred forty and five.

35 The people of Senaäh, three thousand and six hundred and thirty.

36 The priests were: The children of Jeda'yah, of the house of Jeshua', nine hundred seventy and three.

37 The children of Immer, one thousand fifty and two.

[a] Aben Ezra supposes this to be Zerubbabel's name in Chaldean.

[b] Philippson observes that Nehemiah (Heb. Nechemyah,) and Mordecai were evidently not the two celebrated characters. Also that there is a discrepancy between the names here given and in Nehemiah vii.; as also in the numbers, which here are 29,818, there 31,089, when added together, while the total number is given as 42,360. There must therefore be some omissions in the lists, and perhaps some minor families have been left out.

[c] It will be observed that from this verse to 34 the towns are mostly mentioned instead of the parents; therefore we have rendered בני with "people" instead of children.

38 The children of Pashchur, one thousand two hundred forty and seven.

39 The children of Charim, one thousand and seventeen.

40 The Levites were: The children of Jeshua' and Kadmiël, of the children of Hodavyah, seventy and four.

41 The singers were: The children of Asaph, one hundred twenty and eight.

42 The children of the gate-keepers were: The children of Shallum, the children of Ater, the children of Talmon, the children of 'Akkub, the children of Chatita, the children of Shobai, in all one hundred thirty and nine.

43 The temple-servants[a] were: The children of Zicha, the children of Chassupha, the children of Tabba'oth,

44 The children of Keross, the children of Si'aha, the children of Padon,

45 The children of Lebanah, the children of Chagabah, the children of 'Akkub, 46 The children of Chagab, the children of Shalmai, the children of Chanan,

47 The children of Giddel, the children of Gachar, the children of Reäyah,

48 The children of Rezin, the children of Nekoda, the children of Gazzam, 49 The children of 'Uzza, the children of Paseäch, the children of Bessai,

50 The children of Assnah, the children of Me'unim, the children of Nephussim,

51 The children of Bakbuk, the children of Chakupha, the children of Charchur,

52 The children of Bazluth, the children of Mechida, the children of Charsha,

53 The children of Barkoss, the children of Sissera, the children of Thamach, 54 The children of Neziach, the children of Chatipha.

55 The children of Solomon's servants were: The children of Sotai, the children of Sophereth, the children of Peruda.

58 All the temple-servants, and the children of Solomon's servants, were three hundred and ninety and two.

59 ¶ And these are those who went up from Thel-melach, Thel-charsha, Kerub, Addan, and Immer; but they could not tell their family division, and their descent, whether they were of Israel:

60 The children of Delayah, the children of Tobiyah, the children of Nekoda, six hundred fifty and two.

61 And of the children of the priests: The children of Chabayah, the children of Hakkoz, the children of Barzillai, who had taken a wife from the daughters of Barzillai the Gil'adite, and was called after their name.

62 These sought for their family-registers, but they were not found: wherefore they were excluded, as unfit, from the priesthood.

63 And the Thirshatha[b] said unto them, that they should not eat of the most holy things, till there should stand up a priest with the Urim and Thummim.

64 The whole congregation together was forty and two thousand three hundred and sixty.[c]

65 Besides their men-servants and their maid-servants, of whom there were seven thousand three hundred thirty and seven: they had also two hundred singing men and singing women.

66 Their horses were seven hundred thirty and six; their mules, two hundred forty and five;

67 Their camels, four hundred thirty and five; their asses, six thousand seven hundred and twenty.

68 ¶ And some of the chiefs of the divisions, when they came to the house of the LORD which is at Jerusalem, offered freewill gifts for the house of God to set it up in its place:

69 After their ability they gave unto the treasure for the work sixty and one thousand drachms[d] of gold, and five thousand manehs of silver, and one hundred coats for the priests.

70 ¶ And the priests, and the Levites,

[a] Heb Nethinim.

[b] This evidently Persian word is said to mean "ruler," or "governor," from torsh, "the strong." Some suppose it to be Nehemiah; but was more probably Zerubbabel.

[c] Philippson, deeming the men alone enumerated, supposes the whole to amount to about 200,000 souls.

[d] The Persian Darike, from Dara and Kaman, "the king's bow," either of gold or silver. Heb. Darkemon.

and some of the people, and the singers, and the gate-keepers, and the temple-servants, dwelt in their cities, and all Israel in their cities.

CHAPTER III.

1 And when the seventh month drew near, and the children of Israel were in the cities, the people gathered themselves together as one man to Jerusalem.

2 Then arose Jeshua' the son of Jozadak, and his brethren the priests, and Zerubbabel the son of Sheältiël, and his brethren, and they built the altar of the God of Israel, to offer thereon burnt-offerings, as it is written in the law of Moses the man of God.

3 And they erected the altar upon its foundations; for there was fear[a] upon them because of the people of these countries; and they offered thereon burnt-offerings unto the LORD, burnt-offerings at morning and at evening.

4 And they celebrated the feast of tabernacles, as it is written, and (offered) the daily burnt-offerings by number, according to the prescribed manner, the offering of every day on its day;

5 And afterward the continual burnt-offering, and that for the new moons, and for all the feasts of the LORD that are hallowed, and that of every one who willingly offered a free-will offering unto the LORD.

6 From the first day of the seventh month began they to offer burnt-offerings unto the LORD: although the foundation of the temple of the LORD had not yet been laid.

7 Then did they give money unto the masons, and to the carpenters; and food, and drink, and oil, unto the Zidonians and Tyrians, to bring cedar-trees from the Lebanon by sea to Joppa,[b] according to the permission of Cyrus the king of Persia for them.

8 ¶ And in the second year of their coming unto the house of God at Jerusalem, in the second month, did Zerubbabel the son of Sheältiël, and Jeshua' the son of Jozadak, and the remainder of their brethren the priests and the Levites, and all they that were come out of the captivity unto Jerusalem make a beginning; and they appointed the Levites, from twenty years old and upward, to superintend[c] the work of the house of the LORD.

9 Then stood forward Jeshua' with his sons and his brethren, Kadmiël and his sons, the sons of Judah, as one man, to superintend the workmen in the house of God; (also) the sons of Chenadad, their sons and their brethren the Levites.

10 And when the builders laid the foundation of the temple of the LORD, they placed the priests in their apparel with trumpets, and the Levites the sons of Assaph with cymbals, to praise the LORD, after the manner of David the king of Israel.

11 And they sang responsively in praise and thanksgiving unto the LORD; because he is good, for unto everlasting endureth his kindness toward Israel. And all the people shouted with a great shout, while praising the LORD; because the foundation of the house of the LORD had been laid.

12 But many of the priests and Levites and chiefs of the divisions, the aged, who had seen the first house, when the foundation of this house was laid before their eyes, wept with a loud voice, while many, shouting for joy, raised aloud their voice:

13 So that the people could not distinguish the noise of the shout of joy from the noise of the weeping of the people; for the people shouted with a loud shout, and the noise was heard ever so far off.

CHAPTER IV.

1 ¶ Now when the adversaries of Judah and Benjamin heard that the children of the exile were building the temple unto the LORD the God of Israel:

2 Then came they near to Zerubbabel, and to the chiefs of the divisions, and said unto them, Let us build with you; for like you will we seek your God; and unto him[d] do we sacrifice since the days of Essar-chaddon the king of Asshur, who hath brought us up hither.

3 But Zerubbabel, and Jeshua', and the rest of the chiefs of the divisions of Israel,

[a] Rashi explains, that they built the altar before the temple, so that the non-Israelites should have no cause to calumniate them, as their whole intention was evidently merely to restore the worship.

[b] Heb. Yapho.

[c] Rashi, as in Psalm, לכוננה "to chaunt at," &c.

[d] So the Kri; the Ketib אלא "and not" would require "for we do not sacrifice."

said unto them, It is not obligatory on you and on us to build a house unto our God; but we ourselves together must build unto the LORD the God of Israel, as king Cyrus the king of Persia hath commanded us.

4 Then did the people of the land weaken the hands of the people of Judah, and frightened them off from building;

5 And they hired against them counsellors, to frustrate their purpose, all the days of Cyrus the king of Persia, and even until the reign of Darius the king of Persia.

6 ¶ And in the reign of Achashverosh,[a] in the beginning of his reign, they wrote an accusation against the inhabitants of Judah and Jerusalem.

7 ¶ And in the days of Artaxerxes wrote Bishlam, Mithredath, Tabeël, and the rest of their companions, unto Artaxerxes the king of Persia: and the writing of the letter was written in Aramic, and interpreted in Aramic.

8 ¶ Rechum the counsellor and Shimshai the scribe wrote a certain letter against Jerusalem to Artaxerxes the king, as followeth:

9 Then (wrote) Rechum the counsellor, and Shimshai the scribe, and the rest of their companions, from Din, and Apharsathach, Tarpel, Apharass, Erech, Babylon, Shushan, Dehav, and 'Elam,

10 And the rest of the nations whom the great and honoured Assnapper had brought into exile, and settled in the cities of Samaria, and the rest that are on this side the river, and so forth.[b]

11 ¶ This is the copy of the letter which they sent unto him, even unto king Artaxerxes: Thy servants the men on this side the river, and so forth.

12 ¶ Be it made known unto the king, that the Jews who removed away from thee are come up to us unto Jerusalem: they are building the rebellious and the bad city, and are completing the walls, and are joining together the foundations.

13 Be it now known unto the king, that, if this city be rebuilt, and the walls be completed, they will not give tax, tribute, and toll, and the royal revenues will suffer damage.

14 Now because we eat the salt[c] of the palace, and it is not proper for us to see the king's dishonour, therefore have we sent and let the king know this:

15 That search may be made in the book of the memorable events of thy fathers, and thou wilt find in the book of the memorable events, and know that this city is a rebellious city, and hurtful unto kings and provinces, and that they have practised sedition within the same from the most ancient time; for which cause this city was destroyed.

16 We let the king know that, if this city be rebuilt, and its walls be completed, by this means thou wilt have no more any portion on this side of the river.

17 ¶ Then sent the king a reply unto Rechum the counsellor, and to Shimshai the scribe, and to the rest of their companions that dwell in Samaria, and unto the rest of those beyond the river, Peace,[d] and so forth.

18 The letter which ye have sent unto us hath been plainly read before me.

19 And an order was given by me, and search was made, and it was found that this city from the most ancient time hath lifted itself up against kings, and that rebellion and sedition have been practised therein.

20 And that mighty kings have been over Jerusalem, who ruled over all the countries beyond the river; and that tax, tribute, and toll was given unto them.

21 Now give ye the order to stop these men, and this city shall not be built, until the order be given from me.

22 Take heed now that ye commit no error in this: that not any injury may grow (out of this) to the damage of the kings.

23 ¶ Thereupon so soon as the copy of king Artaxerxes' letter was read before Rechum, and Shimshai the scribe, and their companions, they did go up in haste to Jerusalem unto the Jews, and stopped them by force and power.

24 Then was stopped the work of the house of God which is at Jerusalem, and it remained interrupted until the second year of the reign of Darius the king of Persia.

CHAPTER V.

1 ¶ Then prophesied Haggai the prophet, and Zechariah the son[a] of 'Iddo, the prophets, unto the Jews that were in Judah and Jerusalem, in the name of the God of Israel, concerning them.

2 Then rose up Zerubbabel the son of Sheâlthiël, and Jeshua' the son of Jozadak, and began to build the house of God which is in Jerusalem; and with them were the prophets of God helping them.

3 At the same time came to them Thathnai, the governor on this side of the river, and Shethar-bozenai, and their companions, and thus they said unto them, "Who hath given you an order to build this house, and to complete these walls?"

4 Then said we unto them after this manner, what are the names of the men that erect this building.[b]

5 But the eye of their God was upon the elders of the Jews, so that they did not stop them, till the matter came to Darius; and they then returned an answer by letter concerning this.

6 A copy of the letter which Thathnai, the governor on this side of the river, and Shethar-bozenai, and his companions, the Apharsachites, who were on this side of the river, sent unto king Darius.

7 They sent a report unto him, and thus was it written therein: Unto king Darius be all peace.

8 Be it known unto the king, that we went into the province of Judah, to the house of the great God, which they are building with heavy stones, and timber is laid in the walls, and this work is urged with speed, and it prospereth in their hands.

9 Then asked we these elders, and after this manner said we unto them, Who hath given you the order to build this house, and to complete these walls?

10 Also their names did we ask of them, to let thee know them, that we might write down the names of the men that are at their head.

11 ¶ And in this manner did they return us answer, saying, We are the servants of the God of heaven and earth, and we build the house that was built before this many years, and a great king of Israel built and completed it.

12 But since our fathers had provoked the God of heaven unto wrath, he gave them up into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, the Chaldean, and he destroyed this house, and carried the people as exiles into Babylon.

13 However, in the first year of Cyrus the king of Babylon, king Cyrus gave an order to build this house of God.

14 And also the vessels of gold and silver of the house of God, which Nebuchadnezzar had taken out of the temple that was in Jerusalem, and brought into the temple of Babylon, these did king Cyrus take out of the temple of Babylon, and gave them unto one, Sheshbazzar by name, whom he had appointed as governor;

15 And he said unto him, Take these vessels, go, carry them into the temple which is in Jerusalem, and let the house of God be built on its site.

16 ¶ Then came this same Sheshbazzar, (and) laid the foundation of the house of God which is in Jerusalem; and from that time even until now they have been building it, but it is not yet finished.

17 And now, if it seem good to the king, let search be made in the king's treasure-house, which is there at Babylon, whether it be so, that an order was given by king Cyrus to build this house of God at Jerusalem, and let the king send to us his pleasure concerning this matter.

CHAPTER VI.

1 ¶ Then gave king Darius an order, that they should make search in the house of the books, where the treasures were laid up there in Babylon.

2 And there was found at Achmetha,[c] in the castle that is in the province of Media, a roll, and therein was thus written: A record.[a]

3 ¶ In the first year of king Cyrus, king Cyrus gave an order concerning the house of God at Jerusalem, Let the house be built, the place where they used to offer sacrifices, and let its foundations be strongly laid: its height shall be sixty cubits, its breadth sixty cubits,

4 With three rows of heavy stones, and a row of new timber; and let the expenses be given out of the king's house.

5 And also let the golden and silver vessels of the house of God, which Nebuchadnezzar took away out of the temple which is in Jerusalem, and brought unto Babylon, be restored, and brought back unto the temple which is in Jerusalem, every one to its place, and let them be put in the house of God.

6 ¶ Now Thathnai, governor beyond the river, Shethar-bozenai, and your companions the Apharsachites, who are beyond the river, be ye far from there:

7 Let the work of this house of God alone; let the governor of the Jews and the elders of the Jews build this house of God on its site.

8 And by me is the order given what ye shall do to the elders of these Jews for the building of this house of God, that out of the king's property, arising out of the tax beyond the river, the expenses shall forthwith be given unto these men, that they be not hindered.

9 And what they have need of, both young bullocks, and rams, and lambs, for the burnt-offerings unto the God of heaven, wheat, salt, wine, and oil, according to the requirement of the priests who are at Jerusalem, shall be given unto them day by day, without fail:

10 That they may offer sacrifices of sweet savours unto the God of heaven, and pray for the life of the king and of his sons.

11 Also is by me the order given, that if any man should alter this command, timber shall be pulled down from his house, and being set up, he shall be hanged thereon; and his house shall be made a dunghill for this.

12 And may the God that causeth his name to dwell there cast down every king and people that will stretch forth their hand to alter,[b] to destroy this house of God which is in Jerusalem. I Darius have given the order: let it be done speedily.

13 ¶ Then did Thathnai the governor on this side of the river, Shethar-bozenai, and their companions, in accordance with what king Darius had sent, act in this manner speedily.

14 And the elders of the Jews built, and they prospered, through the prophesying of Haggai the prophet, and Zechariah the son of 'Iddo. And they built, and completed it, according to the order of the God of Israel, and according to the order of Cyrus, and Darius, and Artaxerxes[c] the king of Persia.

15 And this house was finished on the third day of the month Adar, which was in the sixth year of the reign of king Darius.

16 Then celebrated the children of Israel, the priests, and the Levites, and the rest of the children of the exile, the dedication of this house of God with joy;

17 And they offered for the dedication of this house of God one hundred bullocks, two hundred rams, four hundred lambs; and for a sin-offering for all Israel, twelve he-goats, according to the number of the tribes of Israel.

18 And they stationed the priests in their orders, and the Levites in their divisions, for the service of God, which is in Jerusalem, as it is written in the book of Moses.

19 ¶ And the children of the exile prepared the passover-(sacrifice) on the fourteenth day of the first month.

20 For the priests and the Levites had purified themselves, as one man were all of them clean; and they slaughtered the passover-sacrifice for all the children of the exile, and for their brethren the priests, and for themselves.

21 And then did the children of Israel, who were returned out of the exile, and all such as had separated themselves unto them from the uncleanness of the nations of the earth, to seek the LORD the God of Israel, eat thereof.

22 And they celebrated the feast of unleavened bread seven days with joy; for the LORD had made them joyful, and had turned the heart of the king of Asshur toward them, to strengthen their hands in the work of the house of God, the God of Israel.

CHAPTER VII.

1 ¶ And after these things, in the reign of Artaxerxes the king of Persia, 'Ezra[a] the son of Seraiyah, the son of 'Azaryah, the son of Chilkiyah,

2 The son of Shallum, the son of Zadok, the son of Achitub,

3 The son of Amaryah, the son of 'Azaryah, the son of Merayoth,

4 The son of Zerachyah, the son of 'Uzzi, the son of Bukki,

5 The son of Abishua', the son of Phinehas, the son of Elazar, the son of Aaron the chief priest:

6 This 'Ezra went up from Babylon; and he was a practised expounder[b] in the law of Moses, which the LORD the God of Israel hath given; and the king gave him, according to the hand of the LORD his God upon him, all his request.

7 And there went up some of the children of Israel, and of the priests, and the Levites, and the singers, and the gate-keepers, and the temple-servants, unto Jerusalem, in the seventh year of king Artaxerxes.

8 And he came to Jerusalem in the fifth month, which was in the seventh year of the king.

9 For on the first day of the first month was the commencement of the expedition from Babylon, and on the first day of the fifth month came he to Jerusalem, according to the good hand of his God upon him.

10 For 'Ezra had directed his heart to inquire in the law of the LORD, and to do it, and to teach in Israel statutes and ordinances.

11 ¶ Now this is the copy of the letter which king Artaxerxes gave unto 'Ezra the priest, the expounder of the law, the expounder of the words of the commandments of the LORD, and of his statutes for Israel.

12 Artaxerxes, the king of kings, unto 'Ezra the priest, the expounder of the law of the God of heaven, the perfect, and so forth.

13 By me is the order given, that every one who is freely willing in my kingdom out of the people of Israel, and their priests and Levites, to go up to Jerusalem, may go up with thee;

14 Forasmuch as thou art sent on the part of the king, and of his seven counsellors, to make inquiry concerning Judah and Jerusalem, according to the law of thy God which is in thy hand;

15 And to carry the silver and gold, which the king and his counsellors have freely offered unto the God of Israel, whose habitation is in Jerusalem,

16 And all (freewill offerings of) silver and gold that thou canst find in all the province of Babylon, with the freewill offerings which the people and the priests offer willingly for the house of their God which is in Jerusalem.

17 Therefore mayest thou buy speedily with this money bullocks, rams, lambs, with their meat-offerings and their drink-offerings, and offer them upon the altar of the house of your God which is in Jerusalem.

18 And whatsoever shall seem good to thee, and to thy brethren, to do with the rest of the silver and the gold, that do according to the will of your God.

19 And the vessels which have been given unto thee for the service of the house of thy God, deliver thou before the God of Jerusalem.

20 And the remainder that will yet be needful for the house of thy God, which thou shalt have occasion to procure,[c] procure out of the king's treasure-house.

21 And by me, me king Artaxerxes, is the order given unto all the treasurers who are beyond the river, that whatsoever 'Ezra the priest, the expounder of the law of the God of heaven, may demand of you, shall be done speedily,

22 Up to one hundred talents of silver,

[a] According to Zunz's chronological tables, there elapsed 58 years between the finishing of the temple under Zerubbabel and Zechariah and their associates to the immigration of 'Ezra under Arthachshasth, as he is called here. But Rashi makes him identical with Darius—Arthachshasth being taken as a general appellation of the Persian kings; and others deem 'Ezra identical with Malachi.

[b] Rashi. Lit. "scribe," but the word סופר sopher, though often meaning secretary or scribe, signifies also one learned in religion; the word frequently occurring in the Mishnah סופרים "the learned," or "scholars;" but it is also possible that 'Ezra was a state secretary to the Persian king, wherefore he was sent to Judah.

[c] Lit. "to give," "to pay out."

and up to one hundred cors of wheat, and up to one hundred baths of wine, and up to one hundred baths of oil, and salt without prescribing it.

23 Whatsoever is ordered by the God of heaven shall be carefully done for the house of the God of heaven; for why should there be wrath against the kingdom of the king and his sons?

24 And to you make we it known, that on any of the priests and Levites, singers, gatekeepers, and temple-servants, or ministers of this house of God, no one shall be empowered to impose any tax, tribute, or toll.

25 And thou, 'Ezra, according to the wisdom of thy God which is in thy hand, appoint judges and magistrates, who are to judge all the people that are beyond the river, all such as know the laws of thy God; and make ye them known to those[a] that know them not.

26 And if there be any one who will not execute the law of thy God, and the law of the king, let justice be speedily executed upon him, whether it be unto death or to banishment,[b] or to a fine on goods, or to imprisonment.

27 ¶ Blessed be the LORD the God of our fathers, who hath put the like of this in the heart of the king, to glorify the house of the LORD which is in Jerusalem;

28 And who hath extended kindness unto me before the king and his counsellors, and before all the mighty princes of the king: and I strengthened myself according to the hand of the LORD my God upon me, and I gathered together out of Israel principal men to go up with me.

CHAPTER VIII.

1 ¶ Now these are the chiefs of their divisions, and this is the genealogy of those that went up with me, in the reign of king Artaxerxes, from Babylon.

2 Of the sons of Phinehas, Gershom; of the sons of Ithamar, Daniel; of the sons of David, Chattush;

3 Of the sons of Shechanyah, (who was) of the sons of Par'osh, Zechariah; and with him were recorded by genealogy of males one hundred and fifty.

4 Of the sons of Pachath-moäb, Elyeho-'enai the son of Zerachyah, and with him were two hundred males.

5 Of the sons of Shechanyah, the son of Yachaziël, and with him were three hundred males.

6 And of the sons of 'Adin, 'Ebed the son of Jonathan, and with him were fifty males.

7 And of the sons of 'Elam, Jesha'yah the son of 'Athalyah, and with him were seventy males.

8 And of the sons of Shephatyah, Zebadyah the son of Michaël, and with him were eighty males.

9 Of the sons of Joäb, 'Obadiah the son of Jechiël, and with him were two hundred and eighteen males.

10 And of the sons of Shelomith, the son of Jossiphyah, and with him were one hundred and sixty males.

11 And of the sons of Bebai, Zechariah the son of Bebai, and with him were twenty and eight males.

12 And of the sons of 'Azgad, Jochanan the son of Hakkatan, and with him were one hundred and ten males.

13 And of the sons of Adonikam the last; and these are their names, Eliphelet, Je'iël, and Shema'yah, and with them were sixty males.

14 And of the sons of Bigvai, 'Uthai, and Zabbur, and with them were seventy males.

15 ¶ And I gathered them together to the river that runneth into the Ahava, and we encamped there three days: and I looked about among the people, and the priests, but of the sons of Levi I found none there.

16 Then sent I for Eli'ezer, for Ariël, for Shema'yah, and for Elnathan, and for Jarib, and for Elnathan, and for Nathan, and for Zechariah, and for Meshullam, the head men; also for Joyarib, and for Elnathan, men of understanding.[c]

17 And I sent them with a charge unto Iddo the chief at the place Cassiphia, and I laid the words in their mouth to speak unto Iddo, and to his brother,[d] who were appoint-

[a] Rashi explains this to refer to the judges. By this edict the Israelites were to be judged after the Jewish, not the Persian laws, and 'Ezra was to be the chief-justice, but not the civil governor.

[b] Rashi, "extermination."

[c] Rashi; but Fürst, "teachers."

[d] Rashi would translate this Achie, as a proper name, not "his brother."

ed[a] at the place Cassiphia, that they should bring unto us ministers for the house of our God.

18 And they brought unto us according to the good hand of our God upon us a man of intelligence, of the sons of Machli, the son of Levi, the son of Israel, namely, Sherebyah, with his sons and his brothers, eighteen;

19 And Chashabyah, and with him Jesha'yah of the sons of Merari, his brothers and their sons, twenty.

20 ¶ Also of the temple-servants, whom David and the princes had assigned for the service of the Levites two hundred and twenty temple-servants, all of whom were expressed by names.

21 Then did I proclaim a fast there, at the river Ahava, that we might afflict ourselves before our God, to request from him a prosperous journey[b] for us, and for our little ones, and for all our substance.

22 For I was ashamed to ask of the king an army and horsemen to assist us against an enemy on the way; because we had spoken unto the king, saying, The hand of our God is upon all those that seek him for good; but his power and his wrath are against all those that forsake him.

23 So we fasted and besought our God for this, and he suffered himself to be entreated by us.

24 Then set I apart of the chiefs of the priests twelve persons, Sherebyah, Chashabyah, and with them ten of their brethren,

25 And I weighed out unto them the silver, and the gold, and the vessels, the offering for the house of our God, which the king, and his counsellors, and his princes, and all Israel there present, had offered.

26 And I weighed out into their hand of silver six hundred and fifty talents, and of silver vessels one hundred talents, of gold one hundred talents;

27 Also twenty cups of gold, of a thousand drachms; and two vessels of fine polished copper, valuable as gold.

28 And I said unto them, Ye are holy unto the LORD; and the vessels are holy; and the silver and the gold are a freewill offering unto the LORD the God of your fathers.

29 Watch ye, and guard them, until ye weigh them out before the chiefs of the priests and the Levites, and the chiefs of the divisions of Israel, at Jerusalem, into the chambers of the house of the LORD.

30 And the priests and the Levites accepted what was weighed out of the silver, and the gold, and the vessels, to bring the same to Jerusalem to the house of our God.

31 ¶ And we departed from the river Ahava on the twelfth day of the first month, to go unto Jerusalem: and the hand of our God was over us, and he delivered us from the hand of any enemy, and of such as lie in wait on the way.

32 And we came to Jerusalem, and remained there three days.

33 And on the fourth day were the silver and the gold and the vessels weighed out in the house of our God into the hand of Meremoth the son of Uriyah the priest; and with him was El'azar the son of Phinehas; and with them was Jozabad the son of Jeshua', and No'adyah the son of Binnui, the Levites;

34 By number and by weight of everything: and all the weight was written down at the same time.

35 ¶ Those that came out of the captivity, the children of the exile, offered burnt-offerings unto the God of Israel, twelve bullocks for all Israel, ninety and six rams, seventy and seven sheep, twelve he-goats for a sin-offering: all as burnt-offerings unto the LORD.

36 And they delivered the king's commands unto the king's lieutenants, and to the governors on this side of the river: and these endowed the people, and the house of God.

CHAPTER IX.

1 ¶ Now when these things were accomplished, the princes approached me, saying, The people of Israel, and the priests, and the Levites, have not separated themselves from the nations of the lands, notwithstanding their abominations, from the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Jebusites, the

[a] Rashi; the Ketib is הנתונים, which gives the above version; the Keri, however, הנתינים nethinim, the "temple-servants." Ezra could only persuade, not command any of those who remained in exile, to return; and no doubt the greater part preferred to stay behind.

[b] Rashi. Lit. "an upright way."

'Ammonites, the Moäbites, the Egyptians, and the Emorites;

2 For they have taken of their daughters for themselves and for their sons; and the holy seed have mingled themselves with the nations of these lands; and the hand of the princes and rulers hath been the first in this trespass.

3 And when I heard this thing, I rent my garment and my mantle, and I plucked out some of the hair of my head and of my beard, and sat down astounded.

4 And then assembled themselves unto me every one that trembled at the words of the God of Israel, because of the trespass of the exiles: and I sat astounded until the evening sacrifice.

5 And at the evening sacrifice I rose up from my fasting, and while rending[a] my garment and my mantle, I knelt down upon my knees, and spread out my hands unto the LORD my God.

6 And I said, O my God, I am ashamed and confounded to lift up my face unto thee, my God! for our iniquities are increased above our head, and our guiltiness is grown up as far as the heavens.

7 From the days of our fathers have we been in a great guiltiness even until this day; and through our iniquities have we been delivered, we, our kings, and our priests, into the hand of the kings of the lands, to the sword, to captivity, and to a spoil, and to the shame of face, as it is this day.

8 And now for a little moment hath grace been extended from the LORD our God, to preserve us a remnant to escape, and to give us a stake[b] in his holy place, that our God might enlighten our eyes, and give us a little reviving in our bondage.

9 For we are bondmen: yet in our bondage hath our God not forsaken us, but hath extended unto us kindness before the kings of Persia, to give us a reviving, to exalt the house of our God, and to erect again its ruins, and to give us a fence[c] in Judah and in Jerusalem.

10 And now what shall we say, O our God, after this? for we have forsaken thy commandments,

11 Which thou hast commanded through means of thy servants the prophets, saying, The land, unto which ye go to take possession thereof, is a land defiled through the defilement of the nations of the lands, through their abominations, with which they have filled it from one end to another through their uncleanness.

12 And now your daughters shall ye not give unto their sons, and their daughters shall ye not take for your sons, and ye shall not seek their peace and their welfare unto eternity: in order that ye may be strong, and eat the best of the land, and leave it for an inheritance to your children unto eternity.

13 And after all that is come over us for our evil deeds, and for our great guiltiness, seeing that thou our God hast spared us (punishing us) less than our iniquities (deserved), and hast given us such deliverance as this:

14 Should we again make void thy commandments, and make marriage with these people of abominations? wouldst thou not be angry with us even to make an end of us, so that there would not be any remnant or escape?

15 ¶ O LORD, God of Israel, thou art righteous; for we have been left a remnant that hath escaped, as it is this day: behold, we are before thee in our guiltinesses; for there is no standing[d] before thee because of this.

CHAPTER X.

1 ¶ Now when 'Ezra prayed, and when he made his confession, weeping and casting himself down before the house of God, there gathered themselves unto him out of Israel a very large assembly of men and women and children; for the people wept exceedingly much.

2 ¶ Thereupon commenced Shechanyah the son of Jechiël, of the sons of 'Elam, and said unto 'Ezra, We have indeed trespassed against our God, and have brought home strange wives of the nations of the land: yet

[a] Fürst, "and with my rent garment and mantle," &c.

[c] As round a sheepfold; i. e. protection.

[d] Meaning, it is sure that God's mercy permitted the people to escape total destruction; but this new transgression would cause that the LORD would sweep off those who, notwithstanding the merciful chastisement, could so soon forget again their God.

now there is hope in Israel concerning this thing.

3 And now let us make a covenant with our God to put away all the wives, and such as are born of them, according to the direction of the Lord, and of those that tremble at the commandment of our God; and let it be done according to the law.

4 Arise; for this matter is obligatory upon thee; and we will be with thee: be strong, and do it.

5 ¶ Then arose 'Ezra, and caused the princes of the priests, the Levites, and of all Israel, to swear to do according to this word. And they swore.

6 Then arose 'Ezra from before the house of God, and went into the chamber of Jochanan the son of Elyashib; and he went thither without having eaten bread, or having drunk water; for he was mourning because of the trespass of the exiles.

7 And they made proclamation throughout Judah and Jerusalem unto all the children of the exile, to gather themselves together at Jerusalem;

8 And that whosoever should not come within three days, according to the resolve of the princes and the elders, all his substance should be devoted, and himself separated from the congregation of the exiles.

9 ¶ Then were all the men of Judah and Benjamin gathered together unto Jerusalem within three days: it was in the ninth month, on the twentieth day of the month; and all the people sat in the open place before the house of God, trembling because of this matter, and by reason of the showers of rain.[a]

10 And 'Ezra the priest rose up, and said unto them, Ye have acted unfaithfully, and have brought home strange wives, to increase yet more the guiltiness of Israel.

11 Now therefore make confession unto the Lord the God of your fathers, and do his will; and separate yourselves from the nations of the earth, and from the strange wives.

12 Then answered all the assembly and said with a loud voice, So be it: according to thy word it is our duty to do.

13 But the people are many, and it is the rainy season, and we have not the strength to remain in the street, nor is this a work for one day or for two days; for we are many that have transgressed in this matter.

14 Let however our princes stand forward for all the congregation, and let all those in our cities who have brought home strange wives come at appointed times, and with them the elders of each and every city, and its judges, until the fierce wrath of our God be turned away from us for this whole matter.

15 Only Jonathan the son of 'Assahël and Jachzeyah the son of Thikvah withstood this (proposal):[b] and Meshullam and Shabbethai the Levite assisted them.

16 And the children of the exile did so. And then were set apart 'Ezra the priest, (and) certain chiefs of the divisions, for their family divisions, and all of them (designated) by their names; and they sat down on the first day of the tenth month to examine the matter.

17 And they made an end with all, with the men that had brought home strange wives, not before the first day of the first month.

18 ¶ And there were found among the sons of the priests that had brought home strange wives, namely, of the sons of Jeshua' the son of Jozadak, and his brethren: Ma'asseyah, and Eli'ezer, and Jarib, and Gedalyah.

19 And they gave their hand to put away their wives, and being guilty, (they offered) a ram of the flock for their trespass.

20 And of the sons of Immer: Chanani, and Zebadyah.

21 And of the sons of Charim: Ma'asseyah, and Elijah, and Shema'yah, and Jechiël, and 'Uzziyah.

22 And of the sons of Pashchur: Elyo'enai, Ma'asseyah, Ishmael, Nethanel, Jozabad, and El'assah.

THE BOOK OF NEHEMIAH,

ספר נחמיה.

CHAPTER I.

1 ¶ The words of Nehemiah[a] the son of Chachalyah. And it came to pass in the month Kislev, in the twentieth year, as I was in Shushan the capital,

2 That there came Chanani, one of my brethren,[b] himself with certain men of Judah: and I asked them concerning the Jews that had escaped, who were left of the captivity, and concerning Jerusalem.

3 And they said unto me, The remnant that are left of the captivity there in the province are in great misery and in disgrace; and the wall of Jerusalem is broken down, and her gates are burnt with fire.

4 And it came to pass, when I heard these words, that I sat down and wept, and mourned some days, and I was fasting, and praying before the God of heaven.

5 And I said, I beseech thee, O Lord the God of heaven, the great and terrible God, that keepeth the covenant and kindness for those that love him and for those that keep his commandments:

6 Let thy ear now be attentive, and thy eyes be open, I entreat thee, to hearken unto the prayer of thy servant, which I am praying this day before thee, by day and by night, in behalf of the children of Israel thy servants, and (as) I confess for the sins of the children of Israel, (with) which we have sinned against thee: yea, I also and my father's house have sinned.

7 We have dealt very corruptly toward thee; and we have not kept the commandments, and the statutes, and the ordinances, which thou didst command Moses thy servant.

8 Remember, I beseech thee, the word with which thou didst charge Moses thy servant, saying, If ye become truly unfaithful, I will indeed scatter you among the nations.

9 But if ye return unto me, and keep my commandments, and do them: (then) though your outcasts should be at the utmost parts of heaven, from there will I gather them, and I will bring them unto the place which I have chosen to let my name dwell there.

10 And they are thy servants and thy people, whom thou hast redeemed by thy great power, and by thy strong hand.

11 I beseech thee, O Lord, do let thy ear be attentive to the prayer of thy servant, and to the prayer of thy servants, who are desirous to fear thy name; and grant success, I pray thee, to thy servant this day, and let him find mercy in the sight of this man.—But I was butler[a] by the king.

CHAPTER II.

1 ¶ And it came to pass in the month Nissan, in the twentieth year of king Artaxerxes, that wine (stood) before him; and I took up the wine, and gave it unto the king. But I had never been sad in his presence.

2 Then said the king unto me, Why is thy countenance sad, seeing thou art not sick? this is nothing but an illness of heart.[b] Then was I very greatly afraid.

3 And I said unto the king, May the king live for ever: why should not my countenance be sad, when the city, the place of my fathers' sepulchres, lieth ruined, and her gates are consumed by fire?

4 Then said the king unto me, For what then dost thou make request? Then[c] did I pray to the God of heaven.

5 And I said unto the king, If it seem good to the king, and if thy servant might be pleasing in thy presence, (I desire) that thou wouldst send me unto Judah, unto the city of my fathers' sepulchres, that I may build it.

6 And the king said unto me, while the queen was sitting beside him, When[d] is thy journey to be undertaken? and when wilt thou return? So it pleased the king to let me go; and I indicated to him a time.

7 And I said unto the king, If it seem good to the king, let letters be given unto me for the governors beyond the river, that they may convey me over till the time that I come into Judah;

8 Also a letter unto Assaph the keeper of the king's forests, that he may give me timber to make beams for the gates of the fortress which appertaineth to the house, and for the wall of the city, and for the house that I shall move into. And the king gave (them) to me, according to the good hand of my God upon me.

9 And (so) came I to the governors beyond the river, and I gave them the king's letters. Now the king had sent with me captains of the army and horsemen.

10 ¶ When Sanballat the Choronite, and Tobiyah the servant, the 'Ammonite, heard of it, it displeased them exceedingly, that there was come a man to seek the welfare of the children of Israel.

11 So came I to Jerusalem, and remained there three days.

12 Then arose I in the night, I and some few men with me; but I had not told any man what my God had put in my heart to do for Jerusalem; nor was there any beast with me, save the beast on which I rode.

13 And I went out through the gate of the valley by night, even toward the direction of the dragon-well, and to the dung-gate; and I was viewing[e] the walls of Jerusalem, which were broken down, and the gates whereof were consumed by fire.

14 Then passed I on to the gate of the fountain, and to the king's pool; but there

[a] Gen. xl. 2, &c. Eng. ver. "cupbearer."

[b] Rashi conceives that the king thought Nehemiah harboured some evil design against him. "Illness of heart" may mean both "a bad" and "a sorrowful heart," wherefore we have chosen it to express the doubtful רַע. Arnheim, "bad heart;" but the whole passage indirectly indicates that the king meant "sadness" or "grief."

[c] Rashi explains, "I said before the king, May it be the will of the God of heaven that thou grant my request!" Aben Ezra, on the contrary, "I had already prayed;" but it may mean the silent prayer offered up in his heart just as he addressed the king.

[d] Rashi. Others, "For how long is thy journey to last?"

[e] Aben Ezra, reading שבר sober with a sin; but Rashi, shober, with a shin, "made a breach in," as the stones adhered but loosely, owing to the walls having been subjected to fire.

was no space for the beast that was under me to pass through.

15 Then went I up through the valley in the night, and I was viewing the wall, and I returned and entered through the gate of the valley, and so returned home.

16 And the rulers knew not whither I was gone, or what I was doing: nor had I as yet told it to the Jews, and to the priests, and to the nobles, and to the rulers, and to the rest of the superintendents of the work.

17 Then said I unto them, Ye see the misery in which we are, how Jerusalem lieth in ruins, and its gates are burnt with fire: come, and let us build up the wall of Jerusalem, that we may no more be for a reproach.

18 And I told them of the hand of my God, which was good upon me, as also the king's words which he had spoken unto me. And they said, We will rise up and build. So they strengthened their hands for the good work.

19 ¶ But when Sanballat the Choronite, and Tobiyah the servant, the 'Ammonite, and Geshem the Arabian, heard it, they laughed us to scorn, and despised us, and said, What is this thing that ye are doing? are ye rebelling against the king?

20 And I returned them an answer, and said unto them, The God of heaven will indeed give us prosperity, and we his servants will truly rise up and build; but ye have no portion, nor right, nor memorial,[a] in Jerusalem.

CHAPTER III.

1 ¶ Then rose up Elyashib the high priest with his brethren the priests, and they built the sheep-gate; they sanctified it, and set up its doors: even as far as the tower of Meäh did they sanctify it, as far as the tower of Chananel.

2 And by his side built the men of Jericho. And by his (other) side built Zaccur the son of Imri.

3 But the fish-gate did the sons of Hassenaäh build: they also laid its beams, and set up its doors, its locks, and its bars.

4 And alongside of them repaired[b] Meremoth the son of Uriyah, the son of Kakkoz. And alongside of them repaired Meshullam the son of Berechyah, the son of Meshezabel. And alongside of them repaired Zadok the son of Ba'ana.

5 And alongside of them repaired the Teko'ites; but their principal men put not their necks to the work of their Lord.

6 Moreover the old gate repaired Yoyada' the son of Passeäch, and Meshullam the son of Bessodeyah: they laid its beams, and set up its doors, and its locks, and its bars.

7 And alongside of them repaired Melatyah the Gib'onite, and Jadon the Meronothite, men of Gib'on and of Mizpah, unto the seat[c] of the governor on this side of the river.

8 Alongside of him repaired 'Uzziël the son of Charhayah, of the goldsmiths. And alongside of him repaired Chananyah the son of one of the apothecaries, and they fortified[d] Jerusalem as far as the broad wall.

9 And alongside of them repaired Rephayah the son of Chur, the chief of the half of the district of Jerusalem.

10 And alongside of them repaired Jedayah the son of Charumaph, and this opposite to his house. And alongside of him repaired Chattush the son of Chashabneyah.

11 Another division did Malkiyah the son of Charim, and Chashub the son of Pachath-moäb, repair, as also the tower of the ovens.

12 And alongside of him repaired Shallum the son of Hallochesh, the chief of the other half of the district of Jerusalem, he and his daughters.

13 The gate of the valley repaired Chanun, and the inhabitants of Zanoäch: they built it, and set up its doors, its locks, and its bars, and a thousand cubits of the wall as far as the dung-gate.

14 And the dung-gate repaired Malkiyah the son of Rechab, the chief of the district of Beth-hakkerem: he built it, and set up its doors, its locks, and its bars.

15 And the gate of the fountain repaired Shallun the son of Col-chozeh, the chief of the district of Mizpah: he built it and covered it, and set up its doors, its locks, and its bars, and the wall of the pool of Shelach[a] by the king's garden, and as far as the stairs that lead down from the city of David.

16 Next[b] to him repaired Nehemiah the son of 'Azbuk, the chief of the half district of Beth-zur, as far as the place opposite to the sepulchres of David, and as far as the pool that was (newly) made, and as far as the house of the mighty men.

17 Next to him repaired the Levites: Rechum the son of Bani. Alongside of him repaired Chashabyah, the chief of the half district of Ke'ilah, for his district.

18 Next to him repaired their brethren: Bavai the son of Chenadad, the chief of the (other) half district of Ke'ilah.

19 And there repaired alongside of him 'Ezer the son of Jeshua', the chief of Mizpah, another division, opposite to the ascent to the armoury at the angle.

20 Next to him did Baruch the son of Zaccai[c] earnestly repair another division, from the angle as far as the door of the house of Elyashib the high priest.

21 Next to him repaired Meremoth the son of Uriyah the son of Hakkoz another division, from the door of the house of Elyashib even as far as the end of the house of Elyashib.

22 And next to him repaired the priests, the men of the plain (of Jordan).

23 Next to him repaired Benjamin and Chashub opposite to their house. Next to him repaired 'Azaryah the son of Ma'aseyah the son of 'Ananyah alongside of his house.

24 Next to him repaired Binnui the son of Chenadad another division, from the house of 'Azaryah as far as the angle, and as far as the corner.

25 Palal the son of Uzai (repaired) from opposite to the angle, and the tower which standeth out from the king's upper house, that was by the court of the prison. Next to him Pedayah the son of Par'osh.

26 And the temple-servants dwelt on the hill fort, (and they built)[d] as far as opposite to the water-gate toward the east, and the tower that standeth out.

27 Next to them repaired the Teko'ites another division from opposite the great tower that standeth out, and as far as the wall of the hill fort.

28 From above the horse-gate repaired the priests, every one opposite to his house.

29 Next to this repaired Zadok the son of Immer opposite to his house. And next to him repaired Shema'yah the son of Shechanyah, the keeper of the east gate.

30 Next to him repaired Chananyah the son of Shelemyah, and Chanun the sixth son of Zalaph another division. Next to him repaired Meshullam the son of Berechyah opposite to his chamber.

31 Next to him repaired Malkiyah the goldsmith's son as far as the house of the temple-servants, and of the merchants, opposite to the mustering-gate, and to the upper chamber of the corner.

32 And between the upper chamber of the corner and the sheep-gate repaired the goldsmiths and the merchants.

33[e] ¶ And it came to pass, when Sanballat heard that we were building the wall, that it displeased him, and he became very angry, and mocked at the Jews.

34 And he spoke before his brethren and the army of Samaria, and said, What are these feeble Jews doing? will people suffer them (to build)? will they sacrifice? will they complete it in one day? will they revive[f] the stones out of the heaps of the rubbish, seeing that they have been burnt?

35 And Tobiyah the 'Ammonite was near him, and he said, Even what they are building, if a fox were to run up, he would readily break through their stone wall.

36 Hear, O our God! how we are become a scorn; and bring their reproach back upon their own head, and give them up for a prey in the land of captivity.

37 And cover not up their iniquity, and let not their sin be blotted out from before thee; for they have taunted (us)[g] in the presence of the builders.

38 But we built the wall; and all the wall was joined together up to the half thereof; for the people had a heart[a] to work.

CHAPTER IV.

1 ¶ And it came to pass, when Sanballat and Tobiyah, and the Arabians, and the 'Ammonites, and the Ashdodites, heard that the walls of Jerusalem were restored, and that the breaches began to be closed up, that it displeased them greatly.

2 And they conspired all of them together to come to fight against Jerusalem, and to do it[b] an injury.

3 But we prayed unto our God, and set a watch over them[c] day and night, because of the others.

4 And Judah said, The strength of the bearers of the burden is failing, and there is much rubbish; and we are not able to build on the wall.

5 And our adversaries said, They shall not know, nor see, until we come in the midst of them, and slay them, and so stop the work."

6 And it came to pass, when the Jews who dwelt near them came, that they said unto us ten times, "From all places whence ye may return home (they intend to come)[d] over us."

7 I placed therefore on the lower parts of the place on the naked rocks[e] behind the wall —there I placed the people after their families with their swords, their spears, and their bows.

8 And I looked (about), and rose up, and said unto the nobles, and to the rulers, and to the rest of the people, Be not afraid of them: think on the Lord, the great and terrible, and fight for your brethren, your sons, and your daughters, your wives, and your houses.

9 ¶ And it came to pass, that, when our enemies heard that it was known unto us, God frustrated their counsel: and we returned, all of us, to the wall, every one unto his work.

10 And it came to pass from that day forth, that the half of my young men wrought at the work, while the other half of them were holding the spears, the shields, and the bows, and the coats of mail; and the princes stood behind all the house of Judah.

11 Those that built on the wall, and those that bore burdens, with those that loaded,— every one with one of his hands wrought on the work, and with the other hand held a weapon.

12 And the builders had every one his sword fastened around his loins while they were building; and he that blew the cornet stood alongside of me.

13 And I said unto the nobles, and to the rulers, and to the rest of the people, The work is great and extensive, and we are separated upon the wall, distant one from another.

14 In what place (then) ye hear the sound of the cornet, thither must ye assemble unto us: our God will fight for us.

15 So we laboured at the work, while the half of them were holding the spears from the rising of the morning-dawn till the stars appeared.

16 Likewise at the same time said I unto the people, Let every one with his young man lodge within Jerusalem, so that they may be in the night a guard to us, and during the day for the labour.

17 And neither I, nor my brothers, nor my young men, nor the men of the guard who followed me—none of us took off our clothes, no one leaving them off even for washing himself.[f]

CHAPTER V.

1 ¶ And there arose a great outcry of the people and of their wives against their brethren the Jews.

2 And there were some that said, Our sons, and our daughters, (and) ourselves are many; and we must buy[g] corn, that we may eat, and live.

3 And others there were that said, We must pledge our fields, our vineyards, and our houses, that we may buy corn, in the famine.

4 And others there were that said, We

[a] Others, "courage."

[b] יו "to him," Aben Ezra refers either to Nehemiah or to the people.

[c] The labourers.

[d] Aben Ezra. Rashi, "on every place (where ye may be scattered in building the walls) ye must be prepared to come to us (to fight)."

[e] Philippson, "on the fortified places."

[f] Rashi. Aben Ezra, "except when a man went to the water to bathe."

[g] Meaning, the building of the wall compelled them to leave their fields; and hence they had to purchase corn, which their means did not permit them.

have borrowed money for the king's tax on our fields and vineyards.

5 Yet now our flesh is like the flesh of our brethren, our children are like their children: and, lo, we must force our sons and our daughters to become servants, and some of our daughters are forced (to become so), and our hand is powerless; and our fields and our vineyards belong to others.

6 And it displeased me greatly when I heard their complaint and these words.

7 Then did I consult with my heart, and I upbraided[a] the nobles, and the rulers, and said unto them, "Ye exact usury, every one of his brother!" And I brought together a great assembly against them.

8 And I said unto them, We have indeed ransomed our brethren the Jews, who had been sold unto the various nations, as far as our means went: and will ye yourselves even sell your brethren, so that they will be sold again[b] unto us? And they remained silent, and found no answer.

9 Then said I, The thing is not good which ye are doing: ought ye not to walk in the fear of our God, because of the taunting of the nations, our enemies?

10 And also I, my brothers, and my young men, have lent them money and corn: I pray you, let us relinquish this loan.

11 Give back to them, I pray you, even this day, their fields, their vineyards, their oliveyards, and their houses, also the hundredth[c] part of the money, and of the corn, the wine, and the oil, that ye have lent them.

12 Then said they, We will give (all) back, and of them will we require nothing: so will we do as thou sayest. Then I called the priests, and made them swear, that they would do in accordance with this promise.

13 Also my lap did I shake out, and said, So may God shake out every man that performeth not this promise, from his house and of his toil-gotten wealth, and so let him remain shaken out, and empty. And all the assembly said, Amen, and they praised the LORD. And the people did according to this promise.

14 Moreover from the day that (the king) had enjoined on me to be governor in the land of Judah, from the twentieth year up to the two and thirtieth year of king Artaxerxes, (full) twelve years, neither I nor my brothers ate the food of the governor.

15 But the former governors that had been before me had made it heavy for the people, and had taken of them bread and wine, beside forty shekels of silver: yea, even their young men ruled over the people; but I myself did not act so, because of the fear of God.

16 And in the work of this wall also did I labour actively; and we bought not any fields; and all my young men were assembled there by the work.

17 Moreover of the Jews and rulers, one hundred and fifty men, besides those that came unto us from the nations that are about us, (ate) at my table.

18 And that which was prepared for one day was one ox and six choice sheep; also birds were prepared for me, and once in ten days all sorts of wine in abundance: yet with all this I required not the food of the governor; because the service lay heavily upon this people.

19 Remember for me, my God, for good, all that I have done for this people.

CHAPTER VI.

1 ¶ Now it came to pass, when it came to the hearing of Sanballat, and Tobiyah, and Geshem the Arabian, and the rest of our enemies, that I had built the wall, and that there was no breach left therein, although up to that time I had not yet set up the doors in the gates,

2 That Sanballat and Geshem sent unto me, saying, Come, let us meet together in Kephirim[d] in the plain of Ono. But they were thinking of doing me mischief.

3 And I sent messengers unto them, saying, I am doing a great work, and I cannot come down: why should the work cease, while I leave it lying, and come down to you?

4 And they sent unto me after this manner four times; and I answered them after the same manner.

[a] Lit. "quarrelled with."

[b] Herxheimer after Rashi; Philippson, "and shall they be sold to us?"

[c] That is, one per cent. every month. Rashi, "and the quantity, were it a hundred, of money."

[d] Probably the town Kephirah in Benjamin.

5 Then sent Sanballat unto me in like manner the fifth time his young man with an open letter[a] in his hand:

6 Therein was written, It hath been heard among the nations, and Gashmu saith it, that thou and the Jews think of rebelling; wherefore thou art building up the wall; and that thou art to be king unto them, according to these reports.[b]

7 And that thou hast also set up prophets to proclaim concerning thee at Jerusalem, saying, He is king in Judah: and now there may be reported to the king something like these words. Now therefore come, and let us take counsel together.

8 Then sent I unto him, saying, "There hath been done nothing like these reports of which thou speakest; but out of thy own heart thou inventest them."

9 For they all wished to make us afraid, thinking, Their hands will be withdrawn[c] from the work, so that it will not be done. Now therefore, (O God,) strengthen my hands.

10 And I came also into the house of Shema'yah the son of Delayah the son of Mehetabel, who had shut himself up; and he said, Let us meet together in the house of God, within the temple, and let us lock the doors of the temple; for they are coming to slay thee: yea, in the night are they coming to slay thee.

11 And I said, Should a man like me flee? and who is there that is like me, that would go into the temple and live? I will not go in.

12 And I perceived that, lo, God had not sent him; but that he pronounced this prophecy over me, because Tobiyah and Sanballat had hired him.

13 Therefore was he hired, in order that I should become afraid, and do so, and sin, and that it might serve them for an evil report, so that they might cast reproach upon me.

14 ¶ Think, O my God, of Tobiyah and Sanballat according to these their works, and also of No'adyah the prophetess, and the rest of the prophets, who wished to make me afraid.

15 And so was the wall finished on the twenty and fifth day of the month Elul, in fifty and two days.

16 ¶ And it came to pass, when our enemies heard this, and all the nations that were about us saw it, that they sank greatly in their own eyes; and they perceived that by the aid of our God had this work been wrought.

17 Moreover in those days the nobles of Judah despatched frequently their letters unto Tobiyah, and those of Tobiyah came unto them.

18 For many in Judah were sworn friends unto him; because he was the son-in-law of Shechanyah the son of Arach, and Jehochanan his son had taken the daughter of Meshullam the son of Berechyah.

19 Also his good deeds were they reporting before me, and my words they used to carry out to him: also Tobiyah sent letters to make me afraid.

CHAPTER VII.

1 ¶ And it came to pass, when the wall was built, that I set up the doors; and then were appointed the gatekeepers and the singers and the (other) Levites (to their offices).

2 And I gave my brother Chanani, and Chananyah the commander of the fortress, charge over Jerusalem; for he was esteemed a faithful man, and one that feared God these many days.[d]

3 And I said unto them, The gates of Jerusalem must not be opened until the sun be hot; and while ye[e] stand by, let them shut the doors, and do ye bar them; and station watches of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, every one in his watch, and every one opposite to his house.

4 But the city was roomy in space and large: while the people therein were few, and the houses were not yet built.

5 Then did my God put it into my heart, and I assembled together the nobles, and the rulers, and the people, that they might give in

6 ¶ These are the children of the province, that came up out of the captivity of the exiles, whom Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon had carried into exile, and who returned to Jerusalem and to Judah, every one unto his own city;

7 Who came with Zerubbabel, Jeshua', Nehemiah, 'Azaryah, Ra'amyah, Nachamani, Mordecai, Bilshan, Misspereth, Bigvai, Nechum, Ba'anah. The number of the men of the people of Israel was:

8 The children of Par'osh, two thousand one hundred and seventy and two.

9 The children of Shephatyah, three hundred seventy and two.

10 The children of Arach, six hundred fifty and two.

11 The children of Pachath-moäb, of the children of Jeshua' and Joäb, two thousand and eight hundred and eighteen.

12 The children of 'Elam, one thousand two hundred fifty and four.

13 The children of Zatthu, eight hundred forty and five.

41 The children of Pashchur, one thousand two hundred forty and seven.

42 The children of Charim, one thousand and seventeen.

58 The children of Ya'ala, the children of Darkon, the children of Giddel,
59 The children of Shephatyah, the children of Chattil, the children of Pochereth-hazzebayim, the children of Amon.
60 All the temple-servants, and the children of Solomon's servants, were three hundred ninety and two.
61 ¶ And these were they who came up from Thel-melach, Thel-charsha, Kerub, Addon, and Immer; but they could not tell their family division and their descent, whether they were of Israel:
62 The children of Delayah, the children of Tobiyah, the children of Nekoda, six hundred forty and two.
63 And of the priests: The children of Chobayah, the children of Hakkoz, the children of Barzillai who had taken a wife from the daughters of Barzillai the Gil'adite, and was called after their name.
64 These sought for their family register, but it was not found: wherefore they were excluded, as unfit, from the priesthood.
65 And the Thirshatha said unto them, that they should not eat of the most holy things, till there should stand up a priest with the Urim and Thummim.
66 The whole congregation together was forty and two thousand three hundred and sixty:
67 Besides these were their man-servants and their maid-servants, of whom there were seven thousand three hundred thirty and seven; and they had two hundred and forty and five singing men and singing women.
68 Their horses were seven hundred thirty and six; their mules, two hundred forty and five;
69 (Their) camels, four hundred thirty-and five; (their) asses, six thousand seven hundred and twenty.
70 And a portion of the chiefs of the divisions gave unto the work. The Thirshatha gave to the treasure, of gold one thousand drachms, fifty bowls, five hundred and thirty coats for the priests.
71 ¶ And some of the chiefs of the divisions gave to the treasury of the work, of gold twenty thousand drachms, and of silver two thousand and two hundred manehs.
72 And what the rest of the people gave was, of gold twenty thousand drachms, and of silver two thousand manehs, and priests' coats sixty and seven.
73 So the priests, and the Levites, and the gatekeepers, and the singers, and some of the people, and the temple-servants, and all Israel, dwelt in their cities: and so came round the seventh month, while the children of Israel were in their cities.

CHAPTER VIII.

1 And all the people gathered themselves together as one man into the open place which is before the water-gate; and they said unto 'Ezra the expounder that he should bring forward the book of the law of Moses, which the LORD commanded to Israel.
2 Then did 'Ezra the priest bring forward the law before the congregation both of men and women, and every one that had understanding[a] to listen (attentively), on the first day of the seventh month;
3 And he read therein in the open place which is before the water-gate from the first daylight until midday, before the men and the women, and those that could understand:[b] and the ears of all the people were directed unto the book of the law.
4 And 'Ezra the expounder stood upon an elevated stand of wood, which they had made for the purpose: and beside him stood Matthithyah, and Shema', and 'Anayah, and Uriyah, and Chilkiyah, and Ma'asseyah, on his right hand; and on his left, Pedayah, and Mishaël, and Malkiyah, and Chashum, and Chashbadanah, Zechariah, (and) Meshullam.

5 And 'Ezra opened the book before the eyes of all the people; for he was (standing) higher than all the people; and as he opened it, all the people became silent.[a]

6 And 'Ezra blessed the LORD, the great God: and all the people answered, Amen, Amen, with lifting up their hands; and they bowed their heads, and prostrated themselves before the LORD with their faces to the ground.

7 Also Jeshua', and Bani, and Sherebyah, Jamin, 'Akkub, Shabbethai, Hodiyah, Ma'asseyah, Kelita, 'Azaryah, Jozabad, Chanan, Pelayah, and the Levites, explained to the people the law: while the people remained where they stood.

8 So they read in the book, in the law of God distinctly, and exhibiting the sense: so that (the people) understood what was read.

9 ¶ Then said Nehemiah, that is the Thirshatha,[b] and 'Ezra the priest the expounder, and the Levites that explained to the people, unto all the people, This day is holy unto the LORD your God: mourn not, and weep not. For all the people were weeping, when they heard the words of the law.

10 Then said he unto them, Go your way, eat fat things, and drink sweet drinks, and send portions unto him for whom nothing is prepared; for this day is holy unto our Lord: and do not grieve yourselves; but let the joy of the LORD be your stronghold.

11 So the Levites quieted all the people, saying, Be still! for the day is holy; and do not grieve yourselves.

12 And all the people went their way to eat, and to drink, and to send out portions, and to prepare for themselves great joy; because they had understood the words which (the others) had made known unto them.

13 ¶ And on the second day there gathered themselves together the chiefs of the divisions of all the people, the priests, and the Levites, unto 'Ezra the expounder, to obtain again intelligence of the words of the law.

14 And they found written in the law that the LORD had commanded through means of Moses, that the children of Israel should dwell in booths during the feast in the seventh month.

15 And (they ordered) that they should publish and have proclamation made throughout all their cities, and through Jerusalem, saying, Go forth unto the mountain and fetch olive-leaves, and[c] oleaster-leaves, and myrtle-leaves, and palm-leaves, and leaves of the three-leaved myrtle, to make booths, as it is written.

16 And the people went forth, and brought them; and they made themselves booths, every one upon his roof, and in their courts, and in the courts of the house of God, and in the open place by the water-gate, and in the open place by the gate of Ephraim.

17 And all the congregation that were returned out of the captivity made booths, and dwelt in the booths; for since the days of Jeshua' the son of Nun until that day the children of Israel had not done so. And there was very great joy.

18 And he read in the book of the law of God, day by day, from the first day until the last day. And they celebrated the feast seven days, and on the eighth day the solemn assembly, after the prescribed manner.

CHAPTER IX.

1 ¶ And on the twenty and fourth day of this month were the children of Israel assembled with fasting, and in sackclothes, and with earth upon them.

2 And the seed of Israel separated themselves from all children of the strangers; and they stood forward and made confession for their sins, and the iniquities of their fathers.

3 And they stood up in their standing-place, and read in the book of the law of the LORD their God the fourth part of the day; and another fourth part they made confes-

[c] Aben Ezra, "or," and so all through. Arnheim renders עלי with "foliage," which would then be the branches with the leaves; otherwise, עלה means leaf, not branch. Philippson, "branches." עץ עבת is the well-known three-leaved myrtle, not "thick trees."

sion, and prostrated themselves before the LORD their God.

4 ¶ Then stood up upon the stairs of the Levites, Jeshua', and Bani, Kadmiël, Shebanyah, Bunni, Sherebyah, Bani, and Kenani, and they cried with a loud voice unto the LORD their God.

5 Then said the Levites, Jeshua', and Kadmiël, Bani, Chashabneyah, Sherebyah, Hodiyah, Shebanyah, and Pethachyah, Arise! bless ye the LORD your God from eternity to eternity. And let men bless thy glorious name, which is exalted above all blessing and praise.

6 Thou indeed art the Eternal One alone: it is thou that hast made the heavens, the heavens of heavens, with all their host, the earth, and all that is upon her, the seas, and all that is in them, and thou givest life to them all; and the host of the heavens bow down before thee.

7 Thou art indeed the LORD the (true) God, who didst choose Abram, and bring him forth out of Ur of the Chaldeans, and change his name to Abraham;

8 And thou didst find his heart faithful before thee; and thou madest with him the covenant to give the land of the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Emorites, and the Perizzites, and the Jebusites, and the Girgashites,—to give it to his seed; and thou hast performed thy words; for thou art righteous.

9 And thou didst see the affliction of our fathers in Egypt, and their cry didst thou hear by the Red Sea;

10 And thou didst display signs and wonders on Pharaoh, and on all his servants, and on all the people of his land; for thou knewest that they had dealt presumptuously against them; and thou didst (thus) make thyself a name, as it is this day.

11 And the sea didst thou divide before them, so that they passed through the midst of the sea on dry land; and their pursuers didst thou throw into the deeps, like a stone in mighty waters.

12 And by a pillar of cloud didst thou lead them in the day, and by a pillar of fire in the night, to give light unto them on the way whereon they should go.

13 Also on mount Sinai camest thou down, and spokest with them from heaven; and thou gavest them upright ordinances, and truthful laws, good statutes and commandments;

14 And thy holy sabbath madest thou known unto them, and commandments, statutes, and a law didst thou enjoin on them, by the hand of Moses thy servant.

15 And bread from heaven didst thou give them for their hunger, and water out of the rock broughtest thou forth for them for their thirst; and thou didst order them to go in to take possession of the land concerning which thou hadst lifted up thy hand to give it unto them.

16 And they and our fathers acted presumptuously, and hardened their neck, and hearkened not to thy commandments.

17 And they refused to obey, and remembered not thy marvellous deeds which thou hadst done with them; but they hardened their neck, and (spoke of) appointing a chief to return to their bondage, in their rebellion; but thou art a God ready to pardon, gracious and merciful, long-suffering, and abundant in kindness, and forsookest them not.

18 Yea, although they had made for themselves a molten calf, and said, 'This is thy god that hath brought thee up out of Egypt,' and had practised great provocations:

19 Yet in thy abundant mercies didst thou not forsake them in the wilderness; the pillar of cloud departed not from them by day, to lead them on the way; nor the pillar of fire by night, to give them light on the way whereon they should go.

20 And thy good spirit thou gavest to make them intelligent, and thy manna thou withheldest not from their mouth, and water thou gavest them for their thirst.

21 And forty years didst thou provide for them in the wilderness; they lacked nothing; their clothes did not wear out, and their feet swelled not.

22 Thou gavest them also kingdoms and nations, which thou didst divide into various corners:[a] and they took possession of the land of Sichon, even the land of the king of Cheshbon, and the land of 'Og the king of Bashan.

[a] Aben Ezra; meaning, the Canaanites were scattered so that they fled before Israel. Rashi, "and thou gavest them their possession in a corner;" explaining, that they (the Israelites) should not mingle with the other nations. Herxheimer, "thou gavest them possessions on all sides."

23 And their children didst thou multiply like the stars of heaven, and then broughtest them into the land, concerning which thou hadst ordered their fathers to enter in to take possession of it.

24 And the children entered in and took possession of the land: and thou didst humble before them the inhabitants of the land, the Cana'anites, and gavest them up into their hands, with their kings, and the nations of the land, that they might do with them according to their pleasure.

25 And they captured fortified cities, and a fat soil; and they took possession of houses full of all good things, hewn-out wells, vineyards, and olive-yards, and fruit trees in abundance; and they ate, and were satisfied, and became fat, and delighted themselves in thy great goodness.

26 Then became they disobedient, and rebelled against thee, and cast thy law behind their back, and they slew thy prophets who had warned them to bring them back unto thee, and they practised great provocations.

27 Thereupon thou gavest them up into the hand of their adversaries, who oppressed them: and in the time of their distress they used to cry unto thee, and thou ever heardest them from heaven; and according to thy abundant mercies thou wast wont to give them helpers, who helped them out of the hand of their adversaries.

28 But when (once more) they had rest, they did again evil before thee: wherefore thou didst leave them in the hand of their enemies, so that they had dominion over them; and when they returned, and cried unto thee, thou wast wont to hear them from heaven, and thou didst ever deliver them according to thy mercies many times.

29 And thou gavest them warning to bring them back unto thy law: yet they acted presumptuously, and hearkened not unto thy commandments, and sinned against thy ordinances, which a man is to do, that he may live through them; and they rendered their shoulder rebellious, and hardened their neck, and would not hear.

30 Yet thou gavest them indulgence many years, and didst warn them through thy spirit by means of thy prophets; but they gave no ear: therefore didst thou give them up into the hand of the nations of the lands.

31 Yet in thy abundant mercies hast thou not made an entire end of them, and thou hast not forsaken them; for a gracious and merciful God art thou.

32 And now, our God, the great, the mighty, and the terrible God, who keepest the covenant and kindness, let not be esteemed as little before thee all the hardship that hath befallen us, on our kings, on our princes, and on our priests, and on our prophets, and on our fathers, and on all thy people, from the days of the kings of Assyria until this day.

33 Nevertheless thou art righteous in all that is come over us; for thou hast acted (according to) truth, but we have done wickedly.

34 Also our kings, our priests, and our fathers have not executed thy law, and have not listened unto thy commandments and thy testimonies, wherewith thou didst warn them.

35 But they in their kingdom, and in thy abundant goodness which thou hadst given unto them, and in the ample and fat land which thou hadst given up before them, did indeed not serve thee, and they turned not away from their wicked deeds.

36 Behold, we are this day servants: and as regardeth the land that thou gavest unto our fathers to eat its fruit and its good things, behold, we are servants in it;[a]

37 And it yieldeth its products in abundance for the kings whom thou hast set over us because of our sins; also over our bodies have they dominion, and over our cattle (also) at their pleasure, and we are in great distress.

CHAPTER X.[b]

1 And because of all this, we make a faithful covenant, and write it down; and on the sealed document are our princes, our Levites, and our priests.

3 (Then) Serayah, 'Azaryah, Jeremiah,

10 And the Levites: Jeshua' the son of Azanyah, Binnui, of the sons of Chenadad, Kadmiël;
11 And their brethren, Shebanyah, Hodiyah, Kelita, Palayah, Chanan,
12 Micha, Rechob, Chashabyah,
13 Zaccur, Sherebyah, Shebanyah,
14 Hodiyah, Bani, Beninu.
15 The chiefs of the people: Par'osh, Pachath-moäb, 'Elam, Zatthu, Bani, 16 Bunni, 'Azgad, Bebai,
17 Adoniyah, Bigvai, 'Adin,
18 Ater, Chizkiyah, 'Azzur,
19 Hodiyah, Chashum, Bezai,
20 Chariph, 'Anathoth, Nebai,
21 Magpi'ash, Meshullam, Chezir,
22 Meshezabel, Zadok, Jaddua',
23 Pelatyah, Chanan, 'Anayah,
24 Hoshea', Chananyah, Chasshub,
25 Hallochesh, Pilcha, Shobek,
26 Rechum, Chashabnah, Ma'asseyah,
27 And Achiyah, Chanan, 'Anan,
28 Malluch, Charim, Ba'anah.
29 And the rest of the people, the priests, the Levites, the gatekeepers, the singers, the temple-servants, and all those that had separated themselves from the nations of the lands unto the law of God, their wives, their sons, and their daughters, every one having knowledge, and having understanding,
30 Held firmly with their brethren, their nobles, and entered into a curse, and into an oath, to walk in the law of God, which was given through means of Moses the servant of God, and to observe and to do all the commandments of the Eternal One, our Lord, and his ordinances and his statutes;
31 And that we would not give our daughters unto the people of the land, nor take their daughters for our sons;
32 And that if the people of the land should bring wares or any provisions on the sabbath day to sell, we would not buy of them on the sabbath, or on (another) holy day; and that we would leave (the fields without reaping in) the seventh year, and (give up) every loan of hand.
33 And we established for us as one of the commandments to impose on ourselves (to give) the third part of a shekel in every year for the service of the house of our God;
34 For the shew-bread, and for the continual meat-offering, and for the continual burnt-offering, (for those of) the sabbaths, of the new-moons, for the appointed feasts, and for the holy things, and for the sin-offerings to make an atonement for Israel, and (for) all the work of the house of our God.
35 And we, the priests, the Levites, and the people, cast lots concerning the procuring of the wood, to bring it into the house of our God, unto the house of our fathers,[a] at fixed times, year by year, to burn upon the altar of the LORD our God, as it is written in the law;
36 And[b] to bring the first-fruits of our ground, and the first-fruits of all fruit of all trees, year by year, unto the house of the LORD;
37 And also the first-born of our sons, and of our (unclean) cattle, as it is written in the law, and to bring the first-born of our herds and of our flocks to the house of our God, unto the priests that minister in the house of our God;
38 And that we would bring the first portion of our dough, and our heave-offerings, and this of the fruit of all manner of trees, of wine and of oil, to the priests, unto the chambers of the house of our God, and the tithes of our ground unto the Levites; and that these same Levites should be the receivers of the tithes in all the cities of our land-tillage;
39 And that the priest the son of Aaron should be with the Levites, when the Levites receive the tithes; and that the Levites should bring up the tithe of the tithes unto the house of our God, to the chambers, into the treasure-house.
40 For into the chambers shall the children of Israel and the children of Levi bring the heave-offering of the corn, of the new wine, and the oil, and there shall be the vessels of the sanctuary, and the priests that minister, and the gatekeepers, and the singers: and that we will not forsake the house of our God.

[a] Rashi takes this to be another term for the temple, which was already sanctified in the time of Israel's forefathers.
[b] This connects with verse 33.

CHAPTER XI.

1 And the rulers of the people dwelt at Jerusalem: and the rest of the people cast lots, to bring one of every ten to dwell in Jerusalem the holy city, and the nine parts to (remain) in the (other) cities.

20 And the residue of Israel, of the priests, and the Levites, were in all the cities of Judah, every one in his inheritance.

21 But the temple-servants dwelt in the hill-fort; and Zicha and Gishpa were over the temple-servants.

22 And the overseer of the Levites at Jerusalem was 'Uzzi the son of Bani, the son of Chashabyah, the son of Matthanyah, the son of Micha, one of the sons of Assaph, the singers, over the business of the house of God.

22 Of the Levites in the days of Elyashib, Yoyada', and Yochanan, and Jaddua', are written down the chiefs of the divisions: also those of the priests to the reign of Darius the Persian.
23 ¶ The sons of Levi, the chiefs of the divisions were written down in the book of the chronicles, even until the days of Jochanan the son of Elyashib.
24 And the chiefs of the Levites were: Chashabyah, Sherebyah, and Jeshua' the son of Kadmiël, with their brethren opposite to them, to praise and to give thanks, according to the command of David the man of God, section by section.
25 Matthanyah, and Bakbukyah, 'Obadiah, Meshullam, Talmon, 'Akkub, were watching gatekeepers on the watch at the thresholds[b] of the gates.
26 These were in the days of Joyakim, the son of Jeshua', the son of Jozadak, and in the days of Nehemiah the governor, and of 'Ezra the priest, the expounder.
27 ¶ And at the dedication of the wall of Jerusalem they sought the Levites out of all their places, to bring them to Jerusalem, to celebrate the dedication with joy,[c] with thanksgivings, and with singing, cymbals, psalteries, and with harps.
28 And there gathered themselves together the sons of the singers, both out of the district round about Jerusalem, and from the villages of Netophah;

[a] Rashi remarks that all these were high-priests; therefore it is supposed that these verses 10 and 11 were added by the elders after Nehemiah, unless the Darius of verse 22 was Nothus, not Codomanus; as there can have been two Jadduas high priests.

[b] Rashi, בכפי as בכפי. Others, "at the treasury chambers," from אסף "to gather."

[c] Arnheim, "and a joyful festival with thanksgiving," &c. The same rendering is also adopted by Philippson here and elsewhere.

29 Also from Beth-hagilgal, and out of the fields of Geba' and Azmaveth; for the singers had built themselves villages round about Jerusalem.

30 And the priests and the Levites purified themselves, and then they purified the people, and the gates, and the wall.

31 Then brought I up the princes of Judah upon the wall, and stationed two great companies for thanksgiving, and trains to walk on the right hand upon the wall by the dung-gate;

32 And after them walked Hosha'yah, and half of the princes of Judah,

33 And 'Azaryah, 'Ezra, and Meshullam,

34 Judah, and Benjamin, and Shema'yah, and Jeremiah;

35 And of the sons of priests' with trumpets, Zechariah the son of Jonathan, the son of Shema'yah, the son of Matthanyah, the son of Michayah, the son of Zaccur, the son of Assaph;

36 And his brethren, Shema'yah, and 'Azarel, Milalai, Gilalai, Ma'ai, Nethanel, and Judah, Chanani, with the musical instruments of David the man of God; and 'Ezra the expounder walked before them.

37 And over the fountain-gate, and straight before them, they went up by the stairs of the city of David, at the ascent of the wall, above the house of David, even as far as the water-gate, eastward.

38 And the other company for thanksgiving that walked in the opposite direction to them,—this one did I follow, and the half of the people upon the wall, from beyond the tower of the ovens even as far as the broad wall;

39 And above the gate of Ephraim, and above the old gate, and above the fish-gate, and the tower of Chananel, and the tower of Meäh, even as far as the sheep-gate; and they halted at the prison-gate.[a]

40 So did the two companies for thanksgiving place themselves in the house of God, and I, and the half of the rulers with me.

41 And the priests, Elyakim, Ma'asseyah, Minyamin, Michayah, Elyo'enai, Zechariah, and Chananiah, with trumpets;

42 And Ma'asseyah, and Shema'yah, and El'azar, and 'Uzzi, and Jehochanan, and Malkiyah, and 'Elam, and 'Ezer. And the singers sang aloud,[b] with Yisrachyah as their overseer.

43 And they sacrificed on that day great sacrifices, and rejoiced; for God had caused them to rejoice with great joy; and also the women and the children rejoiced: so that the (shout of) joy of Jerusalem was heard even at a great distance off.

44 And there were appointed at that day certain men as superintendents over the chambers for the treasuries, for the heave-offerings, for the first-fruits, and for the tithes, to gather into them out of the fields of the cities the portions according to the law for the priests and the Levites; for Judah had joy on the priests and on the Levites that stood there.

45 And[c] kept the charge of their God, and the charge of the purification, and as singers and gatekeepers, according to the command of David, (and) of Solomon his son.

46 For in the days of David and Assaph of old there were chiefs of the singers, and songs of praise and thanksgiving unto God.

47 And all Israel in the days of Zerubbabel, and in the days of Nehemiah, gave the portions of the singers and the gatekeeper, what was required for every day on its day; and they sanctified things for the Levites; and the Levites sanctified (the portion due) for the children of Aaron.

CHAPTER XIII.

1 ¶ On that day there was read in the book of Moses before the ears of the people; and there was found written therein, that no 'Am-

[a] The princes and priests were divided into two companies on the wall, 'Ezra going before one, and Nehemiah following the other. Thus they marched in a row opposite ways, in the circuit of the wall; the Levites playing upon instruments and singing praises to God, and the people accompanying them on each side, part of them on the wall, and part, it may be supposed, by the side of it. When they met on the opposite side of the city, they marched in a body to the temple, and offered sacrifices and thanksgivings with rejoicings.

[b] Lit. "caused to be heard" (themselves).

[c] This verse is a continuation of verse 44, "that stood there and kept the charge," &c.

[d] As it would appear that Nehemiah had been absent for some time in Persia, whither he had returned after a residence in Palestine of about twelve years, the transaction in this chapter must have taken place on the second arrival in Palestine. Perhaps "that same day" refers to the day of the year, the first of the seventh month, as above, viii. 2.

monite or Moäbite should come into the congregation of God for ever;

2 Because they had not met the children of Israel with bread and with water, but had hired Bil'am against them, that he should curse them; although our God had changed the curse into a blessing.

3 And it came to pass, when they had heard the law, that they separated all the alien mixture from Israel.

4 And before this, Elyashib the priest, appointed[a] over the chambers of the house of our God, and a near (of kin) unto Tobiyah,

5 Had prepared for him a large chamber, where they had laid in former times the meat-offerings, the frankincense, and the vessels, and the tithes of the corn, the new wine, and the oil, which was ordained for the Levites, and the singers, and the gatekeepers, and the heave-offering of the priests.

6 But during all this I was not at Jerusalem; for in the two and thirtieth year of Artaxerxes the king of Babylon I went back unto the king, and after the lapse of some time I obtained by request (leave) of the king;[b]

7 And I came to Jerusalem, and perceived the evil that Elyashib had done for Tobiyah, in preparing for him a chamber in the courts of the house of God.

8 And it displeased me greatly: wherefore I cast forth all the household vessels of Tobiyah away out of the chamber.

9 And I gave the order, whereupon they cleansed the chambers; and I had brought thither again the vessels of the house of God, with the meat-offering and the frankincense.

10 And I perceived that the portions of the Levites had not been given (them): so that the Levites and the singers, that used to do the work, were fled every one to his field.

11 Then contended I with the rulers, and said, Why hath the house of God become forsaken? And I gathered them together, and placed them on their posts.

12 And all Judah brought the tithe of the corn and the new wine and the oil unto the treasuries.

13 And I appointed receivers over the treasuries, Shelemyah the priest, and Zadok the scribe, and Pedayah of the Levites; and with them acted[c] Chanan the son of Zaccur, the son of Matthanyah; for they were accounted as faithful, and it was their duty to make a distribution among their brethren.

14 ¶ Remember me, O my God, concerning this, and wipe not out my pious deeds which I have done for the house of my God, and for those that had charge of it.

15 In those days I saw in Judah some treading wine-presses on the sabbath, and bringing in sheaves, and lading burdens on asses, as also wine, grapes, and figs, and all manner of burdens, which they brought into Jerusalem on the sabbath day; and I warned them on the day whereon they sold provisions.[d]

16 Also the men of Tyre (that) dwelt therein brought fish and all kinds of wares, and sold (them) on the sabbath unto the children of Judah and in Jerusalem.

17 Then I contended with the nobles of Judah, and said unto them, What evil thing is this which ye are doing, and profaning (thereby) the sabbath day?

18 Did not your fathers act thus, wherefore our God brought over us all this evil, and over this city? and ye bring yet more wrath over Israel by profaning the sabbath.

19 And it came to pass, that, when the shadows were lengthened[e] in the gates of Jerusalem before the sabbath, I gave the order, whereupon the gates were locked, and I ordered that they should not be opened till after the sabbath: and some of my young men did I place at the gates, that there should be brought in no burden on the sabbath-day.

20 But the merchants and sellers of all kinds of wares lodged outside of Jerusalem once or twice.

21 Thereupon did I warn them, and said unto them, Why do ye lodge along the wall? if ye do so again, I will lay hands on you. From that time forth they came no more on the sabbath.

22 ¶ And I ordered the Levites that they should cleanse themselves, and that they should come and keep watch at the gates, to sanctify the sabbath-day. Also this remember unto me, O my God, and shield me according to the abundance of thy kindness.

23 In those days also I saw certain Jews that had brought home wives of Ashdod, of 'Ammon, and of Moäb:

24 And their children spoke partly in the speech of Ashdod, and did not understand to speak in the Jewish language, but according to the language of one or the other people.

25 And I contended with them, and cursed them, and smote certain of them, and plucked out their hair, and made them swear by God, saying, Ye shall not give your daughters unto their sons, nor take their daughters for your sons, nor for yourselves.

26 Did not Solomon the king of Israel sin by these things? and although among the many nations there was never a king like him, and beloved as he was by his God, and God had placed him as king over all Israel: nevertheless even him did the alien women mislead to sin.

27 Shall we then hear it said of you, that ye do all this great evil, to trespass against our God in bringing home alien wives?

28 And one of the sons of Joyada', the son of Elyashib the high priest, was son-in-law to Sanballat the Choronite: wherefore I chased him away from me.

29 Remember (this) unto them, O my God, because of the defilements of the priesthood, and of the covenant of the priesthood, and of the Levites.

30 Thus cleansed I them from all aliens, and I appointed the watches of the priests and the Levites, every one in his work;

31 And for the procuring of the wood, at fixed times, and for the first-fruits. Remember this unto me, O my God, for good.

16 And the sons of Jehalelel: Ziph, and Ziphah, Thireya, and Assarel.

17 And the sons of 'Ezrah: Jether, and Mered, and 'Epher, and Jalon. And she conceived (and bore)[b] Miriam, and Shammai, and Yishbach the father of Eshthemoä'.

18 And his wife the Jewess bore Jered the father of Gedor, and Cheber the father of Socho, and Jekuthiël the father of Zanoäch. And these are the sons of Bithyah the daughter of Pharaoh, whom Mered had taken (for wife).

26 And the sons of Mishma': Hamuel his son, Zaccur his son, Shim'i his son.

27 And Shim'i had sixteen sons and six daughters; but his brethren had not many children, nor did all their family multiply, equal to the children of Judah.

32 And their villages were 'Etam, and 'Ayin, Rimmon, and Tochen, and 'Ashan, five cities;

[a] The word "father" here used, as also frequently in these genealogies, means ancestor of the people of the place mentioned.

[b] It is probable that the latter part of verse 18 should be transposed before this passage, so that "she" spoken of here is Bithyah.

33 And all their villages that were round about these same cities, as far as Ba'al. These were their dwelling-places, and after them are they recorded.[a]

34 And Meshobab, and Jamlech, and Joshah the son of Amazyah,

39 And they went to the entrance of Gedor, as far as the east side of the valley, to seek pasture for their flocks.

40 And they found a fat and good pasture, and the land was roomy, and quiet, and peaceable; for descendants of Ham dwelt there before that time.

41 And then came these written down by name in the days of Hezekiah the king of Judah, and smote their tents, and the habitations[b] that were found there, and destroyed them utterly unto this day, and dwelt in their stead; because there was pasture there for their flocks.

42 And some of them, even of the sons of Simeon, five hundred men, went to mount Se'ir having at their head Pelatyah, and Ne'aryah, and Rephayah, and 'Uzziël, the sons of Yish'i.

43 And they smote the rest of the 'Amalekites[c] that were escaped, and dwelt there unto this day.

CHAPTER V.

1 ¶ And the sons of Reüben the first-born of Israel—for he was the first-born; but, when he defiled his father's bed, was his birthright given unto the sons of Joseph the son of Israel: so that the genealogy is not to be reckoned after the first-birth.

2 For Judah became the mightiest of his brothers, and the prince descended from him: while the first-birthright belonged to Joseph.—

3 ¶ The sons of Reüben the first-born of Israel were, Chanoch, and Pallu, Chezron, and Carmi.

4 The sons of Joël: Shema'yah his son, Gog his son, Shim'i his son,

5 Michah his son, Reäyah his son, Ba'al his son,

6 Beërah his son, whom Tilgath-pilneësser the king of Assyria carried into exile: he was the prince of the Reübenites.

7 And his brethren by their families, according to their genealogy after their generations, were, the chief, Je'iël, and Zecharyahu,

8 And Bela' the son of 'Azaz, the son of Shema', the son of Joël, who dwelt in 'Aro'er, and as far as Nebo and Ba'al-me'on;

9 And to the eastward he dwelt as far as the entrance of the wilderness from the river Euphrates;[d] because their cattle were numerous in the land of Gil'ad.

10 And in the days of Saül they made war with the Hagarenes, who fell by their hand; and they dwelt in their tents in the whole front of the land to the east of Gil'ad.

11 ¶ And the children of Gad dwelt alongside of them, in the land of Bashan as far as Salchah.

12 Joël the chief, and Shapham the next, and Ja'nai, and Shaphat in Bashan.

13 And their brethren according to their family divisions were, Michaël, and Meshullam, and Sheba', and Jorai, and Ya'kan, and Zia', and 'Eber, seven.

14 ¶ These are the children of Abichayil the son of Churi, the son of Jaroäch, the son of Gil'ad, the son of Michaël, the son of Jeshishai, the son of Jachdo, the son of Buz:

ites, and the half tribe of Menasseh, of valiant men, men able to bear shield and sword, and to draw the bow, and practised in war, were four and forty thousand seven hundred and sixty, that went out to the army.

19 And they made war with the Hagarenes, and Jetur, and Naphish, and Nodab.

20 And they obtained help against them, and the Hagarenes were delivered into their hand, and all that were with them; for to God they cried in the battle, and he was entreated by them; because they put their trust in him.

21 And they led away captive their cattle: of their camels fifty thousand, and of sheep two hundred and fifty thousand, and of asses two thousand, and of human beings one hundred thousand.

22 For there fell down many slain; because the war was of God. And they dwelt in their stead until the exile.

23 ¶ And the children of the half tribe of Menasseh dwelt in the land: from Bashan unto Ba'al-chermon and Senir and mount Chermon were they numerous.

24 And these were the heads of their family divisions: namely, 'Epher, and Yish'i, and Eliël, and 'Azriël, and Jeremiah, and Hodavyah, and Jachdiël, mighty men of valour, famous men, (and) heads of their family divisions.

25 ¶ But they trespassed against the God of their fathers, and went astray after the gods of the people of the land, whom God had destroyed from before them.

26 And the God of Israel stirred up the spirit of Pul the king of Assyria, and the spirit of Tilgath-pilneser the king of Assyria, and he carried them into exile, even the Reübenites, and the Gadites, and the half tribe of Menasseh, and brought them unto Chalach, and Chabor, and Hara, and to the river Gozan, even until this day.

10 ¶ And of the priests: Jeda'yah, and Jehoyarib, and Jachin,

11 And 'Azaryah the son of Chilkiyah, the son of Meshullam, the son of Zadok, the son of Merayoth, the son of Achitub, the ruler of the house of God.

12 ¶ And 'Adayah the son of Jerocham, the son of Pashchur, the son of Malkiyah, and Ma'sai the son of 'Adiël, the son of Jachzerah, the son of Meshullam, the son of Meshillemith, the son of Immer;

13 And their brethren, chiefs of their family divisions, were one thousand and seven hundred and sixty, very able men[a] for the work of the service of the house of God.

14 ¶ And of the Levites: Shema'yah the son of Chasshub, the son of 'Azrikam, the son of Chashabyah, of the sons of Merari;

15 And Bakbakkar, Cheresh, and Galal, and Matthanyah the son of Micha, the son of Zichri, the son of Assaph;

16 And 'Obadiah the son of Shema'yah, the son of Galal, the son of Jeduthun; and Berechyah the son of Assa, the son of Elkanah, that dwelt in the villages of the Netophathites.

17 And the gatekeepers were, Shallum, and 'Akkub, and Talmon, and Achiman, and their brethren, Shallum being the chief;

18 And up to this time they are in the king's gate to the eastward: they are the gatekeepers for the camps of the children of Levi.

19 And Shallum the son of Koré, the son of Ebyassaph, the son of Korach, and his brethren, of the house of his father, the Korchites, being over the work of the service, were the watchmen at the threshold of the tabernacle: and their fathers, being over the camp[b] of the LORD, were the watchmen at the entrance (thereof).

20 And Phinehas the son of El'azar was the ruler over them in times past; (and) the LORD was with him.

21 (And) Zechariah the son of Meshelemyah was gatekeeper at the entrance of the tabernacle of the congregation.

22 All of these selected to be gatekeepers at the thresholds were two hundred and twelve. These were recorded according to their genealogy in their villages; (and they were) those (whom) David and Samuel the seër did ordain in their trust.[c]

23 Both they and their children had the oversight over the gates of the house of the LORD, (namely,) the house of the tabernacle, as watches.

24 On four quarters were the gatekeepers, toward the east, the west, the north, and the south.

25 And their brethren, who were in their villages, had to come after every seven days from time to time in common with these.

26 For in (their) trust were these[d] four chief gatekeepers—these Levites, and they were (appointed) over the chambers and treasuries of the house of God.

27 And they lodged round about the house of God; because upon them rested the duty of watching, and they had the supervision of the opening thereof each and every morning.

28 And some of them had the charge of the vessels for the service; for by number did they bring them in, and by number did they carry them out.

29 Some of them also were appointed over the vessels, and over all the vessels of the sanctuary, and over the fine flour, and the wine, and the oil, and the frankincense, and the spices.

30 And some of the sons of the priests prepared the mixture of the spices.

31 And Matthithyah, one of the Levites, who was the first-born of Shallum the Korchite, had the trust over the meat-offerings that were baked in the pans.

32 And others of their brethren, of the sons of the Kehathites, were over the orders of the shew-bread, to prepare it every sabbath.

33 ¶ But these the singers, the chiefs of the divisions of the Levites, remained in the chambers free of service; for day and night were they obliged to engage in that work.

34 These are the chiefs of the divisions of the Levites, being the chiefs for their generations: these dwelt at Jerusalem.

35 ¶ And in Gib'on dwelt the father of Gib'on, Je'iël; and the name of his wife was Ma'achah;

36 And his first-born son was 'Abdon, then Zur, and Kish, and Ba'al, and Ner, and Nadab, 37 And Gedor, and Achyo, and Zechariah, and Mikloth.

38 And Mikloth begat Shimam. And they also dwelt alongside of their brethren at Jerusalem, with their brethren.

39 ¶ And Ner begat Kish; and Kish begat Saül; and Saül begat Jehonathan, and Malki-shua', and Abinadab, and Eshba'al.

40 And the son of Jehonathan was Merib-ba'al: and Merib-ba'al begat Michah.

41 And the sons of Michah were, Pithon, and Melech, and Thachreä'.

42 And Achaz[a] begat Ja'rah; and Ja'rah begat 'Alemeth, 'Azmaveth, and Zimri; and Zimri begat Moza;

43 And Moza begat Bin'a; and Rephayah his son, El'assah his son, Azel his son.

44 And Azel had six sons, and these are their names, 'Azrikam, Bocheru, and Ishmael, and She'aryah, and 'Obadiah, and Chanan: these were the sons of Azel.

CHAPTER X.

1 ¶ Now the Philistines fought against Israel: and the men of Israel fled from before the Philistines, and there fell down (many) slain on mount Gilboä'.

2 And the Philistines pursuing them overtook Saül and his sons; and the Philistines smote Jonathan, and 'Abinadab, and Malki-shua', the sons of Saül.

3 And the battle was heavy against Saül, and he was found by the archers, and he was greatly in dread of the archers.

4 And Saül said to his armour-bearer, Draw thy sword, and thrust me through therewith; lest these uncircumcised come and wantonly ill-use me. But his armour-bearer would not; for he was greatly afraid: wherefore Saül took the sword and fell upon it.

5 And when his armour-bearer saw that Saül was dead, then fell he likewise on the sword, and died.

6 Thus died Saül and his three sons; and all his household died together.

7 And when all the men of Israel that were in the valley saw that they had fled, and that Saül and his sons were dead: they forsook their cities, and fled, and the Philistines came and dwelt in them.

8 ¶ And it came to pass on the morrow, that the Philistines came to strip the slain; and they found Saül and his sons fallen on mount Gilboä'.

9 And they stripped him, and they carried away his head, and his armour, and sent them into the land of the Philistines round about, to publish it to their idols, and to the people.

10 And they put his armour in the house of their gods, and his skull they fastened in the temple of Dagon.

11 ¶ And when all Yabesh-gil'ad heard all that the Philistines had done to Saül:

12 Then arose all the valiant men, and carried away the body of Saül, and the bodies of his sons, and brought them to Yabesh; and they buried their bones under the terebinth in Yabesh, and they fasted seven days.

13 And (so) died Saul for his unfaithfulness which he had committed against the LORD, because of the word of the LORD which he had not kept, and also for asking one of a familiar spirit to inquire of the same;

14 And had not inquired of the LORD: therefore he slew him, and turned over the kingdom unto David the son of Jesse.

CHAPTER XI.

1 ¶ Then did all Israel gather themselves unto David unto Hebron, saying, Behold, thy bone and thy flesh are we.

2 Already yesterday and even before, even when Saül was king, thou wast he that led out and brought in Israel: and the LORD thy God said unto thee, Thou shalt indeed feed my people Israel, and thou shalt be truly a chief over my people Israel.

3 Thus came all the elders of Israel to the king to Hebron; and David made a covenant with them in Hebron before the LORD; and they anointed David as king over Israel, according to the word of the LORD through means of Samuel.

[a] Another son of Michah. (See viii. 35.)

4 ¶ And David and all Israel went to Jerusalem, which is Jebus; and there were the Jebusites, the inhabitants of the land.

5 And the inhabitants of Jebus said to David, Thou shalt not come in hither. Nevertheless David captured the strong-hold of Zion, the same is the City of David.

6 And David said, Whosoever doth smite the Jebusites at first shall be head and chief. Then did Joäb the son of Zeruyah go up at first, and became head-man.

7 And David dwelt in the castle: therefore they called it, "The City of David."

8 And he built the city round about, even from the Millo as far as the surrounding district, and Joäb repaired the rest of the city.

9 And David went on, and became greater and greater, and the LORD of hosts was with him.

10 ¶ These also are the principals of the mighty men whom David had, who held firmly with him in his kingdom, with all Israel, to make him king, according to the word of the LORD concerning Israel.

11 And this is the number of the mighty men whom David had: Jashob'am, the son of Chachmoni, the chief of the captains, who lifted up his spear against three hundred slain at one time.

12 And after him was El'azar the son of Dodo, the Achochite, who was one of the three mighty men.

13 He was with David at Pass-dammim, and the Philistines were gathered together there to battle, and there was a piece of ground full of barley; and the people had fled from before the Philistines.

14 And they placed themselves in the midst of that piece (of ground), and they delivered it, and smote the Philistines; and the LORD helped (them) with a great victory.

15 And these three, the chiefs of the thirty, went down to the rock to David, to the cave of 'Adullam; and the camp of the Philistines was pitched in the valley of Rephaïm.

16 And David was then in the strong-hold, and an outpost of the Philistines was then at Beth-lechem.

17 And David longed, and said, Oh that some one would bring me water to drink out of the well of Beth-lechem, which is by the gate!

18 And the three broke through the camp of the Philistines, and drew water out of the well of Beth-lechem, which was by the gate, and carried it, and brought it to David; but David would not drink thereof, and poured it out unto the LORD.

19 And he said, Far be it from me, before my God, that I should do this: shall I drink the blood of these men that went at the risk of their lives? for at the risk of their lives did they bring it; and thus he would not drink it. These things did the three mighty men.

20 And Abshai the brother of Joäb was the chief of these three; and he lifted up his spear against three hundred slain, and had a name among the three.

21 Of the three, he was more honoured than the two, wherefore he became their captain: he nevertheless attained not unto the three (in prowess).

22 Banayah the son of Jehoyada', the son of a valiant man, great in many acts, of Kabzeël: he it was that smote the two lionlike heroes of Moäb; he also went down and smote a lion in the midst of a pit on a day when it snowed.

23 And he smote an Egyptian, a man of great stature, five cubits high; and in the Egyptian's hand was a spear like a weaver's beam; and he went down to him with a staff, and he snatched the spear out of the Egyptian's hand, and slew him with his own spear.

24 These things did Benayah the son of Jehoyada'; and he had a name among the mighty men.

25 Behold, he was indeed more honoured than the thirty; but he attained not to the first three. And David appointed him over his private council.

26 And the mighty men of the armies were, 'Assahël the brother of Joäb, Elchanan the son of Dodo of Beth-lechem,

27 Shammoth the Harorite, Chelez the Pelonite,

28 'Ira the son of 'Ikkesh the Theko'ite, Abi'ezer the 'Antothite,

29 Sibbechai the Chushathite, 'Ilai the Achochite,

30 Maharai the Netophathite, Cheled the son of Ba'anah the Netophathite,
31 Ithai the son of Ribai of Gib'ah, of the children of Benjamin, Benayah the Pir'athonite,
32 Churai of the Nachalé-Ga'ash, Abiël the 'Arbathite,
33 'Azmaveth the Bacharumite, Elyachba the Sha'albonite,
34 Bnai-hashem the Gizonite, Jonathan the son of Shagé the Hararite,
35 Achiäm the son of Sachar the Hararite, Eliphal the son of Ur,
36 Chepher the Mecherathite, Achiyah the Pelonite,
37 Chezro the Carmelite, Na'arai the son of Ezbai,
38 Joël the brother of Nathan, Mibchar the son of Hagri,
39 Zelek the 'Ammonite, Nachrai the Berothite, the armour-bearer of Joäb the son of Zeruyah,
40 'Ira the Yithrite, Gareb the Yithrite,
41 Uriyah the Hittite, Zabad the son of Achlai,
42 'Adina the son of Shiza the Reübenite, a chief of the Reübenites, and with him were thirty (men),
43 Chanan the son of Ma'achah, and Joshaphat the Mithnite,
44 'Uzziya the 'Ashterathite, Shama' and Je'iël the sons of Chothan the 'Aro'erite, 45 Jedi'aël the son of Shimri, and Jocha his brother, the Thizite,
46 Eliël the Machavite, and Jeribai, and Joshavyah, the sons of Elna'am, and Yithmah the Moäbite, 47 Eliël, and 'Obed, and Ja'asiël the Mezobayite.

CHAPTER XII.

1 ¶ And these are those that came to David to Ziklag, while he yet kept himself close because of Saül the son of Kish: and they were among the mighty men, confederates[a] for the war,
2 Who were armed with bows, and could use both the right and the left hand in (hurling) stones and shooting arrows with the bow, even of the brethren of Saül out of Benjamin.
3 The chiefs were Achi'ezer, then Joäsh, the sons of Hashema'ah the Gib'athite; and Jeziël, and Pelet, the sons of 'Azmaveth; and Berachah, and Jehu the 'Anthothite,
4 And Yishma'yah the Gib'onite, a mighty man among the thirty, and over the thirty; and Jeremiah, and Jachaziël, and Jochanan, and Jozabad the Gederathite,
5 El'uzai, and Jerimoth, and Be'alyah, and Shemaryahu, and Shephatyahu the Chariphite,
6 Elkanah, and Yishiyahu, and 'Azarel, and Jo'ezer, and Jashob'am, the Korchites,
7 And Jo'elah, and Zebadyah, the sons of Jerocham of Gedor.
8 And of the Gadites there separated themselves unto David into the strong-hold in the wilderness mighty men of valour, and men of the army for the war, that could handle shield and lance, whose faces were like the faces of lions, and were as the roebucks upon the mountains in swiftness.
9 'Ezer was the chief, 'Obadiah the second, Eliäb the third,
10 Mishmannah the fourth, Jeremiah the fifth,
11 'Attai the sixth, Eliël the seventh,
12 Jochanan the eighth, Elzabad the ninth,
13 Jirmiyahu the tenth, Machbanai the eleventh,
14 ¶ These were of the sons of Gad, the chiefs of the army: one of the least could fight[b] with a hundred, and the greatest with a thousand.
15 These are those that passed over the Jordan in the first month, when it had overflowed all its banks; and they put to flight all the men of the valleys, both toward the east, and toward the west.
16 And there came some of the children of Benjamin and of Judah as far as the strong-hold unto David.
17 And David went out to meet them, and commenced and said unto them, If ye be come for peace unto me, to help me, my heart shall be inclined toward you to unite with you; but if it be to betray me to my adversaries while there is no violence in my hands, then may the God of our fathers look on and decide it.
18 Then a spirit[c] invested 'Amassai, the chief of the captains, (who said,) Thine are we, David, and with thee, O son of Jesse; peace, peace be unto thee, and peace be to every one that helpeth thee; for thy God helpeth thee. Then David received them, and placed them at the head of the troop.

[a] Lit. "helpers."

[c] Rashi and Redak explain it with "will," or "impulse," not prophecy.

19 ¶ And some of Menasseh went over to David, when he came with the Philistines against Saül to battle; but he helped them not; for upon consultation did the lords of the Philistines send him away, saying, With our heads will he go over to his master Saül.

20 As he was going over to Ziklag, there went over to him of Menasseh, 'Adnach, and Jozabad, and Jedi'aël, and Michaël, and Jozabad, and Elihu, and Zillethai, captains of the thousands that belonged to Menasseh.

21 And they were those that helped David against the band (of 'Amalekites); for they were all mighty men of valour, and they became officers in the army.

22 For all the time, day by day, people used to come to David to help him, until the camp became great, like the camp of God.

23 ¶ And these are the numbers of the heads of those ready armed for the host that came to David to Hebron, to turn over the kingdom of Saül to him, according to the order of the LORD.

24 ¶ The children of Judah that bore shield and spear were six thousand and eight hundred, ready armed for the host.

25 ¶ Of the children of Simeon, mighty men of valour for the host, seven thousand and one hundred.

26 ¶ Of the children of Levi four thousand and six hundred.

27 ¶ And Jehoyada' was the leader of the family of Aaron, and with him were three thousand and seven hundred.

28 ¶ Also Zadok, a young man, mighty of valour, and his family division twenty and two chiefs.

29 ¶ And of the children of Benjamin, the brethren of Saül, three thousand; for till that time the greatest part of them had kept the charge of the house of Saül.

30 ¶ And of the children of Ephraim twenty thousand and eight hundred, mighty men of valour, men of fame in their family divisions.

31 ¶ And of the half tribe of Menasseh eighteen thousand, who had been expressed by name, to come to make David king.

32 ¶ And of the children of Issachar, those who had understanding of the times,[a] to know what Israel ought to do,—their heads were two hundred; and all their brethren were ready at their order.

33 ¶ Of Zebulun, such as went forth to the host, arrayed for battle, with all manner of weapons of war, fifty thousand; and these were ready to place themselves in battle array with an undivided heart.

34 ¶ And of Naphtali one thousand captains, and with them were with shield and spear thirty and seven thousand.

35 ¶ And of the Danites arrayed for battle twenty and eight thousand and six hundred.

36 ¶ And of Asher, such as went forth to the host to put themselves in battle array, forty thousand.

37 ¶ And from the other side of the Jordan, of the Reübenites, and the Gadites, and the half tribe of Menasseh, with all manner of weapons of the host for war, one hundred and twenty thousand.

38 All these men of war, that placed themselves in battle array, came with an entire heart to Hebron, to make David king over all Israel: and also all the rest of Israel were of one heart to make David king.

39 And they were there with David three days eating and drinking; for their brethren had prepared for them.

40 And also those that were nigh unto them, as far as Issachar and Zebulun and Naphtali, brought in bread on asses, and on camels, and on mules, and on oxen, food made of meal, cakes of figs, and bunches of raisins, and wine, and oil, and oxen, and sheep in abundance; for there was joy in Israel.

CHAPTER XIII.

1 ¶ And David consulted with the officers of the thousands and hundreds, and with every leader.

2 And David said unto all the congregation of Israel, If it seem good unto you, and if it be of the LORD our God, let us send

[a] Rashi explains, "who were capable to give advice." The Talmudists refer this to the knowledge of the calendar, in which the men of Issachar are said to have excelled widely about unto our brethren who are left in all the lands of Israel, and with them unto the priests and Levites who are in their cities and open districts, that they may gather themselves together unto us.

3 And let us bring round the ark of our God to us; for we have inquired not at it[a] in the days of Saül.

4 And all the congregation said that this should be done; for the thing was right in the eyes of all the people.

5 So David assembled all Israel together, from Shichor of Egypt even unto the entrance of Chemath, to bring the ark of God from Kiryath-ye'arim.

6 And David went up, with all Israel, to Ba'alah, (that is) to Kiryath-ye'arim, which belonged to Judah, to bring up thence the ark of God the LORD, that dwelleth between the cherubim, whose name is called (on it).

7 And they conveyed the ark of God in a new wagon out of the house of Abinadab: and 'Uzza and Achyo guided the wagon.

8 And David and all Israel played before God with all their might, and with singing, and on harps, and on psalteries, and on tambourines, and with cymbals, and with trumpets.

9 And when they came as far as the threshing-floor of Kidon, 'Uzza put forth his hand to take hold of the ark; for the oxen shook it.

10 And the anger of the LORD was kindled against 'Uzza, and he smote him, because he had put forth his hand toward the ark: and he died there before God.

11 And it was grievous to David, because the LORD had suddenly taken away 'Uzza; and he called that place Perez-'uzza [Breach of 'Uzza] until this day.

12 And David was afraid of God that day, saying, How shall I bring home to me the ark of God?

13 So David removed not the ark unto himself into the city of David, but had it carried round into the house of 'Obed-edom the Gittite.

14 And the ark of God remained in the house of 'Obed-edom, in his house, three months. And the LORD blessed the house of 'Obed-edom, and all that belonged to him.

CHAPTER XIV.

1 ¶ And Churam the king of Tyre sent messengers to David, and trees of cedars, and masons and carpenters, to build him a house.

2 And David felt conscious that the LORD had established him as king over Israel; for his kingdom was exalted on high, because of his people Israel.

3 ¶ And David took yet more wives at Jerusalem; and David begat more sons and daughters.

4 And these are the names of the children that he had in Jerusalem: Shammua', and Shobab, Nathan, and Solomon,

5 And Yibchar, and Elishua', and Elpalet,

6 And Nogah, and Nepheg, and Yaphia',

7 And Elishama', and Be'elyada', and Eliphalet.

8 ¶ But when the Philistines heard that David had been anointed as king over all Israel, all the Philistines came up to seek David: and David heard of it, and went out against them.

9 And the Philistines came and spread themselves out in the valley of Rephaim.

10 And David asked counsel of God, saying, Shall I go up against the Philistines? and wilt thou deliver them into my hand? And the LORD said unto him, Go up; and I will deliver them into thy hand.

11 And they came up to Ba'al-perazim; and David smote them there. Then David said, God hath broken down my enemies through my hand as a breach (is made) by water: therefore they called the name of that place Ba'al-perazim.[b]

12 And they left behind there their gods, and David gave the order, and they were burnt with fire.

13 ¶ And the Philistines (came) once again, and spread themselves out in the valley.

14 And David asked again counsel of God; and God said unto him, Thou shalt not go up after them: turn about from them, and come upon them opposite to the mulberry-trees,

15 And it shall be, when thou hearest the sound of walking on the tops of the mulberry-trees, that then thou shalt go out to battle; for God will be gone forth before thee to smite the camp of the Philistines.

[a] Zunz, "have not sought him," i. e. God.

[b] i. e. The valley of breaches.

16 And David did as God had commanded him; and they smote the camp of the Philistines from Gib'on as far as Gezer.

17 And the fame of David went out into all the lands; and the LORD laid the dread of him upon all the nations.

CHAPTER XV.

1 And (David) made himself houses in the city of David, and he prepared a place for the ark of God, and pitched for it a tent.

2 ¶ Then said David, None shall carry the ark of God but the Levites; for of them hath the LORD made choice to carry the ark of God, and to minister unto him for ever.

3 ¶ And David assembled all Israel to Jerusalem, to bring up the ark of the LORD unto its place, which he had prepared for it.

4 And David gathered together the children of Aaron, and the Levites.

5 ¶ Of the sons of Kehath: Uriël the chief, and his brethren one hundred and twenty.

6 ¶ Of the sons of Merari: 'Assayah the chief, and his brethren two hundred and twenty.

7 ¶ Of the sons of Gershom: Joël the chief, and his brethren one hundred and thirty.

8 ¶ Of the sons of Elizaphan: Shema'yah the chief, and his brethren two hundred.

9 ¶ Of the sons of Hebron: Eliël the chief, and his brethren eighty.

10 ¶ Of the sons of 'Uzziël: 'Amminadab the chief, and his brethren one hundred and twelve.

11 ¶ And David called for Zadok and Ebyathar the priests, and for the Levites, for Uriël, 'Assayah, and Joël, Shema'yah, and Eliël, and 'Amminadab, 12 And he said unto them, Ye are the chiefs of the family divisions of the Levites: sanctify yourselves, ye and your brethren, and bring up the ark of the LORD the God of Israel unto (the place which) I have prepared for it.

13 For, because ye (did) it not at the first, the LORD our God made a breach among us; because we had not sought him after the prescribed manner.

14 So the priests and the Levites sanctified themselves to bring up the ark of the LORD the God of Israel.

15 And the children of the Levites bore the ark of God, as Moses had commanded according to the word of the LORD, on their shoulders, by means of barrows placed upon them.

16 ¶ And David said to the chiefs of the Levites to appoint their brethren the singers with instruments of music, psalteries and harps and cymbals, to sing aloud, by lifting up the voice for joy.

17 ¶ So the Levites appointed Heman the son of Joël, and of his brethren, Assaph the son of Berechyahu, and of the sons of Merari their brethren, Ethan the son of Kushayahu;

18 And with them their brethren of the second degree, Zecharyahu, Ben, and Ja'aziël, and Shemiramoth, and Jechiël, and 'Unni, Eliäb, and Benayahu, and Ma'asseyahu, and Matthithyahu, and Eliphelehu, and Mikneyahu, and 'Obed-edom, and Je'iël, the gatekeepers.

19 Namely, the singers, Heman, Assaph, and Ethan, to play aloud with cymbals of copper;

20 And Zechariah, and 'Aziël, and Shemiramoth, and Jechiël, and 'Unni, and Eliäb, and Ma'asseyahu, and Benayahu, with psalteries on 'Alamoth;

21 And Matthithyahu, and Eliphelehu, and Mikneyahu, and 'Obed-edom, and Je'iël, and 'Azazyahu, with harps on the Sheminith to play as leaders.[a]

22 And Kenanyahu was the chief of the Levites in conducting the singing: he instructed in conducting the singing, because he was skilful.

23 And Berechyah and Elkanah were gatekeepers for the ark.

24 And Shebanyahu, and Joshaphat, and Nethanel, and 'Amassai, and Zecharyahu, and Benayahu, and Eli'ezer, the priests, did blow on the trumpets before the ark of God; and 'Obed-edom and Jechiyah were gatekeepers for the ark.

25 ¶ And it was David, with the elders of Israel, and the officers over the thousands, who went to bring up the ark of the covenant of the LORD out of the house of 'Obed-edom with joy.

26 ¶ And it came to pass, when God

[a] Zunz. These were the leaders in the orchestra; the others, musicians.

helped the Levites who carried the ark of the covenant of the LORD, that they offered seven bullocks and seven rams.

27 And David was clothed with a robe of fine linen, and (so were) all the Levites that carried the ark, and the singers, and Kenanyah the chief in conducting the singing of the singers; but David had also upon him an ephod of linen.

28 Thus all Israel brought up the ark of the covenant of the LORD with shouting, and with the sound of the cornet, and with trumpets, and with cymbals, playing aloud on psalteries and harps.

29 And it happened, as the ark of the covenant of the LORD came as far as the city of David, that Michal the daughter of Saül looked through the window, and saw king David dancing and playing, and she despised him in her heart.

CHAPTER XVI.

1 ¶ And they brought in the ark of God, and set it in the midst of the tent that David had pitched for it; and they offered burnt-offerings and peace-offerings before God.

2 And when David had made an end of offering the burnt-offerings and the peace-offerings, he blessed the people in the name of the LORD.

3 And he dealt out to every one of Israel, both man and woman, to every one a loaf of bread, and a piece of flesh, and a flagon of wine.

4 ¶ And he placed before the ark of the LORD several of the Levites as ministers, and to chaunt hymns, and to give praise and thanks unto the LORD the God of Israel:

5 Assaph the chief, and next to him Zechariah; Je'iël, and Shemiramoth, and Jechiël, and Matthithyah, and Eliäb, and Benayahu, and 'Obed-edom; and Je'iël with psalteries and with harps; but Assaph played aloud with the cymbals.

6 And Benayahu and Jachaziël the priests were with the trumpets continually before the ark of the covenant of God.

7 On that day—then did David appoint for the first time[a] to give thanks to the LORD through means of Assaph and his brethren.

8 ¶ O give thanks unto the LORD; call on his name; make known among the people his deeds.

9 Sing unto him, sing praises unto him: speak of all his wonderful works.

10 Glorify yourselves in his holy name: let the heart of those rejoice that seek the LORD.

11 Inquire after the LORD and his strength: seek his presence evermore.

12 Remember his wonderful works which he hath done, his tokens, and the decrees of his mouth;

13 O ye seed of Israel his servant, ye children of Jacob, his elect.

14 He is the LORD our God: over all the earth are his decrees.

15 Remember ye for ever his covenant, the word which he hath commanded to the thousandth generation,

16 Which he covenanted with Abraham, and his oath unto Isaac:

17 And which he established unto Jacob as a statute, unto Israel as an everlasting covenant;

18 Saying, Unto thee will I give the land of Canaan, as the portion of your inheritance;

19 When ye were but few men in number; yea, very few, and strangers in it.

20 And when they wandered from one nation to another, and from one kingdom to another people:

21 He suffered no man to oppress them; yea, he reproved kings for their sake.

22 Saying, "Touch not my anointed, and do my prophets no harm."—

23 Sing unto the LORD all ye lands: announce from day to day his salvation.

24 Relate among the nations his glory: among all the people his wonderful deeds.

25 For great is the LORD, and greatly praised; and he is to be feared above all gods.

26 For all the gods of the people are idols; but the LORD hath made the heavens.

27 Majesty and honour are in his presence strength and gladness are in his place.

28 Ascribe unto the LORD, O ye families of people, ascribe unto the LORD glory and strength.

29 Ascribe unto the LORD the glory due unto his name; take up an offering, and come into his presence; bow down before the LORD in the beauty of holiness.

[a] Zunz, בראש "through the chief;" but Redak would render it, "for Assaph to commence," so that the others responded.

30 Tremble before him, all ye lands! Also the world standeth firmly, that it be not moved.

31 Let the heavens rejoice, and let the earth be glad; and let men say among the nations, The LORD reigneth.

32 Let the sea roar, with all that filleth it: let the fields rejoice, and all that is therein.

33 Then shall the trees of the forest sing joyfully at the presence of the LORD; because he cometh to judge the earth.

34 O give thanks unto the LORD; for he is good; because unto everlasting endureth his kindness.

35 And say ye, Save us, O God of our salvation, and gather us together, and deliver us from the nations, that we may give thanks to thy holy name, to glorify ourselves in thy praise.

36 Blessed be the LORD the God of Israel from everlasting even unto everlasting. And all the people said, Amen, and praise unto the LORD.

37 ¶ And he left there in charge before the ark of the covenant of the LORD Asaph and his brethren, to minister before the ark continually, at the work of every day on its day,

38 And 'Obed-edom with their brethren, sixty and eight, and 'Obed-edom the son of Jeduthun and Chossah to be gatekeepers;

39 And Zadok the priest, and his brethren the priests, before the tabernacle of the LORD, in the high-place that was at Gib'on,

40 To offer burnt-offerings unto the LORD upon the altar of the burnt-offering continually at morning and at evening, and this in accordance with all that is written in the law of the LORD, which he had commanded concerning Israel;

41 And with them Heman and Jeduthun, and the rest that were selected who were expressed by name, to give thanks to the LORD, because unto everlasting endureth his kindness;

42 And with them, with Heman and Jeduthun, the trumpets and cymbals to play aloud, and the musical instruments of God; and the sons of Jeduthun to be for the service at the gate.

43 And all the people went every man to his house; and David turned about to bless his house.

CHAPTER XVII.

1 ¶ And it came to pass, when David dwelt in his house, that David said unto Nathan the prophet, Lo, I dwell in a house of cedar, while the ark of the covenant of the LORD is under curtains.

2 And Nathan said unto David, All that is in thy heart do; for God is with thee.

3 ¶ And it came to pass during that night, that the word of God came unto Nathan, saying,

4 Go and say unto David my servant, Thus hath said the LORD, Not thou shalt build for me the house to dwell in;

5 For I have not dwelt in a house since the day that I brought up Israel even until this day; but have been (moving) from tent to tent, and from (one) tabernacle (to another).

6 In all the places where I moved about among all Israel, did I speak a word to any one of the judges of Israel, whom I had ordained to feed my people, saying, Why have ye not built for me a house of cedar?

7 Now therefore, thus shalt thou say unto my servant, to David, Thus hath said the LORD of hosts, I took thee away from the sheepcote, from behind the flocks, to be a ruler over my people Israel;

8 And I have been with thee whithersoever thou didst go, and I have cut off all thy enemies from thy presence, and I have made thee a name, like the name of the great men who are on the earth;

9 And I have procured a place for my people Israel, and I have planted them, that they may dwell in a place of their own, and be no more troubled; and that the children of wickedness shall not waste them any more, as aforetimes,

10 And (as it was) since the time that I ordained judges to be over my people Israel; and I have humbled all thy enemies; and now I tell thee that the LORD will build for thee a house.

11 And it shall come to pass, that, when thy days will be completed that thou must go (to sleep) with thy fathers, I will set up thy seed after thee, who shall be of thy sons, and I will establish his kingdom.

12 He it is that shall build for me a house, and I will stablish his throne for ever.

13 I too will be to him as a father, and he shall indeed be unto me as a son: and my kindness will I not cause to depart from him, as I caused it to depart from him that was before thee;

14 But I will place him firmly in my house and in my kingdom for evermore; and his throne shall be established for ever.

15 In accordance with all these words, and in accordance with all this vision, so did Nathan speak unto David.

16 ¶ Then went king David in and sat down before the LORD, and he said, Who am I, O LORD God, and what is my house, that thou hast brought me as far as hitherward?

17 And this was (yet) too small a thing in thy eyes, O God; and thou hast spoken concerning thy servant's house for a distant time, and hast regarded me as though I belonged to the rank of a man of high degree, O LORD God.

18 What can David add yet more (to speak) unto thee of the honour of thy servant? since thou knowest well thy servant.

19 O LORD, for the sake of thy servant, and in accordance with thy own heart, hast thou done all this great thing, to make known all these great things.

20 O LORD, there is none like thee, and there is no god beside thee, in accordance with all that we have heard with our ears.

21 And who is like thy people Israel, the only nation on the earth which God went to redeem for himself as a people, to acquire for thyself a name for great and terrible deeds, by driving out nations from before thy people, which thou hadst redeemed out of Egypt?

22 And thou hast instituted thy people Israel unto thyself as a people for ever; and thou, LORD, art indeed become their God.

23 And now, O LORD, let the thing that thou hast spoken concerning thy servant and concerning his house be verified for ever, and do as thou hast spoken.

24 Yea, let it be verified, and let thy name be magnified unto everlasting, that men may say, The LORD of hosts is the God of Israel, even a God for Israel; and may the house of David thy servant be established before thee.

25 For thou, O my God, hast revealed to the ear of thy servant that thou wilt build for him a house: therefore hath thy servant found himself able to pray before thee.

26 And now, O LORD, thou art the (true) God, and thou hast spoken concerning thy servant this goodness:

27 And now hast thou been pleased to bless the house of thy servant, that it may continue for ever before thee; for thou, O LORD, hast blessed, and (it will remain) blessed for ever.

CHAPTER XVIII.

1 ¶ And it came to pass after this, that David smote the Philistines, and humbled them; and he took Gath and its dependent towns out of the hand of the Philistines.

2 And he smote Moäb, and the Moäbites became David's servants, bringing presents.

3 David also smote Hadar'ezer the king of Zobah at Chamath, as he went to establish his dominion at the river Euphrates.

4 And David captured from him a thousand chariots, and seven thousand horsemen, and twenty thousand men on foot; and David hamstringed all the chariot-teams, but reserved of them a hundred chariot-teams.

5 And the Syrians of Damascus came to aid Hadar'ezer the king of Zobah, when David slew of the Syrians two and twenty thousand men.

6 Then did David put (garrisons) in Syria of Damascus, and the Syrians became unto David servants, bringing presents. And the LORD helped David whithersoever he went.

7 And David took the quivers of gold that were on the servants of Hadar'ezer, and brought them to Jerusalem.

8 And from Tibchath, and from Kun, cities of Hadar'ezer, did David take exceedingly much copper: thereof made Solomon the copper sea, and the pillars, and the vessels of copper.

9 ¶ And when To'u the king of Chamath heard that David had smitten all the host of Hadar'ezer the king of Zobah:

10 Then did he send Hadoram his son unto king David, to ask him after his well-being, and to bless him, because he had fought against Hadar'ezer, and smitten him; for Hadar'ezer had been engaged in wars with To'u; and (he had with him) all manner of vessels of gold and silver and copper.

11 Also these did king David sanctify unto the LORD, with the silver and the gold that he had carried away from all the nations, from Edom, and from Moäb, and from the children of 'Ammon, and from the Philistines, and from 'Amalek.

12 And Abshai the son of Zeruyah smote of the Edomites in the valley of salt eighteen thousand (men).

13 And he put garrisons in Edom, and all the Edomites became servants unto David. And the LORD helped David whithersoever he went.

14 And David reigned over all Israel, and he did what is just and right unto all his people.

15 And Joäb the son of Zeruyah was over the army, and Jehoshaphat the son of Achilud, recorder.

16 And Zadok the son of Achitub, and Abimelech the son of Ebyathar, were (the) priests; and Shavsha was scribe;

17 And Benayahu the son of Jehoyada' was over the Kerethites and the Pelethites; and the sons of David were the first at the side of the king.

CHAPTER XIX.

1 ¶ And it came to pass after this, that Nachash the king of the children of 'Ammon died, and his son became king in his stead.

2 And David said, I will show kindness unto Chanun the son of Nachash, because his father showed kindness unto me. And David sent messengers to comfort him concerning his father. And the servants of David came unto the land of the children of 'Ammon to Chanun, to comfort him.

3 And the princes of the children of 'Ammon said unto Chanun, Doth David honour thy father in thy eyes, that he hath sent comforters unto thee? are not his servants come unto thee in order to search out, and to overthrow, and to spy out the land?

4 Chanun thereupon took David's servants, and shaved them, and cut off their garments in the middle as far as the hip-bone, and sent them away.

5 And some people went and told David concerning these men. And he sent (persons) to meet them; because the men were greatly ashamed; and the king said, Tarry at Jericho until your beard be grown, and then return.

6 ¶ And when the children of 'Ammon saw that they were become in bad odour with David, Chanun and the children of 'Ammon sent a thousand talents of silver to hire for themselves from Mesopotamia, and from Syria-ma'achah, and from Zobah, chariots and horsemen.

7 And they hired for themselves thirty and two thousand (warriors in) chariots, and the king of Ma'achah and his people: and they came and encamped before Medeba. And the children of 'Ammon gathered themselves together out of their cities, and came to the battle.

8 ¶ And when David heard of it, he sent Joäb, and all the army (and) the mighty men.

9 And the children of 'Ammon came out, and put themselves in battle array at the entrance of the city: and the kings that were come were by themselves in the field.

10 When now Joäb saw that the front of battle was against him before and behind, he made a selection from all the chosen men of Israel, and arrayed himself against the Syrians.

11 And the rest of the people he delivered into the hand of Abshai his brother, and they arrayed themselves against the children of 'Ammon.

12 And he said, If the Syrians be too strong for me, then shalt thou bring me help; but if the children of 'Ammon be too strong for thee, then will I help thee.

13 Be strong, and let us strengthen ourselves in behalf of our people, and in behalf of the cities of our God, and may the LORD do that which seemeth good in his eyes.

14 And Joäb drew nigh and the people that were with him in front of the Syrians unto the battle, and they fled from before him.

15 And when the children of 'Ammon saw that the Syrians were fled, then did they also fly before Abshai his brother, and entered into the city. And Joäb went back to Jerusalem.

16 ¶ And when the Syrians saw that they were smitten before Israel, they sent messengers, and brought out the Syrians that were beyond the river; and Shophach the captain of the army of Hadar'ezer went before them.

17 And when it was told to David, he gathered all Israel together, and passed over the Jordan, and came up with them, and arrayed himself against them. So when David had arrayed himself against the Syrians (for) battle, they fought with him.

18 And the Syrians fled from before Israel: and David slew of the Syrians (the men of) seven thousand chariots, and forty thousand men on foot, and Shophach the captain of the army he put to death.

19 And when the vassals of Hadar'ezer saw that they were smitten before Israel, they made peace with David, and served him; and the Syrians would not help the children of 'Ammon any more.

CHAPTER XX.

1 ¶ And it came to pass, at the time of the return of the same season of the year, at the time when kings go forth, that Joäb led out the power of the army, and destroyed the country of the children of 'Ammon, and he came and besieged Rabbah. But David remained behind at Jerusalem. And Joäb smote Rabbah, and pulled it down.

2 And David took the crown of Malkam from off his head, and found it to weigh a talent of gold, and thereon a precious stone; and it was set on the head of David: and the booty of the city he brought out in great abundance.

3 And the people that were therein he brought forward, and cut them with saws, and with iron threshing-wagons, and with axes; and thus did David unto all the cities of the children of 'Ammon; and David returned then with all the people unto Jerusalem.

4 ¶ And it came to pass after this, that there arose a battle at Gezer[a] with the Philistines: then smote Sibbechai the Chushathite Sippai, one of the children of the Rapha; and they were humbled.

5 ¶ And there was again a battle with the Philistines, when Elchanan the son of Yaïr smote Lachmi the brother of Goliath the Gittite, the staff of whose spear was like a weaver's beam.

6 ¶ And there was again a battle at Gath, where was a man of (great) stature, whose fingers and toes were six on each (hand and foot), four and twenty (in all); and he also was born to the Rapha.

7 And he defied Israel; but Jonathan the son of Shim'a the brother of David smote him.

8 These were born unto the Rapha in Gath, and they fell by the hand of David, and by the hand of his servants.

CHAPTER XXI.

1 ¶ And the Accuser stood up against Israel, and incited David to count Israel.

2 And David said to Joäb, and to the princes of the people, Go, number Israel from Beër-sheba' even to Dan, and bring their number to me, that I may know it.

3 Then said Joäb, May the LORD add unto his people, how many soever they be, a hundred-fold more: are they not all, my lord the king, my lord's servants? why then will my lord require this thing? why shall it be a cause of guiltiness for Israel?

4 Nevertheless the king's word remained firm against Joäb; and Joäb went out, and moved about throughout all Israel, and came (back) to Jerusalem.

5 ¶ And Joäb gave up the sum of the number of the people unto David: and there were (in) all Israel a thousand times thousand and one hundred thousand men that drew the sword; and (of) Judah were four hundred and seventy thousand men that drew the sword.

6 But Levi and Benjamin did he not count among them; for the king's word was abominable to Joäb.

7 And this thing was displeasing in the eyes of God, and he smote Israel.

8 ¶ And David said unto God, I have sinned greatly, because I have done this thing: but now, I beseech thee, cause the iniquity of thy servant to pass away; for I have acted very foolishly.

9 ¶ And the LORD spoke unto Gad, David's seër, saying,

10 Go and speak unto David, saying, Thus hath said the LORD, Three things do I offer thee: choose for thyself one of them, and I will do it unto thee.

11 So Gad came to David, and said unto him, Thus hath said the LORD, Select for thyself,

[a] 2 Samuel xxi. 18, in the parallel passage it is Gob; but in this, as in many other instances, the chronicler either copied a different authority, or the place (or person) was called by more than one name.

12 Whether there shall be three years famine; or three months, to be destroyed before thy adversaries, so that the sword of thy enemies overtake thee; or that during three days the sword of the LORD, even the pestilence, shall be in the land, and an angel of the LORD destroying throughout all the boundaries of Israel? And now reflect what word I shall bring back to him that hath sent me.

13 ¶ And David said unto Gad, I am in a great strait: let me fall then into the hand of the LORD; for his mercies are very great; but let me not fall into the hand of man.

14 So the LORD sent a pestilence in Israel, and there fell of Israel seventy thousand men.

15 And God sent an angel unto Jerusalem to destroy it; but as he was destroying, the LORD looked on, and he bethought himself of the evil, and said to the angel that destroyed, It is enough: now stay thy hand. And the angel of the LORD was standing by the threshing-floor of Ornan the Jebusite.

16 ¶ And David lifted up his eyes, and saw the angel of the LORD standing between the earth and the heavens, with his sword drawn in his hand, stretched out over Jerusalem. Then fell David, with the elders wrapt in sackcloth, upon their faces.

17 And David said unto God, Was it not I that ordered to count the people? and I am the one that have sinned and have done evil indeed; but these sheep, what have they done? O LORD my God, let thy hand, I pray thee, be against me, and against my father's house, but not against thy people, that there should be a plague.

18 ¶ And the angel of the LORD spoke to Gad to say to David, that David should go up, to erect an altar unto the LORD on the threshing-floor of Ornan the Jebusite.

19 And David went up by the word of Gad, which he had spoken in the name of the LORD.

20 And when Ornan turned back, and saw the angel, then did he and his four sons with him hide themselves. Now Ornan was threshing wheat.

21 And as David came up to Ornan, Ornan looked up and saw David; and he went out of the threshing-floor, and bowed himself to David with his face to the ground.

22 Then said David to Ornan, "Grant me the site of this threshing-floor, that I may build thereon an altar unto the LORD: for the full price shalt thou give it unto me, so that the plague may be stayed from the people."

23 And Ornan said unto David, Take it for thyself, and let my lord the king do what is good in his eyes: lo, I give the oxen for burnt-offerings, and the threshing-rollers for wood, and the wheat for the meat-offering; the whole do I give (thee).

24 And king David said to Ornan, No: but I will surely buy it at the full value; for I will not take what is thine for the LORD, so as to offer burnt-offerings without paying therefor.

25 So David gave to Ornan for the place six hundred shekels of gold by weight.

26 And David built there an altar unto the LORD, and offered burnt-offerings and peace-offerings, and he called on the LORD: and he answered him from heaven by fire upon the altar of burnt-offering.

27 ¶ And the LORD spoke to the angel, and he put back his sword into its sheath.

28 At that time when David saw that the LORD had answered him on the threshing-floor of Ornan the Jebusite, then did he sacrifice there.

29 But the tabernacle of the LORD, which Moses had made in the wilderness, and the altar of the burnt-offering, were at that time in the high-place at Gib'on.

30 But David was not able to go before it to inquire of God; for he was afraid because of the sword of the angel of the LORD.

CHAPTER XXII.

1 ¶ And David said, This is the house of the LORD the (true) God, and this is the altar for the burnt-offering for Israel.

2 ¶ And David ordered to gather together the strangers that were in the land of Israel: and he appointed (them) to be masons to hew cut stones to build the house of God.

3 And iron in abundance for the nails for the doors of the gates, and for the joinings, did David prepare; and copper in abundance, (which) could not be weighed;

4 Also cedar-trees (which) could not be counted; for the Zidonians and the Tyrians had brought cedar-trees in abundance to David.

5 ¶ And David said, Solomon my son is young and tender, and the house that is to be built (in honour) of the LORD must be exceedingly great, for fame and for glory throughout all the countries: I will therefore make preparation for it. So David made abundant preparation before his death.

6 And he called for Solomon his son, and charged him to build a house for the LORD the God of Israel.

7 ¶ And David said to Solomon, My son, as for me, it was in my mind to build a house unto the name of the LORD my God;

8 But there came concerning me the word of the LORD, saying, Blood in abundance hast thou shed, and great wars hast thou made: thou shalt not build a house unto my name, because much blood hast thou shed upon the earth before me.

9 Behold, a son will be born to thee, he it is who shall be a man of rest; and I will give him rest from all his enemies on every side; for Solomon [The Peaceful] shall be his name, and peace and quietness will I bestow on Israel in his days.

10 He it is who shall build a house unto my name; and he shall be unto me as a son, and I will be unto him as a father; and I will establish the throne of his kingdom over Israel for ever.

11 Now, my son, may the LORD be with thee, that thou mayest prosper, and build the house of the LORD thy God, as he hath spoken concerning thee.

12 Only may the LORD give thee intelligence and understanding, and give thee charge over Israel, so that thou mayest observe the law of the LORD thy God.

13 Then wilt thou prosper, if thou observe to practice the statutes and the ordinances which the LORD commanded Moses concerning Israel: be strong, and of good courage; be not afraid, nor be thou dismayed.

14 And, behold, during my affliction have I prepared for the house of the LORD one hundred thousand talents of gold, and a thousand times thousand talents of silver; and of copper and iron (as much as) cannot be weighed; for in (such) abundance was it: and wood and stone have I prepared; and thou must add thereto.

15 Moreover there are with thee in abundance workmen, hewers and workers of stone and timber, and all manner of skilful men for every kind of work.

16 The gold, the silver, and the copper, and the iron cannot be numbered: arise, (therefore,) and be doing, and may the LORD be with thee.

17 And David gave a charge to all the princes of Israel to help Solomon his son, (saying,)

18 Behold the LORD your God is with you; and he hath given you rest on every side; for he hath given up into my hand the inhabitants of the land, and the land is subdued before the LORD, and before his people.

19 Now direct your heart and your soul to seek the LORD your God; and arise, and build ye the sanctuary of the LORD the (true) God, (in order) to bring the ark of the covenant of the LORD, and the holy vessels of God, into the house that is to be built unto the name of the LORD.

CHAPTER XXIII.

1 ¶ And when David was old and full of days, he made Solomon his son king over Israel.

2 And he gathered together all the princes of Israel, with the priests and the Levites.

3 And then were numbered the Levites from thirty years old and upward: and their number by their polls, of men, was thirty and eight thousand.

4 Of these were twenty and four thousand to superintend the work of the house of the LORD; and six thousand were officers and judges;

5 And four thousand were gatekeepers; and four thousand those who praised the LORD with the instruments which I[a] have made, to praise therewith.

6 ¶ And David divided them into divisions after the sons of Levi, after Gershon, Kehath, and Merari.

7 ¶ Of the Gershunites: La'dan, and Shim'i.

8 ¶ The sons of La'dan: The chief was Jechiël, and Zetham, and Joël, three.

9 ¶ The sons of Shim'i: Shelomith, and Chaziel, and Haran, three. These were the chiefs of the families of La'dan.

[a] i. e. David; an extract from a speech of his.

10 ¶ And the sons of Shim'i were, Jachath, Zina, and Je'ush, and Beri'ah. These four were the sons of Shim'i.

11 And Jachath was the chief, and Zizah the second; but Je'ush and Beri'ah had not many sons: therefore were they accounted as one family division in the numbering.

12 ¶ The sons of Kehath: 'Amram, Yizhar, Hebron, and 'Uzziël, four.

13 ¶ The sons of 'Amram: Aaron and Moses; and Aaron was set apart, to sanctify him as most holy, he with his sons for ever, to burn incense before the LORD, to minister unto him, and to bless in his name for ever.

14 But as regardeth Moses[a] the man of God, his sons were named after the tribe of Levi.

15 ¶ The sons of Moses were, Gershom, and Eli'ezer.

16 Of the sons of Gershom, Shebuel was the chief.

17 And the sons of Eli'ezer were, Rechabyah the chief. And Eli'ezer had no other sons; but the sons of Rechabyah became exceedingly numerous.

18 ¶ Of the sons of Yizhar, was Shelomith the chief.

19 ¶ The sons of Hebron: Jeriyahu the chief, Amaryah the second, Jachaziël the third, and Jekam'am the fourth.

20 ¶ The sons of 'Uzziël: Michah the chief, and Yishiyah the second.

21 ¶ The sons of Merari: Machli, and Mushi. The sons of Machli: El'azar, and Kish.

22 And El'azar died, and had no sons, but daughters; and the sons of Kish, their brethren, took them (for wives).

23 The sons of Mushi: Machli, and 'Eder, and Jeremoth, three.

24 These were the sons of Levi after their family divisions, even the chiefs of the families, as they were counted by numbering the names after their polls, that did the work for the service of the house of the LORD, from twenty years old and upward.

25 For David said, The LORD the God of Israel hath given rest unto his people, and he dwelleth in Jerusalem for evermore.

26 And also the Levites are no more bound to carry the tabernacle, and all its vessels for the service thereof.

27 Therefore by the last words of David were there numbered of the Levites those who were from twenty years old and above;

28 Because their station was to be at the side of the sons of Aaron for the service of the house of the LORD, in the courts, and in the chambers, and by the purification of all holy things, and the work of the service of the house of God;

29 And for the shew-bread, which was put in rows, and for the fine flour for meat-offering, and for the unleavened cakes, and for that which is baked in the pan, and for that which is sodden, and for all manner of dry and wet measure;

30 And to stand every morning to thank and praise the LORD, and so also at evening,

31 And at all the offering of burnt-offerings unto the LORD on the sabbaths, on the new moons, and on the appointed feasts, according to the number, and after the manner prescribed for them, continually before the LORD;

32 And that they should keep the charge of the tabernacle of the congregration, and the charge of the sanctuary, and the charge of the sons of Aaron their brethren, in the service of the house of the LORD.

CHAPTER XXIV.

1 ¶ And the divisions of the sons of Aaron were: The sons of Aaron were Nadab, and Abihu, El'azar, and Ithamar.

2 But Nadab and Abihu died before their father, and they had no children: and El'azar and Ithamar became priests.

3 And David divided them off with Zadok of the sons of El'azar, and Achimelech[a] of the sons of Ithamar, to their office in their service.

4 And the sons of El'azar were found more numerous in the chiefs of males than the sons of Ithamar; and they divided them accordingly. Of the sons of El'azar there were sixteen chiefs of the family divisions, and of the sons of Ithamar, eight for their family divisions.

5 And they divided them off by lot, both the first and the last; for the governors of the sanctuary, and governors (of the house) of God, were from the sons of El'azar, and from the sons of Ithamar.

[a] No doubt Abyathar, here and elsewhere called after his father, instead of the "son of Achimelech."

6 ¶ And Shema'yah the son of Nethanel the scribe, one of the Levites, wrote them down before the king, and the princes, and Zadok the priest, and Achimelech the son of Ebyathar, and the chiefs of the families of the priests and Levites: one family division being drawn of El'azar, and one being equally drawn of Ithamar.

7 ¶ And there came out the first lot for Jehoyarib, for Jeda'yah the second,

8 For Charim the third, for Se'orim the fourth,

9. For Malkiyah the fifth, for Miyamin the sixth,

10 For Hakkoz the seventh, for Abiyah the eighth,

11 For Jeshua' the ninth, for Shechanyahu the tenth,

12 For Elyashib the eleventh, for Jakim the twelfth,

13 For Chuppah the thirteenth, for Jeshebab the fourteenth,

14 For Bilgah the fifteenth, for Immer the sixteenth,

15 For Chezir the seventeenth, for Happizzez the eighteenth,

16 For Pethachyah the nineteenth, for Ezekiel the twentieth,

17 For Jachin the one and twentieth, for Gamul the two and twentieth,

18 For Delayahu the three and twentieth, for Ma'azyahu the four and twentieth.

19 ¶ This was their office in their service to come into the house of the LORD, according to the manner prescribed to them, under the supervision of Aaron their father, as the LORD the God of Israel had commanded him.

20 And of the rest of the sons of Levi there were, of the sons of 'Amram: Shubael. Of the sons of Shubael: Jechdeyahu.

21 Concerning Rechabyahu, of the sons of Rechabyahu the chief was Yishiyah.

22 Of the Yizharites was Shelomoth: of the sons of Shelomoth was Jachath.

23 And the sons (of Hebron): Jeriyah, Amaryahu the second, Jachaziël the third, Jekam'am the fourth.

24 (Of) the sons of 'Uzziël, Michah: of the sons of Michah, Shamir.

25 The brother of Michah was Yishiyah: of the sons of Yishiyah, Zecharyahu.

26 The sons of Merari were Machli and Mushi: the sons of Ja'aziyahu, Beno.

27 The sons of Merari by Ja'aziyahu: Beno, and Shoham, and Zaccur, and 'Ibri.

28 Of Machli: El'azar, who had no sons.

29 Of Kish: The son of Kish was Jerachmeël.

30 And the sons of Mushi were Machli, and 'Eder, and Jerimoth. These were the sons of the Levites after their family divisions.

31 These likewise cast lots in the same manner as their brethren the sons of Aaron in the presence of king David, and Zadok, and Achimelech, and the chiefs of the families of the priests and Levites, even the principal of the families[a] equally with his youngest brother.

CHAPTER XXV.

1 ¶ David also divided off with the chiefs of the host for the service of the sons of Assaph, and of Heman, and of Jeduthun, those who uttered praise (accompanied) with harps, with psalteries, and with cymbals: and their number was of the men (that did) the work in their service,

2 Of the sons of Assaph: Zaccur, and Joseph, and Nethanyah, and Asharelah, the sons of Assaph under the supervision of Assaph, who uttered praise under the supervision of the king.

3 Of Jeduthun, the sons of Jeduthun: Gedalyahu, and Zeri, and Jesha'yahu, Chashabyahu, and Matthithyahu, six, under the supervision of their father Jeduthun, who uttered praise with a harp, in order to give thanks and to utter praise unto the LORD.

4 Of Heman, the sons of Heman: Bukkiyahu, Matthanyahu, 'Uzziël, Shebuël, and Jerimoth, Chananyah, Chanani, Eliäthah, Giddalti, and Romamti-'ezer, Joshbekashah, Mallothi, Hothir, and Machaz'oth;

5 All these sons of Heman the king's seër in the words of God, were to lift up the horn.[b]

[a] Redak, "Aboth" as a name, "Aboth the chief."

[b] This obscure passage is explained by Rashi, "to exalt the horn of propheey;" Redak, "of Israel,"—neither of which gives a good sense. Herxheimer renders freely, "who praised with the words of God:" this is not according to the words. Zunz, "that according to the words of God (his) horn might be lifted up." It means, probably, who instructed him in the word of God.

And God gave to Heman fourteen sons and three daughters.

6 All these were under the supervision of their father at the singing in the house of the LORD, with cymbals, psalteries, and harps, for the service of the house of God, under the supervision of the king, Assaph, Jeduthun, and Heman.

7 And their number, with their brethren that were practised in singing unto the LORD, even all that were acquainted (therewith), was two hundred eighty and eight.

8 And they cast lots, division against (division),[a] the small as well as the great, the one acquainted with his business together with the scholar.

9 ¶ And there came forth the first lot for Assaph for Joseph; Gedalyahu was the second, he with his brethren and sons, being twelve;

10 ¶ The third was Zaccur, his sons, and his brethren, being twelve;

11 ¶ The fourth was for Yizri, his sons, and his brethren, being twelve;

12 ¶ The fifth was Nethanyahu, his sons, and his brethren, being twelve;

13 ¶ The sixth was Bukkiyahu, his sons, and his brethren, being twelve;

14 ¶ The seventh was Jessarëlah, his sons, and his brethren, being twelve;

15 ¶ The eighth was Jesha'yahu, his sons, and his brethren, being twelve;

16 ¶ The ninth was Matthanyahu, his sons, and his brethren, being twelve;

17 ¶ The tenth was Shim'i, his sons, and his brethren, being twelve;

18 ¶ The eleventh was 'Asarël, his sons, and his brethren, being twelve;

19 ¶ The twelfth was for Chashabyah, his sons, and his brethren, being twelve;

20 ¶ The thirteenth was Shubaël, his sons, and his brethren, being twelve;

21 ¶ The fourteenth was Matthithyahu, his sons, and his brethren, being twelve;

22 ¶ The fifteenth was for Jeremoth, his sons, and his brethren, being twelve;

23 ¶ The sixteenth was for Chananyahu, his sons, and his brethren, being twelve;

24 ¶ The seventeenth was for Joshbekashah, his sons, and his brethren, being twelve;

25 ¶ The eighteenth was for Chanani, his sons, and his brethren, being twelve;

26 ¶ The nineteenth was for Mallothi, his sons, and his brethren, being twelve;

27 ¶ The twentieth was for Eliyathah, his sons, and his brethren, being twelve;

28 ¶ The one and twentieth was for Hothir, his sons, and his brethren, being twelve;

29 ¶ The two and twentieth was for Giddalthi, his sons, and his brethren, being twelve;

30 ¶ The three and twentieth was for Machasioth, his sons, and his brethren, being twelve;

31 ¶ The four and twentieth was for Romamthi-'eser, his sons, and his brethren, being twelve.

CHAPTER XXVI.

1 ¶ Concerning the divisions of the gatekeepers (who were) of the Korchites: Meshelemyahu the son of Koré, of the sons of Assaph.

2 And Meshelemyahu had sons: Zecharyahu the first-born, Jedi'aël the second, Zebadyahu the third, Jathniel the fourth,

3 'Elam the fifth, Jehochanan the sixth, Elyeho'enai the seventh.

4 And 'Obed-edom had sons: Shema'yah the first-born, Jehosabad the second, Joäch the third, and Sachar the fourth, and Nethanel the fifth,

5 'Ammiël the sixth, Issachar the seventh, Pe'ulthai the eighth; for God had blessed him.

6 Also unto Shema'yah his son there were born sons, that were rulers for the house of their father; for they were mighty men of valour.

7 The sons of Shema'yah were 'Othni, and Rephaël, and 'Obed, (and) Elsabad, his brothers (were) valiant men, Elihu, and Semachyahu.

8 All these were of the sons of 'Obed-edom: they and their sons and their brethren were valiant men in strength for the service, being sixty and two (descendants) of 'Obed-edom.

9 And Meshelemyahu had sons and brethren, valiant men, eighteen.

10 Also Chossah, of the children of Merari, had sons: Shimri the chief, for (though) he was not the first-born, yet his father made him the chief;

[a] So Rashi, who supplies this word; but Zunz, "concerning the duties of their office, the least equally with the great, the teacher with the scholar."

11 Chilkiyahu the second, Tebalyahu the third, Zecharyahu the fourth; all the sons and brethren of Chossah were thirteen.

12 These divisions of the gatekeepers, after the chief men, had the watch along with their brethren, to minister in the house of the LORD.

13 And they cast lots, the small as well as the great, according to their family divisions, for each and every gate.

14 And the lot at the east fell for Shelemyahu. And for Zecharyahu his son, an intelligent counsellor, they cast lots, and his lot came out at the north.

15 For 'Obed-edom at the south; and to his sons (was assigned) the house of Assuppim.[a]

16 For Shuppim and for Chossah at the west, by the gate Shallecheth, on the ascending causeway, watch alongside of watch.

17 At the east were six Levites, at the north four for every day, at the south four for every day, and for (the house of) Assuppim always two.

18 At the Parbar on the west, four at the causeway, and two at the Parbar.

19 These are the divisions of the gatekeepers of the sons of the Korhites, and of the sons of Merari.

20 And of the Levites, Achiyah was over the treasuries of the house of God, and over the treasuries of the holy things.

21 (As concerning) the sons of La'dan, the sons of the Gershunites of La'dan, the chiefs of the families of La'dan the Gershunite, were the Jechiëlites.

22 The sons of Jechiëli, Zethaın, and Joël his brother, were over the treasuries of the house of the LORD.

23 Of the 'Amramites, of the Yizharites, of the Hebronites, and of the 'Uzziëlites, 24 (Was) even Shebuël the son of Gershom, the son of Moses, superintendent of the treasuries.

25 And his brethren by Eli'ezer: Rechabyahu his son, and Jesha'yahu his son, and Joram his son, and Zichri his son, and Shelomith his son.

26 This Shelomoth and his brethren were over all the treasuries of the holy things, which king David had sanctified, together with the chiefs of the family divisions, the captains over the thousands and the hundreds, and the captains of the army.

27 Out of the wars, and out of the booty did they sanctify to maintain the house of the LORD.

28 And all that Samuel the seër, and Saül the son of Kish, and Abner the son of Ner, and Joäb the son of Zeruyah, had sanctified, whatsoever (any one) had sanctified, was under the supervision of Shelomith and of his brethren.

29 Of the Yizharites were Kenanyahu and his sons for the outward business over Israel, for officers and judges.

30 Of the Hebronites were Chashabyahu and his brethren, valiant men, a thousand and seven hundred (in number), appointed over the affairs of Israel on this side of the Jordan to the west, for all the business of the LORD, and for the service of the king.

31 Of the Hebronites was Jeriyah the chief, for the Hebronites, according to their generations by families. In the fortieth year of the reign of David were they inquired into, and there were found among them mighty men of valour at Ja'zer of Gil'ad.

32 And his brethren, valiant men, were two thousand and seven hundred chiefs of families: and king David appointed them over the Reübenites, the Gadites, and the half tribe of Menasseh, for every matter pertaining to God, and the affairs of the king.

CHAPTER XXVII.

1 ¶ And (these are) the children of Israel after their number, (to wit,) the chiefs of the family divisions and the captains of the thousands and the hundreds, and their officers that served the king in every matter of the divisions, that came in and went out month by month, throughout all the months of the year, every division being twenty and four thousand.

2 ¶ Over the first division for the first month was Jashob'am the son of Zabdiël; and in his division were twenty and four thousand.

3 (He) of the children of Perez was the chief of all the captains of the armies for the first month.

4 ¶ And over the division of the second month was Dodai the Achochite, and of his division was Mikloth also the ruler; and in his division were twenty and four thousand.

[a] Rashi regards this as a proper name; but Zunz, "of the guards." Herxheimer, "treasury."

5 ¶ The third captain of the army for the third month was Benayahu the son of Jehoyada', the priest, the chief; and in his division were twenty and four thousand.

6 This Benayahu was the mighty among the thirty, and (set) over the thirty; and of his division was 'Ammizabad his son.

7 ¶ The fourth for the fourth month was 'Asahël the brother of Joäb, with Zebadyah his son after him; and in his division were twenty and four thousand.

8 ¶ The fifth for the fifth month was the captain Shamhuth the Yizrachite; and in his division were twenty and four thousand.

9 ¶ The sixth for the sixth month was 'Ira the son of 'Ikkesh the Theko'ite; and in his division were twenty and four thousand.

10 ¶ The seventh for the seventh month was Chelez the Pelonite, of the children of Ephraim; and in his division were twenty and four thousand.

11 ¶ The eighth for the eighth month was Sibbechai the Chushathite, of the Zarchites; and in his division were twenty and four thousand.

12 ¶ The ninth for the ninth month was Abi'ezer the 'Anthothite, of Benjamin; and in his division were twenty and four thousand.

13 ¶ The tenth for the tenth month was Maharai the Netophathite, of the Zarchites; and in his division were twenty and four thousand.

14 ¶ The eleventh for the eleventh month was Benayah the Pir'athonite, of the children of Ephraim; and in his division were twenty and four thousand.

15 ¶ The twelfth for the twelfth month was Cheldai the Netophathite, of 'Othniel; and in his division were twenty and four thousand.

16 ¶ Moreover over the tribes of Israel: Of the Reubenites was ruler Eli'ezer the son of Zichri; of the Simeonites, Shephatyahu the son of Ma'achah;

17 Of the Levites, Chashabyah the son of Kamuël; of (the sons of) Aaron, Zadok;

18 Of Judah, Elihu, one of the brothers of David; of Issachar, 'Omri the son of Michaël;

19 Of Zebulun, Yishma'yahu the son of 'Obadyahu; of Naphtali, Jerimoth the son of 'Azriël;

20 Of the children of Ephraim, Hosheä, the son of 'Azazyahu; of the half tribe of Menasseh, Joël the son of Pedayahu;

21 Of the half tribe of Menasseh in Gil'ad, Yiddo the son of Zecharyahu; of Benjamin, Ja'asiël the son of Abner;

22 Of Dan, 'Azarel the son of Jerocham. These were the princes of the tribes of Israel.

23 But David took not their number from twenty years old and under; because the LORD had said he would multiply Israel like the stars of the heavens.

24 Joäb the son of Zeruyah began to number (them); but he finished not, and there came wrath because of it against Israel: and the number was not entered in the account of the chronicles of king David.

25 ¶ And over the king's treasures was 'Azmaveth the son of 'Adiël; and over the storehouses in the fields, in the cities, and in the villages, and in the castles, was Jehonathan the son of 'Uzziyahu.

26 ¶ And over those that did the work of the field, in the tillage of the ground, was 'Ezri the son of Kelub.

27 ¶ And over the vineyards was Shim'i the Ramathite; and over what was in the vineyards, as regardeth the supplies of wine, was Zabdi the Shiphmite.

28 ¶ And over the olive-trees and the sycamore-trees that were in the lowlands was Ba'al-chanan the Gederite; and over the supplies of oil was Jo'ash.

29 ¶ And over the herds that fed in Sharon was Shitrai the Sharonite; and over the herds that were in the valleys was Shaphat the son of 'Adlai.

30 ¶ And over the camels was Obil the Ishma'elite; and over the she-asses was Yechdeyahu the Meronothite.

31 ¶ And over the flocks was Jaziz the Hagerene. All these were the rulers of the property which belonged to king David.

32 ¶ Also Jonathan David's uncle was a counsellor, being a man of understanding and acquainted with law; and Jechiël the son of Chachmoni was with the king's sons;

33 And Achithophel was the king's counsellor; and Chushai the Arkite was the king's friend;

34 And after Achithophel (came) Jehoyada' the son of Benayahu and Ebyathar; and the captain of the king's army was Joab.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

1 ¶ And David assembled all the princes of Israel, the princes of the tribes, and the captains of the divisions that ministered to the king, and the captains of the thousands, and the captains of the hundreds, and the rulers of all the property and the cattle of the king and of his sons, with the court-servants, and the mighty men, and with all the valiant men of the army, unto Jerusalem.

2 Then arose king David upon his feet, and said, Hear me, my brethren, and my people! I had in my heart to build a house of rest for the ark of the covenant of the LORD, and for the footstool of our God, and I had made preparations to build;

3 But God said unto me, Thou shalt not build a house unto my name; because thou art a man of war, and blood hast thou shed.

4 Yet the LORD the God of Israel made choice of me out of all the house of my father to be king over Israel for ever; for of Judah had he made choice as ruler; and among the house of Judah, of the house of my father; and among the sons of my father had he pleasure in me to make (me) king over all Israel:

5 And of all my sons,—for the LORD hath given me many sons,—hath he made choice of Solomon my son, to sit upon the throne of the kingdom of the LORD over Israel.

6 And he hath said unto me, Solomon thy son it is that shall build my house and my courts; for I have made choice of him to be as a son unto me, and I will be indeed to him as a father.

7 Moreover, I will firmly establish his kingdom for everlasting, if he be strong to execute my commandments and my ordinances as it is this day.

8 And now before the eyes of all Israel, the congregation of the LORD, and in the hearing of our God, (I admonish you) observe and seek for all the commandments of the LORD your God: in order that ye may keep possession of this good land, and leave it for an inheritance unto your children after you for ever.

9 And thou, Solomon my son, know thou the God of thy father, and serve him with an entire heart and with a willing soul; for all hearts doth the LORD search, and every imagination of the thoughts doth he understand: if thou seek him, he will let himself be found by thee; but if thou forsake him, he will cast thee off for ever.

10 See now that the LORD hath made choice of thee to build a house for the sanctuary: be strong and do it.

11 ¶ Then gave David to Solomon his son the pattern of the porch, and of its apartments, and of its treasuries, and of upper chambers, and of its inner chambers, and of the place of the cover of the ark,

12 And the pattern of all that he had in his spirit, concerning the courts of the house of the LORD, and concerning all the chambers round about, concerning the treasuries of the house of God, and concerning the treasuries of the holy things;

13 Also concerning the divisions of the priests and the Levites, and concerning all the work of the service of the house of the LORD, and concerning all the vessels of service of the house of the LORD;

14 Concerning the golden vessels, after the weight of the gold, for all the vessels of all manner of service; concerning all the vessels of silver after the weight, for all the vessels of every kind of service;

15 Also the weight for the candlesticks of gold, and for their lamps of gold, after the weight for every candlestick, and for its lamps; and concerning the candlesticks of silver after the weight, for the candlestick, and for its lamps, according to the use of every candlestick;

16 And the gold after the weight for the tables of the rows of shewbread, for every table; and the silver for the tables of silver;

17 Also (concerning) the forks, and the bowls, and the supporters of pure gold; and concerning the golden cups after the weight for every cup; and concerning the silver cups after the weight for every cup;

18 And concerning the altar of incense the refined gold after the weight; and concerning the pattern of the chariot of the golden cherubim, which spread out (their wings), and cover the ark of the covenant of the LORD.

19 All (this, said David,) was put in writing from the hand of the LORD, who gave me instruction (respecting) all the works of the pattern.

20 ¶ And David said to Solomon his son, Be strong, and of good courage, and do (the work); fear not, and be not dismayed; for the LORD God, (yea,) my God, is with thee: he will not fail thee, nor forsake thee, until thou have finished all the work for the service of the house of the LORD.

21 And, behold, the divisions of the priests and the Levites are there for all the service of the house of God; and with thee are in all manner of workmanship all kinds of men distinguished in wisdom, for every manner of service; and the princes and all the people are ready (to obey) all thy words.

CHAPTER XXIX.

1 ¶ And king David said unto all the assembly, Solomon, the only son of mine whom God hath made choice of, is yet young and tender, and the work is great; because not for man is the palace to be, but for the LORD God.

2 But with all my might have I made ready for the house of my God, the gold for the things of gold, and the silver for the things of silver, and the copper for the things of copper, the iron for the things of iron, and the wood for the things of wood; onyx stones, and stones to be set, bright stones, and those of divers colours, and all manner of precious stones, and marble stones in abundance.

3 Moreover, because I have set my affection on the house of my God, have I acquired as my own property gold and silver; (and this) have I given to the house of my God, over and above all that I have prepared for the holy house:

4 Three thousand talents of gold, of the gold of Ophir, and seven thousand talents of refined silver, to overlay the walls of the houses;

5 All that is needed of gold and of silver, and for every manner of work (to be made) by the hands of artificers. And who (now) is willing to consecrate his hand this day unto the LORD?

6 Thereupon offered voluntarily the chiefs of the family divisions and the princes of the tribes of Israel, and the captains of the thousands and of the hundreds, with the supervisors of the king's work;

7 And they gave for the service of the house of God of gold five thousand talents and ten thousand drachms, and of silver ten thousand talents, and of copper eighteen thousand talents, and of iron one hundred thousand talents.

8 And those with whom stones were found gave them to the treasury of the house of the LORD, under the supervision of Jechiël the Gershunite.

9 Then did the people rejoice, because they had voluntarily offered; for with an undivided heart did they offer to the LORD: and also king David rejoiced with great joy.

10 ¶ And David blessed the LORD before the eyes of all the congregation; and David said, Blessed be thou, O LORD the God of Israel our father, from everlasting even unto everlasting.

11 Thine, O LORD, are the greatness, and the might, and the glory, and the victory,[a] and the majesty, yea, all that is in the heavens and on the earth: thine, O LORD, is the kingdom, and thou art exalted as the head above all.

12 And riches and honour come from thee, and thou rulest over all; and in thy hand are power and might; and it is in thy hand to make great, and to give strength unto all.

13 And now, O our God, we give thanks unto thee, and praise thy glorious name.

14 For who am I, and what is my people, that we should possess the power to offer voluntarily after this sort? for from thee is every thing, and out of thy own have we given unto thee.

15 For strangers are we before thee, and sojourners, as were all our fathers: like a shadow are our days on the earth, and there is no hope (of abiding).[b]

16 O LORD our God! all this abundant store which we have prepared to build for thee a house for thy holy name, is out of thy own hand, and thine is all.

17 And I know, my God, that thou probest the heart, and uprightness thou receivest in favour. As for me, in the uprightness of my heart have I voluntarily offered all these things; and now thy people, that are present

[a] Herxheir or, "excellence, eternity, and splendour."

[b] Redak. Zunz, "on earth fast fleeting."

here, do I see with joy offering voluntarily unto thee.

18 O LORD, God of Abraham, Isaac, and of Israel, our fathers, preserve this for ever as the imagination of the thoughts of the heart of thy people, and direct their heart firmly unto thee.

19 And unto Solomon my son do thou give an undivided heart, to keep thy commandments, thy testimonies, and thy statutes, and to do all, and to build the palace, for which I have made preparation.

20 ¶ And David said to all the assembly, Bless now the LORD your God. And all the assembly blessed the LORD the God of their fathers, and bent down their heads, and prostrated themselves to the LORD, and to the king.

21 And they sacrificed sacrifices unto the LORD, and they offered burnt-offerings unto the LORD, on the morrow after that day, one thousand bullocks, a thousand rams, a thousand sheep, with their drink-offerings, and (other) sacrifices in abundance for all Israel;

22 And they ate and drank before the LORD on that day with great joy. And they declared the second time Solomon the son of David to be king, and they anointed him unto the LORD as chief ruler, and Zadok as priest.

23 Then sat Solomon on the throne of the LORD as king instead of David his father, and he was prosperous; and all Israel obeyed him.

24 And all the princes, and the mighty men, and also all the sons of king David, submitted[a] themselves unto king Solomon.

25 And the LORD made Solomon exceedingly great before the eyes of all Israel; and he bestowed upon him a royal majesty such as had not been on any king over Israel before him.

26 ¶ Thus did David the son of Jessé reign over all Israel.

27 And the time that he reigned over Israel was forty years: in Hebron he reigned seven years, and in Jerusalem he reigned thirty and three (years).

28 And he died in a good old age, full of days, riches, and honour: and Solomon his son became king in his stead.

29 And the acts of king David, the first and the last, behold, they are written in the history of Samuel the seër, and in the history of Nathan the prophet, and in the history of Gad the seër, 30 Together with all his reign and his mighty deeds, and the times that passed over him, and over Israel, and over all the kingdoms of the (various) countries.

THE SECOND BOOK OF CHRONICLES,

ספר דברי הימים ב׳

CHAPTER I.

1 ¶ AND Solomon the son of David strengthened himself in his kingdom, and the LORD his God was with him, and caused him to become exceedingly great.

2 Then said Solomon unto all Israel, to the captains of the thousands and of the hundreds, and to the judges, and to every prince in all Israel, the chiefs of the family divisions (that they should go with him).

3 Thereupon went Solomon, and all the assembly with him, to the high-place that was at Gib'on; for there was the tabernacle of the congregation of God, which Moses the servant of the LORD had made in the wilderness.

4 Nevertheless the ark of God had David brought up from Kiryath-ye'arim to (the place which) David had prepared for it; for he had pitched a tent for it at Jerusalem.

5 But the copper altar, which Bezalel the son of Uri, the son of Chur, had made, he placed before the tabernacle of the LORD: and Solomon and the assembly sought for it.

6 And Solomon sacrificed there on the copper altar before the LORD, which was at the tabernacle of the congregation, and offered upon it a thousand burnt-offerings.

7 ¶ In that night did God appear unto Solomon, and said unto him, Ask what I shall give thee.

8 And Solomon said unto God, Thou hast shown unto David my father great kindness, and hast made me king in his stead.

9 Now, O LORD God, let thy word unto David my father be verified; for thou hast made me king over a people as numerous as the dust of the earth.

10 Give me now wisdom and knowledge, that I may go out and come in before this people; for who could (otherwise) judge this thy great people?

11 ¶ And God said unto Solomon, Whereas this hath been in thy heart, and thou hast not asked riches, wealth, or honour, nor the life of thy enemies, and hast not even asked long life; but hast asked for thyself wisdom and knowledge, that thou mayest judge my people, over whom I have made thee king:

12 (Therefore) are the wisdom and the knowledge granted unto thee; and riches, and wealth, and honour, will I give thee, such as no kings that have been before thee have had, and the like of which after thee none shall have.

13 Then came Solomon from the high-place that was at Gib'on to Jerusalem, from before the tabernacle of the congregation, and reigned over Israel.

14 ¶ And Solomon brought together chariots and horsemen; and he had a thousand and four hundred chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen, and he placed them in the chariot-cities, and with the king at Jerusalem.

15 And the king rendered the silver and gold at Jerusalem like stones, and cedar-trees he rendered as the sycamore-trees that are in the lowlands for abundance.

16 And Solomon had his horses brought out of Egypt; a company of the king's merchants bought a quantity at a price.

17 And they brought up, and fetched out of Egypt a chariot for six hundred shekels of silver, and a horse for a hundred and fifty: and so for all the kings of the Hittites, and for the kings of Syria, did they bring them out by their means.

18[a] And Solomon ordered to build a house for the name of the LORD, and a house for his royal residence.

CHAPTER II.

1 And Solomon numbered seventy thousand men to bear burdens, and eighty thousand stonecutters in the mountain, and as superintendents over them three thousand and six hundred.

2 ¶ And Solomon sent to Churam the king of Tyre, saying, As thou hast dealt with David my father, and didst send him cedars to build him a house to dwell therein, (even so deal with me).[b]

3 Behold, I am building a house to the name of the LORD my God, to sanctify it to him, to burn before him incense of spices, and for the continual rows of show-bread, and for the burnt-offerings at morning and evening, on the sabbaths, and on the new-moons, and on the stated festivals of the LORD our God: this being for ever obligatory on Israel.

4 And the house which I am building is great; for greater is our God than all the gods.

5 But who possesseth the power to build him a house? for the heavens and the heavens of heavens cannot contain him: and who am I then, that I should build him a house, save only to burn incense before him?

6 And now send me a skilful man to work in gold, and in silver, and in copper, and in iron, and in purple, and crimson, and blue, and that understandeth how to engrave with the skilful men that are with me in Judah and in Jerusalem, whom David my father hath provided.

7 Send me also cedar-trees, fir-trees, and sandal-wood, from the Labanon; for I know well that thy servants have the skill to cut the trees of Lebanon: and, behold, my servants shall be with thy servants, dance; for the house which I am building is to be wonderfully great.

9 And, behold, for the hewers that cut the timber will I give unto thy servants twenty thousand cors of threshed wheat, and twenty thousand cors of barley, and twenty thousand baths of wine, and twenty thousand baths of oil.

10 ¶ Then answered Churam the king of Tyre in writing, and he sent it to Solomon, Out of the love of the LORD for his people hath he set thee as king over them.

11 And Churam said, Blessed be the LORD the God of Israel, that hath made the heavens and the earth, who hath given to king David a wise son, endowed with intelligence and understanding, who is to build a house unto the LORD, and a house for a royal residence.

12 And now have I sent a skilful man, endowed with understanding, namely, Churam-Abi, 13 The son of a woman from the daughters of Dan, while his father was a man of Tyre, skilful to work in gold, and in silver, in copper, in iron, in stone, and in wood, in purple, in blue, and in fine linen, and in crimson; also to execute any manner of engraving, and to devise every kind of work of art which may be given to him, together with thy skilful men, and skilful men of my lord David thy father.

14 And now the wheat, and the barley, the oil, and the wine, of which my lord hath spoken, let him send unto his servants:

15 And we will truly cut down trees out of the Lebanon, as much as thou mayest need; and we will bring them to thee in floats by sea to Joppa; and thou shalt carry them up to Jerusalem.

16 ¶ And Solomon numbered all the strange men that were in the land of Israel, after the numbering wherewith David his father had numbered them; and they were found to be one hundred and fifty thousand and three thousand and six hundred.

17 And he made of them seventy thousand bearers of burdens, and eighty thousand stonecutters in the mountain, and three thousand and six hundred superintendents to set the people to work.

CHAPTER III.

1 ¶ And Solomon began to build the house of the LORD in Jerusalem on mount Moriah, where He had appeared unto David his father, on the place that David had prepared in the threshing-floor of Ornan the Jebusite.

2 And he began to build on the second day of the second month, in the fourth year of his reign.

3 Now in this manner was the foundation laid of the house of God (at its) building (by) Solomon:[a] The length by cubits after the first measure[b] was sixty cubits, and the breadth twenty cubits.

4 And the porch that was in the front of the length was according to the breadth of the house, twenty cubits, and the height was a hundred and twenty: and he overlaid it within with pure gold.

5 And the great house he ceiled with fir-wood, which he overlaid with pure gold, and he wrought thereon palm-trees and chains.

6 And he overlaid the house with costly stones for ornament: and the gold was gold of Parvayim.

7 And he covered the house, the beams, the sills, and its walls, and its doors, with gold: and he engraved cherubim on the walls.

8 ¶ And he made the most holy house, its length being in front of the breadth of the house, twenty cubits, and its breadth twenty cubits: and he covered it with fine gold, (amounting) to six hundred talents.

9 And the weight of the nails (amounted) to fifty shekels of gold. And the upper chambers he covered with gold.

10 ¶ And he made in the most holy house two cherubim of sculpture work, and they overlaid them with gold.

11 And regarding the wings of the cherubim their length was twenty cubits; the wing of the one amounting to five cubits, reaching to the wall of the house; and the other wing of five cubits, reaching to the wing of the other cherub.

12 And the wing of the other cherub was five cubits, reaching to the wall of the house; and the other wing of five cubits was joined closely to the wing of the other cherub.

13 The wings of these cherubim (as they were) spread out were twenty cubits: and they were standing on their feet, and their faces were inward.

14 ¶ And he made the vail of blue, and purple, and crimson, and fine linen, and wrought thereon cherubim.

15 ¶ And he made before the house two pillars of thirty and five cubits in length, and the capital that was on the top of each of them was five cubits.

16 ¶ And he made chains in the debir; and (others which)[a] he placed on the top of the pillars; and he made a hundred pomegranates, and placed them on the chains.

17 And he set up the pillars in front of the temple, one on the right hand, and the other on the left; and he called the name of that on the right hand Jachin, and the name of that on the left Bo'az.

CHAPTER IV.

1 He made also an altar of copper, twenty cubits being its length, and twenty cubits its breadth, and ten cubits its height.

2 ¶ He made also the molten sea, being ten cubits from the one brim to the other, rounded all about, and it was five cubits in height: and a line of thirty cubits did encompass it round about.

3 And likenesses of oxen[b] were under it, encompassing it all round about. ten in a cubit, encircling the sea round about: the oxen were in two rows (and were) cast (with it), when it was cast.

4 It was standing upon twelve oxen, three looking toward the north, and three looking toward the west, and three looking toward the south, and three looking toward the east; and the sea was resting above upon them, and all their hinder parts were inward.

5 And its thickness was a hand's breadth, and its brim like the brim of a cup, with lily-buds; and it could hold and contain three[c] thousand baths.

6 ¶ He made also ten lavers; and he placed five on the right hand, and five on the left, to wash in them: what belonged to the burnt-offering they rinsed off at[d] them; but the sea was for the priests to wash in.

7 ¶ And he made ten candlesticks of gold according to their prescribed manner; and he placed (them) in the temple, five on the right side, and five on the left.

8 ¶ He made also ten tables, and he set them in the temple, five on the right side, and five on the left. And he made a hundred bowls of gold.

9 ¶ And he made the court of the priests, and the great out-court, and doors for the out-court, and their doors he overlaid with copper.

10 And the sea he placed on the right side toward the east, opposite to the south.

11 ¶ And Churam made the pots, and the shovels, and the basins. And Churam made an end of doing the work which he made for king Solomon in the house of God:

12 The two pillars, and the bowls, and the capitals on the top of the two pillars, and the two networks to cover the two bowl-shaped capitals which were on the top of the pillars;

13 And the four hundred pomegranates for the two networks, two rows of pomegranates for each network, to cover the two bowl-shaped capitals which were upon the front of the pillars.

14 The bases also did he make, and the lavers made he upon the bases.

15 The one sea, and the twelve oxen under it,

16 And the pots also, and the shovels, and the forks, and all their instruments, did Churam-Abiv make for king Solomon for the house of the LORD, of polished copper.

17 In the plain of the Jordan did the king cast them, in the clay-ground between Succoth and Zeredathah.[e]

18 ¶ And Solomon made all these vessels in very great abundance; for the weight of the copper was not inquired into.

19 And Solomon made all the vessels that pertained to the house of God; and the altar of gold also, and the tables whereon the show-bread (was set);

20 And the candlesticks with their lamps, to light them after the prescribed manner before the debir, of pure gold.

21 And the flowers, and the lamps, and the tongs, were of gold, the purest of gold;

22 And the knives, and the basins, and the spoons, and the censers were of pure gold; and the entrance of the house, its inner doors for the most holy place, and the doors of the house of the temple, were of gold.

CHAPTER V.

1 ¶ And so was ended all the work which Solomon made for the house of the LORD; and Solomon brought in the things sanctified by David his father; and the silver, and the gold, and all the vessels, he placed in the treasuries of the house of God.

2 Then did Solomon assemble the elders of Israel, and all the heads of the tribes, the princes of the divisions of the children of Israel, unto Jerusalem, to bring up the ark of the covenant of the LORD out of the city of David, which is Zion.

3 And all the men of Israel assembled themselves unto the king at the feast which is (in) the seventh month.

4 And all the elders of Israel came, and the Levites took up the ark.

5 And they brought up the ark, and the tabernacle of the congregation, and all the holy vessels that were in the tabernacle: these did the priests and the Levites bring up.

6 And king Solomon, and all the congregation of Israel that were assembled unto him were before the ark, sacrificing sheep and oxen, which could not be numbered nor told for multitude.

7 And the priests brought in the ark of the covenant of the LORD unto its place, into the debir of the house, into the most holy place, under the wings of the cherubim.

8 And the cherubim spread forth their wings over the place of the ark, and the cherubim covered the ark and its staves from above.

9 And they had made the staves so long that the ends of the staves were seen (standing out) from the ark in the front of the debir; but they were not seen without; and they have remained there until this day.

10 There was nothing in the ark save the two tables which Moses had placed (therein) at Horeb, where the LORD made a covenant with the children of Israel, when they came out of Egypt.

11 ¶ And it came to pass, when the priests were come out of the holy place; for all the priests that were present had sanctified themselves, the divisions not having been observed;—

12 And the Levites the singers, all together, of Assaph, of Heman, of Jeduthun, with their sons and their brethren, arrayed in white linen, having cymbals and psalteries and harps, stood at the east side of the altar, and with them were one hundred and twenty priests blowing on trumpets;—

13 And it came thus to pass, as the trumpeters and singers were as one, to make one sound to be heard in praising and thanking the LORD; and when they lifted up their voice (accompanied) with trumpets and cymbals and instruments of music, and in praising the LORD, For he is good; because unto everlasting endureth his kindness: that the house, even the house of the LORD, was filled with a cloud;

14 And the priests were not able to stand to minister because of the cloud; for the glory of the LORD had filled the house of God.

CHAPTER VI.

1 ¶ Then said Solomon, The LORD said that he would dwell in the thick darkness.

2 And I have indeed built a dwelling-house for thee, and have settled a place for thy abode for ever."

3 And the king turned his face, and blessed the whole congregation of Israel, and all the congregation of Israel was standing.

4 And he said, Blessed be the LORD, the God of Israel, who spoke with his mouth unto David my father, and hath with his hands fulfilled it, when he said,

5 Since the day that I brought forth my people out of the land of Egypt, I did not make choice of any city out of all the tribes of Israel to build a house, that my name might be therein; nor did I make choice of any man to be a ruler over my people Israel;

6 But I have made choice of Jerusalem, that my name might be there; and I have made choice of David to be over my people Israel.

7 And it was in the heart of David my father to build a house for the name of the LORD the God of Israel.

8 But the LORD said unto David my father, Whereas it was in thy heart to build a house unto my name, thou didst well in that it was in thy heart:

9 Nevertheless thou shalt not thyself build the house; but thy son that shall come forth out of thy loins, he shall build the house unto my name.

10 And the LORD hath fulfilled his word that he hath spoken; and I am risen up in the stead of David my father, and I sit on the throne of Israel, as the LORD hath spoken, and I have built the house unto the name of the LORD the God of Israel.

11 And I have placed there the ark, wherein is the covenant of the LORD which he hath made with the children of Israel.

12 And he now placed himself before the altar of the LORD in the presence of all the congregation of Israel, and spread forth his hands;

13 For Solomon had made a laver of copper, and had placed it in the midst of the out-court, five cubits being its length, five cubits its breadth, and three cubits its height; and he placed himself upon it, and kneeled down upon his knees in the presence of all the congregation of Israel, and spread forth his hands toward heaven;

14 And he said, O LORD God of Israel, there is no god like thee in the heavens, or on the earth, thou who keepest the covenant, and the kindness for thy servants that walk before thee with all their heart;

15 Who hast kept for thy servant David my father that which thou hadst promised him; and thou spokest with thy mouth, and hast fulfilled it with thy hand, as it is this day.

16 And now, O LORD, GOD of Israel, keep for thy servant David my father that which thou hast spoken concerning him, saying, There shall never fail thee a man in my sight who sitteth on the throne of Israel; if thy children but take heed to their way to walk in my law, as thou hast walked before me.

17 And now, O LORD, the God of Israel, let thy word be verified, which thou hast spoken unto thy servant, unto David.

18 For, in truth, will God then dwell with men on the earth? behold, the heavens and the heavens of heavens cannot contain thee: how much less then this house that I have built!

19 Yet wilt thou turn thy regard unto the prayer of thy servant, and to his supplication, O LORD my God, to listen unto the entreaty and the prayer which thy servant prayeth before thee:

20 That thy eyes may be open toward this house day and night, toward the place of which thou hast said that thou wouldst put thy name there; that thou mayest listen unto the prayer which thy servant will pray at this place.

21 And listen thou to the supplications of thy servant, and of thy people Israel, which they will pray at this place: and oh, do thou hear from thy dwelling-place, from heaven; and hear, and forgive.

22 If any man trespass against his neighbour, and an oath be laid upon him to cause him to swear, and the oath come before thy altar in this house:

23 Then do thou hear from heaven, and act, and judge thy servants, by requiting the wicked, to bring his way upon his own head; and by justifying the righteous, to give him according to his righteousness.

24 ¶ And if thy people Israel be struck down before the enemy, because they have sinned against thee, and they return and confess thy name, and pray, and make supplication before thee in this house:

25 Then do thou hear from heaven, and forgive the sin of thy people Israel, and cause them to return unto the land which thou hast given to them and to their fathers.

26 ¶ When the heavens be shut up, and there be no rain, because they have sinned against thee, and they pray toward this place, and confess thy name, and turn from their sin, because thou hast afflicted them:

27 Then do thou hear in heaven, and forgive the sin of thy servants, and of thy people Israel; for thou wilt direct them unto the good way, wherein they should walk; and give then rain upon thy land, which thou hast given unto thy people for an inheritance.

28 ¶ If there be famine in the land, if there be pestilence, blasting, or mildew, if there be locusts, or caterpillars; if their enemies besiege them in their land, in their gates; at whatsoever plague, and at whatsoever sickness;

29 What prayer and what supplication soever be made by any man, or by all thy people Israel, when they shall be conscious every man of his plague and his pain, and he then spread forth his hands toward this house:

30 Then do thou hear from heaven the place of thy dwelling, and forgive, and give to every man in accordance with all his ways, as thou mayest know his heart; for thou, thyself alone, knowest the heart of the children of men;

31 In order that they may fear thee, to walk in thy ways, all the days that they live on the face of the land which thou hast given unto our fathers.

32 ¶ But also to the stranger, who is not of thy people Israel, but cometh out of a far-off country for the sake of thy great name, and of thy mighty hand, and of thy out-stretched arm,—if they come and pray in this house,—

33 Mayest thou likewise listen from heaven, from the place of thy dwelling, and do according to all that the stranger will call on thee for: in order that all people of the earth may know thy name, both to fear thee, as do thy people Israel, and to understand that this house, which I have built, is called by thy name.

34 ¶ If thy people go out to battle against their enemies on the way on which thou mayest send them, and they do pray unto thee in the direction of this city which thou hast chosen, and of the house that I have built unto thy name:

35 Then hear thou from heaven their prayer and their supplication, and procure them justice.

36 If they sin against thee,—for there is no man that may not sin,—and thou be angry with them, and give them up before the enemy, so that their captors carry them away captive unto a land far off or near;

37 And if they then take it to their heart in the land whither they have been carried captive, and repent and make supplication unto thee in the land of their captivity, saying, We have sinned, we have committed iniquity, and have acted wickedly;

38 And they return unto thee with all their heart and with all their soul in the land of their captivity, whither they have been carried captive, and they pray in the direction of their land, which thou hast given unto their fathers, and of the city which thou hast chosen, and toward the house which I have built unto thy name:

39 Then hear thou from heaven, from the place of thy dwelling, their prayer and their supplications, and procure them justice, and forgive thy people for what they have sinned against thee.

40 Now, my God, let I beseech thee, thy eyes be open, and thy ears be attentive unto the prayer on this place.

41 And now arise, O LORD God, unto thy resting-place, thou, and the ark of thy strength: let thy priests, O LORD God, clothe themselves with salvation, and let thy pious servants rejoice in happiness.

42 O LORD God, turn not away the face of thy anointed: remember the pious deeds of David thy servant.

CHAPTER VII.

1 ¶ And when Solomon had made an end of praying, a fire came down from heaven, and consumed the burnt-offering and the sacrifices; and the glory of the LORD filled the house.

2 And the priests were not able to enter into the house of the LORD; because the glory of the LORD had filled the LORD'S house.

3 And all the children of Israel were looking on as the fire came down, and the glory of the LORD (was resting) upon the house; and they kneeled down with their faces to the ground upon the pavement, and prostrated themselves, and gave thanks unto the LORD, for he is good; because unto everlasting endureth his kindness.

4 And the king and all the people offered sacrifices before the LORD.

5 And king Solomon offered a sacrifice of twenty and two thousand oxen, and a hundred and twenty thousand sheep: and so they dedicated the house of God, the king and all the people.

6 And the priests were standing on their stations, and the Levites with the instruments of the music of the LORD, which king David had made to give thanks unto the LORD, because unto everlasting endureth his kindness, with the song of praise of David in their hand: and the priests blew the trumpets opposite to them, and all Israel were standing.

7 ¶ And Solomon hallowed the interior of the court that was before the house of the LORD; for he prepared there the burnt-offerings, and the fat of the peace-offerings; because the copper altar which Solomon had made was not able to contain the burnt-offerings, and the meat-offerings, and the fat.

8 And Solomon held the feast at that time seven days, and all Israel with him, a very great assembly, from the entrance of Chamath unto the river of Egypt.

9 And they held on the eighth day a solemn assembly; for the dedication of the altar they held seven days, and the feast seven days.

10 ¶ And on the three-and-twentieth day of the seventh month he dismissed the people unto their tents, joyful and glad of heart because of the good that the LORD had done for David, and for Solomon, and for Israel his people.

11 Thus did Solomon complete the house of the LORD, and the king's house; and (in) all that came into Solomon's heart to make in the house of the LORD, and in his own house, he prospered.

12 ¶ Then appeared the LORD to Solomon during the night, and said unto him, I have heard thy prayer, and I have made choice of this place for myself as a house of sacrifice.

13 If I shut up the heavens that there be no rain, or if I give a charge to the locusts to devour off the land, or if I send a pestilence among my people;

14 And if my people, over whom my name is called, do then humble themselves, and pray, and seek my presence, and turn away from their evil ways: then will I also hear from heaven, and I will forgive their sin, and will heal their land.

15 Now, my eyes shall be open, and my ears attentive unto the prayer on this place.

16 And now I have chosen and hallowed this house, that my name may be there for ever; and my eyes and my heart shall be there at all times.

17 And as for thee, if thou wilt walk before me, as David thy father hath walked, so as to do in accordance with all that I have commanded thee, and wilt keep my statutes and my ordinances:

18 Then will I establish the throne of thy kingdom, just as I have covenanted with David thy father, saying, There shall never fail thee a man to be ruler in Israel.

19 But if ye will indeed turn away, and forsake my statutes and my commandments, which I have set before you, and will go and serve other gods, and bow down to them:

20 Then will I pluck them up out of my land which I have given unto them; and this house, which I have hallowed for my name, will I cast away from my sight, and I will render it to be for a proverb and for a by-word among all the people.

21 And this house, which hath been so exalted, shall become an astonishment to every one that passeth by it: so that he will say, Why hath the LORD done thus unto this land, and unto this house?

22 And men shall then say, For the cause that they forsook the LORD the God of their fathers, who had brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, and they took hold of other gods, and bowed down to them, and served them: therefore hath he brought upon them all this evil.

CHAPTER VIII.

1 ¶ And it came to pass at the end of twenty years, when Solomon had built the house of the LORD and his own house,

2 That (as regardeth) the cities which Churam had restored to Solomon, Solomon built them, and caused the children of Israel to dwell there.

3 And Solomon went to Chamath-zobah, and prevailed against it.

4 And he built Thadmor in the wilderness, and all the treasure-cities, which he built in Chamath.

5 And he built the upper Beth-choron, and the lower Beth-choron, fortified cities, with walls, gates, and bars;

6 And Ba'alath, and all the treasure-cities that Solomon had, and all the cities for chariots, and the cities for horsemen, and all the (other) desire of Solomon which he desired to build in Jerusalem, and in the Lebanon, and throughout all the land of his dominion.

7 All the people that were left of the Hittites, and the Emorites, and the Perizzites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites, who were not of Israel,

8 Out of their children, who were left after them in the land, whom the children of Israel had not destroyed—these did Solomon levy as tributary (labourers) until this day.

9 Yet of the children of Israel did Solomon make no bondmen for his work; but they were men of war, and chiefs of his captains, and officers of his chariots and of his horsemen.

10 And these were the chiefs of the superintendents whom king Solomon had, (even) two hundred and fifty, who ruled over the people.

11 And the daughter of Pharaoh did Solomon bring up out of the city of David unto the house that he had built for her; for he said, No wife of mine shall dwell in a house of David the king of Israel, because they are holy, because there came (once) unto them the ark of the LORD.

12 ¶ Then did Solomon offer burnt-offerings unto the LORD on the altar of the LORD, which he had built before the porch, 13 Even according to what was the due of (every) day on its day, offering according to the commandment of Moses, on the sabbaths, and on the new-moons, and on the stated festivals, three times in the year, on the feast of unleavened bread, and on the feast of weeks, and on the feast of tabernacles.

14 And he stationed, according to the prescription of David his father, the divisions of the priests at their service, and the Levites at their stations, to praise and minister next to the priests, in the requirement of every day on its day, and the gatekeepers in their divisions at every gate; for so was the charge of David the man of God.

15 And they departed not from the charge of the king concerning the priests and Levites respecting every matter, and respecting the treasuries.

16 And (so) was all the work of Solomon successful from[a] the day of founding the house of the LORD, even until it was finished. (So) was perfected the house of the LORD.

17 ¶ Then went Solomon to 'Ezyon-geber, and to Eloth, at the sea-shore in the land of Edom.

18 And Churam sent him by means of his servants ships, and servants that had knowledge of the sea; and they went with the servants of Solomon to Ophir, and they fetched away thence four hundred and fifty talents of gold, and brought the same to king Solomon.

CHAPTER IX.

1 ¶ And when the queen of Sheba heard of the fame of Solomon, she came to prove Solomon with riddles at Jerusalem, with a very great train, and with camels bearing spices, and gold in abundance, and precious stones: and when she was come to Solomon, she spoke with him of all that was on her heart.

2 And Solomon solved for her all her questions: and there was nothing hidden from Solomon which he did not tell her.

3 And when the queen of Sheba saw the wisdom of Solomon, and the house that he had built,

4 And the food of his table, and the sitting of his servants, and the attendance of his ministers, and their apparel, and his cupbearers, and their apparel; and his ascent by which he went up into the house of the LORD: there was no more spirit in her.

5 And she said to the king, The truth (only) was the word that I heard in my own land of thy acts, and of thy wisdom.

6 And I believed not in their words, until I came, and my eyes saw (all); and, behold, the one-half of the greatness of thy wisdom hath not been told me: thou excellest the report which I have heard.

7 Happy are thy men, and happy are these thy servants, who stand before thee continually, and hear thy wisdom.

8 Blessed be the LORD thy God, who hath had delight in thee to place thee on his throne, as a king for the LORD thy God; because thy God loved Israel, to sustain them for ever, therefore hath he placed thee over them as king, to exercise justice and righteousness.

9 And she gave to the king one hundred and twenty talents of gold, and spices in very great abundance, and precious stones; and there never were any such spices as those which the queen of Sheba gave to king Solomon.

10 And also the servants of Churam, and the servants of Solomon, who brought gold

[a] Rashi. Zunz, "from the day of founding—till he had quite completed the house of the LORD" from Ophir, brought sandal-trees and precious stones.

11 And the king made of the sandal-trees steps[a] for the house of the LORD, and for the king's palace, and harps and psalteries for singers: and there were never seen the like of them before in the land of Judah.

12 And king Solomon gave unto the queen of Sheba all her pleasure, whatsoever she asked, beside (a return for) that which she had brought unto the king. And she turned about and went away to her own country, she and her servants.

13 ¶ Now the weight of gold that came to Solomon in one year was six hundred and sixty and six talents of gold;

14 Besides what the travelling tradesmen and the merchants brought. And all the kings of Arabia and the governors of the country brought gold and silver to Solomon.

15 And king Solomon made two hundred targets of beaten gold: six hundred shekels of beaten gold he used for each one target.

16 And (he made) three hundred shields of beaten gold; three hundred shekels of gold he used for each one shield. And the king put them in the house of the forest of Lebanon.

17 The king also made a great throne of ivory, and overlaid it with pure gold.

18 And the throne had six steps, with a footstool of gold, fastened into the throne; and there were arms on either side, on the place of the seat; and two lions stood beside the arms;

19 And twelve lions stood there upon the six steps on both sides: there was not the like made in any kingdom.

20 And all king Solomon's drinking vessels were of gold, and all the vessels of the house of the forest of Lebanon were of pure gold: no silver was valued in the days of Solomon at the least.

21 For the king's ships went to Tharshish with the servants of Huram: once in three years did the Tharshish-ships use to come home laden with gold, and silver, ivory, and apes, and peacocks.

22 And king Solomon became greater than all the kings of the earth for riches and wisdom.

23 And all the kings of the earth sought the presence of Solomon, to hear his wisdom which God had put in his heart.

24 And they brought every man his present, vessels of silver, and vessels of gold, and garments, armour, and spices, horses, and mules; (and) so year by year.

25 ¶ And Solomon had four thousand stalls for horses and chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen, whom he quartered in the cities for chariots, and near the king at Jerusalem.

26 And he was ruling over all the kings from the river even unto the land of the Philistines, and as far as the boundary of Egypt.

27 And the king rendered silver in Jerusalem like stones, and the cedar-trees he rendered like the sycamore-trees that are in the lowlands, for abundance.

28 And men were bringing out horses for Solomon from Egypt, and from all lands.

29 And the remainder of the acts of Solomon, the first and the last, behold, they are written in the history of Nathan the prophet, and in the prophecy of Achiyah the Shilonite, and in the visions of Ye'do the seër concerning Jerobo'am the son of Nebat.

30 And Solomon reigned in Jerusalem over all Israel forty years.

31 And Solomon slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the city of David his father: and Rehobo'am his son became king in his stead.

CHAPTER X.

1 ¶ And Rehobo'am went to Shechem; for to Shechem were all Israel come to make him king.

2 And it came to pass, when Jerobo'am the son of Nebat heard of it, for he was in Egypt, whither he had fled from the presence of king Solomon, that Jerobo'am returned out of Egypt.

3 And they sent and called him: and so came Jerobo'am with all Israel and spoke to Rehobo'am, saying,

4 Thy father made our yoke hard; but now do thou make lighter the hard service of thy father, and his heavy yoke which he put upon us, and we will serve thee.

[a] In 1 Kings x. 12, we read "a railing," whence it is probable that it means here the same on the stairs.

5 And he said unto them, After but three days, then return unto me. And the people went away.

6 Then consulted king Rehobo'am with the old men that had stood before Solomon his father while he yet lived, saying, How do you advise that I should return an answer to this people?

7 And they spoke unto him, saying, If thou wilt be kind to this people, and please them, and speak to them good words: then will they be servants unto thee for all times.

8 But he forsook the counsel which the old men had given him, and consulted with the young men that were grown up with him, and who stood before him.

9 And he said unto them, How do you counsel how we should give an answer to this people, who have spoken to me, saying, Make lighter the yoke which thy father did put upon us?

10 Then spoke with him the young men that were grown up with him, saying, Thus must thou say unto the people that have spoken unto thee, saying, Thy father made our yoke heavy, but do thou make it lighter unto us: thus must thou say unto them, My little finger is thicker than my father's loins.

11 And now (if) my father hath burdened you with a heavy yoke, I will add to your yoke: (if) my father hath chastised you with whips, then will I (do it) with scorpion-thorns.

12 When now Jerobo'am and all the people came to Rehobo'am on the third day, as the king had spoken, saying, Return to me on the third day:

13 The king answered them harshly; and king Rehobo'am forsook the counsel of the old men;

14 And he spoke to them after the counsel of the young men, saying, My father made your yoke heavy, and I will add thereto; my father chastised you with whips, but I will (do it) with scorpion-thorns.

15 And the king hearkened not unto the people; for it was so brought about from God, in order that the LORD might fulfil his word, which he had spoken by means of Achiyahu the Shilonite unto Jerobo'am the son of Nebat.

16 So when all Israel saw that the king hearkened not unto them, the people answered the king, saying, What portion have we in David? nor have we an inheritance in the son of Jessé: every man to your tents, O Israel; now, see to thy own house, David. So did all Israel go to their tents.

17 But as for the children of Israel who dwelt in the cities of Judah, over them did Rehobo'am reign.

18 ¶ Then sent king Rehobo'am Hadoram who was over the tribute; but the children of Israel stoned him with stones, that he died. Therefore king Rehobo'am made speed with his might to get upon his chariot, to flee to Jerusalem.

19 ¶ So did Israel rebel against the house of David unto this day.

CHAPTER XI.

1 And when Rehobo'am was come to Jerusalem, he assembled the house of Judah and Benjamin a hundred and eighty thousand chosen men, warriors, to fight against Israel, to bring back the kingdom again to Rehobo'am.

2 ¶ But the word of the LORD came unto Shema'yahu the man of God, saying,

3 Say unto Rehobo'am the son of Solomon, the king of Judah, and unto all Israel in Judah and Benjamin, saying,

4 Thus hath said the LORD, Ye shall not go up, nor fight with your brethren: return every man to his house; for from me hath this thing been brought about. And they hearkened to the words of the LORD, and returned from going against Jerobo'am.

5 ¶ And Rehobo'am dwelt in Jerusalem, and built cities as fortresses in Judah.

6 He built, namely, Beth-lechem, and 'Etam, and Thekoä',

7 And Beth-zur, and Socho, and 'Adullam,

8 And Gath, and Mareshah, and Ziph,

9 And Adorayim and Lachish, and 'Azekah,

10 And Zor'ah, and Ayalon, and Hebron, which are in Judah and in Benjamin, fortified cities.

11 And he strengthened the strong-holds, and put commanders in them, and stores of food, and oil and wine;

12 And in each and every city (he placed) shields and spears, and made them exceedingly strong: and thus remained with him Judah and Benjamin.

13 ¶ And the priests and the Levites that were in all Israel presented themselves to him out of all their territory.

14 For the Levites left their open districts and their possession, and went to Judah and Jerusalem; because Jerobo'am and his sons cast them off from executing the priest's office unto the LORD,

15 And (because) he ordained for himself priests for the high-places, and for the evil spirits, and for the calves which he had made.

16 And after them (came) out of all the tribes of Israel such as directed their heart to seek the LORD the God of Israel: these came to Jerusalem, to sacrifice unto the LORD, the God of their fathers.

17 And they strengthened the kingdom of Judah, and brought power to Rehobo'am, the son of Solomon, during three years; for they walked in the way of David and Solomon during three years.

18 ¶ And Rehobo'am took himself as wife Machalath the daughter of Jerimoth the son of David, (and) Abichayil the daughter of Eliäb the son of Jessé;

19 And she bore to him sons: Je'ush, and Shamaryah, and Zaham.

20 And after her did he take Ma'achah the daughter of Abshalom; and she bore to him Abiyah, and 'Attai, and Ziza, and Shelomith.

21 And Rehobo'am loved Ma'achah the daughter of Abshalom more than all his wives and his concubines; for he had taken eighteen wives and sixty concubines; and he begat twenty and eight sons, and sixty daughters.

22 And Rehobo'am appointed Abiyah the son of Ma'achah to be the chief, to be ruler among his brethren; because (he desired) to make him king.

23 And he dealt understandingly, and dispersed all his children throughout all the countries of Judah and Benjamin, unto all the fortified cities; and he gave them food in abundance and he required (for them) a multitude of wives.

CHAPTER XII.

1 And it came to pass, when Rehobo'am had established the kingdom, and when he had become strong, that he forsook the law of the LORD, and all Israel with him.

2 ¶ And it came to pass in the fifth year of king Rehobo'am, that Shishak the king of Egypt came up against Jerusalem,—because they had acted faithlessly against the LORD,—

3 With twelve hundred chariots and sixty thousand horsemen: and innumerable were the people that came with him out of Egypt —the Lubim, the Sukkiyim, and the Ethiopians.

4 And he captured the fortified cities which pertained to Judah, and he came as far as Jerusalem.

5 ¶ And Shem'ayah the prophet came to Rehobo'am, and the princes of Judah, that were gathered together to Jerusalem because of Shishak, and said unto them, Thus hath said the LORD, Ye have indeed forsaken me, and therefore have I also relinquished you into the hand of Shishak.

6 Thereupon the princes of Israel and the king humbled themselves; and they said, The LORD is righteous.

7 And when the LORD saw that they had humbled themselves, then came the word of the LORD to Shem'ayah, saying, "They have humbled themselves: I will not destroy them; but I will permit some little to escape from them; and my wrath shall not be poured out over Jerusalem by the hand of Shishak."

8 However they shall be servants unto him, and they shall know my service, and the service of the kingdoms of the (various) countries.

9 ¶ And so came up Shishak the king of Egypt against Jerusalem, and he took away the treasures of the house of the LORD, and the treasures of the king's house: every thing did he take away; and he took away the shields of gold which Solomon had made.

10 And king Rehobo'am made in their stead shields of copper, and committed them for keeping into the hand of the chiefs of the runners, who kept guard at the door of the king's house.

11 And it happened whenever the king went into the house of the LORD, that the runners came and bore them, and carried them back into the apartment of the runners.

12 And when he had humbled himself, the wrath of the LORD turned from him, so that he destroyed him not to make an end (of him): and also in Judah were some good things (found).

13 ¶ And king Rehobo'am strengthened himself in Jerusalem, and reigned; for Rehobo'am was one and forty years old when he became king, and seventeen years did he reign in Jerusalem, the city which the LORD had chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, to put his name there. And his mother's name was Na'amah the 'Ammonitess.

14 And he did the evil; because he directed not his heart to seek the LORD.

15 ¶ And the acts of Rehobo'am, the first and the last, behold, they are written in the history of Shem'ayah the prophet, and of 'Iddo the seër concerning the genealogies. And the wars of Rehobo'am and Jerobo'am (lasted) all the days.

16 And Rehobo'am slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of David: and Abiyah his son became king in his stead.

CHAPTER XIII.

1 ¶ In the eighteenth year of king Jerobo'am became Abiyah king over Judah.

2 Three years he reigned in Jerusalem: and his mother's name was Michayahu the daughter of Uriël of Gib'ah. And there was war between Abiyah and Jerobo'am.

3 And Abiyah joined the battle with an army of valiant men of war, even of four hundred thousand chosen men: Jerobo'am also set the battle in array against him with eight hundred thousand chosen men, being mighty men of valour.

4 ¶ And Abiyah stood up above mount Zemarayim, which is in the mountain of Ephraim, and said, Hear me, O Jerobo'am, and all Israel;

5 Ought ye not to know that the LORD the God of Israel hath given the kingdom over Israel to David for eternity, yea, to him and to his sons by a covenant of salt?

6 But there rose up Jerobo'am the son of Nebat, the servant of Solomon the son of David, and rebelled against his lord.

7 ¶ And there were gathered unto him idle men, worthless persons, and put themselves in violent resistance against Rehobo'am the son of Solomon: while Rehobo'am was young and tender hearted, and could not sustain himself before them.

8 And now ye think to sustain yourselves before the kingdom of the LORD in the hand of the sons of David; and ye are a great multitude; and with you are golden calves, which Jerobo'am hath made for you as gods.

9 Have ye not cast out the priests of the LORD, the sons of Aaron, and the Levites, and have made yourselves priests like the people of the (various) lands? so that whosoever cometh to consecrate himself with a young bullock and seven rams can become a priest to things that are no gods?

10 But as for us, the LORD is our God, and we have not forsaken him; and the priests, who minister unto the LORD, are the sons of Aaron; and the Levites are at their (appointed) work;

11 And they burn unto the LORD burnt-offerings every morning and every evening and incense of sweet spices; and the rows of the show-bread (do they place) upon the pure table; and there is the candlestick of gold with its lamps, to light the same every evening; for we keep the charge of the LORD our God, while ye have truly forsaken him.

12 And, behold, with us at our head is the (true) God, with his priests with trumpets for blowing the alarm, to sound an alarm against you. O children of Israel, do not fight against the LORD the God of your fathers; for ye will not prosper.

13 But Jerobo'am caused an ambush to come around behind them: so they themselves were before Judah, and the ambush was behind them.

14 And when Judah turned round, behold, they had the battle before and behind: and they cried unto the LORD, and the priests blew with the trumpets.

15 And then gave the men of Judah a shout: and it came to pass, as the men of Judah shouted, that God struck down Jerobo'am and all Israel before Abiyah and Judah.

16 And the children of Israel fled from before Judah, and God gave them up into their hand.

17 And Abiyah and his people smote them with a great defeat, and there fell down slain of Israel five hundred thousand chosen men.

18 Thus were the children of Israel humbled at that time: and the children of Judah became powerful, because they relied upon the LORD the God of their fathers.

19 And Abiyah made pursuit after Jerobo'am, and captured cities from him, Bethel with its villages, and Jeshanah with its villages, and 'Ephrayin with its villages.

20 And Jerobo'am did not recover strength again in the days of Abiyahu: and the LORD struck him, and he died.

21 ¶ But Abiyahu became strong, and he took himself fourteen wives, and begat twenty and two sons, and sixteen daughters.

22 And the rest of the acts of Abiyah, and his ways, and his speeches, are written in the writing of the prophet 'Iddo.

23[a] And Abiyah slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the city of David: and Assa his son became king in his stead. In his days the land had repose ten years.

CHAPTER XIV.

1 ¶ And Assa did what is good and right in the eyes of the LORD his God.

2 And he removed the altars of the strange (gods), and the high-places, and broke up the statues, and cut down the groves;

3 And he ordered Judah to seek the LORD the God of their fathers, and to execute the law and the commandment.

4 Also he removed out of all the cities of Judah the high-places and the sun-images: and the kingdom had repose before him.

5 And he built fortified cities in Judah; for the land had repose, and no one had war with him in those years; because the LORD had given him rest.

6 Therefore he said unto Judah, Let us build these cities, and surround them with walls, and towers, gates, and bars: the land is yet before us; because we have sought the LORD our God,—we have sought him, and he hath given us rest on every side." So they built and prospered.

7 ¶ And Assa had an army that bore targets and spears, out of Judah three hundred thousand; and out of Benjamin, that bore shields and drew the bow, two hundred and eighty thousand: all these were mighty men of valour.

8 And there came out against them Zerach the Ethiopian with an army of a thousand times thousand, and three hundred chariots; and he came as far as Mareshah.

9 Then went Assa out against him, and they set themselves in battle-array in the valley of Zephathah near Mareshah.

10 And Assa called unto the LORD his God, and said, LORD, nothing can hinder thee to help, whether it be the mighty, or those that have no power: help us, O LORD our God; for on thee do we rely, and in thy name are we come against this multitude. O LORD, thou art our God! no mortal can place a restraint against thee.

11 ¶ Thereupon did the LORD strike down the Ethiopians before Assa, and before Judah: and the Ethiopians fled.

12 And Assa and the people that were with him pursued them as far as Gerar: and there fell of the Ethiopians (so many), that they could not recover themselves; for they were broken down before the LORD, and before his camp; and they carried away exceedingly much booty.

13 And they smote all the cities round about Gerar; for the dread of the LORD was upon them: and they plundered all the cities; for abundant spoil was in them.

14 And also the tents of (the owners of) cattle did they smite, and they carried away sheep in abundance, and camels, and returned to Jerusalem.

CHAPTER XV.

1 And as for 'Azaryahu the son of 'Oded —on him came the spirit of God;

2 And he went out to meet Assa, and said unto him, Hear me, O Assa, and all Judah and Benjamin, The LORD is with you, while ye remain with him; and if ye seek him, he will let himself be found by you; but if ye forsake him, he will forsake you.

3 ¶ And many days (had elapsed) for Israel, (they being) without the true God, and without a teaching priest, and without law.

4 But they returned when they were in distress unto the LORD, the God of Israel, and they sought him, and he let himself be found by them.

5 And in those times there was no peace to him that went out, and to him that came in; but there were great confusions among all the inhabitants of the countries.

6 And nation was dashed to pieces against nation, and city against city; for God did confound them with all kind of distress.

[a] The English version commences here chapter xiv.

7 But as for you, be ye strong, and let not your hands be weak; for there is a reward for your doing.

8 ¶ And when Assa heard these words, and the prophecy of 'Oded the prophet, he was strengthened, and he put away the abominable idols out of all the land of Judah and Benjamin, and out of the cities which he had captured from the mountain of Ephraim; and he renewed the altar of the LORD, that was before the porch of the LORD.

9 And he assembled all Judah and Benjamin, and those that sojourned with them out of Ephraim and Menasseh, and out of Simeon; for they had joined him out of Israel in abundance, when they saw that the LORD his God was with him.

10 ¶ And so they assembled themselves at Jerusalem in the third month, in the fifteenth year of the reign of Assa.

11 And they sacrificed unto the LORD on the same day, of the booty which they had brought, seven hundred oxen and seven thousand sheep.

12 And they entered into the covenant to seek the LORD the God of their fathers with all their heart and with all their soul;

13 So that whosoever would not seek the LORD the God of Israel should be put to death, from the small even up to the great, whether it be man or woman.

14 And they swore unto the LORD with a loud voice, and with (joyful) shouting, and with trumpets, and with cornets.

15 And all Judah rejoiced because of the oath; for with all their heart had they sworn, and with their whole desire did they seek him, and he let himself be found by them: and the LORD gave them rest on every side.

16 And also concerning Ma'achah the mother of king Assa, he removed her from being queen, because she had made a scandalous image for the grove; and Assa cut down her scandalous image, and had it ground up, and burnt it by the brook Kidron.

17 But the high-places were not removed out of Israel: nevertheless the heart of Assa was entire all his days.

18 And he brought the things which his father had sanctified, and his own sanctified things, into the house of God,—silver, and gold, and vessels.

19 And there was no war until the five-and-thirtieth year of the reign of Assa.

CHAPTER XVI.

1 ¶ In the six-and-thirtieth year of the reign of Assa, came up Ba'sha the king of Israel against Judah, and built Ramah, in order not to suffer any one to go out or come in to Assa the king of Judah.

2 Then did Assa bring out silver and gold out of the treasuries of the house of the LORD and of the king's house, and sent (them) to Ben-hadad the king of Syria, who dwelt at Damascus, saying,

3 A covenant is between me and thee, as between my father and thy father: behold, I have sent unto thee silver and gold; go, break thy covenant with Ba'sha the king of Israel, that he may withdraw from me.

4 And Ben-hadad hearkened unto king Assa, and sent the captains of the armies that he had against the cities of Israel, and they smote 'Iyon, and Dan, and Abel-mayim, and all the treasure-cities of Naphtali.

5 And it came to pass, when Ba'sha heard this, that he left off the building of Ramah, and stopped his work.

6 ¶ And king Assa took then all Judah; and they carried away the stones of Ramah, and its timber, wherewith Ba'sha had built; and he built therewith Geba' and Mizpah.

7 ¶ And at that time came Chanani the seër to Assa the king of Judah, and said unto him, Because thou hast relied on the king of Syria, and hast not relied on the LORD thy God: therefore is the army of the king of Syria escaped out of thy hands.

8 Were not the Ethiopians and the Lubim a numerous army, with chariots and horsemen in great abundance? yet, because thou didst rely on the LORD, he gave them up into thy hand.

9 For as regardeth the LORD, his eyes roam throughout the whole earth, to hold strongly with those whose heart is entire toward him: thou hast done foolishly for this reason; because from this time forth there will be wars with thee.

10 Then became Assa incensed toward the seër, and put him in a prison-house; for he was in a rage with him because of this. And Assa oppressed some of the people at the same time.

11 And, behold, the acts of Assa, the first and the last, lo, they are written in the book of the kings of Judah and Israel.

12 ¶ And Assa became sick in the thirty-and-ninth year of his reign in his feet, his disease being exceedingly severe: yet even in his disease he sought not to the LORD, but (applied) to the physicians.

13 And Assa slept with his fathers, and died in the one-and-fortieth year of his reign.

14 And they buried him in his own sepulchres, which he had dug for himself in the city of David, and they laid him in the couch which was filled with sweet odours and divers kinds of spices mixed by the apothecary's art; and they made for him a burning uncommonly great.

CHAPTER XVII.

1 ¶ And Jehoshaphat his son became king in his stead, and strengthened himself against Israel.

2 And he placed forces in all the fortified cities of Judah, and placed garrisons in the land of Judah, and in the cities of Ephraim, which Assa his father had captured.

3 And the LORD was with Jehoshaphat; because he walked in the first ways of David his father, and sought not after the Be'alim;

4 On the contrary, after the God of his father did he seek, and in his commandments did he walk, but not after the doings of Israel.

5 Therefore did the LORD establish the kingdom in his hand; and all Judah gave presents to Jehoshaphat; and he had riches and honour in abundance.

6 And his heart raised itself up in the ways of the LORD, and he removed moreover the high-places and groves out of Judah.

7 ¶ And in the third year of his reign he sent his princes, even Ben-chayil, and 'Obadiah, and Zechariah, and Nethanel, and Michayahu, to teach in the cities of Judah.

8 And with them were the Levites, Shema'yahu, and Nethanyahu, and Zebadyahu, and 'Assahël, and Shemiramoth, and Jehonathan, and Adoniyahu, and Tobiyahu, and Tob-adoniyah, the Levites; and with them Elishama' and Jehoram, the priests.

9 And they taught in Judah, and with them was the book of the law of the LORD, and they moved about through all the cities of Judah, and taught the people.

10 And the dread of the LORD was upon all the kingdoms of the lands that were round about Judah, so that they made no war with Jehoshaphat.

11 Also from the Philistines did people bring unto Jehoshapat presents and silver, as tribute: also the Arabians brought him small cattle, rams seven thousand and seven hundred, and he-goats seven thousand and seven hundred.

12 ¶ And Jehoshaphat went on becoming exceedingly great, and he built in Judah castles and treasure-cities.

13 And he had great works in the cities of Judah, and men of war, mighty in valour, in Jerusalem.

14 ¶ And these are their numbers according to their family divisions: Of Judah, of the captains of the thousands was 'Adnah the chief, and with him were mighty men of valour, three hundred thousand.

15 ¶ And next to him was Jehochanan the chief, and with him were two hundred and eighty thousand.

16 And next to him was 'Amassyah the son of Zichri, who voluntarily offered himself unto the LORD; and with him were two hundred thousand mighty men of valour.

17 And of Benjamin, the mighty valiant Elyada', and with him were those armed with bow and shield two hundred thousand.

18 And next him was Jehozabad, and with him were one hundred and eighty thousand ready armed for the host.

19 ¶ These were those that ministered to the king, besides those whom the king had placed in the fortified cities throughout all Judah.

CHAPTER XVIII.

1 ¶ And Jehoshaphat had riches and honour in abundance, and he intermarried with Achab.

2 And he went down after (some) years to Achab to Samaria. And Achab killed for him sheep and oxen in abundance, and for the people that were with him, and persuaded him to go up to Ramoth-gil'ad.

3 Then said Achab the king of Israel unto Jehoshaphat the king of Judah, Wilt thou go with me against Ramoth-gil'ad? And he said to him, I (will be) like thee, and my people (shall be) as thy people; and we will be with thee in the battle.

4 And Jehoshaphat said unto the king of Israel, Inquire, I pray thee, to-day (first) of the word of the LORD.

5 Then did the king of Israel assemble the prophets, four hundred men, and said unto them, Shall we go to Ramoth-gil'ad to battle, or shall I forbear? And they said, Go up, and God will deliver (it) into the hand of the king.

6 And Jehoshaphat said, Is there not here a prophet of the Eternal besides, that we might inquire of him?

7 And the king of Israel said unto Jehoshaphat, There is yet one man, by whom we may inquire of the LORD; but I hate him; for he never prophesieth any good concerning me, but at all times evil: it is Michayhu the son of Yimla. And Jehoshaphat said, Let not the king say so.

8 Then called the king of Israel a certain court-officer, and said, "Hasten hither Michayhu the son of Yimla."

9 And the king of Israel and Jehoshaphat the king of Judah were sitting each on his throne, dressed in their royal garments, and they were sitting in a threshing-floor at the entrance of the gate of Samaria: and all the prophets prophesied before them.

10 And Zedekiah the son of Kena'anah had made himself horns of iron; and he said, Thus hath said the LORD, With these shalt thou push the Syrians until thou have made an end of them.

11 And all the prophets prophesied so, saying, Go up against Ramoth-gil'ad, and prosper, and the LORD will deliver it into the king's hand.

12 And the messenger that went to call Michayhu spoke to him, saying, Behold, the words of the prophets are with one voice good for the king: so do let thy word, I pray thee, be like (that of) any one of them, and speak something good.

13 And Michayhu said, As the LORD liveth, truly what my God may say, that will I speak.

14 And when he was come to the king, the king said unto him, Michah, shall we go to Ramoth-gil'ad to battle, or shall I forbear? And he said, Go ye up, and prosper, and may they be delivered into your hand.

15 And the king said to him, How many times yet must I adjure thee that thou shalt not speak to me any thing but the truth in the name of the LORD?

16 Then said he, I saw all Israel scattered over the mountains, as flocks that have not a shepherd: and the LORD said, These have no master; let them return every man to his house in peace.

17 And the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, Did I not say unto thee that he would not prophesy concerning me any good, but (only) for evil?

18 ¶ And he said, Therefore hear ye the word of the LORD: I saw the LORD sitting on his throne, and all the host of heaven standing on his right and his left.

19 And the LORD said, Who will persuade Achab the king of Israel, that he may go up and fall at Ramoth-gil'ad? And one said—one saying after this manner, and another saying after that manner.

20 Then came there forth a spirit, and placed himself before the LORD, and said, I will persuade him. And the LORD said unto him, Wherewith?

21 And he said, I will go forth, and I will become a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets. And he said, Thou wilt persuade him, and also prevail: go forth, and do so.

22 And now, behold, the LORD hath put a lying spirit in the mouth of these thy prophets; but the LORD hath spoken evil concerning thee.

23 And Zedekiah the son of Kena'anah went near, and struck Michayhu on the cheek, and said, Which is the way the Spirit of the LORD passed away from me to speak with thee?

24 And Michayhu said, Behold, thou shalt see it on that day when thou shalt go into the innermost chamber to hide thyself.

25 And the king of Israel said, Take ye Michayhu, and carry him back unto Amon the governor of the city, and to Joäsh the king's son;

26 And say ye, Thus hath said the king, Put this man in the prison, and feed him with sparing bread and with sparing water, until I return in peace.

27 And Michayhu said, If thou return at all in peace, then hath the LORD not spoken through me. And he said, Hear it, O all ye nations!

28 ¶ And the king of Israel went up with Jehoshaphat the king of Judah to Ramoth-gil'ad.

29 And the king of Israel said unto Jehoshaphat, I will disguise myself, and enter into the battle; but do thou put on thy royal garments. And the king of Israel disguised himself, and they went into the battle.

30 And the king of Syria had commanded the captains of the chariots that he had, saying, Fight ye not with the small or with the great, save only with the king of Israel alone.

31 And it came to pass, when the captains of the chariots saw Jehoshaphat, that they said, This is the king of Israel. And they encompassed him to fight; and Jehoshaphat cried out, and the LORD helped him; and God induced them to go away from him.

32 And it came to pass, when the captains of the chariots perceived that it was not the king of Israel, that they turned back from following him.

33 But a certain man drew his bow at a venture, and struck the king of Israel between the joints and the armour: wherefore he said to the chariot-driver, Turn about, and carry me out of the camp; for I am wounded.

34 And the battle increased on that day: and the king of Israel stayed (himself) up in the chariot against the Syrians until the evening, and he died at the time of the sun's going down.

CHAPTER XIX.

1 ¶ And Jehoshaphat the king of Judah returned to his house in peace, to Jerusalem.

2 And there came out to meet him Jehu the son of Chanani the seër, and said to king Jehoshaphat, Shouldst thou help the wicked, and love those that hate the LORD? and because of this there is wrath over thee from before the LORD.

3 Nevertheless there are good things found on thee; because thou hast removed the Asheroth out of the land, and hast directed thy heart firmly to seek God.

4 ¶ And Jehoshaphat remained at Jerusalem; but he went out again through the people from Beër-sheba' as far as the mountain of Ephraim, and caused them to return unto the LORD the God of their fathers.

5 And he appointed judges in the land in all the fortified cities of Judah, in city by city.

6 And he said to the judges, Look (well) at what ye are doing; because not for man are ye to judge, but for the LORD, who is with you in pronouncing judgment.

7 And now let the dread of the LORD be upon you: take heed and act; for with the LORD our God there is no injustice, nor respect for persons, nor taking of bribes.

8 But also in Jerusalem did Jehoshaphat appoint some of the Levites, and the priests, and of the chiefs of the family divisions of Israel, for the (giving of) the judgment of the LORD, and for controversies, when they returned to Jerusalem.

9 And he charged on them, saying, Thus shall ye do in the fear of the LORD, in faithfulness, and with an undivided heart.

10 And whatsoever controversy may come to you from your brethren that dwell in their cities, between blood and blood, between law and commandment, statutes and ordinances, ye shall truly warn them that they incur not guilt against the LORD, and so there come wrath over you, and over your brethren: so must ye do, and ye will not incur guilt.

11 And, behold, Amaryahu the chief priest is over you for every matter of the LORD; and Zebadyahu the son of Yishma'el, the ruler for the house of Judah, for every matter of the king; and the Levites are officers before you. Be strong and act, and may the LORD be with the good.

CHAPTER XX.

1 ¶ And it came to pass after this, that the children of Moäb, and the children of 'Ammon, and with them some of the 'Ammonim,[a] came against Jehoshaphat to battle.

2 And there came some and told unto Jehoshaphat, saying, There is coming against thee a great multitude from beyond the sea, from Syria; and, behold, they are in Chazazon-thamar, which is 'En-gedi.

3 Then became Jehoshaphat afraid, and he directed his face to seek the LORD; and he proclaimed a fast over all Judah.

4 And (the people of) Judah gathered themselves together, to ask (help) of the LORD: also out of all the cities of Judah did they come to seek the LORD.

[a] Some suppose this to mean "the Me'unim," the inhabitants of Arabia Petræa.

5 And Jehoshaphat stood forward in the assembly of Judah and Jerusalem, in the house of the LORD, before the new court,

6 And he said, O LORD, the God of our fathers, behold, thou art God in the heavens, and thou rulest over all the kingdoms of the nations; and in thy hand are the power and might, and there is none that can withstand thee.

7 Behold, it is thou, O our God, who hast driven out the inhabitants of this land from before thy people Israel; and thou gavest it to the seed of Abraham thy friend to eternity.

8 And they have dwelt therein, and have built for thee therein a sanctuary for thy name, saying,

9 If there should come over us any evil, the sword, punishment, or pestilence, or famine, (then) will we stand before this house, and in thy presence, for thy name is in this house, and we will cry unto thee out of our distress, and thou wilt hear and help.

10 And now, behold, the children of 'Ammon and Moäb and mount Se'ir, against whom thou wouldst not suffer Israel to come, when they came out of the land of Egypt, but they turned aside from them, and destroyed them not:—

11 And behold, they recompense us, by coming to drive us out of thy inheritance, which thou hast given us to possess.

12 O our God, wilt thou not execute justice on them? for there is no power in us against this great multitude that is coming against us; and we indeed know not what we are to do; but upon thee are our eyes (directed).

13 And all Judah were standing before the LORD, also their little ones, their wives, and their sons.

14 ¶ And upon Jachaziël the son of Zecharyahu, the son of Benayah, the son of Je'iël, the son of Matthanyah, the Levite, of the sons of Assaph, came the spirit of the LORD in the midst of the assembly;

15 And he said, Listen ye, all Judah, and ye inhabitants of Jerusalem, and thou king Jehoshaphat, Thus hath said the LORD unto you, Be ye not afraid and be not dismayed because of this great multitude; for not unto you belongeth the battle, but unto God.

16 To-morrow go ye down against them: behold, they come up by the ascent of Ziz; and ye will find them at the end of the valley, in front of the wilderness of Jeruël.

17 Ye shall not need to fight in this place: stand firmly, stand still, and see the salvation of the LORD with you, O Judah and Jerusalem: fear not, and be not dismayed; to-morrow go out to meet them, and the LORD will be with you.

18 And Jehoshaphat bowed his head with his face to the ground: and all Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem fell down before the LORD, to prostrate themselves unto the LORD.

19 And then arose the Levites, of the children of the Kehathites, and of the children of the Korchites, to praise the LORD the God of Israel with a very loud voice.

20 And they rose up early in the morning, and went forth into the wilderness of Thekoï: and as they went forth, Jehoshaphat stood forward and said, Hear me, O Judah, and ye inhabitants of Jerusalem; believe in the LORD your God, and ye will have permanence; believe his prophets, and ye will prosper.

21 And he consulted with his people, and he appointed singers unto the LORD, and those that should praise in the holy ornaments, as they went out before the armed array, and said, Give thanks unto the LORD; for unto everlasting endureth his kindness.

22 And at the time when they began with the song and the praise, the LORD set an ambush against the children of 'Ammon, Moäb, and mount Se'ir, who were come against Judah, and they were smitten.

23 And the children of 'Ammon and Moäb stood up against the inhabitants of mount Se'ir, utterly to annihilate and to destroy them; and when they had made an end of the inhabitants of Se'ir, they helped to destroy one another.

24 And when Judah came toward the watchtower in the wilderness, they looked toward the multitude, and, behold, they were dead bodies fallen to the earth, and none had escaped.

25 And then came Jehoshaphat and his people to plunder their booty, and they found among them in abundance both riches and dead bodies, and costly vessels, which they stript off for themselves, more than they could carry away: and they were three days in plundering the booty, for it was so much.

26 And on the fourth day they assembled themselves in the valley of Berachah; for there they blessed the LORD: therefore did they call the name of this place, The valley of Berachah [Blessing], until this day.

27 Then returned all the men of Judah and Jerusalem, and Jehoshaphat at their head, to return to Jerusalem with joy; for the LORD had caused them to rejoice over their enemies.

28 And they came to Jerusalem with psalteries and with harps and with trumpets unto the house of the LORD.

29 And a dread from God was on all the kingdoms of (those) countries, when they heard that the LORD had fought with the enemies of Israel.

30 So the kingdom of Jehoshaphat had repose, and he God gave him rest all round about.

31 ¶ And (so) did Jehoshaphat reign over Judah: thirty and five years old was he when he became king, and twenty and five years did he reign in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was 'Azubah the daughter of Shilchi.

32 And he walked in the way of his father Assa, and turned not aside from it, doing what is right in the eyes of the LORD.

33 Nevertheless the high-places were not removed; for the people had not yet directed their heart firmly unto the God of their fathers.

34 And the rest of the acts of Jehoshaphat, the first and the last, behold, they are written in the history of Jehu the son of Chanani, which was entered in the book of the kings of Israel.

35 And after this did Jehoshaphat the king of Judah connect himself with Achazyah the king of Israel, the same who acted very wickedly;

36 And he connected himself with him to make ships to go to Tharshish: and they made ships in 'Ezyon-geber.

37 Then prophesied Eli'ezer the son of Dodavahu of Mareshah against Jehoshaphat, saying, Because thou hast connected thyself with Achazyahu, the LORD hath broken down thy works. And the ships were wrecked, so that they were not able to go to Tharshish.

CHAPTER XXI.

1 And Jehoshaphat slept with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the city of David. And Jehoram his son became king in his stead.

2 And he had brothers the sons of Jehoshaphat: 'Azaryah, and Jechiël, and Zecharyahu, and 'Azaryahu, and Michaël, and Shephatyahu, all these being sons of Jehoshaphat the king of Israel.

3 And their father gave them many gifts (consisting) of silver, and of gold, and of precious things, with fortified cities in Judah; but the kingdom gave he to Jehoram; because he was the first-born.

4 ¶ Now when Jehoram was risen up over the kingdom of his father, and had strengthened himself, he slew all his brothers with the sword, and also some of the princes of Israel.

5 Thirty and two years was Jehoram old when he became king, and eight years did he reign in Jerusalem.

6 And he walked in the way of the kings of Israel, as had done the house of Achab; for the daughter of Achab had he for wife: and he did what is evil in the eyes of the LORD.

7 Yet would the LORD not destroy the house of David, on account of the covenant which he had made with David, and as he had said to give to him a government and to his sons at all times.

8 In his days Edom revolted from under the power of Judah, and they appointed a king over themselves.

9 Then did Jehoram go over with his princes, and all the chariots were with him; and he rose up by night, and smote the Edomites who compassed him about, and the captains of the chariots.

10 Yet Edom revolted from under the power of Judah even until this day: then did Libnah revolt at the same time from under his power; because he had forsaken the LORD the God of his fathers.

11 He also made high-places in the mountains of Judah, and caused the inhabitants of Jerusalem to go astray,[a] and misled Judah.

12 ¶ And there came unto him a writing

[a] To commit idolatry and the consequent immoralities from Elijah[a] the prophet, saying, Thus hath said the LORD the God of David thy father, Inasmuch as thou hast not walked in the ways of Jehoshaphat thy father, and in the ways of Asa the king of Judah,

13 But hast walked in the way of the kings of Israel, and hast caused Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem to go astray, as the house of Achab hath caused (others) to go astray, and hast also slain thy brothers of thy father's house, who were better than thyself:

14 Behold, the LORD will inflict a great plague on thy people, and on thy children, and on thy wives, and on all thy possessions;

15 And thou shalt be (afflicted) with great diseases by a disease of thy bowels, until thy bowels pass out (from thee) by reason of the disease days upon days.[b]

16 And the LORD stirred up against Jehoram the spirit of the Philistines, and of the Arabians, that are alongside of the Cushim:

17 And they went up against Judah, and made an incursion into it, and carried away all the substance that was found in the king's house, and also his sons, and his wives; and there was not left unto him any son, save Jehoächaz, the youngest of his sons.

18 And after all this did the LORD afflict him in his bowels with a disease which was incurable.

19 And it came to pass, from days to days, and when the (fixed) time was expired, after two years, that his bowels passed out (from him) by reason of his disease: so he died of evil diseases. And his people made no burning for him, like the burning for his fathers.

20 Thirty and two years old was he when he became king, and eight years did he reign in Jerusalem, and departed without joy:[c] and they buried him in the city of David, but not in the sepulchres of the kings.

CHAPTER XXII.

1 And the inhabitants of Jerusalem made Achazyahu his youngest son king in his stead; for the predatory band that was come with the Arabians to the camp had slain all the eldest. So became Achazyahu, the son of Jehoram the king of Judah, king.

2 ¶ Forty and two[d] years old was Achazyahu when he became king, and one year did he reign in Jerusalem: and his mother's name was 'Athalyahu the (grand-)daughter of 'Omri.

3 Also he walked in the ways of the house of Achab; for his mother was his counsellor to act wickedly.

4 And he did what is evil in the eyes of the LORD like the house of Achab; for these were his counsellors after the death of his father to his destruction.

5 He walked also after their counsel, and went with Jehoram the son of Achab the king of Israel to war against Chazaël the king of Syria at Ramoth-gil'ad: and the Syrians smote Joram.

6 And he returned to be healed in Yizre'el because of the wounds which had been given him at Ramah, when he fought with Chazaël the king of Syria. And 'Azaryahu the son of Jehoram the king of Judah went down to see Jehoram the son of Achab at Yizre'el, because he was sick.

7 But from God was the confusion of Achazyahu that he should come to Joram: and when he was come, he went out with Jehoram against Jehu the son of Nimshi, whom the LORD had anointed to cut off the house of Achab.

8 And it came to pass, when Jehu was executing judgment on the house of Achab, that he found the princes of Judah, and the sons of the brothers of Achazyahu, that ministered to Achazyahu, and he slew them.

9 And he sought Achazyahu, and they caught him while he was hiding himself in Samaria, and they brought him to Jehu, and they slew him, and buried him; because they said, He is a son of Jehoshaphat, who sought the LORD with all his heart. And there was none of the house of Achazyahu who had sufficient power (to obtain) the kingdom.

10 ¶ And when 'Athalyahu the mother of Achazyahu saw that her son was dead, she

[a] Redak supposes that Elijah after his translation appeared to a disciple, and ordered him to write this letter. Others, that it was another prophet so called. Again, that it was written before Elijah's translation.

[b] This phrase is explained variously: Zunz, "from time to time." Herxheimer, "in two years."

[c] Rashi. Others, "without being regretted."

[d] In 2 Kings viii. 26, "twenty-two." The date here is difficult to be reconciled.

arose and exterminated all the royal seed of the house of Judah.

11 ¶ But Yehoshab'ath, the daughter of the king, took Joäsh the son of Achazyahu, and stole him away from the midst of the king's sons that were slain, and put him and his nurse into the bed-chamber. So did Yehoshab'ath, the daughter of king Jehoram, the wife of Yehoyada' the priest,—for she was the sister of Achazyahu,—hide him from 'Athalyahu, so that she slew him not.

12 And he was with them in the house of God hidden six years, while 'Athalyah was reigning over the land.

CHAPTER XXIII.

1 ¶ And in the seventh year Yehoyada' strengthened himself, and took the captains of the hundreds, 'Azaryah the son of Jerocham, and Yishma'el the son of Jehochanan, and 'Azaryahu the son of 'Obed, and Ma'asseyahu the son of 'Adayahu, and Elishaphat the son of Zichri, with him into a covenant.

2 And they moved about in Judah, and gathered the Levites together out of all the cities of Judah, and the heads of the families of Israel; and they came to Jerusalem.

3 And all the congregation made a covenant in the house of God with the king. And he said unto them, Behold, the king's son shall be king, as the LORD hath spoken concerning the sons of David.

4 This is the thing that ye shall do, A third part of you that enter in on the sabbath, of the priests and of the Levites, shall be gatekeepers at the thresholds;

5 And a third part shall be at the king's house; and a third part at the foundation-gate; and all the people shall be in the courts of the house of the LORD.

6 But let none come into the house of the LORD, save the priests, and they that minister of the Levites: they shall enter, for they are holy; but all the people shall keep the charge of the LORD.

7 And the Levites shall encompass the king round about, every man with his weapons in his hand; and he who cometh into the house shall be put to death; and be ye with the king when he cometh in, and when he goeth out.

8 And the Levites and all Judah did in accordance with all that Yehoyada' the priest had commanded, and they took every man his men that came in on the sabbath, with those that were to be relieved on the sabbath; for Yehoyada' the priest had not dismissed the divisions.

9 ¶ And Yehoyada' the priest gave to the captains of the hundreds the spears, and the shields, and the quivers, that belonged to king David, which were in the house of God.

10 And he placed all the people, every man having his weapon in his hand, from the right side of the house to the left side of the house, along by the altar and the temple, all round about the king,

11 Then did they bring forth the king's son, and put upon him the crown, and (gave him) the testimony, and they made him king. And Yehoyada' and his sons anointed him, and said, Long live the king.

12 ¶ And when 'Athalyah heard the noise of the people running and praising the king, she came to the people into the house of the LORD.

13 And she looked, and behold, the king stood upon his stand at the entrance, and the princes and the trumpets were around the king; and all the people of the land rejoiced, and blew on trumpets; also the singers (were there) leading with instruments of music in the songs of praise; and 'Athalyah rent her clothes, and said, "Treason, treason."

14 ¶ But Yehoyada' the priest ordered the captains of the hundreds, the commanders of the army, to go out, and said unto them, Lead her forth to within the ranges; and he that followeth her shall be put to death with the sword. For the priest had said, Ye shall not put her to death in the house of the LORD.

15 And they made way for her: and she went to the entrance of the horse-gate by the king's house, and they put her to death there.

16 ¶ And Yehoyada' made a covenant between him, and between all the people, and between the king, that they should be a people unto the LORD.

17 And then came all the people into the house of Ba'al, and pulled it down, and his altars and his images did they break in pieces, and Matthan the priest of Ba'al they slew before the altars.

18 And Yehoyada' placed the supervision over the house of the LORD into the hand of the priests, the Levites, whom David had divided off over the house of the LORD, to offer the burnt-offerings of the LORD, as it is written in the law of Moses, with rejoicing and with singing, after the manner of David.

19 And he appointed the gatekeepers over the gates of the house of the LORD, that none unclean in any thing should enter therein.

20 And he took the captains of the hundreds, and the nobles, and the governors over the people, and all the people of the land, and he brought down the king from the house of the LORD, and they came through the midst of the upper gate into the king's house; and they caused the king to sit upon the throne of the kingdom.

21 And all the people of the land rejoiced, and the city was quiet; but 'Athalyahu they had slain with the sword.

CHAPTER XXIV.

1 ¶ Seven years old was Joäsh when he became king, and forty years did he reign in Jerusalem: and the name of his mother was Zibyah of Beër-sheba'.

2 And Joäsh did what is right in the eyes of the LORD, all the days of Yehoyada' the priest.

3 ¶ And Yehoyada' took for himself[a] two wives, and he begat sons and daughters.

4 And it came to pass after this, that Yoäsh had it in his mind to renew the house of the LORD.

5 And he gathered together the priests and the Levites, and said to them, Go out unto the cities of Judah, and gather from all Israel[b] money to repair the house of your God from year to year, and ye shall make haste in this matter. But the Levites made no haste.

6 ¶ Then called the king for Yehoyada' the chief, and said unto him, Why hast thou not required from the Levites to bring in out of Judah and out of Jerusalem the contribution (fixed by) Moses the servant of the LORD, and of the congregation of Israel, for the tabernacle of the testimony?

7 For the sons of the wicked 'Athalyahu have made breaches (in) the house of God; and also the holy things of the house of the LORD have they applied to the Be'alim.

8 And at the king's order they made a chest, and placed it at the gate of the house of the LORD on the outside.

9 And they made a proclamation through Judah and Jerusalem, to bring in to the LORD the contribution (fixed by) Moses the servant of God upon Israel in the wilderness.

10 And all the princes and all the people rejoiced, and they brought it in, and cast it into the chest, until it was full.[c]

11 Now it came to pass, that at what time the chest was brought unto the king's office by the hand of the Levites, and when they saw that there was much money, then came the king's scribe and the high-priest's officer and emptied the chest, and took it up, and brought it back to its place. Thus did they day by day, and gathered money in abundance.

12 And the king and Yehoyada' gave it to those who overlooked the service of the house of the LORD, and these hired masons and carpenters to renew the house of the LORD, and also to the workers in iron and copper to repair the house of the LORD.

13 So the workmen wrought, and the work was restored through their means, and they replaced the house of God in its (former) state, and strengthened it.

14 And when they had completed it, they brought before the king and Yehoyada' the rest of the money, and they made of it vessels for the house of the LORD, the vessels of the service and for the sacrificing,[d] and the spoons, and (other) vessels of gold and silver. And they offered burnt-offerings in the house of the LORD continually all the days of Yehoyada'.

15 ¶ And Yehoyada' became old, and was full of days, and died: he was old one hundred and thirty years when he died.

16 And they buried him in the city of David among the kings; because he had done a good thing in Israel, and toward God, and his house.

17 ¶ But after the death of Yehoyada' came the princes of Judah, and bowed themselves down[a] to the king. Then did the king hearken unto them.

[a] So Rashi. English version and others, "for him," i. e. the king.

[b] Meaning, those belonging to his government.

18 And they forsook the house of the LORD the God of their fathers, and served the Asherim and the idols; and there came wrath over Judah and Jerusalem for this their guiltiness.

19 And he sent prophets among them, to bring them back again unto the LORD; and they gave them warning; but they did not give ear.

20 And the spirit of God endued Zechariah the son of Yehoyada' the priest, and he stood up above the people, and he said unto them, Thus hath said the (true) God, Why transgress ye the commandments of the LORD? ye cannot prosper so; because (as) ye have forsaken the LORD, he hath also forsaken you.

21 And they conspired against him, and stoned him with stones at the command of the king in the court of the house of the LORD.

22 And king Joäsh did not remember the kindness which Yehoyada' his father had shown to him, but slew his son. And when he died, he said, The LORD will see (this), and require (my blood).

23 ¶ And it came to pass at the expiration of the year, that the army of Syria came up against him: and they came to Judah and Jerusalem, and destroyed all the princes of the people from among the people, and all their spoil they sent off unto the king of Damascus.

24 Indeed with a small company of men did the army of Syria come; but the LORD delivered[b] into their hand an army exceedingly numerous; because they had forsaken the LORD the God of their fathers. And on Joäsh they executed punishment.

25 And when these were gone away from him—for they left him (suffering) with great diseases—his own servants conspired against him because of the blood of the sons of Yehoyada' the priest, and slew him on his bed, and he died: and they buried him in the city of David, but they buried him not in the sepulchres of the kings.

26 And these are those that conspired against him: Zabad[c] the son of Shim'ath the 'Ammonitess, and Yehozabad the son of Shimrith the Moäbitess.

27 Now concerning his sons, and the great prophecy concerning him, and the founding of the house of God, behold, they are written in the story of the book of the kings. And Amazyahu his son became king in his stead.

CHAPTER XXV.

1 ¶ When twenty and five years old did Amazyahu become king, and twenty and nine years did he reign in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Yeho'addan of Jerusalem.

2 And he did what is right in the eyes of the LORD, yet not with an entire heart.

3 And it came to pass, when the kingdom was firmly established to him, that he slew his servants that had killed the king his father.

4 But their children he put not to death; but (did) as it is written in the law in the book of Moses, that the LORD had commanded, saying, The fathers shall not die for the children, nor shall the children die for the fathers, but every man shall die for his own sin.

5 ¶ And Amazyahu gathered Judah together, and stationed them after their family divisions, after the captains over the thousands, and after the captains over the hundreds, of all Judah and Benjamin; and he numbered them from twenty years old and upward, and found them (to be) three hundred thousand chosen men, able to go forth to the army, that could handle spear and shield.

6 He hired also out of Israel one hundred thousand mighty men of valour for one hundred talents of silver.

7 But a man of God came unto him, saying, O king, let not the army of Israel go with thee; for the LORD is not with Israel, (with) all the children of Ephraim.

8 But if thou wilt go, (and be ever so) active[d] (and) strong for the battle: God will

[a] Herxheimer explains, "they asked in the most submissive manner for permission to practise idolatry."

[b] According to 2 Kings xii. 18, the Syrians did not fight any battle; as Joäsh bought them off. Still the slaughter of the principal men and indignity against the king may have also taken place.

[c] In 2 Kings xii. 22, Yozachar, the son of Shim'ath, and Yehozabad, the son of Shomer, a variation not unusual in the books of Chronicles.

cause thee to stumble before the enemy; for there is power with God to help, and to cause to stumble.

9 Then said Amazyahu to the man of God, But what is to be done for the hundred talents which I have given to the band of Israel? And the man of God said, The LORD hath (enough in his power) to give thee much more than this.

10 Then did Amazyahu separate them, (to wit,) the band that was come to him out of Ephraim, that they might go to their place: wherefore their anger was greatly kindled against Judah, and they returned to their home in burning anger.

11 ¶ And Amazyahu strengthened himself, and led forth his people, and went to the Valley of Salt, and smote of the children of Se'ir ten thousand (men).

12 And ten thousand did the children of Judah take captive alive, and brought them to the top of the rock, and cast them down from the top of the rock, so that they all were crushed.

13 But the men of the band whom Amazyahu had sent back, that they should not go with him to battle, spread themselves about in the cities of Judah, from Samaria even unto Beth-choron, and smote of them three thousand (persons), and plundered much spoil.

14 ¶ And it came to pass, after Amazyahu was come home from smiting the Edomites, that he brought the gods of the children of Se'ir, and set them up unto himself as gods, and before them he used to prostrate himself, and unto them he used to burn incense.

15 Wherefore the anger of the LORD was kindled against Amazyahu, and he sent unto him a prophet, who said unto him, Why hast thou sought after the gods of the people, that have not delivered their own people out of thy hand?

16 And it came to pass, as he was speaking unto him, that he said unto him, Have we ever appointed thee as a counsellor to the king? forbear this: why shouldst thou be smitten? Then did the prophet forbear; and he said, I know that God hath resolved to destroy thee, because thou hast done this, and hast not hearkened unto my counsel.

17 ¶ Then held Amazyahu the king of Judah a council, and sent to Joäsh, the son of Jehoächaz, the son of Jehu, the king of Israel, saying, Come, let us look one another in the face.

18 And Joäsh the king of Israel sent to Amazyahu the king of Judah, saying. The thornbush that was in the Lebanon sent to the cedar that was in the Lebanon, saying, Give thy daughter to my son for wife. And there passed along the wild beasts that were in the Lebanon, and trod down the thorn-bush.

19 Thou hast thought, Lo, thou hast smitten Edom; and thy heart hath lifted thee up to acquire much glory:[a] now stay in thy house; why wilt thou meddle with misfortune, that thou mayest fall, thou, and Judah with thee?

20 But Amazyahu would not hear; for it was (ordained) by God, in order to deliver them into the hand (of Joäsh); because they had sought after the gods of Edom.

21 Thereupon did Joäsh the king of Israel go up: and they looked one another in the face, he and Amazyahu the king of Judah, at Beth-shemesh, which belongeth to Judah.

22 And Judah was defeated before Israel, and they fled every man to his tents.

23 And Joäsh the king of Israel caught Amazyahu the king of Judah, the son of Joäsh, the son of Jehoächaz, at Beth-shemesh; and he brought him to Jerusalem, and made a breach in the wall of Jerusalem, from the gate of Ephraim unto the corner-gate, four hundred cubits.

24 And (taking) all the gold and the silver, and all the vessels that were found in the house of God with 'Obed-edom, and the treasures of the king's house, and the children of the chiefs as hostages, he returned to Samaria.

25 ¶ And Amazyahu the son of Joäsh the king of Judah lived after the death of Joäsh the son of Jehoächaz the king of Israel fifteen years.

26 And the rest of the acts of Amazyahu the first and the last, behold, they are fully written in the book of the kings of Judah and Israel.

27 Now from the time that Amazyahu departed from following the LORD, they raised a conspiracy against him in Jerusalem: wherefore he fled to Lachish; but they sent after him to Lachish, and slew him there.

28 And they carried him on horses, and buried him with his fathers in the city of Judah.

CHAPTER XXVI.

1 And all the people of Judah took 'Uzziyahu, who was then sixteen years old, and made him king instead of his father Amazyahu.

2 He it was that built Eloth, and brought it back to Judah, after the king slept with his fathers.

3 ¶ Sixteen years old was 'Uzziyahu when he became king, and fifty and two years did he reign in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Yecholyah of Jerusalem.

4 And he did what is right in the eyes of the LORD, in accordance with all that his father Amazyahu had done.

5 And he was (inclined) to seek God in the days of Zecharyahu, who had understanding in the visions of God; and during the time that he sought the LORD, God caused him to prosper.

6 And he went forth and made war against the Philistines, and he broke down the wall of Gath, and the wall of Jabneh, and the wall of Ashdod; and he built cities in (the country of) Ashdod, and among the Philistines.

7 And God helped him against the Philistines, and against the Arabians that dwelt in Gur-ba'al, and the Me'unim.

8 And the 'Ammonites gave presents to 'Uzziyahu: and his name extended even to the entrance of Egypt; for he became exceedingly strong.

9 And 'Uzziyahu built towers in Jerusalem, above the corner-gate, and above the valley-gate, and at the angle, and made them strong.

10 He built also towers in the desert, and hewed out many wells; for he had much cattle, both in the lowlands and in the plain; (also) husbandmen, and vintners in the mountains, and in Carmel; for he loved husbandry.

11 ¶ Moreover 'Uzziyah had an army of fighting men, that went out to the host by bands, according to the number of those mustered of them through the hand of Je'iël the scribe and Ma'asseyahu the overseer, under the supervision of Chananyahu, one of the king's captains.

12 The whole number of the chiefs of the family divisions of the mighty men of valour was two thousand and six hundred.

13 And under their supervision was an efficient army, (of) three hundred thousand and seven thousand and five hundred, that made war with mighty power, to help the king against the enemy.

14 And 'Uzziyahu prepared for them, for all the host, shields, and spears, and helmets, and coats of mail, and bows, and stones for slinging.

15 And he made in Jerusalem artificial contrivances, contrived by a skilful man, to be (stationed) on the towers and upon the ramparts, to shoot off arrows and great stones. And his name extended ever so far abroad; for he was marvellously assisted, till he became strong.

16 But when he was strong, his heart was lifted up to his destruction; and he became unfaithful against the LORD his God, and went into the temple of the LORD to burn incense upon the altar of incense.

17 And there went in after him 'Azaryahu the priest, and with him were priests of the LORD, valiant men, (to the number of) eighty;

18 And they stood forward against king 'Uzziyahu, and they said unto him, It is not for thee, O 'Uzziyahu, to burn incense unto the LORD, but for the priests the sons of Aaron, who are consecrated to burn incense: go out of the sanctuary; for thou hast trespassed; and it will not be for thy honour from the LORD God.

19 But 'Uzziyahu became wroth, and in his hand was a censer to burn incense: and while he was wroth with the priests, the leprosy even broke out on his forehead before the priests in the house of the LORD, above the altar of the incense.

20 And when 'Azaryahu the chief priest, with all the priests, turned about toward him, behold, he was leprous on his forehead, and they hurried him away from there: yea, he also made haste to go out, because the LORD had afflicted him.

21 And king 'Uzziyahu was a leper until the day of his death, and dwelt in the leper-house, as a leper; for he was excluded from the house of the LORD: and Jotham his son was over the king's house, (and) judged the people of the land.

22 And the rest of the acts of 'Uzziyahu, the first and the last, did Isaiah the prophet, the son of Amoz, write.

23 And 'Uzziyahu slept with his fathers, and they buried him with his fathers in the burial-field which belonged to the kings; for they said, He is a leper: and Jotham his son became king in his stead.

CHAPTER XXVII.

1 ¶ Twenty and five years old was Jotham when he became king, and sixteen years did he reign in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Yerushah, the daughter of Zadok.

2 And he did what is right in the eyes of the LORD, in accordance with all that his father 'Uzziyahu had done: only he entered not into the temple of the LORD. But the people acted still corruptly.

3 He it was that built the upper gate of the house of the LORD, and on the wall of the hill-fort he built much.

4 Moreover he built cities in the mountain of Judah, and in the forests he built castles and towers.

5 And he likewise fought with the king of the sons of 'Ammon, and prevailed against them. And the children of 'Ammon gave him in that same year one hundred talents of silver, and ten thousand kors of wheat, and ten thousand of barley. So much did the children of 'Ammon pay unto him again, both in the second year, and in the third.

6 So Jotham became strong; because he directed his ways[a] before the LORD his God.

7 And the rest of the acts of Jotham, and all his wars, and his ways, lo, they are written in the book of the kings of Israel and Judah.

8 ¶ Five and twenty years old was he when he became king, and sixteen years did he reign in Jerusalem.

9 And Jotham slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the city of David: and Achaz his son became king in his stead.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

1 ¶ Twenty years old was Achaz when he became king, and sixteen years did he reign in Jerusalem; and he did not what is right in the eyes of the LORD, like David his father;

2 But he walked in the ways of the kings of Israel, and made also molten images for the Be'alim.

3 And he also burnt incense in the valley of the son of Hinnom, and burnt[b] his sons in the fire, after the abominable acts of the nations that the LORD had driven out from before the children of Israel.

4 And he sacrificed and burnt incense on the high-places, and on the hills, and under every green tree.

5 Wherefore the LORD his God gave him up into the hand of the king of Syria; and they defeated his people, and carried away a great multitude of them captives, and brought them to Damascus. And also into the hand of the king of Israel was he given up, and he defeated his people with a great slaughter.

6 And Pekach the son of Remalyahu slew in Judah one hundred and twenty thousand in one day, all being valiant men; because they had forsaken the LORD, the God of their fathers.

7 ¶ And Zichri, a mighty man of Ephraim, slew Ma'asseyahu the king's son, and 'Azrikam the governor of the house, and Elkanah the second in rank to the king.

8 And the children of Israel led away captive from their brethren two hundred thousand, women, sons, and daughters, and also much booty did they plunder from them, and they brought the booty to Samaria.

9 But there was a prophet of the LORD, 'Oded was his name; and he went out to meet the host that was coming to Samaria, and said unto them, Behold, because of the fury of the LORD the God of your fathers against Judah, hath he given them up into your hand, and ye have slain among them in a rage that reacheth as far as the heavens.

10 And now ye think to force the children of Judah and Jerusalem to become bond-men and bond-women unto you; but surely are there not with you, even with you, trespasses against the LORD your God?

11 And now hear me, and restore the cap-

[b] Zunz, as in 2 Kings xvi. 3, "he led his sons through the fire."

tives, whom ye have taken captive from your brethren; for the fierce wrath of the LORD is over you.

12 ¶ Then arose certain men of the heads of the children of Ephraim, 'Azaryahu the son of Jehochanan, Berechyahu the son of Meshillemoth, and Jechizkiyahu the son of Shallum, and 'Amassa the son of Chadlai, against those that were come from the army, 13 And they said unto them, Ye shall not bring in the captives hither; for in addition to the guiltiness against the LORD (resting) on us, ye think to add unto our sins and unto our guiltiness; for great is the guiltiness (resting) on us, and there is fierce wrath over Israel.

14 So the armed men abandoned the captives and the spoil before the princes and all the assembly.

15 And then arose the men who have been expressed by name, and took hold of the captives, and all that were naked among them they clothed from the booty; and they gave them garments and shoes, and gave them to eat and to drink, and anointed them, and carried all the feeble of them upon asses, and brought them to Jericho, the city of palm-trees, near their brethren; and then did they return to Samaria.

16 ¶ At that time sent king Achaz unto the kings of Assyria to help him.

17 Moreover the Edomites came again and defeated (the men of) Judah, and carried away captives.

18 And the Philistines invaded the cities of the lowlands, and of the south of Judah, and captured Beth-shemesh, and Ayalon, and Gederoth, and Socho with its villages, and Thimnah with its villages, and Gimzo with its villages; and they dwelt there.

19 For the LORD humbled Judah on account of Achaz the king of Israel; for he made Judah unruly, and acted very faithlessly against the LORD.

20 Then came against him Tilgath-pilneëser the king of Assyria, and distressed him, but strengthened him not.

21 Although Achaz took away a portion (out) of the house of the LORD, and (out) of the house of the king, and of the princes, and gave it unto the king of Assyria: he yet gave him no assistance.

22 And in the time that he distressed him, became he yet more faithless against the LORD,—yea, he, king Achaz;

23 And he sacrificed unto the gods of (the people of) Damascus, who had smitten him; and he said, Because the gods of the kings of Syria do help them, (therefore) will I sacrifice unto them, that they may help me. But they only became to him a stumbling-block for him and for all Israel.

24 And Achaz gathered up the vessels of the house of God, and cut in pieces the vessels of the house of God, and locked up the doors of the house of the LORD, and he made for himself altars in every corner of Jerusalem.

25 And in each and every city of Judah made he high-places to burn incense unto other gods; and he provoked to anger the LORD the God of his fathers.

26 And the rest of his acts and of all his ways, the first and the last, behold, they are written in the book of the kings of Judah and Israel.

27 And Achaz slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the city, in Jerusalem; for they brought him not into the sepulchres of the kings of Israel: and Hezekiah his son became king in his stead.

CHAPTER XXIX.

1 ¶ Hezekiah became king when five and twenty years old, and twenty and nine years did he reign in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Abiyah, the daughter of Zecharyahu.

2 And he did what is right in the eyes of the LORD, in accordance with all that David his father had done.

3 He it was that in the first year of his reign, in the first month, opened the doors of the house of the LORD, and repaired them.

4 And he brought in the priests and the Levites, and gathered them together into the open place at the east;

5 And he said unto them, Hear me, ye Levites, sanctify yourselves now, and sanctify the house of the LORD the God of your fathers, and carry forth the unclean thing out of the sanctuary.

6 For our fathers have dealt faithlessly, and have done what is evil in the eyes of the LORD our God, and have forsaken him; and they have turned away their faces from the habitation of the LORD, and turned their backs.

7 They had also locked up the doors of the porch, and put out the lamps, and incense have they not burnt, and the burnt-offerings have they not offered in the sanctuary, unto the God of Israel.

8 Wherefore the wrath of the LORD is upon Judah and Jerusalem, and he hath rendered them to be a horror, an astonishment, and a hissing, as ye see with your eyes.

9 And, lo, our fathers have fallen by the sword, and our sons, and our daughters, and our wives are in captivity because of this.

10 Now it is in my heart to make a covenant for the LORD the God of Israel, that his fierce wrath may turn away from us.

11 My sons, be not negligent now; for of you hath the LORD made choice to stand before him, to minister unto him, and that ye might be unto him ministers and those that burn incense.

12 Then arose the Levites, Machath the son of 'Amassai, and Joël the son of 'Azaryahu, of the sons of the Kehathites; and of the sons of Merari, Kish the son of 'Abdi, and 'Azaryahu the son of Jehallelël; and of the Gershunites, Joäch the son of Zimmah, and 'Eden the son of Joäch;

13 And of the sons of Elizaphan, Shimri, and Je'iël; and of the sons of Assaph, Zecharyahu and Matthanyahu;

14 ¶ And of the sons of Heman, Jechiël and Shim'i; and of the sons of Jeduthun, Shema'yah and 'Uzziël;

15 And they gathered together their brethren, and they sanctified themselves, and came, according to the command of the king, by the words of the LORD, to cleanse the house of the LORD.

16 And the priests went into the inner part of the house of the LORD, to cleanse it; and they brought out every thing unclean which they found in the temple of the LORD into the court of the house of the LORD; and the Levites received it, to carry it out abroad unto the brook Kidron.

17 And they commenced on the first day of the first month to sanctify; and on the eighth day of the month they came to the porch of the LORD, and they sanctified the house of the LORD in eight days; and on the sixteenth day of the first month they made an end.[a]

18 ¶ Then went they in the inner part (of the palace) to king Hezekiah, and said, We have cleansed all the house of the LORD, and the altar of burnt-offering, and all its vessels, and the table of showbread, and all its vessels.

19 Moreover all the vessels, which king Achaz had cast aside during his reign in his faithlessness, have we put in order and sanctified: and, behold, they are before the altar of the LORD.

20 ¶ Then arose king Hezekiah early, and gathered together the princes of the city, and went up to the house of the LORD.

21 And they brought seven bullocks, and seven rams, and seven sheep, and seven he-goats, as a sin-offering for the kingdom, and for the sanctuary, and for Judah. And he ordered the sons of Aaron the priests to offer (them) on the altar of the LORD.

22 So they slaughtered the bullocks, and the priests received the blood, and sprinkled it on the altar; and they slaughtered the rams, and they sprinkled the blood upon the altar; they also slaughtered the sheep, and they sprinkled the blood upon the altar.

23 And they brought near the he-goats of the sin-offering before the king and the congregation; and they laid their hands upon them:

24 And the priests slaughtered them, and they made an expiation with their blood upon the altar, to make an atonement for all Israel; because for all the people, said the king, should be the burnt-offering and the sin-offering.

25 And he stationed the Levites in the house of the LORD with cymbals, with psalteries, and with harps, according to the command of David, and of Gad the king's seër, and Nathan the prophet; because from the LORD was this commandment by means of his prophets.

26 ¶ And the Levites stood with the instruments of David, and the priests with the trumpets.

27 And Hezekiah ordered to offer the burnt-offering on the altar. And when the burnt-offering began, the song of the LORD began (also) with the trumpets, and with the instruments of David the king of Israel.

28 And all the assembly prostrated themselves, and the song sounded, and the trum-

[a] Their own purification lasted eight days, and that of the temple the same time.

peters blew: all this (continued) until the burnt-offering was completed.

29 And when they had made an end of offering, the king and all that were present with him kneeled down and prostrated themselves.

30 And king Hezekiah and the princes then said to the Levites to sing praises unto the LORD with the words of David, and of Assaph the seër. And they sang praises with great joy, and they bowed their heads and prostrated themselves.

31 ¶ Then commenced Hezekiah, and said, Now have ye consecrated yourselves unto the LORD: come near and bring sacrifices and thanksgiving-offerings unto the house of the LORD. And the assembly brought in sacrifices and thanksgiving-offerings, and every one who was liberal of heart, burnt-offerings.

32 And the number of the burnt-offerings, which the assembly brought, was seventy bullocks, one hundred rams, (and) two hundred sheep: as a burnt-offering unto the LORD were all these.

33 And the hallowed sacrifices were six hundred oxen and three thousand sheep.

34 Only the priests were too few, so that they could not flay all the burnt-offerings: wherefore their brethren the Levites assisted them, till the work was ended, and until the other priests could sanctify themselves; for the Levites were of upright heart to sanctify themselves more than the priests.

35 But there were also burnt-offerings in abundance, with the fat of the peace-offerings, and the drink-offerings for the burnt-offerings. So was (again) established the service of the house of the LORD.

36 And Hezekiah rejoiced, with all the people, over that which God had prepared for the people; because the thing occurred suddenly.

CHAPTER XXX.

1 ¶ Then sent Hezekiah to all Israel and Judah, and he also wrote letters to Ephraim and Menasseh, that they should come to the house of the LORD at Jerusalem, to prepare the passover-sacrifice unto the LORD the God of Israel.

2 And the king held a consultation, as also his princes, and all the assembly in Jerusalem, to prepare the passover-sacrifice in the second month.

3 For they were not able to prepare it at that time; because the priests had not sanctified themselves sufficiently, nor had the people gathered themselves together to Jerusalem.

4 And the thing seemed right in the eyes of the king and in the eyes of all the assembly.

5 So they established a decree to cause a proclamation to be made throughout all Israel, from Beër-sheba' even as far as Dan, that they should come to prepare the passover-sacrifice unto the LORD the God of Israel at Jerusalem; because for a long time past they had not prepared it as it was written.

6 So the runners went with the letters from the hand of the king and his princes throughout all Israel and Judah, and according to the command of the king, saying, O children of Israel, return unto the LORD the God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Israel, and he will return to the remnant of you, that are escaped out of the power of the kings of Assyria.

7 And be not like your fathers, and like your brethren, who acted faithlessly against the LORD the God of their fathers, wherefore he gave them up to become an (object of) astonishment, as ye see.

8 Now do ye not harden your necks, like your fathers; hold out your hand unto the LORD, and come unto his sanctuary, which he hath sanctified for ever, and serve the LORD your God, and so will he turn away from you the fierceness of his wrath.

9 For if ye return unto the LORD, your brethren and your children will find mercy in the presence of their captors, so that they may return to this land; for the LORD your God is gracious and merciful, and will not turn away his countenance from you, if ye return unto him.

10 ¶ And as the runners were passing from city to city through the country of Ephraim and Menasseh and as far as Zebulun, they were laughing them to scorn, and mocking at them.

11 Nevertheless some men of Asher and Menasseh and of Zebulun humbled themselves, and came to Jerusalem.

12 Also over Judah came the hand of God to give unto them one heart to do the command of the king and of the princes, by the word of the LORD.

13 And there was gathered together at Jerusalem a numerous people to keep the feast of unleavened bread in the second month, a very great assembly.

14 And they arose and removed the altars which were in Jerusalem, and all the vessels for burning incense did they take away, and they threw them into the brook Kidron.

15 And they slaughtered the passover-sacrifice on the fourteenth day of the second month: and the priests and the Levites were ashamed, and sanctified themselves, and brought burnt-offerings unto the house of the LORD.

16 ¶ And they stood on their station after their prescribed manner, according to the law of Moses the man of God, the priest sprinkling the blood, (which they received) out of the hand of the Levites.

17 For there were many in the assembly that had not sanctified themselves: therefore the Levites had the charge of the slaughtering of the passover-sacrifices for every one that was not clean, to sanctify (the same) unto the LORD.

18 For a large portion of the people, even many out of Ephraim, and Menasseh, Issachar, and Zebulun, had not cleansed themselves, but ate the passover not as it is written. However Hezekiah prayed for them, saying, The LORD who is good will grant pardon for this 19 To every one that hath directed his heart to seek God, the LORD the God of his fathers; though he be not (cleansed) according to the purification of the sanctuary.

20 And the LORD hearkened to Hezekiah, and he healed the people.

21 ¶ And the children of Israel that were present at Jerusalem celebrated the feast of unleavened bread seven days with great joy; and the Levites and the priests praised the LORD day by day, with loud instruments before the LORD.

22 And Hezekiah spoke comfortingly unto all the Levites that had good intelligence of the LORD: and they ate the festive-offerings during seven days, offering peace-offerings, and making confession to the LORD the God of their fathers.

23 And the whole assembly took counsel to celebrate other seven days: and they celebrated (these) seven days with joy.

24 For Hezekiah king of Judah had provided for the assembly one thousand bullocks and seven thousand sheep; and the princes had provided for the assembly one thousand bullocks and ten thousand sheep: and the priests sanctified themselves in great numbers.

25 And thus rejoiced all the assembly of Judah, and the priests and the Levites, and all the assembly that was come out of Israel, and the strangers that were come out of the land of Israel, and those that dwelt in Judah.

26 And there was great joy in Jerusalem; for since the time of Solomon the son of David the king of Israel had the like not been in Jerusalem.

27 ¶ Then arose the priests the Levites and blessed the people; and their voice was listened to, and their prayer came to His holy dwelling-place, even unto heaven.

CHAPTER XXXI.

1 And when all this was finished, all Israel that were present went out to the cities of Judah, and broke in pieces the statues, and cut down the groves, and pulled down the high-places and the altars out of all Judah and Benjamin, and in Ephraim and Menasseh, until they had made an end of them all. Then returned all the children of Israel every man to his possession, to their own cities.

2 And Hezekiah stationed the divisions of the priests and the Levites after their divisions, every man according to his service, of the priests and the Levites, for burnt-offerings and for peace-offerings, to minister, and to give thanks, and to praise in the gates of the camps of the LORD.

3 The king also gave a portion from his own property for the burnt-offerings, (namely,) for the morning and evening burnt-offerings, and the burnt-offerings for the sabbaths, and for the new-moons, and for the appointed feasts, as it is written in the law of the LORD.

4 Moreover he said to the people, to those who dwelt in Jerusalem, to give the portion of the priests and the Levites, in order that they might hold firmly to the law of the LORD.

5 And when the matter was spread abroad, the children of Israel brought in abundance the first-fruits of corn, of the new wine, and of oil, and of honey, and of all the products of the field; and the tithe of all things did they bring (likewise) in abundance.

6 And as for the children of Israel and Judah, that dwelt in the cities of Judah, they also brought in the tithe of oxen and sheep, and the tithe of holy things which were hallowed unto the LORD their God, and gave (them) by heaps.

7 ¶ In the third month did they begin to lay the foundation of the heaps, and in the seventh month did they finish them.

8 And when Hezekiah and the princes came and saw the heaps, they blessed the LORD, and his people Israel.

9 ¶ Then made Hezekiah inquiry of the priests and the Levites concerning the heaps.

10 Then spoke to him 'Azaryahu the chief priest of the house of Zadok, and said, Since it was begun to bring the heave-offerings into the house of the LORD, there hath been enough to eat, and to leave in great abundance; for the LORD hath blessed his people: and that which is left is this great mass.

11 ¶ Then ordered Hezekiah to prepare chambers in the house of the LORD: and they prepared them.

12 And they brought in the heave-offerings, and the tithes, and the sanctified things, in faithfulness: and over them were appointed the ruler Conanyahu the Levite, and Shim'i his brother the second in rank.

13 And Jechiël, and 'Azazyahu, and Nachath, and 'Assahël, and Jerimoth, and Jozabad, and Eliël, and Yissmachyahu, and Machath, and Benayahu, were overseers under the supervision of Conanyahu and Shim'i his brother, by the appointment of king Hezekiah, and 'Azaryahu the ruler of the house of God.

14 And Koré the son of Yimnah the Levite, the gatekeeper at the east side, was over the freewill-offerings of God, to give (to him) the heave-offerings of the LORD, and the most holy things.

15 And under his supervision were 'Eden, and Minyamin, and Jeshua', and Shema'yahu, Amaryahu, and Shechanyahu, in the cities of the priests, in faithfulness, to give to their brethren after the divisions, equally to the great as to the small;

16 Besides (these) to those recorded by their genealogies of males, from three years old and upward, of all that entered into the house of the LORD, the daily portion on its day, for their service in their charges according to their divisions;

17 And likewise to the priests recorded by their genealogies after their family divisions, and the Levites from twenty years old and upward, in their charges by their divisions;

18 And to those recorded by their genealogies of all their little ones, their wives, and their sons, and their daughters, of all the assembly; for in their faithfulness they devoted themselves in the sanctuary.

19 Also of the sons of Aaron the priests, who were in the fields of the open districts of their cities, in each and every city, there were men, expressed by name, who had to give portions to all the males among the priests, and to all that were recorded by their genealogies among the Levites.

20 And the like did Hezekiah in all Judah, and he did what is good and right and true before the LORD his God.

21 And in every work that he began in the service of the house of God, and in the law, and in the commandments, to seek his God, he acted with all his heart, and prospered.

CHAPTER XXXII.

1 ¶ After these things and veritable events came Sennacherib the king of Assyria, and invaded Judah, and encamped against the fortified cities, and thought to break them open for himself.

2 And when Hezekiah saw that Sennacherib was coming, and that his face (was directed) for war against Jerusalem,

3 He consulted with his princes and his mighty men to stop up the waters of the springs which were without the city: and they helped him.

4 And there were gathered together a very numerous body of people, and they stopped up all the springs, and the brook[a] that flowed through the midst of the land, saying, Why should the kings of Assyria come, and find much water?

5 Also he strengthened himself, and built up all the wall where it was broken down, and heightened[a] the towers, and (built) without another wall, and fortified the Millo of the city of David, and made weapons in abundance and shields.

6 And he appointed war-officers over the people, and gathered them together unto him in the open place at the gate of the city, and spoke comfortingly to them, saying,

7 Be strong and of good courage, do not fear and be not dismayed because of the king of Assyria, and because of all the multitude that is with him; for with us there is One[b] greater than with him:

8 With him there is an arm of flesh; but with us is the LORD our God to help us, and to fight our battles. And the people relied upon the words of Hezekiah the king of Judah.

9 ¶ After this did Sennacherib the king of Assyria send his servants to Jerusalem, while he was himself lying before Lachish, and all (the chief troops of) his dominion with him, against Hezekiah the king of Judah, and against all Judah that were at Jerusalem, saying,

10 Thus hath said Sennacherib the king of Assyria, On what do ye trust, that ye remain besieged in Jerusalem?

11 Doth not Hezekiah mislead you to give you up to die by famine and by thirst, when he saith, The LORD our God will deliver us out of the grasp of the king of Assyria?

12 Is it not this Hezekiah that hath removed his high-places and his altars, when he said to Judah and to Jerusalem, saying, Before one altar shall ye prostrate yourselves, and upon it shall ye burn incense?

13 Know ye not what I have done, I and my fathers, unto all the people of (other) lands? were the gods of the nations of those lands at all able to deliver their land out of my hand?

14 Who among all the gods of those nations that my fathers utterly destroyed, was it, that was able to deliver his people out of my hand, that your God should be able to deliver you out of my hand?

15 And now let not Hezekiah deceive you, and let him not mislead you in this manner, nor believe him; for no god of any nation or kingdom whatever was able to deliver his people out of my hand, and out of the hand of my fathers: how much less will you Gods, deliver you out of my hand!

16 And yet more did his servants speak against the LORD God, and against his servant Hezekiah.

17 He wrote also letters to blaspheme against the LORD the God of Israel, and to speak against him, saying, As the gods of the nations of (other) lands, who have not delivered their people out of my hand, so will the God of Hezekiah not deliver his people out of my hand.

18 Then did they call out with a loud voice in the Jewish language unto the people of Jerusalem that were on the wall, to frighten them, and to terrify them: in order that they might capture the city.

19 And they spoke of the God of Jerusalem, as concerning the gods of the nations of the earth, the work of the hands of man.

20 ¶ And king Hezekiah and Isaiah the son of Amoz the prophet prayed for this cause, and they cried to heaven.

21 ¶ And the LORD sent an angel, who cut off every mighty man of valour and leader and captain in the camp of the king of Assyria: and when he was returned with shame of face to his own land, he went into the house of his god, and (those) that were come forth from his own bowels felled him there with the sword.

22 Thus did the LORD save Hezekiah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem out of the hand of Sennacherib the king of Assyria, and out of the hand of all, and guided them (safely) on every side.

23 And many brought presents unto the LORD to Jerusalem, and precious things to Hezekiah the king of Judah: so that he was exalted before the eyes of all the nations after that time.

24 ¶ In those days fell Hezekiah sick to the death; and he prayed unto the LORD: and he spoke unto him, and he gave him a wonderful token.

25 But not according to the mercy shown unto him did Hezekiah act in return; for his heart was lifted up: wherefore there came wrath over him, and over Judah and Jerusalem.

[a] Herxheimer. Zunz, "erected towers." Eng. ver. "and raised (it) up to the towers."

[b] Zunz; i. e. God. Others, "there are more with us."

26 Then became Hezekiah humbled because of the lifting up of his heart, both he and the inhabitants of Jerusalem; and the wrath of the LORD came not upon them in the days of Hezekiah.

27 And Hezekiah had riches and honour in exceeding abundance; and he made himself treasuries for silver, and for gold, and for precious stones, and for spices, and for shields, and for all manner of costly vessels;

28 And storehouses for the produce of corn, and new wine, and oil; and stalls for all kinds of cattle, and sheepfolds for flocks.

29 Moreover he erected for himself cities, and (acquired) possessions of flocks and herds in multitude; for God had given him wealth in great abundance.

30 This same Hezekiah also stopped up the upper mouth of the waters of Gichon, and brought them straight down to the west side of the city of David. And Hezekiah prospered in all his works.

31 And in the same manner in the business of the ambassadors of the princes of Babylon, who sent unto him to inquire concerning the wonder that had happened in the land, God left him, to prove him, to know all that was in his heart.

32 ¶ And the rest of the acts of Hezekiah, and his pious deeds, behold, they are written in the vision of Isaiah the son of Amoz, the prophet, (and) in the book of the kings of Judah and Israel.

33 And Hezekiah slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the highest place of the sepulchres of the sons of David: and all Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem showed him honour at his death. And Menasseh his son became king in his stead.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

1 ¶ Twelve years old was Menasseh when he became king, and fifty and five years did he reign in Jerusalem.

2 And he did what is evil in the eyes of the LORD, after the abominable acts of the nations whom the LORD had driven out from before the children of Israel.

3 And he built again the high-places which Hezekiah his father had broken down, and he erected altars for the Be'alim, and made Asheroth, and bowed himself down to all the host of heaven, and served them.

4 And he built altars in the house of the LORD, whereof the LORD had said, In Jerusalem shall my name be for ever.

5 And he built altars for all the host of heaven in the two courts of the house of the LORD.

6 And he caused his children to pass through the fire in the valley of Ben-hinnom; he also observed times, and employed enchantments, and used witchcraft, and dealt with (those of) a familiar spirit, and with wizards: he did much that is evil in the eyes of the LORD, to provoke him to anger.

7 And he placed a carved image of the idol which he had made in the house of God, of which God had said to David and to Solomon his son, In this house, and in Jerusalem, which I have made choice of out of all the tribes of Israel, will I place my name for ever.

8 ¶ Nor will I any more remove the foot of Israel from off the land which I have appointed for your fathers; but only if they will take heed to do all that I have commanded them, according to the whole law and the statutes and the ordinances by the hand of Moses.

9 But Menasseh led Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem astray, to do worse than the nations whom the LORD had destroyed from before the children of Israel.

10 ¶ And the LORD spoke to Menasseh, and to his people; but they listened not.

11 Wherefore the LORD brought over them the captains of the army belonging to the king of Assyria: and they took Menasseh prisoner with chains, and bound him with fetters, and led him off to Babylon.

12 And when he was in distress, he besought the LORD his God, and humbled himself greatly before the God of his fathers, 13 And he prayed unto him, and he permitted himself to be entreated by him, and heard his supplication, and brought him back to Jerusalem, unto his kingdom. Then did Menasseh feel conscious that the LORD is indeed the (true) God.

14 And after this he built a wall without the city of David, on the west side of Gichon, in the valley, even to the entrance of the fish-gate, and about the hill-fort, and raised it up to a very great height; and he placed captains of the army in all the fortified cities of Judah.

15 And he removed the strange gods and the idol out of the house of the LORD, and all the altars that he had built on the mount of the house of the LORD, and in Jerusalem, and he cast them forth to without the city.

16 And he rebuilt the altar of the LORD, and sacrificed thereupon peace-offerings and thanksgiving-offerings, and he ordered Judah to serve the LORD the God of Israel.

17 Nevertheless the people sacrificed on the high-places, but only unto the LORD their God.

18 And the rest of the acts of Menasseh, and his prayer unto his God, and the words of the seërs that spoke to him in the name of the LORD the God of Israel, behold, they are in the history of the kings of Israel.

19 His prayer also, and (how God) was entreated of him, and all his sins and his faithlessness, and the places whereon he built high-places, and set up the Asherim and the graven images, before he was humbled: behold, they are written in the history of Chozai.

20 And Menasseh slept with his fathers, and they buried him in his own house. And Amon his son became king in his stead.

21 ¶ Two and twenty years old was Amon when he became king, and two years did he reign in Jerusalem.

22 And he did what is evil in the eyes of the LORD, as Menasseh his father had done; and unto all the carved images which Menasseh his father had made did Amon sacrifice, and them he served;

23 But he did not humble himself before the LORD, as Menasseh his father had humbled himself; for he, Amon, made his guiltiness great.

24 And his servants conspired against him, and put him to death in his own house.

25 But the people of the land slew all those that had conspired against king Amon; and the people of the land made Josiah his son king in his stead.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

1 ¶ Eight years old was Josiah when he became king, and thirty and one years did he reign in Jerusalem.

2 And he did what is right in the eyes of the LORD, and walked in the ways of David his father, and turned not aside to the right or to the left.

3 ¶ And in the eighth year of his reign, while he was yet a lad, he began to seek after the God of David his father; and in the twelfth year he began to purify Judah and Jerusalem from the high-places, and the Asherim, and the carved images, and the molten images.

4 And they broke down in his presence the altars of the Be'alim; and the sun-images, that were set above them, he cut down; and the Asherim, and the carved images, and the molten images, he broke in pieces, and ground down, and strewed (the same) upon the graves of those that had sacrificed unto them.

5 And the bones of priests did he burn upon their altars; and he purified Judah and Jerusalem.

6 And (so did he) in the cities of Menasseh, and Ephraim, and Simeon, even as far as Naphtali, with their mattocks,[a] round about.

7 And when he had broken down the altars and had beaten the Asherim and the graven images into powder, and cut down all the sun-images throughout all the land of Israel, he returned to Jerusalem.

8 ¶ And in the eighteenth year of his reign, when he had purified the land and the house, he sent Shaphan the son of Azalyahu, and Ma'asseyahu the governor of the city, and Joäch the son of Joächaz the recorder, to repair the house of the LORD his God.

9 And they came to Chilkiyahu the high-priest, and gave up the money that had been brought into the house of God, which the Levites that watched at the threshold had gathered from the hand of Menasseh and Ephraim, and from all the remnant of Israel, and from all Judah and Benjamin, and were returned to Jerusalem,—

10 And they delivered it into the hand of those who overlooked the workmen that had been appointed as overseers of the house of the LORD: and those who overlooked the workmen, who did the work in the house of the LORD, gave it out, to repair and to restore the house;

11 And they gave it to the carpenters and to the builders, to buy hewn stone, and timber for joists, and to lay the beams in the houses which the kings of Judah had destroyed.

12 And the men acted faithfully in the work: and over them were appointed Jachath and 'Obadyahu, the Levites, of the sons of Merari; and Zechariah and Meshullam, of the sons of the Kehathites, to supervise; and every one of these Levites was skilful on instruments of music.

13 They were also over the bearers of burdens, and supervisors over all that did the work in every manner of service: and from the Levites there were also scribes, and officers, and gatekeepers.

14 And when they took out the money that had been brought into the house of the LORD, Chilkiyahu the priest found the book of the law of the LORD through the hand of Moses.

15 Then commenced Chilkiyahu and said to Shaphan the scribe, The book of the law have I found in the house of the LORD. And Chilkiyahu gave the book to Shaphan.

16 And Shaphan carried the book to the king, and brought the king also word back again, saying, All that was put in the hand of thy servants, have they truly done.

17 And they have taken out the money that was found in the house of the LORD, and have delivered it into the hand of the appointed overseers, and into the hand of those who overlook the workmen.

18 Then told Shaphan the scribe the king, saying, A book hath Chilkiyahu the priest given me. And Shaphan read in it before the king.

19 And it came to pass, when the king heard the words of the law, that he rent his clothes.

20 And the king commanded Chilkiyahu, and Achikam the son of Shaphan, and 'Abdon the son of Michah, and Shaphan the scribe, and 'Assayah a servant of the king's, saying,

21 Go ye, inquire of the LORD in my behalf, and in behalf of those that are left in Israel and in Judah, concerning the words of the book that hath been found; for great is the fury of the LORD that is poured out against us, because our fathers did not keep the word of the LORD, to do in accordance with all that is written in this book.

22 ¶ Then went Chilkiyahu with those whom the king (had appointed), to Chuldah the prophetess, the wife of Shallum the son of Thokhath, the son of Chassrah, the keeper of the wardrobe;—now she dwelt in Jerusalem in the suburb;—and they spoke to her in that wise.

23 And she said unto them, Thus hath said the LORD the God of Israel, Say unto the man that hath sent you to me,

24 ¶ Thus hath said the LORD, Behold, I will bring evil upon this place, and upon its inhabitants, all the curses that are written in the book which they have read before the king of Judah;

25 Because they have forsaken me, and have burnt incense unto other gods, in order to provoke me to anger with all the works of their hands: therefore is my fury poured out upon this place, and it shall not be quenched.

26 And with respect to the king of Judah, who sendeth you to inquire of the LORD, thus shall ye say to him, Thus hath said the LORD the God of Israel, Concerning the words which thou hast heard;

27 Because thy heart was tender, and thou didst humble thyself before God, when thou heardst his words against this place, and against its inhabitants, and didst humble thyself before me, and rend thy clothes, and weep before me: I have also truly heard it, saith the LORD.

28 Behold, I will gather thee unto thy fathers, and thou shalt be gathered to thy graves in peace, and thy eyes shall not look on all the evil which I am bringing over this place, and over its inhabitants. And they brought the king word again.

29 ¶ And the king sent and gathered together all the elders of Judah and Jerusalem.

30 And the king went up into the house of the LORD, with all the men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and the priests, and the Levites, and all the people, from the great to the small; and he read before their ears all the words of the book of the covenant which had been found in the house of the LORD.

31 And the king stood up on his stand, and he made a covenant before the LORD, to walk after the LORD, and to keep his commandments, and his testimonies, and his statutes, with all his heart and with all his soul, to perform the words of the covenant that are written in this book.

32 And he caused to accede to it every one that was present in Jerusalem and Benjamin. And the inhabitants of Jerusalem acted in accordance with the covenant of God, the God of their fathers.

33 And Josiah removed all the abominations out of all the countries that belonged to the children of Israel, and caused all that were present in Israel to serve, even to serve the LORD their God. All his days did they not depart from following the LORD the God of their fathers.

CHAPTER XXXV.

1 ¶ And Josiah kept in Jerusalem the passover unto the LORD: and they slaughtered the passover-sacrifice on the fourteenth day of the first month.

2 And he placed the priests in their charges, and strengthened them for the service of the house of the LORD.

3 And he said unto the Levites that instructed all Israel, who were holy unto the LORD, Set the holy ark in the house which Solomon the son of David the king of Israel did build; you have not to carry it any more upon your shoulders: now serve the LORD your God, and his people Israel.

4 And prepare yourselves by your family divisions, according to your courses, after the written order of David the king of Israel, and after the written order of Solomon his son;

5 And stand in the holy place according to the divisions of the family divisions of your brethren the sons of the people, and after the division of the families of the Levites;

6 And slaughter the passover-sacrifice, and sanctify yourselves, and prepare it for your brethren, to do according to the word of the LORD by the hand of Moses.

7 ¶ And Josiah set apart for the sons of the people, of the flock, lambs and kids, all for the passover-sacrifices, for all that were present, to the number of thirty thousand, and of steers three thousand: these were of the king's property.

8 ¶ And his princes set apart (much) as a freewill gift for the people, for the priests, and for the Levites: Chilkiyah, and Zecharyahu, and Jechiël, the rulers of the house of God, gave unto the priests for the passover-sacrifices two thousand and six hundred (lambs and kids), and three hundred steers.

9 And Conanyahu, and Shema'yahu and Nethanel, his brothers, and Chashabyahu and Je'iël and Jozabad, the chiefs of the Levites, set apart unto the Levites for passover-sacrifices five thousand (lambs and kids), and five hundred steers.

10 ¶ So the service was established, and the priests stood on their station, and the Levites in their divisions, according to the king's command.

11 And they slaughtered the passover-sacrifice, and the priests sprinkled (the blood received) from their hands, and the Levites did the flaying.

12 And they removed the burnt-offerings to give them to the divisions of the family divisions of the sons of the people, to offer (them) unto the LORD, as it is written in the book of Moses. And so did they with the steers.

13 And they roasted the passover by the fire in accordance with the prescribed manner; but the holy offerings they seethed in pots, and in caldrons, and in pans, and divided them speedily among all the sons of the people.

14 And afterward they prepared for themselves, and for the priests; because the priests the sons of Aaron (were busied) in offering the burnt-offerings and the fat until night: therefore the Levites prepared for themselves and for the priests the sons of Aaron.

15 And the singers the sons of Assaph were on their station, according to the command of David, and Asaph, and Heman, and Jeduthun the king's seër; and the gatekeepers were at every gate: they had no need to depart from their service; because their brethren the Levites prepared for them.

16 So was established all the service of the LORD on the same day, to prepare the passover-sacrifice, and to offer burnt-offerings upon the altar of the LORD, according to the command of king Josiah.

17 And the children of Israel that were present prepared the passover-sacrifice at that time, and (kept) the feast of unleavened bread seven days.

18 And there was not holden any passover like this in Israel from the days of Samuel the prophet; and all the kings of Israel did not keep such a passover as Josiah kept, with the priests, and the Levites, and all Judah and Israel that were present, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

19 ¶ In the eighteenth year of the reign of Josiah was this passover holden.

20 After all this, when Josiah had restored the temple, came up Necho the king of Egypt to fight against Karkemish by the Euphrates, and Josiah went out against him.

21 But he sent ambassadors to him, saying, What have I to do with thee, thou king of Judah? I come not against thee this day, but against the house[a] wherewith I have war, and God hath commanded me to make haste: forbear thee from meddling with God who is with me, that he may not destroy thee.

22 Nevertheless did Josiah not turn his face away from him, but disguised[b] himself, to fight with him, and hearkened not unto the words of Necho from the mouth of God; and he came to fight in the valley of Megiddo.

23 And the archers shot at king Josiah: and the king said to his servants, Carry me away; for I am sorely wounded.

24 And his servants carried him away out of that chariot, and conveyed him in the second chariot that he had; and they brought him to Jerusalem, and he died, and was buried in the sepulchres of his fathers. And all Judah and Jerusalem mourned for Josiah.

25 ¶ And Jeremiah lamented for Josiah; and all the singing men and the singing women spoke of Josiah in their lamentations to this day, and they instituted them as a custom in Israel: and, behold, they are written in the lamentations.

26 And the rest of the acts of Josiah, and his pious deeds, in accordance with what is written in the law of the LORD, 27 And his acts, the first and the last, behold, they are written in the book of the kings of Israel and Judah.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

1 ¶ And the people of the land took Jehoächaz the son of Josiah, and made him king in his father's stead in Jerusalem.

2 Twenty and three years old was Jöachaz when he became king, and three months did he reign in Jerusalem.

3 And the king of Egypt deposed him at Jerusalem, and imposed a fine on the land of a hundred talents of silver and a talent of gold.

4 And the king of Egypt made Elyakim his brother king over Judah and Jerusalem, and changed his name to Jehoyakim. And Jöachaz his brother did Necho take away, and bring him to Egypt.

5 ¶ Twenty and five years old was Jehoyakim when he became king, and eleven years did he reign in Jerusalem; and he did what is evil in the eyes of the LORD his God.

6 Against him came up Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, and he bound him with fetters, to carry him away to Babylon.

7 And some of the vessels of the house of the LORD did Nebuchadnezzar carry to Babylon, and he placed them in his temple at Babylon.

8 And the rest of the acts of Jehoyakim, and his abominable deeds which he did, and that which was found concerning him, behold, they are written in the book of the kings of Israel and Judah. And Jehoyachin his son became king in his stead.

9 ¶ Eight[c] years old was Jehoyachin when he became king, and three months and ten days did he reign in Jerusalem; and he did what is evil in the eyes of the LORD.

10 And with the expiration of the year did king Nebuchadnezzar send, and had him brought to Babylon, with the costly vessels of the house of the LORD: and he made Zedekiah his brother king over Judah and Jerusalem.

11 ¶ Twenty and one years old was Zedekiah when he became king, and eleven years did he reign in Jerusalem.

12 And he did what is evil in the eyes of the LORD his God: he humbled himself not before Jeremiah the prophet, according to the order of the Lord.

13 And also against king Nebuchadnezzar did he rebel, who had made him swear by God; but he stiffened his neck, and hardened his heart so as not to return unto the LORD the God of Israel.

[a] i. e. The royal house—that of Assyria, with whom the Egyptians had frequent wars.

[b] Zunz, "he persisted to fight."

[c] In 2 Kings xxiv. 8, we have "eighteen." Redak suggests that perhaps his father made him assistant ruler when he was only eight years old.

14 Also all the chiefs of the priests and the people committed manifold trespasses, like all the abominable acts of the (foreign) nations; and they defiled the house of the LORD which he had hallowed in Jerusalem.

15 And the LORD the God of their fathers sent to them by means of his messengers, making (them) rise early, and sending (them); because he had compassion on his people, and on his dwelling-place;

16 But they mocked at the messengers of God, and despised his words, and scorned his prophets, until the fury of the LORD arose against his people, till there was no remedy.

17 And he brought over them the king of the Chaldeans, who slew their young men with the sword in the house of their sanctuary, and had no compassion upon young man or virgin, the old man, and the aged: all did he give into up into his hand.

18 ¶ And all the vessels of the house of God, the great and the small, and the treasures of the house of the LORD, and the treasures of the king and of his princes,—all these did he carry to Babylon.

19 And they burnt the house of God, and broke down the wall of Jerusalem, and all her palaces they burnt with fire, and all her costly vessels they gave up to destruction.

20 And those that had escaped from the sword did he carry into exile to Babylon; and they were servants to him and to his sons until the kingdom of Persia came to the government:

21 To fulfil the word of the LORD by the mouth of Jeremiah, until the land had satisfied its sabbaths;[a] all the days of its desolation it rested, till seventy years were completed.

22 ¶ And in the first year of Cyrus the king of Persia, at the completion of the word of the LORD by the mouth of Jeremiah, did the LORD stir up the spirit of Cyrus the king of Persia, so that he caused a proclamation to be made throughout all his kingdom, and also by means of writing, saying,

23 Thus hath said Cyrus the king of Persia, All the kingdoms of the earth hath the LORD the God of heaven given me; and he hath charged me to build him a house in Jerusalem, which is in Judah. Whoever there is among you of all his people, may the LORD his God be with him, and let him go up.
